In the same star-budget bracket as the aforesaid pix are such upcoming items as "Last Sunset," Rock Hudson-Kirk Douglas costarrer, and "Come September," with Hudson and Gina Lollobrigida.

Rackmil inked for his new seven-year hitch even though his pact had till April 30, 1963, to run. New contract sets the topper through Feb. 6, 1968, at a presidential Decca weekly paycheck of $817.31, and $2,403.84 for helming U—same salaries provided by his previous pact. Spicing the deal—and obviously in beaucoup gratitude—was the stock buy option, granting him purchase rights at $31.60 per share as against $33.25 a share on Feb. 7, date the new pact commenced.

Tonic Tone at Show-A-Rama; Much Stress on Good Personnel; Warning As to New Censoring

By JOHN W. QUINN

Kansas City, March 14.

The nearly 700 theatremen and other industryites who gathered at the Hotel Continental here last Tues.-Wed.-Thurs., manifested zeal, enthusiasm and penetrating interest as they studied industry betterment in the Heart of America United Theatre Owners' fourth annual "Show-A-Rama."

Feeling of confidence and a favorable outlook for the next few months of show biz as seen through their view-finder sessions, receptions, luncheons and exhibits. The tone was distinctly upbeat.

Exhibs were here from 21 states to make the convention most far-reaching geographically. Adjoining trade show overflowed the hotel's fourth floor.

Behind the enthusiasm of 1961 are several factors. One is the deepening fade of television rivalry. Another is a bullish outlook for good-films. Another is a new tend-to-business attitude that has emerged from recent hard period. If Show-A-Rama is any indication, American film theatres will be better run this year, fresh attention will be given to such basics as sharp personnel, inviting concessions, creative advertising more and more imaginative publicity.

To quote oat opera dialog, these boys mean business. This was easily evident from the interest shown in the keynote of M. L. Simons, the Gulf States exec from McComb, Miss., to the final words of Janet Leigh Thursday. Simons, in a word, exhorted to improved theatre operation with much emphasis on finding, keeping and directing capable personnel.

Glamour Helps

Hollywood helped with appearances of Maureen O'Hara, Vicki Trickett and Miss Leigh. Miss O'Hara lent the glamour touch to the opening luncheon. Miss Trickett was saluted as the most promising new face of 1961, and Miss Leigh was awarded a brand new UTO statuette as the "Star of the Year."

Miss Leigh followed the award at the Thursday closing luncheon to solidify the new outlook. It is unusual for her to speak her own words, she said, and especially in confronting 700 of "her employers" at one time. No industry voice is more important than that of the exhibs, for they are the ones who watch the store, who operate at the point of purchase. In our industry where the echelons are closely linked as they are, a reciprocal arrangement is called for in which producers, players and exhibs will do everything possible for the business that is good to all of us, she said.

The award itself is as precious as any she has received, and she will carry it with great pleasure to Hollywood, she told the assemblage.

Miss Trickett's appearance had added signficance in that she is a native of these parts and spent many of her school years here before her family recently moved "up river" to Omaha.

Awards also went to Robert Ballantyne, the Nebraska Scotsman who has spent 50 years in the industry, and to Arnold Gould for 25 years of service on the legislative front at Jefferson City, Mo. Ballantyne presently heads the Ballantyne Company, Omaha, but is still active in a career which has included exhibition, distribution and advertising as well as equipment. He was the subject of a This-Is-Your-Life tape produced for the occasion. Gould is city manager for Ourwood circuit in Jeff City.

Subjects into which speakers and forums delved included:

Promotions, guided by Paul Ricketts of Ness City, Kans.

Small town saturations, by Chris Gorder, Poplar, Mont.

Business-building exhib;

Advertising approach, by Larry Graburn, of Disney Co.

Distributor cooperation, by Jerry Pickman, Par v.p.;

Detailed ad-pub plans on nine releases.

Concessions.

Toll-tv, the anti view by Philip Harling, Stanley Warner exec.

Censorship, by Margaret Twyman MPAA rep;

New product, by Budd Rogers of Pathe-American, and Harry Thomas, MPI.

Exhibs got a special bang out of Ted Wielkopolsky, Pepsi's full time engineer and part time customer relations man. Leading off with, "If you think my name is long now, you should of heard it before I shortened it." He told them at the Thursday luncheon session that now is the time to give theatres a little warmth, personality and hospitaliy. The blush is going from tv and now is the time for showmen to rise to the challenge with new concentration, new effort and new business, he said.

Outgoing president W. L. Barritt of Wichita, stated that the 1962 Show-A-Rama would be held in Kansas City March 6-8. He turned the gavel over to Richard Orear, president of Commonwealth Theatres, the new president. Other officers are Fred Souttar, Fox Midwest exec, re-elected vice president; Glenn Dickinson, circuit chief, secretary; George Baker, drive-in exhib, treasurer.

Four new directors include Roy Hill, manager of the Fox Midwest Brookside Theatre, K. C.; Douglas Lightner, Commonwealth exec; Ed Harris, Neosho, Mo., Exhib and former president of the association; Henry Doering, Garnett, Kans., exhib.

Miss Twyman climaxed several days of public appearances in Kansas City on the industry's behalf with her talk on censorship. While relating experiences of the MPAA in the censorship battles, she told exhibs that whether the public is right or wrong in its assumed positions on censorship, the situation requires renewed alertness on the part of all segments of the industry. She suggested exhibs follow a plan of building a cushion of friendship in their various situations. She advised contacting of civic leaders and opinion-makers face to face, such as women's groups, educators, newspapers, and other public communicators, for the purpose of having the entry to interpret a proper point of view when censorship issues are raised.

An excellent vehicle for public entry is the new "little film," the 12-minute "Guns of Navarrone," showing how a motion picture is made. While this initially is a Highroad Production made for Columbia release, the MPAA is making the short generally available to exhibs as a means of gathering favorable community interest.

A sad note at the Thursday luncheon saw Ed Hartman taken ill and carried from the room. He died about 30 minutes later from what is believed to have been a heart attack, a possible recurrence of an earlier illness. He was a former president of the Motion Picture Assn., of Greater Kansas City.

NEW SLATE COMING UP

N. Y. Advertisers' Committee Seeking Leadership

Associated Motion Picture Advertisers, of New York, has set up a nominating committee, headed by Vincent Trotta, to offer a new panel of officers.

Bob Montgomery, president for the past three terms, has revealed he's no longer a candidate for reelection. Serving with Trotta are Gordon White, Ray Gallo, David Bader, Martin Starr and Blanche Livingston, with Ray Gallagher and Ted Arno as associates.

AMPA is more or less a fraternal organization, going back through many years, whose membership comprises the ad-pub fraternity of the film industry along with lay and trade press reps.

AMPA's luncheons frequently serve as a platform for industry execs to sound off, with their comments spotlighted by the trades.

JUDGMENT AT NUREMBERG

A STANLEY KRAMER PRODUCTION

February 1st,
1961

Mr. Max Ginsberg
New York Times
229 W. 43rd Street
New York, N.Y.

Dear Mr. Ginsberg:

The announcement of the world premiere of a motion picture before production of that picture has started is, obviously, an unprecedented event in the motion picture industry. Just as obviously, it is an announcement that cannot be left to the routine channels.

The global esteem and prestige of the New York Times and its International Edition made it our first and only choice to break the news that JUDGMENT AT NUREMBERG would be shown for the first time in the Congress Hall in Berlin on December 14th. In selecting these publications, we knew that a full page announcement of our intentions not only would reach a wide audience throughout the world but would carry our message to a readership that is discriminating and thoughtful.

Sincerely,
Stanley Kramer
Stanley Kramer

SEK/r

ROXLOM FILMS, INC. / UNIVERSAL CITY, CALIF. / CABLE: KRAMFILMS / PHONE: POplar 9-0500

Reduced from Times full-page size. Prepared and placed in The New York Times by Monroe Greenthal Co., Inc., New York.

PROBLEM FOR STANLEY KRAMER:

to gain quick trade recognition with an announcement of importance to a vital audience on two continents.

SOLUTION FOR STANLEY KRAMER:

advertise simultaneously in The New York Times and its International Edition for instant impact on both sides of the Atlantic . . . reaching more than 733,000 readers in America and Europe.

This important combination of the New York and International editions of The Times may be able to solve an important advertising problem for you, too.

THE NEW YORK TIMES

Champ Bout on TelePrompter

Continued from page 2

approximately $152,500 playing 13 situations in Los Angeles, Long Beach, Santa Monica area. Majority of situations reported sellouts, although three houses in downtown L. A., including Orpheum, Hillstreet, Warrens, came through only about two-thirds capacity. Pantages Fox Wilshire and Wiltern sold out early last week. Other sellouts were Moulin Rouge nitery, latter opening specially for event.

Santa Monica Civic Aud, Long Beach Municipal Aud; Warner at Huntington Park; Crown at Pasadena, Alex at Glendale and L. A. Shrine Aud didn't go clean. Latter, however, racked up lusty $15,000.

Chicago Looks Near 94G

Chicago, March 14.

Six-theatre gate for the bout here looked to top $94,000, all houses SRO or near. State-Lake, lone main stem situation carrying the fistics, counted $16,200 at $6 per.

Five nabe spots grossed $78,000 at $4 tariff.

Four of Five Okay

Detroit, March 14.

Despite heavy rain, bout drew near capacity in five Motor City theatres. Potential 12,369 seats were available, with four of the five houses selling out. Only dull b.o was at the 1,500-seat Shubert, where 500 payees showed.

Other houses were Michigan, Palms, Woods and Carmen. Total gross hit $52,595, out of possible $54,760.

100 Only Unsold

Denver, March 14.

Paramount Theatre reported virtual capacity for the bout.

With 2,432 seats, less than 100 were still unsold this evening.

$41,000 at $6 Top

Washington, March 14.

Three of the four D. C. theatres showing the closed-circuit bout were SRO at prices scaled to $6. All told, total of 9,000-plus seats were available. Only Loew's Palace, 2,300-seater, missed sellout.

Gross for the four spots was over $41,000.

$61,600 in San Francisco

San Francisco, March 14.

Title bout grossed $61,600 in five Frisco firstruns, plus nearly $100,000 in five big civic auditoriums at Sacramento, San Jose, Oakland, Richmond and Stockton.

In Frisco, 2,859-seat Golden Gate, 2,646-seat Paramount, 2,656-seat Warfield, and 403-seat Telenews sold out for total take of $43,600. Additionally, 4,651-seat Fox sold nearly 4,000 tickets. All houses scaled from $4.30 to $6.50.

In outlying Bay Cities, 6,000-seat Oakland Auditorium, 4,500-seat Sacramento Auditorium, and 3,300-seat San Jose Auditorium sold out at slightly lower scale.

Unreserved House Falters

Boston, March 14.

Three Boston theatres carried Patterson-Johansson fight with two selling out and third with better than three-quarter house. Keith Memorial sold out at $6 reserved for 2,900. Pilgrim scaled at $5.50 and $4.50 reserved with the balcony unreserved filled its 1,700 seats. Orpheum only unreserved house at $6 straight admission had 2,500 fight fans present.

Reception perfect in all three houses. Orpheum sold out for previous fights.

Milwaukee Beats Weather

Milwaukee, March 14.

Riverside and Warner Theatres were both SRO, despite admixture of snow, sleet and rain. Former seats 2,500, latter 2,400, and both houses were priced at $4.

Late spurt at the boxoffice assured capacity, with Riverside reporting standees as well.

Okay In Twin Burgs

Minneapolis, March 14.

Bout drew 10,700 Twin Cities fistic fans for a $40,477 gross. Minneapolis Orpheum and St. Paul Orpheum, only theatres showing fight, tallied $12,000 and $8,000 respectively.

Other Minny location, 8,002-seat Armory, reported $20,477 take from 5,900 attendees.

675 of 2,100 Unsold

Pittsburgh, March 14.

Stanley and Penn theatres, town's two big houses (3,700 and 3,300 seats respectively), were virtual sellouts for the bout, each doing about $16,000 gross.

Only 675 seats in the 2,100-seat Gateway were unsold, for a $7,000 take.

Near Capacity For K. C.

Kansas City, March 14.

Near capacity audiences viewed the fight in the 2,500-seat downtown Music Hall. Ditto in the 2,043-seat Uptown Theatre, both houses priced at $5.

It marked first TelePrompter installation for the Uptown.

'Practically Sold Out'

Seattle, March 14.

Seattle Ice Arena, with 36,500 capacity for the fight, reported "practically" sold out.

Albee, Cincy Turnout

Cincinnati, March 14.

Albee Theatre, 3,100-seater, sold estimated 2,500 tickets for bout at $4.50 and $5.

It was lone house showing fight here.

Standees Pay $4

Philadelphia, March 14.

Fight telecast was a powerful draw locally and grossed well over $50,000 in five Stanley-Warner Theatres, Logan, 69th St., Broadway, Kent and Stanley at Camden. Houses have total capacity of more than 10,000 all sold out by fight time, two of them, Logan and 69th several weeks in advance.

Standees ran from 150 to 250 at all five houses at $4.

Howard Hawks Finds Scripts Weary, Only Characters Now Fresh

Director Howard Hawks said in New York he's "sick" of the tired old stories he's finding in pictures of late. Stopping off in Manhattan Monday (13) from Tanganyika en route to the Coast, he stated the "only thing new today are characters."

In reading a script, as he puts it, "everytime a scene comes up, well, I've seen it before. I'm seeing the same story over and over again."

Hawks completed several months of locationing "Hatari" in East Africa and now has six weeks or more of interiors to do in Hollywood. John Wayne starrer, for Paramount, is going to cost $5,000,000 or more in negative, reported Hawks, and this figure, said a Par source privately, is "conservative."

Hawks pulled a switch from the routine in conducting a press interview, for he followed up his commentary on his picture with a screening of some of the footage. This served to ram across his point about "characters," the people in "Hatari" (which means danger) being a mixed-origin group whose common interest is the capture of wild animals in Africa. The producer calls it "dangerous and funny" and the approximately 20 minutes of film shown indicates just that. There's a trace of a story line but the main concern seems to be the roping of a wild beast, particularly a king-sized rhinoceros, and the manner in which this activity brings his characters together.

Hawks said he's got an hour and three-quarters of film (in color) edited and figures to "end up with two and a half to three hours of picture." No marketing plans set but it might open in a couple of spots next August.

Judy Recital Hypo to Film

Dallas, March 14.

Recent Judy Garland click in recital made on her Dallas audience is being felt on the local Film Row with the booking of "A Star Is Born" in which she co-stars with James Mason.

Will open on Thursday (16) at the Wilshire Theatre.

Student Hour Rates

Albany, March 14.

A bill amending last year's minimum wage law of $1 an hour throughout the State, to authorize the minimum wage board to recommend regulations for "employment at any time of students under special certificates issued by the Industrial Commissioner, in a motion picture theatre at such wages lower than the minimum established by the minimum wage act, as shall be prescribed" has been introduced by Senator E. Ogden Bush, Delaware County Republican.

The Assembly Rules Committee is sponsoring a companion measure.

It would take effect immediately.

'Porgy and Bess' Best in Europe

Samuel Goldwyn's "Porgy and Bess" has proved itself a trail-blazer abroad, being the producer's biggest revenue-maker overseas and a strong cultural product by far outdistancing the state exposure in terms of American goodwill. The claim was made last week at a press conference by Leon Netter, Goldwyn's global sales chief, back in New York following two weeks in Europe.

Consistent with Goldwyn policy, Netter declined to reveal gross figures but underlined runs averaging 21 weeks in Munich, Berlin, Hamburg, Stockholm, Copenhagen and Amsterdam. He said, too, there's a widening use of 70m equipment, both permanent and portable, because of the "Porgy" success. He said the roadshow, advanced price engagements picked up a good part of the "lost audience."

"Porgy" has yet to open in France, Italy and England, will preem in the capitals of each of these countries next fall. Producer Goldwyn will attend all three within a framework of a three-month swing at that time.

("Porgy" has done only so-so in U.S. It has been withdrawn from the south where it became a victim of the paradox that Negroes there could often not attend an all-Negro folk opera film.—Ed.)

UNDERWATER BALLYHOO

Hollywood, March 14.

Producer-director Irwin Allen has prepared film clips from major underwater sequences of his "Voyage to the Bottom of the Sea" for promotionary use by 20th-Fox's New York ad dept.

The pic, starring Walter Pidgeon, Joan Fontaine, Barbara Eden and Peter Lorre, winds this week and is skeddded for July 4 national release.

Slow Waltz Makes a Ho-Hum Bout; Why Only Single-Position Shooting?

By JACK PITMAN

The Miami Convention Hall fistics between Patterson and Johansson Monday (13) night again fine-pointed Shakespeare's maxim, make with the action. The TelePromter crew could hardly miss covering all the points, it was that slow.

As a show, the drama was all prolog and first act, starting with the camera convoy almost pore-close as both fighters threaded ringward. Then the round one knockdowns. Then the long, slow waltz.

The bigscreen picture, as seen in the Guild Theatre, N.Y., a small house, was sharp and reasonably steady. The vidtape playback of round six was a fine plus, for the tyro as well as the vet observer of the sport.

Chris Schenkel's ringside mikemanship was minimal, but even that little superfluous. He didn't seem primed with anything but the obvious, even silly, comment when he did come in over the ring action. His usefulness was chiefly in calling the "mouse" under Patterson's eye, or the cut in Johansson's eyebrow. At the fourth or fifth round, when he noted both boys were tiring, it was gilding the all-too evident—even, surely, for homescreen viewers on community antenna feed.

At the Guild, by the way, fire violations were more apparent than either fighter's Sunday punch. SRO and with smoking permitted, folding chairs clutered the aisles, and a score or so standees roamed the back of the house.

One other point: Are technical and/or economic reasons against an alternate camera for another perspective of the action. Seems to this observer two cameras would double the action—especially when the fighters aren't throwing much.

A record total of 1,200 prints of the Monday night's (13) Patterson-Johansson title bout were being rushed yesterday (Tues.) by United Artists from New York labs to the company's 33 exchanges throughout the U.S. and Canada.

This is 300 more prints than U.A. sent out on the last Patterson-Johansson bout in 1960. U.A. acquired film rights to the fight from the TelePrompter Corp.

'WE'RE LIKE CANADIANS'

Novins: Telemeter Wants To Build Slowly, Solidly

Under overall heading, "World Show Business Eyes Etobicoke: Everything Is Coming Up Quarters," Toronto Star devoted a page and a half recently to reports on Telemeter's first year in the Toronto suburb.

Included was a N.Y. interview by Bob Blackburn with Louis A. Novins, president of International Telemeter (a division of Paramount Pictures, who declared "We at Paramount are like you Canadians. We like to build slowly and solidly."

1961 a Banner Year, Sez Hyman, Still On Orderly Release Kick

Like the weatherman in a rut, the latest on orderly release from Edward L. Hyman is again promissory for exhibition. Forecast from the American Broadcasting-Paramount Theatres viceprez is that '61 will be the industry's best year in six, but especially notable for surcease of exhibition's socalled "orphan periods"—the second (April-June) and fourth (September-yearend) traditionally offish quarters.

His cheery report is generally vague in the "how come?" department. Hyman doesn't mention economics, or a changed attitude about conventional playoff seasons on the part of film companies. He does note, however, that orderly distribution is a two-way street, and cautions that exhibition will have to pull its share of the load.

Usually stand-pat fourth quarter in distribution no longer obtains, according to Hyman. And prospects for the upcoming second quarter indicate to him that, too, will henceforth no longer be orphaned.

Shift Toronto Managers

Toronto, March 14.

Shakeup of Toronto house managers of Famous Players (Canadian) sees Michael King transferred from the Imperial, Canada's largest theatre (3,343-seater) to head the Tivoli, where "Exodus" shortly replaces "The Alamo."

From homeoffice, Bert Brown has been appointed manager of the Imperial. Managers of the University are Michael Behan; the Eglinton, Blake Cameron.

PASTERNAK: PICTURES' RAPPORT IS FOGGED

Hollywood, March 14.

There's only one kind of film censorship that can prevail and that's by the people themselves, Metro producer Joe Pasternak contends in sizing up situation. "I've advocated this for 10 years and it's nothing new."

Pasternak holds nobody can stop anyone from producing sex pix and he's horrified at attacks on the industry by Playboy Magazine and Reader's Digest.

"Public relations by the industry is bad," he commented, "because we (the industry) should have had a stronger rapport with the public to let them know we have no part of the films being attacked."

PRAUGHT EXPERIMENTS

Trying Imports and Classics at Nabe Situations

Detroit, March 14.

United Detroit Theatre chain will experiment with art and classic releases in two of its nabe houses, according to prexy Woodrow R. Praught. The eastside Vogue and the westside Varsity will show such product Tuesdays through Thursdays, with standard second runs occupying the screen the rest of the time.

Praught said: "We feel it is time to diversify the type of entertainment the neighborhoods are receiving. Audiences have become more interested in cultural films."

The first bill at the Vogue will be two Alec Guinness pix, "The Swan" and "The Scapegoat." The Varsity will begin the new policy with "My Seven Little Sins," and a W. C. Fields trio of short subjects.

Harling Seeks Half-Million-$ Fund For Last-Trench Fight Vs. Toll

Hat is being passed again for money to combat pay television. In a broadly-targeted mailing going out shortly, Philip Harling's Joint Committee Against Toll TV is asking $500,000 to back up a gloves-off "ultimate battle" posed by the upcoming Hartford Zenith-Phonevision test. Most of that share doubtless will have to come from exhibition itself, being most severely affected, but sizable contributions are expected from unions, women's clubs, individuals, etc., as in past fund-raising experience.

Hartford test, stipulated to run for three years, was greenlighted recently by the Federal Communications Commission, and ultimately is expected to involve 50,000 home subscribers.

Harling calls the Hartford challenge the gravest yet to exhibition. At a press conference in Manhattan he was severely critical of the FCC okay, primarily for the agency's "disregard" of anti-toll testimony. He disputed FCC's assertion that the Hartford trial would be "in the public interest," claiming that was prior judgment. "How can you say it's in the public interest until the test is completed?" Harling asked. (FCC seemingly meant it would be in "public interest" to find out.—Ed.)

Exhibition's (via the Joint Committee) first salvo in the Hartford battle is considered almost certain to come on or before March 31—the deadline for an appeal to the FCC from its decision. A companion court action may also be taken, asserting FCC errors in granting approval to Zenith. But regardless whether it gains a stay of the test from the FCC or in the courts, the Joint Committee is pledged to take its fight, applying all pressure possible, to Congress in quest of firm anti-toll legislation. It's worth noting that previous efforts met early quietus.

Previous Congress had something like 22 anti-toll measures that never got out of committee. This time there are two bills — authored by Democratic Reps. Emanuel Celler of N.Y. and Cleveland Bailey of W. Va.—that in effect would disallow the right to charge for any homescreen telecast. That, of course, is to the heart of the issue for theatre-owners fearful that paysee will drive them out of business in view of its necessarily heavy reliance on firstrun features. It becomes the more frightful now because of Phonevision's "avowed intent" (in FCC testimony) to use firstruns for at least 90% of the Hartford fare.

AN IMPORTANT ANNOUNCEMENT

from

NATIONAL SCREEN SERVICE

Under the terms of a "Consent Decree" which was filed with the U.S. District Court on March 29, 1957, ALL POSTER RENTERS were free to negotiate with the various motion picture distributors for non-exclusive licenses to manufacture and distribute accessories for their motion pictures in the same manner as we do. At the same time, National Screen Service pledged itself to continue to serve Poster Renters with our accessories for ONE YEAR from the date of the decree.

While the business climate permitted, we voluntarily continued to serve them...long after the expiration of our one year pledge. However, with a continued decline in income due to theatre closings and other industry conditions, we can no longer afford the luxury of this practice.

Consequently, on February 15, 1961, we directed a letter to Poster Renters, advising them that, effective May 16, 1961, we shall discontinue making our accessories available to them...thus giving them ninety days in which to make other plans. From that date forward, National Screen Service will make the accessories they manufacture available DIRECTLY TO EXHIBITORS ONLY!

It should be obvious that our continuing to make our accessories available to competing Poster Renters for approximately three years after the expiration of our one year pledge, constituted a costly sacrifice to us.

Burton E. Robbins

President

Einfeld on Film Risks

When you go into business with a multimillion dollar product, as each film release is, you're automatically in big business, according to 20th-Fox veep Charles Einfeld. "For each motion picture, we invest as much or more than they do in the manufacture of many a product like corn flakes."

With this statement, Einfeld Thursday (9) launched discussion of 20th's "total merchandising plan" concept being used to promote "The Trapp Family." Presentation was made before group of exhibs repping the biggest east coast circuits.

Recent test dates of "Trapp" in the Wisconsin-Michigan area proved, said the veep, that this kind of concentrated push can pay off. With Gil Golden on the midwest scene, 20th launched film with particular emphasis on "family" angle, underlying message being that people are always asking for family pix, now here's one for newspapers, editorial writers, civic groups, etc., to back to the hilt. They did, for fine b.o. results, Einfeld reported.

RKO Sub-Deals No Out for Bogeaus, Rules L.A. Judge

Hollywood, March 14.

L. A. Superior Court Judge Alfred Gitelson has upheld RKO General Inc. in its action against Benedict Bogeaus, prexy of Waverly Films, for delivery of two pix on a distribution agreement made before its exchange system was abandoned.

During four-week trial, Bogeaus claimed he didn't have to turn over "From The Earth To The Moon" or "Enchanted Island" because RKO General closed its foreign offices and arranged distribution through others, namely Rank Film Distributors and Loew's International.

Judge Gitelson's verdict stated RKO General was not guilty of acting in bad faith, that producer was required to deliver brace of pix, and had breached its agreement by not doing so.

E. V. Klein NT&T Prez; Cantor Jockeys Deals

Los Angeles, March 14.

Eugene V. Klein, vicechairman of the board, succeeds B. Gerald Cantor as prexy of National Theatres & Television Inc. Cantor, who has been doubling as board chairman and prexy, will now devote his time exclusively to carrying out corporation's diversification and expansion program, as chairman.

Klein, elected to circuit's board Feb. 17, 1959 and vice-chairman since June 9, 1960, swings over to new post from present duties as chairman and prexy of Pyramid Savings & Loan Assn., Sun Valley, and chairman of San Fernando Bank, Pacoima.

OFFSETTING BEN KERN

New Trib Critic Panned 'Hoodlum Priest'—Cite Other Views

Minneapolis, March 14.

Piqued at new Minneapolis Tribune film critic Ben Kern's caustic review of "Hoodlum Priest" (UA), Minnesota Amusement Co. is displaying copies of favorable reviews of the pic by Bill Diehl, critic for the rival St. Paul Dispatch, as well as rave notices from Time and Newsweek in front of its Lyric Theatre here. Exhibitor also used grabbers from the raves and noted that "98 percent of audience says it's excellent" in ads running in the Minneapolis papers.

Despite Kern's panning and miserable weather break with two hefty blizzards in three days, "Hoodlum Priest" did boffo business opening week and is currently playing a second round at the Lyric.

Femme Heads Exhib Group

Houston, March 14.

Rubye Gibson, owner of the Navaway, has been elected prez of the Greater United Houston Assn. She succeeded John Price, owner of the King Center Drive-In Theatre who held the post for the past two years.

Other officers elected were Willie Ratcliff, owner of the Epsom Drive-In, veepee, and Al Zarzana, co-owner of the Al-Ray Theatres Co., was elected secretary-treasurer.

General Drive-In Hits Greater N.Y. Via Alleys

General Drive-In Corp., Boston-based theatre chain which recently diversified into bowling alley operations, this week entered the N.Y. City bowling market with the purchase of the 48-lane Bellrose Bowling Centre in Bellrose, Queens.

General Drive-In has under way a $10,000,000 building program for 15 bowling centres. The company currently operates 26 drive-ins and 24 conventional theatres.

Catholic Critics

Continued from page 5

moral in impact than Hitchcock's 'North by Northwest.' 'Suddenly, Last Summer' takes moral deviation seriously, if not precisely in theological terms; Hitchcock's thriller is most casual about moral implications." Priest elsewhere had complained that "Northwest" presented Eva Marie Saint living with a foreign spy in order to do her job as an American FBI agent, her harlotry being dismissed as of no consequence.

In portraying "characters with dulled moral sensibilities" Gardiner fears certain films further "dull the sensibilities of the picture viewers" in a careless age.

Moral Dimension

The Catholic point of view as here enunciated asserts that complete critical evaluation must include a moral dimension. Carrying this thesis into the area of sex it is argued that love is a legitimate emotion, and a fit dramatic subject, but "lust is an emotion that cannot be allowed as a means to pleasure."

Father Gardiner's literary credits include a book, "Norms for the Novel," from which he excerpts. This other specialty of his illustrates the latterday scope of Catholic criticism. He offered a reasoned discussion of "The innate immorality of bad art." Included are provocative side-comments on "cheap, garish and sentimental" religious statues. A representation of the Sacred Heart or the Blessed Virgin may be, he admits, "shriekingly bad art." Continuing: "It is worse than bad art; it is a fake and basically a lie, for it insinuates that Christ and His mother were vapid, simpering, repelling sanctimonious figures." As a sample of the new candor among Catholic critics, and Jesuit theologians, this latter statement seems certain to provoke discussion. These critics do not flinch from self-criticism!

What Legion of Decency reviewers, and critics writing for the church press in America are looking for are the "obvious" things distasteful to Catholic teaching: [illegible] of divorce, suicide, birth control, cheapening of sex into a commodity, excessive violence, etc. More subtle considerations lie beyond. Must a religious film mean only a spectacle, a stop-off at the [illegible] on the way to the last-reel conversion?

Co-author Getlein dwells in some detail on the subterfuges of "adaptation" which, he feels, create a "fundamental hypocrisy" in screenplay-writing. He blames the late Cecil B. DeMille for setting the original example of developing a "libidinous increment out of the sanitary facilities." He is less bothered that the early giant, D. W. Griffith, perpetuated that classic of power-charged hatrioteering, "The Birth of a Nation" though he chides "South Pacific" for preaching racial tolerance than killing off the white lieutenant to duck the [illegible] of his taking a Polynesian bride.

Skouras' Boarders

Continued from page 3

learned elsewhere, was the insistence of new board member Gould, at last Wednesday's (8) meeting, that the talks be terminated immediately. The new board members want to thoroughly study present fiscal relationship between 20th and NTA. Latter has been distributing blocks of 20th films to tv and has 20th as one of its largest creditors.

Company's production activities also are due to get a careful going over. The Loeb-Rhoades-Treves feeling seems to be that 20th production policy has hardly kept up with the times. While most other companies have operated on the fewer-but-better pix principle, 20th has been turning out more pix, but not necessarily better ones.

In light of this, it is also significant that just 10 days before last week's board meeting, Skoures and his studio chiefs met at the home-office to outline a "new" production policy that entails the elimination of so-called "in-between" (in terms of budget, cast and story values) pix, in favor of so-called "blockbusters," supplemented by a few low-budget items.

(Commented one spokesman for the brokerage house group: "Even the term 'blockbuster' is 20 years out of date. If they insist on using such terms, why don't they at least call them something like 'rocket-blasts'.")

Immediate effect of the new production policy will be to cut down the number of 20th releases from the estimated 51 which went out last year to about 40 this year, which includes two "A" films a month, plus the Lippert schedule of low budgeters and outside acquisitions. This year's release schedule also includes about four or five "in-betweeners," made last year but which haven't gone into release as yet.

20th execs feel that a sizeable portion of their recent and current production problems are the results of "acts of God" over which management had no control. They point to the death last July of production chief Buddy Adler, and production stoppage with the actors and writers strikes in the spring. They also point to the current illness of Elizabeth Taylor, which has added to the problems of "Cleopatra."

Management critics, however, say that "acts of God" had nothing to do with the decisions to make pictures which subsequently turned out to be unprofitable or with "Cleopatra" problems other than those involving Miss Taylor's health.

Tom S. Mills, now retired, pioneer, San Antonio projectionist, was presented with a gold life membership card by the IATSE local. Started in 1907 at the Wonderland showing one reelers.

More Arrests of Louisville Negroes; Earlier 'Progress' Seen Cancelled

Louisville, March 14.

Arrests of 26 Negro youths on Saturday (11) marked renewed demonstrations in the downtown area aimed at segregated film houses. Youths, mostly students, were taken by police from moving picket lines and revolving queries at four houses on Fourth Street in the nearly two-hour demonstrations.

Police, agumented by a large number of private merchantile police, allowed the demonstrations to continue as long as sidewalks were not blocked and white patrons were able to purchase tickets. Arrests came when some of approximately 100 demonstrators blocked sidewalks. Adult Negro leaders, who accompanied the group, called off the demonstrations about 4 o'clock Saturday (11). Traffic became so badly congested on Fourth Street (where most first-runs are located), that police cut off traffic for a time in a one-block area.

Frank Stanley Jr., Negro member of a steering committee directing the antisegregation movement, challenged Mayor Hoblitzell to a public debate. Hoblitzell declined to comment on the challenge. Anent the latest downtown demonstration, the Mayor said: "If the adults want to do a thing, they should do it themselves and not send children to do the job. To me that's terrible. I don't see it, sir." Hoblitzell said it would be Monday (13) before he could determine when his emergency committee could meet again because "several members are out of town over the weekend."

Arrests were the first in Negro demonstrations in Louisville since February, when 77 were arrested on three occasions in one week in demonstrations against segregated theatres and eating facilities. Theatre demonstrations climaxed a long day of activity by the young Negroes. The group gathered early in the morning in a Negro chapel, and some 140 students staged a singing, hand-clapping march through the downtown area between 11 a.m. and noon, then returned to the chapel where they were assigned groups to begin the theatre demonstrations at 2 p.m. The four houses involved—Mary Anderson, Ohio, United Artists and Kentucky—remained open during the demonstrations. The Ohio hung a "sold out" sign in its box office, but continued to sell tickets to white patrons inside.

Mayor Hoblitzell formed an integration committee Feb. 24 after the first series of Negro demonstrations. Several meetings were held, and demonstrations and threats of economic boycott were called off by Negro leaders, but demonstrations were resumed. Negroes said they were not satisfied with the progress reported toward integration. Controversy will probably be given a public airing.

Downtown businessmen and theatre operators express themselves as disappointed that adult urging of the Negro demonstrators muddied up negotiations which seemed to be moving toward orderly peaceful integration. Insistence on the part of the Negroes for immediate and total integration, without giving the Mayor's committee, made up of leaders and men of good will in the community a reasonable opportunity to work out an integration pattern satisfactory to both the Negro and white races, has bogged down much of the progress already made.

Dalmation Pup Boom

San Antonio, March 14.

Tie-in promotion for Disney's "101 Dalmatians" here includes a coloring contest for the under-13 set, winner to receive a registered Dalmatian pup.

San Antonio News and H.E.B. Food Stores are cooperating with the Josephine Theatre, where the full-length cartoon is current.

'Sodom' to Rank; Levine's Next Pic In Hollywood

Joe Levine has awarded the largest slice of the "Sodom and Gomorrah" distribution to J. Arthur Rank. Should be official this week or next. Pathe already has rights for Belgium and France, but deal for North America is still open. Geography allocated to Rank isn't clarified, but includes at least the rest of Europe and South America.

Back in Manhattan briefly from the pic's Rome shooting, Levine foresees at least another eight weeks of lensing on the biblical pic, with the negative cost hitting $3,000,000 or more. Uncertain yet is whether "Sodom" will be put out late this year or in '62.

At a two hour and 20-minute running time, might it be hard-ticketed? Possible, but not likely.

His next one will be done in Hollywood, a Marion Hargrove yarn, "Boys Night Out." Two more to be shot on the Coast are projected after that. "Boys," of course, will mark his first made-in-Hollywood venture.

Eugene Wang Asks 30G; Sez Metro Took Powder

Los Angeles, March 14.

Producer Eugene Wang has filed suit against Metro in Superior Court seeking $30,000 in damages for breach of contract. Attorneys for Wang stated producer entered into a deal with film company for 40 weeks at $1,000 a week, but after 10 weeks, Metro repudiated the pact.

An amended pleading of plaintiff's position will be filed by today (7), it was stated by Grossman of Pacht, Ross, Warne & Bernhard, representing Wang. Loeb & Loeb is representing the film company.

New York Sound Track

Continued from page 13

fortune becomes an "item" in the hands of film pressagents. As a f'rinstance, bally on the "Misfits" is hitting a snag on certain commercial tie-ins—i.e., where sizes (shoes, clothing, etc.) are concerned. For them that push such wares, go talk up misfits.

Ralph Hetzel, exec veep of the Motion Picture Assn. of America and Motion Picture Export Assn., back from his second tour of new African republics. He's expected to make a report to the MPEA board later this month . . . MPAA will host a reception Friday (17) for the directors of the Federation of Motion Picture Councils at the Barbizon-Plaza . . . Frank Capra has set an April 20 starting date for his "Pocketful of Miracles" in Hollywood. Second unit will work here.

Christian Herald has presented the magazine's highest merit award to Louis de Rochemont's Lutheran-financed pic, "Question 7". . . A circular sent out by Vizcaya Productions of Miami, seeking to interest distribs in a new feature, "Eternal Summer," notes that "alternate scenes for Code Seal available as indicated by MPAA."

Exhib order for the MPAA-TOA Academy Awards promotional kits as of Monday (13) were said to be well ahead of orders received by the same last year . . . Continental Distributing's "Saturday Night and Sunday Morning" will open at the Baronet . . . Medallion Pictures, which heretofore has concentrated on tv distribution, is branching out to service theatres with the acquisition of John R. Hugh's Florida-made feature, "Lisette," starring John Agar.

Harriett Parsons pitching for acquisition of Lillian Rogers Parks' tome, "My 30 Years Backstairs at the White House," for indie production . . . Alan Ladd will star in Columbia Pictures' "The Tiger Among Us." William Bloom production . . . Bryan Foy drew "The Marines Have Landed" as one of first projects on new return-to-Warner Bros. production slate . . . Robert Ling, entertainer, film bows in Universal's "Flower Drum Song" . . . Sam Spiegel will produce "Three Kinds of Love" in England for Columbia release . . . Richard Burton stars in F. Scott Fitzgerald's "The Rich Boy," directed by Sidney Lumet . . . Buddy Hackett and Mickey Rooney paired for Columbia's, "Everything Ducky," produced by Red Doff . . . Bernie Smith will produce and Henry Hathaway direct one or more of six sequences in Metro's Cinerama production, "How the West Was Won". . . Sidney Poitier into Col's "The Interns."

U's Two Outside Pix

Continuing its prowl for small outside pictures to augment its personal big-picture-only production program, Universal has acquired two outside productions.

It has obtained U.S. and Canadian distribution rights to "Wings of Chance," described as an outdoor adventure drama in Eastman color. Film, made under the Tiger Production banner, was produced by Larry Matanski, directed by Edward Dew, written by Patrick Whyte. Leads are Jim Brown and Frances Rafferty.

At the same time, U has picked up worldwide release rights to "Ole Rex," a "boy-dog devotion" story produced, directed and written by Robert Hinkle. It's also in Eastman color.

Blacklistees and Writers Guild

Poll Membership As to Action—Fear Secret Deals With Boycotted Authors Clip Guild's Share of Fees

Hollywood, March 14.

The 1,200-odd active members of Writers Guild of America, West, shortly will receive a mail ballot to determine what action, if any, should be taken concerning the antitrust suit instigated by 12 Hollywoodites who charge they are blacklisted by major studios.

The mail ballot will provide members with two alternatives:

1—Should guild file an intervening action because the blacklist entails undercutting the Guild's contract and working rules?

2—Should the Guild refrain from any action?

If active membership choose an intervenor course, this would be tantamount to a request by WGAW for the expediting of a decision in the multi-million dollar action filed in Washington, D.C., by the eight writers and four actors who claim they are "blacklisted" for having used the Fifth Amendment in connection with Congressional probes of Communism in Hollywood.

Guild, which has determined not to file amicus curiae (friend of the court) in the suit, is mainly concerned with a possible weakening of its standards by secret deals caused by the possible blacklist. Such deals deprive the Guild of its 1% cut of each deal negotiated by a member.

Under consideration in New York is whether the eastern branch of the Guild will participate in the balloting.

URIE KANE FACES FED INCOME TAX SENTENCE

Albuquerque, March 14.

Urie A. Kane, Las Cruces, N. M., ozoner operator, has been ordered to appear in Federal Court here on March 18 for sentencing, after he pleaded guilty to attempting to evade $33,335.72 in federal income taxes.

Kane pleaded guilty last week to a count charging him with filing a tax return for 1954 showing his income of $5.968 and a tax due of $1.341, when his income was actually $36,350, with a tax due of $12.693.

U. S. Judge Waldo H. Rogers is on the bench in the case.

CLAIM NOT A 'FIRST'

'Dolce Vita' Not Pioneer Subtitled Hard-Ducat Film

Story in last week's VARIETY termed "Dolce Vita" the first subtitled import to get the hardticket treatment (at the Henry Miller legit house, N. Y., starting April 19) erratumed, as some tradesters quickly tsk-tsked. Claim overlooks at least two forerunners, both, like "Dolce," from Italy: the 1954 "Golden Coach" and the 1958 opera pic, "Tosca." "Coach" and "Tosca" both played New York's Normandie Theatre, though neither was a notable success.

A number of British imports, of course, have gotten the hardticket treatment. None of these, however, has required subtitles.

G. M. JOSEPHS HANDLING 'DOLCE' & 'ROCO' PIX

George M. Josephs has been appointed veep in charge of sales of Astor Pictures. His first assignment will be the U.S. launching of "Dolce Vita" and "Rocco and His Brothers."

Josephs was previously with Columbia Pictures as a homeoffice sales exec. Prior to his resignation he was director of domestic sales of "Porgy and Bess."

'Insider' Amusement Trading

Washington, March 14.

Latest Securities & Exchange Commission report spotlights another big stock acquisition in Allied Artists by Albert Zugsmith. Report, covering insider stock deals during period of Jan. 11-Feb. 10, listed him as having gained 1,300 more common shares for a grand total of 175,800. Other Allied transactions included a 500-share acquisition by Roger Hurlock, giving him a total of 21,000, and sale of 200 shares by Herman Rifkin, who still holds 14,061.

In other show business deals (all in common stock, unless designated otherwise):

ABC-Paramount Pictures, Inc.—Edward L. Hyman got rid of 1,000, leaving him with 5,120.

Cinerama Inc.—Nicolas Reisini, beneficially through Robin International, acquired 200 shares, boosting total listed under Robin International to 244,050. Reisini holds 350,000 directly.

Columbia Pictures—Irving Briskin exercised option to acquire his first block of 8,288 shares. Under a stock purchase plan, Bernard Birnbaum bought 312 shares, Arthur Levy 312, Mo Rothman 624, and Hervey S. Shaw 199.

Decca Records—Milton R. Rackmil, as a co-trustee, bought 300 for a total of 180,000 capital shares held by the trusteeship.

Desilu Productions—Milton A. Rudin bought 170, lifting his holding to 300 shares.

Filmways Inc.—Milton R. Dubin bought 1,000 shares for a total of 2,617.

Loew's Theatres—Arthur M. Tolchin acquired 2,000, boosting his holdings to 5,500.

National Theatres & Tv—Eugene V. Klein sold 29,700, holding onto 22,623 shares. (He's new president.)

Trans-Lux Corp. — Richard Brandt sold 500, leaving him with 12,452.

Warner Bros.—Serge Semenenko, through a trust, sold 1,000. He holds 1,800 directly.

COMMENT ON OSCAR CALLED POORLY TIMED

New York.

Editor, VARIETY:

The timing of your article in the March 8 issue on Ingmar Bergman's "The Virgin Spring" and the Academy Award competition for foreign films is indeed unfortunate, coming as it does before the actual voting has taken place. That the present system of nominations could be improved is almost universally acknowledged, but this should not have any bearing on the voting among the present films nominated. Your article is almost an invitation to vote against one particular picture in order to prove a point.

Our own position is clear. On several occasions we have written the Academy directly, pointing out the shortcomings in their system of nominating foreign films for the Academy Award. As a matter of fact, several previous Ingmar Bergman films were among the chief victims of the Academy's rules for nominations.

Ingmar Bergman is considered the greatest director at work in the world today, and his films have received public recognition through awards in all parts of the world. It is an anomaly that the United States, where Bergman is more popular than in any other country, is one of the few places that has never honored him with any award. It would be a shame to deprive one of his most impressive films of an Academy Award because of a controversy concerning Academy regulations.

Many fine films are in competition for this year's foreign film award. Let the members of the Academy base their votes on the merits of the five films nominated. We sincerely hope that the desire to change the regulations in time for next year's competition will not influence this year's voting.

Cyrus I. Harvey, Jr.
(Janus Films)

'WELL, THAT'S NICE!'

Howard Hawks, While On Location, Set With Columbia Pictures

Howard Hawks has a six-picture deal with Columbia, the latter announced, and it's all news to Hawks. However, the producer-director said there's no irregularity involved.

He was in Africa shooting "Hatari" for Paramount several months, having left the states with understanding that Col, Par and 20th-For were chatting with his agent, Charles K. Feldman. He knew he had the agreement with Col when he read it in the papers.

Précision

A French word that means the same thing in English: quality or state of being precise; accuracy; definiteness. It's a precise description of an Air France pilot. Exacting. Accurate. Definite. An alert mind guiding skilled hands to precise action. Everyone expects it. Everyone who's ever flown Air France finds it. They find something else, too. The same quality of precision in everything. Food that is prepared in the great French tradition. Service that is accurate, and attentive to every detail. Atmosphere that is friendly, enjoyable, and authentically French. Precisely what you want...precisely what you get...every time!

AIR FRANCE JET

World's Largest Airline/Public Relations Personnel Ready To Serve you In New York, Chicago, Los Angeles, Montreal, Mexico City

QQ TITLES
Serving the MP and TV Industries Since 1915
• ALWAYS READY TO SERVE YOU •
247 West 46th Street, New York
Circle 7-2126

New York Theatre

RADIO CITY MUSIC HALL
Rockefeller Center • Ci 6-4600
WALT DISNEY'S
"THE ABSENT-MINDED PROFESSOR"
FRED MacMURRAY • NANCY OLSON
KEENAN WYNN • TOMMY KIRK
and THE MUSIC HALL'S GREAT EASTER STAGE SHOW

Unique Award at San Remo Film Fest Goes to Productions Scoring at B.O.

San Remo, March 7.

A unique prize, which differs from other film awards in that it kudos pix because of their boxoffice success, is to be awarded March 25 at San Remo, the Italo Riviera resort. The "Premio Milirdo" will give due recognition to the pictures, which in Italian release made more than 1,000,000,000 Lire ($1,500,000) in the 1950-year it will be for imports only. stricted to Italo-mades while next 1961 it will be for imports only.

Token kudos consisting of diplomas and gold (gambling) chips will be handed out at the Gala ceremonies at the San Remo Casino to producers, directors and stars involved in the making the films which are eligible for the award this year. Many of the stars involved in making these pix are American, and several are expected to accept invites to attend. Among those paged are Gina Lollobrigida (eligible via three pix), Ava Gardner (for "The Naked Maja"), Audrey Hepburn, Mel Ferrer, Henry Fonda ("War and Peace"). Eight producers will receive the award in its first installment: Giuseppe Amato, Dino DeLaurentiis, Renato Gualino, Fabio Jegher, Goffredo Lombardo, Maleno Malenotti, Carlo Ponti, Angelo Rizzoli.

Winners are responsible for the 19 films which topped the $1,500,000 mark in the 10-year period (out of 1,401 films produced in that time). Eight of the directors are Italian, two are French; 10 stars are Italian, eight are foreign.

Further trade-only awards to be made at the San Remo event this year will consist of four Silver Trophies to go the two Italian and two foreign distribution companies whose product has this season totaled the highest grosses up to March 15.

2 Major German Cos. in Foldos

Munich, March 7.

Munich's Union Release had to petition for bankruptcy and Atlantic, another important distribution firm, threw in the sponge on the same day. The court put off decision in both instances, holding that in the absence of any assets, there would be no point in official bankruptcy procedures.

In the case of Union, the minimum of liabilities is estimated at $500,000. These consist mainly of returns on the 33 pictures currently on release which were cashed in by Union but not forwarded to the producing companies. Some of the latter, finding themselves out of funds as high as 250,000 marks, might now be in for trouble. They could salvage future earnings on their films by switching them pronto to other distribution outfits. But since Union all along had no other assets than their pix currently in release, the producers' chances of retrieving money due to them for past runs are slim.

Atlantic's situation is still more obscure. The court is reported to have recommended settlement out of court. But in this case there is at least hope for Atlantic's creditors and they may not be as badly off as those producers for Union.

Both companies had been in financial straights before this. But in flush times, bank and industry credits got them going again. The fact that this time the customary rescue operations hardly reached the discussion stage, brought the crisis.

Edinburgh Fest Exec On Russia Talent Trek

Edinburgh, March 7.

The Earl of Harewood, cousin of Britain's Queen Elizabeth, and artistic director of the Edinburgh Festival Society, is planing to Russia for 10-day looksee at talent there. He is reportedly seeking artistes for the 1962 Edinburgh International Festival.

Lord Harewood will set up a precedent by his visit, thus being the first member of Britain's Royal Family to set foot on Russian soil since the Communist Revolution of 1917.

Walton Pix Studios In London Bring $742,000

London, March 14.

Walton Studios have been sold for $742,000 to Spinaker Ltd., a property development company associated with Park Investments Ltd. The studio buildings are to be razed, but no decision has yet been made as to what will be done with the site. The studios were closed down a few weeks ago by Mrs. Hannah Weinstein Fisher, the tv producer who made the "Robin Hood" series.

A petition has been filed against her company, Walton Studios Ltd., by two members of a tele union, Malcolm Stewart and Cyril Collick, claiming that the company is unable to pay its debts, and calling for the appointment of a liquidator. The case is down for hearing this month.

Rome Theatres Would Shutter To Protest Tax

Rome, March 14.

Film houses and legit theatres throughout the province of Lazio, which includes Rome and surroundings, will shut down for five days unless the government promises relief from a proposed additional admission tax law which is currently up for approval. Bill would add a five to 25 Lire surcharge to every ticket, in addition to existing heavy taxes, winter relief funds, etc.

Shutdown would include a Saturday and one Sunday to further stress the point. It may spread to all of Italy if a recommendation from local exhibitors is accepted in other regions. Both AGIS (exhibs) and ANICA (producers and distribs) have sent official protest cables to Prime Minister Fanfani and Minister for Entertainment Folchi.

Last-minute word here has it that the proposed shutdown will be nationwide. It is slated to start Wednesday (15) unless the government gives industry assurances that the tax move will not go through.

Belly Dancer Socko In Hong Kong Nitery

Hong Kong, March 7.

Nightclubs in this city which depend almost exclusively on imported talent, are amazed at the latest click, who is an Egyptian bellydancer. Billed as "Princess Amina," the dancer is the wife of the Hon. Tony Moynihan.

Currently at the Princess Garden, the Princess is wowing crowds nightly. Born of a Malayan father and an Egyptian mother, she is due to open in New York this fall. The much-traveled terpster has danced in nightclubs and theatres in 28 different countries.

Ferretis Denies Any Dual Mex Censorship

Mexico City, March 7.

Recent charges made by film producers and distributors that films applying for exhibition permits face "double censorship jeopardy" were denied by Jorge Ferretis, head of the Film Bureau. Ferretis said the Bureau has "full and absolute control over the review of films and their classification." Also, that no other agency can go over its head and rescind any decision it has made.

Beefs were motivated by several recent incidents where Octavio Peredo, head of the Office of Public Entertainments, either turned thumbs down on a film or insisted on cuts before permitting exhibition. Ferretis claimed that the Office of Public Entertainments is not exercising a second supervision of films exhibited in the metropolitan area. Very infrequently, where a specific film may tend to "create agitation or provoke public disorder," the Office has the "right" to intervene, Ferretis explained.

Signoret to Hand Out Best Actor Oscar

Paris, March 14.

Simone Signoret has agreed to present the Best Actor award at the Oscar ceremonies in Santa Monica, Calif., April 17, after an invite from the Academy of Motion Picture Arts and Sciences. Miss Signoret won the Oscar for top femme acting last year for her role in "Room at the Top" (Cont).

Miss Signoret now begins a French film, "Famous Loves" after winding "The Hard Knocks." It is the former pic that could possibly prevent her from attending the Oscar festivities.

Venice Film Fest Starts on Aug. 20

Venice, March 14.

This year's Venice Film Fest will run from Aug. 20 to Sept. 3, several days earlier than in previous years. Date is expected to be announced shortly despite voiced objections from city hotel owners who as in previous stanzas have complained to the Ministry of Tourism that the earlier dates conflict with heaviest tourist influx of the year. Also that a later start would help "extend" the season for visitors.

Also revealed are names of the five-man selection committee which will choose 14 competing feature pix for this festival "in collaboration with competent organizations in each country." This year's selectors, in addition to Venice Fest topper Domenico Meccoli, are Carlo Bo, Luigi Chiarini, Piero Gadda Conti, Mario Verdone, Gino Visentini; Enzo Cagnato (secretary). All except Bo, who is a university professor with past contacts with the film world (and who served on last year's committee), are film critics. Gino Visentini is the current prexy of Italy's Film Critics Assn.

Venice regulations recently were approved by the International Film Producers Federation (FIPPF) at its last meeting in Zurich. Fest director Meccoli expects to leave soon for the U. S. to contact Yank officials and companies concerning U. S. participation in the 1961 fest. Trip, which will include visits to New York, Washington and the Coast, probably will coincide with Academy Awards.

ITALO CENSOR BANS HIT FILMS, TV SHOW

Rome, March 14.

The Milan row surrounding the banning of "L'Arialda," is not the only censorship incident in a particularly active month for the moralists. Posters for at least nine films have been seized in the last two weeks under a new law which allows such action on the spot. Also in Rome, the Mexican-made "Adam and Eve" disappeared after its one-day firstrun bow at the Galleria Theatre with house announcing the seizure of this film without giving details.

Titanus pic, "Dolce Inganni" (Sweet Deception), which was banned throughout Italy last November 26, has now been okayed for release, after reportedly about 1,000 feet of film were cut out.

Another presumed case of censorship, though no official word has explained the situation, involves a tele play, a staging of Friedrich Hebel's "Judith," which was substituted by RAI-TV, the Italo telenet, on the day it was to have been done. No official reasons were given for the sudden move. Play's staging is reported to have cost some $48,000. Money would be total loss unless RAI chooses to run a recording of the performance.

New Censorship Hassle in Milan Over Legiter; Court Bans 'L'Arialda' After Rome Run of 50 Performances

Rome, March 14.

The nth censorship hassle has broken out in Milan, once the most liberal center of Italian thought, but more recently the site of innumerable controversies involving the censorship of (previously approved) films, legit plays and publications.

Current battle involves "L'Arialda," legit play by Giovanni Testori, which has just been banned by Milan court after running for 50 unmolested performances in Rome. It was yanked after its Milan preem, and the published version, published by Feltrinelli of Milan, now also has been seized. Seizure and ban apply to all of Italy, though effected in Milan.

To be sure, "Arialda" led a troubled existence before its Rome opening last fall, and for some time was banned in toto by the government censor. After protests and cuts, it was allowed to open in the Eternal City in a version directed by Luchino Visconti and starring Paolo Stoppa and Rina Morelli. Censor holdup apparently helped its b.o. potential, and play had healthy Rome run.

Latest facet to the dispute sees author Giovanni Testori and publisher Feltrinelli (the same man who holds western rights to Boris Pasternak's "Doctor Zhivago") filing a countersuit with magistrate Carmelo Spagnuolo (who originally banned the play) against members of the government censorship commission in Rome which okayed its public staging, charging them with "complicity" in the propagation of the claimed obscenity.

Interesting wrinkle of the countersuit says that as no play may be staged without previous approval of the censor group, and as this group approved the play in its revised and abridged form, it must also be tried together with Testori and Feltrinelli on the same charges of public obscenity.

Additional incidents concerning the controversial play are protests by various dramatists and authors groups, and a threat of a sympathy strike by Italo stage groups. Also there is a charge reported lodged in Rome against director Visconti for an allegedly insulting gesture he made in between curtain calls after the Rome preem of play in answer to publicly voiced disapproval of "Arialda" by some members of audience.

In addition, producer Carlo Ponti, who at one time had an option on screen rights to work, now is said to have dropped this in view of the hassle which would make shooting of pic in this country difficult if not impossible.

French Control UFA Distrib Setup in Paris

Paris, March 14.

French interests now have control of the UFA distrib setup here which also invests in the pix it handles. The West German share is now a minor one. It was taken over by M. Jacquin, who owns over 100 film theatres in North Africa.

The original setup, when there was a predominant German handling, was called UFA-Sofradis. It is now monickered UFA-Comacico.

Aussie's Legit Season Looms Big This Fall

Sydney, March 7.

Boxoffice prospects for legit shows this fall are exceptionally bright as key producers line up productions and talent from overseas. Racy tempo is expected to hit a new high here right through the winter term here, in Melbourne, Brisbane, Adelaide, Perth and throughout the Dominion of New Zealand.

Little Theatre managements are presently gearing production schedules to jump aboard the prosperous legit boxoffice train in company with their big brother producers, with several outfits renting disused warehouses for renovating into intimate theatres.

London West End producers are moving into this territory this month, with James Laurie taking over the major ex-cinema, Palais, St. Kilda, Melbourne, for a production of "World of Suzie Wong," starring Jacqui Chan. Show will move later to Sydney for a run. Understanding here in legit circles is that should "Suzie" click Down Under, other leading British producers will move in and probably make a deal with cinema managements for house takeovers covering a limited term.

Many Shows Opening

Legit marquees presently are displaying a very powerful lineup of shows attractions under the respective managements of J. C. Williamson Ltd., Garnet Carroll, Tivoli Theatres Ltd., Elizabethan Trust and the incoming James Laurie organization. Shows current here and pulling excellent business include "My Fair Lady" (third year of Aussie run), "West Side Story," "Irma La Douce," "Taste of Honey" and "Double Dealer."

In Melbourne, legit shows are prosperous presently and new records are expected to be set throughout the winter term. Shows listed include "Bye Bye Birdie," "Constant Wife," "World of Suzie Wong," "Strike a New Note" and "Hollywood Bandbox."

The Little Theatres are pulling very strong biz despite big theatre opposition. For example, a burlesque of "East Lynne" at the Bowl Music Hall has been running for 10 months, and the Union Repertory Co. will revive "The Mystery of the Hansom Cab," following a good run with "Importance of Being Earnest."

Rival Passion Play

Waal, March 14.

This little village high in the Allgau Alps of West Germany is planning to present a summerlong "Passion Play" similar to the Oberammergau production which is done every 10 years. Passion Play performances will be resumed here after a pause of five years, starting May 7 and running until late in October.

A 41-year-old village painter and sculptor, Otto Kobel, will direct the series and play the part of Christ. He has revised the text which was formerly based on the same sources as the Oberammergau play.

An innovation this year is that the part of Mary will be played by a married woman, Kobel's wife, although in the past the role has always been done by a single woman.

About 180 of the village's 1,200 residents are appearing in the cast.

Mex Nat'l Circuit Becomes 4 Chains

Mexico City, March 7.

The National Theatre Operating Co., official entity operating the 329 houses recently acquired, is breaking these cinemas up into four circuits. Project is master-minded by Quirino Ordaz Rocha, head of the company. His belief is that new setup will speed up exhibition of national product released by Peliculas Nacionales.

Rocha and producer associates of Peliculas Nacionales now are of the opinion that within the next three to four months, the distribution picture will normalize to the benefit of national product.

Hollywood product will not be seriously affected by the current favoring of national films, Rocha said, because the present stockpile of American films awaiting release is not as great as that of Peliculas Nacionales.

Mexican houses, divided into three main classifications — first-run, moveover and second-run houses, will now have a third category as well. This will expedite exploitation within the Republic and give quicker and increased returns to producers within the national market, Rocha said.

German Pix Inventor, Claiming New 3-D Process, May Sell to U.S. Majors

Paris, March 14.

Dieter Fritko, West German film producer and distributor working out of Munich, is here huddling with major Yank film company reps of Warners and 20th-Fox on a new 3-D picture process which uses no specs. He is representing inventor Karl Schenk. It is called Plastoscope and is patented.

Fritko says the process took about 10 years to set up and is now about right except that some final perfecting can be done by the company which takes over as was done with CinemaScope. Owners would like to sell it outright for $500,000 or would work out a guarantee-percentage agreement.

Main aspect of the tri-dimensional affair is in the screen. It is shot with either two cameras or one with two lenses. A split horizontal image is put on the film and it is straightened out for the screen by a simple mirror system on the projector. As far as installations go, it comprises mainly a new screen for the theatre. A celluloid curtain-type affair is also needed in front of the screen which then can be removed for regular pix.

The cinema does not need any changing excepting a certain relationship which must be set up between the seats and screen. This can be done via the screen installation.

The main principle of this new system seems to be polarization since the transparent curtain before the screen is polaroid and the screen itself is polarized. Any film process can be utilized in this 3-D setup. Though best results come from shooting in this system, previous pix could be reprinted for depth effect.

Fritko has a 600-meter test film utilizing this new 3-D method. VARIETY recently announced 20th-Fox's interest in a French 3-D process sans glasses. Now comes this new German entry. It looks like 3-D may get another whirl.

Broadway Church Drama Part of Spring Fest In Old San Juan, P.R.

By AL DINHOFER

San Juan, P.R., March 14.

Program for the fourth annual Puerto Rican Theatre Festival (April 20-May 28) has been disclosed by Francisco Arrivi, director of the theatre department of the institute of Puerto Rican culture.

Four evening performances plus a Sunday matinee will offer five plays and one ballet at the Tapia Theatre in Old San Juan. Subscription for the six-show series will be $10. Maximum per single admission will be $2. Performances will be in Spanish. Productions will be coordinated by the U. of Puerto Rico, the Puerto Rican Ateneo (a cultural center) and the San Juan Ballet.

The series will be composed of:

"Maria Soledad." by Francisco Arrivi, will play April 20-23 directed by Piri Fernandez de Lewis.

"La Vuelta al Hogar" ("The Return Home"), by the late Salvador Brau, April 27-30. Directed by Nilda Gonzalez.

"La Carreta" ("The Cart"), by Rene Marques, May 4-7. The prize-winning play has already been produced in South America and New York. No director has been chosen.

"Sol 13, Interior," by Luis Rafael Sanchez. Three one-act plays directed by Victoria Espinosa.

"El Milagro" ("The Miracle"), by Manuel Mendez Ballester, May 18-21. Directed by Leopoldo Santiago Lavandero. (Was presented by the Broadway Chapel Players, New York, after Sunday Vespers of the Congregational Church, Broadway at 56th St., Dec. 5 through Feb. 5.)

"Ballets de San Juan," May 25-28. Directed by Ana Garcia and Gilda Navarra.

'Spartacus' In Glasgow

Glasgow, March 7.

Universal's "Spartacus," top grosser in overseas engagements, had gala preem here at the city-center Gaumont, with local galaxy of VIPs. Pic is in for a season. Opposition includes "Ben-Hur" (M-G) at the nearby Regal, showcase of the ABC loop.

'Ben-Hur' Clicks In Paris Despite Jinx

Paris, March 14.

"Ben-Hur" (M-G) is the first pic in 22 years which has played the immense Gaumont-Palace with advance sales seats that have worked. Metro was warned against it by local filmites but in its fifth month it develops that 55% of the sales have been reserved seats.

Film already has played to more than 500,000 patrons at a $2.50 top, and is expected to run through the summer. This may set a precedent for hard-ducat films here. "Alamo" (UA) did smash biz on a regular basis.

Mex Show Folk Seek U.S. Dates

Mexico City, March 7.

Mexican entertainers are plugging hard for American engagements in diversified areas. However, the southwest is especially favored with Los Angeles personal appearances the main goal of local performers. It's not only the coin involved, generally on far higher rates than those received here, but the desire to build up their names in the U. S. that is motivating entertainers.

Also, big Mexican and/or Spanish speaking colonies in Los Angeles, Chicago, various Texas cities, New York, etc. have performers eager to develop regular tours each year lasting anywhere from a few weeks to months.

Los Angeles, with approximately 1,000,000 Mexicans, is logical key city, with former personal appearances chalking up good receipts in theatres and clubs.

Some of favorites who have already received contract offers include Lola Beltran, Miguel Aceves Mejia, Paco Michel, Angel Infante, Amalia Mendoza billed as "La Tariacuri," the Castro Brothers (formerly billed as The Panchitos) and Maria Victoria.

MEXICO'S NOMINATION TO 'BEST FOREIGN' PIC

Hollywood, March 14.

Mexico gets its first nomination for a "best foreign film" this year in list of five nominations for this Academy branch. All others of the four remaining countries repped have had prior nominations. Nominations, balloted by a special committee headed by Robert M. W. Vogel, include following:

"Kapo," Vides-Zebrafilm-Cineriz (Italy); "Le Verite," Han Productions (France); "Macario," Clasa Films Mundiales, S.A. (Mexico); "The Ninth Circle," Jadran Film Productions (Yugoslavia); "The Virgin Spring," A. B. Svensk Filmindustri (Sweden).

Foreign films will be screened for Academy members along with all other nominated pix at Academy Award Theatre starting March 4.

'Exodus' for Cannes

Otto Preminger's "Exodus" was picked this week to open the Cannes Film Fest May 3, showing as an out-of-competition invitee.

Bid came yesterday (Tues.) from Favre Le Bret, secretary-general of the festival, after a one-day visit to Manhattan to view the picture at the Warner Theatre.

Levy Signs For Pix Dates Pre Filming 'Polo'

Paris, March 14.

Raoul Levy has probably created a new precedent here for expensive pictures by eliminating the distributor for his forthcoming "Marco Polo" and signing a deal with the Gaumont theatrical chain which guarantees him something like 1,000,000 spectators at its first-run and subsequent-run houses around France. This gives Levy a $1,500,000 guarantee on his estimated $3,000,000 "Polo" budget. Levy has also signed with Sammy Siritzky who takes the pic for extended first-runs in Paris.

Levy points out that normally the distrib in France can give guarantees or not, and finding an exhib is always a problem. Some pix go right out but others may languish because of limited cinemas available for the number of films around.

He also opines that this gives an added fillip to the work of the director and actors who know exactly when and where their pic will come out. The film is due to roll next October and opens at the huge Gaumont-Palace here around Christmas time of 1962. It also allows setting up the different publicity campaigns for the varying sections of France which call for different approaches.

The Gaumont rep says that it has confidence in the product which led to this deal. It has already been done for specialized art pix by Siritzky for payoff results with Ingmar Bergman and Michaelangelo Antonini pix. Levy says this type of operation speeds up film amortization and naturally also helps in raising the working budget. Columbia Pictures' participation will get it for other territories. Closeups and medium shots may be done for an English version, too. Alain Delon stars as the intrepid traveler.

'Ben-Hur' German B.O. Hit

Berlin, March 7.

Like everywhere else, Metro's "Ben-Hur" is registering longruns in this country. Pic is currently playing in 11 German cities and on March 1 had hit the following weeks:

Munich, 19 weeks; Duesseldorf, 16 weeks; Stuttgart, 14; Cologne, 12; Hanover, 11; Dortmund, 11; Hamburg, 10; Nuremberg, 10; Essen, 10; Kassel, 9; and Berlin, sixth.

West Berlin Cinema Owners Plan Token Strike to Protest High Tax

Berlin, March 7.

West Berlin's cinema owners got together here last week to decide what to do next over their protests against the overly high amusement tax. It was decided to go on a one-day protest strike April 10, which means the city's cinemas will remain closed that day. On the night of April 10, local exhibs will stage a mass protest meeting at Zoo Palast.

Another problem was discussed. The so-called "market stoppage" on films that have been declared "artistically outstanding" by the West German pic classification board. This designation which is used to foster the good films means tax relief and is therefore highly appreciated by both exhibs and distribs alike.

In West Berlin, cultural authorities have long used a policy by which every film that has been given such a distinction can be seen by people from Soviet-controlled territories on a 1:1 (one East Mark-one West Mark) basis. Otherwise one West Mark corresponds to about 4.50 East Marks.

As well meaning as this measure is intended, it has negative results: Exhibs, of course, give preference to those pix as latter's 1:1 advantage attracts the East Berliners and, consequently, biz is better. The situation now is such that pix of this type register often get considerably longer runs at preem houses even if the reviews are not so good.

The exhibs keep these films as long as possible as the 1:1 admission lures the East people. This means that the second-run houses have to wait often longer than expected for fresh product. A local exhib explained the worrisome situation via his own experience. There are still 88 pix on his 1960-61 contract list which he still has to play but which, however, are not deliverable at this hour. Local exhibs plan discussing this problem with distribs before April 5.

Mex Producer Clouted By Minor Film Actor

Mexico City, March 7.

Producer Edwin S. Gottlieb, producer of the "La Soldadera" coproduction, was floored by a right cross haymaker aimed at his jaw by Emilio "El Indio" Fernandez. The one punch fight took place in home of Lonka Becker, actor's agent. Fernandez apparently resorted to fisticuffs to "avenge" an alleged disparaging remark made by Gottlieb regarding Maria Felix, Mexico's top film star.

Fernandez shouted to his hostess and guests to remove the producer or he'd "kill" him. But in the cold dawn of the following day both belligerents had cooled off.

Co-Prod. Drive In Mex Growing

Mexico City, March 7.

While Mexican officials refuse to comment on build up of a coproduction drive, with this gimmick apparently to be used to pull the local industry out of current difficulties, inside sources reveal that under-cover negotiations have quietly begun in various areas.

Concrete outcome of one new bid for coproductions is the York Productions Ltd. plan to do a picture here drawing heavily on Mexican elements. Jorge Stahl Jr. will handle cameras and a bevy of Mexican starlets including bi-lingual Ofelia Montesco and Rosa de Castilla have been contracted. Titled "Malinche and the Englishman," the pic will be shot on location in Tehuantepec, in English and Spanish.

York, which has set up a subsidiary here, acquired British distribution rights to "La Cucaracha" and "Flor de Mayo" about six months ago. Kenneth Shipman, firm executive, said the initial picture is the first of a series to be made in Mexico, and is the first joint Mexican-British effort. Financing, however, for picture will come from the English firm which dubs its effort a "coproduction" by virtue of strong reliance on Mexican technical and acting elements.

Shipman said the results of the exhibition of two Mexican pictures acquired have been very satisfactory, and the firm plans to acquire further Mexican product. He revealed it has paid Cimex "considerable advances" for exhibition of Mexican product and expressed the hope that Mexico will absorb some York product on a reciprocal basis.

UPDATED LIT. CLASSICS FRENCH FILM FARE

Paris, March 14.

Updating literary classics for film purposes seems to be becoming more popular here. Two seasons ago, Roger Vadim's modern retelling of an 18th Century classic, "Les Liaisons Dangereuses," turned out to be the top grosser of the year. Its gamey tale had the pic forbidden an export visa which it now may get. Vadim is planning also to place the Marquis De Sade's "Justine," and Robert and Raymond Hakim will put Alexandre Dumas' "Camille," based on the book about the consumptive heroine, not the play, into the film production.

Vadim will call his "Vice and Virtue" and display how Nazism destroyed the virtue of a young French girl during the last war. "Camille," to be directed by Marcel Carne, will have the ex-courtesan a starlet preyed on by various film types.

Balzac, too, has been brought up to date with "The Girl With the Golden Eyes," directed by G. Albicocco, about a girl who destroys her lovers in a climb to the top. Claude Chabrol is prepping a modern "Ophelia."

Robert Bresson's "The Trial of Jeanne D'Arc" will concentrate on the spiritual aspects of the case to make it timeless. It is pointed out that the big grossing Italo film, "The Sweet Life," of Federico Fellini, was mainly "Sodom and Gomorrah" or "The Fall of Babylon," or both, in modern dress.

Concerned Over Cuban Coin Freeze, Mex Plans Drastic Counter Move

Mexico City, March 14.

Concerned over the loss of the Cuban market, with the Fidel Castro Ruz freeze of boxoffice receipts lying up an estimated $600,000 brought in by this market, Peliculas Mexicanas has named a three-man committee to fly to Cuba in an attempt to reach a solution.

Octavio Gomez Castro and Ignacio Pendas, manager and assistant manager of Peliculas Mexicanas de Cuba, who flew in to confer with top distributor brass and officials here, admitted they were unable to get anywhere with the Castro regime.

If the committee fails in obtaining an accord with the Cuban government, then producers here may cut off all further shipments of Mexican pictures to Cuba. Producers Oscar Brooks and Jesus Grovas in association with Juan Bandera Molina, head of Pel-Mex, will attempt to arrive at "a reasonable solution" with Cuban authorities. They will ask for an unfreezing of dollars owed for showing of Mexican product in past months.

Mexican producers are reluctant to initiate a drastic curtailment of shipments to Cuba. But as they cannot even recuperate the costs of copies, general feeling now is that no alternative will remain if Cubans fail to see the light.

Selznick Awards In Berlin

Berlin, March 7.

David O. Selznick's 11th Golden and Silver Laurels will be handed out here June 29 via a special ceremony during the forthcoming Berlin International Film Fest (June 22-July 4). This marks the second time that the local film junket has provided the background for the Selznick prize ceremony. The first was 1954.

The Selznick Golden and Silver Laurels go to film which contribute most to understanding between foreign nations. American films are excluded from this contest.

Inside Stuff—International

Footnote to VARIETY's recent roundup on Canadian features: Sidney Furie, young Torontonian whose indie "Dangerous Age" and "Cool Sound From Hell" couldn't get Canadian distribution but did well in Britain will have a pair of films he's directed for United Artists shown together in U. S.: "Dr. Blood's Coffin" and "Snake Woman," both made in Britain. Former, in color, is already doing well at London's Cinephonic Theatre and on Associated-British circuit, per Gerald Pratley from London in Toronto Star (8). Furie has also directed "Three on a Spree" (updated "Brewster's Millions") for Edward Small and "During One Night" for Gala Films. He's now prepping a color musical at Associated-British studios, in which Cliff Richards and Robert Morley will apnear—working on next sound stage to Stanley Kubrick (directing "Lolita").

Vittoria de Sica, preparing a new film: "6pm—Last Judgment," is following the "Cameo" technique of "80 Days" (UA) and "Pepe" (Columbia) having engaged for bit parts such names as Silvana Mangano, Vittorio Gassman, Alberto Sordi, Toto, Anita Ekberg, Jeanne Moreau, Fernandel, Simone Signoret and so on. There will be 131 great names and shooting is to start very soon. A bit is ostensibly to be played by Don Jaime de Mora y Aragon, Spanish brother-in-law of Belgium's King.

Sellout success of "Madame Butterfly," staged by Honolulu Symphony Society, indicates opera may be presented more in Hawaii. Three-performance were mounted at a cost of $20,000 on a "skin-and-bone" budget, indicating "some profit."

"Unequivocally, MISSION ACCOMPLISHED!"

EMBASSY PICTURES CORP.

JUdson 2-4358

TIME AND LIFE BUILDING
ROCKEFELLER CENTER
NEW YORK 20, NEW YORK

CABLE ADDRESS: EMBAPIC NEW YORK

February 23, 1961

Variety
154 West 46th Street
New York 36, New York

Dear Variety,

MISSION ACCOMPLISHED!

No other phrase could more succinctly describe the impact or the sensational results of the February 8th issue of VARIETY.

We had a story to tell and we told it. If the success in the telling can be measured in hundreds of telephone calls, letters, telegrams and cablegrams, then we were a tremendous success. Starting with noon on February 8th, we began to be inundated with congratulatory and business messages from the domestic market. In a short time, similar messages were coming in from all over the world. "Time" magazine picked up the story in their February 24th edition.

I have long been a staunch advocate of the urgent need of telling our story to our customers before they can tell our story to their own customers --- the public. Call it hard sell, soft sell or readers' service. Call it whatever you will, the motion picture industry throughout the world knows today what Embassy has available for all of 1961 and part of 1962. That's what we set out to do and I say, unequivocally, MISSION ACCOMPLISHED!

Thanks to all the folks at VARIETY for making our section in the February 8th issue the success that it was and is.

Sincerely,

EMBASSY PICTURES CORP.

Joe

Joseph E. Levine
President

h

Phoney or For Real, Paar-Sullivan TV Feuding Fizzles Into Trivia With Debate Conkout, Personal Vendetta

By BOB CHANDLER

What could have proven to be the phonest feud of the year dribbled off into a fizzle of trivia this week when the "great debate" set to come off Monday night (13) between Ed Sullivan and Jack Paar failed to materialize because of a disagreement over format. Debate or not, however, both stars managed to grab off reams of Page One copy in what was by far the best publicized scramble since Paar walked off his own show over a year ago.

But what started out merely as a space-grabbing, name-calling scramble turned into a nasty personal vendetta Monday night. Paar, appearing as a "guest" on his own show launched a 50-minute harrangue against the columnist in which he:

Called Sullivan "a liar," among other things, and challenged him to sue him for libel for that statement.

Charged Sullivan uses his syndicated column "to beat people over the head" to appear on his show.

Asked MCA to release him from his pact with the agency because it had aided with Sullivan on the few hassle.

Otherwise used the NBC-TV facilities in a frightening display of verbalistics that ranged from slander to paranoia.

Sullivan yesterday (Tues.) called Paar's stint a "shocking indulgence in personalities" and attempted to close the book on the incident with the statement that "this controversy, as Paar's behavior proved last night, is clearly a misuse and abuse of the airwaves and has become objectionable to the public. Consequently, I will have nothing more to say on the subject."

He was joined by CBS-TV, which gave him its "full support," and which said it shares his opinion "that to continue the controversy would not be in the public interest."

Paar and Sullivan traded charges that the other "welched" on Monday afternoon when they couldn't agree on "groundrules" at a meeting attended by the principals, by Bennett Cerf, who was to moderate the debate, and Jim Stabile, NBC v.p. who repped the network in the discussions. The final collapse followed a weekend hassle over whether Paar's vociferous audience would be permitted into the studio

(Continued on page 52)

Paar's Record Rating

Publicity attending the Jack Paar-Ed Sullivan debate paid off in rating points for Paar, although the debate itself never came off. The overnight Arbitron for Monday (13) found the Paar show hit its highest rating ever, a 22.2 average with a 66% share of audience. In N.Y., where the feud got plenty of Page One streamers, the share went to 80%.

Paar show was even the highest rated show for all of Monday night, topping Danny Thomas' 21.1, which had topped the rest of the evening. Paar's previous high came on March 7, 1960, date of his return to his NBC show following his walkout and get-away-from-it-all trip to Hong Kong, when he hit a 66% share.

'WCBS-TV Views Press' On Again

That on-again, off-again "WCBS-TV Views the Press" is on again, with Charles Collingwood set to front the CBS-TV N. Y. flagship's weekly appraisal, scheduled to start April 23. "WCBS-TV Views the Press" will emerge as a Sunday 3:45-4 p.m. quarter-hour under the joint aegis of producer Ned Cramer and commentator-writer Collingwood.

The new edition will be under full control and supervision of the station itself, not CBS News as in previous proposals. Cramer is assistant director of public affairs at the station and consequently, acting as v.p.-general manager Frank Shakespeare's deputy, will call all the shots. Coincidentally, Cramer was the director of "CBS Views the Press" back in the late '40's when the late Don Hollenbeck fronted the show on CBS Radio.

WCBS-TV had rejected only last summer a proposal that it join with other CBS o&o stations to air a local "Views the Press." Reasons were twofold: it didn't like the two pilots prepared by CBS News and produced by Blaine Littell (since named a CBS correspondent and stationed in the Congo), and felt that since it was sticking its neck out it should have control over the editorial content of the program.

Idea then apparently was dropped, but not for long. CBS top management wanted the program, and what finally happened was that the high command told Shakespeare they'd take him up on his terms—the station could run the show. Shakespeare thereupon assigned Cramer and signed Collingwood for the stanza. Other o&o's haven't moved into the idea, with the exception of WBBM-TV in Chicago, which last summer launched its own locally-controlled version.

CBS 'Defenders' Gets Ciggie Coin

CBS-TV has inked its first hunk of sponsorship for "The Defenders," the Herb Brodkin-Reginald Rose hour slated for the Thursday 9-10 period next fall. Sponsor is R. J. Reynolds, which is picking up an alternate-week half-hour, or a quarter of the tab.

On the face of it, the deal might appear to be a renewal of its time period by R. J. Reynolds, since the sponsor currently has a third of "Gunslinger" in the same Thursday night period, and earlier in the season also had a quarter of "The Witness." But it isn't quite so, since Reynolds has cancelled "Gunslinger" and is exiting the time come April 3.

Instead, it is picking up half sponsorship on "To Tell the Truth" and will ride with that from April 3 through the summer and into the fall, when it then reverts to Thursday nights and "The Defenders." Ciggiemaker is moving into the "Truth" spot vacated by Helene Curtis, which cancelled its half a few weeks back.

As for "Gunslinger," it's left virtually sponsorless, except for a few shortterm participations, and won't be back next fall. As of now, it will run 13 new episodes and 13 repeats, and not necessarily in that order. In fact, last Thursday (9), it used a repeat of the premiere show, aired only a month before, because of difficulties in meeting production schedules.

RCA's Stockholders' Meet Set for May 2

RCA's annual stockholders meeting is set for N.Y. the morning of Tuesday, May 2. Business facing the meeting will be the election of five directors and a proposed amendment of the bylaws to permit annual election of all 16 or 17 directors.

Also, RCA seeks a change in its bylaws to protect officers, directors and employees against "certain litigation expenses." Proxy statement only lists one applicable suit now against the company, that is the long-running and involved suit (for $150,000,000) against all the broadcasting companies (including NBC) involving the use of certain music rights on the air.

Some Squeamish But Senate Group Okays Ed Murrow

Washington, March 14.

Edward R. Murrow today (Tues.) cleared with ease the hurdles mounted by some Senatorial peevishness about some of his tv documentaries and won quick approval of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee as director of the U. S. Information Agency.

The nomination now goes to the full Senate where mild gripes may be voiced but no all-out anti-confirmation drive is expected. Murrow showed top form in responding to senators of conservative ilk who peppered him with loaded queries about two of his most controversial documentary jobs while at CBS-TV, "Crisis of Plenty" and "Harvest of Shame."

The objectors generally voiced concern that Murrow would underplay the rosier aspects of America, and, in the interests of objectivity, stress the seamy side.

Sen. Bourke Hickenlooper (R-Iowa), who did not like "Crisis" because it purportedly pictured Iowa farmers as "peons," led the inquisition. He was joined by Sen. Frank Lausche (D-Ohio), who raised the "Harvest" hassle. Sen. Alexander Wylie (R-Wis.) and Sen. Homer Capehart (R-Ind.).

Capehart questioned whether Murrow would use the same realistic techniques in shaping our overseas propaganda product as he did with the CBS documentary films. "I would hire you as a salesman, but, gosh, I certainly would want you to be more positive," Capehart told the nominee. He was referring to hiring Murrow as a salesman for his phonograph business.

All the senators, including those who expressed doubts, praised the forthcoming U. S. propaganda chieftain. Sen. Hubert Humphrey (D-Minn.) best summarized the commendations by saying: "The New Frontier is taking on a very effective New Frontiersman." Senate majority leader Mike Mansfield (D-Mont.) and other liberals defended Murrow's tv documentary work.

Answering the critical questioning, Murrow insisted he would see

(Continued on page 53)

WHO CARES?

Paar-Sullivan may be hot stuff for the hot-stove league in Lindy's and Colbee's but west of the Barberry Room and east of the Chambord it's pretty much of a local joke. So, the pros and cons aside, why the networks should endow their facilities for what is essentially a private squabble—and an uncouth one at that, with childish name-calling and personal invective—is the major issue. Talent is important to the big business of salesmanship and merchandising which are the end result of the showmanship components, but this talent-booking hassle has become a case of the tail wagging the dog.

TV, which has been so concerned of late with its public "image," certainly exposed its naivete this past week, principally on the corporate level. Actors' squabbles may be part and parcel of the traditional scene but big business should have asserted itself. Instead, publicly held networks not only exposed their facilities to private war but even permitted corporate legal staffers to get into the act.

Who "welshed," who is "afraid"—who cares? Show-wise as the tv public may be, whether it's for the AFTRA $320 minimum or some fancy $5,000 and $7,000 fee is an economic barometer that must startle many a prosaic family man who'd settle for either. Or less. And not to mention such li'l problems that are going on all over the world from the Congo to Castroville, from the UN to the Kremlin, and points north, east, south and west. The Kennedy-Nixon "great debate" on tv was still more important than what talent agencies can wangle for either the Sullivan or the Paar shows.

NBC to Bell Telephone: 'Sorry, Wrong Number'; Dinah Still Dangling

Two major series of specials on the tv books for next season are in a transitional flux and at this point nobody quite knows where either will wind up, if at all. One is the Bell Telephone series; the other concerns Dinah Shore.

Bell put in an order with NBC-TV for 16 hour programs next season, 10 to 11 p.m., either Wednesday or Friday night. But NBC notified the client that it would accept the order for 16 only on condition that other sponsors would bring in specials for the remaining 36 weeks. With the bottom dropping out of the "specials" market, NBC is taking no chances on inviting 16 weeks of sponsorship and left holding the bag the remainder of the year. (Similarly, neither ABC nor CBS want the Bell business on that basis.)

That's where Dinah comes into the picture. Having called it quits with Chevrolet on her weekly Sunday night series, she is now being peddled for a series of specials next season. If her packager, Henry Jaffe, could persuade some sponsor to buy 15 or 20 Dinah specials, to alternate with the Bell Telephone series, it would expedite matters considerably and enable NBC to kill two birds with one stone.

But so far nobody's buying Miss Shore.

N. W. Ayer, agency on the Bell Telephone account, meanwhile is trying to push the plot along with a pitch to Sealtest to alternate Bob Newhart with the Bell specials.

ABC Putting Together Sponsor Pieces on Grid

Sinclair Oil will probably be back with ABC-TV and the web's one-year-old American Football League sked in the fall. Bankroller owned a quarter of the pro grid in '60. Carling Brewery may duplicate.

But Schick, as commonly known now, will not be back, having committed itself to total print for awhile. Renault dealers, on a regional basis, dropped out before last season ended due to the overall auto falloff. Colgate, another AFL sponsor, wants to renew for an eighth sponsorship, but ABC-TV will defer acceptance in favor of a fourth bankroller.

'CBS Reports' To Roam the Globe

"CBS Reports," which for the most part has stuck to the U.S. for its key stories, is beginning to go far afield in the international news market for several upcoming stanzas. Coincidentally with this will come a wider use of CBS correspondents abroad by "Reports" exec producer Fred W. Friendly.

When Blair Clark, the new v.p.-general manager of CBS News, flies to Paris Friday (17) for a two-day meeting with all his key European correspondents plus a flying visit to each bureau, Friendly may accompany him. If he doesn't, he nevertheless has al-

(Continued on page 53)

NBC Slates 40 News Specials

NBC-TV will produce 40 one-hour news and information documentaries next season in prime time. Stanzas, by NBC News, will preempt regular entertainment programs and, more than likely, will further reduce the number of entertainment specials to be done in '61-'62.

The 40 stanzas are in addition to "White Paper" and other current prime time news programs being done by NBC. In one sense, the new leg of pubaffairs stuff will replace "The Nation's Future," the current Saturday night debate skein by Irv Gitlin's staff, which next semester will probably move to a Sunday afternoon slotting.

Woodle's NAB Post

Washington, March 14.

National Assn. of Broadcasters has appointed Hamilton W. Woodle, a broadcasting veteran of 31 years, as a field representative for the Assn.

Woodle started in broadcasting as a staff member of WBER in Buffalo where he later worked for WBR, WKBW and WBEN before moving to WOLF in Syracuse.

L&M's $11,000,000 ABC-TV Billings Go Up in Smoke as Agency Burns

The fast shifting ABC-TV fall schedule has just shuffled itself out of at least $11,000,000 in annual Liggett & Myers billings, mainly via the move of three hour shows out of their 9:30 p.m. berths.

Via McCann-Erickson agency, the cig firm is pulling out of its participations in "Adventures in Paradise," "Asphalt Jungle" (slated as a spring entry), "Untouchables" and the alternate buy of the Sunday night half-hour, "The Rebel."

L&M had another reason besides the ABC shuffling. An Italian-American group, headed by Alfred Santangelo, singled out the cig house (as the major "Untouchables" sponsor) for boycott due to alleged misrepresentation of Italians. Stanza is the single most important L&M show at ABC.

McCann is also pulling $3,000,000 bankroll out of the "Ozzie & Harriet" comedy series, which it has alternate weeks for client Coca-Cola.

C. Terence Clyne, McCann program topper, said yesterday the L&M cancellations were offered because ABC had seen fit to preempt the hour shows in favor of client Procter & Gamble. Web is moving "Untouchables" back to 10 p.m. from its 9:30 Thursday night slot. "Asphalt" will preem in the Sunday 9:30 p.m. berth in April, but may be moved out in the fall, counter to L&M original understanding. Also after L&M made its deal for "Asphalt," ABC prez Ollie Treyz began mulling a shift of "Paradise" out of its 9:30 time to Sunday (in a possible shift to "Asphalt's" slot).

The shift of "Untouchables" is to make way for a P&G show, as yet undesignated, in the 9:30 Thursday time.

"The Rebel" is being knocked out of its Sunday 9 time, possibly to be moved up to 7 p.m., with the 9 p.m. berth going to a competing cig firm, Brown & Williamson show via Ted Bates agency.

Calling the shuffle "the worse kicking around ever of a major network client," Clyne said the funds would be moved to either NBC or CBS or split between both. He said the agency was now looking at several possibilities on the two webs, and he felt certain that the coin would be wrapped up by April.

Shift of the Coke coin out of "Ozzie & Harriet" follows ABC's shuffle of the situationer out of the 8:30 p.m. Wednesday time to 7:30 Friday nights. Show also is being dropped by Kodak.

WHAT KIND OF SEASON WAS IT?

Low On the Nielsen Poll

The following 10 shows are at the bottom of the heap among commercial entries on the three tv networks in the new Feb. 11) report (naturally, all are slated for axing):

One Happy Family (NBC)	7.9
Make That Spare (ABC)	8.0
Peter Loves Mary (NBC)	9.4
Take A Good Look (ABC)	9.9
Mattie's Funday Funnies (ABC)	10.6
Hong Kong (ABC)	10.7
Happy (NBC)	10.9
Jackpot Bowling (NBC)	10.9
This Is Your Life (NBC)	11.1
Shirley Temple (NBC)	11.1

Jackie Cooper's Freak Sneak

Rebuffed by Madison Ave., He Puts Pilot on Station, Gets Overwhelming Response

Unable to get a solid response from Madison Ave. which thought it too unconventional, a half-hour pilot called "Charlie Angelo AFC" was sneak-previewed by its producer last week to see what the people thought. Producer Jackie Cooper, who doesn't appear in this one, offered to buy a half-hour of prime time on KFMB-TV, in San Diego, to air the pilot and get audience response.

Station's management thought it was such a good idea that they refused to take money from Cooper. KFMB put the program on Friday (10) at 8 p.m. and before it was rolled, Cooper said a few words. "I told them," he recalled later, "that they are always the final judges of a program—but that's only once it's been on the air. If they don't like it they won't watch it, and then it will go off the air after 13 or 26 weeks. You may be the only ones anywhere to see this program, and we would like your reaction."

Cooper asked them to call. Six special Powers models were hired to handle a bank of special phones. On every station break that night, the station gave the viewers a running tally of returns. By the end of the night, a first count revealed 4,173 "yesses" and 524 "no's," according to Cooper.

Station is preparing a final tally still. Cooper said that the telephone company has a way of measuring the number of phone calls that don't get through, and the boards were plugged up. Phone company, he said, indicated that the number that didn't get through was about twice those that did, so that at least 15,000 people wanted to express their vote.

KFMB decided to replay "Angelo" again at 11:45 p.m. on Friday because of the demand. A feature film was preempted. Apart from its own share of the publicity

(Continued on page 42)

Lorillard Shares 'Price Is Right'

P. Lorillard has been given the nod as the alternate sponsor (with Lever Bros.) for NBC-TV's "The Price Is Right" next season. Show moves into the Monday night 8.30 period.

Additional Lorillard coin is also being siphoned into NBC via its minute participation buys in the new "Cain's 100" hour series.

CBS also picks up a hefty chunk of Lorillard coin next season. Cigaret outfit has put in a bid for half-sponsorship of the Ed Sullivan show, which it is seeking to share with Colgate. Eastman Kodak is pulling out to buy Walt Disney on NBC-TV. However, CBS is holding off on any commitments.

In addition Lorillard continues with "Hennesey" on CBS and will retain a hold on the CBS Wed. 7:30 to 8:30 time with the successor show to "Aquanauts."

Lorillard agency is Lennen & Newell.

BBC Posting Betting Odds

London, March 14.

BBC is to come into line with commercial tv by screening the betting odds before televising horse-races. In 1958 it made a concession by showing the odds after the race. The new method will start next Tuesday (21) which is the start of the Flat season.

The news will be welcome to those who play the horses. But anti-gamblers are already kicking up a fuss. The Rev. Gordon Moody, secretary of the Churches' Council on Gambling, said: "It is a pity; it is bound to increase gambling."

Ollie Treyz Has Got Himself A Thurs. Dilemma

It's conceded that one of the most enviable time slots on tap next season in all prime nighttime on tv will be the Thursday 9:30 to 10 period on ABC-TV—the half-hour between "My Three Sons" and "Untouchables." Whoever gets it will be latching on to a jim-dandy rating, by virtue of the time's for and aft status.

Yet here's the strange predicament in which ABC prexy Ollie Treyz finds himself: Practically every packager and agency in the business has been besieging him with requests for the time, some of them even offering some potentially bright properties. But Treyz has more or less committed the time to Procter & Gamble (in return for P & G keeping "Rifleman" at ABC and not switching it over to CBS). On the other hand, the shows P & G has been offering up for the time slot have not been acceptable to ABC.

In the face of some $22,000,000 in P & G billings being siphoned into the ABC coffers, the question arises whether Treyz will remain firm in his refusal to accept a show unless it's one he wants.

35-Country Radio-TV Spread on Title Bout

Fremantle International, which is handling overseas radio-tv distribution of the Patterson-Johansson bout, reports a 40% increase over sales of the June, '60 fight.

Fight was broadcast and/or telecast on six continents. It was broadcast directly from ringside in five languages: Spanish, Portuguese, English, Swedish and French. BBC sent their own announcer, Eamon Andrews.

One-half sponsorship of the fight, both radio and tv, in Latin America was sold to Gillette. The other half of the bout was picked up by Goodyear in Brazil and Venezuela; by a local ciggie concern in Panama; and by the Montezuma Beer Co. in Mexico. Total count of countries in which the fight was either seen or heard was 35.

THE CBS PAYOFF ON A 'GAMBLE'

By GEORGE ROSEN

The networks have just received the newest (last two weeks of February) Nielsen report on program-audience measurement. The results are indicative of what has happened in the three network tv competition this season and who-did-what-to-whom. Since the seasonal audience decline starts to set in after the final February tallies, to all intents and purposes the '60-'61 returns are now posted.

What, to paraphrase the newscasters, kind of a season has it been? Not a particularly fruitful or an exciting one. It was a season that witnessed 44 new 60-minute and half-hour commercial shows premiere on the three webs, but with at least 30 of them slated for axing by the end of the season or already dropped.

It was a season when the smart money was betting CBS would be clobbered by the onrushing ABC programmatic ventures, yet oddly enough, ABC was held in average-audience check as the Columbia boys came out on top—in fact strengthening their position vis a vis a year ago. Yet, to compound the contradictions of '60-'61, it was a season that saw NBC, for all its commercial program blunders (with by far the majority of the axed shows waving the NBC banner) nonetheless heighten its public image and partially nullify its "entertainment losses" through the simple expedient of becoming the No. 1 network in news and making sure everybody knew about it. The three B's (two Bobs and a Brinkley) pulled off the stunt of the year.

It was a season that saw ABC, for all its failure to advance its cause in the national Nielsen picture, continuing to whip up Madison Ave. and Wall St. enthusiasm and in general clinch its "bigtime network" status as it rested its case on a "gee whiz" record of successes in the 24-market Nielsen studies—reflecting ABC's eminent status in the big cities where all three networks are competing with one another but revealing the web's behind-the-eight-ball status in being locked out of important two-station markets because of lack of facilities.

But when all the plusses and minuses are equated, it's the CBS story for '60-'61 that perhaps generates the most interest, for in essence it represents the payoff on a Bill Paley-Frank Stanton gamble. When, about 18 months ago, CBS underwent one of the biggest departmental overhaulings in network history with the departure of Hubbell Robinson, Harry Ommerle and Bill Dozier as the east-west program braintrust, the top command threw the dice and decided to go with the "in-the-house" team of Oscar Katz, Mike Dann and Guy della Cioppa. The '60-'61 season would be the test of the trio's strategy as they faced three major hurdles: (1) ABC going like a house on fire; (2) concern over the Washington "climate"; (3) an unwillingness to surfeit the network with an overabundance of action

(Continued on page 38)

$12,000,000 TV Billings Riding On Gen. Mills' 'Buy Me Buy My Bride'; Client Dangles a Daytime Dowry

By ART WOODSTONE

Some $12,000,000 in estimated billings will probably go next season to the television network which provides the nicest home for the one nighttime program (by itself worth no more than $5,000,000 in time and talent) that essentially none of them loves. "Father of the Bride" is the key, and General Mills the sponsor who has to decide to what network it owes its allegiance and all that money.

Until Wednesday last week, while "considering" General Mills offer of "Bride," neither CBS-TV nor NBC-TV demonstrated any identifiable exultancy at the prospect of taking the gift. Also ABC-TV seemed less than ecstatic. But by the next day, Thursday (8), at least NBC-TV and CBS-TV had changed their minds — because "Bride" had suddenly, if not forever, been attached to a dowry of considerably more than its own worth in daytime billings.

Change in temper reportedly occurred when General Mills let it be known that it was "disappointed" (or so it later was described) with its treatment by ABC-TV. Sponsor currently owns and controls a so-called "action strip" from 5:30 to 6 p.m. on ABC-TV, but that network has decided that it would rather return 5:30 to its affiliated stations for a half-hour of local programming. Consequently, it offered to move the General Mills strip down to a 5 p.m. starting time (thereby having to shorten Dick Clark's "Bandstand" by a half-hour) but it met General Mills resistance. (The network plans to put five days of "The Texan" reruns at 5 if the Mills walk.)

It was when this came to light that the gears began to go at CBS-TV and NBC-TV. Neither network presently seems able to make room for such a strip on its own schedule but apparently banking on a high level of sponsorship "dissappointment" with ABC both hope to attract the General Mills daytime money, knowing that this attraction seems to depend on who beds "Bride" as well—and where.

Some, if not all, the "action strip" coin could be diverted into regular NBC-TV or CBS-TV daytime programming. Moreover, Genarel Mills, or so the wish goes, could bring its many other weekend or daytime kid programs to one centralized network source, if only to benefit from the heavier discounts on time charges to the advertisers who put all their eggs in one network basket.

Besides the ABC strip, General

(Continued on page 50)

Prost(v)ies Protest

Paris, March 14.

Five Gallic prosties filed a suit last week against the French national tv system on the grounds that the tv box had invaded their privacy.

Suit was based on the Feb. 24 exposure of a documentary film concerning prostitution as a social problem. Plaintiffs charged that the stanza offered them the "disagreeable surprise of recognizing themselves and being recognized by their families and friends."

The quintet of night ladies seek unspecified sums in damage for having been filmed without their authorization.

For A Change, TV Sets Some Fresh Summer Entries

Although it's far from the "test-tube" ideal, CBS-TV's summer schedule this year will boast an unusually large number of fresh shows, both brandnew stanzas and older properties with fresh episodes.

In the brandnew category will go "Way Out," a new Talent Associates mystery package (which has also briefly been titled "Haunted" and "Ghosts") slated to replace Jackie Gleason on Fridays at 9:30 starting in April. First two shows will be Roald Dahl stories, and TA is testing Dahl as well as a possibility to host the show. L&M will sponsor at least through June.

Also brandnew is "High Time," the new Wayne & Shuster comedy series about a pair of Borscht Belt social directors, slated to replace Jack Benny for the summer. Cece Barker and Seymour Berns are producing this one. Another new and fresh entry is a one-hour "Sports" spectacular series in the Thursday 7:30 to 8:30 period, modeled after "Sunday Sports Spectacular" and starting the end of April, with Schlitz picking up part of the tab. And a fourth brandnew segment will be "Fractured Flickers," humorous once-overs of silent films, going into the Monday at 10 period as the "Hennessey" replacement.

In the latter category—new episodes of old shows—are "Brenner" the Herb Brodkin series of a couple of years ago, with 13 never-exposed stanzas slated to replace "June Allyson" Mondays at 10:30. In the same genre is "Person to Person," with several weeks' worth of taped interviews by Charles Collingwood that were never shown because of the program's sudden-death lopoff earlier this season. "P to P" goes into its original Friday 10:30 post, replacing "Eyewitness to History."

Gillette to Solo On ABC Sat. Fites

Next October, Gillette is going to become complete sponsor of ABC-TV'S Saturday night professional fight cards. Consolidated Cigar has bought half of the fight lineup for the summer—until Gillette falls sole heir.

Consolidated biz is filling in for longtime co-sponsor Miles Labs, which is giving up the Saturday-at-10 p.m. fight coverage on ABC-TV. Reason for the pullout of Miles is said due mainly to a new product conflict with co-sponsor Gillette. Miles has an after-shave it wants to push, which would put it into direct competition with the razor house's own product in that area.

Whether Gillette seeks to hold the full show indefinitely is not clear, considering there is always the possibility that the onetime fight-crazy bankroller will again attempt to sell off part of the pugilistics somewhere along in the new season.

Nielsen's New Top 15

(Feb. 11 Report)

Gunsmoke (CBS)	40.1
Wagon Train (NBC)	36.2
Have Gun, Will Travel (CBS)	31.0
DuPont Show of Month (CBS)	30.5
Candid Camera (CBS)	30.2
Rawhide (CBS)	30.1
Andy Griffith (CBS)	30.0
Dennis the Menace (CBS)	29.1
Ed Sullivan (CBS)	28.4
Untouchables (ABC)	28.2
Jack Benny (CBS)	28.0
Danny Thomas (CBS)	27.9
Real McCoys (ABC)	27.1
Price Is Right (NBC)	27.0
Flintstones (ABC)	26.3

Mex Censors Slap Fine on NBC In Crackdown on U.S. Telepix

Mexico City, March 14.

The National Broadcasting Co. has had a $2,000 fine slapped against it by the Film Bureau for alleged telecasting of filmed material which had not first received a greenlight from the Mexican censors.

Jorge Ferretis, who is imposing a stiffer censorship policy, embracing filmed and videotyped episodics, short subjects and feature length pictures shown over homescreens, said that there will be a crackdown on loose interpretation of Mexican laws. From now on all elements, national or foreign, supplying or exploiting film over local channels must obey the Mexican Film Law to the letter.

The law calls for official approval of scripts before cameras start to roll. Generally it was believed that this referred only to features. But Ferretis in the clampdown last week said tnat homescreen film entertainment also comes under jurisdiction of the Film Bureau.

Titles of offending NBC filmed episodics were not released, but it appears that some westerns with a lot of accent on gunplay and fisticuffs brought on the official Ferretis displeasure.

Coincident with the stiff fine slapped on NBC, Ferretis issued a circular to all tv producing firms here that from now on it is mandatory to send in scripts of all filmed material, including videotapes. And the interpretation of "films" is "all that which is susceptible of being reproduced on a screen, independent of methods used for reproduction of sound or its processing."

Censor scissors will also snip at "objectionable" scenes in feature length films shown for homescreens, and in episodics now completed and awaiting release, because these have "far too many scenes considered injurious to minds of the young."

Current censorship drive is allegedly outcome of "hundreds" of plaints received from parents scor-

(Continued on page 46)

Filmaster Syndie Wings Spread Out

Filmaster, Inc., has entered the syndication biz in a sales style all of its own. Under the sales direction of v.p. Jake Keever, outfit will have six top sales execs, concentrating on regional and national spot biz.

Among those appointed for these top sales posts are Jacques Liebenguth, formerly director of syndication sales for California National Productions, and James M. Strain, former western sales manager, CNP; Andrew Jaeger, formerly eastern regional sales manager for Ziv-UA. At Filmaster, Jaeger will handle the northeast, Liebenguth, middle eastern states, and strain the west.

Sales v.p. Keever says the smaller markets will be served via the phones and mail. Whole concept of Filmaster's selling is to cut sales distribution costs and put the money saved in production values, according to Keever. First syndicated show of Filmaster to be marketed with that concept in mind is its initial entry, the Rod Cameron starrer, "Beachcomber," slated for airing in the fall. Filmaster and TV Stations, Inc., have signed separate deals covering 71 markets. Filmaster, in each of its deals, has reserved the right to sell the show to a national or regional sponsor by Aug. 15. TV Stations, Inc., according to Keever, had recommended the series to its member stations after a screening.

Stan Yentes will head the sale service division handling smaller markets.

Filmaster will have a half-hour football series done in conjunction with the National Football League. At this stage, it plans to have two entertainment properties a year for the syndication market. Outfit was said to have about 13 projects as possibilities, including "Our Town." Currently, Filmaster is producing "Death Valley Days" for Pacific Borax.

Wolper-Sterling's Trio

Wolper - Sterling Productions next month will have three hour-long documentaries in national release within a one-week period.

"The Legend of Valentino," sponsored by Peter Pan Foundations, "Biography of a Rookie," sponsored in a multi-market spread by F. & M. Schaefer Brewing, and "The Race for Space," sponsored in some 50 markets by Tidewater Oil Co., have all been scheduled for telecasting between April 10-17.

'Hound's' Around The Vidpix Globe; Big Latino Fave

"Huckleberry Hound," distributed by Screen Gems, has been sold in 25 countries and promises to be one of the most widely circulated shows in foreign distribution. SG's current bestseller abroad is "Rin Tin Tin."

Animated series, produced by Hanna-Barbera, has been dubbed in five different languages: French, German, Spanish, Portuguese, and Japanese. "Hound" started playing in Latin America a year and a half ago. That was the first time, according to SG, that regional dialects were deliberately used in the Spanish dubbing of the tv series, done for the purpose of emphasizing the varied characterizations of the cartoon personalities. In Latino market, series now is playing in Argentina, Brazil, Colombia, Dominican Republic, Mexico, Peru, Puerto Rico and Venezuela.

Other sales include England, Belgium, Finland, Spain, Germany, Australia, New Zealand, Japan, Thailand, Hong Kong, and the Philippines.

In many of these countries, "Quick Draw McGraw," which in the U. S. started in the fall of '59, a year after "Hound," has also begun telecasting in native tongues. "Flintstones," latest out of H-B's shop, already playing in English-speaking countries, is being readied for the international rounds.

Ziv & Brod Reunite

Ziv-UA and Broderick Crawford who teamed up for a jackpot syndication winner in "Highway Patrol" and then had a falling out over some money matters are back together again.

Crawford is the star of a new Ziv-UA series, which, according to reports, is being prepped for presentation shortly.

Jencks' Official Seal of Health On H'wood Vidpix Biz

Hollywood, March 14.

At the close of 1961 there will be close to 3,000 telefilms produced in Hollywood, the number comprising more than 100 different series, Richard W. Jencks, prexy of the Alliance of Television Film Producers, noted yesterday (Mon.) in a talk before the Industrial Division of the Hollywood Chamber of Commerce.

Close to 90% of all evening programming on tv networks are films produced here, he added. Jencks also gave his observations on the possibility of the FCC controlling programming, foreign competition threatening domestic tv production, American telefilm producers deriving income from abroad, runaway production as a threat to Hollywood tv production, survival of the small tv producer, important economic developments in the tv programming field, the outlook for pay teevee, and reappraisal of rating systems by Gov. Collins.

Summing up, Jencks asserted the health of the tv film industry here is okay. To keep it good, he added, it must be given opportunity to develop foreign markets now closed to American programs; union leadership and, above all, willingness to adapt business and creative practices to changing conditions.

LEN APPLESON UPPED

Len Appleson has been promoted to director of "live" action films at HFH Productions, specializing in animated as well as live action tv commercials and commercial films.

Appelson previously had been chief editor for the company. Recently, he finished an assignment as editor of John Cassavetes production of "Shadows."

'Pinocchio' Tees Off Videocraft's New Approach to Vidkid Entries

A new approach to children's programming—though actually it's the oldest of all kiddie forms—has been undertaken by Videocraft Productions, a firm heretofore confined to production of commercials and industrial pix. The approach is the creation of series based on fairy tales and other traditional kidstories.

First show out of the Videocraft hopper is "The New Adventures of Pinocchio," series of 130 five-minute segments filmed in a new process called "Anamagic," utilizing animated puppets. Next up will be an animated series of five-minute segments, "Tales of the Wizard of Oz," employing the original Frank Baum characters. Both shows are syndication entries: "Pinocchio" is already sold in over 20 markets, with Videocraft handling its own sales.

Approach taken by Videocraft has as its premise the viewpoint that there must be another way to program kidfare on a station level than via the current "Popeye"—"Three Stooges"—"Bozo" type of programming. These, Videocraft feels, have proven highly vulnerable to criticism as overly violent and as basically unhealthy fare for kids. Feeling is reflected by some stations which simply won't touch the "Popeye" type of show but have indicated strong interest in "Pinocchio" and "Wizard."

Production of the latter parallels in several respects the impact made several years ago on kiddie shows by "Lassie." Until then, the only kidfare produced for tv was straight action-adventure in the form of westerns and jungle series. Whereas these had struck a responsive chord with the moppets in terms of violent action, "Lassie" took the approach of striking an emotional response. Ditto, on a syndicated and station programming level, the new "Pinocchio" and "Wizard" segs, first capsule strips to be fashioned out of traditional fairy tale-type material.

Indicative of the station reaction is some markets in which "Pinocchio" is already sold—WGN-TV, Chicago (for colorcasting); WAGA-TV, Atlanta; KRLD-TV, Dallas; KPRC-TV, Houston, KIRO-TV, Seattle; WIIC, Pittsburgh; KRON-TV, San Francisco; KLZ-TV, Denver and CKLW, Detroit, among others. Those are pretty good markets for a company which is brandnew to syndication, with a sales force that numbers only five men—it must mean there's something in the product itself.

Videocraft has been in business for some nine years—it's owned by Jules Bass, ex-Gardner agency; Art Rankin, formerly with ABC, and Larry Roemer—and has been in the commercial and industrial field for all that time. During the course of the years, the partners came up with the Anamagic process, in which stringless puppets are manipulated manually in a frame-by-frame still-motion technique. Company used the puppet process for some commercials, but wanted to expand it for use in a series.

Logical choice was "Pinocchio," since story itself is about a puppet. Videocraft used its own financing,

(Continued on page 46)

'. . . Sometimes the Knife Slips'

Chicago, March 14.

There's more than a little infighting between the two stations that dominate the commercial taping business here. With WBBM-TV now virtually out of it, and WBKB never really in it, the VTR blurb melon is being cut by WGN-TV and WNBQ, and sometimes the knife slips.

WNBQ is now crying "foul" over its competitor's alleged theft of the Hamm's Beer biz which supposedly had been verbally promised to the NBC station by Campbell-Mithun. The commercials were to have been used in the Minneapolis, Baltimore and Chicago baseball telecasts, which Hamm's will be sponsoring. WGN, which carries the ball games in Chi, ended up with the contract, causing WNBQ's VTR Sales unit to charge them with strongarm tactics.

But, as the indie station explains it, there's a clause in the IBEW contract which states that any taped commercial has to be made by the station if it's going to be shown exclusively on the station. Ergo, C-M really had no choice.

Hamm's is getting a sort of bonus from having tossed the business to WGN. Last year it had wanted WGN's ace sportscaster, Jack Brickhouse, to do the blurbs but the station wouldn't allow it because they were taped at WBBM-TV. This year, as long as the account's in the house, Brickhouse has permission and will do them.

TV Stations, Inc., Adding Agency Service to 105-Outlet Syndie Setup

TV Stations, Inc., which now has about 105 member-owner stations, has branched out to service advertising agencies, as well as member stations. Heading up the new division, called the advertising agency service division, is v.p. Norman Livingston.

The advertising division was said to operate along these lines: If an advertising agency has a client who wants to buy a syndicated property in a number of markets, the agency can call on TV Stations, Inc., to screen possible syndie shows, cite the availabilities of the shows in particular markets, and negotiate with the distributor. For the service, TV Stations, Inc., would command a fee. TV Stations, Inc., would not be a party to the contract though. Contracting parties would be the distributor and the agency and/or clients.

The agency, once buying the show, would use the normal channels of placement, it was explained.

TV Stations, Inc., headed by Herb Jacobs, has grown considerably in its seven-year history. It now has member-owning stations in 26 of the top 50 markets. Outfit has no member stations in N. Y., Los Angeles, or Chicago. Membership in the organization, which specializes in representing member stations in film negotiations, is by invitaton only. It has only one member station in each participating market, most of which are small or medium-sized markets.

It was on the basis of its seven years of experience in negotiating for filmed and vidtaped shows for station members that it decided to add its advertising agency service. TV Stations, Inc., states that it negotiates each market separately and denies any "forcing" of product on member stations or bulk buying for many member-station markets.

One of the ways TV Stations, Inc., services member station owners is through bulletins on upcom-

(Continued on page 46)

'Jungle Jim' Releases

New package of 50-post-'48 action pix from Columbia Pictures being marketed by Screen Gems consist of 16 pix from the "Jungle Jim" series. All of the pix have short running times, less than 74 minutes, and are considered ideally suitable for early pix shows and late, late slots.

Johnny Weissmuller stars in the "Jungle Jib" pix. Other titles include: "State Penitentary," Warner Baxter; "Forbidden Island," Jon Hall; "Phantom Stagecoach," William Bishop; "Fury at Gunsight Pass," David Brian; "Uranium Boom," Dennis Morgan; "Smuggler's Gold," "Problem Girls," and "Valley of the Head Hunters."

'Leonardo' Is Hot Off the Air, Too (Product Tie-Ins)

The networks, sponsors and agencies aren't the only ones who can work up a fever over the ratings, says Treadwell Covington, producer of the cartoon show, "King Leonardo." He says a top Nielsen is a tip-off to manufacturers of all kinds as the lead-in to a licensing and merchandising program.

Since its start in October on NBC-TV, "King Leonardo" has pulled a good rating in the Saturday morning slot. Attesting to its success, says Covington, is its alliance with 11 manufacturers and a variety of about 80 tie-in products.

Still more tie-ins are expected at toy shows now running in three places in New York, the Toy Building and the New Yorker and Sheraton-Atlantic hotels. "Leonardo's" merchandising rep, Licensing Corp. of America, figure that before the show is over more than 100 ties have been completed, according to LCA veepee Leon Newman.

"Leonardo" is Covington's initial effort in the cartoon field. In spite of the Saturday morning slotting, he feels that juves alone will comprise a large enough aud to grab off as high a daytime rating as he'd like. To lure adult viewers, while hanging onto the kids, he's inserting situations and dialog that are on a fairly sophisticated level

(Continued on page 46)

'UNDERWATER' HITS 70-MARKET STRIDE

National Telefilm Associates' "Assignment Underwater" has racked up additional sales, bringing its market total to 70.

Most recent deals include KTVW, Seattle; KTVR, Denver; KPIX, San Francisco; WTHI, Terre Haute; KLAS, Las Vegas; KEZI, Eugene; KIMA, Yakima; WTVW, Evansville; WBZ, Boston; WLAC, Nashville; WATE, Knoxville; and WLA-A, Atlanta.

Sponsorship deals range from Coca-Cola, Pacific Tel & Tel., P. Lorillard, Dodge Dealers, P & G Crisco, and General Tire.

SG's New Sales On Col. Post-'48s

Screen Gems, under its "interested market" policy, has racked up another eight markets in the sale of post-'48 Columbia Pictures. The eight markets, coupled with the five CBS o&o deals, brings the total market count now to 13.

The new sales weren't confined to the 210 post-'48 Columbias being sold to tv. They included an action package of 50 pix, fresh to the tv market, and pre-'48, Universal Pictures, for which SG has distribution rights, and pre-'48 Columbias.

New sales include: WTIC, Hartford, which bought telecasting rights to 365 pix, composed of 210 post-'48 Columbias, 50 action pix, also post-'48 Columbias, and the remainder Universal product; WHBF, Rock Island-Davenport, 325 pix, composed of 210 post-'48 Columbias and the balance Universals; WOOD, Grand Rapids, 210 post-'48 Columbias and the balance Universals.

Also Newhouse stations in Syra-

(Continued on page 46)

TV FEATURES 'NEW FRONTIERS'

'Waterfront' Okay for '63 Release

Academy Award winner "On the Waterfront" has been made available to tv and Screen Gems is including the Columbia release in its post-'48 pix catalog.

Rights for the tv release were cleared and CBS o&o's and other stations will have the Marlon Brando starrer on a delayed telecasting basis for airing in '63.

As to initial ratings on Columbia post-'48's, WCBS-TV, N. Y., since Jan. 28 has been slotting the post-'48's for its Saturday night "Late Show." Rundown finds the pix dominating the time period in N. Y., as well as on KNXT, Los Angeles, the other CBS-TV o&o, which has adopted the same Saturday night pattern. On both stations, Trendex ratings were taken.

WCBS-TV rating rundown follows: Jan. 28, "All the King's Men," 23.9 rating, 76.6 share; Feb. 18, "Phfft!", 18.1 rating, 59.8 share; Feb. 25, "Death of a Salesman," 22.5 rating, 72.5 share; and March 4, "Kiss the Blood Off My Hands," a Universal pic which was part of the deal, 17.5 rating and 64.3 share.

KNXT, Los Angeles, "All the Kings Men," 24.2 rating, 62.1 share; "Phfft!", 17.7, 67.6 share; and "Salesman," 26.7, 70.2 share.

'Taft Schreiber Case' Gets a Rerun

Only This Time MCA Exec, Insead of Walkout, Gives Panto Performance

Los Angeles, March 14.

MCA and FCC will go to the mat in U. S. district court for a determination of a burning issue that road-blocked last week's rerun of the commission's inquiry into standards and practices of Hollywood's telepic producers. Talent agency's lawyers contend that the federal agency has no right to force public disclosure of the company's confidential information; that it would be damaging to its own business and be an aid and comfort to competitors. The hearing examiner, James D. Cunningham, has ruled to the contrary and moved for a contempt citation. Request for a private hearing was denied.

Hearing was concluded yesterday (Mon.) with nothing of a new or startling nature.

Constant refusal of MCA veepee and Revue prexy Taft Schreiber to testify, going back to the first hearing last October, triggered last week's hearing and resulted in more of the same. This time Schreiber didn't walk out but took the stand. He might as well have been a thousand miles away. When FCC counsel, Ashbrook Bryant, plied him with questions, he merely stared at him without moving his lips. It was a half-hour of immobile pantomime that finally brought the order from Cunningham for a district court trial. Should Schreiber continue to refuse to testify and be found guilty of contempt (a misdemeanor) he would be liable to a fine of not more than $1,000 and not more

(Continued on page 46)

TV Industries Slaps $3,500,000 Damage Suit Against RKO General

Television Industries has filed a $3,500,000 damage suit against RKO General in N.Y. Supreme Court, charging RKO General with abrogations of various contracts. Suit, brought in the name of C&C Films and C&C International Films, all now under the overall Television Industries umbrella, sought an injunction and an accounting as well.

Complaint charges that RKO in violation of agreements made various deals with third parties, thereby competing unfairly and reducing the value of pix rights held by Television Industries. Plaintiff, under a '55 contract, had secured negative rights to the RKO Radio Pictures library.

It was charged that under a March, '58 agreement and a March, '59 agreement, C&C granted RKO rights in the U.S. and Canada to 18 pix, for which RKO agreed to pay 7½% of gross and render quarterly statements. Suit alleged defendant made "improper deductions" in its gross reports.

It was also charged that RKO, granted foreign distribution rights for specific periods, improperly withheld certain monies from the plaintiff.

ABC: It's Tough in Buff

Indicative of the trouble ABC-TV might have in clearing the late night slot next season for reruns of hour vidfilm series is illustrated by the Buffalo market.

WKBW, Buffalo, ABC-TV affil, recently bought 490 pix from Screen Gems, including 260 post-'48 Columbias. Reported plan of the station, in light of the tall coin laid out and the number of pix, is to slot the features in its late night pix slot—the time period sought by the web.

Oldest Customer Scrams KDKA-TV In Pix Dumping

Pittsburgh, March 14.

KDKA-TV lost its oldest customer on Thursday (9) when Thoroughfare Markets took its "Startime Theatre" to WTAE due to the change in programming on Westinghouse stations. The grocery firm has had the Friday night spot from 11:15 p.m. since 1952 when the station's call letters was WDTV.

Charles Llewellyn, account supervisor of the Ketchum, McLeod & Grove agency, told the VARIETY rep that: "While we feel that Westinghouse is making a very courageous move, we do not feel we can gamble our sponsor's money that they are right. The Friday night movie has been a very important part of Thoroughfare's advertising program and we do not feel a change is advisable."

This will be the major loss for the station since no other sponsor has a feature film program to itself. During the past two years all the 11:15 movies have been converted to participating spots. Thoroughfare was allowed to keep its show because of its high quality and due to the fact that it was the only show that was able to give Jack Paar any competition in rating While Paar was ahead most of the time there never was more than a point or two separating them in ARB ratings while on some nights WIIC, which carries Paar here, had a 10 to 15 point bulge.

Now that both WIIC and KDKA-TV have eschewed the 11:15 feature film, WTAE is still bullish about the value of movies and has no intention of changing to any other programming. It has $4,000,000 worth of film and has about half that in the library all the time. Reser said that his station beat Paar on special movies such as the Clark Gable series right after the star's death and expect do as well with their new Thoroughfare show.

Kay Neuman, one of Pitt's top tv personalities, who does the commercials on the show, will stay when the program moves over to WTAE on April 7.

OUTLOOK TAKES ON A ROSY HUE

By MURRAY HOROWITZ

Features on tv are crossing a new frontier, the landscape of which is marked by updated product, bigger outlays for "A" product, and for the first time networking, as well as syndication.

Major studio post '48 pix travelers along the new frontier will include Metro, as well as 20th-Fox, Warner Bros., United Artists, Columbia, and perhaps one or two other Hollywood studios before the current year is out.

For the first time—with the NBC-TV, 20th-Fox deal—national advertising and promotion on a regular basis will be open to telecasting of Hollywood pix. The rating pull of a Marilyn Monroe, Danny Kaye, Ethel Merman (among stars in the NBC-TV deal), et al., is anyone's guess. One thing is for sure, though, the Saturday night NBC-TV slot need not suffer because a "Have Gun Will Travel"-type national ad, promo campaign can't be had. All it requires is money and effort. Networking opens the potential use of national media.

As soon as the studios reached an agreement with the Hollywood talent guilds, the door was opened for the post-'48 vaultees. Within a year, most of the major studios either succumbed to the tv dollar, or planned to do so. New pact with the Hollywood talent guilds, which provided for pensions and other peripheral benefits, did not set up a residual payment formula on pix sold to tv. Establishment of a formula was held in abeyance for post-'60 pix, the year marking the period of the new pact.

That there are some tall dollars in those post-'48 pix is considered one of the reasons for the healthy state of many motion picture company stocks on Wall Street. There are many other reasons, of course, but a Metro, for example, has earned "Ben-Hur" revenues with its pre-'48 library. To date, the tally is about $65,000,000 for Metro on its 725 pre-'48 vaultees.

Post-'48 pix to tv stations are earning more dollars. How much more varies according to the pix, packages and studio. A package of fresh, "A" post-'48 pix could earn from $150,000 to $200,000 per pic to the distributor in gross revenues. That compares to a high of about $100,000 per pic for similar pre-'48 "A" feature. Above figures represent the high scale, dependent on getting total market penetration in distribution as well as good prices.

After a reluctant start, more and more stations are inking for the post-'48's in deals with National Telefilm Associates, Screen Gems and Seven Arts Associated. Many stations are utilizing the post-'48's to dress up their vaultee libraries, and in many instances, playing off the post-'48's to buoy ratings.

Updating of pix again lowers the time span dividing tv telecasting and theatrical showings. The time span could be lowered even further, if the ante tv offers is hiked. How much commercially-supported tv can ultimately offer always has been a subject of debate.

NBC-TV, 20th-Fox deal offers many intriguing possibilities. If the Saturday night showcase clicks, the other networks aren't likely to stand by and ignore the potential programming in Hollywood pix of recent vintage. Some competitive biddings on a network level could jack up the price of pix considerably. It's understood that 20th-Fox in its first batch of 30 for the upcoming season secured about $180,000 per pic as an average. Of course, there's the syindication potential following the network run.

Whatever shortterm pitfalls the features-to-tv biz has suffered, the outlook for the new frontier tomorrow is favorable.

Flamingo's Foreign Pix Getting A Big Play From 'TV Art Houses'

Post-'48 Pace Slower

Feature selling in syndication is hitting better strides, but the pace of market penetration appears slower than the early heyday when the Hollywood vaults were first opened to tv.

A major feature syndicator exec estimated that in the past it would take about four years to get virtual blanket distribution of pix packages in the U.S. Same degree of penetration now is estimated at from six to eight years. What's slowing down the pace—at least at this stage—is attributable to large dollar commitments already plunked down by station owners for features.

Flamingo Films prexy Ira Gottlieb has been promoting foreign feature pix for tv since 1957, encountering a full share of indifference and a few censorial lumps along the way, and is currently getting a lot of satisfaction—and revenue—out of the 120 markets sewed up for all or part of the syndie firm's 135 overseas titles.

The dubbed pix (except British), representing some of the finest foreign titles to play the U. S. art circuit in recent years, is scoring some remarkable rating successes around the country, which is the reason Gottlieb is not complacently cooling his heels, but rather storming station management with promotion brochures based on the trials and triumphs.

The Hartford story in the feature film numbers game is one Gottlieb particularly likes. "Miracle in Marcalino," a picture that did so-so in the arties, pulled a 42 on WTIC in the Connecticut city. Gottlieb believes it's the highest ever scored by any tele show there. But the show was in a late night slot, and the station received so many requests from adults for a repeat at an hour when kids could watch that it preempted primetime CBS programming for a rerun—Monday, 7 to 9 p.m.

Other rating stories have been strictly adult. A Bridget Bardot item, "Striptease Girl," was going strong at 1 a.m. on WNBC-TV, New York, with a 25 rating. It was sponsored all the way by cosmetic maker Coty. The French sextoosie was a stimulant to Coty sales, and the company wanted to repeat the show in Chicago and Los Angeles, but stations there were afraid to play it.

Same time, Gottlieb says that while WNBC-TV's new local level censors barred "Nights of Cabiria" at the last minute, show has since played Pittsburgh, the Los Angeles NBC o&o and other metropolitan outlets. The New York station's rix on the Italian picture that got Giulietta Masina best actress awards and an Oscar for best foreign picture of the year—and the International Catholic Award yet, is a puzzlement to Gottlieb and others in the industry. It's the story of a prostie, but done with taste and imagination.

In the light of several other censorship problems, Gottlieb has eliminated all the features with a

(Continued on page 48)

NBC Int'l Forms A Canada Subsid; Import & Export

In another effort to spread its wings, NBC's International division is starting a subsidiary operation in Canada, according to information coming from the Dominion. Subsid—yet unnamed—will peddle NBC film and tape product north of the border, thereby filling the void that's being made with the conclusion of Fremantle's Canadiah distribution arrangement with the web.

But also—and possibly as important—the NBC subsidiary, which already has a nucleus of two new Canadian key staffers, will undoubtedly explore the availability of certain tv product made there for U. S. and world distribution. Canada has quotas on how much American or other foreign tv programming can be imported, so that if NBC can work out ways to help Canada export, it might serve as an all-round reciprocal stimulus.

NBC International, headed by Al Stern, has never been directly or "fully" involved in a Canadian operation. Fremantle of Canada has had the distrib contract with the web for a couple of years, and NBC has apparently never gotten involved, as it has elsewhere in the world, in the multi-staged process of "broadcast management," which means anything from fee-paid program advice to contracts to supply technical aid to foreign outlets. This latter area of operation, also opens up for NBC with the establishment of a fulltime company there.

Richard King and James Inch, recently hired by the network, will man the new subsidiary.

'Open End' Pitt Reprieve

Pittsburgh, March 14.

"Open End," which was to be dropped by educational tv station WQED because NTA had asked for a $400 fee each week, got a last minute reprieve and will continue here under the quasi-sponsorship of the Joseph Horne department store.

The store will pay the fee as a public service and three announcements of a non-commercial basis will be given Horne's in recognition of their picking up the tab. The only change is that the show now moves from Monday to Wednesday nights at 8:30.

Trans-Lux Gets 'World'

Trans-Lux Television has acquired distribution rights to "It's a Wonderful World," produced by Carl Dudley, whose credits include Cinerama's "South Seas Adventure."

First 13 episodes of the travelog half-hour series are scheduled for release next month. Host-narrator is John Cameron Swayze.

'Play of Week' Restored To Balto WBAL-TV Nite Sked as Critics Beef

Baltimore, March 14.

"Play of the Week" series, purchased here by WBAL-TV and first presented by station in prime evening time, throughout the week, then dropped, and later slipped into Sunday afternoon lineup is back again in nighttime schedule "by popular demand."

Series, which premiered here one year ago with "Medea," was juggled into evening slots for only a few months before it was decided that returns did not warrant locations. It disappeared for a short time then reappeared in the Sunday afternoon spot.

Local critics noted the change and decried situation but nothing came of it until announcement by John Frankenfield, program director, that station has received hundreds of letters from viewers over past few months, asking for a nighttime showing of series.

Series makes switch Saturday (18) at 9:30 p.m. with repeat of "The Closing Door," which met with good mail and phone response when first shown last spring, according to Frankenfield.

Understanding is that series will be aired regularly at 9:30 p.m., Saturdays for "months to come" and time will vary only occasionally when network specials take priority. In this case, starting time will be delayed a half-hour.

there is nothing harder to stop than a trend

Network television-watching is up . . . to the tune-in of 1,190,000 more homes.

Being a communications art, very much in the public eye, television is bound to attract constant critical fire.

Certainly the targets are most inviting: less entertainment—or more "good" entertainment? What is the public interest? Equal time for whom, what and when? Etc.

Most recently, it's being said that all such questions are academic anyway, since television has reached its audience peak and is, indeed, starting down the other side.

Well sir, that one we can nail. And our critical authority is none other than Joe Viewer. By the mere act of turning on (or off) his set, by the mere turning of the dials, his is the last word.

Today's dial-counting figures say he likes us more than ever. He's watching evening network programs now in 27,906,000 homes per average minute.* That's an upward trend of 1,190,000 over his 1960 liking.

We would think that this isn't because he's suddenly found himself with more time on his hands these evenings. But because these evenings in television are becoming more and more rewarding for him.

Obviously, we're pleased. The more so (and understandably) because the figures go on to say that ABC's increase comes to 73% of the total increase.

The reasons for this are as valid as they are various: The Untouchables. My Three Sons. The Flintstones. 77 Sunset Strip. Or, in the public service spectrum: Winston Churchill: The Valiant Years, ABC-TV Close-Up!, Expedition. Or, in the sports arena: Saturday Night Fights, College Basketball, All Star Golf, Championship Bowling.

This trend is one we intend to extend. Coming-soon evidence of our intent includes: The Bing Crosby Show, 33rd Annual Academy Award Presentation, The Corrupters, Bus Stop, Top Cat (new animated series by the producers of The Flintstones), Calvin and the Colonel.

A closing thought (for the dial-counting advertiser): nothing is harder to stop than a trend. Nothing more profitable to go with.

ABC Television Network

*Source: National Nielsen TV Report, 2 weeks ending Feb. 19, 1961 vs. similar period in 1960. Average audience, Sunday 6:30-11 PM, Mon. through Sat., 7:30-11 PM.

THERE'S NOTHING HARDER TO STOP THAN A ONE-WAY TREND

AVERAGE PRIME TIME RATING

ONE WAY — October 1960 — 13.3

ONE WAY — November 1960 — 14.9

ONE WAY — December 1960 — 15.6

ONE WAY — Jan.-Feb. 1961 — 17.3

And according to Arbitron's latest report, it is very clear that the television traffic trend continues to point ONE WAY—to Channel 7

Jan.-Feb. 1961

Network Station X	18.5
WABC-TV	17.3
Network Station Z	14.6

(Arbitron: 7:00 to 11 PM, Monday - Saturday; 6:30 to 11 PM, Sunday)

CHANNEL 7

WABC-TV CHANNEL 7

Flagship Station ABC Television Network

THE MOST ENJOYABLE TREND IN TOWN

EVERYBODY ON CARTOON KICK

Wall St. Reacts to Purex Profile

What effect does tv advertising have on a sponsor's position on the stock market? There still doesn't seem to be a totally definitive answer, but here's new evidence that may help establish that video not only can sell consumer goods and thereby indirectly affect the market but that it might even be powerful enough, the circumstances being right, to affect directly Wall St. itself.

The Purex Corp. in January of 1960 was listed in over-the-counter quotations at a bid of about $24. That was just when the California-based household products company began its sponsorship of five NBC specials, mainly pubaffairs. When the five shows were over in spring, the company had advanced to a seemingly so-whattish 28.

Then Purex followed this initial purchase with a series of about 13 summer repeats of certain NBC specials, including the ones it had sponsored in first run. Purex over-the-counter mark rose from 28 to 40 during this period of intensive advertising.

When Purex sponsored all of the climactic January Inauguration coverage on NBC, the stock leaped into the high 60s bid column. It's dropped since to bidding hovering around 66 with an "ask" of about 70½. What some people feel the drop to 66 reflected—and there is never any scientific certainty about stock charts—is that tv drove a few points higher than it actually should have been.

Of course, a more tangible result of the tv advertising for Purex has been that for the first time the company is grossing over the $100,000,000-mark. Still, the sales increase, it's understood, has not been as proportionately high as the market quotations.

ABC-TV's 'Silents Please' Making Loud Noises on 3-Sponsor Front

Campbell Soups is about ready to sign for a quarter of the 23 new "Silents Please" half-hours that ABC will program this spring. It means the sponsor will be splitting half with Ralston-Purina, and together they'll be matching the buy of Consolidate Cigar's roughly 50% of the 10:30 Thursday night stanza.

The Campbell biz is the latest pleasant thing that's happened to "Please," which might be termed in its new run on ABC-TV "Revival of Revivals." Series had a 10 or 11-week run last summer as a replacement for Ernie Kovacs, who in its next run will not hiatus but instead serve as host. Program is made up of pre-talkie motion picture classics, which have, in the main, been sitting in cans in some old vault, where if they were looked at at all they were viewed as "curios."

Paul Killian, one half of the "Silents" production team (with Saul Turrell), was himself viewed as something of an oddball when he started laying hold of the non-talkies a few years ago. They were then either priceless or worthless (depending on one's bent), but since "Silents" got a commercial nod and items like "The Golden Age of Comedy" got theatre bookings the films have graduated to a state of monetary value.

Shows are costing roughly $25,000 apiece in the coming run. Lots of the money must, of course be attributed to the cost of transferring ancient prints into useable tv negatives. Sound must be added and then there is the cost of rights to the old prints.

Killian and Turrell, boss of Sterling Television, have bought several new-old properties for "Silents," which runs until next Octo-

(Continued on page 42)

'New Faces' as Summer Live Sub for 'Henessey'?

Lennen & Newell, agency on the Lorillard account, is mulling the possibility of doing a live series as a summer replacement for "Henessey" on CBS-TV.

There have been some discussions with Leonard Sillman on some updated "New Faces," but no decision as yet.

Documentary And 'Zoo Story' Invite Canada Headache

Ottawa, March 14.

Documentary on unemployment and drama with profanity produced almost simultaneous headaches for the Canadian Broadcasting Corp. The television production of "The Zoo Story" retained considerable words the Canadian video public resented hearing.

Aired on CBC's web item, "Festival '61," the show brought more than 200 protests and only a score or so telephoned compliments. But when newspapers and radio and tv news shows reported this, letters in support of "Zoo" began to crowd in until they were double the number of protests. Majority of beefs came from the Ottawa area where, until CJOH - TV preemed Monday (12), only CBC's English and French stations could be dialed.

The documentary show was designed to highlight the plight of a family where the father was, and had been for some time, unemployed. It was a solid tearmaker with cameras moving in on a Hamilton, Ont., man, his wife and three children. The man, it stressed, was 45 years old but couldn't get a job of any kind in spite of a four-month search.

The day after this bit was used on CBC's magazine show, "Close-Up," Canada's federal Minister of Labor, Michael Starr, reported that the man on the tv show—Glen Excelby of Hamilton—had quit a job as salesman at $6,000 a year because, he said, it held "no future" for him. That was last September. Nearly two months later he got a job in Hamilton as salesman at $350 a month, was paid off Jan. 30. He got work with CBC then at $25 a day. Later, he turned down several job offers because the tv show was imminent, and, after the show, he got offers of work in Montreal, Halifax and Sudbury. The labor minister told the House of Commons he regretted CBC's intervention to most of the facts in the case.

KTLA's '7 Keys' As ABC-TV Strip

"Seven Keys," audience-participationer currently airing locally on KTLA, Los Angeles, has been set by ABC-TV as a daytime strip and moves into the 2:30-3 period cross-the-board starting in April and replacing "Road to Reality" on the network.

Series is a Carl Jampel package repped by Frank Cooper Associates. Cooper office is also close to a deal on another audience-participationer, "Take Your Pick." Deal had been virtually set for Colgate to buy the show and use it as a Wednesday night replacement for "My Sister Eileen" on CBS-TV, but the web's restrictions on prizes were such that Colgate felt its impact would be hurt and decided against using the show. Cooper office is now negotiating with another client.

ALL 3 NETWORKS PREPPING SERIES

The big program craze today is animated cartoons. They'll come into their own on tv next season, as the three networks, sketching in fall plans, move to slot cartoon shows in prime evening time.

Cartoon race marks the first clear programming trend for next season. Just as ABC-TV's success with "Maverick" ushered in the hour vidfilm trend on the webs, ABC - TV's rating magic with "Flintstones" appears to have started the bandwagon rolling, with NBC-TV and CBS-TV getting into the act and ABC-TV increasing its cartoon shows.

The cartoon derby now embraces indie packagers and producers, some new, some well established houses as Walt Disney and tv's own major cartoonery, Hanna-Barbera.

CBS-TV for next season has slotted an all-cartoon hour for Wednesdays starting at 7:30 p.m. Initial half-hour animated series, out of the Ted Ashley shop, will be "Alvin and the Chipmunks," with General Foods picking up half-sponsorship . The other animated series is "The Shrimp," created by Sy Gomberg. Apparently, though, there is some dispute whether CBS-TV has "The Shrimp" locked in, for a spokesman of the NBC-TV rival camp feels that NBC-TV, too, is a "Shrimp" contender.

NBC-TV's "Walt Disney Show" next season, slotted Sunday nights from 7:30 to 8:30 p.m., will consist partially of new Disney cartoon. In fact, it's understood that half of the Sunday evening show will be composed of Disney cartoons. Same web wanted to package a Friday night half-hour show, titled "The Best of Disney," consisting of old Disney cartoons, but that deal, for one reason or another, collapsed.

Edgar Bergen Series

Don Quinn is coming out of semi-retirement to take on the post of supervising head-writer on a new animated cartoon series, "The Edgar Bergen Show." Bergen, his wife Frances and daughter Candy form the basis of the characters in the animated stanza, but also animated as characters rather than puppets are Charlie McCarthy, Mortimer Snerd and other Bergen creations.

Series, packaged by Bergen and Bruce Eells' new company, Television Artists & Producers Co., is an adult family situation comedy stanza, set in Beverly Hills. Among the wrinkles on the show is the use of "guest stars," that is, caricatures of stars like Bob Hope and Jack Benny, who've given their permission for use of their names and caricatures in the show as neighbors of the Bergens.

Cartoons will be produced by the Bob Clampett Organization on the Coast. Clampett, now an indie

(Continued on page 42)

Prudential Yens Situation Comedy

After serving notice of dropping its seven-year association with "20th Century," on CBS-TV, Prudential put in a bid to ABC-TV for "Room For One More," a situation comedy, thus affirming a new urge for commercial programming.

ABC-TV is seriously considering putting the situationer into its Friday 7:30-8 p.m. opening in '61-'62. And while the Prudential deal for at least half and probably all of "Room" is not on paper yet, the network has already decided to go ahead and have Warner Bros. make 26 of the half-hours.

Ed Juris is going to produce "Room," with Andy Duggan and Peggy McKay filling the roles done in the feature-length original by Cary Grant and Betsy Drake.

Prudential is handled by the Reach, McClinton agency.

CBS Cracking Down on Execs, Key Employes In a Sweeping 'Conflict Of Interests' Ukase; Bans Posted

CBS has laid down a broad policy which forbids its employees to participate in activities or financial dealings which conceivably could result in a conflict of interests with their network posts. The network has also set up a conflict of Interests Committee headed by Ralph F. Colin to implement the policy.

Main injunctions set down in the policy apply to outside activities and ownership in companies competing with or doing business with CBS. The stock ownership rules also prevent CBS officers from holding stock in competing networks of their parents such as RCA and American Broadcasting-Paramount Theatres.

Beyond the general rule banning participation or ownership in companies competing with or doing business with CBS, the policy also forbids any executive or his immediate family from holding an interest in any organization operating a radio or tv station or network; the sale or manufacture of radio or tv transmitting or studio equipment; the production, sale or licensing or purchase of any radio or tv program or "any element thereof"; the music publishing business; the representation of radio or tv performers or recording artists; the station rep business; the ad agency business or the wholesale distribution of any products manufactured by CBS or its subsidiairies or which compete with those manufactured by CBS and its subsids.

Policy outline also prohibits "acceptance by any employee, or any member of his immediate family, of any commission, share in profits or other payments, loans (other than with established banking or financial institutions) services, entertainment and travel and gifts" from any organization or individual "doing, or seeking to do, business with or competing with, CBS or any of its subsidiaries." Also included in this ukase are companies engaged in the businesses mentioned above, but excepted are "the courtesies openly accepted and given as part of the usual business amenities."

Employees must also report holdings of listed stocks when they or their family own 1% or more of any class of securities of a single company, and when their holdings in a single company total more than $10,000 or 3% of the employee's gross assets. Officers of CBS Inc. and its divisions must report ownership, regardless of amount, of any stock they hold in companies competing with CBS or its subsids or engaged in any of the activities singled out above.

The conflicts of interest policy

(Continued on page 42)

'PHOOEY ON FOLEY SQ.'

WMCA's Nathan Straus In Editorial Swipe At N.Y. Memorials

New York indie radio station WMCA, which has taken some notable editorial stands before, last week took a hard poke at the city's memorials that stand "in recognition of the undistinguished and the notorious."

While urging the New York Board of Estimate and the City Council to set up a commission on memorials, WMCA board chairman Nathan Straus drew attention to Adele Rosenwald Levy, "a philanthropist, community leader, benefactor of the city's museums and a friend of the needy whose death last March was completely ignored by the city she served so well."

Straus pointed out that "honor has been accorded men quite undserving of immortality. We have Foley Square, named after a political hack of unsavory reputation, Hylan Boulevard named after a Mayor who was a monumental political joke . . . The Van Wyck Expressway honoring the first mayor of "Greater New York" (who) served in that capacity from 1898 to 1901 and was certainly one of the most despicable characters that ever disgraced the office."

GE Seen as Next To Climb Aboard TV Multichrome

Although it may probably be denied right now, understanding is General Electric will be the next major tv set manufacturer to go color. This follows Zenith's decision a couple of weeks ago to go in for multichrome sets.

The sundry electronics' bull market may be geared to this projection as a new multibillion industry could result from the mass production of color television sets, almost akin in size to the initial upsurge of tv into 50,000,000 American homes.

While RCA has been the trailblazer on color, the dealers have been an influence in urging the tooling up of all lines for tint tv since the U. S. market has been pretty well saturated by basic sets, auxiliary sets, and portable sets. Color looks to be the beginning of another new cycle of mass marketing with a profit margin of sizable proportions, and not the small ratio that came with the portables.

The dealers furthermore figure that competition will break the ice generally and (2) the competitive marketing also will be an important factor in bringing the price down below the $500 mark, more comparable to the black-and-white sets.

Ted Williams Mulls Weekly Show For TV

Boston, March 14.

Ted Williams is considering a weekly tv show, and has discussed the proposition with the principals, the same group now producing "Campy's Corner."

The proposition was brought to Williams by one of his closest friends in Boston, and did not come through Fred Corcoran, who has represented the former Red Sox star in other deals.

The deal, if consummated, it was reported, would not interfere with Williams' association with Sears Roebuck Co., or his activities as batting coach with the Red Sox.

ABC's Presidential TV Documentaries

ABC-TV is about to announce a series of 26 half-hour documentaries built around the name of a 20th Century American president. It'll be along the lines of the recent Churchill series that ABC has been showing Sunday nights.

Not only will the new half-hour telefilm skein (probably to be aired season after next or later) parallel the Churchill material but will undoubtedly concern an American president who was the British Prime Minister's contemporary.

Network will try to use Ben Feiner and Bob Graff, the production heads of Churchill, for the newer series. Incidentally, Churchill has been selling well abroad for ABC, with all the English-speaking countries now owning the property and deals in the works for several other lands.

THERE IS NOTHING AVERAGE ABOUT

All through 1960, advertisers reached 28 per cent more homes in the average commercial minute on the CBS Radio Network than on the second network...117 per cent more homes than on the third network ...120 per cent more homes than on the fourth. This year, with a new and expanded program schedule–more news, more information and

THE AVERAGE COMMERCIAL MINUTE

special features, more sports, plus the most popular personalities on any network—the CBS Radio audience lead promises to climb higher and higher. So whether you co-sponsor one five-minute show or buy a saturation campaign, there's nothing average about your average commercial minute

ON THE CBS RADIO NETWORK

SOURCE: NIELSEN RADIO INDEX, SPONSOR CUMULATIVE AUDIENCE SECTION, 12 FOUR-WEEK REPORTS, DECEMBER 7, 1959—DECEMBER 4, 1960.

Foreign Television Reviews

RASHOMON

With Yoko Tani, Lee Montague, Robert Hardy, Richard Pearson, Cyril Shaps, Hamilton Dyce, Roy Patrick, Hira Talfrey, Eileen Way

Producer: Rudolph Cartier
Writers: Fay & Michael Kanin
90 Mins., Fri., 9.10 p.m.
BBC-TV, from London

Based on the American legit version by Fay & Michael Kanin of tales by Japanese scribe Ryunosuke Akutagawa, "Rashomon" made a classy and enthralling dramatic offering in Rudolph Cartier's production for BBC-TV. Although the version necessarily suffered from comparison with Kurosawa's 10-year-old movie version, few viewers would have been in a position to weigh one against the other and what the play lost in idiomatic subtlety it compensated for with a story-line that was more straightforward and characterization more explicit.

Fundamentally, the piece is an investigation of the nature of truth, and the theme stands up, even though divorced from the original's satire at the expense of the samurai code. Wife of said samurai is raped, and her husband murdered, by a swaggering bandit. At least, this is one account of what happened. But is it true? The three protagonists—including the dead man, giving his evidence through a medium—provide their own accounts of what happened in flashback. Each story is intended to reveal what the teller wants, to put him or her in a good light. Finally, an uninvolved eyewitness, a woodcutter, caps the lies with his own report. But even this is suspect, for he has reason to hide his own theft of the samurai's sword.

Given the repetitious nature of the plot, producer Rudolph Cartier worked wonders with it. He was hampered by a rustic setting of Clifford Witts which never lost its air of manufacture, and by the Kanin adaptation, which let the temperature drop too long in the talking passages. But Cartier showed formidable brilliance with his cameras, and kept the development up to a fine tension and the thrills, when they came, had a startling impact.

Acting honors were carried off by Lee Montague, as the wild and woolly bandit, although he was probably ill-advised to imitate the lourish grunts of his predecessor in the movie. He made a powerful figure of the brawny simpleton, and his strength tend to throw the piece out of balance. Yoko Tani, a Japan-born actress based in Paris, was surprisingly inexpressive as the wife. She gave her a suburban air, kittenish and petulant, quite out of keeping with the heroic argument. Similarly, Robert Hardy didn't get over the traditional dignity of the husband, and so much of the force of the conflict between he and the bandit was lost. Adequate Western-Easterners were touched in by Richard Pearson, Cyril Shaps, and Hamilton Dyce, and it was a cogent decision to make the judge, before whom the witnesses tell their tale, invisible. Viewers could take his place.

In fact, "Rashomon" proved a triumph for Cartier, and compulsive viewing, despite drawbacks in all other departments. Otta.

THE BENNY HILL SHOW

With Benny Hill, Peter Vernon, Vivienne Martin, Jo Shelton, Ronnie Brody, Tom Clegg, the Leslie Roberts Silhouettes

Producer: John Street
Writer: Hill
45 Mins., Sat., 7:45 p.m.
BBC-TV, from London

Benny Hill, potentially one of the wittiest local funnymen, is inclined to fall short of his full capacity. Reason is that his satire doesn't fit snugly into the pattern of the song-and-dance show, and the barbs are blunted by the over-elaborate production. Although the same fault applied in this new monthly skein, Hill scored more hits than misses and he packs more surprises than most of his rivals.

His major line is mimicry of other tv shows and personalities and he raised a sturdy harvest of yocks with such items as his take-out of a German spy being interviewed on a news program, his deft imitation of Mantovani and his creamy strings, and a successful prefilmed sequence in which Hill played the parts of emcee, panel, and audience for "Juke Box Jury." His other entries in this vein included a British tourist in Russia showing his terrible movie record of the trip and a fake wrestler having an irrelevant conversation with his opponent whilst acting up the agony for the benefit of the customers. Both of these acts had their moments but were inclined to outstay their welcome.

The show was very much a one-man effort, but a couple of numbers were competently delivered by Jo Shelton and some pleasing visual interludes were provided by the Leslie Roberts Silhouettes, who manipulated circus objects against a black backdrop, thus giving the illusion of having no means of support. Roberts was also responsible for an agreeable ballet-type episode with a Brazilian flavor.

It was certainly an above-average vaude show which, despite John Street's safe production, didn't quite jell. Hill's main asset is that he can submerge his personality in a host of comic cameos, but a show of this kind needs the performer's own individuality to be imposed on all the bits and pieces. Otta.

THE PLAY OF THE GREEN TABLE

With Yousef Wahbi, Arminah Riseg, Hassan Baroudy, Nazim Shaarawi, Abdul Badre Arabi, Mohamed Abazah

Producer: Wahbi
Writer: Wahbi
Director: Mahmoud Sabbaa
80 Mins.: Fri., 11 p.m.
Television Cairo

This one had been awaited with great anticipation. Araby's most distinguished and celebrated theatre and cinema actor and writer, after testing the temperature a couple of times, was diving into the chilly waters of the 21 in. screen. He was attempting a triple jack knife as he produced, wrote and starred. As the producer, he saw that the opus was handsomely mounted, and assembled a cast of noted players headed by himself. Sharing top thesp honors with him was Mme. Arminan Resig, distaff box office draw. Unfortunately, he hit the drink before he completed the third jack knife.

Briefly, the yarn was of a man who gambled away everything he owned and finally signed away the house belonging to his wife. While blowing the last of his bundle, his wife caught up with him in the gambling palace, chided him and slipped him the news that his sick son had died. The villain (the gambling palace proprietor, natch) had the wife in his clutches. The husband shot him and went to the clink where it was reported he died. The wife remarried, "a fine man," who helped raise the other two kids and "gave them his name." They never knew he was not their real father.

Fifteen years later the husband turned up. He escaped from the pokey, turned smuggler, and was a wanted man. He wanted to see the wife and kids, in fact wanted them back. The son had grown up and become a cop. He was looking for this notorious bad man and nabbed him on the spot. It was a touching scene as, unknowingly, the son toted his own father to his doom. To add a little spice to the pudding there were a couple of suicides and a trollop who "was as good as anyone." From scratch, and all through the story, the father was weak and full of remorse and self pity. How he ever got his big job and accumulated all the dough he lost was a mystery.

The big-time cast used every trick in the book, but the percentages were against them.

On his record Mr. Wahbi should do a lot better next time up. Bowr.

LINE OF ENQUIRY

With Mervyn Johns, Raymond Huntley, Scott Forbes, Heather Chasen, Iris Russell, Noel Howlett, Loelia Kidd, Fred Ferris, Meadows White, Margaret Wolfit, Susan Richards, Harvey Hall, Kenneth Edwards, Deering Wells

Producer: Stephen Harrison
Writer: H. A. Wood
45 Mins., Thurs., 7:55 p.m.
BBC-TV, from Scotland

BBC-TV is making quite a feature of mid-week plays, under the usual length, and with a strong documentary flavor. One such was H. A. Wood's "Line of Enquiry," which took place entirely in the court-room of the medical profession. Under investigation was a doctor, accused of unprofessional neglect of one of his patients.

A man had died before he could bring the complaint himself, but his widow (Heather Chasen) still pursued the matter. She had once been the fiancee of the doctor (Scott Forbes), and accused him of improper advances towards her while she was under his medical care, in addition to deliberate delaying hospital aid to her husband, suffering from hemophilia.

The two sides to the argument were placidly displayed by the opposing counsels (Mervyn Johns and Raymond Huntley). It seemed a case of blank contradictions, without much support from independent witnesses. Still, circumstances seemed to point to the doctor's guilt, and the investigating committee decided against him.

Then came the final twist. The doctor's mouthpiece had heard the widow claim that she'd telephoned the medico for help and then fainted without replacing the receiver. But the doctor had made a phone call soon afterwards. With the British phone system, he couldn't have done so if the woman's tale was correct, for her phone would still have been connected to his and he couldn't make any outside calls. This was effectively proved, and the doctor was acquitted.

In fact, it was a fair, if low-temperature, whodunit, hindered by flat and stereotyped dialog and thin characterization. Little demand was made on the thesps, and Mervyn Johns, Raymond Huntley, Heather Chasen, and Scott Forbes filled the bill. Stephen Harrison produced safely. Otta.

WIFE AND SECRETARY

With Sanaa Gamil, Salah Sarhan, Karimah Mukhtar, Azizah Hilmi
Writer: Ihsan Abdul Kuddous
Director: Mahmoud Moursi
60 Mins.: Fri., 10 p.m.
Television Cairo

"Wife and Secretary" suggests the time-worn triangle, but it proved to be a psychological character study of a woman deeply in love with her husband. She resented his attention to his business and focused this resentment on the secretary. The secretary was one of those not-quite-plain-Janes who loved her job and the responsibility the boss entrusted to her, and which she handled efficiently. She worked hard and late and frequently called him at home to report or get decisions. The boss talked to this jewel with affection, and that, plus the fact that the business could have his attention 24 hours a day, which she couldn't triggered the wife's jealous explosion. The husband not only knew how to handle his business, but, in the big blow-off, how to handle his adored wife. It all ended well, adult throughout, with no soap opera hysterics or histrionics.

Ihsan Abdul Kuddous' script was a good one and the cast didn't let him down. Sanaa Gamil, as his wife, garnered understanding and sympathy all the way. Her apology to the secretary was a gem. Salah Sarhan, as the husband, and Karimah Mukhtar, as the secretary, gave Miss Gamil good support. Miss Mukhtar embroidered a lot of delightful detail into the part of the efficient secretary.

Mahmoud Moursi can take a bow for his handling of the cameras, particularly the montage of the office and home life of the husband which delineated the mounting tension culminating in the wife's blow-off. The musical scoring was excellent. Bowr.

RUF ZUR LEIDENSCHAFT
(Cue For Passion)

With Gisela Uhlen, Ingmar Zeisberg, Else Ehser, Wolfgang Buettner, Hartmut Reck, Max Eckard, Horst Beilke, G. Richter

Director: John Olden Writer: Elmer Rice
85 Mins.; Sun.; 8:05 p.m.
West-German TV, from Hamburg

This is the type of show that keeps practically everyone on the edge of his seat. It had suspense, an intelligent plot, good dialog, and impressive acting. It's a German vidpic production that must be rated above-average in quality.

"Cue For Passion" was another latter-day version of Hamlet cleverly written by American Elmer Rice. The Prince of the story was a young engineer who, after having worked overseas, returned to his California home where he accused his stepfather of having murdered his father. Justice wasn't meted out by brute force, but the young lad was convinced that his stepfather would pay a price for his vicious deed some day.

Director John Olden proved again that he has a feel for intelligent suspense. He also knows how to lead the players to fine performances. Perhaps the most memorable performances were turned in by still very attractive (she was a top German screenstar in the early 40s) Gisela Uhlen in the role of the mother, Wolfgang Buettner as the stepfather and Ingmar Zeisberg as the girl. Hartmut Reck was occasionally a bit too impulsive as the young lad but still contributed a promising performance. Max Eckard and Else Ehser filled their roles in their usual dependable manner. The setting deserved a special word of praise and Guy Sheppard, a noted British cameraman, did a fine lensing job. Hans.

DIE NASHOERNER
(Rhinoceros)

With Bernhard Wicki, Ursula Lingen, Max Mairich, Joachim Teege, Horst Beilke, Max Noack, Alice Treff, Traute Rose, Ralf Wanka, others

Director: Gustav R. Sellner
Writer: Eugene Ionesco
Music: Peter Zwetkoff
West German TV, from Baden-Baden (film)

Of all the European avantgarde playwrights, Romanian-born Frenchman, Eugene Ionesco, is undoubtedly the most widely known among German theatre clientele. His comedy-drama, "Rhinoceros," garnered both enthusiastic pros and passionate cons but can be acclaimed a big commercial click. It is also one of the foreign stage works that have been most performed within the past two years in this country. There is no denying that many of those who normally don't go for avantgarde stuff find Ionesco's creations at least never dull and "quite funny."

Still it required some courage to present this play on television for the bulk of the German tv public is certainly not interested in seeing such challenging and aggressive shows. The reaction of the public was about as expected, ranging from "genius" to "amusing" to "such nonsense!" However, there is no doubt about the production itself; it deserved the highest compliments.

It was also a triumph for Gustaf Rudolf Sellner, one of Germany's most profilic stage directors, who did a masterful job. The lensing and other technical credits also proved of high quality.

The cast was headed by Bernhard Wicki (his tv debut) in the role of Behringer, the little man who represented individuality and human dignity and who was not willing to join the common herd. Very good also were Max Mairich as his quarrelsome friend Hans and Joachim Teege as an office clerk. There were some delightfully scurrilous studies and scenes in this show but it forced mediation and actually gave some evidence of how poor and helpless the human creature fundamentally is. Hans.

YOUR LIFE IN THEIR HANDS

Producer: Bill Duncalf
30 Mins.; Wed., 9 p.m.
BBC-TV, from London

BBC-TV brought back this series after a previous success with it. Its object is to introduce laymen to medical discoveries and practices, and thus inspire confidence. The twist in the current skein, due for six weekly airings, is that each stanza is devoted to a single teaching hospital. Here it was Charing Cross Hospital, and two of its surgeons gave a lucid explanation of the state of research into gallstones. This was followed by an actual operation, pre-filmed and edited, in which an elderly patient's gall-bladder was excavated in full view. Although this might have turned a stomach or two, it proved a highly valuable and reassuring experience for those who could take it.

A calm commentary showed the viewer around the woman's liver, her bile, and the general workings of her lower abdomen. It was comforting to know, at the end of it all, that the knife-work had been right on the ball and she was now walking about, stones lighter.

Full praise is due the measured tread of Bill Duncalf's production. The only slight quibble was that the introductory matter, although kept as clear as possible, was perhaps a bit burdened with science for the uninitiated. Otta.

Foreign TV Followups

Play of the Week

Associated-Rediffusion networked the Anglia TV production of Evelyn Ford's "Hell Hath No Fury" for this "Play of the Week" stanza. It turned out to be a probe of an unhappy marriage, with more appeal to viewers on the distaff side than to the male gender.

Margaret (Phyllis Calvert), a woman in her early 40's, was consumed with a raging and unsatisfied passion. An illegitimate child, she'd grown up loveless and badgered, under the care of an unfeeling step-father. She'd married a stern, dispassionate and stolid husband (Griffith Jones), who merely wanted a quiet life without emotional upheavals.

The piece kicked off with a prolonged diatribe against the husband's shortcomings, delivered by the wife with nagging fury. And this set the tone for the 90 minutes, during which Margaret let fly at the placid spouse, got drunk before a vital dinner-party for bigwigs from his firm, and generally behaved as if she had a raging demon inside her.

Trouble with the situation was that it didn't develop, and it rested entirely on character. Although the writer harked back to the past to explain the present, she didn't manage to rouse much sympathy for either of them, chiefly because she repeated herself throughout at monotonous length.

By the play allowed, within its limits, some remarkable thesping by Phyllis Calvert as the tortured wife. She produced some formidable tantrums and clinched the woman's plight exactly. Griffith Jones seemed unhappy as the besieged husband, and gave a wooden display of long-suffering endurance without much variation. Minor parts were unadventurously played.

George More O'Ferrall embedded the play in a dull framework, with little place and less invention. As a study in the marriage of opposites, it had its points, but what made it stick was Miss Calvert's performance. Otta.

Television Playhouse

ATV's entry for this "Television Playhouse" was a slight and somewhat unbalanced deep-South anecdote by Horton Foote, "The Summer's Pride." Gist was that Martha (Susannah Yorke) had fallen for a feckless and unsuitable young man, and her parents had refused permission to marry, and all further contact. Consequently, she'd taken to her room to huddle her grief. But her mother (Joan Newell) found out that the daughter had

(Continued on page 50)

Tele Follow-Up Comment

Ed Sullivan Show

The shamrock was in full bloom on Ed Sullivan's tv'er over CBS last Sunday (12). It was his annual salute to St. Patrick's Day and Sullivan brought out his landsmen in full force to help pay tribute to the Emerald Isle. Although it was strictly a one-sided affair, there was enough diversity in song and dance to give it a well-rounded one-hour scope.

Helping swing the old shallelagh were Tammy Grimes with a medley from "Finian's Rainbow," the Clancy Bros. & Tom Makem with some nifty folk items, Brenden O'Dowda with more Irish folk stuff but in a more romantic vein, Pat O'Brien with some stories, Helen Kane with an old and updated treatment of "The Song of the Kerry Dancers," Mary O'Hara with a lilting voice to a self-accompanied harp, some fifing gals and dancing boys and girls, and Henny Youngman. Latter was there to take a bow from the aud and get a plug for his current stint at the Persian Room of N. Y.'s Hotel Plaza.

Miss Grimes, who's bowed out of several scheduled tv guest shots in the past several months, came off in fine form with "How Are Things In Glocca Morra," "Something Sort of Grandish" and "Look To The Rainbow." Sullivan, however, was at fault in the intro. His sole credit for "Finian's" score was given to Yip Harpburg who wrote the music. Mention should have been made of Burton Lane's lyric contribution.

The Clancys & Tom Makem and singer Brenden O'Dowda have the map of Ireland written all over their faces and the proper lilt in their voices to get the message across in no uncertain terms. Pat O'Brien, too, is a lad from the old sod, and his collection of stories, although of vintage crop, was appealing. Helen Kane, however, didn't come off too well with her "Kerry" stint. Jazzing it up didn't have much point. Gros.

Play of the Week

"The Play of the Week" has put together a short Gallic cycle. Following last week's production of Sartre's "No Exit," this WNTA-TV series is currently staging an obscure, but arresting work by Emile Zola, "Therese Raquin," adapted from one of his novels and presented in an English translation by Kathleen Boutall. The Zola play, moreover, turned out to be the dramaturgic uncle of "No Exit" in its hermetically sealed atmosphere and its dissection of the terror of guilt and the tragedy of loveless-ness.

"Therese Raquin" unfolds at a deliberate, and sometimes ponderous pace until a climactic burst of furious hate charges it with a tremendous wallop in the concluding sequence. Set in a drab petty bourgoeis household, the yarn is one of adulterous love, murder and retribution. The title character and her lover, after disposing of her husband in a planned accident, find their passion poisoned by guilt after they marry. Their ultimate punishment is to live under the accusing stare of the dead man's mother who is frozen into a permanent apoplexy upon her chance discovery of the crime.

A superlative cast performs this drama with a cumulating intensity. As Therese Raquin, Anne Meacham plays a neurotic edge that cuts to the center of the role. As the mother, Eva LeGallienne handles her transformation from a simple woman into an avenging fury with complete conviction. Mark Richman is excellent as the lover as is Alvin Epstein, as the victim. Solid support is contributed by Donald McKee, Philip Coolidge and Joyce Bulifant as friends of the family. Bill Penn directs the Jack Kuney production. Herm.

Youth Forum

NBC's Merrill (Red) Mueller was the target of the Columbia U's Scholastic Press Assn. on Dorothy Gordon's Youth Forum Sunday (12) noon, and it would appear that the broadcasting pros were shadowboxing with the too realistic questions from the panel and audience. One particularly bright young man, although the perspicacity evidenced on most of these youth quiz shows is always amazing, was particularly savvy on prime time, FCC restrictions, and the general shortcomings vis-a-vis the proposition under discussion: "How Important Is An Informed Public Opinion?"

This is a loaded question, especially when two broadcasting protagonists are under fire from uninhibited and seemingly well informed youth; and while Miss Gordon was a shade coy, Mueller recognized the wisdom and validity of some of the disturbing points. Nor did he fully satisfy the panel—and the viewers—when he reiterated that "programs for the kind of audience influence the time-slot." This was in answer as to why must Sunday noon, or thereabouts, be the only available time for such discussion programs—the old "intellectual ghetto" complaint although he did point up that both radio and tv were making more time available for expanded news and information programs in broader reception periods. However, he was frank to add that "sponsorship availabilities" are a determining factor.

Mueller walked a tight rope in some spots but stressed sufficiently that news was never slanted if betimes too neutral, differing from the press which, in many instances, does have a firm pro- or anti-political attitude, and that is tantamount to pre-conditioning, hence is fraught with being quasi-censorial, whereas the straight news did afford that "freedom of opinion." Abel.

OUR AMERICAN HERITAGE
(The Secret Rebel)
With Hugh O'Brian, Howard St. John, Jack Collins, Betty Miller, Gerald O'Loughlin, others; Lowell Thomas, narrator
Producer: Mildred Freed Alberg
Director: Alex Segal
Writer: Mann Rubin
30 Mins., Sat. (11), 9:30 p.m.
EQUITABLE
NBC-TV (tape)
(Foote, Cone & Belding)

One way to try and meet the competition of Richard Boone ("Have Gun, Will Travel") on Saturday nights is to hire Hugh O'Brian, so producer Mildred Freed Alberg hired Hugh O'Brian. Then she gave him a starring vehicle called "The Secret Rebel" about a little known hero of the Revolutionary War. Suspicion is it was more fiction than fact, derring-do, too.

O'Brian played John Honeyman, an Irishman from New Jersey who befriended the Hessian mercenaries of Philadelphia to pave the way for Washington's victory against them. He flipped guys over his shoulders in the best judo tradition (which, it is believed, is a rather newer one this side of the Atlantic than the war of '76), broke jail and was a general cut-up. To round out the story, writer Mann Rubin had him suffer considerable post-war indignities at the hands of his fellow Americans who still suspected him of being a Tory. General George showed up to exonerate the hero at just the moment the boys were heating the tar and feathers.

O'Brian is a good actor, so is Betty Miller who essayed his wife, but Rubin gave her a role that was of pure glycerin base. If this be our heritage, we can thank "Wyatt Earp" more than the American Revolution. Art.

ABC MIDDAY REPORT
With Al Mann
Director: Marshal Diskin
Writer: Mann
5 Mins.; Mon.-Fri., 1:25 p.m.
ABC-TV, from N. Y.

ABC-TV has moved to fill a daytime gap in the web schedule by slotting a Monday-through-Friday five-minute news show at 1:25 p.m. The allotted time really allowed only a brief resume of headline news, but within its time limitations, the show, as sampled Thurs. (9), proved to be a well done news turn.

ABC correspondent, Al Mann, handled the news narration competently. The still pictures of personalities in the news were supplemented by fresh footage of major events. On Thursday, the footage concerned the Commonweath conference as well as other doings. Show throughout was kept fluid and interesting, winding up with the traditional news "kicker" cutie. Horo.

DOUBLE EXPOSURE
With Steve Dunne, host
Producer: Bob Quigley
Director: Jerome Shaw
30 Mins., Mon.-thru-Fri., 11 a.m.
PARTICIPATING
CBS-TV, from Hollywood

"Double Exposure," one of three new CBS daytime shows which debuted this week, is one of the silliest, most vapid exercises in pointlessness to come down the daytime pike in some time. Its total activity consists of peeling off the jigsaw pieces of a picture, one at a time, with two contestants vying to identify the photo first.

The twist, such as it is, stems from the CBS edict to keep prizes on the new quizzers at a nominal figure. In this case, each time a contestant picks a jigsaw segment to peel off, a varying amount of money or a prize flashes on a board under the designated number of the segment. If the money aggregates to $100 or more, the contestant loses the game. Fact is, the only excitement that generates in the show is the game-of-chance factors attending the value of the segment and the contestant's standing as to money won.

But that's hardly enough to compensate for the inherent boredom engendered by the game. Steve Dunne tries to compensate as host and does fairly well, though some of his chatter with the contestants has the look of being prepared beforehand. "Double Exposure" is a Quigley-Heatter package; they did far better with their first outing, "Video Village." Chan.

YOUR SURPRISE PACKAGE
With George Fenneman, emcee; others
Exec Producer: Al Singer
Producer: Allan Sherman
Director: Hal Cooper
30 Mins.; Mon.-Fri. 11:30 a.m.
PARTICIPATING
CBS-TV, from H'wood

CBS-TV on a daytime game kick, introing three new shows in that genre, has a serviceable entry in "Your Surprise Package." Show has humor, simple rules, some skill attached to winning, and an okay emcee in George Fenneman.

Whether audiences can digest so many game shows in the daytime is another question but for a light, frivolous half-hour Monday's (13) preem was fun.

Format of the show was derivative of so many other game shows. There was a surprise package behind the three contestants. The surprise package was exposed on screen and the contestants vied in guessing what the surprise was on the basis of a variety of clues. Each question cost the contestants some money, as did the guesses. Most expensive prize was a stereo hi-fi set. The dollar winnings were modest.

Fenneman, the announcer-foil of "The Groucho Marx" show, played his emcee role in a comparatively low key, a welcome relief from the over exuberant, laugh-it-up emcee type. Contestants were selected with an eye for humor, appeal and game wit. Horo.

PRIVATE EYE, PRIVATE EYE
(U.S. Steel Hour)
With Ernie Kovacs, Edie Adams, Pat Carroll, Hans Conreid, others; Charles Sanford orch
Producer: Max Liebman
Director: Barry Shear
Writers: Will Glickman, Sydney Zelinka, Lucille Kallen, Bill Brown
60 Mins., Wed. (8). 10 p.m.
U.S. STEEL
CBS-TV (tape)
(BBDO)

It was good to have Ernie Kovacs back in his proper television milieu, if only for a night. For while Kovacs has a weekly ABC-TV show, that's largely a waste of his talent; this U.S. Steel special was more like what Kovacs has been and should be on tv.

"Private Eye, Private Eye" was another of Max Liebman's thematic musical revue specials for U.S. Steel; thanks to the presence of Kovacs and some sharp and inventive comedy writing, it was a solidly entertaining hour of the type you don't see much anymore.

Rapid-fire satires on television's private eye shows formed the premise, and scripters Will Glickman, Syd Zelinka, Lucille Kallen and Bill Brown came up with a couple of goodies, particularly the windup "Nick Carter" segment, a spoof of silent pix private eyes in the "master of disguise" genre. It was

(Continued on page 50)

FACE THE FACTS
With Red Rowe, others
Producers: Irving Mansfield, Peter Arnell
Director: Joseph Behar
Writer: Dave Greggory
30 Mins., Mon.-Fri., 2 p.m.
PARTICIPATING
CBS-TV, from Hollywood

Irving Mansfield, who has been through the production wars with many successful shows, has tandemed with Peter Arnell on what seems an attempt to be different in the field of giveaways. It takes some embryonic Blackstone training to come out on top of this, but there's enough to interest the thinking layman. The layout has an interesting conception. Actors portray a plaintiff and defendant, reciting a given set of facts based on an actual case. A panel of individuals then makes a judgment after betting a specified number of points. Winners have to get the highest number of points.

The show, on its initial session, gags up the proceedings, perhaps to suit the daytime listener, and the reasons for selection are similarly satirized. However, a listener and a participant gain some useful legal knowledge in the process.

On the initial show Monday (13), three cases were heard. The first involved a botched job by a beauty salon operator, second, a wrestler who claimed he was libeled, and the third involved a storekeeper who posted a reward for the apprehension of shoplifters. A lot of the points made could be useful to the layman and there are moments of amusement as well, even though they're too contrived at times.

The conferencier is Red Rowe, an amiable chap who handles the proceedings smoothly. The show has minimal production gimmicks and can hold its own on the daytime spectrum. Jose.

THE RED MYTH
Producer-Director: Gerald Marans
Writer: Richard Moore
60 Mins. (7), 7 p.m.
KQED, San Francisco

This joint KQED-National Educational Television project is a good example of why commercial tv stations still have little to fear from the ETV outlets.

The particular segment viewed of this series dedicated to "exposing" the Red, or Communist, myth concentrated on the Comintern after the founding of the third Communist International. It combined stills, "action" dramatized by Frisco's Actor's Workshop and explanatory monologues delivered by Witold Sworakowski, assistant director of Stanford U. Hoover institution on War, Revolution and Peace.

Of the show's three sectors, the still photos were the most interesting and most informative, which tells considerable about the rest of the show.

The Actor's Workshop "dramatizations"—with such actors as Maurice Argent (Lenin) and Tom Rosqui (Trotzky)—were mostly long, dull spiels of Communist ideology, interspersed by occasional crowd cheers. And the actors were all made up to look like heavies in a turn-of-the-century melodrama (has there never been a clean-shaven Communist?).

But Sworakowski, the show's historical consultant, was even worse, because he has an almost impenetrable Russian accent which, incidentally, contrasted amusingly with the elocution-type English of the actors who played the Bolshevik leaders. Further, Sworakowski added nothing in the way of depth or historical perspective to the dramatized scenes—this was a fault which probably can be blamed on writer Richard Moore.

The basic troubles with this whole project seem to be:

1. The history of Communism is not simply a history of deception but also a story of the interplay of massive human forces.

2. Without showing this interplay penetratingly all that is left is a cardboard caricature of Communism, which bears very little relation to Communism's true character.

3. What the Communists say is much less important than what they do, and therefore devoting great chunks of time to static quotes from Lenin, Trotzsky, Stalin, et al., is pretty silly.

4. That is, the method should be reversed, as it would be in a true documentary, with the bulk of the film concentrated on action bulwarked by relatively few-well-chosen words. Stef.

O'HALLORAN'S LUCK
(Chevy Hour)
With Art Carney, Barbara Cook, Bil Baird's Marionettes, Ward Donovan, Dan Keyes, John McGovern, Pat Harrington Sr., Grania O'Malley; Henri Rene, music director
Producer: Perry Cross
Director: Marc Daniels
Writer: A. J. Russell
Music & Lyrics: David Saxon, Diane Lampert, Peter Farrow
60 Mins., Sun. (12) 9 p.m.
CHEVROLET
NBC-TV (tape)
(Campbell-Ewald)

It would have taken more than a leprechaun or a truckload of fourleaf clovers to lift "O'Halloran's Luck" out of its trough of tv banality. This teleplay by A. J. Russell (based on a story by Stephen Vincent Benet), with an original musical score, was inserted into the Sunday 9 to 10 hour on NBC-TV as a Chevy musical salute to St. Patrick's Day. St. Pat should have chased out the leprechauns instead of snakes. The missing Dinah never loomed finah.

The wonder is that such august teleminds as Russell, director Marc Daniels, producer Perry Cross or exec producer Henry Jaffe could have lent their collaborative asset to such amateurism. And more's the pity that such punishment was inflicted on so much sterling talent as Art Carney, Barbara Cook and Bil Baird's Marionettes (as leprechauns and water sprites). The fault was hardly theirs that it came off as a maudlin, trite hour effort, almost totally devoid of spirit or exuberance.

It failed to either emulate the warmth or capture the mood of a "Finian's Rainbow." Rather, it retreated into the mawkish musical-operetta era with implausible railroad gangs swinging their papier mache hammers amid colorful railroad ties, like so many "Student Prince" chorus boys.

A couple of worthy tunes, abetted by professional lyrics, popped up at unexpected moments, notably a ballad about "cheeks for your roses," suggesting brighter show biz vistas for David Saxon's music and the Diane Lampert-Peter Farrow lyrics. Otherwise the story of O'Halloran and his scullery maid and how a railroad construction worker, with the aid of his scheming leprechaun, rose to be president of the line, was woefully lacking in anything approximately inspirational quality or even professional skill. Rose.

PROSPECTS OF MANKIND
(The Peace Corps)
With Eleanor Roosevelt, panel
Executive Producer: Henry Morgenthau III
Producer-Director: Paul Nobel
60 Min., Sat. (11) 8 p.m.
WTTG-TV, Washington

Proof that a tired format can come to life under proper circumstances was seen in the current "Prospects of Mankind" show unveiling the Peace Corps.

There is nothing new about a group of experts discussing a global subject. But the viewer never lost interest in this production because the moderator, Eleanor Roosevelt, is a skilled let's-not-waste-a-word performer (and who understands better than Mrs. R what the prospects of mankind are?). The peace corps itself is an exciting idea which has just begun to be discussed. And the White House threw in an extra bouquet, not only when President Kennedy appeared on the program to introduce it, but when it hurried up the announcement date of the corps and its new head, R. Sargent Shriver, so he could appear on the show. Never underestimate the power of educational television!

Shriver proved an authoritative voice who is well aware of the problems and the potentials of unleasing 500 post-juveniles around the world.

Three other experts — Sen. Hubert Humphrey (D.-Minn.), author of the bill creating the corps; Senteca Kajubi, whose East African nation will be the first peace corps test tube; and Professor Samuel Hayes of the University of Michigan—kept the subject hopping.

Camera close-ups of the subjects were good, but it was the airing of an existing idea by the people who are in a position to execute it that kept viewers on edge.

After an hour the feeling was "Tell me more." What else can a show ask? Liz.

PETER GRAVES

outstandingly successful in selling sponsors' products for General Foods Corporation and The Borden Company, Inc.

NOW AVAILABLE IN PERSON

to WHIPLASH national or regional sponsors for filming or recording commercials for merchandising and product support of his freshly completed action-adventure series

WHIPLASH

INDEPENDENT TELEVISION CORPORATION
488 Madison Avenue • New York 22, N.Y. • PLaza 5-2100
100 University Avenue • Toronto 1, Ontario • EMpire 2-1166

I T C

Those Mock MD's and Phony Pill Pushers Again Under TV Scrutiny —On Other Madison Ave. Fronts

By BILL GREELEY

That elusive tv pill pusher, "the man in white," is about to be chased again, this time by broadcasting's own cops.

Industry thought it had him collared a few years back, but the phony medic merely slipped out of his white jacket and has kept up the pitch.

New York Code Office, set up last August by the National Assn. of Broadcasters to o.o. tele blurbs and their makers, is going to recommend tightening of NAB's Television Code in hopes of dropping a net over the mock MD.

Recommendation will be made by Stockton Helffrich, head of the New York office, to NAB's Television Code Review Board when it meets in Washington in April or May.

The video quack was chased temporarily by the tv code regulation that covers dramatized appeals: "Dramatized advertising involving statements or purported statements by physicians, dentists, or nurses must be presented by accredited members of such professions." American Medical Assn. gave an assist when it banned all such endorsement by members. Word was that a couple of nostrum ad agencies were seeking doctors and dentists in Canada to give the pitch, but apparently none was signed.

But with the stethescope and MD jacket eliminated, patent medicine advertisers and their agencies have come up with subtler gimmickry that still leaves little doubt as to what kind of a professional man is the authority in the blurb. As Helffrich puts it, "it's now the setting and office props that give off a feeling of endorsement."

Helffrich doesn't specify, but the main concern of the office is apparently with such blurbs as the one for Anacin (Whitehall Labs), in which an actor, with a hippocratic glint in his eye, tells an off-camera questioner that three out of four doctors recommend the "ingredients" in Anacin for cold suffering. Anacin agency, Ted Bates, calls for "Doctor Types" in its casting notices, and the guy with the face like the friendly nabe GP makes the answer for 75% of the medical profession as though he took a vote at the last AMA confab.

It's going to take some strong code revision to nab this well-greased thinking man and his many contemporaries. Code Review Board, made up of seven execs from subscribing stations, must first approve the revisions, then the NAB board of directors votes them in.

Meanwhile, Helffrich can put out guides for code stations on acceptance of patent medicine blurbs, and can try to negotiate personally with agency execs in an attempt to amicably finger the jacketless medicos.

One thing going for the codesters is the new interest of stations in code compliance re FCC's tougher policy on license renewals. Of the flock of stations that resigned the code (and its seal of approval when Preparation H blurbs (out of Bates) were on the firing line, only two haven't rejoined.

Aside from medical pitches and toy blurbs which also will be up for study at the next Board session, Helffrich's office has functioned harmoniously in dealings with advertisers and agencies. A third of the major tv agencies (and a total of about 50 shops) have consulted with the office in its eight months of operation. Copy lines and storyboards have been cleared, primarily as regards spot campaigning because of the three networks' own acceptance setups. Office has corrected and advised on cigaret, cosmetic, weight-control and other blurbs.

Helffrich, incidentally, cites the "superb" job done by Metrical (Kenyon & Eckhardt) in the area of weight-reducing products.

N&G 30th Anni

Needham & Grohmann, agency specializing in hotel and travel accounts, celebrated its 30th anni with a fling in the Rainbow Grill at 30 Rockefeller Plaza.

H. Victor Grohmann, agency prexy and one of the founders, announced that employees would get a $30 bonus for every year with the shop plus half a month's salary (all 14 members of the exec staff have been with the agency for five years or more, and three have put in 25).

Agency reps the worldwide Hilton chain and other major hotels and resorts along with clients in other fields and has had 13 of its clients for more than 20 years; 21 for 15 years; 27 for more than 10 years; and 45 for more than five.

Up and down: James C. Douglass, administrative veepee, member of the exec committee and a director of Ted Bates agency, exits in April to form his own consulting firm. James Douglass Co. will be set up to advise companies on international operations, especially as regards the legal, corporate and tax aspects of marketing and advertising, and will have offices in New York and Geneva, Switzerland. Douglass has been in charge of Bates' international operations and a director of the agency's British and Canadian subsidiaries.

Robert Margulies, formerly production commercial supervisor on Brown & Williamson at Ted Bates, has been upped to veepee in charge of commercial broadcast production.

John A. Kellogg, formerly with Forbes Marketing Research, has joined the Center for Research in Marketing, Peekskill, N. Y., as v.p. and board member.

Mel Sokolow, promotion rep of the mag's New York edition, has been named promotion manager of the mid-Atlantic region for Tv Guide. He succeeds Diana Stark, resigned.

With the Station Reps

Studebaker-Lark, via D'Arcy agency's New York office, has notified reps of several cancellations in its January buy of 116 stations for the video half-hour comedy, "Mr. Ed," featuring a talking horse.

Slump in car sales has scuttled a good part of the unusual syndication buy that saw the car company placing the show in co-op with dealers and dealer associations. Studebaker-Lark, which bought the show from Filmways, placed it according to an assessment per unit sold, and sales in several cities have been too light to pay out on the dealer end of the project.

So far notice has been given in the South Bend, Ind., and Detroit "dealer zones," with the exception of Chicago. Windy City buy is reportedly saved by a firm commitment for 26 weeks which D'Arcy had to make to get a satisfactory time period. Most stations are subject to a four-week cancellation agreement, which will close out the show in the affected markets in three more weeks.

Word is that the agency is trying to keep "Mr. Ed" talking through a barter deal with the affected stations. Studebaker-Lark would retain a part of the commercial time and turn over the rest to the stations for local sale.

Briefs: Katz reppery hasn't lost its sense of humor over the slump in car billings. Suggestion has gone to all Katz repped tv stations to use a special ID slide for St. Patrick's Day (17): "Tis Channel O'4 You're Watchin'" . . . Radio Advertising Bureau reports that American women spend 943,000,000 hours annually in the nation's 110,000 beauty shops, and six out of 10 of the shops have radios going that the customers can hear . . . Ted Bates agency has three new execs in media: Harry Torp, formerly with Grant; John Scanlan, formerly with Benton & Bowles; and Edward Kobza, formerly with Kenyon & Eckhart . . . Avery-Knodel has a new study of the LaCrosse, Wis., market.

Sammons Exits Bates As Pubrelations Chief

Ted Bates veepee in charge of publicity and public relations, Frank Sammons Jr., who joined the agency nine months ago, has resigned. He had been brought in to replace Benson Inge, who had been with Bates for 19 years.

Sammons sudden departure reportedly followed a falling out with agency chairman Rosser Reeves. Understood Reeves took issue with the way the pubrelations department exploited his opus on the modus operandi of the hardsell pitch, "Reality in Advertising." Book was initially widely distributed in Madison Ave. circles with a "confidential" tag on the cover, and is now set for publication next month via Knopf (Douglas Elgin, ad chief of Socony, publicly announced that Reeves' book was a prime mover in the recent switch of the oil firm's, $6,000,000 biz from Compton to Bates).

Sammons came to Bates after several years at J. Walter Thompson.

ABC, NBC News To Put Mucho Stress On 'Latino Beat'

ABC and NBC news departments have decided to concentrate more fulltime men in South America—the coming hotspot in the eyes of the international journalistic set.

The ABC announcement of a permanent news bureau in Buenos Aires under Robert N. Lindley came yesterday (Tues.), two days after NBC announced a "major expansion in S.A., but both decisions were acutally made days earlier.

NBC becomes the first tv web with three fully staffed news bureaus south of the border, one in Rio de Janeiro, another in Buenos Aries and a third already going in Havana. Moves followed NBC prexy Bob Kintner's two-week swing through S.A.

Wilson and Lee Hall will handle Rio and Kenneth Bernstein will headquarter in Buenos Aires. Richard Valeriani is quitting the AP Havana bureau to rehouse for NBC, thereby giving the web its third regular there in very few months, others having run into trouble with the Castro government.

The Buenos Aires assignment for Lindley marks ABC news chief Jim Hagerty's first major foreign assignment since taking over in later January. Lindley had been in BA for NBC. NBC decision to shift its travelling team of the Halls to BA is obviously tied to Lindley's switch from NBC to ABC in the same city.

What Kind of Season?

Continued from page 25

shows. In effect that meant doing it the hard way.

The Nielsens tell the story—eight CBS shows in the Top 10; among the year's top 10 new shows, CBS has six ("Candid," "Andy Griffith," "Pete & Gladys," "Checkmate," "Route 66," "Bringing Up Buddy"); on average audience ratings for all shows CBS is out in front with 21.4; ABC second with 19.4 and NBC third with 18.2. On half-hour wins (in a study spanning the entire season thus far) CBS is out in front with 24; ABC has 19; NBC six.

Here are the shows biting the dust by the time the season fades: "Bringing Up Buddy" (CBS); "National Velvet" (NBC); "Stagecoach West" (ABC); "Law and Mr. Jones" (ABC), "Guestward Ho" (ABC); "My Sister Eileen" (CBS); "Michael Shayne" (NBC); "Gunslinger" (NBC); "Tab Hunter Show" (NBC); "Islanders" (ABC); "Angel" (CBS); "Westinghouse Playhouse" (NBC); "Aquanauts" (CBS); "Klondike" (NBC); "Harrigan & Son" (ABC); Jackie Gleason (CBS); "Dante" (NBC); "Barbara Stanwyck Show" (NBC); "One Happy Family" (NBC); "Make That Spare" (ABC); "Peter Loves Mary" (NBC); "Take a Good Look" (ABC); "Hong Kong" (ABC); "Happy" (NBC); "Jackpot Bowling" (NBC); "This Is Your Life" (NBC); Shirley Temple (NBC); "Matty's Funday Funnies" (ABC). Fate of the "Tom Ewell Show" is still pending.

TV-Radio Production Centres

IN NEW YORK CITY . .

Burton (Bud) Benjamin, "Twentieth Century" producer, will guest-lecture at Syracuse U. at a graduate television seminar March 21 . . . John Karol, v.p. for special projects in CBS-TV sales, vacationing in Trinidad . . . Jerry Maulsby, manager of broadcasts for CBS Radio, dittoing for a month in Mexico . . . Wayne & Shuster off to the Coast for huddles on their summer replacement stanza on CBS . . It was Richard Morse, not Moore, who had a major role in "The Old Foolishness" on "Play of the Week" last week . . . Ruth Reynolds, wife of CBS-TV assistant press director Ed Reynolds, giving a song recital in Carnegie Hall April 13 . . . Charles Strouse & Lee Adams, who did the "Bye Bye Birdie" score, guest Sunday (19) on WCBS-TV's "American Musical Theatre". . . Paul D. Melton upped to producer of "New York Forum" and "Face New York" at WCBS-TV . . . Polly Bergen named national chairman of the women's activities committee of the '61 Multiple Sclerosis "Hope Chest" drive . . . Stewart Wilensky, film editor with CBS News, is the producer-director-writer of "Sunday in Greenwich Village," color short now running at the 55th St. Playhouse. Pic has been shown at the Berlin and Edinburgh Fests . . . N. Y. Telephone Co. on behalf of its Yellow Pages book has returned to spot sponsorship coverage around WPIX's Yankee Baseball telecasts. BBD&O order covers the entire home and road game Yankee tv schedule . . . American Dairy Assn. has bought three-quarters of all primary ID's around each televised home and road game . . . Robert Goulet into the March 26 "Omnibus" on "American Song". . . Everett Gammon of Fuller Smith & Ross tv department and his wife, actress Lynn Banta, parents of a boy named Drew born last week . . . Milt Kamen, a Perry Como regular, appearing Saturday (18) on NBC-TV's "My True Story" as an ex-con . . . WNBC Radio director Lee Jones back on the job after two weeks of being bed-ridden . . . Bill Davidson, the WNBC-plus-tv topper, elected a director of the N. Y. State Broadcasters Assn.

Toni Darnay joins Kim Hunter in supporting James Daly and Dennis King in "Give Us Barrabus" on Hallmark March 26.

Jack Bernstein, ex-VARIETY staffer now of NBC Radio promotion, returned to his desk after a six-week bout in Rochester with hepatitis . . . Actor Herb Duncan back from Detroit where he filmed footage for General Motors . . . Dave Garroway "Today" show in unusual program departure March 28, when entire two hours will be devoted to Oscar Brown Jr.'s "Kicks & Co." musical comedy "run through," with Brown doing all the male sides.

IN CHICAGO . . .

Henry Roepken, erstwhile WBBM publicist who was bumped about a month ago, turns up in same plant as a WBBM-TV news editor. He's filling vacancy being left by Jim Courtney, who's moving to Italy as a freelance correspondent . . . WGN's Lloyd Pettit vacationing in Puerto Rico with spouse . . . Ex-WCFL general manager Marty Hogan now a veepee at the John B. Morrisey agency . . . Trib telecritic Larry Wolters serving on Peabody Awards panel for third straight year and planning a trip to Europe in April . . . Singer Don Rondo will spell off Dick Noel on "Breakfast Club" next two weeks, while latter goes to Alabama to produce and emcee that state's annual Junior Miss spec. Noel pilots his own plane . . . Terry Turner's campaign in the Daily News to save "Play of the Week" has netted him 3,800 pieces of mail, in addition to 572 that were addressed to WGN. When station renewed the series, a flurry of thank you notes followed . . . Vicoa, the mobile tape outfit here that spun off from ABC, was tapped by Teleprompter as the tv facility for the Patterson-Johansson fight in Miami the other day . . . Jerry Healey joined WBBM's announcing staff . . . WMAQ has a new up-to-date transmitter . . . WBKB claims it's had 10,000 requests from kiddies for its puzzle book giveaway . . . Dick Biondi, the WLS deejay, has become semi-officially the referee for the new collegiate craze of bunk-stuffing, a variation on telephone booth stuffing.

IN LONDON . . .

Columbia Broadcasting's "Harvest of Shame," controversial story of one year in the life of U. S. migrant workers, is booked for BBC Television on Tuesday (21). BBC is bowing it in with a tribute to Ed Murrow. Show was one of the last he narrated before he began beating that drum for JFK . . . Two years ago Patrick McGoohan played the first man in space—an American—in James Thurber's "The Greatest Man In The World" for ABC Television. Now McGoohan has been playing the first planet-explorer again for another ABC play "The Man Out There." Only this time he's Russian. Is somebody at ABC being tactful? . . . Siobhan McKenna tops cast of BBC radio's production of Bertoldt Brecht's Chicago play "St. Joan of the Stockyards" . . . NBC International's Gerald Adler presenting H. M. Opposition Leader Hugh Gaitskell with a telerecording of NBC's "The Nation's Future" program in which Gaitskell took part during his U. S. trip . . . Bing Crosby recorded special material for BBC radio's "The Bing Crosby Story," two-part biog which winds Tuesday (21) . . . Top tv comics Arthur Askey and Charlie Drake are each starting a new series. Askey's skein of six for Associated Television kicked off on Saturday (11). Drake's half-dozen rolls on BBC Television from March 23.

IN WASHINGTON . .

Former NBC staffer Charles C. Bevis Jr. replacing Arch L. Madsen as Assistant Executive Director of Maximum Service Telecasters. Madsen's taking over as president of Radio Service Corp. of Utah . . . Jerry and Jimma Strong, WMAL personality team, awarded membership in "Operation Leaky Arm," honorary outfit formed by inmates of Southern Michigan Penitentiary for getting blood for Red Cross . . . Morrie Siegel in Pompano Beach, Fla., garnering taped and filmed interviews with new Senator baseball team for his WMAL-TV sportscast . . . Eleanor L. Lauer, formerly with Robert M. Gamble Jr. Inc. here, has joined radio-tv dept. of Henry J. Kaufman & Associates . . . Harold L. Green named Program Director at WMAL radio after serving for past two years as tv engineering supervisor at the station.

IN BOSTON . .

WHDH-Radio and WHDH-TV sports director Curt Gowdy and new announcing sidekick, Ned Martin, ex of Charlestown, W. Va., are at Red Sox Spring Training camp in Scottsdale, Ariz. They started play by playing eight-game exhib sked of Red Sox games Saturday (11) . . . Kraft Foods has renewed sponsorship of Gowdy's "Dugout Interviews on WHDH, 15-min. chat with American League players, now in second season . . . Miss Jean of WHDH-Radio, and husband, Bill Harrington, WHDH-TV announcer, back at the mikes after 10-day Fla. vacash . . . Andie Sinman Kurtzman, secretary to WHDH-TV news and film headman Joe Levine, honeymooning in Nassau . . . Guitarist Don Alessi nabbing accolades for his work with Connie Francis at Blinstrub's nitery; she personally requested the leader of the Park Squares musical group on WHDH-TV's "Morning Key Club" to be among those backing her up at the Boston club . . . Phyl Doherty, WNAC-TV pubad chief, hosting press party and screening in station's executive suite for "Castro, Cuba and Communism—Danger on Our Doorstep" Tuesday (14); documentary is featured on station next Tuesday (21) from 9 to 10 p.m. . . .

(Continued on page 48)

VARIETY - ARB SYNDICATION CHART

VARIETY's weekly tabulation based on ratings furnished by American Research Bureau, highlights the top ten network shows on a local level and offers a rating study in depth of the top ten syndicated shows in the same particular market. This week ten different markets are covered.

In the syndicated program listings of the top ten shows, rating data such as the average share of audience, coupled with data as to time and day of telecasting competitive programming in the particular slot, etc., is furnished. Reason for detailing an exact picture of the rating performance of syndicated shows is to reflect the true rating strength of particular series. Various branches of the industry, ranging from media buyers to local stations and/or advertisers to syndicators will find the charts valuable.

Over the course of a year, ARB will tabulate a minimum of 247 markets. The results of that tabulation will be found weekly in VARIETY. Coupled with the rating performance of the top ten network shows on the local level, the VARIETY-ARB charts are designed to reflect the rating tastes of virtually every tv market in the U. S.

(*) ARB's November, 1960 survey covered a two week period. Syndicated shows sharing one of the two weeks with an alternating or special program could not be properly judged for comparative performance. Therefore, November data will be limited to those syndicated shows which played both weeks.

OMAHA

STATIONS: KMTV, WOW, KETV. *SURVEY DATES: NOVEMBER 10-23, 1960.

TOP TEN NETWORK SHOWS RK. PROGRAM—DAY—TIME	STA.	AV. RTG.
1. Gunsmoke (Sat. 9:00-9:30)	WOW	43
2. Real McCoys (Thurs. 7:30-8:00)	KETV	35
3. Untouchables (Thurs. 8:30-9:30)	KETV	34
4. 77 Sunset Strip (Fri. 8:00-9:00)	KETV	33
5. Lawman (Sun. 7:30-8:00)	KETV	31
5. Rebel (Sun. 8:00-8:30)	KETV	31
5. Wagon Train (Wed. 6:30-7:30)	KMTV	31
5. Lawrence Welk (Sat. 8:00-9:00)	KETV	31
6. Flintstones (Fri. 7:30-8:00)	KETV	30
7. Cheyenne (Mon. 6:30-7:30)	KETV	29
7. Hawaiian Eye (Wed. 8:00-9:00)	KETV	29

TOP SYNDICATED PROGRAMS RK. PROGRAM—DAY—TIME	STA.	DISTRIB.	AV. RTG.	AV SH
1. U.S. Marshal (Sat. 9:30)	WOW	NTA	33	66
2. Highway Patrol (Mon.-Thurs. 6:00)	KETV	Ziv-UA	18	33
(Sun. 9:30)	KETV
3. Blue Angels (Sat. 10:30)	WOW	CNP	16	38
4. Coronado 9 (Thurs. 9:30)	KMTV	MCA	15	33
5. Sea Hunt (Thurs. 9:30)	KETV	Ziv-UA	14	31
6. Grand Jury (Tues. 9:30)	KETV	NTA	13	24
7. City Detective (Fri. 6:00)	KETV	MCA	12	27
7. R.C.M.P. (Thurs. 9:00)	WOW	CNP	12	19
8. Death Valley Days (Wed. 9:30)	KMTV	U.S. Borax	11	20
8. Divorce Court (Sun. 10:30)	WOW	KTTV Program Sales	11	42
8. Laurel & Hardy (Sat. 8:30 a.m.)	WOW	Milton	11	85

TOP COMPETITION PROGRAM	STA.	AV. RTG.
Fight of The Week	KETV	9
Make That Spare	KETV	8
Pioneers	KMTV	8
My Line; Belafonte	WOW	25
Weather; News	KMTV	22
Huntley-Brinkley	KMTV	22
Movie Masterpieces	KETV	16
June Allyson	WOW	16
June Allyson	WOW	16
Garry Moore	WOW	29
Huntley-Brinkley	KMTV	22
Weather; News	KMTV	21
Untouchables	KETV	35
Naked City	KETV	26
Bowling	KMTV	8
Movie Masterpieces	KETV	8
TV Classroom	KMTV	2

OKLAHOMA CITY

STATIONS: WKY, KWTV, KOCO. *SURVEY DATES: NOVEMBER 10-23, 1960.

1. Gunsmoke (Sat. 9:00-9:30)	KWTV	51
2. Wagon Train (Wed. 6:30-7:30)	WKY	45
3. Have Gun, Will Travel (Sat. 8:30-9:00)	KWTV	42
4. Rawhide (Fri. 6:30-7:30)	KWTV	39
5. Bonanza (Sat. 6:30-7:30)	WKY	34
5. Ernie Ford (Thurs. 8:30-9:00)	WKY	34
5. Andy Griffith (Mon. 8:30-9:00)	KWTV	34
6. Perry Como (Wed. 8:00-9:00)	WKY	33
7. Chevy Show (Sun. 8:00-9:00)	WKY	32
7. Laramie (Tues. 6:30-7:30)	WKY	32
7. Red Skelton (Tues. 8:30-9:00)	KWTV	32

1. Brothers Brannigan (Sat. 9:30)	KWTV	CBS	30	58
2. Manhunt (Fri. 9:30)	WKY	Screen Gems	25	53
3. Death Valley Days (Thurs. 9:30)	WKY	U.S. Borax	24	46
4. Johnny Midnight (Fri. 8:30)	KWTV	MCA	22	47
5. Coronado 9 (Thurs. 9:00)	WKY	MCA	20	38
6. Blue Angels (Thurs. 9:00)	KWTV	CNP	19	36
7. Grand Jury (Thurs. 8:00)	KWTV	NTA	18	31
8. Sea Hunt (Wed. 9:30)	WKY	Ziv-UA	16	33
9. Shotgun Slade (Mon. 7:30)	KWTV	MCA	15	25
10. U.S. Marshal (Thurs. 7:30)	WKY	NTA	14	24

Groucho Marx	WKY	14
Eyewitness To History	KWTV	12
June Allyson	KWTV	25
77 Sunset Strip	KOCO	16
Blue Angels	KWTV	19
Coronado 9	WKY	20
Bachelor Father	WKY	24
Show Month; Circle	KWTV	18
Wells Fargo	WKY	28
Zane Grey Theatre	KWTV	24

NORFOLK

STATIONS: WTAR, WVEC, WAVY. *SURVEY DATES: NOVEMBER 10-23, 1960.

1. Gunsmoke (Sat. 10:00-10:30)	WTAR	53
2. Have Gun Will Travel (Sat. 9:30-10)	WTAR	40
3. Checkmate (Sat. 8:30-9:30)	WTAR	39
4. Perry Mason (Sat. 7:30-8:30)	WTAR	38
5. Ed Sullivan (Sun. 8:00-9:00)	WTAR	34
6. Red Skelton (Tues. 9:30-10:00)	WTAR	33
7. Candid Camera (Sun. 10:00-10:30)	WTAR	32
8. Danny Thomas (Mon. 9:00-9:30)	WTAR	30
8. Rawhide (Fri. 7:30-8:30)	WTAR	30
9. Dennis The Menace (Sun. 7:30-8:00)	WTAR	29
9. Andy Griffith (Mon. 9:30-10:00)	WTAR	29
9. Route 66 (Fri. 8:30-9:30)	WTAR	29
9. 77 Sunset Strip (Fri. 9:00-10:00)	WVEC	29

1. U.S. Marshal (Sat. 10:30)	WTAR	NTA	29	67
2. Death Valley Days (Tues 7:00)	WTAR	U.S. Borax	23	59
3. Johnny Midnight (Mon. 8:30)	WTAR	MCA	20	34
4. Phil Silvers (Thurs. 7:00)	WTAR	CBS	17	36
5. Not For Hire (Thurs. 7:00)	WAVY	CNP	16	34
6. Brothers Brannigan (Fri. 7:00)	WTAR	CBS	15	42
7. Harbor Command (Sat. 7:00)	WVEC	Ziv-UA	14	34
7. Pony Express (Wed. 7:00)	WTAR	CNP	14	40
7. Sea Hunt (Wed. 7:30)	WTAR	Ziv-UA	14	27
7. Shotgun Slade (Wed. 7:00)	WAVY	MCA	14	40
7. Texas Rangers (Sat. 6:30)	WVEC	Screen Gems	14	44
7. Tombstone Territory (Mon. 7:00)	WAVY	Ziv-UA	14	36

Fight of The Week	WVEC	9
Make That Spare	WVEC	9
Coronado 9	WAVY	9
Surfside 6	WVEC	28
Not For Hire	WAVY	16
Phil Silvers	WTAR	17
Lock-Up	WAVY	12
Living Book	WTAR	19
Shotgun Slade	WAVY	14
Wagon Train	WAVY	28
Pony Express	WTAR	14
Playhouse 10	WAVY	9
Weather; News	WTAR	13
Rescue 8; Pioneers	WTAR	20

NASHVILLE

STATIONS: WSM, WLAC, WSIX. *SURVEY DATES: NOVEMBER 10-23, 1960.

1. Gunsmoke (Sat. 9:00-9:30)	WLAC	37
2. Wagon Train (Wed. 6:30-7:30)	WSM	35
3. Surfside 6 (Mon. 7:30-8:30)	WSIX	34
3. Untouchables (Thurs. 8:30-9:30)	WSIX	34
4. Real McCoys (Thurs. 7:30-8:00)	WSIX	33
5. 77 Sunset Strip (Fri. 8:00-9:00)	WSIX	32
6. Cheyenne (Mon. 6:30-7:30)	WSIX	31
7. Red Skelton (Tues. 8:30-9:00)	WLAC	30
8. Garry Moore (Tues. 9:00-10:00)	WLAC	29
8. Rebel (Sun. 8:00-8:30)	WSIX	29
8. Detectives (Fri. 9:00-9:30)	WSIX	29

1. Johnny Midnight (Sat. 9:30)	WLAC	MCA	21	50
2. Bozo The Clown (Sat. 8:00 a.m.)	WSM	Jayark	20	95
2. Coronado 9 (Fri. 9:30)	WSIX	MCA	20	43
3. Roy Rogers (Sat. 5.30)	WSM	Roy Rogers Productions	18	56
4. Tombstone Territory (Thurs. 6:30)	WSIX	Ziv-UA	17	33
5. Assignment Underwater (Thurs. 7:00)	WLAC	NTA	13	23
5. Best of Post (Fri. 9:00)	WLAC	ITC	13	25
5. Deputy Dawg (Sun. 5:30)	WLAC	CBS	13	29
6. Jim Backus (Thurs. 6:30)	WLAC	CNP	11	21
6. Lock-Up (Thurs. 9:30)	WSIX	Ziv-UA	11	26

Fight of The Week	WSIX	12
Marshal; Road-Rio	WSM	11
Country Journal	WLAC	1
Eyewitness To History	WLAC	14
Woods 'n' Waters	WLAC	7
All Star Golf	WSIX	7
Outlaws; On Ice	WSM	24
Outlaws; On Ice	WSM	25
Detectives	WSIX	29
Disney Presents	WSIX	21
Outlaws, On Ice	WSM	24
June Allyson	WLAC	20

ST. LOUIS

STATIONS: KPLR, KMOX, KSD, KTVI. *SURVEY DATES: NOVEMBER 10-23, '60

1. Gunsmoke (Sat. 9:00-9:30)	KMOX	36
2. Have Gun, Will Travel (Sat. 8:30-9:00)	KMOX	33
Real McCoys (Thurs. 7:30-8:00)	KTVI	33
2. Wagon Train (Wed. 6:30-7:30)	KSD	33
3. Red Skelton (Tues. 8:30-9:00)	KMOX	32
3. Perry Como (Wed. 8:00-9:00)	KSD	32
4. Danny Thomas (Mon. 8:00-8:30)	KMOX	31
4. Untouchables (Thurs. 8:30-9.00)	KTVI	31
5. Andy Griffith (Mon. 8:30-9:00)	KMOX	29
5. Garry Moore (Tues. 9:00-10:00)	KMOX	29

1. San Francisco Beat (Sat. 9:30)	KMOX	CBS	21	42
2. Jim Backus Show (Sun. 9:30)	KSD	Screen Gems	18	33
3. Sea Hunt (Fri. 10:00)	KTVI	Ziv-UA	16	34
4. Death Valley Days (Sat. 9:30)	KSD	U.S. Borax	15	30
4. Lock-Up (Wed. 9:30)	KSD	Ziv-UA	15	28
5. Popeye (Sat. 11:30)	KMOX	UAA, King Feat.	14	67
6. Pioneers (Sat 6:00)	KSD	Roebeck	13	42
6. Huckleberry Hound (Thurs. 6:00)	KTVI	Screen Gems	13	27
7. Four Just Men (Thurs. 9.30)	KSD	ITC	12	21
7. Highway Patrol (Tues. 9:30)	KTVI	Ziv-UA	12	20
7. Rescue 8 (Thurs. 10.00)	KTVI	Screen Gems	12	25

Death Valley Days	KSD	15
My Line; Belafonte	KMOX	29
News; Weather	KMOX	18
Jack Paar	KSD	12
San Francisco Beat	KMOX	21
Naked City	KTVI	23
Detectives Diary	KSD	3
St. Louis Hop	KSD	5
Big 4	KMOX	12
News, Weather	KMOX	13
News-D. Edwards	KMOX	15
June Allyson	KMOX	30
Garry Moore	KMOX	29
News, Weather	KMOX	24
Jack Paar	KSD	15

PROVIDENCE

STATIONS: WJAR, WPRO, WHDH. *SURVEY DATES: NOVEMBER 10-23, '60

1. Danny Thomas (Mon. 9:00-9:30)	WPRO	41
2. Wagon Train (Wed. 7:30-8:30)	WJAR	38
2. Adv. In Paradise (Thurs. 7:30-8:30)	WJAR	38
2. Perry Como (Wed. 9:00-10:00)	WJAR	38
3. Gunsmoke (Sat. 10:00-10:30)	WPRO	36
4. Untouchables (Thurs. 9:30-10:30)	WJAR	34
5. Route 66 (Fri. 8:30-9:30)	WPRO	33
6. Alfred Hitchcock (Tues. 8:30-9:00)	WJAR	31
6. Ed Sullivan (Sun. 8:00-9:00)	WPRO	31
6. Perry Mason (Sat. 7:30-8:30)	WPRO	31

1. Rough Riders (Thurs. 7:00)	WJAR	Ziv-UA	26	54
1. Sea Hunt (Sat. 7:00)	WPRO	Ziv-UA	26	51
2. Death Valley Days (Mon. 7:00)	WJAR	U.S. Borax	25	47
3. U.S. Marshal (Sat. 10:30)	WPRO	NTA	20	49
4. Dangerous Robin (Tues. 7:00)	WJAR	Ziv-UA	19	39
4. Lock-Up (Wed. 7:00)	WJAR	Ziv-UA	19	41
4. Shotgun Slade (Fri. 7:00)	WJAR	MCA	19	45
4. Whirlybirds (Sat. 6:30)	WPRO	CBS	19	43
5. Brothers Brannigan (Sun. 10:30)	WJAR	CBS	16	37
6. Highway Patrol (Wed. 7:00)	WPRO	Ziv-UA	15	33

Jim Backus	WPRO	13
Laramie; St Family	WJAR	11
Life of Riley, Playhouse	WPRO	19
Fight of The Week	WJAR	13
Movie of Week	WPRO	15
Highway Patrol	WPRO	15
Brave Stallion	WPRO	9
Laramie; St Family	WJAR	13
My Line; Belafonte	WPRO	16
Lock-Up	WJAR	19

(Continued on page 42)

He Hears America Singing

Although the 1927 headline, "Lindy Spans Atlantic Alone!", made most of the world tingle with admiration, not all observers were equally impressed. The feeling among some was that the feat would have been even more remarkable if he'd done it with a committee.

It's true that some things are essentially a solo operation, while others flourish best as a communal activity. Take group-singing, for example. Group-singing without a group is a bit ridiculous. Any guy who tries to sing a community sing all by himself has to be kind of punchy.

And that's why Mitch Miller went to the trouble of hiring a batch of fine male singers, when he embarked on his "Sing Along with Mitch" idea for recordings three years ago. Despite the knowledge that he was personally endowed with the greatest singing voice since George Burns, he never really considered going it alone. Not by the beard on his chinny-chin-chin.

How wise he was. In no time at all, nostalgic "Sing Along with Mitch" melodies like "Baby Face," "Three O'Clock in the Morning" and "Long Long Trail" were jogging memories, warming cockles and building up throat muscles. (You remember cockles and muscles.)

Never a man to let well-enough alone—oboe players are a strange breed—Miller was curious to see how the "Sing Along" concept would fare in television. The chance came last spring, when "Sing Along with Mitch" was presented on NBC as a Ford Startime special.

The success of this special was not a foregone conclusion. After all, the appeal of the "Sing Along" notion was essentially to the ear. And Mitch, by insisting on the same singers he'd been using for the albums, didn't appear to be helping matters any on the visual side.

For all their magnificent singing artistry, these guys were not the most telegenic chaps ever to come down the pike. Baldness, middle-age spread and other healthy infirmities ran rampant in the Gang. With a show-business world full of flawless profiles at his disposal, Mitch was determined to give us not just the man-next-door but his uncle and brother-in-law as well.

How did it all come out? Peachily. Viewers loved the music, loved the guys, loved everything. More than 12,000 of them took the trouble to write letters saying so. And many of these mash-notes expressed the feeling that this sort of group-singing on TV was a long-overdue blessing.

NBC got the message. Mitch and his Gang were brought back for a series of seven shows, the first of which went on the air January 27. Since that date, there's been a "Sing Along" every other Friday night, and public response has been little short of phenomenal. If all the fan letters were laid end to end, they'd make the "Long Long Trail" look like a short walk to the refrigerator.

THE FINAL SHOW in the current series will be the one of April 21, but when the program returns to NBC in the fall, it'll be seen every Thursday evening, instead of on alternate Fridays.

It wouldn't be quite correct to say that Mitch and the Gang are the entire show. A couple of easy-to-take soloists—Diana Trask and Leslie Uggams—are usually on hand to raise their voices in song; and there's also a line of dancing gals pretty enough to take any tired businessman's mind off his fatigue.

But most of the program is carried by the 25-man Gang, whose singing arrangements have the considerable virtue of being non-cornball. Hoking-up an old song is something Mitch won't tolerate. "We don't use corny orchestrations," he says, "and we don't deliver the songs in a kidding way. We take this music seriously."

In a similarly sensible manner, wordy introductions to the musical numbers are strictly verboten. In fact, there are sometimes as many as seven to 13 minutes of music without any interruptions at all.

AS FOR THE THEME or "thread" running through each show, it can be one of time, place, general subject matter or even some recurring visual device, such as the stereopticon effect used on last week's program. All these factors make "Sing Along" an outstanding NBC attraction.

But despite the care and ingenuity going into each performance, it's probable that no group in all of television has more fun putting a program together. And that same tension-free camaraderie comes across beautifully on the TV screen.

It's a spirit that's also become familiar to the management of a certain Italian restaurant across the street from NBC's color studio in Brooklyn, where "Sing Along" originates. At a rehearsal break for lunch, it's not unusual for Mitch and a score or more of his jolly singers to march into the small, neighborhood eatery en masse, an invasion for which the place is never quite prepared.

At such times, the ever-helpful Mitch walks straight into the kitchen to give the chef a hand in preparing a meal for the Gang. What Miller's real motive is for all this we can't say for sure; but we have a pesky suspicion that an album called "Cook Along with Mitch" may already be in the oven.

VARIETY-ARB SYNDICATION CHART

VARIETY's weekly tabulation based on ratings furnished by American Research Bureau, highlights the top ten network shows on a local level and offers a rating study in depth of the top ten syndicated shows in the same particular market. This week ten different markets are covered.

In the syndicated program listings of the top ten shows, rating data such as the average share of audience, coupled with data as to time and day of telecasting competitive programming in the particular slot, etc., is furnished. Reason for detailing an exact picture of the rating performance of syndicated shows is to reflect the true rating strength of particular series. Various branches of the industry, ranging from media buyers to local stations and/or advertisers to syndicators will find the charts valuable.

Over the course of a year, ARB will tabulate a minimum of 247 markets. The results of that tabulation will be found weekly in VARIETY. Coupled with the rating performance of the top ten network shows on the local level, the VARIETY-ARB charts are designed to reflect the rating tastes of virtually every tv market in the U. S.

(*) ARB's November, 1960 survey covered a two week period. Syndicated shows sharing one of the two weeks with an alternating or special program could not be properly judged for comparative performance. Therefore, November data will be limited to those syndicated shows which played both weeks.

(Continued from page 39)

SACRAMENTO

STATIONS: KCRA, KXTV, KOVR. *SURVEY DATES: NOVEMBER 10-23, '60

TOP TEN NETWORK SHOWS RK. PROGRAM—DAY—TIME	STA.	AV. RTG	TOP SYNDICATED PROGRAMS RK. PROGRAM—DAY—TIME	STA.	DISTRIB.	AV. RTG.	AV. SH.	TOP COMPETITION PROGRAM	STA.	AV. RTG.
1. Perry Como (Wed. 9:00-10:00)	KCRA	38	1. Huckleberry Hound (Thurs. 6:00)	KCRA	Screen Gems	25	60	Shell News	KXTV	11
2. Wagon Train (Wed. 7:30-8:30)	KCRA	37						News-D. Edwards	KXTV	12
3. Have Gun, Will Travel (Sat. 9:30-10)	KXTV	36	2. Tombstone Territory (Tues. 7:00)	KCRA	Ziv-UA	22	46	Assignment Underwater	KXTV	13
4. Untouchables (Thurs. 9:30-10:30)	KOVR	34	2. Woody Woodpecker (Wed. 6:00)	KCRA	Kellogg	22	49	Shell News	KXTV	11
4. Perry Mason (Sat. 7:30-8:30)	KXTV	34						News-D. Edwards	KXTV	11
4. Checkmate (Sat. 8:30-9:30)	KXTV	34	3. Coronado 9 (Thurs. 7:30)	KCRA	MCA	21	38	Guestward Ho	KOVR	19
5. Gunsmoke (Sat. 10:00-10:30)	KXTV	32	3. Quick Draw McGraw (Mon. 6:00)	KCRA	Screen Gems	21	47	Shell News	KXTV	13
6. 77 Sunset Strip (Fri. 9:00-10:00)	KOVR	29						News-D. Edwards	KXTV	13
6. Ed Sullivan (Sun. 8:00-9:00)	KXTV	29	3. Sea Hunt (Thurs. 8:00)	KCRA	Ziv-UA	21	36	Donna Reed	KOVR	25
7. Pete & Gladys (Mon. 8:00-8:30)	KXTV	26	4. Manhunt (Thurs. 7:00)	KCRA	Screen Gems	19	43	Trackdown	KOVR	10
7. Dobie Gillis (Tues. 8:30-9:00)	KXTV	26	4. Two Faces West (Wed. 7:00)	KCRA	Screen Gems	19	42	Border Patrol	KOVR	9
7. Danny Thomas (Mon. 9:00-9:30)	KXTV	26	5. Brothers Brannigan (Mon. 7:00)	KCRA	CBS	16	32	Wanted Dead or Alive	KXTV	22
7. Rawhide (Fri. 7:30-8:30)	KXTV	26	5. Bold Journey (Fri. 6:00)	KCRA	Banner	16	39	Shell News	KXTV	11
7. Flintstones (Fri. 8:30-9:00)	KOVR	26						News-D. Edwards	KXTV	11
7. Andy Griffith (Mon. 9:30-10:00)	KXTV	26						Rough Riders	KOVR	11
			5. Vikings (Fri. 7:00)	KXTV	Ziv-UA	16	35	Michael Shayne	KCRA	14

QUAD CITY

STATIONS: WHBF, WOC. *SURVEY DATES: NOVEMBER 10-23, '60

1. Groucho Marx (Thurs. 9:00-9:30)	WOC	50	1. Manhunt (Thurs. 9:30)	WOC	Screen Gems	30	60	June Allyson	WHBF	20
2. Tennessee Ernie Ford (Thurs. 8:30-9)	WOC	45	1. Huckleberry Hound (Fri. 6:00)	WOC	Screen Gems	30	77	Guestward Ho!	WHBF	9
2. Wagon Train (Wed. 6:30-7:30)	WOC	45	1. Blue Angels (Sun. 9:30)	WOC	CNP	30	48	My Line; Belafonte	WHBF	32
3. Perry Como (Wed. 8:00-9:00)	WOC	41	2. Coronado 9 (Mon. 9:30)	WOC	MCA	27	66	Face The Nation	WHBF	14
4. Red Skelton (Tues. 8:30-9:00)	WHBF	40	2. U.S. Marshal (Wed. 9:30)	WOC	NTA	27	56	Show of Month; Circle	WHBF	20
4. Gunsmoke (Sat. 9:00-9:30)	WHBF	40	3. Seahunt (Thurs. 10:00)	WOC	Ziv-UA	25	58	Star Story; Alcoa Theatre	WHBF	—
5. Chevy Show (Sun. 8:00-9:00)	WOC	39	3. This Man Dawson (Sat. 9:30)	WHBF	Ziv-UA	25	48	Roaring 20's	WOC	24
6. Have Gun, Will Travel (Sat. 8:30-9:00)	WHBF	37	4. Quick Draw McGraw (Mon. 6:00)	WOC	Screen Gems	24	80	Rocky & Friends	WHBF	5
6. Ed Sullivan (Sun. 7:00-8:00)	WHBF	37	5. Woody Woodpecker (Wed. 6:00)	WOC	Kellogg	23	89	Donna Reed	WHBF	16
7. Route 66 (Fri. 7:30-8:30)	WHBF	36	6. Grand Jury (Tues. 10:00)	WHBF	NTA	21	68	Harrigan & Son	WOC	10

ROANOKE

STATIONS: WDBS, WSLS, WLVA. *SURVEY DATES: NOVEMBER 10-23, '60

1. Wagon Train (Wed. 7:30-8:30)	WSLS	59	1. Death Valley Days (Mon. 7:00)	WDBJ	U.S. Borax	38	60	Claim To Fame	WSLS	22
2. Gunsmoke (Sat. 10:00-10:30)	WDBJ	55	2. Whirlybirds (Thurs. 7:00)	WSLS	CBS	28	64	Angel	WDBJ	15
3. Have Gun, Will Travel (Sat. 9:30-10)	WDBJ	51	2. Sea Hunt (Sat. 10:30)	WDBJ	Ziv-UA	28	74	Shotgun Slade	WSLS	7
4. Rawhide (Fri. 7:30-8:30)	WDBJ	49	3. Woody Woodpecker (Thurs. 6:00)	WSLS	Kellogg	27	77	Early Show	WDBJ	7
5. Price Is Right (Wed. 8:30-9:00)	WSLS	46	4. Huckleberry Hound (Fri. 6:00)	WSLS	Screen Gems	26	76	Early Show	WDBJ	6
5. Andy Griffith (Sat. 7:00-7:30)	WDBJ	46	4. Rough Riders (Fri. 9:30)	WDBJ	Ziv-UA	26	48	Telephone Hour
								Dave's Place	WSLS	19
6. Laramie (Tues. 7:30-8:30)	WSLS	43	5. Quick Draw McGraw (Wed. 6:00)	WSLS	Screen Gems	25	68	Early Show	WDBJ	11
7. Bonanza (Sat. 7:30-8:30)	WSLS	42	5. Manhunt (Wed. 7:00)	WSLS	Screen Gems	25	57	R.C.M.P.	WDBJ	17
8. To Tell The Truth (Mon. 7:30-8:00)	WDBJ	41	6. Deputy Dawg (Tues. 6:00)	WSLS	CBS	24	71	Early Show	WDBJ	9
8. Dennis The Menace (Sun. 7:30-8:00)	WDBJ	41	7. Brothers Brannigan (Tues. 7:00)	WSLS	CBS	23	49	Tombstone Territory	WDBJ	22

ROCHESTER, N.Y.

STATIONS: WROC, WHEC, WVET. *SURVEY DATES: NOVEMBER 10-23, '60

1. Gunsmoke (Sat. 10:00-10:30)	WHEC	49	1. Seahunt (Mon. 7:30)	WVET	Ziv-UA	34	65	Family; Riverboat	WROC	18
2. Have Gun, Will Travel (Sat. 9:30-10)	WHEC	45	2. Lock-Up (Sat. 10:30)	WHEC	Ziv-UA	33	85	Play of The Week	WROC	5
3. Perry Mason (Sat. 7:30-8:30)	WHEC	42	3. Death Valley Days (Mon. 8:00)	WVET	U.S. Borax	31	60	Family; Riverboat	WROC	20
4. Danny Thomas (Mon. 9:00-9:30)	WVET	41	4. State Trooper (Wed. 7:00)	WVET	MCA	24	60	Rebel	WROC	17
4. Outlaws (Thurs. 7:30-8:30)	WROC	41	5. Three Stooges (Sat. 9:00 a.m.)	WROC	Screen Gems	22	79	Action Theatre	WVET	2
4. Untouchables (Thurs. 9:30-10:30)	WHEC	41	6. Highway Patrol (Sat. 7:00)	WROC	Ziv-UA	21	51	This Man Dawson	WHEC	20
5. Bachelor Father (Thurs. 9:00-9:30)	WROC	40	7. Manhunt (Thurs. 10:30)	WROC	Screen Gems	20	49	June Allyson	WHEC	21
5. Route 66 (Fri. 8:30-9:30)	WVET	40	7. Huckleberry Hound (Fri. 6:00)	WVET	Screen Gems	20	51	Playhouse 5	WROC	18
5. Checkmate (Sat. 8:30-9:30)	WHEC	40	7. This Man Dawson (Sat. 7:00)	WHEC	Ziv-UA	20	49	Highway Patrol	WROC	21
6. Leave It To Beaver (Thurs. 7:00-7.30)	WROC	39	8. Tombstone Territory (Mon. 10:30)	WROC	Ziv-UA	19	44	What's My Line	WVET	23

Everybody on Cartoon Kick

Continued from page 31

cartoon house, formerly did the "Bugs Bunny" shows at Warner Bros. Quinn, Bergen and Clampett would collaborate on scripts, with Quinn in charge.

Eils is currently in N. Y. with storyboards and presentations, and reportedly has stirred up considerable interest among agencies. He's also meeting with networks over possible time slots for the stanza.

ABC-TV, which began the trend, has slated two new cartoon shows for next season in prime evening time, bringing its cartoon total for next season to four shows.

Two new ABC-TV cartoon shows are "Top Cat," half-hour series out of the Hanna-Barbera production center, and "Calvin and the Colonel" with Lever Bros. and Whitehall Laboratories are alternating sponsors on "Calvin." Freeman Gosden and Charles Correll doing the principal voices.

"Top Cat," with Bristol-Myers and Kellogg sharing sponsorship, is slotted Wednesdays at 8:30 p.m.; and "Calvin and the Colonel" Tuesdays at 8:30 p.m. H-B's "Flintstones" returns Fridays at 8:30 p.m. and "Bugs Bunny" will occupy the same Wednesday at 8:30 p.m. slot.

While the rating noise kicked up by "Flintstones" and "Bugs Bunny" accounts for the other webs moving in on the evening cartoon field, the success of made-for-tv animated shows stems largely from the long-standing fruitful relationship between H-B, Kellogg, and Screen Gems.

SG, picking up the first H-B cartoon package, "Huckleberry Hound," sold it to Kellogg for national spot syndication. That deal fathered "Quick Draw McGraw," and "Yogi Bear," all out of H-B, with SG as the sales agent and Kellogg as the national spot advertiser.

Among new cartoon shows being pitched for network sale are "Simpson and Delaney," being offered by Bill Cooper Associates; and two from California National Productions, "Sir Wellington Bores," and Bob Fielding and Ray Elliot doing a voice over spoof of old movies. "Wellington" is being offered as a half-hour weekly entry, but the show in syndication could be sliced down in five-minute segments.

Next season's network count now is seven cartoon shows and the possibility is good that more will tumble in the schedule before the '61-'62 season is locked.

'Silents Please'

Continued from page 31

ber. Big coup has been a new two part deal with United Artists for John Barrymore's "Don Juan" and Gary Cooper's Hollywood initialer, "Lilac Time," salvaged from the old First National production stable. They've also just gotten six Douglas Fairbanks Sr. pix—"Three Musketeers," "The Man in the Iron Mask," "Black Pirate," "Robin Hood" and a genuine "classic novelty," the pre-costume-period Fairbanks in a social satire called "When the Clouds Roll By."

"Silents" this summer and fall will probably also show "Orphans of the Storm," "Broken Blossoms" and "Americans," all D. W. Griffith films.

CBS Crackdown on Execs

Continued from page 31

will apply to all officers of CBS and its divisions and "other employees whose responsibilities are such that they have opportunities to influence, directly or indirectly," the determination of companies with which CBS does business, the terms of such transactions and the giving of preferential treatment or consideration to these companies.

The policy was adopted by the CBS board of directors at its Feb. 8 meeting. In a message to employees, CBS prexy Frank Stanton said the board "has formalized our long standing policy" with regard to conflicts of interest questions and adopted procedures to implement the policy. Procedure was to have all affected employees fill out questionnaires on such activities and holding and submit them to the committee, which besides Colin consists of J. A. W. Iglehart and Robert A. Lovett.

As to action by the Committee, Stanton described several alternatives which management would offer, including "asking you to change the outside interests, directing you not to represent CBS in dealings with those parties where a conflict of interest might develop or putting those to whom you report on notice of the possible conflict and permitting you to continue representing CBS."

Freak Sneak

Continued from page 25

from the unusual sneak preview, KFMB gained another advantage from the double showing of "Angelo." San Diego telephone jamup was so bad that the station sent its cameramen to the nearby telephone exchange to film the unprecedented tangle.

Incidentally the "AFC" in "Angelo," which Cooper brings to N.Y. next week, stands for Angel First Class. Stars are Jimmy Komack of "Hennessey" and Larry Storch.

Reinsch Warns Politics Might Block 315 Repeal

J. Leonard Reinsch, factotum of the Cox stations, who "stood in" for President Kennedy at one point during the Radio & Television Executives Society Gold Medal dinner last week in N.Y., also struck out on his own to urge broadcasters to carry on an "all out" war on Section 315 of the Communications Act.

Reinsch, after delivering a message from award winner Kennedy, warned broadcasters, however, that politics may prevent full repeal of the section controlling equal time for candidates during a campaign.

Former Vicepresident Nixon and President Kennedy were given the RTES annual award for "outstanding achievement in broadcasting" through their campaign debates on tv. Like Reinsch for Kennedy, Herbert Klein stood in for Nixon.

Reading a Nixon message, Klein said, "Television is powerful, but still is an infant factor in politics. It never will supplant the printed word."

This statement from Nixon by the following morning, Friday (10), drew many raised eyebrows. A number of politicians, including some highly-placed Republicans, felt that tv was the primary force in winning for Kennedy, who was relatively unknown before his tv appearances in debate with Nixon.

"The full importance of the television debates lies not just in the interest they stirred in the 1960 campaign," Nixon wrote via Klein, his RTES hosts. "The importance is in the fact that this was only a pioneer milestone in the use of television politically." The ex-Veep of the U.S. said he hoped that the role of video would be "enlarged and repeated."

After conveying Kennedy's assurance that broadcasters can "be certain that this administration will do nothing to impair the freedom of the mass communications media guaranteed under our Constitution," Reinsch said on his own:

"While in my mind there isn't any doubt that the case has been made for outright repeal (of 315), practical politics indicate that full repeal may not come in this session of Congress. Politicians can't be expected to easily relinquish controls over the mass media of radio and television that often spell the difference between victory and defeat in their own campaigns.

"But certainly this should not deter broadcasters from waging an all out campaign for repeal—with no strings attached . . . They would be shirking their responsibility if they did not go all out for full repeal of Section 315."

Over 800 broadcasters attended the dinner held Thursday (9) night in the grand ballroom of the Waldorf-Astoria, with the head table reading like the who's who of radio and television.

Nighttime Version Of 'Sports Spectacular' As a Summer Entry

Something different in the way of primetime entertainment will be tried by CBS-TV this summer—a nighttime version of its "Sunday Sports Spectacular" which will start April 27 in the Thursday 7:30-8:30 slot and run for 23 weeks through Sept. 28.

Sports show will move into the timeslot currently occupied by Ann Sothern and "Angel." Former has been cancelled, and the latter will switch to Wednesdays at 9 to replace "My Sister Eileen" for the balance of the season. Schlitz, which sponsors "Sunday Sports Spectacular," will be bankrolling the nighttime show with either one-third or one-half sponsorship.

Of the 23 new shows, 22 will be new and one will be a repeat of one of the Sunday shows. The new hourling nighttimers out of the CBS Television Sports shop will include such widely diverse offerings as the Sebring auto races; a segment on the birth of a major league ballclub (the Los Angeles Angels, with interviews with Gene Autry on why he bid for the franchise,

(Continued on page 48)

Kluge: Modesty & Millions

By GEORGE ROSEN

For a guy who has managed to parlay his radio-tv broadcasting holdings (plus outdoor advertising biz) into a $42,000,000 annual gross (and compared to most of the industry vets he's practically a newcomer in the bigtime AM-tv sweepstakes), John Kluge carries it off with singular modesty.

That the president and founder of Metropolitan Broadcasting Corp. is quite the showman is attested to by the unusual performance strides made within the past year, notably on his major showcase, WNEW-TV in New York, for it's commonly accepted now that the station has achieved a "profile" as a money-making purveyor of entertainment and public service that's rapidly becoming the envy of indie managements throughout the country.

But it's not only as a showman, but also in the area of business acumen and a dedication to enlightenment—both in and out of broadcasting—that has earned for Kluge such a glorified status. Yet strangely enough he wears his "man of the hour" mantle with an uneasiness, for it stems from a reticence, and a reluctance to acknowledge that these are distinguishing traits. To Kluge, it's just natural that anyone in possession of such valuable franchises would automatically recognize his responsibility and proceed accordingly. It's not a mere accident that WNEW-TV (and its sister D. C. station, WTTG) is attaining an "image" unique among indie or group operations. Rather, it all fits in with the "growth through efficiency" behavior pattern long since established as his modus operandi.

There are aspects of Kluge's wide range and interests (encompassing art and nature): his financial wizardry; his overall dexterity and as "a man carrying a torch" that are not generally known, even among his close associates. Behind the announcement that the Columbia Univ. School of Fine Arts and Architecture will foster the first public showing of the paintings of a new artist, Jacques Fabert (March 20-April 16) is the story of a man's faith in an artist and his willingness to back this faith with money. In one of his many unpublicized gestures, Kluge, having recognized years ago the potentials in Fabert as a great artist, began depositing a certain sum in the bank for Fabert and his wife so that they might feel free to concentrate on their primary aim in life. Kluge is now ready to "spring" him; hence the major showing at Columbia Univ.

Similarly, Kluge recently assigned Mark Evans, Met's v.p. in charge of public affairs, to attend an international scholars' meeting with Dr. Schweitzer in Lambarene. Without fanfare, Kluge has been lending moral and money support to the Albert Schweitzer Foundation. Upon the scholars' return to this country, Metropolitan taped a round-table discussion, presided over by Dr. Albert Burke (one of WNEW-TV's prides). Purpose of the forthcoming program is to explain in lay terms Schweitzer's philosophy.

That Kaycee Deal

On the other hand it was Kluge who pulled off one of the neatest station-buy tricks of the year—or any year—in his recent acquisition of KMBC-TV (& AM) in Kansas City (to add to the Kluge string of WNEW AM & TV, WTTG, KOVR in Sacramento, WTVH in Peoria, MTVP in Decatur, WIP in Philly, WHK in Cleveland and his shortwave WRUL station which he acquired for $1,000,000). In addition he owns Foster & Kleiser, second largest outdoor billboard firm in the U. S.

Kluge paid $10,250,000 for the K.C. operations. Yet it was done without a single penny of out-of-pocket outlay, through the simple expedient of attracting outside coin which will be amortized out of station profits.

Everything's in the black except his shortwave commercial station. He's in no rush about this. First he wants to get the message of America's freedom and free enterprise systems to the peoples of South America, Cuba and Africa. As a reflection of Kluge the showman, immediate item on the program agenda is an hour documentary on Edward R. Murrow. Since Murrow is JFK's propaganda emissary, WRUL wants to enlighten the world about the man who was picked to do the job.

Rating Services Target Of Bill Up for Action Before N.Y. Legislature

Bill which may severely curtail operations of tv and radio rating services in New York State is up for consideration before the State Legislature. The bill, voted out of the Codes Committee of the State Assembly this week, would be an amendment to the penal code requiring rating services to supply specific information with each rating they issue.

The information would consist of data including a "description of the method used, the number of persons contacted and the times and dates when contacted the location of such persons and the exact area covered by the poll."

Rating services already publish most of this information, but the dangerous provision is that which requires information as to "the location of such persons." This requirement could make it mandatory for a Nielsen, for example, to furnish the addresses at which its audimeters are located, or ARB its diaries, subjecting the individuals concerned to pressure from stations or program sources to view specific channels or make specific enteries.

Moreover, such disclosures would be a violation of the Ethical Code of the American Assn. of Public Opinion Research, to which most of the rating services belong.

Equally vague in the wording of the bill as to its purpose is its language making it "unlawful for any person, firm or corporation to issue, for sale or otherwise, for the purpose of influencing the sale of advertising, any announcement or rating concerning the percentages or number of listening or viewing audiences . . . without also stating fully and exactly the manner in which such percentages or numbers are obtained."

This clearly applies to advertising by stations or programming companies such as syndicators. But "any announcement or rating" might equally apply to the basic business of the rating services themselves, supplying ratings to stations or agencies. Does this business constitute "influencing the state of advertising?" and is it therefore unlawful, or is the bill restricted to advertisements?

Bill, titled the Manley Bill after its author, is backed by some smaller stations, who oppose the use of rating data in ads by larger-market stations or strong competitors. But it's feared that the language is such that it might put the rating services out of business entirely.

'BAND OF GOLD' TO GET A GE 'SNEAK'

"Band of Gold," the Bud Yorkin-Norman Lear pilot which starred James Franciscus and Suzanne Pleshette and came close but not close enough to a network sale last year, will be "sneaked in" as a "General Electric Theatre" segment on CBS-TV March 19.

Pilot was filmed as the first of several Yorkin & Lear were to make for Paramount's TV-Film Division under their Tandem Productions banner. Show, a romantic anthology which was to star Franciscus and Miss Pleshette as a team in every episode, came close to sales several times but missed out in each instance. Pilot will be run on GE under the title "Love Is a Lion's Roar."

Massey-Ferguson In $1,500,000 Outlay On NBC 'Five Star Jubilee'

Chicago, March 14.

Massey - Ferguson, the farm equipment company, is plunking down an estimated $1,500,000 (time and talent) for its new "Five Star Jubilee," which will run through the summer on NBC-TV. Countrified variety show debuts this Friday (17) in the 8 p.m. slot and is contracted through September. It'll have a 140-station spread.

Program will have five emcees on a rotating basis, leading off this week with Snooky Lanson, and following in order with Tex Ritter, Rex Allen, Jimmy Wakely and Carl Smith, the last four well-known in the country & western field. Betty Johnson will be guestar on the first two outings.

Show will originate in Springfield, Mo., virtually the mecca for c&w artists.

It'll Be '66' Vs. '77' In CBS-ABC Fri. Nite Battle of the Numbers

CBS-TV is juggling its Friday night schedule for the fall so that "Twilight Zone" will go in at 8:30-9 opposite ABC-TV's "Flintstones" and "Route 66" will slug it out with an even start against "77 Sunset Strip." Move opens up the 10-11 period for a still unselected hour-long show.

In putting "66" against "77" in the 9-10 period, CBS is acting on the basis of this season's ratings, which have seen the second half of "66" at 9 to 9:30 holding the first half of "77" just about even on the Nielsens. "77" scores its big ratings in the second half, at 9:30-10, where CBS is weak. And "66" has been less effective in its first half-hour, at 8:30-9, against "Flintstones."

Consequently, it's felt by the CBS brass that "66" can take "77" in evenly matched competition. At the same time, the CBS program boys have a feeling, based on limited research, that "Twilight Zone" can capture a sizable moppet and teenage audience at the earlier 8:30 hour than it presently does at 10, particularly since it would benefit from the big "Rawhide" leadin.

Friday night lineup will read: "Rawhide," 7:30-8:30; "Twilight Zone," 8:30-9; "Route 66," 9-10 and another action-adventure hour at 10-11. "Twilight Zone," incidentally, has already been renewed for next fall by Colgate and Liggett & Myers.

MATTEL TOYS' 'BEANY'

Mattel Toys is going to replace its Sunday "Matty's Funday Funnies" next January with a stanza called "Beany & Cecil." Program holds ABC-TV's 5-5:30 p.m. anchorage.

TAM's Top 10 in Britain

(Week Ending March 5)

	Homes Viewing (000's)
The Army Game—GRANADA	6922
Bootsie and Snudge—GRANADA	6922
No Hiding Place—AR	6817
Take Your Pick—AR	6712
Emergency—Ward 10 (Tues.)—ATV	6607
Sunday Palladium Show—ATV	6607
Emergency—Ward 10 (Fri.)—ATV	6503
Dickie Henderson Show—AR	6503
Armchair Theatre—ABC	6398
Double Your Money—AR	6083

Big Four Grid In Canada Provokes Major TV Hassle

Toronto, March 14.

With the State-owned Canadian Broadcasting Corp. and the proposed privately-owned trans-Canada Caldwell web promising to split Canada—with the unorganized tv viewer caught in the middle—the battle of the Big Interests in forming a diverse national network over the Big Four football games is currently being waged.

Confusion sees the CBC, who lost on the bidding, rejecting the offer of CFTO-TV, Toronto, for "free" distribution (plus Bell Telephone wire charges) with some 26 CBC affiliate stations refusing to carry the games, together with the CBC keys.

Meanwhile, following decision meeting skedded for this week, tv viewers in Ontario and Quebec may be assuaged by CFTO-TV Toronto, joining the proposed Spencer Caldwell public trans-Canada network; but CBC steadfastly refusing to telecast the games and getting the support of independent stations affiliated with the CBC.

The Caldwell web would have to include six of the eight "second" tv stations across Canada, these including—in addition to CBC outlets—Toronto, Montreal, Winnipeg, Calgary, Edmonton, Vancouver, Halifax, Ottawa. So far, Toronto, Montreal and Ottawa have been lined up by the Caldwell interests for the football games but tv viewers in the Maritimes, the West and Coast are out of luck if the board of broadcast governors of the CBC carries out its threat of refusing to grant permission to a proposed rival network.

Mixup of present fight commenced with the decision of CFTO-TV, Toronto, to bid $750,000 for the '61 and '62 seasons of the football games when CBC stopped because of price—though CBC had previously bought the trans-Canada rights for five years, with sponsorship by Imperial Oil.

Preliminary agreement for the Big Four games has now been reached between Caldwell and John Bassett, publisher of the Toronto Telegram and proxy of CFTO-TV, Toronto, whereby CFTO-TV has belatedly become part of Caldwell's proposed trans-Canada tv network. So far, Bassett has nowhere to go except to join Caldwell.

Britain's Montgomery (A Civil War Buff) Set For CBS-TV Two-Parter

British Field Marshal Bernard Montgomery, a Civil War buff from way back, will analyze the strategy and tactics of the War Between the States in a two-part series on CBS-TV's new "Accent" pubaffairs stanza April 9 and 16.

"Accent" coproducer Don Kellerman and a crew will depart for England next week to film the programs at Montgomery's home. Idea is to select an American general who's also a Civil War buff, to join Montgomery in the production. The British general stirred up some good press on his recent U. S. visit when he discussed the Battle of Gettysburg with former President Eisenhower.

The new "Accent" stanza has been ranging a wide field of nonnews informational and cultural shows in its few weeks on the air. Kickoff show, a salute to poet Robert Frost, had President Kennedy as a guest. Second show dealt with off-Broadway theatre exemplified by "Little Mary Sunshine." Others, past and upcoming, have had Elizabeth Schwartzkopf, the Wagnerian soprano, taped in a small town concert; and a visit to the National Art Gallery in Washington. Alternating producer with Kellerman is Bill Kobin.

PRINCE'S NEWS SLOT

Burroughs (Buck) H. Prince, formerly with "Monitor" news, was named NBC News manager, replacing Arthur Wakelee.

Wakelee is the new network producer responsible for news programming on NBC Radio and becomes a general news staff supervisor.

AT THE RISK OF REPEATING OURSELVES OURSELVES OURSELVES OURSELVES OURSELVES

NIELSEN'S NEW TOP 10 (Two weeks ending February 19AA)
GUNSMOKE		40.1
WAGON TRAIN	NBC	36.2
HAVE GUN-WILL TRAVEL		31.0
DU PONT SHOW		30.5
CANDID CAMERA		30.2
RAWHIDE		30.1
ANDY GRIFFITH		30.0
DENNIS THE MENACE		29.1
ED SULLIVAN		28.4
UNTOUCHABLES	ABC	28.2

A Frenchman once said the more things change the more they stay the same. This seems to be borne out by the latest Nielsen report which credits the CBS Television Network with broadcasting 8 out of the 10 most popular programs in television. Actually, this network has achieved, or surpassed, this performance 35 times in the past five-and-a-half years. During the same period no other network has matched this performance even once. Could it be a trend?

CBS

Taft Schreiber

Continued from page 27

than a year in jail.

Attorney Allen Susman for MCA had indicated this course of action all along and it is presumed that the case will go to the highest court. The other walkers-out at the original hearing, Dick Fishell, Betty Langley and Mary Rothschild, product promoters, have changed their tune.

MCA and Schreiber's chief objections were to the "ground rules" established for the hearing. Forcing Schreiber to testify in a public hearing about the policies, practices and activities of MCA, it was contended, would "require MCA to get forth in a public record every facet of its business. We maintain the commission lacks jurisdiction and the scope of the inquiry does not permit the disclosure of valuable business know-how and experience and the accumulated results of years of hard work under the American free enterprise system."

Testifying at the opening session was Fred Kline, who described himself as a "friendly and not hostile" witness. He pulled no punches in revealing the operations of Walter E. Kline & Associates, of which he said he was a consultant. When asked what writers get for a plug on a show, he declared "a case of whiskey or a gift certificate, but never cash." He told of how difficult it is to get a plug on a filmed tv show and went on to explain "We put several Nash automobiles on a program but when Packard bought the show, all the scenes with our planted cars had to be reshot."

Mex Censors

Continued from page 26

ing "morbid" crime, sex and suggestive themes not fit for general family fare. Ferretis said that there have been "far too many abuses" on this score in past months.

Ferretis has added to the staff of Film Bureau supervisors and these are going through and classifying an average of 10 films a day, including such favorites as "Perry Mason," "Have Gun, Will Travel," and police, crime, oaters, etc., turned out by American production units.

Generally speaking comedy shows, especially of the type of "Father Knows Best," will escape official censure. But comedy that relies on suggestive scenes or double meanings, will also be slashed.

Censorship will now insist that before dubbing begins on episodes or other filmed material, script has to be sent to the Film Bureau for okay. Feature lengths with subtitles will be reviewed just as is the practice in obtaining exhibition permits for commercial exploitation

TV Stations, Inc.

Continued from page 26

ing syndie shows. Bulletin is sent out on the particular show, with appraisal. Member stations sometimes ask TV Stations to enter negotiations for the show on the basis of a bulletin, or sometimes asks for shipment of sample episodes for screening prior to possible negotiations. When TV Stations, Inc., receives an order, it negotiates for the particular member station with the distributor on the show.

TV Stations, Inc., set up as a non-profit organization, for the past year has been trying to work out a plan to trade up the quality of syndicated shows. As part of its plan, the organization is establishing a Hollywood office. TV Stations, Inc., via its bulletining, etc., has been instrumental in negotiating deals for 71 markets on the new "Beachcomber" Filmaster series (see separate story).

HIGGINS' NEWS SLOT

Pittsburgh, March 14.

Ted F. X. Higgins, a Jim Hagerty type of newscaster, will take over the 11 p.m. news slot on WIIC here on Saturdays and Sundays.

Higgins is the head of the Foreign Policy Association of Pittsburgh and conducts the station's "Focus on World Affairs."

VARIETY ARB FEATURE FILM CHART

VARIETY-ARB's weekly chart offers a day-by-day analysis of the top feature evening slots in a particular market. On Saturdays and Sundays, daytime feature slots compete with nighttime pix periods for designation as the top feature slot of the day. The analysis is confined to the top rated feature slots in the ARB measured period, broken down by days in the week. The ARB measured period usually covers three or four weeks. Other data such as the time slot and average share of audience is furnished. Top competition and competitive ratings also are highlighted.

Dallas-Ft. Worth, Tex. • STA.: WBAP, WFAA, KRLD, KTVT. • Sur. Dates: NOV. 10-23, '60.

WFAA Average Rating: 1 Average Share: 17

MONDAYS 11:00-12:45
Program: CHANNEL 8 THEATRE

Nov. 14 "SO LITTLE TIME"
Maria Schell, Marius Goring
1952, J. Arthur Rank, NTA, 1st Run

Nov. 21 "LUCKY TO BE A WOMAN"
Sophia Loren, Charles Boyer
1958, Films Around World, Bernard L. Schuber

COMPETITION

PROGRAM	STATION & AVG. RATING
Jack Paar 10:45-12:00	WBAP 6
News, Almanac, Mys. 12:00-12:15	WBAP 1
Midnight Mystery 12:15-12:30	WBAP 1
Movie Time 11:00-12:15	KRLD 1
Starlight Theatre 11:00-12:15	KTVT 1

KTVT Average Rating: 1 Average Share: 13

MONDAYS 11:00-12:15
Program: STARLIGHT THEATRE

Nov. 14 "LEATHER GLOVES"
Cameron Mitchell, Sam Levine
1948, Universal, Screen Gems

Nov. 21 "AND ONE WAS BEAUTIFUL"
Robert Cummings, Laraine Day
1940, MGM, MGM-TV

COMPETITION

PROGRAM	STATION & AVG. RATING
Jack Paar 10:45-12:00	WBAP 6
News, Almanac, Mys. 12:00-12:15	WBAP 1
Midnight Mystery 12:15-12:30	WBAP 1
Movie Time 11:00-12:15	KRLD 1
Channel 8 Theatre 11:00-12:45	WFAA 1

KRLD Average Rating: 1 Average Share: 13

MONDAYS 11:00-12:15
Program: CHANNEL 4 MOVIETIME

Nov. 14 "SPIN A DARK WEB"
Faith Domergue, Lee Paterson, Rona Anderson
1956, Columbia, Screen Gems, 1st Run

Nov. 21 "YOUTH TAKES A FLING"
Joel McCrea, Andrea Leeds
1938, Univ. Int'l; Screen Gems, Repeat

COMPETITION

PROGRAM	STATION & AVG. RATING
Jack Paar 10:45-12:00	WBAP 6
News, Almanac, Mys. 12:00-12:15	WBAP 1
Midnight Mystery 12:15-12:30	WBAP 1
Starlight Theatre 11:00-12:15	KTVT 1
Channel 8 Theatre 11:00-12:45	WFAA 1

KTVT Average Rating: 2 Average Share: 3

TUESDAYS 8:00-10:00

Program: FABULOUS '52

Nov. 15 "THE POSTMAN ALWAYS RINGS TWICE"
Lana Turner, John Garfield
1946, MGM, MGM-TV

Nov. 22 "TO HAVE AND HAVE NOT"
Humphrey Bogart, Lauren Bacall
1945, Warner Bros., UAA

COMPETITION

PROGRAM	STATION & AVG. RATING
Tom Ewell 8:00-8:30	KRLD 20
Thriller 8:00-9:00	WBAP 18
Stagecoach West 8:00-9:00	WFAA 29
Red Skelton 8:30-9:00	KRLD 24
Garry Moore 9:00-10:00	KRLD 29
Dow Hour, Project 20 9:00-10:00	WBAP 13
Alcoa Presents 9:00-9:30	WFAA 26
Brothers Brannigan 9:30-10:00	WFAA 16

KTVT Average Rating: 2 Average Share: 22

TUESDAYS 11:00-12:30
Program: STARLIGHT THEATRE

Nov. 15 "HE MARRIED HIS WIFE"
Joel McCrea, Nancy Kelly
1940, 20th Century Fox, NTA

Nov. 22 "SHE WOULDN'T SAY YES"
Rosalind Russell, Lee Bowman
1945, Columbia, Screen Gems

COMPETITION

PROGRAM	STATION & AVG. RATING
Jack Paar 10:45-12:00	WBAP 7
Movie Time 11:00-12:00	KRLD 1
Channel 8 Theatre 11:00-12:45	WFAA 1
News, Almanac, Mys. 12:00-12:15	WBAP 2
Midnight Mystery 12:15-12:30	WBAP 1

KRLD Average Rating: 4 Average Share: 36

WEDNESDAYS 10:45 12:00
Program: CHANNEL 4 MOVIETIME

Nov. 16 "CLOUDS OVER EUROPE"
Laurence Olivier, Valerie Hobson, Ralph Richardson
1939, Alexander Korda, Western TV, Repeat

Nov. 23 "1984"
Edmond O'Brien, Michael Redgrave, Jan Sterling
1956, Columbia, Screen Gems, 1st Run

COMPETITION

PROGRAM	STATION & AVG. RATING
Jack Paar 10:45-12:00	WBAP 7
Football Highlights 10:45-11:00	WFAA 4
Weather, Sports 10:45-11:00	KTVT 2
Channel 8 Theatre 11:00-1:00	WFAA 2
Starlight Theatre 11:00-12:45	KTVT 2

KTVT Average Rating: 2 Average Share: 25

THURSDAYS 11:00-12:30
Program: STARLIGHT THEATRE

Nov. 10 "TO THE SHORES OF TRIPOLI"
John Payne, Maureen O'Hara, Randolph Scott
1942, 20th Century Fox, NTA

Nov. 17 "BELLE STARR'S DAUGHTER"
Rod Cameron, Ruth Roman, George Montgomery
1948, 20th Century Fox, M&Alexander

COMPETITION

PROGRAM	STATION & AVG. RATING
Jack Paar 10:45-12:00	WBAP 6
Channel 8 Theatre 11:00-12:30	WFAA 1
Movie Time 10:45-12:00	KRLD 2

KRLD Average Rating: 2 Average Share: 17

THURSDAYS 10:45-12:00
Program: CHANNEL 4 MOVIETIME

Nov. 10 "SOUTH OF TAHITI"
Brian Donlevy, Andy Devine, Marie Montez
1941, Univ. Int'l, Screen Gems, 1st Run

Nov. 17 "MERRY MONAHANS"
Donald O'Connor, Ann Blythe, Jack Oakie, Peggy Ryan
1944, Univ. Int'l, Screen Gems, Repeat

COMPETITION

PROGRAM	STATION & AVG. RATING
Jack Paar 10:45-12:00	WBAP 6
Rough Riders 10:30-11:00	WFAA 5
Weather, Sports 10:45-11:00	KTVT 2
Channel 8 Theatre 11:00-12:30	WFAA 1
Starlight Theatre 11:00-12:30	KTVT 2

(Continued on page 52)

'Pinocchio'

Continued from page 26

and went ahead with a plan to produce a total of 130 five-minute segments. Idea was that the capsules could be used as a five-minute strip, as a 15-minute or half-hour one-a-week show, or as a general library. Beyond this, Videocraft gives stations a duplication of the film set for construction locally, and if the station chooses it can program a half-hour strip even with the limited of films available by duplicating the set and using a live emcee as the Gepetto character, integrating other cartoons into the show. Finally, films are shot in units of five each, which can be run together to make a single story. Each five-minute film concerns Pinocchio's search for the Blue Fairy.

Videocraft has already completed and delivered 40 of the 130 segments, and is in production on the second group in the series. Meanwhile, work is going forward on "Wizard." Both incidentally are public domain properties (copyright on the original Baum book, "Wizard of Oz," has expired, although other books in the series are still protected). Videocraft chose to sell the shows on its own, instead of turning them over to a syndicator and giving away 35 to 40%, and chose syndication rather than network sale because the partners feel they can recoup more from market-by-market sale than they can under the restrictions of a network deal.

'Leonardo'

Continued from page 26

while keeping story lines simple. "When there's a doubt as to whether a particular line is over the heads of the kids, the doubt is always resolved in favor of the higher IQ level," says Covington.

Biggest boon to original cartoons, in tv, says Covington, was the process in which the number of frames a second was reduced to 12 from 24. It permitted great economies and opened the way for independent producers who had to work on limited budgets.

Another factor, he says, is that while his show is done in color, its registration is plotted so that it will be strong enough to stand up in black and white. The stronger colors selected for the b&w registration gives it an added tint kick because the shades aren't the usual ones for animation.

Covington puts the price of cartoon shows at $1,100 to $1,200 a minute (because of the whopping animation charges)—"If you can reduce the cost to $1,000, you're getting a bargain."

Col Post-'48s

Continued from page 26

cuse, Birmingham and Harrisburg, each of which bought 210 post-'48 Columbias and 115 Universals; WOAI, San Antonio, 365 pix, composed of 210 post-'48 Columbias, 50 "action" Columbias and the remainder Universals; WKBW, Buffalo, 490 pix, composed of post-'48 Columbias and pre-'48's of Columbia and Universal.

Under SG's "interested market" sales approach, syndie house opens a market to a sales pitch when stations in a particular market evidence interest in the post-'48 Columbia catalog. Handling the sales under this policy is the team of Robert Seidelman, syndication sales v.p. and Stanley Dudelson, syndie sales manager.

Sales policy, which is similar to that of MCA TV's handling of the Paramount library, calls for each station in the market to be given a full list of the pix being offered, with a price tag on each pic.

According to Seidelman the new deals in the eight markets provide for licensing of pix on an average of five to six years. Seidelman described interest in the post-'48's as brisk. He said the new deals, involving tall coin and a lot of pix, take time to negotiate.

Cleveland — Eugene M. Plumstead, veep of Plough Broadcasting in Memphis, is the new program manager of Westinghouse's KYW here. He replaces Bud Wendell who moves to WBC's N. Y. office as program coordinator, nighttime.

Says Edward A. Warren:

"Channel 9 was the first station to bring the best of the pre-48 features to Chicago. Therefore, it is naturally expected that we continue this tradition by delivering the best of the post-50's

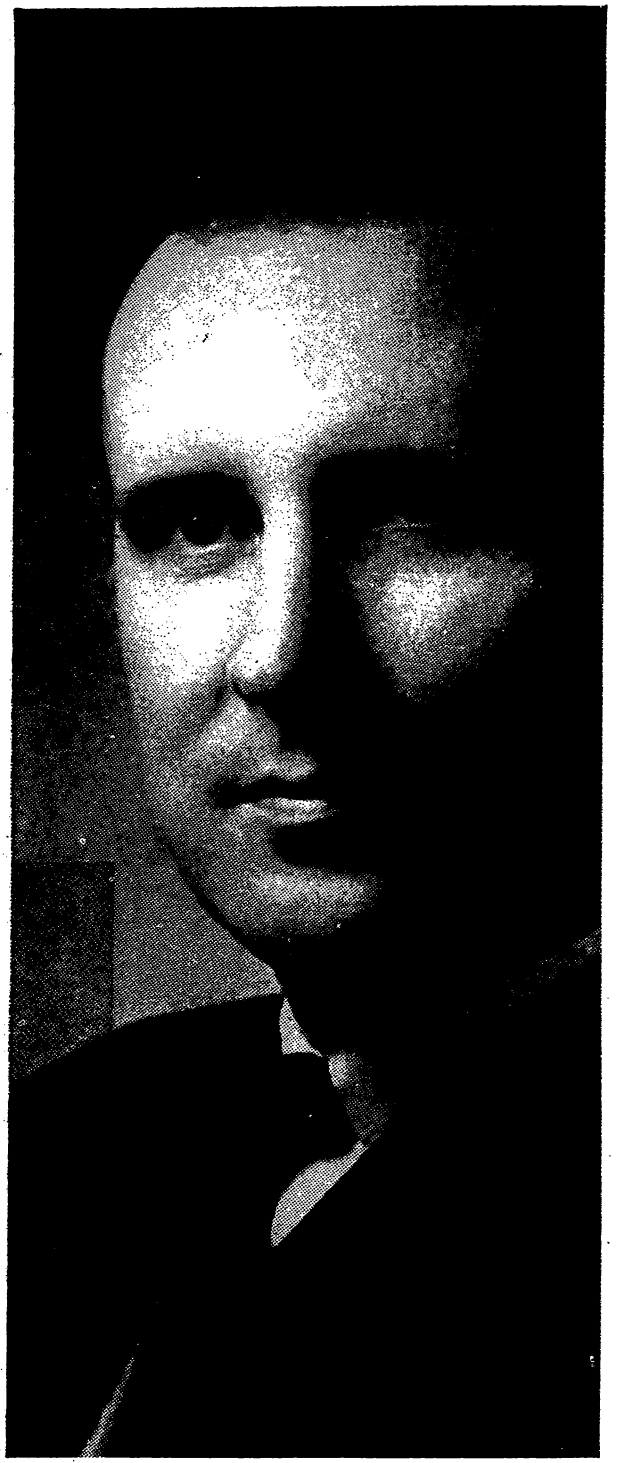
"This we have done in acquiring the distinguished features in the Seven Arts package. We know that we will deliver audiences to our sponsors, as well as add to our distinctive program schedule.

"The 26 films in color also will enable us to further this exciting dimension of our business. We know these films will do well in Chicago, because we know Chicago."



Edward A. Warren, Program Manager of WGN-TV, Chicago

SAA

SEVEN ARTS ASSOCIATED CORP.

NEW YORK: 270 Park Avenue • YUkon 6-1717
CHICAGO: 8922-D La Crosse, Skokie, Ill. • ORchard 4-5105
DALLAS: 5641 Charlestown Drive • ADams 9-2855
BEVERLY HILLS: 232 Reeves Drive • GRanite 6-1564

For list of TV stations programming Warner's Films of the 50's see Page One SRDS (Spot TV Rates and Data).

TV-Radio Production Centres

Continued from page 38

Award winning oil paintings by WBZ-TV are dept. artist Howard Swartzer on exhibit at Brockton Arts Festival.

IN PHILADELPHIA . . .

Gene Milner, WIP broadcaster for the Warrior's games, left for Flint, Mich., to take over the ownership of WTAC . . . The third annual "Liberty Bell Award" of the Television and Radio Advertising Club will be given to Milton Berle at a dinner at the Latin Casino (April 29) . . . James McMahon, assistant treasurer of 20th Century Fox, to speak to American Women in Radio and Television on "Film Records and Film Activities" at the Sheraton (21) . . . Mike Grant, WCAU program director, to observe programming at KNX, Los Angeles; KCBS, San Francisco; KLZ, Denver; and KMOX, St. Louis (8-20) . . . Peter Gallagher, advertising and promotion manager of WNHC, New Haven, a Triangle Station, appointed liaison man for TB representing the Broadcasters Promotion Association. He started his tv career at WFIL-TV later moved to WCAU-TV . . . Some 400 employees of the swing shift at the main Post Office (they get off between 3 and 5 a.m.) have petitioned local tv stations for all-night pix.

IN TORONTO . . .

CBLT-TV holding dry runs and auditions for successor on Canadian Broadcasting Corp.'s "Seven-O-One" interview series to Joyce Davidson, who has left for New York to become a Westinghouse gabber . . . Piano-playing Billy O'Connor joining CHUM for a 30-min. 11 p.m. program (Mon. thru Fri.) and featuring Vic Centro, Ken Gill and Jackie Richardson . . . Kevin O'Malloy, who has sung in the 32 countries of Ireland, doing a 60-min special for CFTO-TV as guestar on Fri. (17), with dancers and Bob Scott's orch supporting . . . Bill Stephenson, head of sports dept. of CFRB, Canada's largest indie radio station, off to Switzerland to cover World Hockey Championships via daily tape, plus his play-by-play coverage for CBC . . . Skedded to start April 30 in the sports car race from Montreal to Vancouver (4,500 miles) is Gill Christie of CBLT-TV, who will drive with Fred Thorne as navigator. Pair's trip will be covered throughout by "Camera Canada," new CBC documentary series . . . Frances Tobias has snaffled the mother role in the first tv series of "Jake and the Kid," with Murray Westgate and Rex Hagon in the title parts.

IN DETROIT . . .

Lee McNew back from a two-week trip to the Congo and has taken over the 11 p.m. news on WXYZ-TV Saturdays and Sundays for special reports. McNew also is back on his regular 6 p.m. cross-the-board newscasts . . . WWJ-TV has a new mobile unit that is 35 feet long, 12 feet high and nine feet wide and contains the latest refinements for remote sight and sound broadcasting . . . WJBK-TV daytime programming has a new look for spring with "Amos 'n Andy," Dick Powell, "Video Village" and "Double Exposure," joining old-regulars which have new time slots—"Bob Murphy's Morning Show," "I Love Lucy" and "My Little Margie" . . . Newscaster Lou Gordon returns to WXYZ cross-the-board from 6:25 to 6:30 p.m. . . . WWJ will broadcast nine exhibition Detroit Tigers baseball games with Stroh Brewery, Speedway Petroleum and American Tobacco picking up the tab and George Kell and Ernie Harwell doing the play-by-play.

IN BALTIMORE . . .

George Jessel appears tomorrow at the twelfth annual Fellowship dinner of the Beth El Men's Club . . . Fabian appears same day on the Buddy Deane Show. Mayor Grady will present him with key to the city. Tommy Edwards was recent visitor to the show . . . LaVerne Blackwell is new sales secretary at WMAR-TV and new additions to the script department there are Louise Drumel and Pat Campbell . . . "Man the Maker," local art program, goes from a half-hour to full hour on WMAR-TV this week . . . John Dos Passos, resident author, was a guest on "Adler Invites" Sunday, WJZ-TV . . . Howard E. Williams Jr., with 15 years experience in broadcast field, joins the WBAL Sports department . . . John McClay, general manager of WJZ-TV, spoke before Radio and TV Executives Buying and Selling Seminar in New York . . . "Learning to Read," aimed at "functionally illiterate" men and women, debuted Saturday on WBAL-TV, in cooperation with Adult Division of Baltimore Public Schools. Mrs. Naomi Baur Bauernfiend is instructor.

IN SAN FRANCISCO . . .

Phil Lasky, KPIX boss and WBC's vice president-West Coast, made a deep-dish speech to Frisco State College's Creative Arts Dept. and Business Administration School last week. In his speech he plugged for broader liberal education and, especially, "the faculty of expression and communication," which he felt too often "is conspicuous by its absence" among the current college crop . . . KGO-AM general manager Elmer Wayne and sales manager Del Gore in N. Y. for chats with John Blair Co. . . . KFRC's Tom Marks engaged to Angie Sabella . . . It's back to homebase for CBS-Radio's Jules Dundes — he was KCBS' first general manager after Arthur Hull Hayes was put in charge of the radio net's operation. Hayes brought Dundes east and now Dundes returns to KCBS and Maurie Webster heads east to run CBS-Radio's spot sales . . . KRON proud of landing two news shows in top 10 of ARB's January-February analysis . . . Bill Guyman peddled a new radio show—with Examiner's Monique Benoit—to KGO . . . KSFO's Al Collins doing a fortnight at the Nev.

IN MEMPHIS . . .

Tom Tichenor, WKNO-TV (educational channel) director, has exited this post to join the new Broadway musical "Carnival". . . WMCT station chief Earl Moreland told VARIETY that two RCA tv tape machines have been installed at Channel 5 . . . M. J. Vossee, ad exec here for many years has joined the WDIA sales staff . . . Gene Plumstead has exited his post as Plough Radio veepee to join Westinghouse's WKY in Cleveland . . . Charlie De Vois, WMPS skipper, back in harness after a siege in the hospital . . . Ditto for Tys Terwey, station's newshawk . . . WMC, NBC radio affiliate, again airing the full St. Louis Cardinal baseball sked . . . Jack Eaton, sportscaster of the same station, will air the NIT cage games of Memphis State Univ. direct from New York's Madison Square Garden . . . Plough radio prexy Harold Kreistein back at his desk after a looksee at his Chicago WJJD market.

IN MINNEAPOLIS . . .

FCC has approved purchase of Des Moines radio station KWKY by Tedesco, Inc., St. Paul, from General Broadcasting Services of Iowa. Tedesco also has applications pending for purchase of WMIN, St. Paul, and KBLO, Hot Springs, Ark., and is planning construction of new stations at Green Bay, Wis., and Hibbing, Minn. . . . Univ. of Minnesota department of radio-tv broadcasting is filming series of 13 programs on cancer research, detection and treatment for national distribution to commercial and educational tv stations. Series is being financed by $92,000 grant from the U. S. Public Health Service . . . WCCO-TV, Twin Cities CBS affiliate, has received two TV Radio Mirror gold medal awards. Station's "WCCO Television Reports" was named "best tv public service program, midwest states." Original musical "Christmas in the Air" was honored as best tv music program in the area . . . WTCN Radio preemed "Harmon Killebrew Sports" show Sunday (12), series of daily, five-minute sportscasts . . . North Dakota legislature has passed a bill providing $47,000 for preliminary negotiations to set up an educational tv network in the state.

IN PITTSBURGH . . .

George Jessel taped his whole 13 weeks of commentary on his "Hall of Fame" series on WIIC in one afternoon and then went over to Concordia Club for a club date. He said that if the series is successful he would like to do it in other cities . . . Ed King, whose "Party Line" with his wife, Wendy, is the most popular nighttime radio show here, was given an award by TV Radio Mirror for his reporting on Castro's Cuba . . . Al Abrams, sports editor of the Post Gazette, is doing filmed reports from Fort Myers, Fla., on the Pirates for WTAE. Sunnie Jennings, the new femme newscaster at KDKA-TV, is on hand for her station and Mal Alberts ditto for WIIC . . . Don Hoak, Pirate third baseman, will do a weekly Saturday program at 11:15 p.m. for KDKA-TV. He will leave tapes behind when the team's on the road. The station will carry a minimum of 35 Pirate games this year. Jack Berger, Pirate publicist, will also have a show this season with a weekly series every Friday at 6:30 over WWSW with Joe Tucker, dean of the Pitt sports announcers . . . Harry Kodinsky is planning a series of telethons in England and is also mulling over the idea of staging a series of shows from a ship for cities along both the Atlantic and Pacific seaboard.

'Sports Spectacular'

Continued from page 43

how long he expects it to take to achieve major league quality in the club, and other aspects of the setup); a show devoted to a mixed foursome on a par three golf course to see if the femme pros can beat the men where distance is no factor.

Also slated is the Florida-State U. Collegiate Circus, in which 100 college students stage a for-credit circus; a show devoted to Sports Down Under, featuring such unique sports as shark shooting and buffalo roping from airplanes; sports at a State Fair, including boxing bouts with a pro taking on all comers and the trotters; possible pickup of the National Polo Championships; ditto the National Air Races. Also the Laconia (N.H.) Motorcycle Rally. Also on the agenda, if it can be done properly, is a one-hour evaluation of the real state of American physical fitness.

Show marks the first major effort to program a general sports show in prime time. There have been boxing bouts, bowling shows, etc., in prime hours, but always dedicated to a specific sport and given events, rather than hitting highlights of different sports or going for the offbeat or unusual.

Cooper Agency Expands

Frank Cooper Associates agency is expanding its New York branch. Agency just moved into larger quarters, transferred one agent from the Coast to Gotham and signed its own business manager.

Martin Rosen, out of the Cooper homeoffice on the Coast, has moved east to work with the tv department and as eastern head of the literary department, which has had a run of 18 picture sales of books in the past 13 months. And Donald Sipes, out of NBC business affairs, has joined the agency as eastern biz affairs boss under N. Y. veep Sy Fischer.

Radio Review

PATTERSON-JOHANSSON TITLE FIGHT
With Les Keiter, Howard Cosell
Producer: Sports Program, Inc.
Director: James Colligan
45 Mins., Mon. (13), 10:15 p.m.
MENNEN, CARLING BREWING, STUDEBAKER-PACKARD
WABC, Miami
(Warwick & Legler; Lang, Fisher & Stashower; D'Arcy)

If radio fight coverage isn't an anachronism, blow-by-blow man Les Keiter and color man Howard Cosell made this event sound like it, with old-fashioned sensationalizing that had to sound very corny to the vast audience sophisticated by boxing on video.

Penny-dreadful spieling wasn't helped much by a zealous organist who may have been left over from the preceding rally of evangelist Billy Graham (was that a hymnal the organ struck up when Johansson took the count in the sixth round?). This organ was on full feed at all times, and when it wasn't sounding like a revival meeting, it was sounding like accomp for a roller rink.

Anyhow, the sound medium served as a conveyor of instant reportage on the third-time-around heavyweight title bout between Floyd Patterson and Swede challenger Ingemar Johansson and all the razzle-dazzle at least had the support of an exciting bout.

Broadcast, produced for the ABC Radio web by Sports Programs, was fed to 485 U.S. stations, another 70 in Canada. Mennen Co. bankrolled a half; Carling Brewing had all but four major markets; and Studebaker-Packard had part of the tab for New York, San Francisco, Chicago and Los Angeles.

Bill.

Flamingo

Continued from page 27

Catholic Legion of Decency C-rating (condemned for all). Pix were originally distributed with a contractual rider that stations not desiring to play them could turn them back for another title.

Several stations did play C pix without incident. But public howls went up, or threatened to, in Atlanta (for sure), San Antonio, Seattle, Cedar Rapids, Mich., and elsewhere. In one city, the station manager, under public pressure, accused Flamingo of slipping a C picture in on him. In another, a high-ranking cleric called the station and threatened a boycott of sponsor products.

Reich Stations

Continued from page 1

West Germany and can be played for a nickel a spin on thousands of West German jukeboxes.

But the two stations which have banned the record protest that Presley has commercialized and thus ruined an old German classic. Popularizations of the traditional German folk songs are causing the old versions to die out, according to one Bavarian radio network official.

"Four out of five songs that our kids sing today are modern hits," he reported. "Only one is a folk song." He also regretted that two other old German favorites, "Good Moon" and "Sleep My Prince," are now reeling out in Dixieland versions.

"We will fight this invasion with all our strength," a radio spokesman said. "We won't let foreigners dictate to us."

ACTION THAT WINS BIG SHARES, BIG RATINGS!
"TWO FACES WEST"
BIRMINGHAM 61% Audience Share 30. Rating
ERIE 74% Audience Share 35. Rating
LUBBOCK 80% Audience Share 36. Rating
Source: ARB 11/60
For Further Details Contact
SCREEN GEMS, INC.
TELEVISION SUBSIDIARY OF COLUMBIA PICTURES CORP.
711 Fifth Avenue, New York 22 PL 1-4432
NEW YORK DETROIT CHICAGO DALLAS HOLLYWOOD ATLANTA TORONTO

HEP REP
TvAR...a new breed of reps. Small list of big stations. Big staff of Spot Specialists. Deep Research. Videotape Service. A new right arm for agencies...
TvAR
TELEVISION ADVERTISING REPRESENTATIVES, INC.

THE FIRST 21 MAJOR MARKET BREAKDOWN

Shows An

18.0 RATING and 30.2 SHARE

In Early Evening Time

*AND AS WE GO TO PRESS—THE LATEST RATINGS IN EVERY CITY ARE CLIMBING STILL HIGHER!

MR. ED

Starring

ALAN YOUNG

Co-starring

CONNIE HINES LARRY KEATING

Produced and Directed By ARTHUR LUBIN

•

Sponsored Nationally by STUDEBAKER LARK DEALERS
Through D'ARCY ADVERTISING AGENCY, CO.

FILMWAYS TELEVISION

Television Reviews

Continued from page 35

bright, inventive and at times hilarious. Opening sketch, with Kovacs as a detective and Conreid a gangster shooting it out in a warehouse only to have Pat Carroll and Edie Adams as their wives show up with housewives complaints ("there's just no excitement in our lives anymore") was likewise a clever bit.

Agenda also included Kovacs' standby Percy Dovetonsils character, this time as a private eye. If the sketch didn't quite come off, his opening poem about Sam, the space chimp, did, and in the best Ogden Nash style. A takeoff on "Peter Gunn," titled "Peter Legato," had its good moments (best was Miss Adams' impression of Lola Albright) but it was too long.

Among the shorter items, the best was Kovacs' Nairobi Trio sketch in a pantomime of a safe-cracking bit; this will probably find its way into Kovacs' growing repertory—in fact, he's got so many good numbers in the Nairobi catalogue, he could probably do a half-hour special on that alone. Miss Carroll had an okay special material song as a private eye's love-smitten secretary; Miss Adams did one of her song-without-words numbers, to Debussy music, with effectiveness; finally an ensemble dance number pegged to a pursuit was well done, if somewhat pretentious.

Barry Shear directed the hour at a fast and inventive clip, and Liebman's production trappings were all at a high standard. In these U.S. Steel specials, Liebman's track record so far has consisted of big hits or dismal flops, with no in-between; this one improves his batting average considerably.

Chan.

DATELINE ROME: FASHION IS NEWS
With Celeste Holm; host-narrator, Domenico Medugno
Prod.-Dir.: Mel London
Writer: Maureen Fountain
30 Mins.; Sun. (12), 11:15 p.m.
ALITALIA AIR LINES
WNBC-TV (tape)
(Gardner)

Skirts, blouses, panchos and coats, draped on comely models, were the mainstays of this fashion show, vidtaped in Rome. Celeste Holm, as host, in her interludes with Italy's romantic vocalist, Domenico Medugno, overplayed sentimentality to a fault. She was absolutely gushing.

Half-hour show was strictly for the femmes, with the entertainment values small and studied. Fashion portion, though, which was the bulk of the outing, must have been of keen interest to women. The dresses were created by leading designers on the continent and the fashion splash, against Rome's unique backgrounds, looked like still's from leading women's mags transferred to the tv screen.

Macy's received an ample plug, although Alitalia Air Lines was the sponsor of record. Catch line for Macy's in the narration was that these dresses displayed on tv Sunday (12) were available in popular priced reproductions the following day at Macy's.

Medugno, in his rich, romantic voice, sang a few numbers, but with those models and Celeste Holm gushing, they never escaped the artificiality of the moment. The show rested on the display of fashions, which was ample. Color, of course, would have been a big plus, but may have been prohibitive in costs for this local telecast. Show was part of WNBC-TV's "Salute to Italy" weeklong program fete.

Horo.

MOTHER & DAUGHTER
With Patricia Neal, Arthur Hill, Lynn Liring, Pauline Frederick, Trude Lash
Prod., Dir., Writer: George Lefferts
60 Mins., Thurs., 4 p.m.
PUREX
NBC-TV from N. Y.

"Mother and Daughter," one of the hour-long Purex specials for women, probes into strange territory for daytime viewing. Their stanza concerned itself with a teenager whose resentment of parental authority spilled over into rebellion.

The yarn was clothed in authority, with Pauline Frederick, who also covers the UN for NBC, providing the commentary and an interview session afterward. There were also the production gimmicks of sets with stark frameworks to provide an unusual dramatic touch, and spinning reels of tape to suggest that all this had been mulled over by authorities in the field.

These accoutrements helped in creating an atmosphere of authenticity, but even at that, there seemed to be too much concession to the time of day. In form and construction it remained a daytimer with the story told in soap-opera terms, albeit superior ones. The portrayals by Patricia Neal and Arthur Hill as the parents, and Lynn Loring as the daughter, were of rather high calibre. Miss Frederick's commentary also helped to place the show on a superior level.

Jose.

Chicago's Luxury Hotel

DRIVE-IN PARKING • RESTAURANT-LOUNGE
PRIVATE BANQUET & MEETING ROOMS
For reservations, write, wire, phone Executive House; or see your local travel agent.
71 E. Wacker Dr., Chicago 1, Ill. Financial 6-7100
A. M. QUARLES, General Manager
Opening early 1961, another EXECUTIVE HOUSE Washington, D.C.

Gen. Mills

Continued from page 25

Mills currently has two versions of the half-hour "Rocky & His Friends" in weekend ABC-TV time. Part of "King Leonardo" on NBC weekends and some "Lone Ranger" and soap opera money floating around the airwaves too. Then there are some Wheaties baseball billings that might be available. It all comes to a lot of loot.

NBC and CBS might try to make room for some of the General Mills "action" programs in their weekend schedules, if the bankroll now at ABC-TV cannot otherwise be diverted.

Most of the daytime money for General Mills is disbursed by Dancer-Fitzgerald-Sample agency and "Bride" is held by BBDO, but the two agencies appear to be working together on arranging a proper alliance for their collective video offspring.

ABC-TV, where a "Bride" does not appear to be part of the picture, is nonetheless still negotiating to hold onto the strip show money. NBC-TV is willing to open up a Friday night half-hour for "Bride" possibly 9:30 p.m. (with the Jane Powell show, owned by Pepsi-Cola and American Tobacco, at 9 p.m.). CBS is talking Fridays, too.

In short, "Bride" overnight has become warm—like brides are supposed to be.

Foreign TV Followup

Continued from page 34

married secretly, and was prepared to ease over father's disapproval.

But it appeared that they were quite right about the young fellow. He did a moonlight flit from the town. Martha overhead their talk, but wouldn't confess her mistake; her pride wouldn't let her. So she took a train to join the runaway husband, knowing that she wouldn't find him but preferring loneliness to an admission of her folly.

Trouble with all this was that the plot could be told in 30 minutes but was allotted 60. So Foote tricked it out with irrelevant and yawnsome padding, not reaching his crisis until the piece was more than half way through. Equally, the sensitivity of the girl wasn't fully established and her final journey was thus not especially pathetic, merely a youthful bit of idiocy.

However, Susannah Yorke supplied delicacy and a haunting despair and did much to work up sympathy. Joan Newell, as the worried mum, and first-class, and Jane Asher, as Martha's younger sister, touched in some grave and gay moments.

The deep-South ambience, with its snobbish distinctions (time was 1915), was captured well in Disley Jones' sets and in Toby Robertson's otherwise clumsy direction.

Otta.

The Sunday-Night Play

BBC-TV's most important dramatic skein, "Sunday-Night Play," came up with an intriguing item in Leo Lehman's "A Reason for Staying." With literate dialog and a satisfying theme, it finally disappointed only because it lacked variety of incident and emotional horse-power.

The General (Anthony Quayle) was the wartime hero of an unspecified European country now overrun by the Commies. Working in a London bakery, he was the focal point of the comical emigre government that met in a club. Suddenly, a comrade-in-arms turns up, sent by the Red government to persuade the General to return home and lend his support to the regime. This man, Raneki (Denholm Elliott), had powerful arguments at his disposal. What was the point of wasting his hopes in a fruitless cause? The Reds were permanently in charge, most of the General's former friends were on their side, and his country needed him to avert another Budapest.

All this was bitingly expressed, and given force by the glimpses of the arid lives led by the other emigres. But the drama fell down when it came to the General's reply. All he could say was that he was too old and tired, had acquired fresh loyalties to his workmates and his new country. In fact, he just wanted to be left alone and wouldn't be roused.

Thus Lehman muffed his chances when he came to the crisis, and the argument languidly petered out, with Raneki packing his bags for the East and the General settling back into his groove. What promised to be a mind-nudging political set-to died on its feet. A quaint side-interest was provided by Nicole (Heather Sears), an idealistic young maiden who attempted to stir up the slumbering General by, most improbably, trying to seduce him. But this didn't give much kick to the plot.

Still, in its sleepy way, "A Reason for Staying" kept the interest. Much credit for this was due to Anthony Quayle, who gave a memorable panegyric of British virtues, to the taut and incisive performance of Denholm Elliott, and to the exact and convincing production of Alvin Rakoff, who captured flawlessly the purposeless harking-back to the past and an impossible future of the refugees. In minor parts, Cyril Raymond, Warren Mitchell, and Richard Warner clicked, and Ruth Dunning scored as the General's sympathetic friend.

Otta.

Inside Stuff—Radio-TV

Zenith Radio Corp., whose stocks continuously ride the upward line, leveled during the fourth quarter of 1960, ending Dec. 31. Consolidated earnings totaled $15,225,819, or $5.11 per share, representing the second highest earning rate in Zenith's 42-year history, exceeded only by the record year of '59 when earnings topped $16,000,000.

Consolidated sales for the year, which netted $254,111,740, also second in company history, dipped 2% below the record $260,033,866 reported for 1959.

Prexy Joseph S. Wright explained that sales and profits were affected by a general decline in economic activity, plus an August strike which shut down Zenith's main plants for the first time in the company's history.

CBS-TV's "The Spy Next Door," presented last month on "Armstrong Circle Theatre" after some initial reluctance, has been tapped for a special showing at National Military-Industrial and Educational Conference in Chicago on April 12. Conference is a project of the Institute for American Strategy, whose objective is described as that of "furthering public understanding of the totalitarian challenge to American freedom."

Film, a dramatization of Communist espionage in the U. S., based on actual cases, was held back by the web a couple weeks as not to impair Soviet-U. S. relations immediately after the Presidential Inauguration.

TV Guide has hired the John Golden Theatre for the Tuesday, April 18 performance of Nichols & May. It's part of a series of festivities that night for which the magazine is bringing together top agency and network tv brass "just to talk and have fun."

Mag's owner Walter Annenberg, who heads the entire Triangle chain, the Morning Telegraph and the Philadelphia Inquirer, is starting things off that night by hosting a "private party" at 21 for web and certain agency toppers and for some of his family. They move to the Golden where the 790 seats have been reserved for a wider array of agency and network executive and performing talent. Windup comes at a bash set at Sardi's West.

To commemorate the eighth anniversary of Annenberg's purchase of Guide, it'll cost the publisher at least $25,000.

Director Seymour Robbie has been on a bicycle throughout the east for the past several weeks. Started when he was up in Boston doing a show for the educational station there, WGBH-TV, and he got a hurry-up call from his agent to proceed from there to Detroit to direct an industrial film for General Motors.

In Detroit, the agent, Sy Fischer of the Frank Cooper office, called again—he had a deal for Robbie to direct the Jackie Gleason show. Finishing the GM pic, Robbie flew back to N. Y. to do Gleason, then moved to Miami for the two shows which originated there.

Fischer, who doesn't know how to dial local calls, called Robbie there with a new assignment—the directing chores on the March 26 "Omnibus," starring Edie Adams in "An Omnibus of American Songs."

Fifty radio-tv manufacturers and suppliers plan to exhibit at the annual convention of National Assn. of Broadcasters in D.C. this May. NAB said it will be the biggest equipment exhibition in the 39-year history of its annual conclaves.

Among firms which have already contracted for exhibit space are: Capitol Records, General Electric, Minneapolis-Honeywell, Programatic Broadcasting Service, RCA, and TelePrompter Corp.

Licensing Corp. of America, which does the merchandising for various tele and film properties as well as personalities, is expanding to the Coast. Jay Emmett, board chairman of the firm, planed into Hollywood to open LCA of California. Coast operation will be headed by Don Henley and Henry Hurt.

LCA was formed several months ago in New York as the result of the merger of three firms, Jay Emmett Enterprises, Allan Stone & Leon Newman and Sid Rubin Enterprises.

Bob Keeshin (CBS-TV's "Capt. Kangaroo") is staging one of his "Fun With Music" concerts in Chicago May 7 at the 5,000-seat McCormick Place auditorium. Show will be taped by WBBM-TV, the local CBS o&o, and telecast the following Saturday (14) at 6 p.m. preempting "Lassie" and "Dennis the Menace." Keeshin, who has put on his music bash for moppets previously in Philly and Los Angeles, will use the WBBM orchestra augmented to 60 pieces, with Caesar Petrillo conducting. Telecast will be sponsored by Certified Food Stores.

Athens, Ga.—Samuel Dress has joined WGTV, U. of Georgia's educational station, as assistant production manager. A native of Providence, R. I., he worked with WHDH-TV, Boston.

Ampex Net Down

Redwood City, Cal., March 14.

Ampex's net loss for the quarter ending Jan. 31 was $1,762,000 on sales of $17,372,000, against year-ago earnings for the quarter of $659,000 or 9 cents a share on sales of $17,685,000.

The loss was reported by Ampex President George I. Long Jr., who earlier had forecast the quarter might show a deficit of nearly $2,000,000.

Long said a combination of factors, including heavy initial start-up costs for several new products, accounted for the quarter's red ink.

For the nine months ended Jan. 31 Ampex showed a net loss of $1,303,000 on sales of $53,073,000.

IDEAL! 6,000 SQ. FT.!
Right Off Broadway
Sound-Studio Space
6,000 sq. ft. Divided Into 3 Floors! Also Separate! Excellent for Record Co., T.V., Stage, Screen Releasing or Dance Studio. Modern Elevator Bldg.
234 West 56 Street, New York, N. Y.
WOrth 2-1370

EVERY DAY ON EVERY CHANNEL TV
BROOKS COSTUMES
3 West 61st St., N.Y.C.-Tel. PL 7-5800

Edward Petry & Co., Inc.
Television Division
The Original Station Representative
BEST IN SPOT TV

KOB-TV.....Albuquerque
WSB-TV.....Atlanta
KERO-TV.....Bakersfield
WBAL-TV.....Baltimore
WGR-TV.....Buffalo
WGN-TV.....Chicago
WFAA-TV.....Dallas
WNEM-TV....Flint-Bay City
KPRC-TV.....Houston
WDAF-TV.....Kansas City
KARK-TV.....Little Rock
KCOP.....Los Angeles
WPST-TV.....Miami
WISN-TV.....Milwaukee
KSTP-TV.Minneapolis-St.Paul
WSM-TV.....Nashville
WNEW-TV.....New York
WTAR-TV.....Norfolk
KWTV.....Oklahoma City
KMTV.....Omaha
KPTV.....Portland, Ore.
WJAR-TV.....Providence
WTVD.....Raleigh-Durham
WROC-TV.....Rochester
KCRA-TV.....Sacramento
WOAI-TV.....San Antonio
KFMB-TV.....San Diego
WNEP-TV.Scranton-Wilkes Barre
KREM-TV.....Spokane
KVOO-TV.....Tulsa

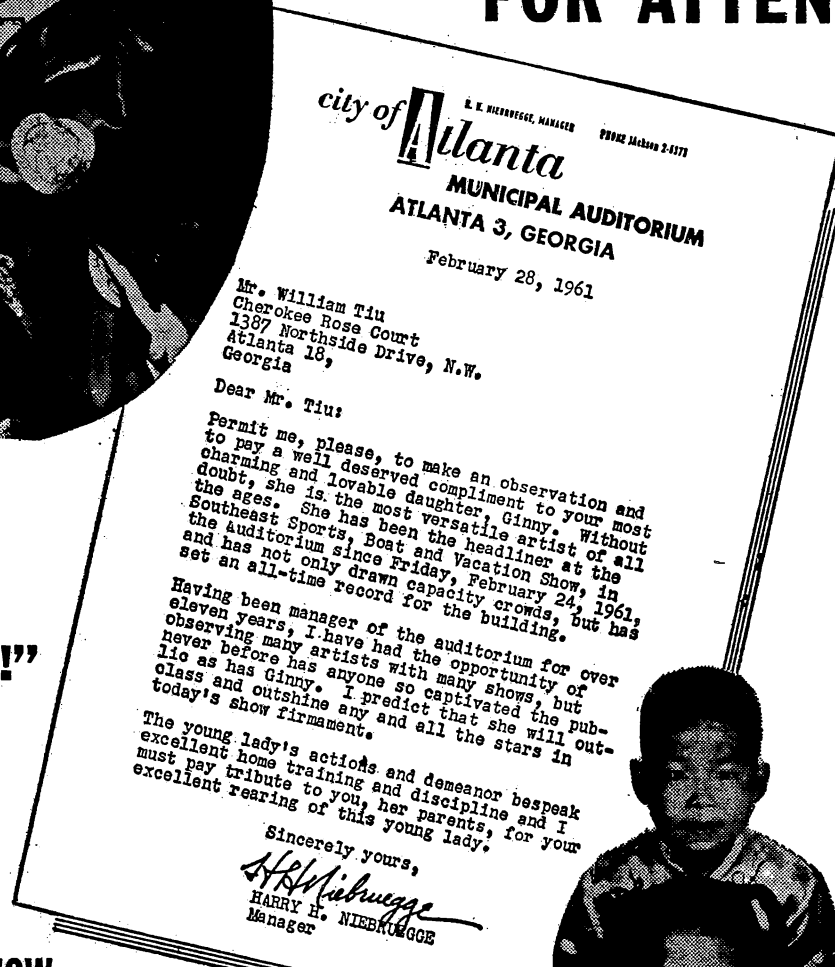
GINNY TIU

THE CHINA DOLL
and the HAPPY TIUS...

"I predict that she will outclass and outshine any and all the Stars in today's show firmament."

—Harry H. Niebruegge, Manager,
Municipal Auditorium, Atlanta, Ga.

BREAKS ALL RECORDS FOR ATTENDANCE



city of Atlanta

H. H. NIEBRUEGGE, MANAGER PHONE JAckson 2-6171

MUNICIPAL AUDITORIUM
ATLANTA 3, GEORGIA

February 28, 1961

Mr. William Tiu
Cherokee Rose Court
1387 Northside Drive, N.W.
Atlanta 18,
Georgia

Dear Mr. Tiu:

Permit me, please, to make an observation and to pay a well deserved compliment to your most charming and lovable daughter, Ginny. Without doubt, she is the most versatile artist of all the ages. She has been the headliner at the Southeast Sports, Boat and Vacation Show, in the Auditorium since Friday, February 24, 1961, and has not only drawn capacity crowds, but has set an all-time record for the building.

Having been manager of the auditorium for over eleven years, I have had the opportunity of observing many artists with many shows, but never before has anyone so captivated the public as has Ginny. I predict that she will outclass and outshine any and all the stars in today's show firmament.

The young lady's actions and demeanor bespeak excellent home training and discipline and I must pay tribute to you, her parents, for your excellent rearing of this young lady.

Sincerely yours,

H. H. Niebruegge

HARRY H. NIEBRUEGGE
Manager

YAKIMA
Washington
State Fair

PHOENIX
Arizona
State Fair

●

Next Appearances:

Des Moines, Iowa
SPORTS, BOAT and VACATION SHOW
March 21-28

Dallas, Texas
SPORTS, BOAT and VACATION SHOW
April 8-17

●

"THE GREATEST!"
Jimmy Durante

●

Stars In

PERRY COMO SHOW
March 22

BACHELOR FATHER TV
March 23

for STATE FAIRS, INDUSTRIAL SHOWS, AUDITORIUMS

General Artists Corporation
NEW YORK CHICAGO BEVERLY HILLS CINCINNATI DALLAS LONDON

GABBE, LUTZ, HELLER & LOEB
Personal Management
New York — Hollywood

GEORGE H. MAINES Manager Public Relations
c/o WILLIAM TIU, 2017 No. Vine St., Hollywood, Calif.

Paar-Sullivan TV Feud

Continued from page 24

for the debate, a hassle that was settled when Paar promised they'd behave.

The debate was off, but the real problem, obscured both by headlines and the emotional heat, remained. What constitutes a "performance" by a bonafide performer who has a stock of anecdotes and a variety of routines? This, presumably, is what Sullivan had in mind when he notified the major talent agencies last week that henceforth any performer appearing on the Paar show for the scale fee of $320 would get that same sum and no more for an appearance on his show, which normally pays up to $7,500 for a guest shot.

Story broke or was leaked last Thursday (9) in Jack O'Brian's N. Y. Journal-American column, and Paar immediately hopped on that same night for a tearful on-the-air session that ranged from pleas to threats and challenges to Sullivan's position. But the O'Brian piece was far from clear on what Sullivan had in mind, and the following day, Sullivan amplified his position to point out that he had in mind a bonafide performance—"if he's going to do a night club routine, he's giving a performance"—as opposed to merely witty conversation.

Question in reality got down to a matter of specific personalities—Myron Cohen, who cancelled out of the Thursday night Paar show because of the Sullivan ukase, would probably have delved into his backlog of nitery stories for his appearance, while Joey Bishop, a Paar adherent, wouldn't. Similar borderline case is Sam Levenson, whose appearance on the Paar show apparently teed Sullivan off to the point where he issued the ultimatum. While Levenson writes an original routine for every Sullivan show he does, he's nevertheless a storyteller rather than a conversationalist, and the similarity in routines is what Sullivan had in mind.

A second basic point is the "medium" of the appearance, with the Paar show naturally comprising a smaller audience and a different type of "performance" than an appearance on the Sullivan show. As one non-trade layman put it in a discussion of the hassle: "Let's face it, comics get paid immense sums in Las Vegas and then will work for next to nothing in summer stock. It's a different kind of exposure." This, apart from the economics of the Paar show, which though it probably could permit over-scale payment, couldn't hope to compete with Sullivan on an even basis for talent.

But these issues were obscured in the eagerness of the boys to grab headlines. Paar went on the air without calling Sullivan for confirmation or clarification of the O'Brian piece, and the next morning the Journal-American used the story as its Page One streamer. Both the Post and World-Telegram & Sun, breaking with lesser stories in their early editions, moved the "feud" up to lead-story status for the middle and late editions.

Meanwhile, Paar in his eagerness to do battle, put several performers on the spot as they "declared themselves" for either party. Bishop and Buddy Hackett appeared on Thursday's Paar show to reassure him they were on his side; Shelley Berman, Jonathan Winters and others also told Paar to count them in. Cohen, Levenson and others said they'd stick with Sullivan.

Most revealing episode occurred on the Paar show that night when Paar said that he'd now be able to see how loyal his friends really were. He said he had called Bishop's home that afternoon, "but suddenly he couldn't be reached." He was about to tear into Bishop when the comic himself stepped out on stage and took Paar completely by surprise.

Though the newspapers gave the "feud" full coverage, there were indications that a sizeable proportion of the public couldn't have cared less. One such indication was the ratings—the Thursday night Paar segment, though not publicized in advance, had poorer ratings than the Thursday previous; the Friday segment, though a taped-repeat of the week's best and therefore offering viewers the possibility of seeing what they missed the night before, was also lower than the previous Friday. And Sullivan's Sunday show, according to Arbitron, had a lower rating than the March 5 Sullivan show.

Another index was the reaction of the Thomson newspapers (Sunday Times) of London, whose Arnold Field, on a roving assignment in the U. S., queried his homeoffice on whether they wanted coverage. Answer was "Who cares?"

Best crack on the entire affair came from Jackie Gleason, who sent Paar a wire offering him $320 to appear as a conversationalist on Gleason's own CBS Friday night show. No reply, nor was one expected.

2 Hour Shows Out Of Revue Shop Eyed by CBS; Chill Wills, Derek Set

Chill Wills, up for a supporting actor nomination in the current Oscar race for his "Alamo" role, has been signed by CBS-TV along with John Derek to star in "Frontier Circus," one of two hourlong pilots which Revue Productions is filming for the network.

Other pilot is "The Investigators," which stars James Franciscus and James Philbrook. Both are currently in production, and both are candidates for the two prime hours still open on the network, the Wednesday 8:30-9:30 period and the Friday 10-11 slot. The CBS commitment with Revue calls for the network to pay for 13 segments of one of the two properties, but the web hasn't yet decided which one to order. Web doesn't have to use the 13 shows either, though of course it must pay for them.

Unusual wrinkle to the "Frontier Circus" casting is that Wills and Derek were signed by the network to web talent contracts, rather than by Revue, the producer. Ordinarily, the packager handles all casting deals, but in this instance CBS-TV wanted a hold on the talent and also was able to offer better terms than Revue was willing to put forward in order to grab Wills and Derek. In another instance, CBS put one of its contract players into the lead of "The Jayhawkers," pilot which 20th-Fox TV is doing for the network.

Ed Conway's Pitt Shift

Pittsburgh, March 14.

Ed Conway, the 11 p.m. newscaster for WIIC here since 1957, has been hired by WTAE to replace Ray Scott as sports director.

The appointment came as a big surprise here and left WIIC with a big gap in its news department. Bob Cochran and Mark Schaeffer are filling in until a replacement for Conway is found.

Prior to his arrival in Pittsburgh, Conway was sports director for WORK, York, Pa., and WCMB TV and WCMB, Harrisburg.

What the Talent Agents Are Saying

"There was no necessity for the Sullivan-Paar salary squabble to come out in the open," is the concensus of talent agency thinking on the controversy between the two show toppers. One exec said, "A guy reading about the salaries paid to entertainers resents this situation since he feels that he works just as hard and has a helluva time trying to buy his kid a new winter coat. Both Sullivan and Paar can only lose."

Currently, machinery exists so that a performer can be forced to make a choice and stick with it. He cited the "before and after" clause in all agency contracts. A performer signing a guest shot pact specifies that he will not appear on any other show for 21 days prior to his appearance and eight days afterward. Strict enforcement of that rule and an entertainer will be forced to take a stand."

It's pointed out that an entertainer based in New York where both the Sullivan and Paar shows generally originate, will have to make an alliance. He can only work occasionally on either the Garry Moore, Perry Como, Sullivan or Paar shows under these circumstances, and it would be unwise for him to move into a lower paying bracket consciously. A Hollywood visitor is in New York for a limited time, and he would have to make his choice and get out of town since it's unlikely he'll hang around for more than a month, the total of the before and after time.

One exec General Artists Corp. pointed out that he recently asked the booker for the Garry Moore show for a waiver to permit a name act to go on Jack Paar. The booker, he claimed, refused saying, "Especially Jack Paar." The Moore show is one that rigidly enforces this edict of 21 days before and eight afterward. The show producers would like more, "but that's all we'll give 'em," said the agent.

Another factor that has made the agencies bitter at the outbreak is the fact that "each show has its place." The Paar layout permits a performer a wide lattitude. He doesn't even have to even go near his specialty. He comes on to show the public an entirely different side. He's relaxed, isn't confined to a script and is permitted to become a nice guy or a clever fellow or any combination of personalities. On Sullivan he has to be a polished professional, and he stands or falls on that. If an act makes good on either show, he is wanted in a lot of places. Each has been known to enhance the value of a performer.

On a purely business basis, opinion seemed evenly divided. While many more claimed that a Paar shot seemed more desirable to newcomers, many felt that a heavy registration on Sullivan would be better suited to the top earners. They also pointed out that Sullivan has little need for newcomers, unless some angle is involved.

The agents, however, clucked at the utter waste of feeling and all that publicity which can only harm both of them. "Even if there is a winner, he's gotta lose."

MILWAUKEE BRAVES' 3-SPONSOR PARLAY

Milwaukee, March 14.

WTMJ, The Milwaukee Journal station, will provide extensive coverage of Milwaukee Braves baseball activities, including play-by-play exhibition and regular season games, plus a variety of "satellite" programming.

Sponsors for Braves play-by-play, include the Miller Brewing Co., associated with these broadcasts since the Braves moved to Milwaukee, in 1953, the Clark Oil & Refining Co., and the American Tobacco Co., for dual filter Tareytons. This will be the seventh year of Braves sponsorship for Clark and second year for American Tobacco.

Broadcasts will include 18 exhibition games, starting March 11, plus the entire 154-game regular season.

Houston—Robert W. Dundas, announcer and m.c. for KPRC-TV here has resigned his post to join the staff of Erwin Wasey, Ruthrauff & Ryan as an account exec and manager of the agency's local office.

VARIETY ARB FEATURE FILM CHART

(Continued from page 46)

WFAA Average Rating: 4 Average Share: 50

FRIDAYS 11:30-1:15
Program: CHANNEL 8 THEATRE

Nov. 11 "THE FIRST TRAVELLING SALESLADY"
Ginger Rogers, Carol Channing
1956, Universal, Show Corp. of America, 1st Run

Nov. 18 "SUSAN SLEPT HERE"
Dick Powell, Debbie Reynolds
1954, RKO, Show Corp. of America, 1st Run

COMPETITION

PROGRAM	STATION & AVG. RATING
Jack Paar 10:45-12:00	WBAP 5
Movietime 10:45-12:30	KRLD 3
Starlight Theatre 11:00-12:45	KTVT 2
News, Almanac, Mys. 12:00-12:15	WBAP 1
Midnight Mystery 12:15-12:30	WBAP 1

WBAP Average Rating: 12 Average Share: 39

SATURDAYS 5:00-6:30
Program: SATURDAY SHOWCASE

Nov. 12 "THE GUILT OF JANET AMES"
Rosalind Russell, Melvyn Douglas
1947, Columbia, Screen Gems, Repeat

Nov. 19 "THE THING"
Kenneth Tobey, Margaret Sheridan, Dewey Martin
1951, RKO, UAA, Repeat

COMPETITION

PROGRAM	STATION & AVG. RATING
Wrestling 5:00-6:00	KRLD 6
All Star Golf 5:00-6:00	WFAA 7
Star Theatre 5:00-6:00	KTVT 4
News 6:00-6:15	KRLD 17
Police Report, Wea. 6:15-6:30	KRLD 18
8 Lives, Expedition 6:00-6:30	WFAA 6
Football Scoreboard 6:00-6:30	KTVT 2

KRLD Average Rating: 7 Average Share: 70

SUNDAYS 11:00-12:00
Program: WESTERN THEATRE

Nov. 13 "RANGELAND EMPIRE"
James Ellison, Russell Haydon
1950, Lippert, Guild Films, Repeat

Nov. 20 "I SHOT BILLY THE KID"
Don Barry, Tom Neal, Robert Lowery
1951, Lippert, Guild Films, Repeat

COMPETITION

PROGRAM	STATION & AVG. RATING
Baptist, Methodist 11:00-12:00	WBAP 1
Christian, Presb. 11:00-11:30	WFAA 3
Methodist Church 11:00-12:00	KTVT 1
Church Presents 11:30-12:00	WFAA 1

FRENCH PHONES

Variety of styles with and without dials in nickel plate with baked enamel finish. Elegant deluxe model in 23 Kt gold plated available for private use or executive gifts. Decorator inquiries invited.

George's 6 Ave. at 54 St. New York 19
FURNITURE GALLERIES
COlumbus 5-7520

Prop rental dept has vast collection of usual and unusual furniture from every period. Available to TV, Photo Studios, Films.

Mgt. William Morris Agency

EMMETT KELLY
Mgt.: LEONARD GREEN
300 E. 51st St., New York
PL 2-1744

The Measure Of A Station's Quality For Advertisers And Agencies!

ATAS Committees On Int'l Assembly

First International Assembly of the Television Arts & Sciences, to be held in New York Nov. 4-11, yesterday (14) announced chairmen and co-chairmen who will be in charge of the 15 committees handling details for the worldwide broadcasting confab.

The committee heads are currently enlisting membership from the industry to help iron out details of the forums, panels, screenings, demonstrations etc., that will be held for the several hundred delegates expected from both tv and non-tv nations.

Headed by Assembly chairman Ed Sullivan, the committee chairmen and co-chairmen (in that order) are: agenda committee: Richard Pack, WBC, and Richard Heffner, CBS; facilities: Cornelius K. Sullivan, NBC; finance: Ted Bergmann (acting chairman), Revlon, and Jack Wrather, Jack Wrather Organization; guilds, crafts and unions: Donald F. Conaway, AFTRA; honors and achievements: Richard Lewine, CBS, and Ted Fetter, ABC; information and publications: Sydney Eiges, NBC, and Mike Foster, ABC, and Charles Steinberg, CBS; international participation: Donald Coyle and James Larkin, both ABC International; legal: Royal E. Blakeman and Edward Burns, attornies; Los Angeles liaison (for '62 Assembly): Robert Lewine, CBS; new frontiers: Mrs. Marietta Tree, United Nations; reception: Betty Furness; telecast: Henry S. White, WNTA; tv and education: Lawrence Creshkoff, TIO; tv science: William Trevarthen, NBC; Washington liaison: John S. Hayes, WTOP, and E. Kidder Meade, CBS.

'CBS Reports'

Continued from page 24

ready set plans to call for active "Reports" participation by Eric Sevareid, Daniel Schorr, David Schoenbrun and Winston Burdett, among others, for upcoming shows.

Sevareid is down for two shows, one on U.S.-British relationships as exemplified by the controversy surrounding the Polaris base in Holy Loch, Scotland, the other a program on Brazil and its economic problems. Sevareid will fly to Brazil from his London post to do the latter.

Schoenbrun will do "France's Agony," show on the Algerian problem, filmed in France and Algeria, dealing with both sides of the problem as well as the future of France and of the Algerian colonists, and due to go on the air in April. Burdett is working on a show that's still under wraps. Schorr is doing preliminary work on a possible German show.

Also on the "Reports" slate is a second show on Africa, dealing with the nationalist problems in Central Africa. And Friendly, who evaluates the CBS foreign correspondent staff as the "best in the world, including that of any newspaper," will make more extensive use of them in other respects.

Clark's trip will be his first abroad since taking over the No. 2 spot under prexy Dick Salant at CBS News. He'll call in Alex Kendrick from London (Sevareid has been in N. Y.), Schorr from Bonn, Burdett from Rome, Marvin Kalb from Moscow, Blaine Littell from the Congo and Russell Jones from the Middle East to a two-day weekend session in Paris to go over their problems, collective and individual, as well as apprise them of new CBS policy. Then he'll hop over to Bonn, London and Rome for individual bureau visits in each spot, then return to the U. S. after five days in all.

Big Diehl

Ottawa, March 14.

Radio is far from dead in Canada, but it still doesn't reach a lot of tv regulars. Therefore CBC's 15-year-old radio confab "Court of Opinion" is being packaged as a tv series. CBC-TV has an option on it and will decide after seeing the pilot, due to be taped this month.

TV actor Fred Diehl has formed Dico Productions Ltd. of Vancouver, whose first package will be "Court of Opinion." He has obtained world tv rights to the show, to it that USIA informational arms would convey the news accurately and not sweep under the rug America's fallings. "If the bad news is significant, it's going to be reported (abroad) anyway. We should report it accurately," Murrow said, "rather than let others distort it."

Ed Murrow

Continued from page 24

Murrow also said he would strive to persuade American picture and telefilm execs to keep at home product harmful to the U. S. image overseas, but conceded there is no legal way he could do it. He also promised to get industry cooperation in producing product for America's overseas information effort.

The Senate committee also heard and okayed the former Life mag Washington chief, Donald Wilson, as deputy USIA director.

Dallas—Casey Cohlmia has been named director of promotion and publicity for WFAA radio and television, according to Mike Shapiro, general manager. The advancement places Cohlmia in charge of promotion, publicity, advertising and merchandising for the broadcast properties of the Dallas Morning News.

Westinghouse's Big Stake As Canada CKEY Sale Wins Board Okay

Ottawa, March 14.

Meeting in Ottawa, the Board of Broadcast Governors okayed sale of Toronto AMer, CKEY, to Shoreacres Broadcasting Co. Ltd. BBG's recommendation that the federal government issue a license to the new company was conditional on concurrent surrender of the CKEY license held by Consolidated Fry-brook Industries Ltd., owned by Toronto publisher Jack Kent Cooke. Cooke has indicated he will leave Canada to become a U.S. citizen.

BBG warned it would cancel the Shoreacres license if proposed Class B debentures of Shoreacres were converted to common voting stock of the company at any time. These make up most of Shoreacres $4,104,000 capitalization and are held by the Westinghouse Corp. in the U.S.

Voting shares now are held by Toronto Globe & Mail, 50%; Westinghouse and its Canadian subsidiary, 25% each, the rest by four Toronto individuals. Conversion of the debentures to voting stock would give the U.S. firm control of Shoreacres.

CKEY's sister station, CKOY in Ottowa, got a one-year renewal of its license.

What's WBKB-TV Gonna Do About That Controversial BBC Film on Chi?

Chicago, March 14.

That locally controversial tele film, "Chicago—First Impressions of a Great American City," produced for the BBC by Denis Mitchell, was in the hands of ABC-TV brass in New York last week, where presumably its fate on the U.S. airwaves was being pondered.

The Chi o&o, WBKB, which owns the American rights to the film through its autonomous co-investment with the British company last fall, issued a denial that the parent network was making anything like a final decision, insisting that the decision was the station's own to make. WBKB spokesmen said the print was sent to ABC only for an opinion. (Film has been crucified, sight unseen, by the Chicago press ever since BBC aired it on Feb. 21, the attack basing on reports from London that Mitchell focussed mainly on the sleazy sectors of the city).

Apparently ABC's opinion has taken the form of a "recommendation." A VARIETY report from N.Y. has it that the web will advise WBKB to stay out of trouble by not showing the film, in view of the hostile predisposition to it here.

So it's now a question of company semantics whether the Chicago station has any decision to make. Is a home office "recommendation" truly a recommendation, or is it a command?

Incidentally, WBKB seems to be in one of those damned-if-you-do and damned-if-you-don't situations. Local managing editors have been pressuring the p.r. department to show the film, probably so that they can have another crack at it. If the station doesn't telecast it, the press is sure to give it both barrels for chicken-heartedness. If it does put it on the air, the film seems very much in line for a shellacking, based on the prejudgments.

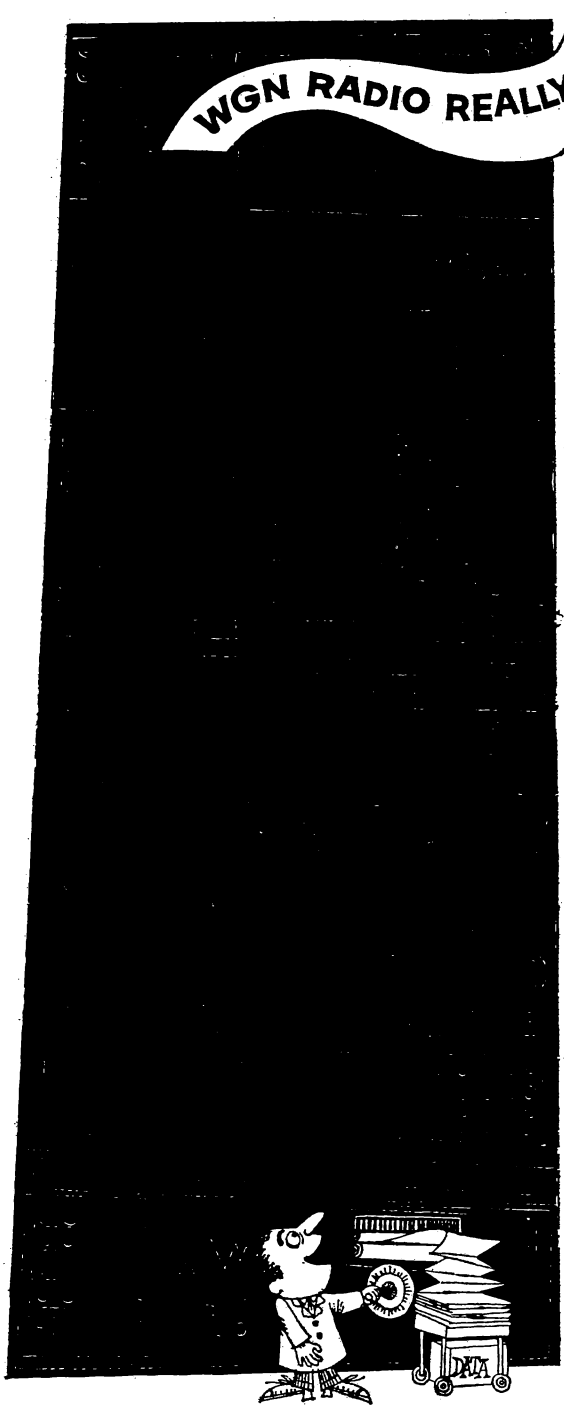
Announcement on its fate is expected this week.

Canada's Big Tower

Ottawa, March 14.

Ottawa head office of the Canadian Broadcasting Corp. has okayed sharing a proposed $625,000 television tower in Montreal with that city's two private video stations, CFCF-TV (English) and CFTM-TV (French).

The tower, atop Mount Royal, will improve CBC's tv signals



WGN RADIO REALLY RATES IN CHICAGO

Latest rating figures* show:

WGN Radio has Chicago's most favorable image!

WGN Radio reaches more people!

WGN Radio has the highest average quarter-hour audience for entire week!

WGN Radio is No. 1 Chicago station in total audience!

WGN Radio has highest average hourly share of audience—12 midnight—6 a.m.

WGN Radio delivers an adult audience! More than 9 of every 10 listeners are adults!

For full facts on why adult listeners like WGN Radio's sound, advertising and programming, write to WGN Research for a study by Market Facts, Inc., on the images of Chicago radio stations.

*Nielsen — Dec./Jan., 1961. Pulse — Dec., 1960, Post-midnight study. Pulse —1960, Audience composition reports.

In Chicago

WGN RADIO

means quality programming and dedicated community service

Chicago: 2501 Bradley Place, LAkeview 8-2311

New York: 220 E. 42nd Street, MUrray Hill 2-7545

Represented by Edward Petry & Co., Inc., except in Chicago, New York, Philadelphia and Milwaukee

Member of Quality Radio Group, Inc.

Jocks, Jukes and Disks

By MIKE GROSS

Polly Bergen (Columbia): "THE HAPPIEST GIRL IN THE WORLD" (Chappell*) is the title tune from the upcoming Broadway tuner fashioned with a melodic lilt created by Offenbach and an intelligent Yip Harburg lyric which gives it long lasting values. "BYE BYE BLACKBIRD" (Remick*) gets an energetic lowdown vocal that will go over in barrom jukes.

Dianne Maxwell (Capitol): "BORN TO BE WITH YOU" (Mayfair*) is a fresh workover of the Chordettes' click of several years ago and brings Miss Maxwell to the fore as a gal to watch. "WHISPERING PINES" (Buna†) is another years-ago click that's brightened for the current market with a fine piping style and an effective chorus and string backing.

Lloyd Price (ABC-Paramount): "ONE HUNDRED PERCENT" (Pri-Gan*) rolls with a catchy beat that's a sure juke attraction. "SAY I'M THE ONE" (Lloyd-Logan*) gets a hefty shout treatment that will win over the rockers.

Art Mooney Orch (MGM): "MALIBU" (Sunbeam*) is based on strong instrumental lines built for jobsa deejay play. "YANCEY SPECIAL" (Shapiro-Bernstein*) is the Meade Lux Lewis classic put in trim pop spinning form.

Cannonball Adderley Orch (Riverside): "AFRICAN WALTZ" is an exciting instrumental import from England and Cannonball Adderley's touches it up for the U. S. market with a catchy beat that will get him into the pop fold. "KELLY BLUE" (Jazz Standard*) is a colorful jazz piece with some neat rhythmic maneuvers.

Jimmie Rodgers (Roulette): "I'M ON MY WAY" (Leeds*) has a pretty ballad flavor with an attractive folk flair for good spinning results. "EVERY TIME MY HEART SINGS" (Kahl†) swings with a gay lilt that should jump around the jukes.

Albimoor Orch (Palette): "SOUVENIR D'AMOUR" (Zodiac†) has an appealing quality in its melodic form and a vocal chorus presentation that makes it a good programming bet. "TENDER PASSION" (Zodiac†) has the romantic instrumental flavor that often wins the mood music programmers.

Roy Berkely (Coral): "ALL NIGHT LONG" (Bayer*) presents some frantic rockabilly styling but its spins are limited. "ABILENE" (Champion*) puts another city in the pop song sweeps but it's strictly an item for the chamber of commerce.

Bobby Helms (Decca): "SAD-EYED BABY" (Acuff-Rose*) has a rocking blues beat that's sure to stir up coins all around. "YOU'RE THE ONE" (Cedarwood*) has an old vaude song flavor with a hillbilly seasoning to win over the young crowd.

The Dreamers (Guaranteed): "MARY MARY" (David Jones*) is not be confused with the current Broadway comedy legit click. It is, however, a strong rocker that has a noisemaking potential. "CANADIAN SUNSET" (Meridian*) has little gleam in this rock'n'roll harmony setting.

*ASCAP. †BMI.

Best Bets

AL CAIOLA ORCH ..... BOUNTY HUNTER
(United Artists) ..... Bonanza

Al Caiola Orch's "Bounty Hunter" (Karolyn) will pick up the big spinning coin because of the intriguing instrumental style that's paid off for him before. "Bonanza" (Livingston & Evans*) is unfolded with exciting values that will be good for spins too.*

* * *

THE LIMELITERS ..... A DOLLAR DOWN
(RCA Victor) ..... When Twice The Moon Has Come and Gone

The Limeliters' "A Dollar Down" (Sanga†) brings this vocal group into the pop single field with a bang. Tune works over the credit plan angle in a way that everyone can appreciate. "When Twice the Moon Has Come and Gone" (Leeds) has a fine folk lilt.*

* * *

DUANE EDDY ..... GIDGET GOES HAWAIIAN
(Jamie) ..... Theme From Dixie

Duane Eddy's "Gidget Goes Hawaiian" (Columbia Pictures) has the spirited instrumental quality, with a guitar leading, that the kids will take to in a big way. "Theme from Dixie" (Lindmark*) puts "Dixie" in the pop sphere.*

* * *

LAWRENCE WELK ORCH. .. OUT OF A CLEAR BLUE SKY
(Dot) ..... My Three Sons

Lawrence Welk's "Out of a Clear Blue Sky" (Harry Von Tilzer) follows his "Calcutta" click and his instrumental formula is working again for another big spinning takeover. "My Three Sons" (Don-Maichael*) is another solid instrumental slice.*

* * *

FATS DOMINO ..... FELL IN LOVE ON MONDAY
(Imperial) ..... Shu Rah

Fats Domino's "Fell in Love on Monday" (Travis†) is in the typical rocking ballad beat that's sure-fire material in his bands. "Shu Rah" (Travis) has a fast pace.*

* * *

DAVID DANTE ..... SPEEDY GONZALES
(RCA Victor) ..... K-K-K-Katy

David Dante's "Speedy Gonzales" (Budd) is set up in wild rocking terms and will be pushed to the top by the jean-aged crowd. K-K-K Katy (Feist*) is brightened up for some new spinning chances.*

* * *

THE JARMELS ..... LITTLE LONELY ONE
(Laurie) ..... She Loves To Dance

The Jarmels' "Little Lonely One" (We Three) is a snappy and tasty rocker that's a natural to score on all levels. "She Loves to Dance" (Schwartz*) has an okay beat for some juke appreciation.*

* * *

PATTI PAGE .... A CITY GIRL STOLE MY COUNTRY BOY
(Mercury) ..... Dondi

Patti Page's "A City Girl Stole My Country Boy" (Gil) is fashioned along folksy ballad lines that will take it high. "Dondi" (Lear*) has a bright melodic beat.*

* * *

THE ALLISONS ..... ARE YOU SURE
(London) ..... There's One Thing More

The Allisons' "Are You Sure" (Burlington) is the solid rocking click from England that will have similar scoring action in the U.S. market. "There's One Thing More" (Burlington*) gets by with a catchy harmony style.*

LAWRENCE WELK

Features FRANK SCOTT'S Harpsichord on a Great New Dot Album and "Single" "CALCUTTA" ...Following his Top-Hit "Last Date!"

Colpix Snags Dick Gregory

Dick Gregory, Negro nitery comic from Chicago who was given a big spread in Time mag a couple of weeks ago, has been inked by Colpix Records, a subsid of Columbia Pictures.

Gregory, who broke through in his date at the Playboy Club in Chi, now has an extensive series of nitery dates lined up, including the hungry i in San Francisco, the Surf Club in Cincinnati and the Blue Angel in New York where he opens Friday (17) for 10 days. His first Colpix LP is due late this month with Alex Dreier, ABC network correspondent, introing Gregory in the album and also doing the liner notes.

Elliot Chaum Upped To Cap Legalite Head

Elliot Chaum has been upped at Capitol Records to the post of director of the legal department. Chaum, who's been a staff attorney for the diskery since 1959, takes over the new spot April 1. He will continue as secretary and counsel of Capitol Records Distributing Corp and EMI/US, both Capitol subsids.

Until Chaum's appointment, Robert E. Carp, Cap's secretary and counsel, had been serving as legal department director in addition to his corporate responsibilities.

Album Reviews

Frank Sinatra: "All The Way" (Capitol). This is Sinatra's 21st album release for Capitol and although he's got his own label in operation now, Cap and Sinatra will go hand-in-hand for some time to come. This album is a reprise (his own label, incidentally, is called Reprise, of his single clicks of the past few years. The extra-added attraction is that they're now presented in stereo except for "All The Way" and "Witchcraft," which the label states is in "enhanced monophonic sound." It's still Sinatra, however, and on such other clicks as "High Hopes," "French Foreign Legion," "Ol' Mac Donald," "Talk To Me" and "Sleep Warm," the fans could hardly ask for anything more.

Enoch Light Orch: "Far Away Places" (Command). Enoch Light, who started the percussive sound gimmick, has now added a harpsichord sound to this musical Cook's tour. "Calcutta," "The Poor People Of Paris," "How Are Things In Glocca Morra," "Sunrise Over Sumatra" and "The Poor People Of Paris" are in Light's itinerary and he gives 'em all the quality that the audio buffs take to in a big way.

"Tunes of Glory" (United Artists). The trouble with this soundtracker is that there are several dull spots. When the bagpipes are blowing, however, it comes to life. The title song, "The Highland Regiment" and "Listen To The Pipers" have a spinning fling and the pic's playdates may help it move across the retail counters.

Edmundo Ros Orchestra & Chorus: "Sing 'n' Clap Along" (London). Edmundo Ros has adapted Mitch Miller's "sing along" style to good advantage. Stressing the show-tune area, Ros develops a neat Latino beat that's easy to follow. The package is also on a special sales deal which should get it rolling with the retailers.

Count Basie-Sarah Vaughan (Roulette). This is a lovely match. Sarah Vaughan's singing and Count Basie's swinging have been blended by producer Teddy Reig into a nifty musical package. "You Turned The Tables On Me," "You Go To My Head," "I Cried For You" and "Mean To Me" are among the standards that Miss Vaughan and Basie make meaningful.

Muriel Angelus: "Muriel Angelus Expresses The Lyrics of Oscar Hammerstein II" (Strand). Together, the music of Richard Rodgers and the lyrics of the late Oscar Hammerstein 2d have worked wonders in the Broadway musical theatre. Muriel Angelus, in this set, has attempted to separate them. Her concentration is on Hammerstein's poetry without Rodgers' melodic aid and it doesn't work out too well. A lyric was meant to be sung and no matter how feelingly she may deliver "Hello Young Lovers," "Sound of Music," "You'll Never Walk Alone" and "Some Enchanted Evening," etc., there seems to be something missing. And that's Rodgers' music. It was an attempt at a gimmick that never came off.

Duke Ellington Orch: "Peer Gynt Suites Nos. 1 & 2—Suite Thursday" (Columbia). There are two solid sides in this package showing Duke Ellington at the top of his imaginative form. Edward Grieg's "Peer Gynt" gets the Ellington workover on one side and an original Ellington-Billy Strayhorn piece, inspired by John Steinbeck's "Sweet Thursday," fills the other. The "Peer Gynt" concert is similar to an earlier Ellington (with arranger Strayhorn) attack on the classics with a disking of Tchaikovsky's "Nutcracker Suite." His own "Suite Thursday" opus builds up many melodic shadings and gives such topnotch sidemen as Lawrence Brown (trombone), Willie Cook (trumpet), Paul Gonzalves (sax) and Ray Nance (trumpet) a chance to show their stuff.

Henry Mancini Orch: "Mr. Lucky Goes Latin" (RCA Victor). Henry Mancini, who clicked with such gringo material as "Peter Gunn" and "Mr. Lucky" goes south-of-the-border here with a resulting peppery platter. It may not have the exciting buildup of his aforementioned tv themes but its chile flavor grabs hold and will attract lots of programmers. The compositions are all Mancini's and he takes care that they get a proper reading from his nifty orch setup.

Ethel Smith: "Ethel Smith Swings Sweetly" (Decca). Ethel Smith's Hammond organ work is familiar to virtually everyone but she's consistently pulling surprises with it. In this outing she gives it a light swinging touch that enhances the oldies and gives special attraction to the new ones. Standout among the standards are "Moonglow" and "Tenderly" while "Shuffle Rock" and "The Gospel," which she composed with Robert Prince, grab attention.

Charlie Byrd Trio: "Charlie's Choice" (Offbeat). Guitarist Charlie Byrd's "Choice" is choice. His favorites are the favorites of many and he treats 'em with respect. His unamplified guitar, supported by Keter Betts' bass and Buddy Deppenschmidt's drums to "Speak Low," "Taking a Chance On Love," 'Makin' Whoopee," "Everything I've Got Belongs To You," "Nice Work If You Can Get It" and some longer unfamiliar pieces that have their own special message. Gros.

Longplay Shorts

MGM Records is adding six more albums to its "Spectacular Series," Three were produced by Eddie Heller, two by Jesse Kaye and one by Larry and Grace Elgart . . . Burton Crane, N. Y. Times financial columnist, has recorded an album for ABC-Paramount titled "Stock Market Profits for the Sophisticated Investor". . . The Barry Sisters, currently out with a Roulette LP, "Side By Side," begin a two-weeker at El Rancho, Winnipeg, Friday (17) . . . Travis Edmonson, formerly of Bud & Travis, has been set by Life mag to be musical director of its forthcoming album of folk tunes in its "Heritage of America" series . . . Muriel Angelus guest on Joe Franklin's WABC-TV show tomorrow (Thurs.) to discuss her new Strand LP "Muriel Angelus Expresses the Lyrics of Oscar Hammerstein 2d". . . Everest Records releasing a special Easter album with Russ Morgan called "Nearer My God To Thee". . . Argo has set albums by Ramsey Lewis and James Moody for mid-March release . . . Hal Aloma has cut an album for Dot called "Hal Aloma at the Luau-400." Aloma, incidentally is starting his fourth year at the N. Y. eatery this month.

A 25-minute film, "Churu," produced by Davis Productions, was sparked by the Candid Records album "We Insist" which contains Max Roach's "Freedom Now Suite." The soundtrack for the pic was recorded recently by the musicians who participated in the Candid LP, including vocalist Abbey Lincoln, saxist Coleman Hawkins and Nigerian drummer Olatunji . . . The American Jazz Septet, which Carlton Records is releasing, has been set for a string college prom and concert dates via Music Corp. of America . . . Offbeat Records is extending its comedy album program, which gives dealers one free comedy LP for every five purchased, through the end of March . . . Organist Roger Ram cutting an LP titled "RAMpant Jazz" at his job at Cheers, a N. Y. steak house . . . Prestige Records is bringing out a Claude Hopkins LP tagged "Blues At The Nevele". . . London Records is moving into the comedy album field with Gerard Hoffnung originator of the Hoffnung Music Festivals. His first LP, recorded in cooperation with the BBC, includes his monolog "The Bricklayer's Story."

Mercury, for its annual spring sales push, has reinstituted its four-for-the-price-of-three deal until April 15. Retail bargain applies to entire LP-EP line, save for the premium Perfect Presence and Living Presence Sound series.

MGM LAUNCHES FIRST PUSH FOR VERVE LABEL

MGM Records first big push for its recently acquired Verve label got under way last week. The diskery instituted a special drive on the 162 stereo albums in the Verve catalog which will run through March 31.

The campaign includes such Verve artists as Shelley Berman, Ella Fitzgerald, Mort Sahl, Jonathan Winters, Oscar Peterson, Mel Torme, Margaret Whiting, Anita O'Day and many others. The program is based on an incentive plan to get the stock rolling with the Verve distributors.

Lissauer, Patterson Launch New Diskery

A new record company is being launched by Robert Lissauer and Helen H. Patterson. It'll be called Arliss Records.

Lissauer, who will serve as prexy and general manager, is currently head of seven music publishing firms (Mode, Scope, Michele, Jason, Ample, Treble and Lad) which he will continue to operate. Mrs. Patterson, who will act as veep and secretary of the corporation, has been associated in radio and tv and founded WAPO and WRGP-TV in Chatanooga. She has sole interest in these stations.

Among the artists already signed for the new label are Jeanie Allen, Eddie McDuff, Jimmy Randolph, Curt Jensen and Chuck Jennings.

PUBS FACING TECHNICAL KO

Defection of Coast Cleffers to BMI Seen Sparking ASCAP Legal 'Action'

The as yet undefined "action" against Broadcast Music Inc. now being cooked by special counsel Arthur Dean for the American Society of Composers, Authors & Publishers is seen as a direct consequence of the recent defection of a large number of ASCAP writers on the Coast to BMI. The switch of over 40 composers, mostly in the background music field, to BMI not only ruffled ASCAP's prestige, but also stirred concern in the Society over the role that background music will play in the upcoming negotiations for a new ASCAP licensing pact with the tv networks.

ASCAP execs are known to be burning over the fact that many of the Coast writers moved over to BMI because they were given substantial coin guarantees in long-term deals. Under ASCAP's system of distribution, the Society is precluded from making such guarantees since all dividends are based on earned performances, whether current or averaged over a number of years. BMI, on the other hand, has customarily offered guarantees to both publishers and writers based on anticipated earning power.

The likelihood that this issue of guarantees, or front money, to writers may be the hinge of ASCAP's "action" against BMI is strengthened by the fact that ASCAP general counsel Herman Finkelstein announced the retention of Dean, of the Sullivan & Cromwell firm, at the membership meeting on the Coast a couple of weeks ago. This is the area where BMI has been making the major inroad into a domain long dominated by ASCAP tunesmiths.

The widespread beef of the background cleffers against ASCAP is the Society's fractional payoff by themes, cues, bridges and background music in general unless standard tunes are used. BMI, on the other hand, has now stepped up its payments for background music, giving a top of 30c per half hour per station to both publishers and writers.

The legal paths open to ASCAP involve either a complaint to the Department of Justice or institu-

(Continued on page 58)

Poland Licensees Sue Indie Label for 150G Over Folk Ballet Disk

Monitor Records has filed a $150,000 suit against Bruno Hi-Fi Recordings in N. Y. Supreme Court. The action, which was taken in conjunction with ARS POLONA, the cultural material import export agency of Poland, charges that Bruno misappropriated, copied and reproduced recordings of the Slask Polish State Folk Ballet. Bruno is no relations to Bruno, Inc. distributors of RCA product.

ARS POLONA is the sole and exclusive representative for the export and licensing of all records, tapes and musical recordings coming out of Poland. Monitor is the authorized licensee of ARS POLONA for the manufacture and sale of the Slask recordings in the U. S. The plaintiffs claim damages against the defendants in the amount of $100,000 for ARS POLONA and $50,000 for Monitor. Additionally, an injunction is demanded to restrain the defendants from selling or distributing the Slask records.

Besides Bruno, the suit also names Bruno G. Ronti, Musicart International Ltd. and Ideal Records Products Inc. Ideal's is Bruno's major distributor in the N. Y. area. The suit also demands an accounting of any profits derived from the sale of the Slask recordings by the defendants.

Indie Goes 'Compact'

The indie Nancy Records is falling into the "Compact 33" line. The 33 rpm speed singles are already being released by Columbia, RCA Victor and Capitol. Nancy will kickoff its 33s on April 1 and will continue to release the 45 speed for the balance of the year and then it will go with the 33s alone.

Another switch in Nancy's policy will be the releasing of different artists back-to-back on a single record. Nancy's first attempt in this area will be Maryadele Miller's "My Wedding Present" backed with John Raffaele's "War."

Duo-Pianists Rap Col for Releasing Old LP Material

Columbia Records has stirred up another hassle over the "unauthorized" release of an album. Several times during the past year, pianist Erroll Garner has squawked about new Col album releases of old recordings and now the piano team of Ferrante & Teicher are protesting the release of a "Broadway-Hollywood" album which they did for the label several years ago.

The piano duo are now contracted to United Artists and have clicked during the past year in the pop singles market with "The Theme From The Apartment" and "The Theme From Exodus." Filing a complaint through the American Federation of Musicians, the team said that the Col album recently put on release is not representative of their current work and would be detrimental to their UA output.

In a notice to Col, the AFM said that it was in violation of the artists contract to put the album on the market. Col retaliated that it had obtained an okay from a rep of Local 802 and that extra fees were paid for the over-dubbing in which it gave the piano team a new orch backing. However, the Columbia legalites are now trying to work out an amicable agreement with Ferrante & Teicher.

Danny Davis Returns To MGM as A&R Staffer

Danny Davis is returning to the MGM Records fold as an artists & repertoire staffer. He previously had been with the label as artist, arranger and conductor.

He'll work in close association with Jimmy Vienneau, longtime a&r man with the label. In between his previous chores for MGM, Davis handled independent production for Liberty and Epic Records, operated his own label, Thunder Records, and was recording director for the Cabot label. For the past two years he had been working with Joy Records.

New Michelson Deal With Australian Pub

Charles Michelson Inc. has been set by Castle Music Co. Ltd., Sydney, Australia, to act for it in the purchasing of Australian music publishing rights. The Castle firm is a subsidiary of EMI (Australia) Ltd.

The Michelson org, which has been acting for other divisions of EMI (Electric & Musical Industries) for the past several years, will be making all deals out of its N. Y. office.

DISK COIN IN LEGAL DANGER

By HERM SCHOENFELD

A deadly threat is now facing all music publishers as the result of a recent New York Federal Court ruling insisting upon full compliance with all technical "notice of use" filing provisions of the Federal Copyright Act. The decision, involving the suit of Norbray Music vs. King Records, held that a publisher who is late in filing a "notice of use" with the Copyright Office after a disk is made of a song is thereafter barred forever from enforcing his claim to royalties and other relief from every future unauthorized use of copyrighted work.

Since a vast number of important musical copyrights are in this category, the top publishers are concerned that if the decision is upheld in the higher courts, their right to collect mechanical coin will be dangerously jeopardized, if not eliminated. As a result, the Music Publishers Protective Assn., via its counsel, Julian T. Abeles, has filed an amicus curiae brief with the U.S. Court of Appeals, arguing for a reversal of the lower court decision in the "material interest of music publishing and legitimate record manufacturing in-

(Continued on page 58)

Test Suits Anew By Vogel Music Co. In Re TV Usages

Jerry Vogel Music Co. yesterday (Tues.) filed three suits in N.Y. federal court challenging the right of picture companies to use film music on television.

The suits, considered a test, were brought against CBS, Screen Gems, Universal, in one action, CBS and Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer, in another action, and CBS, United Artists Television and Warner Bros., in the third action.

In the first action, Jerry Vogel Music Co. seeks an injunction, along with other relief, alleging that the license it granted Universal for "MacNamara's Band," for its "Badland of Dakota" pic, was confined to theatrical exhibition. The other suits involved "Heaven Will Protect the Working Girl," in Metro's "Strike Up the Band" pic, and "Oceana Roll" in Warner Bros. "Mildred Pierce."

A group of major publishers brought a similar suit a number of years ago, but the suit was dropped before reaching trial.

INK RAY ELLIS TO VICTOR A&R STAFF

Ray Ellis, formerly artists & repertoire chief for MGM Records, has joined RCA Victor as recording artist and member of the a&r staff. He'll work under George Avakian, Victor's manager of the pop album department, but Ellis will also produce singles both as artist and supervisor.

Ellis, a guitarist, is also an arranger, responsible for numerous hits over the past few years.

Meantime, Cal Lampley exited the Victor's a&r staff to devote his full time to a musical comedy he's been working on. The musical, "Cross Talk," is being written in collaboration with Al Kohler.

BIG TOP HANDLES PHILTONE

Phil Bisch, president of Philtone Records, has made a deal with the Big Top label for the release of all future Philtone disks. Currently under contract to Philtone are the Van Dorn Sisters, Barbara Lantz, Joy Lane and Roger Douglass.

Big top is the disk arm of the Jean and Julian Aberbach operation.

SEC Socks Roulette's Stock Offering For Not Mentioning Payola Practices

Washington, March 14.

Another Federal agency is getting into the anti-payola act. Roulette Records was socked by Securities & Exchange Commission with an order accusing it of giving the public "false and misleading information" and failing to tell about alleged payola activities in connection with a $300,000 stock offering.

The SEC order suspended a so-called Class A exemption under which Roulette proposed to offer 100,000 shares of common stock at $3 a share without filing a registration statement. Class A exemptions permit firms to make offerings of $300,000 or less without filing a registration statement with SEC.

Chief SEC charge was that Roulette didn't mention in its circulars on the stock offering the fact Federal Trade Commission had issued an anti-payola complaint against the firm. Of the 100 or so record makers and distributors accused of payola by FTC, Roulette is one of a handful whose cases have not been settled by consent orders under which the companies agree not to engage in payola. Last development in Roulette's case was the firm's answer last March to the FTC complaint. Roulette at that time admitted certain payola practices, but denied FTC's contention they were illegal.

'Material Facts'

SEC further charged that the Roulette circulars failed to disclose "material facts" concerning the way its business is conducted. Namely, "the acts, practices, and methods by which it has promoted the sale of its products, the continued relationship of such acts, practices, and methods to its sales and earnings; changes in such acts, practices and methods and effects on its sales and earnings of changes in such acts, etc."

Roulette was also accused of

(Continued on page 58)

Decca's Peak Net

Decca Records' net for 1960 reached a new peak of $5,524,757, topping the previous year's income of $2,321,923 and substantially over the previous record year's earnings in 1956. The net earnings of Decca's film company subsidiary, Universal Pictures, have been a major factor in the climb of Decca's earnings. Prexy Milton R. Rackmil, however, stated that profits of the Decca disk division also improved over the previous year despite the intense competitive situation.

Full details of the Decca financial statement are in the Film Section of this issue.

Name Dario Soria Victor Vice-Prexy For O'seas Market

Dario Soria, who has been producing the longhair Soria Series for RCA Victor, has been named a vicepresident of RCA Victor handling international liaison for the diskery. In his new post, Soria will participate in the development of policies for the diskery with special responsibilities relating to international marketing operations. He'll report directly to Norman Racusin, Victor v.p. and operation manager.

George R. Marek, Victor v.p. and general manager, stated that Soria's new appointment was designed to "bring about a substantial growth of record sales and we foresee such a growth both in the near and the far future. Records are an international business. Much of the music we record does not need to be translated into other languages. Artists today are keenly aware of and desirous for worldwide distribution and the strength of such distribution is one of the important factors in attracting them to our label. Decisions about artists, often involving considerable outlays in recording expenditures and guarantees, must be made with a world viewpoint.

Assisting Soria in the development of a global program will be George H. Prutting and Richard L. Broderick, both formerly with RCA's International Department. Soria will focus on the Victor catalog as made available through the manufacturing distributors associated with RCA in various foreign markets.

Soria, formerly president of Angel Records and of Cetra-Soria Records, has been with Victor for the past two years producing his deluxe LP packages together with his wife, Dorle Jarmel Soria. She will continue to supervise and produce the Soria Series for Victor.

Vardi, Myers to Pilot Kapp's Longhair Dept.

Emanuel Vardi and Paul Myers have been set as codirectors of Kapp Records' classical department. According to Mickey Kapp, label's veepee, the appointments will create more flexibility and greater range for the indie outfit.

The duo will function as a team, as they have frequently in the past, and will complement each other in supervising the company's entire classical output. Vardi, incidentally, will continue to supervise artists & repertoire for Medallion, the Kapp stereo label.

Under the new setup, Kapp now expects to build up its classical roster and intensify its exploitation on existing contracts.

E. H. Morris Pegs Folio Of 'Bye Bye Birdie' Score To Booming Organ Market

Upsurge in organ sales, now over 100,000 units per year, has opened up a new mass sheet music market for publishers who are printing large numbers of copies for various brands of the electronic and small reed portable organs. Importance of the organ sheet market is spotlighted by the move of showtune publishers to print folios of all leading songs from a given score in organ arrangements.

While this type of folio was common a half-century ago for pianos, they were discontinued in the 1930s when the piano dropped in popularity against the inroads made by records and radio. Now E. H. Morris has revived this showtune folio for two of its musicals, having initially with Organ Selections for "Bye Bye Birdie" and following with a similar book for "Wildcat." Each folio contains eight numbers and is pegged at $2.

Since the organ market is complicated by the existence of 26 different electronic brands and 50 portable brands, E. H. Morris is publishing the folio in easy-to-play single line melody form with chord symbols understood by amateur instrumentalists. He also coded the folio with the Song Dex Organmaster system which indicates by a code number on each page the proper stops to use on each tune. The Song Dex Chordmaster illustrations are also used to show what notes are to be played for indicated chords.

If the Morris folios, which was revived by sales manager Sol Reiner, catch on, it's expected that all showtune publishers will gear folios for the organ market and come up with other ideas adapted from the days when piano sheet music was a big biz.

VARIETY'S RECORD T.I.P.S.

(Tune Index of Performance & Sales)

This weekly tabulation is based on a statistically balanced ratio of disk sales, nationally, as reported by key outlets in major cities, and music programming by the major independent radio stations.

This Wk.	Last Wk	No Wks. On Chart	TITLE, ARTIST	LABEL
1	2	4	SURRENDER Elvis Presley	Victor
2	6	9	DON'T WORRY Marty Robbins	Columbia
3	1	8	PONY TIME Chubby Checker	Parkway
4	5	7	EBONY EYES Everly Bros.	WB
5	3	8	WHERE THE BOYS ARE Connie Francis	MGM
6	4	12	CALCUTTA Lawrence Welk	Dot
7	7	10	WHEELS String-a-Longs	Warwick
8	19	8	APACHE Jorgen Ingmann	Atco
9	9	10	BABY SITTING BOOGIE Buzz Clifford	Columbia
10	31	4	HEARTS OF STONE Bill Black Combo	Hi
11	10	6	LITTLE BOY SAD Johnny Burnette	Liberty
12	28	8	DEDICATED TO THE ONE I LOVE Shirelles	Sceptor
13	14	12	TOMORROW Shirelles	Scepter
14	35	8	WHEELS Billy Vaughn	Dot
15	17	8	THERE'S A MOON OUT TONIGHT Capris	Old Town
16	13	5	LAZY RIVER Bobby Darin	Atco
17	21	5	THINK TWICE Brook Benton	Mercury
18	8	11	SHOP AROUND Miracles	Tamla
19	12	8	YOU CAN HAVE HER Roy Hamilton	Epic
20	16	16	EXODUS Ferrante & Teicher	UA
21	16	4	WALK RIGHT BACK Everly Bros.	WB
22	11	8	GOODTIME BABY Bobby Rydell	Cameo
23	36	4	THE TOUCHABLES Dickie Goodman	Mark X
24	32	7	GEE WHIZ, LOOK AT HIS EYES Carla Thomas	Atlantic
25	52	5	I DON'T KNOW WHY Clarence Henry	Argo
26	18	10	EMOTIONS Brenda Lee	Decca
27	20	7	WHAT A PRICE Fats Domino	Imperial
28	48	4	ASIA MINOR Kokomo	Felsted
29	22	15	WINGS OF A DOVE Ferlin Husky	Capitol
30	38	4	PORTRAIT OF MY LOVE Steve Lawrence	UA
31	37	4	HAVIN' FUN Dion	Laurie
32	15	8	STORY OF MY LOVE Paul Anka	ABC-Par
33	—	1	LONELY MAN Elvis Presley	Victor
34	—	1	ON THE REBOUND Floyd Cramer	Victor
35	40	7	AIN'T THAT JUST LIKE A WOMAN Fats Domino	Imperial
36	90	2	JUST FOR OLD TIMES SAKE McGuire Sisters	Coral
37	29	5	STAYIN' IN Bobby Vee	Liberty
38	25	9	JIMMY'S GIRL Johnny Tillotson	Cadence
39	26	8	ALL IN MY MIND Maxine Brown	Nomar
40	27	11	CALENDAR GIRL Neil Sedaka	Victor
41	67	12	ANGEL ON MY SHOULDER Shelbey Flint	Valiant
42	72	3	HAPPY BIRTHDAY BLUES Kathy Young	Indigo
43	33	9	I WANNA LOVE MY LIFE AWAY Gene Pitney	Musicor
44	58	5	FOR MY BABY Brook Benton	Mercury
45	60	3	I DON'T WANT TO CRY Chuck Jackson	Wand
46	46	5	I PITY THE FOOL Bobby Bland	Duke
47	34	13	THERE SHE GOES Jerry Wallace	Challenge
48	—	1	ORANGE BLOSSOM SPECIAL Billy Vaughn	Dot
49	43	13	ANGEL BABY Rosie	Highland
50	53	3	PLEASE LOVE ME, FOREVER Cathy Jean	Valmor
51	62	2	TAKE GOOD CARE OF HER Adam Wade	Coed
52	50	3	LITTLE MISS STUCK UP Playmates	Roulette
53	89	4	MORE THAN I CAN SAY Bobby Vee	Liberty
54	—	1	MOTHER IN LAW E. K-Doe	Mint
55	—	1	I TOLD EVERY LITTLE STAR Cindy Scott	Can.-Amer.
56	54	14	CORINNA, CORINNA Ray Peterson	Dunes
57	94	3	DADDY, DADDY Robin Clark	Capitol
58	30	7	SPANISH HARLEM Ben E. King	Atco
59	—	1	NO ONE Connie Francis	MGM
60	—	1	LOUISIANA MAN Rusty & Doug	Hickory
61	56	18	WONDERLAND BY NIGHT Bert Kaempfert	Decca
62	—	1	EXODUS Pat Boone	Dot
63	71	2	TOP 40, WEATHER & SPORTS Mark Denning	MGM
64	79	3	THE MISFITS Don Costa	UA
65	49	6	WAIT A MINUTE Coasters	Atco
66	64	4	WORLD IS WAITING FOR SUNRISE Don Gibson	Victor
67	—	1	FIND ANOTHER GIRL Jerry Butler	Vee Jay
68	—	1	BUMBLE BOOGIE B. Bumble & Stingers	Rendezvous
69	59	6	ONCE UPON A TIME Rochell & Candles	Swingin
70	85	2	PONY EXPRESS Danny & Juniors	Swan
71	—	1	BLUE MOON Marcels	Colpix
72	57	2	ALL OF EVERYTHING Frankie Avalon	Chancellor
73	51	7	FLAMINGO EXPRESS Royaltones	Goldisc
74	—	1	WE BELONG TOGETHER Belmonts	Laurie
75	88	13	YOU ARE THE ONLY ONE Ricky Nelson	Imperial
76	—	1	CALCUTTA Four Preps	Capitol
77	47	5	RAM-BUNK-SHUSH Ventures	Dolton
78	—	1	ALL THE WORLD TO ME Della Reese	Victor
79	—	1	MOOD INDIGO Floyd Cramer	Victor
80	39	8	AT LAST Etta James	Argo
81	—	1	MUSKRAT RAMBLE Freddie Cannon	Swan
82	—	1	THAT'S IT, I QUIT Sam Cooke	Victor
83	—	1	DARLING Phil & Harv	Rampart
84	—	1	MY LAST DATE Joni James	MGM
85	—	1	BIG DADDY Boots Randolph	Victor
86	—	1	EXOTIC Night Beats	Sound
87	75	4	HIDEAWAY Freddy King	Federal
88	—	1	RUBBER BALL Bobby Vee	Liberty
89	—	1	MAD LOVER Harley David & Teenaires	Wildcat
90	—	1	BABY HULLY GULLY Olympics	Arvee
91	—	1	SUGAR BEE C. Crocket	GB
92	—	1	DANNY BOY Jim Reeves	Victor
93	86	3	LIKE LONG HAIR Paul Revere	Chain
94	—	1	CHERRY PINK Jerry Murad	Mercury
95	—	1	WELCOME HOME Sammy Kaye	Decca
96	—	1	TUNES OF GLORY Cambridge Strings	London
97	—	1	GREAT IMPOSTER Henry Mancini	Victor
98	—	1	WHAT WOULD I DO Mickey & Sylvia	Victor
99	—	1	LOVE KEEPS CALLING S. Turer	Big Top
100	82	9	MY EMPTY ARMS Jackie Wilson	Brunswick

Inside Stuff—Music

A European all-star band will be presented in Berlin on the occasion of a German Jazz Festival in May by Joachim E. Berendt, head of SWF's (South West German Radio) jazz department. Event will take place via a SWF jazz session at local Congress Hall. The European "dream band" will be composed of tenor saxophonist Arne Domnerus (Sweden), baritone player Ronnie Ross (England), trombonist Albert Mangelsdorff and tenor player Hans Koller (both Germany), trumpeters Muffay Falay (Turkey) and Dusco Gojkowic (Yugoslavia), pianists Martial Solal (France) and Tete Montoliu (Spain), guitarist Franco Ceri (Italy), bassist Erik Amundsen (Norway), drummer William Schiopffe (Denmark) and songstress Monica Zetterlund (Sweden). After the Berlin concert, the musicians will fly to Baden-Baden, home of SWF, for a tv production and then Telefunken will get them for a recording session. Selection of musicians took place under participation of European jazz trade papers and leading jazz crix.

Leonard Levin (lyric), who wrote "Say It With Loft's" with his sister-in-law, Stella Levisohn (music), in 1922, and sold it for $150 (they asked for $500 originally), probably authored the first "commercial" song, it now develops. The industrial mystery stemmed from Loft's candy chain prexy Leonard Wurzel receiving a copy of sheet music with that title from a customer. Nobody within Loft's knew of the song's existence.

Levin eventually disclosed that he brought the song to Charles B. Underhill, president of Loft's at the time ,who liked it and used it in newspaper ads, window displays and, for a time, giveaways to his customers. Present Loft's management hasn't decided whether a "revival" is in order.

Music Productions of America, a new org in the commercial music field, has set a deal with Sesac to produce seven "Drummers" albums this year. Sesac LP "Drummers" are made available to broadcasters and are comprised of station promotionals, weather, time and news spots, deejay themes and sales starters, all featuring a "big band" sound. The first two albums are scheduled for early delivery, with the remainder of the series to be completed at intervals throughout the year.

Joe Feigins, composer-lyricist, is creative director of the new org. Elliot Lawrence, bandleader-arranger, is musical director, and Hal Dreebin will be the technical director.

MGM Records and Loew's Theatres in N. Y. are going on an all-out push for the LeRoy Holmes' disking of "The Bilbao Song." The platter will be used in the theatres as background music for the pic trailers advertising the lineup of coming pix. The record will be advertised in the lobbies and will also be used as music at the breaks.

On the Upbeat

Hollywood

Jimmy Shigeta will cut title tune of "Bridge to the Sun" for his Silver Slipper label . . . Elmer Bernstein has received official ok from Capitol Records, to which he's under contract, to cut a single of his "Magnificent Seven" for United Artists Records . . . Sam Laine, for seven years west coast district manager for MGM Records, has joined Kapp Records as promotion manager . . . Mitch Miller makes his screen composer debut with title tune for Metro's "A Thunder of Drums" . . . Dimitri Tiomkin hosted elaborate bash for gospel singer Mahalia Jackson at Bev-Hills hotel with Chick Landis, Largo Club owner, has placed his prize stripper, Miss Beverly Hills, in a "Thriller" episode—as a singer . . . Liberty Records is planning to re-release Harry Sukman's "Song Without End" album now that the composer-pianist has won as Oscar nomination for his scoring on "Song."

London

London Records toppers Lee Hartstone, Tony D'Amato and Eddie Kissack in U.K. for talks with Decca. Result of confabs is likely to be a more "American" sound for Decca's big-name bands—Mantovani, Edmundo Ros, Ted Heath and Stanley Black . . . Now that his trip to Hollywood to do a movie for 20th-Fox is postponed Frankie Vaughan is doing a British concert tour, starting Plymouth March 18 . . . Elvis Presley's new RCA release "Wooden Heart" and "Tonight Is So Right For Love" has set up a British record for advanced orders. Latest total is 358,000. This is 3,000 up on previous record—another Elvis ditty, "Are You Lonesome Tonight?". . . Eddie Thompson who went to the same London school for the blind as George Shearing, is thinking of following in Shearing's footsteps Statewards. His new LP for Ember "Piano Moods" has Thompson playing Thompson . . . Film actor Sidney James makes his disk debut with "The 'Ooter Song" for Decca. "'Ooter" is Cockney slang for "nose."

Philadelphia

Johnnie Ray into the Latin Casino, April 3 . . . Les Elgart orch into Sunybrook, (18) for one-night stand . . . Herbie Mann current at Pep's . . . Ruthie Rogers, vocalist current at the Capri, started as canary with the bands of Johnny Messner and Tex Beneke . . . Jodie Sands, who broke in her act at the Smart Spot over the weekend, heading for a tour of service installations in Europe . . . the Jimmy Wisner Trio furnishes the backing for Mel Torme at the Red Hill Inn, March 10-19. Wisner waxed "Asia Minor" under the monicker of Kokomo . . . George Shaw now at the Hedgerow Inn . . . Charlie Pasco, Fabian's drummer, filling in at the Trade Winds for the ailing Charles Delco, Vince Montana's percussionist.

The HIT! OF THE WEEK

LE ROY HOLMES

And Orch. Play

THE BILBAO SONG

K 12992

M-G-M Records

WATCH THESE CLIMB!
(When You're Young And)
ONLY SEVENTEEN
Prediction—A HIT!
FRANK D'RONE on Mercury

IT'S SO WONDERFUL
Prediction—A HIT!
SYLIA SAYNT on Columbia

LET YOUR LIPS TELL ME
Prediction—A HIT!
JULIUS LeROSA on Kapp

B. F. WOOD MUSIC Co., Inc.
1619 Broadway, New York 19,
STANLEY MILLS, Prof. Mgr.

British Disk Best Sellers

London, March 14.

Walk Right Back..Everly Bros. (RCA)
Are You Sure?.....Allisons (Fontana)
Love Me Tom'r'w?..Shirelles (Top Rank)
Theme For Dream....Richard (Columbia)
Sailor .....Clark (Pye)
F. B. I. .....Shadows Columbia)
Riders In Sky...The Ramrods (London)
Wooden Heart.....Presley (RCA)
Are You Lonesome?..Presley (RCA)
Who Am I?.....Faith (Parlophone)

Van Cliburn as Conductor, Touching Tributes Mark Mitropoulos Memorial

By TRUDY GOTH

Though Dimitri Mitropoulos was a man who knew little vanity, and a whole concert (March 5) to honor his memory might perhaps not been wholly to his taste, there were certain aspects of it which probably would have pleased him greatly. One was the opportunity given to pianist Van Cliburn to make his debut as a conductor with Prokofieff's Third Piano Concerto just as 37 years ago (and incidentally at the same age) Mitropoulos made his debut as a pianist with the same concerto. (The story of how he substituted for the ill soloist instead of changing the program, in Berlin, 1924, is by now well known.) Cliburn may now become identified with this work and asked to play and conduct it at the same time in his future career just as often as Mitropoulos was.

Piano Cliburn used, had a plastic lid built for such a performance by Steinway in 1953 when Mitropoulos was playing and conducting Prokofieff's 3rd Piano Concerto at the N. Y. Philharmonic. Cliburn took a chance if not with the audience at least—with the N. Y. critics. But his performance, showmanship and obvious communication to the orchestra and public leaves no doubt that here is a conductor in the making (though he will need a great deal of practice and experience to realize fully his inherent capacities).

No Stunt

This was no stunt for the young musician—it was meant as a tribute to a man and musician whom he admired and to whom he wanted to give a tribute in his own right. And nothing would have pleased Maestro Mitropoulos more —perhaps not even the almost $20,000 the Musician's Aide Society, of which he was a co-founder, took in with the sale of tickets and donations towards establishing a "Dimitri Mitropoulos Residence for Aged Musicians."

To honor the Greek's memory conductors Karl Boehm and Fausto Cleva together with singers like Renata Tebaldi, Mignon Dunn, Eleanor Steber, Ezio Flagello and Barry Morrel participated magnificently in the program through the courtesy of the Metropolitan Opera whose General Manager Rudolph Bing was one of the speakers paying tribute to the Maestro. Mishel Piastro appeared as violin soloist and the Symphony of the Air gave most valiant support to everyone.

Among the speakers, His Eminence, Archbishop Iakovos of the Greek Diocese of North and South America gave the initial invocation, followed by U. S. Senator Jacob Javits and David Keiser, president of the N. Y. Philharmonic. The most moving tribute was paid by Mitropoulos' successor at the Philharmonic, a friend and colleague, Leonard Bernstein, who pronounced the benediction on the life of this great man and musician who lived only for his art. He likened the Maestro's death (when he suddenly fell from the podium while rehearsing Mahler's Third Symphony at La Scala, Milan, in November) to a poem by Rilke or like that of Socrates "invited and sacrificial." In fact all those close to Mitropoulos knew that he died the death not only he had wished, but he had many times prayed for.

ARMADA Widens Pitch to Become Catch-All Music Biz Organization

The American Record Manufacturers & Distributors Assn. (ARMADA) will make a bid to become a catch-all music biz organization at its next convention set for the Diplomat Hotel in Miami Beach June 26-27. ARMADA prexy Art Talmadge has proposed opening ARMADA to affiliated membership for publishers, promoters, publicists, pressing plants, matrix manufacturers, and disk jockeys. The affiliates would have no vote but would be able to participate in the convention.

Dues for affiliates have been set by the ARMADA board at $150 per year as against the $200 tab for

(Continued on page 58)

It's Now Col. Elvis

Memphis, March 14.

It's now Col. Elvis Presley!

Memphis' prince rock 'n' roll exponent was saluted and honored last week before a combined house of the Tennessee Legislature and at the same time was made an "honorary colonel" by Gov. Buford Ellington at the State capital, in Nashville.

Presley followed Ernie Ford who was given similar honor several weeks ago. He told the state lawmen: "I'm not as funny as Tennessee Ernie Ford and I don't have any kind of a speech but I'm thankful to all of my home state friends."

Tom Parker, Presley's manager, is also an honorary colonel.

Garner Grosses $8,300 In Rochester 1-Niter

Rochester, March 14.

Erroll Garner grossed $8,300 Saturday (11) at the Eastman School of Music here. His tour continues through March 24 in Baltimore, following which he's set for Ed Sullivan's CBS-TV show March 26.

Garner then moves into Basin Street East March 30 for his first N. Y. nitery date in five years.

INK NEVINS & KIRSHNER TO PRODUCE FOR EPIC

Epic Records has brought in the indie disk producing team of Al Nevins & Don Kirshner. The duo will produce albums as well as singles for the label.

Nevins and Kirshner have produced disks independently for RCA Victor, MGM and ABC-Paramount. The team was brought in by Bill Gallagher, who took over as general manager of the label in January in addition to his chores as veepee in charge of sales for Columbia Records, Epic's parent company.

The Big 3 salutes
Harry Tobias
On His 50th Year As A Songwriter

SWEET AND LOVELY
NO REGRETS
AT YOUR COMMAND
DAUGHTER OF PEGGY O'NEIL
WILD HONEY
LOVE IS ALL
PUT YOUR LITTLE ARMS AROUND ME
I'M SORRY DEAR
MILKWEED
WHAT IS IT
GOODNIGHT MY LOVE
WOULDN'T I LIKE TO HAVE SOMEONE LIKE YOU
FASCINATING YOU, YOU'RE FASCINATING ME RHYTHM OF THE WAVES
SONG OF THE MOONBEAMS
LOU-ANNA
WHEN IT'S HARVEST TIME SWEET ANGELINE
THERE'S ONLY ONE LOVE IN A LIFETIME
GOTTA BIG DATE (With A Little Girl)
ALL FOR THE LOVE OF MIKE
I MADE A HIT WITH KIT KIT KITTY
LONELY ONE
FROM A.M. TO P.M. (I Love You All The Time)
OO OO OOH HONEY (What You Do To Me)
LILY-MAY
WHEN TWO HEARTS BEAT AS ONE
YOUNG IN HEART
SNOWFLAKES IN THE MOONLIGHT
WEDDING OF THE BIRDS
ROLLEO ROLLING ALONG
DON'T CRY SWEETHEART DON'T CRY
LADY LOU
HERE YOU COME WITH LOVE
GEE I'D LIKE TO BE YOUR SWEETHEART
DREAMING OF MY OLD KENTUCKY HOME
LET'S HELP EACH OTHER ALONG
SWANEE RIVER DREAM MAN
CALL OF THE ROCKIES

ROBBINS • FEIST • MILLER

Pubs Face Technical KO

Continued from page 55

dustries as well as those of the writers."

The original action of Norbay Music against King Records stemmed from a move by the publisher to collect mechanical royalties on a tune titled "Slow Walk" from King on the grounds that the diskery failed to comply with the compulsory licensing provisions of the Copyright Act. Under the latter provision, if a diskery fails to obtain a license from a publisher to cut a specific tune, the diskery must pay the publisher the full royalties within 30 days of such a demand.

King's central defense, which was upheld by the court, was that the publisher had "failed to file a notice in the copyright office of its use of the musical composition, 'Slow Walk,' for recording purposes" and hence its copyright was "void and invalid and has no effect.

The facts in the case are as follows: On Oct. 2, 1956, Mercury was issued a license to record "Slow Walk." During September and early October of that year, King recorded the same tune without applying for a license. The publisher filed a "notice of use" with the Copyright Office on Nov. 26, 1957, or more than a year later. Meantime, Mercury had sold 286,041 copies of the "Slow Walk" disk and King sold 284,513 copies of its disk before the "notice of use" was filed.

The Federal district court held that the sole question for determination was "whether a late filing of the notice of use is effective in mitigating the absolute bar to suit by the (Copyright) Act." The court held that since the publisher failed to comply with the Copyright Act by filing his notice of use when he licensed Mercury Records, the action for royalties is now barred.

In its brief upon the appeal, the publisher has made two contentions: (1), the copyright owner is entitled to recover statutory royalties under the Copyright Act even though it may be barred from a recovery against the diskery as an infringer, which would involve penalty damages; and (2) King Records pressed "Slow Walk" prior to making a search in the Copyrgiht Office to ascertain if notice of use was filed and hence is an infringer. Chappell Music has also filed an amicus curiae brief making the same contention as the publishers under the (1) heading.

Abeles' Brief

Abeles' brief buttresses the publisher's side with additional arguments based on previous decisions, involving infringements of copyrights by various phases of the disk industry. Abeles pointed out that King Records, having started to manufacture "Slow Walk" during September and early October, 1956, had in actuality beat the initial license granted to Mercury Records on Oct. 2 of that year. Therefore he argues, King Records had infringed "Slow Walk" even before a notice of use was required. The publisher's failure to file such a notice after granting a license to Mercury cannot affect the right of recovery against King, Abeles contended.

Another point raised over the wording of the Copyright Act is that there is no time limitation under which the notice of use must be filed. In the "Slow Walk" case, the notice of use was filed until Nov. 26, 1957 just prior to the institution of the suit and after King had manufactured the bulk of its "Slow Walk" records. The lower court ruled that any delay in the filing will forever bar the publisher from making recovery for infringements perpetrated subsequently to such a filing.

Abeles argued that the publisher certainly has the right to recover under provisions of the Copyright Act after filing a notice of use, irrespective of his rights before filing such a notice. Otherwise, he pointed out that every copyright which did not have a prompt filing of a notice of use would be ineligible for mechanical royalties, a situation that would constitute a field day for pirates, bootleggers and other shady operators eager to take advantage of a legal technicality.

Supreme Court Decision

In this regard, Abeles' brief quotes a Supreme Court decision which held: "The purpose of the act of 1909 was to open a path for authors besides and not through the quagmire which has been created under the old act. I have no disposition to open another. Of course, the policy of the act must be enforced, but it does not lie in purposeless technicality."

Abeles pointed out that many disk companies actually begin recording before clearing the rights, as for example, in sample and broadcast records marked "not for sale." If reaction is good, then a license is obtained. Likewise, music publishers make demonstration records for submission to disk companies. In either case, Abeles pointed out that it would be simple for an "unscrupulous" manufacturer to be informed of such records and then launch a "crash program" to get his disk to the market before a legit disker. If filing of notice of use was delayed, then the "unscrupulous" diskers can operate with immunity not only until such a notice was filed but for the full life of the copyright, if the lower court decision is upheld.

In view of the severity of the lower court's interpretation, publishers are being cautioned by the MPPA to file notices of use promptly and in every case where a disk is made of a tune, whether by others or by themselves.

The notice of use is required under the compulsory licensing provisions of the Copyright Act. The notice was designed to promote free competition in the music industry since once a notice is filed on a specific song, any disk company can make it as long as he abides by the strict accounting procedures designed to protect the publishers.

Mills HIT REMINDERS
CORRINA, CORRINA
Ray Peterson—Dunes
MOOD INDIGO
Floyd Cramer-RCA Victor
GIRL OF MY DREAMS
Marty DeRose-MGM
MILLS MUSIC, INC.
1619 Broadway New York 19

WIZARD OF THE HAMMOND ORGAN
BILL DOGGETT
And His FAMOUS COMBO
Currently on Personal Appearance Tour Thru June 1
WARNER BROS. RECORDS
BOOKED EXCLUSIVELY BY
ASSOCIATED BOOKING CORPORATION
JOE GLASER, President
745 FIFTH AVE., NEW YORK 22, N. Y., PLAZA 9-4600
CHICAGO • MIAMI BEACH • HOLLYWOOD • LAS VEGAS • DALLAS • LONDON

Tito Guizar Clipped By 'Poor Investments'

McAllen, Tex., March 14.

Mexican actor-singer Tito Guizar said here that "poor investments" caused his luxurious home to be turned over to a creditor in Mexico City. Guizar, who popularized the charro, or Mexican cowboy, in some of the first films made in Mexico City, was here to appear at a stage show in connection with this city's International Spring Fiesta celebration.

Guizar stated that he and his wife had made "poor investments in movies and other things in Mexico but betting on horses had nothing to do with it."

KING TO DISTRIB KEM

Kem Records has tied in with King Records for worldwide distribution. The deal was set between Sydney Nathan, King prexy, and Bill Richards, prez of Kem.

SEC Socks Roulette

Continued from page 55

making a financial statement "not in accordance with generally accepted accounting principles and practices." SEC cited particularly the firm's amortization of costs in creating master records, the write-off of goodwill to earned surplus and treatment of amounts paid out to certain artists as advance royalties.

Roulette can get a hearing from SEC on the suspension order if it asks for one. If the suspension order remains in effect, Roulette must file a formal registration statement in order to offer the stock. Presumably the registration statement would have to correct the alleged misleading statements contained in the circulars.

Asked whether all record companies that were targets of FTC anti-payola action would be similarly treated by SEC in stock offering proposal, a SEC spokesman said this was the first case of its kind and any one to follow would have to be judged in it own light. Undoubtedly a major factor in Roulette' case was fact it hadn't agreed to stop the practice, as most other firms have done.

Federal Communications Commission is reportedly sitting on about 250 license renewals because of suspected payola acceptance. Whether any action taken against stations by FCC will cause SEC to take a stern look at any stock offerings by broadcasting corporations involved is a matter for interesting speculation.

RETAIL ALBUM BEST SELLERS

(A National Survey of Key Outlets)

This wk.	Last wk.	No. wks. on chart
1	2	14	EXODUS (Victor) Soundtrack (LOC 1058)
2	1	8	LAWRENCE WELK (Dot) Calcutta (DLP 2539)
3	3	21	ELVIS PRESLEY (Victor) G. I. Blues (LPM 2256)
4	5	10	CAMELOT (Columbia) Original Cast (KOL 5620)
5	4	9	FRANK SINATRA (Capitol) Swinging Session (W 1491)
6	7	8	GREAT MOTION PICTURE THEMES (UA) Various Artists (UAL 3122)
7	8	19	BOB NEWHART (WB) Button Down Mind Strikes Back (WL 393)
8	9	12	MANTOVANI (London) Music from Exodus (LL 3231)
9	10	5	KINGSTON TRIO (Capitol) Make Way (T 1474)
10	6	10	BERT KAEMPFERT (Decca) Wonderland by Night (DL 4101)
11	11	45	SOUND OF MUSIC (Columbia) Original Cast (KOL 5450)
12	13	7	RAY CONNIFF (Columbia) Memories Are Made of This (CL 1574)
13	15	18	MITCH MILLER (Columbia) Memory Sing With Mitch (CL 1542)
14	12	5	MITCH MILLER (Columbia) Happy Times (CL 1568)
15	16	13	UNSINKABLE MOLLY BROWN (Capitol) Original Cast (WAO 1509)
16	14	14	HARRY BELAFONTE (Victor) Returns to Carnegie Hall (LOC 6007)
17	17	9	RUSTY WARREN (Jubilee) Knockens Up (JLP 2029)
18	22	5	WILDCAT (Victor) Original Cast (LOC 1060)
19	26	47	BOB NEWHART (WB) Button Down Mind (W 1379)
20	21	29	NEVER ON SUNDAY (UA) Soundtrack (UAL 4070)
21	18	14	LAWRENCE WELK (Dot) Last Date (DLP 3350)
22	20	7	LIMELITERS (Victor) Tonight: In Person (LPM 2272)
23	19	16	THE ALAMO (Columbia) Soundtrack (CL 1558)
24	38	4	MIKE NICHOLS & ELAINE MAY (Mercury) Evening with Nichols & May (OCM 2200)
25	33	5	JUSTIN WILSON (Ember) Humorous World of (ELP 801)
26	—	1	ELVIS PRESLEY (Victor) His Hand in Mine (LPM 2328)
27	32	10	SVIATOSLAV RICHTER (Victor) Brahms Second Piano Concerto (LM 2466)
28	28	32	FRANK SINATRA (Capitol) Nice 'n' Easy (W 1417)
29	40	3	RAY CHARLES (ABC-Par) Dedicated To You (ABC 355)
30	34	14	ROGER WILLIAMS (Kapp) Temptation (KL 1217)
31	—	1	RAY CHARLES (Atlantic) Genius of Ray Charles (1312)
32	40	11	BILLY VAUGHN (Dot) Soundowners Theme (DLP 3349)
33	24	30	KINGSTON TRIO (Capitol) String Along (T 1407)
34	29	4	DO RE MI (Victor) Original Cast (LOC 2002)
35	35	42	SOUTH PACIFIC (Victor) Soundtrack (LOC 1032)
36	—	1	WOODY WOODBURY (Stereoddities) Laughing Room
37	—	1	BING CROSBY (WB) Join Bing & Sing
38	30	4	PAUL ANKA (ABC-Par) Paul Anka Sings His Big 15 (ABC-323)
39	—	1	DAVE BRUBECK (Columbia) Brubeck Plays Bernstein (CL 1466)
40	39	2	JOHNNY HORTON (Columbia) Horton's Greatest Hits (CL 1596)

ARMADA

Continued from page 57

regular members. Associate memberships, which cover employees or reps of full members, are pegged at $50. The ARMADA board also has set up a group insurance plan to be made available to all ARMADA member firms. Talmadge also stated that a new purchasing index geared for the disk industry would be available in time for the June convention.

ARMADA's conclave this year will be unique insofar as eight manufacturers will have the chance to hold distributor meetings immediately following the convention. Each of the eight labels will be allowed one-half day for the meetings with hours and dates to be determined by a drawing. Six firms have already signed for the distrib meetings which will eliminate duplication of travel expenses since many of the distribs handle numerous labels.

ARMADA board, planning the convention, includes, besides Talmadge, Bob Chatton, v.p.; Al Bennett, western v.p.; Nelson Verbit, secretary; William Shocket, eastern v.p.; Harry Apostalaris, Amos Herlicher, Sigmund Steinberg, David Steinberg and Morton Gurelick, legal reps of ARMADA; Ahmed Ertugen, Jordan Ross, exec secretary; and Norman Weiser, publicity.

ASCAP-BMI

Continued from page 55

tion of a fullscale court action against BMI. In the first case, ASCAP could ask the Dept. of Justice to revise the consent decrees under which both ASCAP and BMI operate to "equalize" the competition. If a court action is pursued by ASCAP, it will have no relation to the longstanding suit brought by 33 ASCAP songwriters against BMI and the major networks in which a charge of conspiracy and discrimination against ASCAP music has been made.

VARIETY (Mar. 1)
BEST BET
"SOLID SPINNING"
MISTER LONELINESS
GENE VINCENT
on Capitol Records
FAMOUS MUSIC CORPORATION

2 GREAT INSTRUMENTALS!
Theme from
HAND IN HAND
by DAVID CARROLL
MERCURY RECORDS #71790
M. WITMARK & SONS
BILBAO SONG
by LEROY HOLMES
M.G.M. RECORDS K12992
HARMS, INC.

$23.50 Tab for Sinatra's M. B. Preem Spotlights Rising Nitery Minimums

Despite declining nitery trade in many sections of the country, minimum prices are edging upwards especially in situations where top names are booked. The scale of $17.50 cover plus $6 minimum for the opening of Frank Sinatra at the Fontainebleau, Miami Beach last week is a sample. Last winter he got $25 straight for the "Summit" show. Minimum subsequent to the opening was set at $10 with no cover. The Eden Roc, M.B., also goes way up, depending on the star.

Another indication of the rising graph of minimal spending required to see top names is the hiking of the $6.50 minimum at the International, N. Y., to $7 with the opening of the Ritz Bros. The $7 tap is also set up at the Blue Angel, N. Y., on some opening nights and weekends. The Latin Quarter, N. Y., has long had a $7 tap.

The highest minimums have been in effect in Miami Beach. The bottom spending requirements have fluctuated with the value of the headliner, and frequently have reached the proportions of being conversation pieces.

Ritz Bros.' $15,000

The practice has long been blamed on the prices paid to topliners. The International, for example, is paying the Ritz Bros. a $15,000 guarantee, along with other items which will bring up operator Jack Silverman's cost to about $17,000. With such a nut, he feels that a slight upping of the tariff is called for as a means of protection.

In Sinatra's case, the contract is highly secret and reportedly is known only to the singer and Ben Novack, the inn's prexy. No agency is involved in this case, since Sinatra isn't signed to any office. There is no way of guessing what was paid. No agency rep will hazard a try saying it can be anything and could involve considerations other than money. However, they concede that it must be stiff, hence the extremely high minimum.

The practice of raising minimums with the headliners is not universally condoned. Jules Podell, operator of the Copacabana, N. Y., for example, will not raise his present $6.50 minimums no matter who is starring at the cafe. He has often expressed the thought that he's in business 52 weeks of the year, and raising the tariff for one engagement will alienate a lot of his regulars.

Drop-in Trade Essential

Podell feels that he could lose his drop-in trade, those who come no matter who is at the cafe, if he started to raise prices with some headliners. Those who come with-

(Continued on page 60)

Newcomer Fills in For Ailing Belafonte in Philly; Customers Get 'Raincheck's'

Philadelphia, March 14.

Stricken with a virus, Harry Belafonte failed to make the Latin Casino shows last week (8-9). The management posted notices outside the first night announcing the singer's indisposition and more more than 600 prospective patrons drove right off.

The house made a unique "raincheck" offer to arrivals which several hundred accepted. The substitute was Steve DePass, a 27-year-old calypso singer, who uses an audience-participation gimmick by having the ringsiders call out words and ideas which he promptly sets to calypso beat and wordage.

"Rainchecks" were given all diners who came in at house suggestion and later felt they hadn't seen a show. Only a score of persons asked for them on DePass' first night. The rebate tickets entitled the patron to return and catch the Belafonte show without paying the $6 minimum.

Replacement, who really came out of left field, got a rousing ovation from the partially filled house. Mrs. David Dushoff, wife of the Latin Casino owner, had heard DePass on the Garry Moore telecast the evening before. The cafe man gambled on the unknown. The young singer had appeared once before on tv with Jack Paar.

MCA V.P. to Testify In Vegas Suit Vs. Agency

Las Vegas, March 14.

A court order has been obtained by attorney Morton Galane which requires Roy Gerber, MCA vice prexy in charge of the Las Vegas office, to appear for a disposition hearing today (Tues.) in connection with a $124,000 suit against the talent agency. Gerber was ordered to appear at this time because he is about to be transferred to New York to assume other duties with MCA.

A civil suit seeking to collect contract fees from MCA was filed here in District Court by Galane on behalf of Rene Bardy, who owns the La Nouvelle Eve nitery in Paris. A show bearing that name appeared here at El Rancho Vegas for 18 weeks beginning in January, 1959.

L.A. Cops Crack Down on 'Mixing With Customers'

Los Angeles, March 14.

Los Angeles Police Commission has started a crackdown on all strip palaces and niteries which allow performers to mingle with customers between shows. Action stems from numerous complaints that "entertainers," particularly the practitioners of the bumps-and-grinds, have been hustling customers for drinks and extra-curricular activities while not on stage.

According to Lieut. Mark Smith, of the Commissioner's office, the ordinance, which went into effect in 1958, calls for all performers to remain backstage or in their dressing rooms when not on stage for a show.

The drive actually is aimed more at the strip joints than the legitimate clubs since they're the most common violators of the "mixing-with-customers" practice. When reminded of the intermingling of entertainers and customers in clubs falling under the County's jurisdiction, Smith replied: "Maybe they're more 'broadminded' than we in the city."

James L. Kelly, L. A. branch manager of the American Guild of Variety Artists, has pledged his union's support to the Police Commission and is cracking down on alleged violators. AGVA members most affected are the strippers working specific clubs that encourage "mixing-with customers." AGVA some months back started its own drive to put a stop to the "mixing" practice by threatening members with suspension and fines.

BEHAN 'ON' AGAIN AT BLUE ANGEL, N.Y.

The on-again-off-again engagement of Irish playwright Brendan Behan, originally set for the Blue Angel, N. Y., for tomorrow (Thurs.), may actually come off—but as a one-nighter. Maybe longer, according to the club, but only if he feels like it.

Behan came to the U. S. over the weekend with his normal amount of controversy. The officials of New York's St. Patrick's Day Parade said that Behan won't be allowed in the line of march, and neither will the Fordham U. student group which stated that they'll permit him to parade in their ranks.

Originally, the Blue Angel said the deal was for two weeks and options, but a cable from Behan later stated that he would be occupied with a writing project and wouldn't make the trip to America. Joe Glaser, prexy of Associated Booking Corp. who handles Behan's U. S. dates, said that it was originally understood that the date was for one night only.

A Trend?

Chicago, March 14.

Breakthrough of Negro comic Dick Gregory into the prime ofay nitery circuit apparently is opening doors for veteran sepia funnymen. Slappy White has been pacted by Mutual Entertainment Agency.

It's understood that he's been skedded for an upcoming date at the Playboy Club, Chi, same room that's credited with launching Gregory.

New Mgt. Relights The Cloister, Chi

Chicago, March 7.

The Cloister, which has changed hands several times in recent years and finally shuttered last month, is reopening April 7 under new management and with still another show policy. New owner Mitch Wolcoff formerly bonifaced Ciro's and Tale of the Cock, both cocktail lounges.

At the Rush St. bistro he's installing local comic Phil Tucker as permanent headliner, with supporting acts, thereby erasing the longtime sophisticated tone of the room. Tucker, a blue material specialist, has developed a staunch local following via his 13-year hitch at a nabe club, the Silver Cloud. It's understood he's giving up his piece of the Cloud (he was part owner) to work for a straight $2,000 per week at the Cloister.

So far as is known, Tucker has had only one engagement outside of Chi in recent years, that at the Chase Hotel, St. Louis, around six years ago, from which he was quickly chased because of his unchaste material.

Wolcoff has taken a 10-year lease on the Cloister with an equivalent option. He's going to renovate the club, enlarging the stage and increasing the seating capacity to around 200. Under new policy, house will be open seven nights a week with Tucker playing five or six. Cover or minimum charges haven't been determined as yet.

Stiff Manhattan Rentals Squeeze Nitery Spending Out of Household Budget

The new and elegant apartment buildings that are rising throughout Manhattan are no help to the niteries, according to bonifaces. This is especially true in regard to neighborhood cafes which complain that the edifices have been reducing the amount of trade that comes from the immediate area.

Although the number of residents in their vicinity is on the upbeat, thus far the nabe niteries have felt no benefit. Some operators think that the older residents were more conscious of the cafes, and it was quite common for many to hit a nitery with the same frequency that they patronized a restaurant.

Reason ascribed by the operators for the failure of new customers to come through from the ranks of the new cliffdwellers is the high rentals. They believe many have been forced into paying the high rents because of the evaporation of the moderate priced apartments. They say very few move from controlled situations into quarters in which rentals sometimes go nearly to $100 per room per month. They say most of their extra income goes into rentals, and even if it didn't the necessity of refurnishing the new apartments would take up any spare cash.

This is in direct contrast to the original anticipations of the bonifaces, for example, in the Yorkville area. The removal of the Third Ave. elevated increased land values and currently high building costs have forced rentals to zoom to the point where a potential customer must have on other aspects of living.

The bonifaces say they still have to rely mainly on expense account spending. When the buyers aren't in town or there are no conventions, business is weak. In former years, they say, the nabe trade made up for the paucity of buyers, but it's no longer the case with the fancy new buildings springing up around them.

Fair Mgts. Balk at High Talent Pay, May Use Cheaper Shows, Giveaways

High salaries paid to name performers have hit stages of revolt among the fair managements. Discussions at various fair associations such as were held at the New York State Fair Assn., recently in Albany, and the Western Fair Assn., held sometime ago in Buffalo, were ignited to fever pitch by concern over mounting costs of talent as well as rising costs in other departments.

Some fairs are considering raising the initial admission at the gate and permitting free grandstand shows, instead of charging a separate admission. Others have been talking about using giveaways as the primary lure and having moderate priced shows.

Either course would have the effect of eliminating expensive facts. The free grandstand shows, it's claimed, would be paid for by the increased price and at the same time could be a tremendous lure inasmuch as they would provide entertainment, which in former years carried high ducat prices. The giveaways, it's figured, would also bring in considerable coin, especially if an inexpensive show were provided along with them.

Squeezed By Costs

The various fair associations in recent years have been complaining about the steadily rising price graph. Shows which once cost a comparatively modest sum have become laden with names getting as much as $10,000 per diem.

It's become an untenable situation for many fairs in relation to dwindling revenues in some cases, and/or rising costs in other departments. It's all the more untenable for other fair groups inasmuch as they feel that with State subsidies, the big names are subsidized by taxpayer coin.

The talent agencies attending these confabs have been telling the fair buyers that ultimately names cost the fair groups little because they draw admissions which would not otherwise have come to the shindig. However, with fear of deficits and in the face of possible declining farm prices, the percentery pitches haven't registered on fair officials with their usual effectiveness.

Just how many of the rural exhibits will go in for gimmick showmanship instead of name shows remains to be seen. It's thus a critical selling season for the offices and the crises are likely to mount as talent prices go higher.

Lighting Failure Cancels 'Showcase' Toronto Bow

Toronto, March 14.

Cancellation of "Showcase '61," a revue starring Andy Williams and Diahann Carroll, last night (Mon.) at the O'Keefe Centre due to lighting equipment failure saw some 500 customers get either rebates or seats for a later performance. Reportedly 1,980 of the house's 3,200 seats were sold for opening night.

The 500 ticket-holders turned up because they had not heard a 7:30 p.m. broadcast over local and out-of-town radio-tv stations announcing cancellation of the preem. The house was scaled from $4.50 to a $5 top.

Curfew Shift Stirs Activity In Quebec Cafes

Feeling that the province of Quebec is about to change its curfew laws, has caused a flurry of booking activities in niteries in that sector. Several talent agency reps have already planed out to Montreal, Quebec and other cities in the area, to talk about headliners.

Nitery business in that area has been decimated lately by the strict enforcement of midnight curfew laws in all niteries. There is plenty of indication being given to the bonifaces that this will be upped, although there is not yet any assurance just what hour will be designated. With this guarantee, nitery owners have been inquiring as to availabilities. Bellevue Casino, for example, is shopping around for shows to start April 7.

For many months, the normally profitable Montreal and Quebec City market has been closed to the talent agencies. Only a few cafes have been operating in that area, namely the spots located in hotels. Otherwise, the general run of nitery has been shut down because there was insufficient number of hours to operate.

Larry Gengo of Music Corp. of America, plus some indies who have been booking various niteries, have thus far made the trip. Others have been submitting by telephone, and have been completing deals but aren't signing contracts until the provincial legislation is enacted. It's believed the new curfews will be increased to permit operation until at least 2 a.m.

SEE TWO-WAY MEXICO, JAPAN TALENT STREET

Mexico City, March 14.

Hisando Higuchi, head of Swans Promotions Co., Ltd., arrived in Mexico last week in company of the Los Panchos trio to pact additional Mexican entertainers for Japanese tours. Among others, Higuchi wants to ink Lola Beltran, Miguel Aceves Mejia, Hugo Avendano and Maria Victoria for theater, night club and tv engagements.

The Panchos are a big hit in Japan, have made several visits and last tour netted them $40,000, Higuchi said. His local rep hopes to make a two way talent exchange deal. While here he is sounding out clubs and theatres on a Japanese musical and dance group with a cast of 300, as well as other attractions.

Royal Gala For Icer

Liverpool, March 14.

"Snow White and the Seven Dwarfs" on ice will be given honor of a Royal Gala Performance at the Empire Theatre here May 24, with Queen Elizabeth and the Duke of Edinburgh attending.

Show was staged at the Wembley Empire Pool last Christmas, and is set for a three-weeks' season at the Empire. The British Royal pair will be on a trip to Liverpool and district during the show's run.

N.M. State Fair Comm. To Set '61 Expo Talent At March 24 Huddles

Albuquerque, March 14.

The selection of a talent package lineup and other details of an extended 1961 exposition — upped from nine to 11 days — are the major agenda items scheduled for talkfest at the last sesh of the new New Mexico State Fair Commission, planned March 24 in Albuquerque.

Republican Governor Ed Mechem this week is expected to name several new members to the seven-man board to replace Democrats who have resigned and who served under former Gov. John Burroughs.

Last year's show grossed $297,951 in a nine-day run, featuring a number of top oater tv and film stars.

Fair manager Tex Barron is scheduled to ask the board for authority to negotiate contracts with talent for this year's show, if artists preferred by the board are not available. Barron was granted a similar power last year. This year's lineup is again expected to rely heavily on the western and alfalfa circuit stars.

The governor last week signed a bill authorizing a year-around police force for the State Fair grounds, which have been the scene of several riots growing out of rock and roll dances.

Patti's London Stint

Chicago, March 14.

Patti Page goes to London May 18 for a five-week nitery stint at the Pigalle.

Before going abroad she is dated for guest star shots on the Bob Hope Show April 12 and the Perry Como Show May 30.

Circuit of Overseas Military Clubs Gives Steady 'Time' to U.S. Talent

By HAZEL GUILD

Wiesbaden, March 14.

"There's more work here in Europe for entertainers than in any other area in the world," according to one of the top booking agents working with the military clubs in Germany and France, Allan Blackburn.

Blackburn, who with his wife runs the Gail Blackburn agency here, added, "An act can play 48 weeks a year—that is much more time than it can work in the States." While the pay is slightly less than it is in the States, Blackburn added, costs of living are considerably less.

"A good middle class act can earn from $600 to $700 a week here," Blackburn reported. And he's gotten as much as $5,000 for a one-nighter with Louis Armstrong in a combined military club deal

At the U. S. Army Clubs in the little town of Baumholder, where many troops are stationed, Blackburn arranged the $5,000 fee as a joint venture for three clubs, the officers, the non-commissioned officers and the enlisted men's club.

When Armstrong played at the base, it was staged at the base gym where 4,000 people could be seated. For this event admission charge was $1.50 per person, although at most of the military clubs, the entertainment is provided free to the members.

There are about 500 Army and Air Force clubs in Europe. And about 20 of them can afford good shows during the week—mainly because of the increased income from the slot machines. "The big clubs may be making from $15,000 to $20,000 a month profit from the slot machines—and they can plow that money back into entertainment for their members," Blackburn said. For many of the smaller clubs, though there is little hope of bringing in the good acts.

Blackburn is currently booking June Christy at about 20 of the top Army and Air Force clubs in Germany and France, and has the Four Freshmen playing roughly the same group of clubs, where about 16,000 personnel will be able to see them. He plans to bring over Dennis Day within the next few weeks, and the Andrews Sisters in May. Likewise, he is negotiating with Tony Bennett, Patti Page, Eydie Gorme, Betty Hutton and Lionel Hampton.

Blackburn cuts down costs for the military clubs by bringing in acts that have been booked in London. Then he splits the plane fares with the London bookers. The military, which used to supply many extras, like plane and bus and housing for the acts, has cut all that out, and these additional costs must be absorbed by the agents.

Blackburn said, "The military clubs are often better than the commercial clubs in America and England as far as facilities are concerned." Stages, lighting, seating for the guests, and dressing rooms and equipment for the acts are often superb overseas.

Much of the facilities available for the military clubs, though, depend on the interest of the club managers. And sometimes in the out-of-the-way smaller clubs, the act still has to dress in the manager's office and perform on a broken-down stage with bad lights, he said.

One problem in the military is that the Army does not provide a job classification for club management, and men from other totally unrelated fields are often assigned to these jobs. In the Air Force, club management is a career and the men generally stay in that field.

Another problem is that the Army generally demands auditions before booking the acts. And Blackburn said, "It's mostly a waste of time and really drops the calibre

(Continued on page 62)

Shriners' CNE Encore

Toronto, March 14.

Shriners' circus has been inked as afternoon attraction this summer at the Canadian National Exhibition, according to Hiram McCallum, CNE g.m. It's a repeat from last year for the outdoor circus at the 24,000-seat grandstand here.

CNE will run from Aug. 18 till Labor Day, Sept. 4.

Teahouse of Aug. Moon

Ottawa, March 14.

Canadian National Exhibition plans to erect a $110,000 glass-walled tea-house—paid for and run by Salada Tea Co. Location: beside Lake Ontario, moonlit by night.

CNE opens in Toronto late in August.

Pleasure Island, Mass., Gearing to Repeat Click Kiddie Park Operation

Wakefield, Mass., March 14.

Pleasure Island, the $4,000,000 recreation park here, which went bust its first year and came back in its second year to become the most successful park in the country, outside of Disneyland, is girding for its third season with a new theme of circus acts, one-nighter concerts, and weekend dancing.

Skedded opening, earliest in the east, is May 6 for weekends, with daily operation set for June 19 through Labor Day, then weekends again through Oct. 12. The same price policy which pulled the park out of the red last season will be revived: "Pay one price, ride all the rides free all day." Admish is pegged at $2.40 for adults; $1.80 for moppets with all rides, shows, acts, etc., cuffo.

Helming the project again will be last year's executive vice-president, Norm Prescott, who has just returned from Europe where he is filming an animated motion picture feature. Prescott is putting a series of one nighters in the works for the 8,500-seat show bowl, built last year, with bookings of Harry Belafonte, Judy Garland, Mort Sahl, Bob Newhart, and others. The circus acts are being bocked by Leo Grund Enterprises, New York.

Prescott said a research study was made of the park last year, and he related that "the only way an amusement park of the future can exist is to keep the entertainment coming so fast and so often that the customer can't possibly take it all in one day—and make sure you let everyone know about it," he said. He reported he has tied up every children's tv show in Boston to advertise the park this summer. A heavy newspaper and radio sked is also set.

For the circus theme, Prescott is building six big stages throughout the park, each one adjacent to ride areas, and will present 26 shows a day, a new show every 15 minutes with the top animal acts in the country.

Signed as a permanent attraction this season is Harry Foster Welch, "Popeye," who played the part last year. He will guest on tv shows, appear at store openings in the area, and serve as goodwill ambassador for the sprawling 79-acre layout. In the Show Bowl, one show a day will be presented with kiddie personalities.

Construction at the park is underway, and a dance floor is being built, which will be collapsible and taken up and stored after its usage. The dance layout will be on the water's edge surrounded by a glamour setting.

In 10 weeks last year the park drew two and a half times the amount of customers that it did the first year. Opening year was 330,000. Last year over 750,000 paid admissions were recorded.

Borge's Frisco Encore After Boff $42,000 Take

San Francisco, March 14.

Victor Borge scored a turnaway $42,000 at the Masonic Temple here, in three days ending March 3, and has been rebooked for a two days stand April 7 and 8 at the S.F. Opera House. His new concert manager, George Campbell, has also set the pianist-comedian on a tour of 28 dates through March and April.

Borge will inaugurate the season at the Greek Theatre, Hollywood, for a 10-day stand starting June 23. He then moves into the Royalty Theatre, London, July 4 for three weeks.

Berman 25G, Toronto

Toronto, March 14.

Shelley Berman scored a strong $25,135 for seven performances at the Royal Alexandra Theatre here. Advance was a heavy $16,000, just about half the capacity of the house. Per usual, the Cumberland Three was his relief act.

Midweek blizzards stemmed sales to a great extent, but there were sellouts on Friday and Saturday nights and Saturday matinee, which brought up the take.

One-Man Show

Shelley Berman
(CARNEGIE HALL, N.Y.)

Shelley Berman with Cumberland Three; March 12, $4.80 top.

Shelley Berman has been traveling the length and breadth of the country with the Cumberland Three in a tour that has given comedy a concert hall status. Capping this junket with a recital to a nearly full house at Carnegie Hall, N.Y., Sunday (12), Berman has given the avant garde set a chance to view his offerings without going through minimum and cover charges of cafes and in an atmosphere highly suited to his particular comedic style. Shindig grossed $8,500.

Berman is essentially an outgrowth of the oldline vaudeville monologists, but he has brightened his material and angled it along modern lines. Among his comedic armaments, is a widely fluctuating voice, a viewpoint best described as neurotic which utilizes the embarrassment and fears that arise in everyday living. His subject matter is easily identifiable to his viewers. He has the knack of building up a situation to the point to a risible apex. His dissertation on embarrassment at the dinner table, the fears resulting from a visit to the dentist's office, and the terror at swallowing a black speck floating in the milk are indeed mundane situations, but, from Berman's viewpoint, fraught with horror. However, he is able to laugh at it and communicate this feeling to the audience.

Of course, there is the extremely tender telephone scene recalling an incident when he approaches his father for $100 to attend acting school. This is easily the most artistic offering of the evening.

During the coure of the evening, Berman is ecstatic at the chance of working face to face with an audience in a concert hall. Apparently, even after his lengthy tours in this atmosphere, the wonder of it seemingly never ceases. He is overwhelmed by all the attention he gets and his response is also on a higher level.

Providing the breather for Berman is the Cumberland Three, a male instrumental and folksinging group who have achieved a high state of proficiency. By this date, they no longer give out with a distinctive sound, being closely related to that of the other similarly aligned groups. However, they do perform excellently and they provide Berman with entertainment that complements his type of talent. Jose.

Rising Minimums

Continued from page 59

out checking who is starring probably do so for the plain reason that they know approximately what they will spend, and be assured of a reasonably good show.

The Latin Quarter also subscribes to the view of maintaining regular minimums, although prices of some menu items may change from time to time. They also feel that it's important to the maintenance of regular trade.

The high prices in the Florida cafes are regarded as one of the prime reasons for the bad season there, despite the fact that there has been a large number of visitors in the area this winter. However, the general feeling in the trade is that people will spend money, but resent being given the sucker treatment. It's estimated that with Sinatra's opening night show at the Fontainebleau, the average dinner expenditure, including tax and tips, came to $100 per couple.

Jazz, Babes, Booze Still Pay Off On New Orleans' Bourbon St. Beat

By GLENN TRUMP

New Orleans, March 14.

The street (Bourbon, natch) continues to amaze this Omaha VARIETY correspondent, making his first visit to the Vieux Carre in more than a year. The format, of course, remains the same—jazz, babes and booze. With the beaucoup prices necessary because of limited capacity.

And the joints still are employing the play on strip names. For example, there's Tempeste Storm, Candie Barr, etc., with the auditors expecting the big names. And there must be at least a half dozen different "Cat Girls," none of whom is the original. Of course, some spots such as Frank Carasi's 500 Club do supply the actual personalities.

A couple of new gimmicks have popped up in recent months that are worthy of note. One is at Club Mardi Gras, a typical-sized Bourbon St. nitery. Here one of the "acts" consists of five gals in harem costume who are onstage at the same time. For each show a different "Sultan" is selected from the aud, outfitted in turban and capes and placed on a huge pillow on the stage.

Strip for 'Sultan'

For the next half hour (longer if the guy happens to be with a spending group) the five gals wiggle for their "Sultan," peeling down the pasties and G-strings. Gals do okay jobs, guy gets his kicks, and it's all hilarious to the payees even if they don't know the "Sultan."

Another innovation is at the 809 Club, which is featuring a calypso revue and is one of the few spots on the Street where the entertainers keep their clothes on. Operating on a postage-stamp sized floor, Club has a line of four girls who work almost continuously for the 45 minutes of show, along with a featured dance pair, a bongo drummer and a waiter who opens with a fast tap dance.

Four gals are all lookers, excellent dancers and hard workers. Dance duo amazes in view of the limited working space. Biz here appeared stronger than at most of the stripperies.

With Al Hirt on the road until May, most of the visitors head for Pete Fountain's new spot to whet their jazz appetites. But the natives prefer the classy Dream Room, currently featuring Sam Butera and the Witnesses. A big (for the street) hall seating around 400, this site is consistently packed. In the wee hours, the Dream Room draws entertainers from the other spots as the lights go off along the street.

Danny Kaye to Spiel At 2-Day USO D.C. Conclave

Washington, March 14.

USO National Council opened a two-day convention here with the principal item of business being a discussion of means of getting increased financial assistance for the organization. In the past 20 years it has entertained an aggregate military personnel audience of 238,078,000 in all parts of the world. Group will also discuss ways of expanding USO's morale services for the GIs.

One of the main events of the meet is Danny Kaye's address at the annual dinner at the Mayflower Hotel. Kaye will discuss his wartime experiences as an entertainer along with his UNICEF tour. He feels that GI entertainment today is as vital as it was during wartime.

Tank Collapse Hurts 3; K.C. Hits Hamid-Morton With 60G Negligence Suit

Kansas City, March 14.

Three divers were hurt, one critically, when a 34,000-gallon tank used in their high diving act, collapsed Wednesday (8) during a performance of the Hamid-Morton Circus under sponsorship of the Kansas City Police Department in the Municipal Auditorium. The turn and a high-diving horse act were taken out of the show when the tank could not be reconstructed.

Athos Darigo, 32, of Miami, was still in fair condition in a hospital at week's end. He had been climbing a ladder to the diving board when the rig collapsed. He fractured an arm and a leg. Gary Gains, 38, Trenton, N. J., was diving when the tank broke, leaving only about 5 feet of water for him to hit instead of the usual 10 feet. He was unhurt.

Hartley French, 31, of North Miami Beach, was on the diving board when the break occurred. He was hurt when the tower fell across him. Damage to the wooden block floor of the auditorium was extensive, as the water caused severe buckling in several spots. The tank was dismantled and the two acts taken out of the show.

Circus continued its regular performance through Sunday.

Situation culminated Friday (10) in the filing of a damage suit by Kansas City against George A. Hamid Circus Inc. The city is seeking $60,000 in damages, claiming the circus was negligent in the operation and maintenance of the 34,000-gallon water tank used by the diving men and the diving horse.

Damage to the Municipal Auditorium floor, salvage work necessary to restore the floor and possible further loss of service by prevention of use of the arena were cited by the city.

Suit was filed in Jackson County Circuit Court. City officials said they expected the circus to post bond, since it earlier indicated it had insurance to cover such emergencies. Arrangements, were made with William Cully, director of the Swope Park Zoo, however, to house the animals should the city have to seize the circus.

Carmel Quinn Promotes St. Paddy's Day Festival

Singer Carmel Quinn is promoting an Irish "Festival of Stars" at Carnegie Hall, N. Y., on St. Patrick's Day (Friday). Joe Feeney, of the Lawrence Welk show, will headline.

Others on the bill will be the Emerald Girl Pipers from Dublin, the Butler Irish Dancers, from Toronto, and the McFrlean Junior Dancers. Show will have a $5 top.

Haymes-Jeffries to Copa

Dick Haymes is slated for his third New York stand within a year. Singer, together with his wife, Fran Jeffries, have been lined up for a two-weeker at the Copacabana, starting Aug. 10.

Duo had previously appeared at the Empire Room of the Hotel Waldorf-Astoria and the Round Table.

Ringlings to Repeat At Philly Conv. Hall

Philadelphia, March 14.

The Ringling Bros. Barnum & Bailey Circus will stage a repeat engagement at Philadelphia's Convention Hall in the fall. The three-ring spectacle was held successfully indoors here for the first time last year. The dates set are Nov. 29 through Dec. 3. A two-year agreement, assures this city the Ringling show again in 1962.

Completely air-conditioned, Philly Convention Hall with top has 10,000 seats. Show can be presented upon same basis as in Madison Square Garden.

Icer Hot In South

Greenboro, N. C., March 14.

"Holiday on Ice of 1961" broke records for attendance and gross receipts for any engagement that has been at the Greensboro War Memorial, according to Bob Kent, manager. A total of 41,990 people attended the nine performances and gross receipts amounted to $111,146, said Kent. This compared with approximately 37,000 who saw the show here last year when it grossed $104,000.

Kent said the War Memorial expects to realize approximately $25,000 after expenses are paid. The proceeds will go toward defraying the costs of its operation. Kent noted that the $25,000 does not include parking fees and concession profits—both of which will add to the net income.

Henny Youngman at the Plaza?

Yes, Comic Invades the Sophisticated Persian Room

He Jests in Setting Songstresses Have Flourished In

By MILTON ESTEROW

The lights are turned down in the poshPersian Room at the serene and stately Plaza Hotel. The audience, personifying good manners and gracious living, waits quietly. Into the spotlight steps a tall man with something of a droll grin. He is impeccably tailored in white tie and tails but he also wears a turban with a purple plume. It is Henny Youngman of Brooklyn, the Borscht Belt and Broadway.

Perhaps not since Mrs. Pat Campbell, the actress, lifted lorgnettes by lighting a cigarette in the Palm Court soon after the hotel opened in 1907 (she was asked to put it out), has such incredulity pervaded the Plaza. Even the hotel ads inquire in bold type "Henny Youngman at the Plaza?"

What does it mean? Is the Persian Room, where sophisticated songstresses flourish and not a single low-brow comedian has passed the maitre d' unless he paid his way in, diversifying? Is the room looking over the shoulder of bistros from Miami to Las Vegas? Does the move reflect a change in the clientele's taste? Sociologically, is there any significance?

Mr. Youngman's booking is for one week. He will appear through Tuesday.

Reaction Is Sought

Neal Lang, vice president and general manager of the hotel, gives this explanation:

"We wanted to get a reaction. It doesn't mean we will abandon the lovely ladies. This isn't a renaissance for comics.

"If there is any constancy left, it's at the Plaza. But this doesn't include entertainment. Tastes change, conditions change. You have to try something new, to keep reappraising what you're doing," he continued.

"In many hotels, a new look, whether in the plant or anything else, is considered a step forward. This could not happen here. You have to get something new that looks old." Mr. Lang paused and added: "We wanted to see how many people would be infuriated or shocked."

The New York Times

Henny Youngman

The reaction to Mr. Youngman's first show Wednesday night and the second one early yesterday morning was neither fury nor shock. The audience liked what it heard. And the applause equaled anything given that long-time Plaza favorite, Hildegarde, who preceded Mr. Youngman at the room.

Groomed at the Top

Mr. Youngman was a bit nervous in his debut but settled down later and the jokes poured forth. He explained the turban:

"My career has reached a peak, at last I'm a Persian for a week."

If the first two jokes are arid, the new few flourish. The subjects are endless — method cab drivers, Mrs. John F. Kennedy's hair-do, small cars, New York parking, Texas millionaires, Reno, movies, art theatres.

Of course, he is not slow with the gags. Jack Benny once said: "Where I would use three jokes, Bob Hope or Milton Berle would use twelve and Henny Youngman forty-seven."

Mr. Youngman also brought along his violin, which was delivered to him at the microphone on a red, velvet cushion. He borrowed six violinists from Ted Straeter's orchestra and before you could say Johann Strauss, they were strolling by tables and turning the room into old Vienna.

Henny Youngman at the Plaza? It's Henny all right—white tie, tails, turban and all.

—and in THE NEW YORK TIMES!

Vaude Finds Mucho Customers In Five N.Y. Spanish Language Houses

A curious situation is presenting itself to New York show biz. The amount of Spanish vaudeville is now at least the equal of the regulation stageshows. For English speaking residents there are always the Radio City Music Hall and the Apollo, N. Y. However, the Latins have at least two regular houses, and three theatres that play spot shows when an attraction becomes available.

Currently there are 27 film houses in the New York area which play Spanish pictures, and many of them would be open to stageshows if sufficient productions became available at prices which they felt their customers could afford.

The houses on a more or less regular basis are the Jefferson and Puerto Rico, latter in the Bronx. They are joined at intervals by the Atlantic, and Prospect, Brooklyn, and the San Juan in New York's Washington Heights area. The latter house, once owned by Lou Walters, onetime operator of the Latin Quarter, N. Y., has elaborate stageshow facilities. Its management is constantly on the lookout for suitable shows.

The Latin speaking population has become a powerful boxoffice factor in many neighborhoods. The influx from Puerto Rico, although it has diminished somewhat, is still adding new residents to the New York area. They're all potential theatre patrons.

The situation which presently prevails among the Latin population is akin to that which obtained in the early part of this century when immigration from European countries made foreign language theatre an important part of the show biz economy. Today, most of the earlier groups such as the Yiddish, Italian, Hungarian and German imports have all but disappeared.

Today, the Spanish theatre is emerging as the strongest of the foreign language segments in show biz. Its economic importance is seen by the fact that even major companies distribute Spanish pix.

Patrons-Performers

Continued from page 1

happened to be vacationing on the island, walked into that job. It was first regular cafe appearance in his many years.

Changing Attitudes

There has been a noticeable increase of late in the attitude of both audiences and performers. Shelley Berman, for example, has bawled out the customers bitterly, and has even demanded that the management heave them out. Thelonius Monk has shown a contempt for many audiences, and there are times when other players cut short routines and hurled insults at the payees.

There is a sharp division as to who is right in these cases. Many feel the need of a code of etiquette as to what to do until the audience gets quiet. Customarily, the bulk of the audience will shush a noisy party, indicating that normally, the larger section of the crowd will help a performer do his work, particularly when only one or two tables are involved.

The law-and-order elements will normally give up when the general tenor of the room is to continue talking. It then seems evident that somebody goofed. Either in the booking, the performer in the selection of his material, or something said or done which alienated the crowd. It has been customary for the old school of performers to fight their way into the crowd's good graces, and it can frequently be done. This has been the feeling of the bonifaces.

In the old days, an owner used to fire an act on the spot. Today with union regulations plus contracts forbidding such summary action, an owner will frequently pay off an act. Sometimes parting is by mutual consent, and there are times when the entertainer begs to be let out.

Ops Prefer Tact

However, operators universally resent entertainers hurling insults at the crowd generally, although they'll forgive direct slams at an offending or noisy party. Customers, they claim, are pretty hard to come by these days, and they should be nurtured to a reasonable degree.

Performers on the other hand, crave affection and attention from the audience. They will fight hard for it, reward the customers with extraordinarily good performances, and many, particularly among the oldtimers, will try long and hard to overcome crowd hostility. The newer entertainers, not yet completely familiar with how to cope with unruly crowds, crack up in the face of opposition.

However, in losing control, a performer may close many avenues of employment necessary to his future. Problem has become a major source of discussion since the Mathis and Nina Simone incidents.

Backtalking by artists in the concert and symphonic field has been almost an accepted item in longhair circles. Rise Stevens, soprano on the Met roster, interrupted her concert Thursday (9) in Hopkinsville, Ky., to tell the audience that two giggling girls were driving her out of her mind. There were also a number in the audience who tuned in transistor radios to listen to a local basketball game.

'No Hard Feelings' As Mathis Stomps Out of P.R. Club

By AL DINHOFER

San Juan, P.R., March 14.

Rattled by "uncalled-for remarks" of a noisy audience, singer Johnny Mathis last Wed. (8) stomped off the stage of the 500-seat Club Tropicoro. He and his road manager, John Noga, departed for New York the following afternoon—his two-week contract to appear at the San Juan Intercontinental's posh nitery "cancelled by mutual consent."

Comedian Lou Holtz, concluding a 10-day vacation here, agreed with a handshake to fill in (through March 19) one hour before his plane was scheduled to depart San Juan.

Here's what happened according to three eye-witnesses in the club, including Intercontinental catering manager Francois Lemaistre:

Mathis sang for about 15 minutes, harassed once or twice by ringside kibitzers. During this time the hand-mike came apart in his hand, and he spent several seconds screwing it together. While singing "The Lady Is a Tramp," someone called out a remark which apparently momentarily unhinged the singer. At its conclusion he turned and bolted off the stage without a bow.

While people in the club (which was "far from full") waited for an explanation, someone threw some coins onto the stage. Shortly thereafter it was announced no cover ($3 per) would be charged "due to Mr. Mathis' sudden illness."

Intercontinental manager John P. Sutherland indicated the cancellation was the result of a number of precipitating incidents. He said the hotel's promotion staff directed by Mike Segarra, found it increasingly difficult to get "any kind of cooperation."

He said: "We have reached a point where we are unable to cope with the demands and temperament of some of the entertainers coming down here to work."

According to hotel staffers, guests in the room next to Mathis complained that too much noise and loud music was emanating from his room. The next evening the same complaint was registered. Mathis' cooperation with the local press was also next to nil.

"What it boils down to is that one show was cut short," road manager Noga said before departing. "Mathis needs a rest. In the last month he's played the Latin Casino, Philly, the Sahara, in Vegas, and had a rough recording session directly before coming to Puerto Rico.

"We have no hard feelings," Noga continued. "It just happened, that's all."

Holtz spent the afternoon before opening at local radio stations announcing he would appear at Club Tropicoro "without a cover."

When Sutherland demanded to know if Holtz was "one of those temperamental artists," Holtz replied: "Sure, if I'm not paid."

Vaude, Cafe Dates

New York

Steve Allen being packaged by the William Morris Agency for a series of dates . . . Maureen Cannon planed out to Guatemala City for a Monday (12) preem at the Guatemala Hotel . . . Tony & Eddie set for the Coral Island Club, Bermuda, April 10 for 10 weeks . . . Sarah Rubine a newcomer to the Sahbra . . . Danny Apolinar to the Keyboard, Detroit, March 20 for three weeks . . . Lillian Briggs back in New York following a stint in the Jerry Lewis film, "The Ladies Man" . . . Miriam Makeba bows at the Apollo Theatre, Friday (17) . . . The Gaylords into the Latin Quarter, March 22.

Eartha Kitt booked for 10 days of one-nighters and teevee dates in Brazil starting May 25 . . . Bob Melvin pencilled for the Johnny Mathis bill at the Copacabana, April 27 . . . Sammy Davis Jr. starts a week at the Sands, March 22 . . . Rudy Vallee booked for a May stand at the Kings Club, Dallas . . . Ben Beri & Rowena Rollins started at the B&B Supper Club, Indianapolis, March 13 . . . "Adventures on Ice" on a one-weeker at the Crown Room, Indianapolis, April 24 . . . Steve De Pass inked to a five-year two-weeks a year deal, at the Latin Casino, Merchantville, N. J. . . . Ritz Bros., now at the International, taped a sequence for NBC's "Monitor."

Chicago

Jorie Remus booked at Playboy Club here, April 7 for a fortnight . . . Andrews & Hadley set for Copacabana, Winnipeg, April 5 for 10 days . . . Wilma & Ed Leary's "Adventures on Ice" set for Marott Hotel, Indianapolis, April 24 for one week . . . Nancy Welso down for 10 days at Colony Club, Omaha, starting June 1 . . . Jack Carter booked into Rancho Don Carlos, Winnipeg, June 16 for one week . . . Nelson Eddy to play Angelo's, Omaha, Sept. 8-16 . . . Billy Daniels open a two-week date at Town & Country, Winnipeg, March 17 . . . Toni Jones signed for Eddys', Kansas City, Sept. 15-18.

Pittsburgh

The Pony Tails is the first attraction of the spring for the Twin Coaches. They'll be followed by Les Paul & Mary Ford for nine days starting April 14; Johnny Puleo, April 24 for two weeks; Ames Bros. (without brother Ed), May 8, two weeks; Bobby Rydell, May 22, seven days; May 29, Mickey & Sylvia, seven days; and Johnny Mathis, June 5, one week. . . . Ailene Goodman at the Ankara, singing in the lounge and between shows. Ankara show is "Varieties on Ice," starring the adagio team of Charles & Lucille Cavanaugh. Magico Ron Urban also on the bill . . . Vagabonds headlining for two frames at the Holiday House.

Kansas City

Singer Betty Johnson lent a hand to the Crippled Children's Easter Seal drive by guesting at the annual appreciation luncheon at Eddys' Classique Room Monday (6.) Following her date at Eddy's, she goes to Sprinfield, Mo., to begin a new show for Massey-Ferguson over ABC . . . Tony Adams & Lou Marsh head for Hot Springs, Ark., after their current stand at Eddys' through Thursday (16). They'll play the Towers for three weeks beginning March 20 . . . Bob Newhart and the Chad Mitchell Trio in a one-nighter in the Music Hall last Friday (10) at a $4.50 top . . . Annual Ice Capades appearance begins in Municipal Auditorium April 3 through April 8.

Military Circuit

Continued from page 60

of the entertainment. The first class acts don't feel that they should have to do an audition, and besides many of the club managers don't even show up when an audition is set."

While about 150 clubs are booking in the Army's Northern Area Command section headquartered in Frankfurt, and an audition is held every two weeks, generally only five or six managers turn up, Blackburn reported.

Blackburn has been on both sides of the spotlights, having arrived in Europe in 1950 as half of the Blackburn Bros. comedy act from London. His brother, who is now producing shows in London, and he decided to break up the act, and he worked with an American agent, then with a British agent, and in 1956 established his own booking agency here.

Some of the clubs, like Wiesbaden's Rocker Club, the noncommissioned officers club, gives its members five free shows a week, generally buying a $150 package. Other smaller clubs offer only one or two shows a month.

HERBIE SELLS
Currently:
CLUB DATES
BABE CLATTERBUCK PROD.
411 NO. CENTRAL AVE.
PHOENIX, ARIZONA

"THE COMEDIAN"
The Only Real Monthly PROFESSIONAL GAG SERVICE
THE LATEST — THE GREATEST — THE MOST-UP-TO-DATEST
Now in its 126th Issue, containing stories, one-liners, poemettes, song titles, hecklers, audience stuff, monologs, parodies, double gags, bits, ideas, intros, impressions and impersonations, political, interruptions Thoughts of the Day, Humorous Views of the News, Vignettes, etc.
$25 YR.—SINGLE ISSUES $3
Foreign
$35 YR.—SINGLE ISSUES $4
NO C.O.D.'s
BILLY GLASON, 200 W. 54th St. New York City 19, CO. 5-1316

★ ★ ★ AVAILABLE ★ ★ ★
PRESS, POMOTION AND PR MAN
Also need several top acts for bookings in several states in South and South West.
Write VARIETY, Box V-2119
154 W. 46th St., New York 36

WANTED
MALE SINGER
Tall—6 ft. or Over
To act as straight man for comedy team. Have bookings. Contact: Mr. Watt.
UNIVERSAL ARTISTS CORP.
1271 SIXTH AVENUE, NEW YORK
JU 6-0720

Eleventh Week on Tour
"HARLEM GLOBETROTTERS"
CAB CALLOWAY
Current CORAL Release
I'LL FOLLOW YOU b/w DANCING MAN
Variety (Jan. 11) RAVES
Management BILL MITTLER, 1619 Broadway, New York

DICK AUNT
WESTON AND MARTHA
Comedy Ventriloquism
Currently
THE THUNDERBIRD
LAS VEGAS, NEV.
Pers. Mgt.: GEORGE SOARES
4208 El Jardin, Las Vegas, Nev., Du. 4-2182

CONTINENTAL ECCENTRICS
LOLO AND LITA
FUNNY • DIFFERENT
SMART • INIMITABLE
PARIS Eddy Marouani 11 Rue Chateaubriand.
MADRID Rafael Cortes Ave. Jose Antonio 68.
U.S.A. 719 8th Ave. New York 36, N.Y. Circle 7-2190.

NICK LUCAS and the TROUBADORS
Opening
March 16th
Newt Crumbley's
HOLIDAY HOTEL
Reno, Nev.

BILLY GLASON'S FUN-MASTER
PROFESSIONAL COMEDY MATERIAL for all Theatricals
"We Service the Stars"
Big Temporary Special on All
35 Gag Files for $15, Plus $1.00 Postage
Foreign: $1.50 ea., 35 for $40
● 3 Parody Books, Per Bk. . . . $10 ●
● 4 Blackout Books, Per Bk. . . $25 ●
● Minstrel Budget . . . . . $25 ●
How to Master the Ceremonies $3 per Copy
No C.O.D's "Always Open"
BILLY GLASON
200 W. 54th St., N.Y.C., 19 CO 5-1316
(WE TEACH EMCEEING and COMEDY)
(Let a Real Professional Train You)

B & B COSTUMES
Gowns and Costumes
INDIVIDUALLY DESIGNED
MADE TO ORDER
110 W. 44th St., N. Y. CI 5-4660

Chi Nite Club
AVAILABLE
We are discontinuing present operation April 1st, 1961.
Open for all suggestions concerning new profitable policies.
Will consider plays, theatricals, revues, etc.
Excellent well-known Chicago location.
Completely equipped: stage, orchestra pit, props, lighting, kitchen, dance floor, parking facilities. Seating capacity 400.
Contact: JIMMY PURCELL
Silver Cloud, 3196 Milwaukee Ave., Palisade 5-9188
Chicago, Ill.

House Reviews

Apollo, N. Y.

LaVern Baker, Jimmy Ricks, Shirrells (4), Big Maybelle, Jimmy Charles, Vibrations (5), King Coleman, Reuben Phillips Orch (12); "Macumba Love" (UA).

Current stanza at this Harlem vaudery has to depend on headliner LaVern Baker and Jimmy Ricks for the vocappeal, and it's good dependency. There's enough comicality otherwise to measure this one a likable enough layout fore to aft.

Miss Baker is a canny charmer belting or ballading, and maintains steady interest. She even dares a "Bill Bailey" parody centered on Nikita Khrushchev, but it could be sharper satire. Highspot, easily, is her duet with Jimmy Ricks on "You're the Boss," though not to gainsay the femme's obvious prowess solo.

Ricks, in his own preceding slot, is restricted to but two tunes when it's plain he merits one or two efforts more, even if it means pruning from the top. His down-deep crooning is stylish and properly casual for top reaction.

Shirrells, four femmes getting beaucoup disk spins these days, offer an okay routine r&r stint; but ahead of them are some happy moments from Big Maybelle, a self-kidder with an all too-pointed "All of Me" in view of her corpulence. She's a click funster in this spot, plenty deft at toying with audience yocks. Jimmy Charles, also limited to a couple of tunes, is a moderate pleaser with a derivative style.

Vibrations, as teeoff act, opened things strong, mainly on strength of visual values from clowing and mugging to fancy hoofery in the Step Brothers genre. Five fellows look strong for any variety bill.

King Coleman brings some outlandish body English to his emcee assignment, and Rueben Phillips' orch showbacks with per usual capability. Pit.

Alhambra, Paris

Paris, March 7.

Leo Ferré, Serge Darri, Williams (5), Marquis Chimps, Bravos (8), Jean-Michel Defaye Orch (15); $1 top.

Singer-cleffer Leo Ferre has stepped from specialized boite and one-man show appearances to this immense Right Bank house. He has made it. Middle-aged, balding and myopic, he still has a drive and adeptness in his songalog that gets right to the public, both the ordinary and demanding.

He has learned to control his voice and get the most from it; a previous shrill quality has all but disappeared. Ferre now joins the ranks of potent headliners here and displays the talent for offbeat foreign boite booking.

Minus the usual glasses, his face now has a squinting aspect which helps somehow in the dramatic numbers where he can get the right sardonic, macabre or passionate look. He warbles expertly lyricked songs about love, the old days, pacifism, and a general heartfelt anarchic attack on all that is frouzy, petty or unjust.

Ferre thus emerges a personalized singer who has something to say. He does it with a knowing musical background, poise, belting and material.

House show around him is excellent and varied except for an egg laid by comic Serge Davri. Williams are expert jugglers with five manipulating objects en masse and adding acrobatics to boot. Bravos (8) do rapidfire teeterboard bits with one sending another up who hits another board to send another until one somersaults atop three partners on each other's shoulders. A most expert filler.

Marquis chimps are an engaging bunch of monkeys cavorting for solid yocks in their mannerisms, and helped by the obvious love for trainer Marquis.

Davri is a madcap, zany whose overdone antics and sheer ridiculous posturings have been getting laughs up to now. But repeating his bits about breaking dishes on his head, spewing powder dust all over the place and screeching out silly stories did not sit right with the aud after such fine acts.

He either has to find a true comic bent or stick to niteries where the intimacy can make him seem funnier than merely painfully exhibitionistic. Jean-Michel Defaye orch contributes good medleys and backing helped by fine amplifiers and acoustics.

At a $1 top the Alhambra-Maurice Chevalier, to give the house its full name, looks in for three weeks of biz. Mosk.

New Acts

MARC LONDON

Comedy
30 Mins.
Bon Soir, N.Y.

Marc London, a pleasant appearing newcomer to the Gotham comedy field, indicates great promise. At this stage his material is a bit ahead of him, which is the reverse procedure for novitiates. As soon as he closes this gap, should excite wider attention.

London has several points of departure from the norm. He is essentially a witty standup comic, but also has an excellent tenor, and does a few offbeat impressions. Much of the gab seems much too chichi for the Broadway trade, but lots of it is suited for most situations. He perks his audience immediately with his ability to take advantage of material in the newspapers. He did a biting impression of Jack Paar, who seems a hard guy to capture essentially, and which still needs a mite of work, plus a fleeting glimpse of Ed Sullivan. Another unusual item is his translation of Shelley Berman into a Hibernian character which got high marks from this crowd. Jose.

NOREEN PARKER

Songs
30 Mins.
Le Cabaret, Toronto

Prior to her forthcoming South American tour, Noreen Parker is breaking in a new act at the plush Le Cabaret here and, wisely, has gone to top men for the writing. Stager is Mervyn Nelson, with all arrangements by Jack Olsen and Ben Bennett, with Nelson doing all the specially-introduced lyrics.

Accenting her contrasting pace, Noreen Parker entered with a bouncy "Look Me Over" (she was in an orange chiffon evening gown, when caught) and an immediate switch in tempo to a ballad combo of "My Lover," which includes new lyrics to "Lover, Come Back," and "My Buddy."

Back to more cheerful themes, she changed style for her "Happy Habit" and "I Enjoy Being a Girl," finished in blues style in "Sophisticated Lady" and new lyrics to "Waterboy," latter done by Nelson.

A fiery blond, the diminutive Miss Parker changes her song-styling from high soprano to gravel-voice finishes, depending on the calibre of contrast in her chosen repertory. Alternately vivacious in her novel tv numbers or sad in her blues, the big-eyed blond also proved herself a good actress.

Second time she has appeared at Le Cabaret, she was previously heard on the Athur Godfrey morning show, the trans-Canada "Holiday Ranch" tv series of the Canadian Broadcasting Corp., and fronter with Denny Vaughan's Orch, latter now pianist-batoneer of the Queen Elizabeth Hotel, Montreal. McStay.

YVONNE CONSTANT

Songs
17 Mins.
Downstage Room, Chicago

This blond gamin, who spun off from the cast of "La Plume de ma Tante" to try her fortunes on the U.S. nitery circuit, does acceptably at this Windy City boite with chiefly Gallic vocals which, after a charming fashion, she translates between verses. Her strong suits, as of now, are ingenuous mannerisms and an eyepopping frame, especially as it's displayed in a black sheath slip. Indeed, she makes it a difficult choice for the male contingent whether to listen or just stare.

Not in the chanteuse category, but rather in the French street singer tradition, she airs such songs as "Poor People of Paris," "Irma La Douce," and a Gallicized "Itsy Bitsy Bikini" with an appealing earthiness. But she needs seasoning, vocally, and a more strategic repertoire. Her voice, while not rich and full, has an admirable huskiness and sensual quality which she doesn't always use to best advantage. Night caught she had to battle an extremely noisy house and quelled it more by animation than by song.

She's ideally showcased in an intimery and preferably one with sufficient stage room for her walk-around hipswinging, which is innocently sexy, in a Brigitte Bardot sort of way. Les.

AMES BROS. (3)

Songs, Comedy
55 Mins.
Beverly Hills, Cincinnati

A division of the 17-year-old Ames foursome finds Ed on his own and brothers Vic, Gene and Joe carrying on the standard nitery turn's pattern as a trio. Ed's absence is conspicuous to those in the know, but not to the point of seriously retarding entertainment value of the talented trio. Encores are merited in the traditional Ames manner.

Baritones Vic and Gene and basso Joe share solo chores and combine on several melodies from their w.k. Victor waxings. Clinchers include "Toreador Song," "You, You, You," "Lucky Old Sun," "Love Is A Many Splendored Thing" and with audience participation "Yes Indeed" and "Moonlight Bay."

Retained are the impressions, as surefire as of yore, of Cole in Joe's falsetto, Vaughn Monroe, Welk, Godfrey, Sullivan, Frankie Laine and Eckstine. A new specialty is the "Stepping Out" softshoe bit of Vic and Gene, neatly with toppers and canes.

The foursome's arranger and musical director of long standing, Al Semola, had billing in the program for opening show caught, but he did not participate. Kell.

Unit Review

Hollywood Bandbox

Melbourne, Feb. 23.

Tivoli Circuit in association with Aztec Services present revue featuring Bob Crosby; with Johnny Matson, Pilita, Darryl Stewart, Freddie Bamberger & Pam, The Sadler Trio, Jimmy Jeff & Bambi, Gloria Dawn, The Tivoli Ribbonettes & Beaus; staged by Knox Godfrey; choreography, David Hamilton; musical direction, Hal Moschetti. Opened Feb. 2, '61, at the Tivoli Theatre, Melbourne; $3 top.

With Bob Crosby's stage appearances Down Under limited to four weeks in Melbourne, it seems unfortunate he hasn't brought his orchestra with him.

There isn't much for him to do in this show except be physically present and generally pleasant. A good ad libber, he talks about his relatives, sings a little and appears in comedy sketches.

There's a fairly competent supporting company with no one outstanding. For American comic Johnny Matson the yocks are hard to get, but his simultaneous playing of trumpet and accordion whilst smoking two cigers raises a stir.

Freddie Bamberger & Pam provide amusing moments with comedy patter and Aussie warbler Darryl Stewart hits the high notes. Comedienne-singer Gloria Dawn's talents are wasted on routine crooning numbers with one brief bright spot of a duet with Crosby.

Songstress Pilita fails to shine, and general backing comes from juggler Jimmy Jeff assisted by Bambi, The Escorts and The Sadler Trio. Stan.

Peripatetic Percenters

Jackie Green, of Joe Glaser's Associated Booking Corp. of America, on a booking trip through England, Germany and Spain . . . Leonard Vannerson, ex-Willard Alexander, has joined the Ross W. Christena Associates, Indianapolis, where he'll be in charge of the Hollywood office . . . Lee Salomon, of the William Morris Agency, off to Miami Beach . . . Indie agent Bill Burnham on a quick trip to Chicago.

Eddie Elkort back at his desk after conferring with operator Bernie Bralove of the Shoreham Hotel in Washington . . . Dave Baumgarten, MCA, back from trip to the Coast.

CURRENT BILLS

WEEK OF MARCH 13

NEW YORK CITY

MUSIC HALL—Gladys Kreise, Helen Wood, Alegrias Bros., Rassos, Bill Drew, Corps de Ballet, Raymond Paige Orc.

AUSTRALIA

MELBOURNE (Tivoli) — Bob Crosby, Johnny Matson, Pilita, Darryl Stewart, Freddie Bamberger & Pam, Gloria Dawn, Escorts, Jimmy Jeff & Bambi, Sadler Trio.

SYDNEY (Tivoli)—Bob Kole, Rita Tanno, Wendy Waring, Ben Vargas, Joe Bennett, Robbin Miller, B. J. DeSimone, Joel Craig, John Mineo, Steven Ross, Patsy Hemingway, Julie Day, Reg Collins, Ted Ziegler, Philip A'Vard, Lloyd Cunnington.

BRITAIN

GLASGOW (Empire)—Joe Gordon Co., Jimmy Jackson Co., Jimmy Blair Orc., Jigtime Dancers, Billy Crotchet, Sydney Devine, Isobel James, Jeannie, Aileen Manson, Terry O'Duffy, Desmond Carroll, Eddie Canale, Heather Girls, Angus Dunnie, Glen Daly.

LIVERPOOL (Empire)—Jimmy Clitheroe, Ronnie Hilton, Billy Burden, Michael Allport, 5 Robertis, Trio Vitalites, Jean & Jackie Dawson.

MANCHESTER (Hippodrome) — Max Wall, Robert Earl, McAndrews & Mills, Duo Russmar, Jill Summers, Rey Overbury & Suzette.

Cabaret Bills

NEW YORK CITY

BASIN ST. EAST—Benny Goodman Orc., Freddie Cole, Red Norvo, Jimmy Rushing, Charlie Shavers, Maria Marchale.

BLUE ANGEL—Dick Gregory, Dorothy Loudon, Cumberland 3, Jimmy Lyon 3.

BON SOIR—Phyllis Diller, Marc London, 3 Flames, Jimmie Daniels.

CHARDAS — Neila Ir, Laureanne Le May, Tibor Rakossy, Dick Martin, Bill Yedla, Elemer Horvath.

CHATEAU MADRID—Carmen Amaya, El Canas 6.

COPACABANA—Nat King Cole, Gary Morton, Douglas Clarke, Paul Shelley Orc, Frank Marti Orc.

EMBERS—Teddy Wilson 3, Red Allen 4, Joan Bishop.

HOTEL ASTOR—Eddie Lane Orc.

HOTEL NEW YORKER Milt Saunders Orc, Verna Lee.

HOTEL PIERRE — "No No Nanette," Jimmy Carroll, Jeanne Michelle, Bonnie Murray, Ronald Rogers, Harry Snow, Mary Tremain, Stanley Melba Orc, Joe Ricardel Orc.

HOTEL PLAZA — Marguerite Piazza, Ted Stracter Orc, M. Monte's Continentals.

HOTEL TAFT—Vincent Lopez Orc.

HOTEL ROOSEVELT — Jimmy Palmer Orc.

HOTEL ST. REGIS — Felicia Sanders, Mat Shaw Orc, Walter Kay Orc.

INTERNATIONAL—Ritz Bros., McKenna Line, Mike Durso Orc, Aviles Orc.

LATIN QUARTER—Rowan & Martin, Thorens, Chop Chop & Charlene, Harrison & Kossi, Dorothea McFarland, Ronald Field, Jo Lombardi Orc, B. Harlowe Orc.

LEFT BANK—Cal Bostic, Alice Darr.

LIVING ROOM — Sunny Gale, Bobby Cole 3, Iris Paul.

NO. 1 FIFTH AVE.—Jack Denton, Suzanne Bernard, Joan St. James, Harry Noble, Dick Hankinson.

ROUNDTABLE — Nina Simone, Tryce Glenn, Mabel Mercer.

SAHBRA — Sarah Rubine, Rahel & Zhila, Martin Romero, Sara Avant, Rovesh & Shirashe, Leo Fuld.

SAVOY HILTON—Gunnar Hansen Orc, Marco Rizo 3, Ray Hartley.

TOWN & COUNTRY—Jewel Box Revue, Ned Harvey Orc, Martinez Orc.

UPSTAIRS & DOWNSTAIRS—Ceil Cabot, Gordon Connell, Gerry Matthews, Bill Hennant, Mary L. Wilson, Pat Ruhl, Carl Norman, Rose Murphy, Sham Stewart, William Roy, M. & C. Allen.

VIENNESE LANTERN — Vicky Autier, Marguerite Baxter, John Modinos, Ernest Schoen, Joe Troppi.

VILLAGE BARN—Jack Wallace, Johnny King, Carol Ritz, Piute Pete, Bill Cimler, Lou Harold Orc.

VILLAGE VANGUARD — Orson Bean, Oscar Brown, Junior Mance 3.

WALDORF-ASTORIA — Denise Darcel, Emil Coleman Orc, Theo. Fandi Orc.

CHICAGO

BLUE ANGEL—"Si Si Calypso," Lord Christo, Jamaica Slim Henry, David Bynum, Olga Montenegro, Lady Francine, Roger McCall, Tino Perez Orc.

CONRAD HILTON—"Ballads & Blades", Jo Marie Roddy, Willie Kall, Norm Crider, Angelito, Fred Napier, Morano & Knowles, Claire Perreau Orc, Bill Christopher, Frederick & Gina, Boulevar-Dears (5), Boulevar-Dons (5).

DRAKE — Susan Barrett, Jimmy Blade Orc.

EDGEWATER BEACH—Yonely, Hal Loman & Playmates (2), Kenny Black Orc.

GATE OF HORN—Tarriers, Inman & Ira.

LONDON HOUSE—Barbara Carroll 3, Audrey Morris 3, Eddie Higgins.

MISTER KELLY'S—Julie Wilson, Wally Griffin, Marty Rubenstein, Marx & Frigo.

PALMER HOUSE—Liberace, Betty Pasco, Clifford Guest, Ben Aiden Orc.

PLAYBOY CLUB — Bill Henderson, Clancy Brothers & Tom Makem, Cindy & Lindy, Jackie Jackler, John Gary, Leslie Davison, Kirk Stuart Trio.

TRADE WINDS — Irwin Corey, Adam Wade, Joe Parnello 3.

LOS ANGELES

BEN BLUE'S—Ben Blue, "Les Corps de Paree," Barbara Heller, Ivan Lane Orc (5).

CLOISTER—Sarah Vaughan Show.

COCONUT GROVE —"Anything Goes." Freddy Martin Orc.

CRESCENDO — Bill Dana, Ink Spots, Patti Moike & Ben Lessey.

DINO'S — Cathi Hayes, Jack Elton, Steve La Fever.

LE CRAZY HORSE—Crazy Horse Revue.

SLATE BROS.—Jerry Lester, Dagmar, Dick Stabile Trio.

STATLER HOTEL—"Playmates of 61", Skinnay Ennis Orc.

THE SUMMIT— The Tremers.

YE LITTLE CLUB — Randy Sparks, Gloria Smyth, Joe Fabx Trio.

LAS VEGAS

DESERT INN Tony Martin, Ford & Hines, Donn Arden Dancers, Carlton Hayes Orc, Michael Kent, Dixie Mellen, Milt Herth, Henri Rose, Bobby Stevenson.

DUNES — "Night at Moulin Rouge," Tony Bennett, Ford & Reynolds, Davies Bros. & Models, Bill Robbins Orc, Al Hirt Sextet, Dynamo-Tones, Enreques.

EL CORTEZ Johnny Uhlich Trio, Mimi.

FLAMINGO—Steve Allen, Lyle Sherdows, Gabe Dell, Flamingettes and Brandywine Orc, Earl Grant, David Allen, Peggy Dietrick.

FREMONT HOTEL Joe King Zanos, Fabulous Jets, Satellites.

GOLDEN NUGGET Bob Wells, Wade Ray 5, Sunshine Boys, Bobbie & Sticky Coats.

HACIENDA — Dan Tunes, Johnny Olenn, Keynotes, Cathy Ryan.

MINT—Pat Marino's "Artists & Models of '61."

NEVADA CLUB Vido Musso, Joe Loco, Princess Bodia, Marty Lavere, Buck Sparks, Johnny Paul.

NEW FRONTIER "Good Nudes of 61," Bobby Sargent, The Cables, Cathy Ryan, Dick Rice Orc, Ink Spots.

RIVIERA "La Plume de Ma Tante" Robert Clary, Liliane Montevecchi, Jack Cathcart Orc, Goofers, DeCastro Sisters, Playboys, Peptones, Marty Berm.

SAHARA Eleanor Powell, Don Jackins, Dave Barry, Moro-Landis Dancers, Freds Basil Orc, Characters, Jackie Jocko Caballeros, Tune Jesters.

SANDS Gordon & Sheila MacRae, Eler Lobato Dancers, Copa Girls, Gail Nelson, Antonio Morelli Orc, Dave Barton, Morres King.

SHOWBOAT — Bonnie Sloan, Sheetis McDonald, Deuces Wild.

SILVER SLIPPER Hank Henry, Sparky Kaye, Red Marshall, Danny Jacobs, Pat Amber Halliday, Rudenko Bros, Slipperettes, George Redman Orc, Lou Phillips, Charlie Teagarden Orc, Twin Tunes.

STARDUST—"Lado de Paris," Roberta Linn, Bernard Bros, Ralph Young, Mickl Lynn, Happy Jesters.

THUNDERBIRD "Scandals On Ice," Gem Grant, Dick Weston, George Arnold, Shirley Linde, Phil Richards, Kay Brown, Henry Nefel, Garwood Van Orc, Millionaires.

TROPICANA "Folies Bergere," Jean Fenn, Claudine Longet, Arnaut Bros, Garvyn Ray, Ray Sinatra Orc, Sparky Greene, Al De Paulo 4, Dubonnet Trio, Barny Cassella, De Fuentes Bros, Guy Landis.

MIAMI-MIAMI BEACH

AMERICANA Japanese Spectacular, Lou Adler Orc, Pupi Campo Orc, Ross 3.

BILTMORE TERRACE Napoleon Reed, Esther Southerland, Julio Torres Orc, Jeanne Moore.

CARILLON - Lou Walters Revue, Les Chevalles de Espana, Chenita & Johnson, Janine Claire, Mons Choppy, Karl & Christine, Can Can Girls, Jacques Dermet Orc.

CHARY'S Buddy Greco 3, Buddy Lewis 4, Bobby Fields Trio, Ken Hewitt Trio, Iris Robyn.

DEAUVILLE — Jimmy Durante, Eddie Jackson, Sonny King, Jack Roth, George Tapley, Sally Davis, Johnny Mack, Betty Muldoon, Les Rhodie Orc, La Playa Sextet.

DIPLOMAT Damita Jo, Mandy Crespo Orc.

EDEN ROC Edie Gorme & Steve Lawrence, Corbett Monica, Mal Malkin Orc.

EMBERS Duke Hazlett, Muriel Jones Trio.

FONTAINEBLEAU Louis Prima & Keely Smith, Sam Butera & Witnesses, Lou Dawson Orc, Vaudette Sextet.

MURRAY FRANKLIN'S Murray Franklin, Paul Gray, Jackie Heller, Ray Carrie, Frankie Byers, Carelly, Charlie Callas, Eddie Bernard.

PALLADIUM -Art Mooney Orc, Casey Orc, Ralph Font, Candi Cortez, Miguelito Valdez Orc.

SAXONY Casa Diosa Revue, Pepe Miller, Diosa Costello, Don Casino Orc, The Sabras, Ivory Tower Revue, Kazan, Amir, Gulli Gulli, Nejla Ir, Yasmina Yemal, Maritza, Geo. Sawaya Group.

SEVILLE—"Caught in Act," Jack DeLeon, Terry Haven, Joe Ross, Jerry Newby, Anne Jones, Linda Lavin, Held & Paul.

THUNDERBIRD Frankie Scott, Robie Bros., Dick Merrick, Terrifices, Berj Vaughn Four.

RENO-TAHOE

HAROLD'S CLUB Rusty Draper, Judy Lynn, Don Conn Orc.

HARRAH'S (Reno) — Jerry Celonna, Denis & Rogers, Ted Campbell, Jackie & Roy, Nick Esposito, Cooper Sis, Charley Chaney 3.

HARRAH'S (Tahoe) Sammy Davis Jr, Bob Melvin, Lancers, Skeets Minton, Joe Kline, Leighton Noble Orc.

HOLIDAY - Joe Maize, Hi-Brows, Karen Williams, Charles Gould, Poni Tails.

MAPES—Don Lane, Signatures, Nock-a-Bouts, Fanelli & La Pata.

RIERSIDE—Vaughn Monroe, Los Cherumbeles, Freddie Bell, Riverside Orc.

WAGON WHEEL (Tahoe) - Gaylords, Gallions, Bramson-Leonard, Bobby Page.

SAN FRANCISCO

BLACKHAWK George Shearing 5.

EARTHQUAKE McGOON'S — Turk Murphy Orc.

FAIRMONT HOTEL — Crosby Bros, Ernie Heckscher Orc.

GAY 90'S -Ray K. Goman, Bee & Ray Goman.

HUNGRY I—Jackie Mason, Tom O Horgan, Carol Brent, Freddie Paris.

JAZZ WORKSHOP — Jim Witherspoon, Ben Webster 4.

ON THE LEVEE -Kid Ory Orc.

NEVE—Joe Williams 5, Harry Edison, 4 Dukes, Skip Cunningham, Clora Bryant, H. Henderson Orc.

NEW FACK'S—Mel Young, Bobbi Norris, Geo. Cerruti 3.

365 CLUB—A. L. Simpkins, Martez & Lucia, Bentley's Poodles, Jackie Cole, Roberto Navarro, Maria Caruso, Marva Linero, Barry Ashton Dancers, Roy Palmer Orc.

PURPLE ONION — Carol Brent, Jerry Music.

Hotel Plaza, N.Y.

Henny Youngman; Ted Straeter and Mark Monte orchs; $3 and $4 cover.

A standup comic in the posh precincts of the Persian Room is certainly an offbeat booking but considering that Henny Youngman did so well in the Camellia Room of Chi's Hotel Drake this experiment by the Hotel Plaza's managing director, Neal Lang, may be prophetic. Comedians of stature, of course, come higher than chantoosies of like dimensions—professional, that is, not pulchritudinously speaking.

Youngman is a one-weeker, sandwiched in between Hildegarde's closing and Marguerite Piazza's stay which is quite a parlay. Booking commitments were such that the odd-week gave Lang an opportunity to experiment and Youngman is making the most of it for personal show biz exploitation.

Opening in impeccable white-tie-and-tails, to a special lyric, "I'm A Persian For One Night" (in keeping with this class room's motif), he punches over a flock of topical one-liners, many of them spontaneous applause-getters. He also does his violining a bit more legitimately although spoofing the schmaltzy Monseigneur's manner of romantic string serenading.

In actuality there's some legit Strauss and magyar music whipped up as a quintet of violinists from Ted [illegible]'s orchestra surround the Paglacci-ing Paganini. First violinist Joe Spallino, of the band, virtually makes a virtuoso opportunity of the tongue-in-Stradivarius bit.

If Noel Coward can play Las Vegas there's no reason why some of the hotel rooms around the country can't change pace with some standup comedians. Youngman may well prove to be a trailblazer of sorts. On an intratrade basis he had tough competition opening night with the Ritz Bros. at the International Restaurant and a new legit comedy, "Mary, Mary," premiereing the same evening.

[illegible] Youngman has been doing okay dinner trade, but off for the midnight shows, which is SOP for most boites in recent weeks. Straeter and Mark Monte's Continentals deliver handily for the dansapation per usual. Abel.

Riverside, Reno

Reno, March 9.

Vaughn Monroe, Four Voices, Freddie Bell & Bellboys (7), Los Cherubimbos (10), Riverside Orch (8); no minimum, no cover.

Vaughn Monroe—with little change in catalog and little change in presentation—is proving to be a perennial fave with the Reno nitery set. Opening night response attests to his marquee lure with the locals. For this turn he's backed by the Four Voices, an act rating mention for top-league support of the headliner, plus commendable offerings alone; but for the rest of the turn it's mostly a carbon of shows offered before: a lot of the Monroe hits he's put on record in the last 15 or so years.

Smooth and with full assurance, he essays the likes of "You Were Meant for Me," "Very Thought of You," "Rockin' With The Moon," etc. The distinctive styling comes across strong, and tablers react with proper spirit. Also included is medley from "Annie Get Your Gun." Singer gives complete songalog, but knows the moment to exit. He remains the impressive pro all the way. Pace is varied by trombone duo (an okay job with "Little Red" Blount, fronting the house band for this session.

Freddie Bell & the Bellboys make for much contrast with the Monroe appeal, and win good endorsement with uptempo, comedy, and variety stuff. There's much enthusiasm obvious with Bell for the most part at the mike on vocals and a bit of story telling. He's backed by piano, drums, bass, trombone, sax, and trumpet.

Opener is "Let The Good Times Roll," and the 30 minutes follow the theme. Instrumentals at times hit the high decibel level for this room, but the overdoing is countered by the apparent desire to give audiences full money's worth. There's no lull with the Bellboys on stage, and they command attention.

Los Cherumbeles, with the accent on the Spanish titles as the name implies, present a concert-style show rich in musicianship and color. Group includes a femme flamenco dancer with exceptional talents. Cherumbeles are a holdover turn for this frame, and the reason is obvious: they're a class act.

New names due in March 22. Long.

Crescendo, Hollywood

Hollywood, March 9.

Bill (Jose Jiminiz) Dana, Patti Moore & Ben Lessey, Ink Spots; Eddie Grady orch (5); $2.50 cover, 2-drink minimum.

Acclaim from a ready-and-willing crowd must have been sweet music to Bill (Jose Jiminez) Dana opening his first local date at Crescendo Wednesday night (8). The build-up was there; it remained merely for Dana, a gasser on Steve Allen shows, to deliver. Turn highlights a well-rounded show, including Patti Moore & Beh Lessey and the Ink Spots, which should keep this Strip boite jumping for its 12-day stand.

Dana's brand of comedy, with his two character, himself and his stumbling Jose, offers type of novelty that current saloners seek. Steve Allen showed up to introduce him—"he didn't start on my program but he almost finished there"—and set the mood which was taken up by audience even before Dana, in his Jiminez role, stepped up on stage.

Some of his material is old-hat but he presents enough fresh stuff to sock over his wares. Don Hinckley, his writer, joins him in a couple of routines and his questions-and-answers forum is a particular fave with set-siders.

Back to please their followers of many years, Patti Moore & Ben Lessey, the hardy perennials, do just that with their onstage time, bright, lively and bouncy as usual. Here's a standard act that never wavers through the years, repeats only enhance its popularity. Patti with her bubbling, Ben with his popcorn juggling and whirling dervish routine, pars with Dana for headline honors.

Ink Spots, a far cry from the original crew but still able to belt over their songs to pop taste, open bill with a total of 10 numbers, standards and specialty. Finale is particularly good, called "Hallelujah Time" but mostly drawn from "When the Saints Go Marching In." Eddie Grady with his five-man orch provides fine backing for show. Whit.

Mr. Kelly's, Chi

Chicago, March 6.

Julie Wilson, Wally Griffin, Max Frigo Trio; $2.50 cover.

Rush St.'s top cabaret is in good hands for the duration of Lent with Julie Wilson as the purveyor of euphoric songology. A repeater here, and with a good Windy City following collected over the years, she governs these close quarters with sheer savvy. Ten minutes after she's, on it's her party, and no question about it.

Miss Wilson brings with her this time a crafty alignment of songs, slightly offbeat and some just out of mothballs, but all of them perfectly in character—to wit, sophisticated and vital. Case in point, the tee-upper, "Let Yourself Go," articulates her thematic message. She's on for 35 shoulder-tossing, crowd-pleasing minutes and sells in whatever idiom, ballad, uptune or novelty.

It's the symbolic white feather boa that gives her departure into the champagne-and-caviar of her act, those femme-slanted items she excels in, "Hard Hearted Hannah," "I'm a Bad Bad Girl" and the like. For a rousing getaway, she gives out a blues medley in her best powerhouse delivery and leaves them pounding for more.

Wally Griffin works effectively in the opening spot, recouping with clever song parodies and special material after an unsteady standup monolog. Seemed as though opening night nervousness threw his timing off, because the spiel had some very funny lines. A lot of chaff too, however, and more blue stuff than necessary. But it's the ditties that are his metier, and they satisfy, particularly the folk music-advertising spoof, "Hey Nonny Nonny Geritol," and the modern teenage version of "Barber of Seville." Act got good returns, once it got going.

Show is in through March 26, with Dorothy Loudon and Smothers Bros. next up. Les.

Deauville, Miami B'ch

Miami Beach, March 11.

Jimmy Durante with Sonny King, Eddie Jackson, Jack Roth, George Finley, Sally Davis, Johnny Mack, Kitty Muldoon, line (5), Les Rhode Orch; $5-$7.50 bev. minimums.

Jimmy Durante provided patron-ailing Casanova Room with its biggest preem-night since season started and through the weekend, brought biz up to a make-money grossing rate. He rated the big turnouts, coming in with the best act he's had in many a year, one that is paced at a whirlwind tempo that keeps the howls mounting and the mitts erupting in middle of routines, notably those with Sonny King.

It's obvious that the tall, sleek and dynamic songster has turned into the perfect partner, rather than foil, for the ageless vet of the frenetic approach to insane goings-on. The lad seems to perk Durante into years-belieing energy and enthusiasm that spreads through the room. There's a slew of new much of it topical material in song and wacky-waggery, with the split infinitives, the mangling of the language retained. The by-now classic "Inka Dinka Doo" is updated and integrated into a smoothly knit continuity of song, dance and chatter that makes the 90 minutes the company is on, seem much shorter. Durante and King now work almost continuously as a team. Only in one or two spots does Durante take over alone, to give his much-younger partner a breathing spell. King belts 'em with his upbeat tunes and in duos with the boss and the threesome-routines with Durante's long associate, Eddie Jackson. The latter does the "Bill Bailey" bit again, but this time to much more solid effect with King and Durante joining, as well as the surprisingly well-staged group of leggy lovelies gathered from local show-belles three days before the opening.

Then, there're the standard bits with the hats, on the "well dressed man" theme and other yock-raising standards, such as the mayhem on the piano, the exchange with drummer Jack Roth and one howler, where Durante "tosses" King over the 88.

Blonde ingenue Kitty Muldoon is on early for a sock lyric special—she could be given more to do. Johnny Mack is back with his out-of-air canes and easy hoofery to peg the finale all-hoofing bit in which bulky standby Sally Davis tosses Durante around. It all adds up to one of the wildest-albeit shrewdly disciplined—stagings Durante has ever presented here. He's well rewarded—as is King—with "more" demands that wind him into a begoff.

Les Rhode and orch back the fast goings-on adeptly. Milton Berle and company follow on the 17th. Lary.

Neve, San Francisco

San Francisco, March 10.

Joe Williams; Harry Edison Quintet (5).

Singer Joe Williams, a graduate of the ranks of the Count Basie band, is making his first appearance locally as a single and it is most impressive.

Williams has acquired a firstrate stage presence and delivery during his half dozen years with Basie and these serve him well as he launches out his own.

The blues, of course, were the basic fare of the Basie band, but Williams, in his own series of Roulette LPs in the past couple of years, has laid more and more stress on ballads. This, too, works out well in solo performance because he is able to offer a varied program ranging from ballads and love songs to the shouted "Every Day" and "Alright, Okay, You Win" from the Basie book.

The most impressive thing about Williams' performance in a night club is his handling of the ballads. He belts out uptempo tunes like "River Sainte Marie" with conviction and command and then switches to the soft, sentimental ones like "Darn That Dream" or the number which is likely to gain increasing identification with Williams, "Our Love is Here to Stay."

No matter what the material, Williams handles it deftly. He is a surefire draw at any club these days because he combines a strong jazz following with a pops and showtune meb attracted by his LPs.

The Harry (Sweets) Edison Quintet gives him excellent backing and handles several instrumental solos effectively. Edison is a jazz trumpet player of the first rank and on his own solos or in blowing obbligatos to Wililams lends an additional touch to true jazz flavor to the bill. Raje.

Embers, N.Y.

Joe Bushkin Trio, Buck Clayton Quartet; $3-4 minimum after 9:30 p.m.

Ralph Watkins knows how to make a mint out of music. For the past decade the "music-and-food" policy of his E. 54th St. spot, the Embers, has been a solid draw for the city slickers as well as the out-of-towners, and a few blocks south, on E. 48th St., he has one of the hottest music rooms in town in Basin Street East.

The Embers is run on a much calmer and more intimate level. Although he's had some top musicians on the podium during the 10-year span, the basic policy has been that they shouldn't intrude on the room's main event of dining and/or tippling. For the most part it's background stuff that provides a comfortable setting in pleasant surroundings.

It's only fitting that Joe Bushkin should be on hand for the 10th anni celebration. It was Bushkin who launched the room in 1951 and drew celebs (Tallulah Bankhead, etc.) for a publicity roll that got it off to a strong start.

He's still a celeb fave and he's as deft as ever on the keyboard. He seldom resorts to any flashwork on the ivories and he manages to keep everything in proper order by stressing taste in repertoire and treatment. This time out he gets an excellent assist from Jo Jones on drums and Al Lucas on bass.

Sharing the podium with Bushkin is Buck Clayton's Quartet. Here, too, the aim is to set up an unobtrusive background sound. Working with a muted trumpet, Clayton is quite successful at it. He establishes a neat swinging groove with ease and the boys in back, Lee Anderson, piano; Gene Ramey, bass, and Jackie Williams, drums, help supply an all-around easy lift. Gros.

Trade Winds, Chi

Irwin Corey, Adam Wade, Joe Parnello Trio; $2.50 cover.

Irwin Corey, who's always well received at the Rush St. spots, was neither in best form nor in his most conducive element when he opened at the Trade Winds Wednesday (8). Nevertheless, he managed at least a score of belly-laughs from his 55 minutes of frenetic, wacky comedy.

There were these harassments: a delayed show time, owing to a snowstorm which held up the arrival of the opening act, with the attendant irritation of an audience that had been put off nearly an hour; poor stage lighting, resulting from a burned out spot; and several rude tablers, who wouldn't play the game at the outset.

Even Corey's classic leadoff pantomime was ruined when, halfway through it, a young lady who couldn't stand the suspense piped, "Say something already."

Fortunately, Corey's as zany when he's straightening out customers as when he's following the prescription of his act, so what was lost in the disrupted panto was more than regained in madcap invective. Eventually he got the holdouts to join the crowd and tickled their risibilities thereafter with his quasi-professorial lecture on sex. It's, of course, one long digression, a crazyquilt of literacy, crudity, sacrilege and sheer nonsense, and as always it yields chaos.

Adam Wade, making his Chi debut, is a highly promising freshman warbler with all the right endowments, a fine vocal gift, natural presence and good masculine looks. With plenty of stage savvy and a persuasive way with ballads, the youthful Negro needs now to drop some annoying vocal mannerisms and to delineate his personal style more sharply. He does an effective 30 minutes with a standard, but somewhat too commonplace, catalog.

Joe Parnello Trio, sans maestro for the engagement, cut a respectable show despite lack of rehearsal time with Wade.

Bill is in through March 29, with Lenny Bruce and Linda Merrill following. Les.

International, N.Y.

The Ritz Bros. (3), Sandy Stewart, Boots McKenna Girls (8) and Boys (4), Mike Durso Orch (9), Aviles Rhumbas (4); $6 minimum weekdays, $7 weekends.

Moving north from a high pressure Miami Beach stand at the Deauville, the Ritz Bros. blew into New York with gale force last Wednesday night (8) and all but knocked down the walls in their bow at Jack Silverman's outsized emporium. Opening night biz, dampened by a chilling rain, was good though a bit short of capacity, but repercussions of the Ritz's spectacular preem performance will get around town fast and the ropes will no doubt be up for the duration of their run to March 28.

The Ritz freres didn't only fracture customers, they broke 'em into little bits, pounded 'em into a pulp and then rocked, socked and yocked them till the laughs were turned into gasps. And after being on stage for well over an hour, after which the audience was more exhausted than they were, the Ritzes were given an unusually prolonged, standing ovation from a hip opening night, cafe-going set that sounded as if they were hailing a team of Nobel Prize winners.

After three decades of headlining the Ritz Bros. are selling one of the great standard routines in show biz. This is an act, which though timed with the precision of a Swiss mechanism, has a madcap quality of uninhibited inspiration as the Ritzes pile bedlam on top of pandemonium in a sight-and-sound pyramid of gags.

The basic ingredients of this act have changed little over the years. As usual, Harry Ritz is the take-charge pivot man of the trio, demonstrating his unique species of rubber-faced mugging and dazzling variety of dialectical double-talk. In the freres' wild west spoof, Harry belts 'em with his Chinese chef, Indian chief and dance hall girl take-outs, the latter in drag.

The trio probably hit their peak in their "Continental Gentleman of Song" routine in which Harry Ritz does his Viennese composer burlesque, one of his zaniest bits if definitely not the cleanest. In this respect, this trio is not tailored for the kiddies, and their material is sometimes even a bit rough for a night spot, but the vulgarisms, along with everything else, is projected with a zing that even a Comstock would find irresistible. Their calypso closer, "Vitality," is an appropriate sum-up of the whole act.

In the supporting spot, Sandy Stewart registers with a nifty song session. A young looker with a fine voice, Miss Stewart demonstrates a highly appealing style on a group of standards, such as "Gotta Have Me," "Thou Swell," "The Boy Next Door," "Bye, Bye Blackbird" and "I'm Not A Baby Any More," in which she does acceptable carbons of Lena Horne and Judy Garland.

The Boots McKenna line of boys and girls whirl through one okay production number to open the show which Mike Durso's orch cuts sharply, alternating with the Aviles Rhumba combo for customer dansapation. Herm.

Ash Grove, L.A.

Los Angeles, March 10.

Bud Dashiell & the Kinsmen; $1.50 admission.

Bud Dashiell, formerly of Bud & Travis, unstrings his new act with The Kinsmen. Overall impression of Dashiell's Kinsmen (Bernie Armstrong Jr. and C. Carson Parks) is that they're in the talent pool of The Kingston Trio and The Limeliters. And like those groups make with the Ivy League togs.

Dashiell, of course, pulls the main string. His voice and plucking pace and key The Kinsmen's vocal and string maneuvers from U.S. folk songs to south-of-the-border tunes. Particularly impressive were "Prisoner Number 9," "La Bamba" and "I Talked to the Trees." Latter sounds like it could be a big disk seller, if it's singly recorded.

Blending the uniform chording of Dashiell's Kinsmen, both through their quips 'tween songs, and on each individual number, is bass guitarist Charlie Gonzales. He was also a sideman with the old Bud & Travis team. Group remains intact here for four weeks and should guarantee lush business in this spot, which caters to a very young crowd. Kafa.

Savoy Hilton Hotel

Gunnar Hansen Orch, Marco Riza Trio; $1.50 and $2.50 cover.

Marco Riza has a terrific trio at the Savoy Hilton's Columns (incidentally a class room also which deserves to do better biz; it's one of the nicest boites in Gotham) and he delivered handily with his Latin tempoed sets. Riza is the new alternate to the violining-maestro Gunnar Hansen's larger dance band and the latter, like the pianist-arranger-composer head of his threesome, makes the fiddle solos virtually virtuoso recitals between sets.

The Columns lends itself to the "society" brand of dansapation which is the earmark of both Hansen and Riza. Latter is from the Coast (Cocoanut Grove, Ciro's Mocambo and Crescendo) and also was eight years with Lucille Ball and Desi Arnaz as maestro-composer of their "I Love Lucy" shows. His Steinway expertness is evident from the first downbeat and he knows how to mix up his tempos so that the sprightly smaller group is excellent counterpoint to the Hansen orchestra. Riza, like Arnaz, hails from Havana. He's been arranger-composer at Columbia and Republic studios, has waxed for Coral, Decca, Tico and Victor and, in general, is an accomplished pro. Incidentally, he succeeded Charles Holden who left for his native Indiana for some minor surgery.

When the violining Hansen does his Strad solos between dance sets he seemingly has difficulty bowing off.

At the door is a young-old pro among top Gotham maitres, Joan Seava, who knows his clientele and the proper hospitality technique. Savoy Hilton's managing director Eugene Voit, incidentally, has the new Savoy Lounge swinging and, of course, the adjacent Trader Vic's, one of the relatively new New York restaurants, is a big click and soon marks its third anniversary. Abel.

Bon Soir, N.Y.

Phyllis Diller, Karen Chandler, Marc London, Three Flames, Jimmie Daniels; $5 minimum.

The Village funhouse, the Bon Soir, has another comedy accented show with Phyllis Diller returning to headline with assistance by Marc London (New Acts). In between is Karen Chandler, a young veteran in the song field for a bill that measurers up to the house standards.

Miss Diller is probably one of the stronger members of her sex in the comedy field. She has an extremely zany outlook with a set of offbeat ideas that startles the audience into laughs. She punctuates her material with exaggerated facial mannerisms to insure the success of her gags. At the Bon Soir, Miss Diller has a rostrum that is ideal for her style and she makes this effort pay off at the maximum.

Miss Chandler, likewise hits a high registry on this date. She has voice and power to spare in this intimery. Portfolio carries a sapient mixture of ballads, rhythm tunes and novelty that keeps the audience interested. Now titian-haired, she excites audience admiration with several tunes including a calypso, and aria from "Irma La Douce" and her perennial "Hold Me" which brought her to big league attention via records.

The early settlers at this entertainment dispensary are Jimmie Daniels, who always puts the crowd in a receptive mood with his musical comedy offerings, and the Three Flames, the comedy instrumental outfit which sets the mood of the evening with their musical and frequently vocal funmaking. Jose.

Dunes Lounge, L.V.

Las Vegas, March 10.

Al Hirt & His New Orleans Sextet; no cover or minimum.

A local deejay summed up the reason for Al Hirt's popularity when he commented, "Even the squares like him—I know because I'm a square." Big (300-plus) bearded trumpeter Hirt is a musician's musician—the other tooters flock in nightly to dig his amazing artistry—but what's more important, he's a musician who really entertains.

Exceptionally light on his feet for a heavy man, he bounces around the stage, has a sly twinkle in his eye, and makes yockable comments about the music being presented. Comedian Bobby Sargent accurately describes Hirt's appearance: "Santa Claus as a boy."

Each sideman is an outstanding musician, and Hirt gives them plenty of solo spotlights. Pee Wee Spitelera is on clarinet; Jack Delawey, trombone; Oliver Felix, bass; Paul Ferrara, drums, and Ronnie Dupont, piano. Group accents jazz and Dixieland, but is at home with most any kind of sound.

First-nighters gave a standing ovation to the program which included such members as "Cornet Chop Suey," "Birth of the Blues," "Begin the Beguine," "Down By the Riverside" and "South Rampart Street Parade." The Hirt sextet, which proves handily here that it would be a strong drawing card for any situation, is in for four frames. Duke.

Drake, Chi

Chicago, March 10.

Susan Barrett, Jimmy Blade Orch (6); $2 cover weeknights, $2.50 weekends.

For a room with a penchant for the mature chanteuse, both native and imported, the Camellia House perhaps was chancing something by bringing in a relative tyro of 20 who has only five other professional engagements and a Capitol LP behind her.

But Susan Barrett meets the standard of this posherry with stage ken and poise that belie her age and brief show biz history. Anyone not equipped beforehand with the biographical intelligence would cover your bet she's that polished.

Miss Barrett has a large talent and quite clearly is confident of it. A comely blonde, she makes an attractive centrepiece in white bouffant and displays the kind of taste and class that are Camellia House requisites. Yet, staying within the tony bounds of the hospice, she gives out a more let-your-hair-down session onstage than the room's clientage is normally exposed to.

Gal has a rich legit voice that lends itself to balladeering, but she's also adept at vocal impressions (Hermione Gingold, Patti Page and Eartha Kitt—nifty carbons) and can get the feet tapping to such an unlikely item for the bon ton trade as "Mississippi Mud."

Her showpiece is a lyrical medley in French, German and Italian set off by the tune, "Stowaway." She parries a ringside inebriate handily by addressing a song to him and, attesting to her savvy, even gets singalong response to such tunes as "Carolina In the Morning" and "Georgia On My Mind."

Only betrayal of ingenuousness is in her obviously memorized patter and the aw-come-on-buy-it plug for her Capitol album, but time and seasoning figure to correct it. Miss Barrett has a real future on the boards.

Now nine years in residence, Jimmy Blade's orch is a boon to the thrushes and still gives out possibly the most inviting dansapation in town. Les.

Carousel, Dallas

Dallas, March 10.

Chuck-A-Lucks (3), Gaymotes Quartet; $1.50-$2.00 cover.

The Chuck-A-Lucks, locally home for the first time in two years. It's their fifth local date in playing three midtown intimeries—all in the same block. This time they open the public Carousel (formerly the Sovereign, an upstairs privatery). Boys, Charlie Dickerson, Adrian Keith and Reuben Noel—are drawing hefty patronage from ex-classmates at North Texas State College, in nearby Denton, where the trio was formed.

Trio presents a meld of songs, comedy and disible sketches. The boys have fresh comedy one-liners, lotsa throwaways and expert ability to ad lib for laughs. Trio's "Night Train," "Sing You Sinners," "Birth of the Blues" and "Old Black Magic" vocals pull big matting, especially the comedic bits in the latter. A hillbilly sketch scores, as does a western routine, "Billy the Kid." Keith's solo, "Sorrento," is socko. Noel frets the guitar, aside from joining in the fun and song sessions, with Dickerson scoring with impressions. Aud participation bit on "Yes, Indeed," grabs the patrons and the 30-minute shows augur hefty biz for owner Jack Ruby.

Gaynotes, instrumental foursome, provide neat extra backing at showtime. Bark.

Fairmont Hotel, Frisco

San Francisco, March 10.

Crosby Bros. (3); Ernie Heckscher Orch (11); $2.50 cover.

The talent, at least some of it, seem to be vested in the sons at least to the first generation. Bing Crosby is still the best singer in the family but this trio of his offspring makes up a first rate act whose vocals are slick, rhythmic, well-arranged and performed with finesse.

Best voice in the trio belongs to Phillips who belts out several solo bits during the course of the 50 minute show. All the brothers (Lindsey, Dennis and Phillip) however have a touch of the old man's blarney, casual attitude and general charm.

One interesting and effective device they use is to sing a group of folk songs ranging from "Scarlet Ribbons" to "Battle of Jericho." They do this with an aplomb and good spirits that would give the Kingston Trio a run for their money if the Crosby Trio wanted it that way.

The act opens sharp and effective, is well-paced throughout and closes with a smash ending that can't be topped except with the single thing with which they top it. After establishing the fact that they can't sing a medley of their hit songs since they haven't any, they sing "somebody else's hits" which mans Pappa Bing's. This is a long, crackerjack number in which they make reference to, sing snatches of and dig into 32 of the songs he made famous. They do it with charm and a lack of ostentation that is successful in the extreme. That's their finale. The encore ends after a nice speech with a song dedicated "to the man who made this act possible" and then they sing "When the Blue of the Night." It's hard to beat that.

Vocal and instrumental arrangements are by Bill Thompson; staging and production by Charles O'Curran, the act is written by John Bradford and William Friml and the musical director is Fred Otis. This makes a high calibre team for a high calibre act. Rafe.

Brass Ring, Houston

Houston, March 7.

Bobbi Baker, E. C. Holland Orch (4); no cover or minimum.

In two appearances in the city within a year, comedienne Bobbi Baker seems to have built a solid following. Last trip she was at the huge Shamrock Hilton, and her returns were so impressive then she was switched from opening to feature spot. Now at the Carrousel Motor Hotel's intime Brass Ring Club, femme again finds "her people" and can afford to be a bit bluer than in her last showing here.

Miss Baker opens her 40 minutes with calypso "A Woman is Smarter Than a Man," and uses tune as backing for some fresh standup chatter. Her comic-serious bit of the lonely woman, with broom and curlers, comes off well, and some one-liners, such as "He owns a going-out-of-business business" are sharp and to point.

She also does some vocals: "You're Nobody," "Let's Fall in Love," and "C'est Si Bon," and if it seems that she may not make it to the top on her pipes alone, then it must be remembered she doesn't have to.

Vet trumpeteer E. C. Holland has built one of the most solid small combos in the business, and can even pretty much catch the old Glenn Miller sound on some tunes, not easy with four pieces.

Show plays through March 16. Skip.

Cloister, Hollywood

Hollywood, March 10.

Sarah Vaughan, George Kirby; $2.50 cover, two drink min.

Sarah Lois Vaughan is playing another repeat at the Cloister. This time out she's taken over operation of spot for the next 10 days. Cloister ops Joe Miklos and Al Loeb turned boite over to the sepia songstress on a rental basis rather than meet her $6,000 asking price for the engagement.

Commenting on Miss Vaughan's vocal prowess is fruitless and redundant. Song stylist continues to evince all the controlled tone and vibratto that skyrocketed her into a league with Ella Fitzgerald and the late Billie Holiday.

At Thursday's (9) opener Miss Vaughan, who broke into the biz via band chirp chores with Earl Hines and Billy Eckstine crews in the early '40s, held her audience with expected faves—"Mr. Wonderful," "Them There Eyes," "Misty" and a vocally perfect "I'll Be Seeing You."

Backing by a 15-piece pickup band had the sound solidity of a Count Basie and was excellently paced by regular accompanists Percy Brice, drums; Richard Davis, bass, and pianist-conductor Roland Hammer.

George Kirby, Negro combination of a one-man band, comic, singer, mimic, musician, is sub-billed. He's a show on his own and certainly talented enough to headline in his own right. His takes included Pearl Bailey, Nat Cole, Louis Armstrong, vocally; mouthing of instruments trombone, bass); and a turn at the keyboard a la Basie.

This show is definitely a potent one and should garner much green during its run. Kafa.

The Vapors, Hot Springs

Hot Springs, Ark., March 11.

Frankie Laine, Buddy Kirk Orch (9); $2.50 minimum.

Skipper-booker Dave Harris "won" winging away in the stretch at this Spa resort and horse racing headquarters when he inked Frankie Laine for a two week stand. It was SRO when caught (11) at this 750-seater with advance reservations solid.

Laines pace is terrif throughout his 45 minute plus stint. He is a boff showman-salesman, starting with "Some Day" to a begoff after a quartet of encores.

He hit the jackpot with "Jezebel," "Raw Hide," "Marie," "When The Saints Come Marching In," and "Mule Train."

Joe Sinacore, Laine's music chief and guitarist, is superb in directing the well-balanced and peppy Buddy Kirk orch. Drummer Stanley Kay, also another member of the Laine traveling troupe, is also standout. Laine has already been inked by promoter Harris for another stint soon.

Andrews Sisters due April 3. Matt.

King's Club, Dallas

Dallas, March 9.

Dick Curtis, Raul Arrimbide, Marilyn Mitchell, Ralph Gibbs Trio; private club, no cover or minimum.

Comedian Dick Curtis, who holds the house record at this midtown intimery, is back for his seventh stanza—and is bringing the aficionados with him. In twice-nightly shows the youngster repeats most of his w.k. routines—the early a.m. Enid, Okla., disk jockey bit, his drunk sketch, Texan at Mt. Vesuvius stint, all for hefty mitting. This time he inserts new and highly risible items anent his recent Australian tour. He's a cinch here, and again clinches tablers with his "stop smoking" and "stop drinking" inserts. Begs off after 40 minutes.

Strolling Raul Arrimbide, singing guitarist, between shows serenades tableside with Spanish vocals in fine style to keep the entertainment keel. Titian haired Marilyn Mitchell pipes neat lyrics during terp sessions by the Ralph Gibbs Trio. Latter, new here, extends slick showbacking for Curtis' intricate routines.

Next up is Patsy Shaw, in March 20 for two weeks. Bark.

Newhart-Cafes

Continued from page 2

tinue to avoid Las Vegas nightclubs even though he could get top money on the Strip. He's due to return to Freddie's Cafe, Minneapolis, next fall for a fortnight appearance at $2,500 weekly after drawing $900 a week there last summer.

Meantime, University of Minnesota refused to disclose gross receipts for comic Bob Newhart's one-nighter in University Artists course series at Northrop Auditorium March 7. Officials, who had released figures for earlier, near-sellout appearances of Mort Sahl and Shelley Berman, termed it unfair to reveal the lower Newhart gross because weekend blizzards here undoubtedly hurt the advance sale. According to newspaper estimates, however, the 4,800-seat auditorium was almost three-quarters full with admission scaled from $1.50 to $3.50.

Desert Inn, Las Vegas

Las Vegas, March 10

Tony Martin, Ford & Hines, Art Johnson, Gloria Ferrina, Donn Arden Dancers (14), Carlton Hayes Orch (21); produced by Frank Sennes; choreography, Donn Arden, $4 minimum.

In the past 15 years Tony Martin has appeared in Las Vegas about 40 times, and his current DI engagement tops them all. This time there are no dancing girls, no gimmicks—just Martin's fine voice and showmanship, and he needs no more. The singer is backed by the 21-piece Carlton Hayes orch which contains eight strings, and it's guided with sensitive artistry by Al Sendry at the 88.

With the exception of "Fireworks," "Second Time Around," and "Makes Someone Happy," Martin relies on standards such as "September Song," "Let's Fall In Love," "Whoopee," "Fascination," and "Body and Soul" to showcase his tremendous and distinctive talent. He offers a tight clarinet solo to "Bye Bye Blackbird," and gets a strong assist from violinist Alex Pierce on "Around the World."

Phil Ford and Mimi Hines balance the bill, here trotting out some brand new material that endorses their reputation as one of the outstanding comedy acts in the biz. Ford is the ideal teammate for Miss Hines whose delightful nonsense is both beguiling and fantastically funny.

The comedienne gets consistent yocks with her Japanese curl routine, and such unlikely ratery fodder as dog noises. She also clicks as a vocalist, with the pleasing sound of a well-trained voice. Couple did 35 minutes on opening night, had to beg off from an audience that wanted much more.

Art Johnson and Gloria Ferrina are featured as singers in the holdover Donn Arden production number. Dale.

The Body Shop, L.A.

Los Angeles, March 10

Sunset Strip Revue; two-drink minimum.

Al Deitch, already operating the Beverly Caverns and Golden Violin, has taken over Ben Pollock's old rib joint and converted it into The Body Shop. The rather cleverly named spot is a dolled-up strip joint that will cater to those patrons who want to eye the "bare facts of life."

"Body" is now the second peel parlor on Sunset Strip boulevard; first being Chuck Landis' Largo. And like that bump-and-grind factory, this strippery should also garner mucho business. Whether this type of entertainment is fast becoming the new entertainment trend on the Strip remains to be seen.

One can only conclude that half-nude women certainly pull in the spenders. Wednesday's (8) opener was jammed. Show is toplined by blonde, buxom Brandy Long who is abetted by such other exotics as Penny Cillin, Pink Champagne, Timmi Shawn, Marilyn Harlow, Tyrone, Devon St. John, and Sammy Dawn. Emcee Don Corey didn't go over too well with the noisy crowd, which seemed more interested in gawking at the gals than earing gags. For the hungrier patrons, "Body" will feature a food menu during 2 to 4 a.m. Kafa.

Thunderbird, Las Vegas

(FOLLOWUP)

Las Vegas, March 10.

Gorgeously gowned Gogi Grant has a stunning showcase for her songalog, and her pipes are in top form as she joins "Scandals On Ice" as its newest headliner. The Marty Hicks ice policy is now in its 90th week.

Miss Grant's songs include "Sound of Music," "All By Myself," "Are You Lonesome Tonight," "Why Was I Born?," "Bill," "Can't Help Loving That Man," her "Wayward Wind" disclick, and a medley from "Gypsy." Jeff Lewis gives fine assistance guiding the Garwood Van orch (12) on the 88.

Ventriloquist Dick Weston is held over for this one, and as usual scores big in the yock department. Kay Brown and Harry Nofal have joined "Scandals" as production vocalists, and along with featured skaters Shirley Linde, George Arnold, and Phil Richards, give the festivities a Broadway-type touch.

Miss Grant is in for four weeks. Duke.

Shows Out of Town

Carnival!

Washington, March 10.

David Merrick presentation of two-act musical, with music and lyrics by Bob Merrill, book by Michael Stewart based on material by Helen Deutsch. Staged and choreographed by Gower Champion; settings and lighting, Will Steven Armstrong; costumes, Freddy Wittop; musical direction and vocal arrangements, Saul Schechtman; orchestrations, Philip J. Lang, associate choreographer, Gene Bayliss; dance arrangements, Peter Howard; puppets creation and supervision, Tom Tichenor; magic and illusion designer and director, Roy Benson. Stars Anna Maria Alberghetti; features James Mitchell, Kaye Ballard, Pierre Olaf, Jerry Orbach, Henry Lascoe, George Marcy, Will Lee, Paul Sydell, Martin Bros. Opened March 9, '61, at the National Theatre, Washington; $6.60 top.

Jacquot ..... Pierre Olaf
Mr Schlegel ..... Henry Lascoe
Grobert ..... Will Lee
Roustabouts Tony Gomez, Johnny Nola, Buff Shurr, Bob Murray
Bigueliro ..... George Marcy
Dog Trainer ..... Paul Sydell
Wardrobe Mistress ..... Carvel Carter
Harem Girls Nicole Barth, Iva March, Beti Seay
Bear Girl ..... Jennifer Billingsley
Princess-Olga ..... Luba Lisa
Band C. B. Bernard, Peter Lombard
Jugglers ..... Martin Bros.
Clowns Bob Dixon, Dean Crane, Harry Lee Rogers
Strongman ..... Pat Tolson
Gladys Zuwicki ..... Mary Ann Niles
Gloria Zuwicki ..... Christine Barrel
Gypsy ..... Anita Gillette
Bear ..... Igors Gavon
Marco the Magnificent....James Mitchell
Incomparable Rosalie ..... Kay Ballard
Greta Schlegel ..... June Meshonek
Lili ..... Anna Maria Alberghetti
Paul Berthalet ..... Jerry Orbach
Blue Birds Nicole Barth, Jennifer Billingsley, Iva March, Beti Seay
Aerialist ..... Dean Crane
Dr Glass ..... Igors Gavon

Musical numbers: "Direct From Vienna," "A Very Nice Man," "Fairyland," "I've Got to Find a Reason," "Mira," "Sword, Rose and Cape," "Humming," "Yes, My Heart," "Everybody Likes You," "Magic Magic," "Tanz Mit Mir," "Carnival" Ballet, "Carnival," "Yum Ticky," "The Rich," "Beautiful Candy," "Her Face," "Grand Imperial Cirque de Paris," "I Hate Him," "Always Always You," "She's My Love."

Producer David Merrick has another fistful of aces. In its tryout preem at Washington's National Theatre, "Carnival!" seems a certain hit. It opened in shape for Broadway, with only minor adjustments in order.

If first-night response is a barometer, the musical could last for years. Audience enthusiasm exceeded that given "West Side Story," which had its initial performance on the same stage.

All the elements involved in "Carnival!" rate that exclamation mark and spell success. The star, Anna Maria Alberghetti, sings beautiful music in beautiful voice and plays her wistfully tender dramatic role expertly. The entire cast fit together with the perfection and unison of all the right letters in the Sunday N.Y. Times crossword puzzle.

The direction and choreography by Gower Champion are spirited, exciting, imaginative, colorful, fast, often dazzling high-style theatre. As he showed previously in "Bye, Bye Birdie," Champion is a man of originality.

Bob Merrill's music and lyrics include such potential hit tunes as "Love Makes the World Go Round" (running through the play as a haunting theme), "Yes, My Heart" and "Her Face." One comedy song, "Humming," which Kaye Ballard sings about her lover's other conquests (besides her), sets off an ovation.

Extra lustre is added to the music with the orchestrations by Philip J. Lang. He has given the melodies a Gallic carnival quality suggesting the hurdy-gurdy. Settings and lighting by Will Steven Armstrong are important contributions to the successful package.

The story is the same as the film, "Lili," which starred Leslie Caron and is one of the 10 U.S. motion pictures being exhibited in Russia under the exchange agreement. The program credits the book by Michael Stewart as "based on material by Helen Deutsch." The book is handsomely tailored to blend with song and dance on a stage with magical chemistry.

The carnival setting allows Champion to move jugglers, magicians, acrobats, trick dogs, exotic dancers and even a trapeze performer on and off the stage with arresting delight. Miss Alberghetti, as Lili, joins the carnival to sing with a hand puppet act. The puppets by Tom Tichenor, are enchanting and their lines are amusing. They help make the musical a lure for the entire family.

The musical is performed without an overture or a curtain. The bare stage beginning is a mood-setter. Platform steps into the audience required two rows of seats to be removed at the National.

The top featured performers, Mitchell, Miss Ballard, Pierre Olaf, Orbach and Henry La coe, fit into "Carnival!" like cotton candy.

Carp.

Far Country

New Haven, March 9.

Roger L. Stevens & Joel Schenker production of drama in three acts (six scenes) by Henry Denker. Stars Kim Stanley, Steven Hill, Sam Wanamaker; features Lili Darvas, Salome Jens, George Gaynes. Staged by Alfred Ryder; setting and lighting, Donald Oenslager; costumes, Ann Roth; associate producer, Lyn Austin. Directed by Alfred Ryder. Opened March 8, '61, at the Shubert Theatre, New Haven; $4.80 top.

Gordon Douglas ....Robert Goodier
Martha Bernays Freud.....Salome Jens
Sigmund Freud ..... Steven Hill
Kathy .....Eda Reis-Merin
Frederick Wohlmuth .....George Gaynes
Dolfi Freud .....Ellen Weston
Amalie Freud ..... Lili Darvas
Elizabeth von Ritter .... Kim Stanley
Dr. Joseph Breuer ....Sam Wanamaker

Henry Denker has written, Alfred Ryder has directed and the Roger L. Stevens-Joel Schenker team has produced a provocative clinical-theatrical work in this delineation of the early struggle of Dr. Sigmund Freud to establish his theories of psychoanalysis. The play gets off to an encouraging start here.

Interpreted by a stellar cast, the drama moves at an absorbing pace, bogging down only when its clinical exposition requires too much concentration. Denker has the young Dr. Freud frustrated in following "normal" medical channels and virtually ostracized by his colleagues in his attempts to establish a link between physical ills and their possible mental causes. The script evolves interestingly along the lines of ultimately establishing such a link.

"Far Country" is said to be the first stage play on the life of Freud. It could make an absorbing film. It has something of the aspects of a whodunit via a high suspense content and its cross-examination sequences in the mental settos between Freud and his first psychoanalysis patient. (Film producer-director John Houston is already preparing a picture about Freud, with Jean-Paul Sartre assigned to write the script.—Ed.)

The theme raises a number of interesting side points, for example the parallel between psychoanalysis and increasingly lively subject of religious, or faith, healing. As depicted in the script, successful healing is attained when the patient acknowledges deep-set or even evil subconscious desires, brings them into the open and, on recognizing them, rids himself of their devastating influences. This general principle has been standard practice for those of abiding religious faith, but usually without the workings of psychoanalysis.

Heading the cast, Kim Stanley gives a fine reading of Elizabeth von Ritter, the initial subject of Freud's theories. She makes believable the possibility of a romantic menace to Freud's family life, as well as conveying the nuances of mental struggles. Steven Hill's work as Freud is an excellent piece of characterization in a role that requires sustained playing. Sam Wanamaker makes capital of a meaty part as a medical colleague. Good support comes from Lili Darvas as Freud's mother, Salome Jens as his wife and George Gaynes as the patient's brother-in-law.

Donald Oenslager's combination office and anteroom in early century Vienna provides mobile playing areas and Ann Roth's costumes range nicely from the functional to the decorative. "Far Country" gives an impression of considerable research, but leaves the matter of authenticity to individual conjecture.

Bone.

Bousille and the Just

Montreal, March 3.

La Comedie Canadienne presentation of a drama in four acts by Gratien Gelinas, translated from the French by Gelinas, Ken Johnstone and Joffre Dechene. Staged by Gelinas. Scenery, Jacques Pelletier; costumes, Solange Legendre; associate director, Norma Springford. Opened Feb. 23, '61, at the Comedie Canadienne, Montreal; $3 top.

Phil Vezina ..... Paul Berval
Henri Gravel ..... Yves Letourneau
Aurore Vezina ..... Beatrice Picard
Bousille ..... Gratien Gelinas
Mother ..... Juliette Huot
Noella Gravel ..... Helene Loiselle
Lawyer ..... Paul Hebert
Brother Theophile ..... Gilles Latulippe
Colette Richard ..... Ginette Letondal

Presented a year ago in French, "Bousille and the Just" with Montreal's triple-threat star Gratien Gelinas playing the lead, was a smash for a lengthy run at La Comedie Canadienne. The switch to English falls short of its French original.

The four-acter, written by Gelinas and played to the hilt by a solid group of local Gallic actors, contained all the broad humor, anti-clerical sniping and homilies that have made Gelinas' theatrical name during last couple of decades. The English translation, by Ken Johnstone and Joffre Dechene in collaboration with Gelinas, retains much of the wallop from the French, in fact is structurally better in many places, but the current cast (many of whom played in the original) are often out of their language depth and the sharpness and subtle nuances are, to some extent, missing.

In the title role, Gelinas plays a somewhat retarded distant cousin of a small-town family caught up in a manslaughter charge against the youngest son. He is the only witness to the attack and the plot evolves around their determination to restrain the star witness from telling the truth in court. Gelinas captures the tawdriness and selfishness of the family, building to a brutal scene in the third act.

The locale is a shoddy hotel room near the Montreal courthouse and Jacques Pelletier's workable set helps to maintain the tone of play. As the ruthless brother, Yves Letourneau is adequate. Paul Berval, as the easygoing brother-in-law, displays moments, but the humor is mostly stilted in Juliette Huot's playing of the mother.

Ginette Letondal, appearing briefly, gives the most impressive performance of company. Helene Loiselle, as the bully's wife, is a close second. Gelinas plays his orphan-in-the-storm role with restraint, contrasting effectively with the boorish qualities of the family. Gilles Latulippe's playing of Brother Theophile is an improvement over his French interpretation and is responsible for some of the lighter moments.

The one-set production is a great deal more manageable than other offerings by Gelinas, and the theme of a more general nature. Although all performers are talented in their own language (French), the play might have had more impact if an English cast had been used.

Newt.

JONATHAN FRID

Appears as Darrell Blake in the highly acclaimed off-Broadway production of "The Moon in the Yellow River," now at the East End Theatre on 4th Street, New York. Personal Mgt., TED MEYER 200 W. 57th St., New York JU 6-7255

See Separate Company To Run Littler Chains

London, March 14.

Prince Littler, Associated Television head and one of the top figures of British show biz, is expected to announce the formation of a separate company to manage and develop the rich property sites of his three theatre chains, Moss Empires (16 theatres), Stoll (14 theatres) and Howard & Wyndham (eight theatres).

Along with the development plan will come proposals for a closer working arrangement of the three companies. Revaluation of all the properties in the three Littler chains is in progress. Particular importance is attached to Howard & Wyndham, Britain's premier theatre circuit, which includes such large sites as the Lyceum, Edinburgh; Alhambra, Glasgow; Opera House, Manchester, and Theatre Royal, Newcastle.

Littler's London properties include the Palladium and Victoria Palace (Moss Empires) and Coliseum (Stoll). Through a Stoll subsidiary, Associated Theatre Properties (London) Ltd., he also controls the Aldwych, Apollo, Her Majesty's, Phoenix, Drury Lane, Globe, Queen's and Lyric.

Asides and Ad-Libs

Comedienne Peggy Cass and authoress Jean Kerr are friends and fellow-Catholics so on the occasion of the latter's play, "Mary, Mary," opening last Wednesday night (8) at the Helen Hayes Theatre, N. Y., it was appropriate for Miss Cass' premiere wire to read simply, "Hail Mary Mary"... The pressagent for "A Taste of Honey" announces that the show's author, Shelagh Delaney, will arrive today (Wed.) from London for her first visit to the U. S. There have been several previous such releases, but maybe the playwright will make it this time.

The current off-Broadway production of "The King of the Dark Chamber," at the Jan Hus House, N. Y., had its genesis at the State Univ. of Iowa, at Iowa City. Krishna Shah, who staged the Rabindranath Tagore drama, previously did it last season as one of the presentations at the University Theatre, while he was a graduate student in the Dept. of Speech & Dramatic Art. Also involved in the Iowa City edition were Lynn Carroll, who designed the costumes for the off-Broadway presentation; Robert Kreis, who provided the choral arrangements, and Don Rosenberg, who did the makeup. Patricia Newhall, associate producer of the off-Broadway version, went to Iowa City to see the college presentation.

The Leo Kerz production of Eugene Ionesco's "Rhinoceros" is at the Longacre Theatre, N. Y., not the Eugene O'Neill as incorrectly stated in a recent issue . . . Another blooper recently was a report that the deficit was $7,000 last season at the Williamstown (Mass.) Summer Theatre. The figure should have read $2,700. The 1961 schedule will open July 6 and continue through Sept. 2 in the Adams Memorial Theatre on the Williams College campus.

"Timing and circumstance play a part in many careers. One year you are piled up on the reefs of rejections and the next year find a safe harbor. In motion pictures the record is quite dramatic. Warners once dropped Van Johnson, and MGM years ago dismissed Fred Astaire. A long, long time ago I was present when Judy Garland auditioned for an executive at 20th Century-Fox and was brushed off as too little a girl for such a big voice. MGM grabbed Garland, and at the same time passed up an option on a singer named Deanna Durbin. Darryl Zanuck admitted publicly that he had overlooked Clark Gable, but he must be comforted by knowing that only a few years ago a contemporary of his by the name of Dore Schary overlooked Marilyn Monroe." — Film and legit author-director-producer Dore Schary, in an article in the Atlantic Monthly, based on a talk at the American Academy of Dramatic Arts.

"When you go home at night, review what you have learned—think how you can make it better, do not change it, but develop it in your mind. Stars return to rehearsal with a great deal accomplished between sessions. Beginners rarely do this, but it can be of enormous value."—Choreographer Agnes de Mille, in an article, "To a Young Dancer," in the Atlantic Monthly.

Off-Broadway Reviews

Rendezvous At Senlis

Claude Giroux & Emanuel Azenberg (in association with Douglas M. Schustek) presentation of three-act comedy by Jean Anouilh, translated by Edward Owen Marsh. Staged by Zeke Berlin; settings and lighting, Marvin Chomsky; costumes, Gene Coffin. Opened Feb. 27, '61, at the Gramercy Arts Theatre, N.Y.; $4.30 top weekends; $3.60 weekdays.

Proprietress ..... Maude Scheerer
Georges ..... Michael Lipton
Emile ..... George Ebeling
Delmonte ..... Russell Gold
Mme. de Montrachet...Josephine Nichols
Barbara ..... Maureen McNally
Jacques ..... Jerry Hardin
M. Delachaume ..... Houghton Jones
Esme ..... Marte Boyle
Mme. Delachaume ..... Frieda Altman
Isabelle ..... Rosina Fernhoff

What keeps "Rendezvous at Senlis" from becoming the thoroughly pleasant comedy it promises to be in the beginning is playwright Jean Anouilh's apparent love of words. The play, having its American premiere at the Gramercy Arts Theatre, N.Y., was done in London three seasons ago under the title, "Dinner With the Family." It starts off with an arresting comedy situation which the author tries to exploit beyond the bounds of its own and the audience's capacity.

His situation is potentially effective. An unhappy youth rents a house in the Parisian suburbs for an evening and hires actors to portray his parents and a caterer to act as the old family butler. These arrangements are contrived for "one evening's happiness" with a young girl he has been seeing. He is ashamed of his actual parents who are in reality living off his pre-arranged marriage to a wealthy steel heiress and has also invented a heroic best friend to compensate for his closest acquaintance, who is also sponging off the unhappy union.

Under Zeke Berlin's generally well-paced and astute direction, a bright and earnest cast energetically expresses Anouilh's double-barrelled dialog. As the alternately comic and pathetic young man, Michael Lipton presents a likable characterization, and Rosina Fernhoff is pleasant in the underwritten role of the girl. George Ebeling provides well-timed laughs as the butler and Josephine Nichols and Russell Gold have funny scenes as the hired parents.

Jerry Hardin does well with the excessive verbiage of the opportunistic "friend" and Maureen McNally is eye-catching as his wife. Houghton Jones and Frieda Altman are less effective as the real parents, and good bits are registered by Maud Scheerer as the woman whose house is rented and Marte Boyle as a lush-looking maid.

Marvin Chomsky has designed decorative settings and lighting for the Edward Owen Marsh translation and Gene Collin's costumes add color. For all its repetitive talk about love, friendship, honesty and money, "Rendezvous at Senlis" has wit and charm, which almost compensates for its length. Kali.

(Closed Last Sunday (12) after 10 performances.)

Five Posts in the Market Place

Repertory Co. of the Gate Theatre (Rhea Lone, executive producer) presentation of three-act drama by Algirdas Landsbergis. Staged by Sidney Walters; setting, Herbert Senn and Helen Pond; costumes, Sonia Lowenstein; lighting, Richard Nelson; music, Ernest Furtado. Opened March 5, '61, at the Gate Theatre, N.Y.; $3.50 top.

Commentator ..... Earl Dossey
Antanas ..... Philip Abbot
Leonas ..... Joseph Michael
Jonas ..... Walter Flanagan
Editor ..... Joseph Boley
Aldona ..... Barbara Ames
Grazhina ..... Joyce West
Child ..... Gregg Weir
Father ..... John Miranda
Mother ..... Sala Straw
Deputy ..... Richard Abbot
Chairman ..... Stanley Sayer
Soldiers ..... John Cowger, Robert Vandergriff

Guerrilla resistance against foreign occupation forces is the theme of Algirdas Landsbergis' "Five Posts in the Market Place," the Gate Theatre's fifth repertory presentation. The drama, the author's first, was originally written in Lithuanian, his native language, and was the winner of a $1,000 prize given by the Cleveland chapter of the World Lithuanian Community. In its new version translated into English by the author, the original identification with Lithuania and its Soviet occupation has been altered to a universal-type of resistance of an unidentified country against an unidentified conqueror.

Divested of any finger-pointing specifics, the drama's "universality" provides too large a theme for the slim resources exhibited here, while its bids for audience-involvement and sympathy are lost through the author's tendency to use his characters as prop symbols rather than flesh-and-blood individuals.

The story concerns a small band of guerrillas, seven-year holdouts against the occupying forces. They are planning as a last-ditch coup, the death of a Quisling-like prosecutor at a contrived wedding of the group's leader and his long-time fiancee, who is also the prosecutor's secretary.

Exactly why the execution is to take place under these circumstances is never satisfactorily explained, nor are the about-face developments in which the guerrilla-leader decides not to carry out his plan to kill the prosecutor. Nor

(Continued on page 74)

'Do Re' Cost $479,738 to Bring In; 26 More Sellout Weeks to Recoup

It'll take another 26 weeks of smash business to put "Do Re Mi" in the black. That's based on operating income alone and does not take into consideration such subsidiary revenue as might be forthcoming from a possible film sale.

The David Merrick production, currently in its 12th smash week at the St. James Theatre, N.Y., was financed at $400,000, but cost $472,923 to produce. On top of that there was on overall loss of $9,314 seven-week tryout tour, less $2,500 music royalty, bringing the Broadway opening night tab to $479,738.

The musical, which has been in the capacity groove since its Main Stem preem, clears a little over $13,000 weekly on its maximum boxoffice take. The operating profit for the first five weeks on Broadway, plus four preview performances, was $66,729. That covered the period through last Jan. 28, when the deficit on the Phil Silvers-starrer was still $22,059 in excess of the $400,000 investment.

Included in the deficit was $9,050 owed the production on the author's $10,000 share of orchestrations. Exclusive of that amount, the coin to be recovered as of Jan. 28 would have totaled $413,009. In the ensuing six weeks the production is figured to have picked up another $78,000 at the rate of $13,000 weekly, which reduced the unrecouped costs as of last Saturday (11) to an estimated $335,000, still excluding the author's share of orchestrations.

On the basis of a $13,000 weekly operating profit, the musical will have to run another 26 weeks to recover the present deficit of around $335,000. Incidentally, the music orchestrations and copying was $58,806. That was unusually steep, although it included the $10,000 author's share.

Other productions costs included $102,093 for scenery and props and $91,514 for costumes. A fee of $7,500 was paid to set designer Boris Aronson. Getting fees of $5,000 each were costume designer Irene Sharaff and director Garson Kanin, who adapted the book for the musical from his short story of the same title. The music was written by Jule Styne and the lyrics by Betty Comden and Adolph Green.

The production pays $175 weekly for an insurance policy covering Silvers, who's in on a percentage of the gross. The St. James' share of the gross is 25%.

Margo Jones Award To Spur Opportunity For New Authors and Plays

The late Margo Jones, who produced and directed plays on Broadway and for many years at her namesake arena theatre in Dallas, is to be honored with the establishment of an annual theatre award. The citation, designed to encourage the discovery of new plays and new dramatists, will be presented at a Broadway theatre each February, beginning next year. It'll consist of a commemorative medal (a bas-relief of Miss Jones) and a cash prize.

A committee of judges will annually select a producer or theatre executive in the U.S. who, during the prior calendar year, has "made the most significant contribution to the dramatic art with hitherto unproduced plays, that having been the ardent spirit and unremitting purpose of Margo Jones." Miss Jones, who made it a policy to present new works at her Dallas theatre, introduced plays there by such writers as William Inge, Tennessee Williams, Joseph Hayes and the team of Jerome Lawrence and Robert E. Lee.

The judges include George Freedley, curator of the Theatre Collection of the N.Y. Public Library; John Rosenfield, amusements critic of the Dallas Morning News, and playwrights Inge, Williams, Lawrence and Lee and Howard Lindsay. Included in a non-voting administrative committee are Arthur Kramer, president of the Margo Jones Theatre; Jonas Silverstone, attorney and producer, and J. B. (Tad) Adoue, onetime general manager of the Margo Jones Theatre.

Theatre critics in cities through-

(Continued on page 74)

Jimmy Logan Will Bow In Legit with 'Wedding'

Aberdeen, Scotland, March 14.

Vaude and revue comedian Jimmy Logan will make legit bow at Her Majesty's Theatre here in April. He will appear in "Wedding Fever," comedy by Ulster scribe Sam Cree, which Dennis Ramsden will direct.

The play, with setting designed by Ann Jasper, is skedded for the King's Theatre, Edinburgh, after some years to play legit. His scheduled tour will be limited because of his engagement to do Howard & Wyndham revue, "Five-Past Eight," at the Alhambra Theatre, Glasgow, in May. This will run, as usual, until October.

Guild-Amer. Rep Bows in Madrid

By HANK WERBA

Madrid, March 14.

Helen Hayes, June Havoc, Helen Menken, Leif Erickson and the Theatre Guild-American Repertory Co. of 25, took eight deserved curtain calls last Tuesday night (7), after their initial performance of Thornton Wilder's "Skin of Our Teeth" at the Teatro Espanol in Madrid.

The affair drew a distinguished audience including Prince Juan Carlos (Franco's expected successor), Minister of Defense Barroso, Foreign Minister Castiella, Minister of the Movimiento Solis and Information Minister Arias Salgado. Ambassadors were a dime a dozen and only a total scarcity of tickets restricted a full turn-out of Madrid's diplomatic colony.

Also prominently conspicuous at this glittering occasion were representatives of the Spanish stage, Hollywood filmites on active duty overseas and a hearty smattering of Castilian nobility. The reception was so impressive and tickets so hard to obtain that spectators in evening dress were spotted hanging from the top rails.

The Madrid bow of "Skin" was followed during the four-day stand by three performances of William Gibson's "The Miracle Worker" and two of Tennessee Williams' "The Glass Menagerie," to mark the first leg of a three-month American National Theatre & Academy tour that will take the Lawrence Langer troupe to 24 principal cities of Europe, West, Yugoslavia and the Middle East.

The three-cornered repertory was staged strictly in the American tradition, without the customary local claque or after-curtain

(Continued on page 72)

TAHSE SHOWS TO HIT BIG TIME NEXT YEAR

Martin Tahse, who's acquired the road rights to the current Broadway productions of "Advise and Consent" and "Miracle Worker," intends touring both shows on the major city circuit next season. In the past, he's geared his hinterland presentations for bus-and-truck touring of generally out-of-the-way split-week stands. The dates were booked by Broadway Theatre Alliance, which has sold its subscription setup covering 82 cities to United Performing Arts.

Tahse is currently represented on the road as co-producer with C. Edwin Knill of the touring edition of "Fiorello," which is playing both major city time and split-week stands in smaller towns.

Myra Peache to Retire As Mgr. of Pabst, M'w'kee

Milwaukee, March 14.

Myra Peache, Pabst Theatre manager for last 18 years, will retire May 31, the end of the current season. She also resigns her post with Milwaukee Orchestral Assn., sponsors of the Chicago Symphony Orchestra concerts held at the Pabst.

The Pabst is scheduled to permanently shutter May 31, unless the City of Milwaukee or other interests assume its managership.

Plan 10-Tryout Season At Kentucky Strawhat

A season of 10 tryout productions is planned by Col. Eben Henson next summer for his Pioneer Playhouse, Danville, Ky. The 11-year-old operation, which was granted non-profit status last year, will launch the program June 26.

The plays will be selected by an advisory committee of producers, directors, play agents and educators.

Huntington Says He Lost $19,995 On Spa in 1960

Saratoga, March 14.

John Huntington, who has operated the N. Y. State-owned Spa Summer Theatre in Saratoga for the last 14 seasons, says that the strawhat lost $19,995 last summer. He asserts, "Not one single cent is owed by me or by my corporation to anyone in Saratoga or the area. I have paid these losses out of my own pocket, since the corporate pocket is empty.

"As producer in Saratoga for the last 14 years," he continued, "I have never asked anyone for so much as a nickel for my support. All the money I have needed to run the theatre I have supplied out of my own funds and put into the corporation, which I set up in 1951 to run Spa Theatre."

Despite his financial situation, Huntington declares, "There are now no creditors in Saratoga waiting for their money." The producer attributes his 1960 losses chiefly to what he says were excessive fees and percentages to stars who failed to do business at the boxoffice, plus the fact that the highway between Albany and Saratoga was torn up last summer.

Huntington hopes to obtain a new lease on the 587-seat theatre. However, Dr. David E. Liston, managing director of the Spa Reservation, has announced that the State owned spot will be up for bidding, and that a number of persons had indicated a desire to lease it this year.

Williams College Giving U.S. Preem of 'Long, Short'

Willis Hall's "The Long and the Short and the Tall," which had a six-month London run in 1959, will be given its U. S. preem this week at the Adams Memorial Theatre of Williams College, Williamstown, Mass. It will mark the second successive year the college has been responsible for the initial U. S. showing of a British original. Last year, John Osborne's unsuccessful London musical, "The World of Paul Slickey," was given its initial American presentation at the college theatre.

The Hall play is scheduled to be presented tomorrow (Thurs.) through next Saturday (18) at the Adams under the direction of Giles Playfair. It'll precede by a little more than a month the scheduled U. S. release of the film version of the play in May. The drama was given its North American break-in last fall at the Crescent Theatre, Toronto.

It All Depends

Walter Kerr, as drama critic of the N. Y. Herald Tribune, has one of the earliest deadlines of any of the daily reviewers, and is consequently among the first to hustle up the aisle at the final curtain opening nights on Broadway. He didn't cover the premiere last Wednesday night (8) of his wife Jean Kerr's play, "Mary, Mary," but sat with her in the last row during the performance.

As the curtain was falling and all the critics were crowding up the aisles, including Herald Trib drama editor Judith Crist, subbing for him for the occasion, a manager associated with the production leaned over to ask Kerr what he thought of all those people rushing out and maybe missing the last couple of lines.

The non-reviewer-for-a-night grimaced, then grinned and replied, "The dirty dogs."

Brokers Want In on Twofers; Claim They Lose Regular Patrons

If you can't lick 'em join 'em. That appears to be the attitude of Broadway ticket brokers toward the flood of twofers being circulated this season for fading Main Stem productions. The brokers want to add the discount ducats to their racks for customers who request them.

Brokers are generally against the twofers for the simple reason they're detrimental to a business, which exists on the sale of theatre tickets at regular prices, plus a premium. Broker patrons pay a minimum of $1.50 fee in addition to the stipulated boxoffice scale for a show, while twofer customers see the same production at half the regular price.

The situation subjects brokers to complaints from their customers, particularly the regulars, who not only purchase tickets at the start of a show's run, but also continue doing so over long periods for visiting businessmen and relatives. A letter recently received by LeBlang's agency from one of its customers illustrates the tenor of the beefs.

The letter, sent by a member of a New York firm, points out that the company is frequently offered discount exchange tickets for shows for which they have to pay the full price when ordering tickets through the agency. The letter emphasizes, "We feel that this situation is almost ridiculous."

The letter is one of many which Saul Lancourt, head of LeBlang's claims the agency has received because of the recent spread of twofers. In view of these complaints, Lancourt has written to several theatre operators and producers suggesting that the twofers be made available to the brokers for resale to their customers, possibly at half the usual service charge.

Lancourt feels such a move would not affect the brokers' sale of full-priced tickets, since those who prefer the better locations available at the regular tariff would pay the regular scale. It's his contention, however, that by having twofers at their disposal the brokers could hold the customers who refuse to pay the regular price for tickets to a show they know is on cut-rate.

As Lancourt puts it, "The present practice may also have a tendency to alienate the broker customer, not only from the broker, but from the theatre, when he suddenly becomes a second-class customer after having supported the production by buying the full-price ticket all during the main portion of the run." Lancourt's letter was sent to producers David Merrick and Kermit Bloomgarden and theatre operators John Shubert, of the Shubert organization, and Louis A. Lotito, president of City Playhouses, and vice-president of Producers Theatre.

ANTA Is Sponsoring Chi Stand for 'Fantasticks'

Chicago, March 14.

The Chicago chapter of the American National Theatre & Academy is sponsoring a local run of "Fantasticks," the off-Broadway revue currently in its 11th month at the Sullivan St. Playhouse, N. Y. The Windy City edition, packaged by Richard Allen Woody Productions, has been cast and rehearsed in New York. It opens April 4 at the Del Prado Hotel in a 327-seat auditorium with a connecting bar.

ANTA is furnishing the house and has pledged promotion. Otherwise, show is covering its own end, without a guarantee. It's here indefinitely.

'Fiorello' Tourer Nears 100G Net

The touring production of "Fiorello" is nearing the $100,000 profit mark. That's based on a Feb. 25 net profit of $76,998, plus estimated subsequent operating income.

The musical, which completed repayment of its $190,000 investment last month, distributed an initial $19,000 profit last week. Included in the show's earnings is an operating profit of around $33,000 on a gross of $153,843 for a fortnight's stand Feb. 13-25 at the O'Keefe Theatre, Toronto.

The C. Edwin Knill-Martin Tahse bus-and-truck edition of the Robert E. Griffith-Harold S. Prince Broadway hit is currently in its 32d week of operation. The production, booked by Broadway Theatre Alliance for its network of split-week subscription stands, also plays major city dates and is expected to tour at least through the end of next season.

A royalty, which has gone as high as 4½% of the touring company's weekly gross in recent months, is paid to the original Main Stem edition of the musical, which has a book by Jerome Weidman and George Abbott, music by Jerry Bock and lyrics by Sheldon Harnick. The original production is currently in its 68th week at the Broadhurst Theatre, N. Y.

MRS. O'CONNOR QUITS ALBUQUERQUE THEATRE

Albuquerque, March 14.

Mrs. Kathryn Kennedy O'Connor, for the last 30 years head of New Mexico's oldest barn, the Albuquerque Little Theatre, has announced her retirement at the end of the current season in June. She founded the group in 1930 and has directed 205 productions in the house. She was Broadway actress and understudy to Jeanne Eagles, until she moved to Albuquerque in 1927 for health reasons.

Her husband, James O'Connor, technical director of the house and helped found it, is also retiring effective in June. A native of Ireland, he appeared there with the Abbey Theatre in Dublin before coming to Albuquerque.

Another of the organizers of the little theatre group was Clinton P. Anderson, now U. S. Senator from New Mexico, who served as first president. Frank Quinn, owner of indie radio station KDEF here, is the current president of the group.

'Destry,' 'Take,' 'Mattress' Set for Upstate Tent

Three new post-Broadway stock releases are among the eight productions planned for the upcoming season at Melody Fair, North Tonawanda, N.Y. The three properties are the musicals, "Destry Rides Again," "Take Me Along" and "Once Upon a Mattress."

Productions at the tent, which opens June 6 with "Destry," will run two weeks each.

Dylan Thomas' "Under Milk Wood" will be placed in off-Broadway repertory March 28 with Jean Genet's "Balcony" at the Circle in the Square, N. Y.

Kenley Adds Columbus To Setup in Warren, O.; 2-City Stock Operation

Warren, O., March 14.

John Kenley will expand the operation of his Kenley Players this year. Besides continuing to produce locally at the 2,418-seat Packard Music Hall, he'll present a season of stock in Columbus, probably at the 3,975-seat Veterans Memorial Auditorium.

Kenley-Columbus, Inc., has been formed for the latter operation, which is scheduled to run 12-14 weeks. Officers of the corporation, now negotiating for rental of the auditorium, are John and Frank Kenley and attorney Nathan Routman.

The upcoming season will mark Kenley's fourth here. His plan is to put on shows at the Packard and then move them to Columbus. Kenley had also been negotiating for the Memorial Hall, Dayton, but bowed out because of a State law preventing the county from guaranteeing him a three-year option. He has a year-to-year lease in Columbus on a six-year option.

Kenley had presented a successful stock season at the Dayton hall in 1957, but moved his operation to Warren the following year when the spot was leased to another producer. The Dayton showcase is now being sought by James Alex, a former Broadway dancer who now runs a dance school.

Shows on Broadway

Mary, Mary

Roger L. Stevens presentation of comedy in three acts by Jean Kerr. Staged by Joseph Anthony; setting, Oliver Smith; costumes, Theoni V. Aldredge; lighting, Peggy Clark; associate producer, Lyn Austin. Stars, Barbara Bel Geddes, Barry Nelson, Michael Rennie; features Betsy von Furstenberg, John Cromwell. Opened March 8, '61, at the Helen Hayes Theatre, N. Y.; $7.50 Friday and Saturday nights, $6.90 weeknights.

Bob McKellaway ..... Barry Nelson
Tiffany Richards .. Betsy von Furstenberg
Oscar Nelson ..... John Cromwell
Dick Winston ..... Michael Rennie
Mary McKellaway .. Barbara Bel Geddes

That traditional quest of Broadway producers, a funny, touching, small-cast, one-set romantic comedy, is back again in "Mary, Mary," which opened last Wednesday night (8) at the Helen Hayes Theatre. The Jean Kerr play should have a long run in New York and be a success on tour, besides becoming a staple for stock and little theatres and making a honey of a picture. In short, the works.

Mrs. Kerr plainly wasn't trying to emulate Ibsen's "A Doll's House" or even Noel Coward's "Private Lives," in this amiable fable about a nice young couple who, though in process of divorce, are still in love and manage to get back together in time for the third-act curtain. "Mary, Mary" is that almost legendary theatrical staple, a tender, laugh-filled show about people you like, amusing people you care about and enjoy being with. In an era of depressing theatrical portentiousness, it's delightfully entertaining.

Reputedly based on an actual situation involving some of Mrs. Kerr's friends, "Mary, Mary" is written primarily from the woman's point of view, with a heroine who's not so much contrary as seemingly incapable of resisting an urge toward inopportune flippancies. The husband, a decent enough chap, has an ultra-sensitive male ego, air infuriating ignorance of feminine vanity, and a baffling inability to see transparent facts.

Although there are few explosive laughs, with most of the comedy in the form of line jokes rather than situations, the humor bubbles along refreshingly. Unlike most comedies, it gives the impression of having had some of the jokes trimmed out, rather than having been packed with them during rehearsals and tryout tour. In any case, the laughs don't interfere with the story.

As readers of the bestselling "Please Don't Eat the Daisies" (also done as a Metro picture co-starring David Niven and Doris Day) and the current "The Snake Had All the Lines" are aware, Mrs. Kerr is an irrepressibly witty but good-humored and tolerant observer of the contemporary scene, and in "Mary, Mary" she has given a refreshing treatment to a standard story and theme. The play obviously won't go into anthologies of immortal drama, but it is a cinch to satisfy audiences.

Under Joseph Anthony's adroit direction, the performance is brisk, plausible and diverting. Miss Bel Geddes, looking trim and delectable, gives an expert portrayal of the wife with a knack of undermining her husband. She combines unerring comedy technique with genuine poignance.

As the unseeing husband who's occasionally capable of realizing his own obtuseness, Nelson gives a convincingly intense performance that at times edges on boorishness but is excellent in terms of the overall situation.

British stage and film actor Michael Rennie, making his initial appearance on Broadway, is admirably smooth and winning as the middleaged screen idol who is smitten with the contrary heroine at first sight. It may be a lapse on the part of Mrs. Kerr as author, that a part of the audience hopes he does make off with her. Miss von Furstenberg is excellent as the assured young thing the about-to-be-divorced bubby plans to marry, and Cromwell is skillfully droll as the lawyer who refused to handle the divorce case but takes a hand in bringing about the reunion.

Oliver Smith has designed a handsome and properly roomy Manhattan apartment interior. Theoni V. Aldredge has provided becoming costumes and Peggy Clark has devised suitable lighting. Roger L. Stevens is the producer of this can't-miss popular success and Warner Bros is the canny owner of the screen rights in a preproduction deal.

"Mary, Mary" supports the adage that all the theatre needs is better shows. Hobe.

The Devil's Advocate

Dore Schary presentation of his own three-act drama, adapted from the novel by Morris L. West. Staged by Schary; settings, Jo Mielziner; costumes, Theoni V. Aldredge; associate producer, Walter Reilly; production manager, Jean Barrere. Stars, Leo Genn, Sam Levene, Edward Mulhare; Eduardo Ciannelli, Olive Deering, Michael Kane, Tresa Hughes, Fred J. Scollay, Boris Tumarin, Dennis Scroppo. Opened March 9, '61, at the Billy Rose Theatre, N. Y.; $7.50 top Friday and Saturday nights, $6.90 weeknights.

Msgr. Meredith ..... Leo Genn
Cardinal Marotta ..... Boris Tumarin
Nina Sanduzzi ..... Tresa Hughes
Signora Martino ..... Diane Collins
Dr. Meyer ..... Sam Levene
Nicholas Black ..... Michael Kane
Bishop of Valenta .... Eduardo Ciannelli
Mario ..... Maurice Shrog
Contessa ..... Olive Deering
Teresina ..... Lynn Forman
Father Anselmo ..... Allen Leaf
Paolo Sanduzzi ..... Dennis Scroppo
Signora Angeli ..... Maggie Aldrich
Giacomo Nerone ..... Edward Mulhare
Il Lupo ..... Fred J. Scollay
Partisans .. Win Forman, Steve Karmen

In doing a stage adaptation of the novel "The Devil's Advocate," Dore Schary has tried to dramatize a story about an alleged miracle, and it would have been miraculous if he had succeeded. The play, which opened last Thursday night (9) at the Billy Rose Theatre (formerly National), is worthy of respect, but it's hardly a boxoffice bet for Broadway. It should be better as screen material (Warner Bros. acquired the rgihts in a preproduction deal).

According to those who have read it, Morris L. West's original book was compelling and inspiring, but difficult to visualize as a play. The story concerns a good but curiously bloodless English priest's search for an abiding faith, for his own soul. Sent by a Roman Cardinal to an Italian mountain village to investigate a claim of beatification, the learned man of God acquires humility from the simple peasants and, although he neither authenticates nor disproves the supposed miracles or the sanctity of the martyred subject, he finds the divine belief he has sought.

This is, inevitably, a story of inner question and conflict and decision, with the vital "action" taking place "offstage" in the mind and heart of the priest. The flashback events he uncovers and which resolve his uncertainties, are tangible and can be presented in terms of physical action. But they actively involve only the secondary characters. Although the real, inner drama involving the priest can be eloquently expressed on the printed page, it cannot be represented in stage action.

"The Devil's Advocate" tends, therefore, to be a drama on an intellectual and spiritual theme rather than the story of a real person. In consequence, it lacks identification and compulsion for general audiences. An extra handicap financially is that the production, capitalized at $150,000, must have cost more than that, and reportedly needs $32,000 to break even.

Perhaps one of the regrettable aspects of the Broadway theatre is that there is little room for serious, deeply probing plays like this Schary adaptation of West's admired novel. The misfortune doesn't alter the hard fact, however.

Under Schary's firm direction, Leo Genn gives an impressively developed and sustained performance in the title part of the self-questioning priest who, though fatally stricken with cancer, refuses to be diverted from his trying assignment and his search for faith. Sam Levene gives a persuasively fruity performance in one of his infrequent non-comedy roles, a wise, tolerant doctor, the only Jew in the Catholic village and therefore a perennial outsider.

Edward Mulhare, also costarred, is believable if not especially emphatic as the saintly martyr, but his task is complicated by the character's obscurity of motivation. In principal featured roles, Eduardo Cianelli gives a nicely detailed portrayal of a sage, benign local bishop, Olive Deering seems ill at ease in the imperfectly conceived part of a dissolute Contessa who repents a dreadful deed.

Michael Kane is acceptable in the ill-explained role of a homosexual artist whose impulsive suicide provides a puzzling inspiration for the priest's final moment of revelation, Tresa Hughes is appealing as the unquestioning peasant woman who loved the martyr, Dennis Scroppo is well cast as their illegitimate son and Boris Tumarin is effective in the bit role of the Roman Cardinal.

Jo Mielziner has designed an arrangement of mobile scenery and flexible lighting which minimizes the inevitably jerky transitions between the present and the flashback past, and Theoni V. Aldredge has provided appropriate costumes.

Despite its apparent loftiness of purpose and dignity of theme, "The Devil's Advocate" doesn't achieve a miracle, at least for Broadway. Hobe.

Bill Fields Bedded

William Fields, legit pressagent and head press rep for the Ringling Bros., Barnum & Bailey Circus, is a patient in the Hospital for Special Surgery, N. Y., having been moved last Monday (13) from French Hospital. (He underwent surgery last year for a stomach ulcer.)

Fields is president of the Assn. of Theatrical Pressagents. & Managers.

Britannicus

N. Y. City Center (in association with S. Hurok) presentation of Comedie Francaise production of five-act tragedy by Racine. Staged by Michel Vitold; decor and costumes, Francine Galliard-Rissler. Opened March 2, '61, at the City Center Theatre, N. Y.; $3.95 top.

Burrhus ..... Louis Seigner
Neron ..... Robert Hirsch
Narcisse ..... Francois Chaumette
Britannicus ..... Michel Bernardy
Agrippine ..... Annie Ducaux
Albine ..... Denise Gence
Junie ..... Daniele Ajoret

Seldom seen in the U. S., Racine's "Britannicus" is an oddly fascinating though not very satisfying verse tragedy. This Comedie Francaise production sustains interest throughout, but doesn't register overwhelming impact. Perhaps the ear not entirely adjusted to the original French cannot catch the nuances which would make eloquent and profound a work that otherwise seems thin.

In form, "Britannicus" is appropriately lean and spare, a stark tale of the birth of a corrupted personality. In this case, it's the young Neron (Nero), just beginning to enjoy the feeling of absolute power after living under the domination of his ambitious mother, Agrippine.

This duel of personalities, as played by Robert Hirsch and Annie Ducaux, is easily won by the forceful, beautifully spoken performance given by Miss Ducaux. As Neron, Hirsch tries hard to suggest the complex nature of the embryonic tyrant, but most often registers only as a capricious, lightweight, undutiful son. Lacking are dark hints of the truly tragic nature of the beast. Technically, too, he seems a bit over his head, being difficult to understand in both his loud and soft moments.

As Neron's stepbrother, Britannicus, the object of the young emperor's jealousy, Michel Bernady gives a fresh-faced, naive performance of virtue just a little too good to be true, even for the purposes of verse tragedy, Daniele Ajoret, as his love, is uncommonly pretty and poised. Lending real heft to the overall production are Louis Seigner as Neron's wise and troubled counsellor, and Francois Chaumette, as adviser to Britannicus and spy for Neron.

The movement of the players against the classic setting has been rigidly controlled by director Michel Vitold, providing emphasis for the verse and giving import to the ultimate violence. Anby.

Tartuffe

N. Y. City Center (in association with S. Hurok) presentation of Comedie Francaise production of five-act comedy by Moliere. Staged by Louis Seigner. Opened Feb. 28, '61, at the City Center Theatre, N. Y.; $3.95 top.

Tartuffe ..... Louis Seigner
Cleante ..... Jacques Charon
Valere ..... Georges Descrieres
Orgon ..... Francois Chaumette
M. Loyal ..... Michel Aumont
Damis ..... Michel Bernardy
Elmire ..... Annie Ducaux
Mariane ..... Micheline Boudet
Dorine ..... Lise Delamare
Mme. Pernell ..... Denise Gence
Flipote ..... Catherine Samie

New York has been brighter with the Comedie Francaise production of "Tartuffe." With three of the company's four scheduled New York offerings already seen, "Tartuffe" is apparently destined to be the highlight of the group's City Center visit.

Moliere's classic lampoon of religious hypocrisy and social deceit is the perfect vehicle for the company's distinguished talents, par-

(Continued on page 72)

Shows Abroad

John Gabriel Borkman

London, Feb. 17.

Mermaid Theatre revival of three-act drama by Henrik Ibsen, adapted by Norman Ginsbury. Stars Bernard Miles, Josephine Wilson, Freda Jackson. Staged by Julius Gellner; decor, Michael Stringer. Opened Feb. 16, '61, at the Mermaid Theatre, London; $2.10 top.

Gunhild Borkman ..... Freda Jackson
Maid ..... Jacqueline Lacey
Ella Rentheim ..... Josephine Wilson
Fanny Wilton ..... Pamela Ann Davy
Erhart Borkman ..... James Bolam
John Gabriel Borkman .... Bernard Miles
Frida Foldal ..... Anne Castaldini
Vilhelm Foldal ..... Colin Ellis

"John Gabriel Borkman," one of Ibsen's later plays, has not been seen in London for a decade. Although it is a powerful drama, it's a doubtful choice for the open stage of the Mermaid Theatre.

The essence of this story about a financier who suffers eight years in prison for fraud and then voluntarily imprisons himself in his own home for another long period is claustrophobia. That is singularly lacking in Julius Gelner's staging.

Without this feeling of the central characters being hemmed in, much of the impact of Ibsen's play is lost. However, the Mermaid is becoming a theatre where every show is worth seeing, even if it fails to ring the bell clearly.

The casting of "Borkman" is not ideal. Bernard Miles is a sound actor with a warm, homespun folksiness, but he does not convince as the arrogant, passionate megalomaniac. In fact, the entire cast approaches this play with a solemnity, almost reverence. Ibsen's works can be vital and alive, and should be presented as such, not as museum pieces.

Miles' performance is competent, but never "big" enough, and Josephine Wilson as Aunt Ella, also lacks the stature required to hold the balance between the three main characters. Freda Jackson's portrayal of Borkman's bitter wife is, however, sure and compelling.

The drama is largely a tug-of-war over Borkman's son, played neatly by James Bolam, but his paramour is acted with far too much liveliness by Pamela Ann Davy, and disturbs the mood. Colin Ellis has one excellently handled scene and Jacqueline Lacey and Anne Castaldini cope with minor roles.

"John Gabriel Borkman" is worth a visit if only as a reminder that the great dramatists have always had discipline enough to write plays with a beginning, a middle and an end, and are not afraid to create characters larger than life. Rich.

Natttkyparen

(The Night-Walter)

Stockholm, Feb. 21.

Royal Dramatic Theatre presentation of a drama in two acts by Vilhelm Moberg. Staged by Stig Torsslow; settings and costumes, Sven Fahlstedt. Stars Georg Rydeberg, Anders Henrikson, Gunnel Brostrom, Bengt Eklund, Renee Bjorling. Opened Feb. 3, '61, at the Lilla Scen, Stockholm; $2.40 top.

Guest ..... Georg Rydeberg
Desk Clerk ..... Bengt Eklund
Maid ..... Renee Bjorling
Friend ..... Henrik Schildt
Night-Walter ..... Anders Henrikson
Woman ..... Helena Brodin
Red-Faced ..... Rudolf Wendbladh
Mistress ..... Gunnel Brostrom
Old Man ..... Anders Henrikson
Doctor ..... Holger Lowenadler
Girl ..... Catrin Westerlund

"The Night-Walter" is the most recent work of Vilhelm Moberg, Sweden's most popular contemporary author. A new work by Moberg is a big story in Sweden and should find audiences in other countries. Lars Schmidt has the European and U.S. rights.

Although Moberg devotes most of his energies to attacks on society or social injustices, his new work centers on a man's fears of aging, without any reference to old age homes or similar institutions. The play is set in a cheap hotel room, where the guest a once successful painter, has moved in to commit suicide.

In his nightmares he meets the night-walter, representing death, and a horrible vision of his late father, a symbol of old age. He also is visited by his mistress and his best friend, and comes to realize that he has devoted himself to his work and has never dared to stake himself in human relations. Finally, he begins to see new values in life through his conversations with the hotel maid, an elderly widow who regards her job as a mission to show sinners the road to salvation. The ending is unconvincing.

"The Night-Walter" is a rather uneven play. The artist's fear of age is a powerful theme. His meetings with the figure of death and his senile father also make an impression. However, his meetings with his mistress, a teenage prostitute and a sexual pervert, who gets pleasure out of beating young girls, lack originality, but may well be appreciated by many audiences. The excellent acting of the cast, headed by Georg Rydeberg, at the Royal Dramatic Theatre maintains interest. Fred.

Les Ambassades

(The Embassies)

Paris, Feb. 10.

Helene Martini presentation of a comedy in two acts (nine scenes) by Andre-Paul Antoine and Jean-Pierre Dorian adapted from a novel by Roger Peyrefitte. Staged by Andre Barsacq; sets and costumes, Andre Francois; music, Georges Van Parys. Features Pierre Michael, Elisabeth Alain, Louis Ducreux, Noel Roquevert, Jean Ozenne, Hans Verner, Colette Proust. Opened Feb. 1, '61, at the Theatre Bouffes-Parisiens, Paris; $3.50 top.

De Sarre ..... Pierre Michael
Francoise ..... Elisabeth Alain
Laurent ..... Louis Ducreux
Grondin ..... Noel Roquevert
Redoute ..... Jean Ozenne
Rudolf ..... Hans Verner
Mrs. Laurent ..... Colette Proust

Sketchily adapted from a best-seller of some years ago, "Les Ambassades" ("The Embassies") combines satirical jabs at diplomatic channels and bureaucracy with a love story between a rising young career man and a diplomat's daughter. It appears conventional and talky, with sketchy characters and little invention. Its appeal is likely to be local and slight as a legiter, but might do for film adaptation.

A young diplomat is infatuated by the 18-year-old daughter of his boss, the French Ambassador to Greece. Their affair is on a worldly basis, as neither wants to get involved. There's an orgy at the embassy when the young man is left as chaperon for the daughter's birthday party, but the scandal is overlooked upon the beginning of World War II.

The caricatures on fatuous embassy types are obvious and familiar and the play is sketchy. The acting is acceptable, with Pierre Michael registering as a romantic light comedian and Elizabeth Alain emerging a fetching newcomer as the Ambassador's daughter.

The settings represent amusing comment on embassy extravagances, and Georges Van Parys has provided catchy Greek-like tunes for a wandering trio. Mosk.

On The Brighter Side

Glasgow, March 7.

Peter Bridge (for Bridge Productions Ltd.) & John Gale (for John Gale Productions Ltd.) presentation of new revue, in two parts. Stars Stanley Baxter, Betty Marsden. Features Pip Hinton. Staged by James Gilbert; musical numbers staged by Alfred Rodrigues; designed by Clifford Hatts; costumes, Alan Pikford; lighting, Richard Pilbrow; orchestrations, Dennis Wilson. Lyrics by Sean Vincent, Alec Grahame, Richard Waring, David Campton, Gerry Donovan, Neville Phillips, Johnny Speight, Kenneth Williams, Robert Gould, David Cumming, Derek Collyer, Stanley Daniels, Ray Jessel, Lionel Bart, Ken Hoare, Vivian Ellis, Barry Cryer, Fenella Fielding. Music by Ian Fraser, George Hall, Dennis Wilson, Lance Mulcahy, Robb Stewart, Stanley Myers, Robert Gould, Stanley Daniels, Ray Jessel, Lionel Bart, Vivian Ellis, Alec Grahame, Peter Myers, John Pritchett. Opened Feb. 27, '61, at the Alhambra Theatre, Glasgow; $1.30 top.

"On the Brighter Side," an intimate revue being tuned up for London, suffers from an indifferent first-half but brightens after the interval, suggesting that a regrouping of items is needed. Some of the sketches and numbers are bright and slick, some are below average, and one or two, including a Polaris skit, are n.s.g.

The talent lineup is strong, the dancing girls showing potential, while the comedy of Stanley Baxter and Betty Marsden, recently spotlighted nationally on network tv, shows two big-name star prospects.

Much must be done to slick up the revue for its West End presentation, and it's unfortunate that this Glasgow date is in a theatre too large for an intimate revue and before customers more accustomed to the bash-and-spectacle fodder. As is, however, the production is warmly welcomed, despite the initial surprise at seeing Baxter, a home product, in a more sophisticated style.

Bouncy, eye-gleaming, with an infectious air of mischief, Baxter tilts at current events and personalities and, with Betty Marsden, makes a formidable combo. Given stronger and more offbeat material, the pair would be a riot. As is,

(Continued on page 74)

No Sellouts as B'way Sags Again; 'Mary' $34,063 (7), 'Devil' $23,832 (5), 'Daughters' $22,164, 'Advise' $29,003

Broadway had another sour session last week, with business continuing to decline for most shows. Not a single production went clean. There were discount exchange tickets in circulation for nine of the 29 regular Main Stem productions.

The gross listed below for "Camelot" was after a cut of $508, representing another deduction to cover refunds to patrons unable to attend performances several weeks ago because of blizzard conditions.

Estimates for Last Week

Keys: C (Comedy), D (Drama), CD (Comedy-Drama), R (Revue), MC (Musical-Comedy), MD (Musical-Drama), O (Opera), OP (Operetta), Rep (Repertory), DR (Dramatic Reading).

Other parenthetic designations refer, respectively, to weeks played, number of performances through last Saturday, top prices (where two prices are given, the higher is for Friday-Saturday nights and the lower for weeknights), number of seats, capacity gross and stars. Price includes 10% Federal and 5% City tax, but grosses are net; i.e., exclusive of taxes.

Advise and Consent, Cort (D) (17th wk; 132 p) ($7.50; 1,155; $40,500) (Ed Begley, Richard Kiley, Chester Morris, Henry Jones, Kevin McCarthy). Previous week, $34,127. Moves April 17 to the Royale.

Last week, $29,003.

All the Way Home, Belasco (D) (15th wk; 117 p) ($6.90-$7.50; 967; $38,500). Previous week, $15,970 with twofers.

Last week, $16,462 with twofers.

Becket, Royale (D) (23d wk; 177 p) ($6.90-$7.50; 1,040; $45,507) (Laurence Olivier, Anthony Quinn). Previous week, $34,362 with twofers. Exits March 25 for a brief tour.

Last week, $35,170 with twofers.

Best Man, Morosco (D) (49th wk; 384 p) ($6.90-$7.50; 999; $41,000) (Melvyn Douglas, Lee Tracy, Frank Lovejoy). Previous week, $17,719.

Last week, $17,100. Hugh Franklin succeeded Douglas Last Monday night (13).

Bye Bye Birdie, Shubert (MC) (47th wk; 368 p) ($8.60-$9.40; 1,453; $64,000). Previous week, $35,426.

Last week, $38,250.

Camelot, Majestic (MC) (14th wk; 113 p) ($9.40; 1,626; $84,000) (Richard Burton, Julie Andrews). Previous week, $81,842.

Last week, $81,509.

Come Blow Your Horn, Atkinson (C) (3d wk; 21 p) ($6.90-$7.50; 1,090; $43,522). Previous week, $19,532.

Last week, $20,314.

Critic's Choice, Barrymore (C) (13th wk; 101 p) ($6.50-$7.50; 1,067; $40,000) (Henry Fonda). Previous week, $27,570.

Last week, $24,501.

Devil's Advocate, Rose (D) (1st wk; 4 p) ($6.90-$7.50; 1,162; $46,645) (Leo Genn, Sam Levene, Edward Mulhare).

Opened last Thursday night, 9, to four endorsements: Aston, World-Telegram; Chapman, News; Taubman, Times; Watts, Post; two unfavorable reviews: Gilbert, Mirror; McClain, Journal-American) and one mixed: Kerr, Herald Tribune.

Last week, $23,832 for four performances and one preview.

Do Re Mi, St. James (MC) (11th wk; 88 p) ($8.60-$9.40; 1,615; $69,500) (Phil Silvers). Previous week, $69,834.

Last week, $67,501.

Evening With Mike Nichols and Elaine May, Golden (R) (22d wk; 179 p) ($6.90-$7.50; $30,439). Previous week, $24,297.

Last week, $23,761.

Fiorello, Broadhurst (MC) (67th wk; 532 p) ($8.35-$9.40; 1,182; $58,194). Previous week, $35,800.

Last week, $36,198.

Gypsy, Imperial (MC) (87th wk; 686 p) ($8.60-$9.40; 1,428; $64,500) (Ethel Merman). Previous week, $47,039 with twofers. Exits March 25 to tour.

Last week, $42,693 with twofers.

Irma La Douce, Plymouth (MC) (24th wk; 188 p) ($8.60; 999; $48,250) (Elizabeth Seal, Keith Michell). Previous week, $41,328.

Last week, $38,052.

Mary, Mary, Hayes (C) (1st wk; 5 p) ($6.90-$7.50; 1,139; $43,530) (Barbara Bel Geddes, Barry Nelson, Michael Rennie).

Opened last Wednesday night (8) to five favorable notices (Aston, World-Telegram; Chapman, News; McClain, Journal-American; Strassberg, Mirror; Watts, Post) and two yes-but (Crist, Herald Tribune; Taubman, Times).

Last week, $34,063 for five performances and two previews.

Miracle Workers, Playhouse (D) (72d wk; 572 p) ($6.90-$7.50; 994; $36,500) (Suzanne Pleshette, Patty Duke). Previous week, $14,988.

Last week, $18,509.

Music Man, Broadway (MC) (168th wk; 1,335 p) ($8.05; 1,900; $73,850). Previous week, $32,980 with twofers.

Last week, $29,730 with twofers.

My Fair Lady, Hellinger (MC) (260th wk; 2,071 p) ($8.05; 1,551; $69,500) (Michael Allinson, Margot Moser). Previous week, $39,670 with discount tickets.

Last week, $41,254 with discount tickets.

Rhinoceros, Longacre (CD) (9th wk; 72 p) ($6.90; 1,101; $37,000) (Eli Wallach, Zero Mostel). Previous week, $30,992 with Play of the Month Guild patronage.

Last week, $29,995 with Play of the Month Guild patronage.

Show Girl, O'Neill (R) (9th wk; 68 p) ($6.90-$7.50; 1,076; $45,052) (Carol Channing). Previous week, $23,039.

Last week, $22,386.

Sound of Music, Lunt-Fontanne (MD) (65th wk; 516 p) ($9.60; 1,407; $75,000) (Mary Martin). Previous week, $73,823.

Last week, $73,007.

Taste of Honey, Booth (D) (23d wk; 183 p) ($6.90; 807; $30,500) (Joan Plowright, Angela Lansbury). Previous week, $15,041.

Last week, $14,978.

Tenderloin, 46th St. (MC) (21st wk; 168 p) ($8.60-$9.60; 1,342; $65,331) (Maurice Evans). Previous week, $40,975 with twofers.

Last week, $35,848 with twofers.

Tenth Man, Ambassador (D) (70th wk; 551 p) ($6.90-$7.50; 1,155; $41,562). Previous week, $15,601 with twofers.

Last week, $14,214 with twofers.

13 Daughters, 54th St. (MC) (2d wk; 12 p) ($8.60-$9.40; 1,434; $60,172) (Don Ameche). Previous week, $23,809 for four performances and one preview.

Last week, $22,164. An additional $75,000, on top of the original $350,000 capitalization was invested in the production last week to keep it from folding.

Toys in the Attic, Hudson (D) (34th wk; 424 p) ($6.90-$7.50; 1,065; $39,600) (Maureen Stapleton, Patricia Jessel, Anne Revere, Robert Loggia). Previous week, $13,469 with twofers.

Last week, $12,311 with twofers.

Under the Yum Yum Tree, Miller's (C) (17th wk; 133 p) ($6.90-$7.50; 912; $30,486). Previous week, $11,217 with twofers. Has to vacate house April 15.

Last week, $12,304 with twofers.

Unsinkable Molly Brown, Winter Garden (MC) (19th wk; 148 p) $8.60-$9.40; 1,404; $68,000). Previous week, $47,903.

Last week, $51,378.

Wildcat, Alvin (MC) (11th wk; 83 p) $8.60-$9.40; 1,453; $65,000 (Lucille Ball). Previous week, $61,778.

Last week, $61,431.

Closed Last Week

Comedie Francaise, Center (Rep) (3d wk; 24 p) $3.95; 3,090; $80,000). Previous week, $73,100. Ended limited three-week run last Sunday (12) to embark on a brief tour.

Last week, $66,400.

Opening This Week

Importance of Being Oscar, Lyceum (one-man) ($5.65; 995; $26,500) (Michael MacLiammoir).

S. Hurok and Roger L. Stevens, in association with Michael Redgrave and Fred Sadoff, presenta- 500) (Michael MacLiammoir). show. Opened limited four-week run last night (Tues.).

Big Fish, Little Fish, ANTA (CD) ($6.90-$7.50; 1,185; $49,178) (Jason Robards Jr., Hume Cronyn).

Lewis Allen and Ben Edwards, in association with Joseph I. Levine, presentation of play by Hugh Wheeler. Opens tonight (Wed.).

Hamlet, Phoenix (D) ($4.60; 1,150; $29,382).

Phoenix Theatre revival of Shakespeare's drama. Opens tomorrow night (Thurs.).

'LOS FANTASTIKOS' DUE FOR MEX CITY PREEM

Mexico City, March 14.

A Spanish version of the click off-Broadway musical, "The Fantasticks," is scheduled to open here April 6 at the Teatro del Bosque in Chapultepec Park. Rene Anselmo and Luis de Llano, who've been responsible for local editions of "Boy Friend," "Bells Are Ringing" and "Redhead," will be teamed again on the new musical, with Anselmo producing and De Llano directing.

De Llano and Martha Fisher have translated the off-Broadway original, which will be presented here under the title, "Los Fantastikos." Enrico Cabiatti will be musical director. The New York offering, currently at the Sullivan St. Playhouse in that city, opened last May.

Off-Broadway Shows

(Figures denote opening dates)

After Angels, W. 3rd St. (2-10-61).
American Dream, York (1-24-61).
Balcony, Circle in Square (3-3-60).
Call Me, 1 Sheridan Sq. (1-31-61).
Connection, Living Th'tre (Rep) (7-15-59).
Cry of Raindrop, St. Marks (5-7-61).
Death of Bessie, York (3-1-61).
Double Entry, Martinique (2-20-61).
Elsa Lanchester, 41st St. (2-4-61).
Every Other Evil, Key (1-22-61).
Fantasticks, Sullivan St. (5-3-60)
4-1-7 & Cage, Theatre Today (3-4-61).
Hedda Gabler, 4th St. (11-9-60).
Jungle Cities, Living (Rep) (12-20-60).
King Dark Chamber, Jan Hus (2-9-61).
Krapp's & Zoo, Cricket (1-14-60).
Leave It to Jane, Sheridan Sq. (5-25-59)
Mary Sunshine, Orpheum (11-18-58)
Moon in River, East End (2-6-61); reopened Tuesday (14) after one-week shutdown.
Mousetrap, Mews (11-5-60).
O. Oysters, Village Gate (1-30-61).
Roots, Mayfair (3-6-61).
Stewed Prunes, Showplace (12-14-60).
Theatre Chance, Living (Rep) (6-22-60)
Threepenny Opera, de Lys (9-20-55)
Two for Fun, Madison Ave. (2-13-61).
Walk-up, Provincetown (2-23-61).
Worm's Horseradish, Maidman (3-13-61).

SCHEDULED OPENINGS

Feast of Panthers, E. 74th St. (3-20-61).
Ladies Night, Eleanor Gould (3-21-61).
Source & Old Tune, Royal (3-2[illegible]).
Night at Guignol, Guignol (3-25-61).
What A Killing, Folksbeine (3-27-61).
Under Milk Wood, Circle (3-28-61)
Painted Days, Marquee (4-6-61).
Magnificent Hugo, Cornelius (4-6-61).
Smiling Boy, Cherry Lane (4-11-61).
Decameron, E. 74th St. (4-12-61).

CLOSED

Epitaph for Dillon, Actors (12-28-60); closed Sunday (12) after 84 performances.
Five Posts, Gate (3-5-61); closed Sunday (12) after 9 performances.
Rendezvous, Gramercy Arts (2-27-61); closed Sunday (12) after 10 performances.
3 Japanese Plays, Players (2-16-61); closed Sunday (12) after 45 performances.

LONDON SHOWS

(Figures denote opening dates)

Amorous Prawn, Piccadilly (12-9-59).
And Another Thing, Fortune (10-6-60).
Bargain, St. Martin's (1-19-61).
Billy Liar, Cambridge (9-12-60).
Bride Comes Back, Vaudeville (11-25-60)
Caretaker, Duchess (4-27-60).
Changeling, Royal Court (2-21-61).
Chin-Chin, Wyndham's (11-3-60).
Cinderella, Adelphi (12-23-60).
Connection, Duke York (2-22-61).
Fairy Tales, Comedy (1-24-61).
Fings Ain't, Garrick (2-11-60).
Flower Drum Song, Palace (3-24-60).
Gazebo, Savoy (3-29-60).
Hostage, Lyric Ham (2-12-61).
Irma La Douce, Lyric (7-17-58).
John Borkman, Vermont (2-16-61).
King Kong, Prince's (2-23-61).
Lady From the Sea, Owen's (3-15-61).
Luisillo Dancers, Coliseum (3-6-61).
Magic Lantern, Saville (2-6-61).
Men All Seasons, Globe (7-11-60).
Miracle Worker, Royalty (3-9-61).
Mousetrap (Ambassadors (11-25-52).
My Fair Lady, Drury Lane (4-30-58).
Oliver, New (6-30-60).
Repertory, Aldywich (12-15-60).
Ross, Haymarket (5-12-60).
Settled Out Court, Strand (10-19-60).
Simple Spymen, Whitehall (3-19-58).
Step It Whoever, Arts (2-15-61).
Suzie Wong, Prince Wales (11-7-59).
Three, Criterion (2-13-61).
Watch It Sailor, Apollo (2-24-60).
West Side Story, Majesty's (12-12-58).
Young In Heart, Vic. Pal. (12-21-60).

SCHEDULED OPENINGS

Music Man, Adelphi (3-16-61).
You In Your Small Corner, Arts (3-21-61).
J.B., Phoenix (3-23-61).
Sound of Music, Palace (5-18-61).

CLOSED

Pools Paradise, Phoenix (2-16-61); closed Sat. (11) after 28 performances.
Tiger & Horse, Queen's (8-24-60); closed Sat. (11) after 229 performances.

SCHEDULED B'WAY PREEMS

Big Fish, ANTA (3-15-61).
Hamlet, Phoenix (3-16-61).
Far Country, Music Box (3-28-61).
Happiest Girl, Beck (3-30-61).
Impulse, Royale (4-1-61).
Carnival, Imperial (4-13-61).
Mendinao, Cort (4-27-61).
Donnybrook, 46th St. (5-18-61).

'Sound' $81,375 in 2d Det. Stanza, 'Carnival' $26,155 (4) in D.C. Debut, 'Country' $12,766 (5) in N.H. Preem

"Sound of Music" continued as the top road-grosser last week in the second stanza of its getaway hinterland engagement in Detroit. The two-character "At the Drop of a Hat" ended its tour last Saturday (11) with another powerhouse take for its second frame in Toronto. There were two new tryouts last week, "Carnival," which opened strong in Washington, and "Far Country," which started slowly in New Haven.

The "Once Upon a Mattress" company which has been playing major cities folds next Saturday (18) at the end of a three-week Boston stand, and the bus-and-truck edition of "Pleasure of His Company" closes March 25.

Estimates for Last Week

Parenthetic designations for out-of-town shows are the same as for Broadway, except that hyphenated T with show classification indicates tryout and RS indicates road show. Also, prices on touring shows include 10% Federal Tax and local tax, if any, but as on Broadway grosses are net: i.e., exclusive of taxes. Engagements are for single week unless otherwise noted.

BOSTON

My Fair Lady, Shubert (MC-RS) (10th wk) ($6.50-$7; 1,717; $67,355) (Michael Evans, Caroline Dixon). Previous week, $64,449.

Last week, $60,277.

Once Upon a Mattress (Hurok), Colonial (MC-RS) (2d wk; $6.50-$7.50; 1,685; $60,000) (Dody Goodman, Buster Keaton). Previous week, $50,331 with Show of the Month Club patronage.

Last week, $46,132 with Show of the Month Club patronage. Closes here next Saturday (18).

CHICAGO

Flower Drum Song, Shubert (MC-RS) (17th wk) ($5.50-$6.60; 2,100; $67,613). Previous week, $43,317.

Last week, $40,550.

Hostage, Civic (CD-RS) (3d wk) $5.50-$6.50; 904; $30,500). Previous week, $23,024.

Last week, $18,869.

Raisin in the Sun, Blackstone (D-RS) (2d wk) ($4.95-$5.50; 1,447; $42,500) (Claudia McNeil). Previous week, $23,527.

Last week, $24,476.

CLEVELAND

Majority of One, Hanna (C-RS) (1st wk) ($5; 1,515; $38,000) (Gertrude Berg, Cedric Hardwicke). Previous week, $39,794 with Theatre Guild-American Theatre Society Subscription, Ford's, Baltimore.

Last week, $32,140 with TG-ATS subscription.

DETROIT

Sound of Music, Riviera (MD-RS) (2d wk) ($5-$6.50; 2,700; $100,000) (Florence Henderson). Previous week, $76,805.

Last week, $81,375 with TG-ATS subscription.

LOS ANGELES

Five Finger Exercise, Biltmore (D-RS) (3d wk) ($5-$5.50; 1,636; $53,000) (Jessica Tandy, Roland Culver). Previous week, $28,381 with TG-ATS subscription.

Last week, $26,577.

NEW HAVEN

Far Country, Shubert (D-T) ($4.80; 1,650; $27,300) (Kim Stanley).

Opened here last Wednesday night (8) to one yes-but notice (Leeney, Register) and one mixed (Johnson, Journal-Courier).

Last week, $12,766 for five performances.

PHILADELPHIA

Big Fish, Little Fish, Locust (CD-T) (2d wk) ($4.80-$5.40; 1,418; $40,000) (Jason Robards Jr., Hume Cronyn). Previous week, $11,500.

Last week, $16,399.

Happiest Girl in the World, Shubert (MC-T) (2d wk) ($6-$7.50; 1,876; $69,000) (Cyril Ritchard). Previous week, $29,300 for seven performances.

Last week, $41,520.

RICHMOND

Music Man, Mosque (MC-RS). Previous week, $43,861 for seven performances, Ovens Auditorium, Charlotte.

Last week, $60,016.

TORONTO

At the Drop of a Hat, O'Keefe (R-RS) (2d wk) ($4.50-$5; 3,200; $82,800) (Michael Flanders, Donald Swann). Previous week, $61,675 with TG-ATS subscription. Ended tour here last Saturday (11).

Last week, $60,051 with TG-ATS subscription.

WASHINGTON

Carnival, National (MC-T) (1st wk) ($4.95-$6.60; 1,563; $51,862) (Anna Maria Alberghetti).

Opened here last Thursday night (9) to unanimous raves: Carmody, Star; Coe, Post; Donnelly, News.

Last week, $26,155 for four performances with TG-ATS subscription.

SPLIT WEEKS

Andersonville Trial (D-RS) (Brian Donlevy, Martin Brooks). Previous week, $32,644, six-performance split.

Last week, $26,402 for six performances: State College, Chico, Cal., Monday (6), one, $1,121; Memorial, Fresno, Tuesday-Wednesday (7-8), two, $11,005 with Broadway Theatre League subscription; Fox, San Bernardino, Thursday-Friday (9-10), two BTL, $8,517; Granada, Santa Barbara, Saturday (11), one BTL, $5,759.

Fiorello (MC-RS) Previous week, $60,702, eight-performance split.

Last week, $54,963 for seven BTL performances: Masonic, Scranton, Sunday (5), one, $7,856; Loew's Poli, Worcester, Tuesday (7), one, $10,944; Paramount, Springfield, Mass., Wednesday (8), $9,885; Klein Memorial, Bridgeport, Thursday (9), one, $9,478; Veterans Memorial, Providence, Friday-Saturday (10-11), three, $16,800.

J. B. (D-RS) John Carradine, Shepperd Strudwick, Frederic Worlock). Previous week, $26,637, seven-performance split.

Last week, $24,510 for seven BTL performances: Municipal, Tulsa, Sunday (5), two, $7,287; Civic, New Orleans, Tuesday-Friday (7-10), five, $17,223.

Once Upon a Mattress (bus-and-truck) (MC-RS) (Imogene Coca, Edward Everet Horton, King Donovan). Previous week, $37,115, six-performance split.

Last week, $31,221 for five BTL performances: Music Hall, Houston, Monday-Tuesday (6-7), two, $10,412; Municipal, Austin, Wednesday (8), one BTL, $6,563; Municipal, Lafayette, La., Friday (10), one BTL, $7,673; Texarkana (Tex.) College, Saturday (11), one, $6,573.

Pleasure of His Company (C-RS) (Joan Bennett, Donald Cook). Previous week, $27,841, six-performance split. Ends tour Feb. 25.

Last week, $24,002 for six BTL performances: Ovens, Charlotte, Monday-Tuesday (6-7), two, $7,896; Memorial, Greensboro, Wednesday (8), one, $5,830; Center, Norfolk, Thursday-Saturday (9-11), three, $10,276.

Feiffer Revue to Open New Chi Cabaret-Legit

Chicago, March 14.

The target date for the completion of a new theatre-cabaret here, to be called Playwrights at the Second City, is now May 2. The house will be opened with the premiere of a new musical revue, "The Explainers," written by cartoonist Jules Feiffer, author of "Sick Sick Sick."

Bernard Sahlins, Howard Alk and Paul Sills, who also operate the Second City cabaret, have purchased the ornamented arches of the old Garrick Theatre, now being razed, for the facade of their new house.

The McCarter Theatre, Princeton, will present "Hamlet" as its current season's final offering, March 22-25.

CASTING NEWS

Following are available parts in upcoming Broadway, off-Broadway, and touring shows, as well as ballet, films, industrial and television shows. All information has been obtained directly by the VARIETY Casting Department by telephone calls, and has been rechecked as of noon yesterday (Tues.).

The available roles will be repeated weekly until filled, and additions to the list will be made only when information is secured from responsible parties. The intention is to service performers with leads provided by the managements of the shows involved rather than to run a wild goose marathon. This information is published without charge.

In addition to the available parts listed, the tabulation includes productions announced for later this season, but, for which, the managements, as yet, aren't holding open casting calls. Parenthetical designations are as follows: (C) Comedy, (D) Drama, (MC) Musical Comedy, (MD) Musical Drama, (R) Revue, (Rep) Repertory, (DR) Dramatic Reading.

Legit

BROADWAY

"All The Best People" (C). Producers, Joel Spector & Buff Cobb (147 W. 57th St., N.Y.; PL 7-2691). Available parts: naive femme, 21; male, 30-35; middleaged femme; executive male, 50-60; callous male, 30-35. Mail photos and resumes, c/o above address.

David Merrick. 246 W. 44th St., N. Y.; LO 3-7520. Accepting photos and resumes of sopranos, bass-baritones, tenors and boys and girls, 7-14, who sing and dance, for casting file. Mail material, c/o Michael Shurtleff, above address. Indicate voice range.

"Get It Up" (MC). Producer, Charles Curran (c/o Lambs Club, 130 W. 44th St., N.Y.; JU 2-1515). Available parts: six femme singers, 20-23, must double with specialty; ballroom dance team, 20-23; young comedienne. Accepting photos and resumes, c/o above address. Don't phone. Applicants must have intimate night club experience.

"Gypsy" (MC). Producer, David Merrick (246 W. 44th St., N.Y.; LO 3-7520). Available parts: girl, 50-54 inches tall, must sing and do toe and tap dance work; man 17-20, good-looking dancer, must also sing; boy singer-dancer, 7-11, under 54 inches tall; girl, 25, to sing, dance and play trumpet. Accepting photos and resumes, c/o Michael Shurtleff, above address. See also touring notice.

"How to Succeed in Business Without Really Trying" (MC), Producers, Cy Feuer & Ernest Martin (Lunt-Fontanne Theatre, 205 W. 46th St., N. Y.; JU 6-5555). Available parts: male singer-dancer, 27, Ivy League Type; character baritone, 40's; comedienne, 25, belter. Mail photos and resumes, c/o Larry Kasha, above address. Don't phone the theatre.

"Jennie" (MD). Producer, Newburge-Porter Prods. (148 W. 24th St., N.Y.; WA 9-6836). Available parts: male lead, 30's, tall; femme, 20, etherial, small, lovely, must sing well; character woman, 30; barmaid, 40's, plump; character man, 40s; Irish man, 50's. Mail photos and resumes, through agents only, above address.

"Kuprin" (D). Producers, Robert E. Griffith & Harold S. Prince (630 Fifth Ave., N.Y.; JU 2-0600). Part available for Russian femme, 25-30, attractive, strong. Casting director Judy Abbott is seeing applicants at 9:30 a.m.-12:30 p.m. daily, above address.

"Love A La Carte" (MC). Producers, Arthur Klein, in association with Conrad Thibault (St. James Theatre Bldg., 246 W. 44th St., N. Y.; LO 5-6376). Available parts: girl, 22; leading man, 30; second leading man, 30; character comedienne, 30. Accepting photos and resumes, above address.

"Mandingo" (D). Producers, Billy Baxter & Edward Friedman (Astor Hotel, Broadway & 44th St., N.Y.; JU 6-3000). Parts available for identical twin Negro boys, 11 or 12; several husky Negro men, 20's. Mail photos and resumes c o above address.

"Medium Rare" (R). Producer, Robert Weiner (146 CPW, N.Y.; SU 7-1914). Parts available for male and femme revue types. Apply through agent or mail photos and resumes, c o above address.

"Nine Millionth Star" (D). Producers, Michael Charnee & Geoffrey F. Rudaw (340 E. 66th St., N. Y.; RE 4-1478). Available parts: girl, 14; boy, 16. Mail photos and resumes, c o above.

"Sound of Music" (MD). Producers, Richard Rodgers & Oscar Hammerstein 2d (488 Madison Ave., N. Y.); casting director, Eddie Blum. Auditions for possible future replacements for girls, 7-16, and boys, 11-14 all with trained voices, characters. Mail photos and resumes to above address.

"Talent '61" (R). Producer, John Effrat (c/o Broadway Show League, 1619 Broadway, N.Y., suite 810; 1619 Broadway, N.Y., suite 810). Auditions tomorrow (Thurs.), Friday (17) and March 23, 24, 30, 31, at the Hotel Astor (Broadway & 44th St., N. Y.). The annual professional talent showcase will be presented April 25 with rehearsals beginning April 6. Do not phone the hotel.

OFF-BROADWAY

"I Want You" (MC). Producers, Theodore J. Flicker & Joseph Crayhon (c/o The Premise, 154 Bleecker St., N.Y.; LF 3-5020). Available parts: Irish-American girl, 18, sexy but sweet; young leading man, thin; male song and dance team, wise crackers; man, huge, dumb, Irish cop; man, short, fat, funny; man tall, thin, evil; six beautiful girls; several low comedians. All applicants must sing and dance. Mail photos and resumes, above address, or phone Rusti Moon, OR 4-9382, at 10:30 a.m. to 6 p.m., for interview appointment.

"It Should Happen To a Dog" (C). Producer, James J. Cordes (600 Tenth Ave., N. Y.; JU 2-5999). Available parts: five character men to play older Jewish types with authentic accents. Mail photos and resumes c/o above address.

"King of the Dark Chamber" (D). Producers, Van Joyce & Harold Leventhal, in association with Patricia Newhall (c/o Jan Hus House, 351 E. 74th St., N. Y.; LE 5-6310). Available parts: character man, 40's, mime and comedy background; character man, 30, heavyset, 6 feet tall, comic. For interview appointment, call Ken Costigan, 4-7 p.m., at above number.

"Leave It To Jane" (MC). Producers, Joseph Berhu & Peter Katz (c/o Sheridan Square Theatre, Seventh Ave. & Fourth St., N.Y.; CH 2-9609). Auditions for male and femme singers as replacements, every Thursday at 6 p.m., above address.

"Meet Peter Grant" (MD). Producer, Lee Bergman (251 W. 74th St., N. Y.; TR 3-7844). Available parts: baritone, 18-25, all-American type; ingenue, lyric soprano; character woman, 40-50, contralto; character girl, 25-40, comic, robust, contralto; character man, 18-25, immature, sad sack, high baritone or tenor; character man, 20-40, big, bass-baritone; femme, 20-35, sexy, pop contralto and sultry blues singer; bass, 18-30, burly villian; male and femme chorus singers and dancers. All applicants must dance. Auditions today (Wed.) through March 27, at 7-10 p.m., at Malin Studios (123 W. 49th St., N. Y.). Bring photo, resume and music.

"Ondine" (D). Producer, Equity Library Theatre (226 W. 47th St., N. Y.; PL 7-1710). All parts available Auditions today (Wed.), at 10 a.m.-4 p.m., at ELT Rehearsal Hall (133 Second Ave., N. Y.). The play will be multiracial and requiresh excellent singers, dancers and actors. Some non-Equity roles are available. The script is available at Drama Book Shop, Samuel French and a back issue of Theatre Arts, and applicants are requested to be familiar with the script and the part for which they would like to be considered.

"Truth Shall Make Us Free" (dramatic trilogy). Producer, New American Universal Theatre (c/o Frederika Blankner, Hotel Des Artistes, 1 W. 67th St., N.Y.; EN 2-6700). Various roles involving male and femme performers of all ages and races are available. Auditions next Saturday (18), at 11 a.m.-1 p.m., at St. Bartholomew's Community House (109 E. 50th St., N.Y.; Room 5R) and Sunday (19), at 12 noon-1 p.m., at the West Side YMCA (5 W. 63d St., N.Y.; Rooms B and C).

OUT OF TOWN

CHICAGO

Second City. Producers, Bernard Sahlins, Paul Sills & Howard Alk (1842 N. Wells St., Chicago, Ill.). Parts available for four girls, 20-32, bright, singing ability. Auditions Friday (17), 12 noon-6 p.m., at Malin Studios (123 W. 49th St., N.Y.). This improvisational group will move to New York within the year and is also forming a second company for winter stock appearances.

"Flower Drum Song" (MC). Producers, Rodgers & Hammerstein (488 Madison Ave., N. Y.; MU 8-3640). Part available for replacement for performer of "Love, Look Away." Contract Edward Blum, above address.

"Vintage '61" (R). Producer, Zev Bufman (1605 N. Ivar Ave., Hollywood 28, Calif.; HO 4-7121). Parts available for six male and six femme singer-dancer-actors under 30. Mail photos and resumes, above address.

STOCK

AUGUSTA, MICH.

Barn Theatre. Producer-director, Jack Ragotzy (200 E. 36th St., N. Y.; MU 6-0043). Available parts: leading man; ingenue lead; character woman with second woman range; male and femme musical performers who can double in dramatic roles for part of the season. Mail photos and resumes, above address.

BEVERLY, MASS.

North Shore Music Theatre. Managing director, Stephan Slane (27 W. 55th St., N. Y.). Parts available for male and femme Equity musical performers, principals and chorus, and apprentices. Mail photos and resumes, above address. New York auditions will be held beginning April 3, through agents only.

BRADDOCK HEIGHTS, MD.

Mountain Theatre. Producer, William O. Brining (4545 Connecticut Ave. NW, Washington, D.C.; EM 3-5051). Parts available for five male and six femme Equity dramatic performers and several non-paid apprentcies. Mail photos and resumes, above address. Season opens June 20.

BRUNSWICK, ME.

Brunswick Summer Playhouse. Producer, Victoria Crandall (162 W. 54th St., N.Y.). Parts available for Equity musical performers, principals, solo dancers, chorus and apprentices. Mail photos and resumes, c/o Don Wortman (60 W. 46th St., N. Y.). The 10-week season opens June 26 with auditions scheduled for March 11.

CHICAGO

Chicago Music Theatre and Chicago Tenthouse Theatre. Producer, Herb Rogers (45 East End Ave., N. Y.; RE 4-5446). Parts available for male and femme musical principals. Mail photos and resumes to above address. New York auditions will be held April 3-14, through agents only.

COHASSET, MASS.

South Shore Music Tent. Managing Director, Bill Ross (c/o King Edward Hotel, 120 W. 44th St., N.Y.; JU 2-2503). Auditions for Equity dancers next Monday (20), men at 11 a.m.-1 p.m. and girls at 2-4 p.m.; open call dancers Tuesday (21), girls at 11 a.m. and boys at 2 p.m., at Variety Arts Studio (225 W. 46th St., N. Y.).

EPHRATA, PA.

Legion Star Playhouse. Producer-director, John Cameron (P.O. Box 334, Ephrata, Pa.). Parts available for five male and five femme Equity dramatic performers and apprentices. Mail photos and resumes, above address. N. Y. auditions will be held April 20-21, by appointment only.

FORT WORTH

Casa Manana Musicals Inc. Managing director, Michael Pollock (545 Fifth Ave., N.Y.; Rm. 1015). Parts available for male and femme musical and dramatic stock performers for the Ft. Worth theatre, opening April 19. Mail photos and resumes, c/o above address.

FRAMINGHAM, MASS.

Carousel Theatre. Producer, Stanton Shifman (c/o Lenny-Debin Agency, 140 W. 58th St., N.Y.; JU 2-0270). Same audition schedule as for Wallingford (see above).

HYANNIS, MASS.

Cape Cod Melody Tent. Managing Director, David Holtzman (c/o King Edward Hotel, 120 W. 44th St., N.Y.; JU 2-2503). Auditions for Equity dancers tomorrow (Thurs.), girls at 11 a.m.-1 p.m. and boys at 2-4 p.m.; open call dancers Friday (17); Equity singers, April 3; open call singers, April 4, same schedule as above, all at Variety Artts Studio (225 W. 46th St., N.Y.).

NORTHPORT, L.I.

Red Barn Theatre. Producer, William Edans (c/o Theatre, Northport, L.I., N.Y.; area code 516, AN 1-5900). Parts available for male and femme musical and dramatic performers, especially character people. Mail photos and resumes c/o above address. Season runs May 24-Sept. 24.

PALM BEACH, FLA.

West Palm Beach Musicarnival. Producer, John Price (940 S. Military Trail, West Palm Beach, Fla.; P.O. Box 2108). Parts available for leading men and women, and male and femme chorus performers. Mail photos and resumes, through agents only, c/o above address.

SPRINGFIELD, ILL.

Tent at the Lake. Producers, Jane Stanley Buckles & D. G. Buckles (c/o Buckles Theatre Co., 1472 Broadway, N. Y.; Rm. 904). Available parts: leading man and woman; ingenue; character woman. Mail photos and resumes, c/o above address, through agents only in the case of the leads.

ST. LOUIS

St. Louis Municipal Opera. Producer-director, John Kennedy (11 E. 44th St., N.Y.; MU 7-0671). Auditions for dancers: Equity call, Friday (17), girls at 11 a.m. and boys at 2 p.m.; open call next Wednesday (22) same schedule as above, both at Variety Arts Studio (225 W. 46th St., N.Y.).

SULLIVAN, ILL.

Summer of musicals. Producer, Guy S. Little Jr. (Box 185, Sullivan, Ill.). Parts available for male and femme Equity musical performers and paid apprentices. Mail photos and resumes, above address.

WALLINGFORD, CONN.

Oakdale Musical Theatre. Producer, Ben Segal (c/o Lenny-Debin Agency, 140 W. 58th St., N.Y.; JU 2-0270). Equity auditions April 10: girl dancers at 10 a.m., boy dancers at 12 noon; girl singers at 2 p.m., boy singers at 4 p.m.; April 11: open call dancers, girls at 10 a.m. and boys at 2 p.m.; April 12: open call singers, girls at 10 a.m. and boys at 2 p.m. All calls will be held at Showcase Studios (950 Eighth Ave., N.Y.). See also Warwick and Framingham.

WARWICK, R.I.

Warwick Musical Theatre. Producer, Burton Bonoff (c/o Lenny-Debin Agency, 140 W. 58th St., N.Y.; JU 2-0270). Same audition schedule as for Wallingford (see above).

TOURING

"Double Entry" (MC). Producers, Albert C. Lasher, Paul Lehman & Happy Medium (c/o L&L Theatre Productions, 245 Lexington Ave., N.Y.; MU 5-7478). All principal roles available. Casting through agents only. Tour slated to begin in Chicago next fall.

"Flower Drum Song" (MC). Producer, Lenny-Debin Agency (140 W. 58th St., N.Y.; JU 2-0270). All parts available. Mail photos and resumes to Jack Lenny, c/o above address. Show will tour the strawhats this summer.

"Gypsy" (MC). Producer, David Merrick (246 W. 44th St., N.Y.; LO 3-7520). Available parts: Tessie Tura, Weber, Uncle Jocko, Agnes, Hollywood blondes, Miss Cratchitt. Mail photos and resumes to Michael Shurtleff, at the Merrick office. Script, published by Random House, available at Drama Book Shop (51 W. 52d St., N. Y.).

"La Plume de Ma Tante" (MC). Producer, David Merrick (246 W. 44th St., N.Y.; LO 3-7520). Available parts: two femme dancers. Mail photos and resumes c/o Michael Shurtleff, above address.

SHOWS IN REHEARSAL

BROADWAY

"Donnybrook" (MC). Producer, Fred Hebert (130 W. 57th St., N. Y.; JU 6-1962).

OFF-BROADWAY

"Decameron" (R). Producers, Selma Tamber & William Tarr (250 W. 52d St., N. Y.; JU 6-0482).

"Galgenhumor" (D). Producers, Norman Twain & Helen Kamber (40 E. 72d St., N. Y.; TR 9-1190).

"Magnificent Hugo" (C). Producer, Cornelius Productions (319 W. 48th St., N.Y.; CI 6-9100).

"Painted Days" (C). Producer, Elliot Martin (58 W. 57th St., N.Y.; PL 7-4181).

"Square" and "Old Tune" (D). Producer, Rose Lynch (c/o Royal Playhouse, 62 E. 4th St., N. Y.; GR 5-9647).

"Under Milk Wood" (D). Producers, Theodore Mann & Jose Quintero (c/o Circle In The Square, 159 Bleeker St., N. Y.; AL 4-2150).

"What a Killing" (MC). Producer, Jack Collins (c/o Lambs Club, 130 W. 44th St., N. Y.; JU 2-1515).

OUT OF TOWN

"Fantasticks" (MC). Producer, Richard Allan Woody (315 E. 70th St., N.Y.; RE 7-6231).

"Two For the Seasaw" (C). Producer, Frank Segrue (132 Beacon St., Boston, Mass.; KE 6-3773).

Television

"Naked City" (dramatic series). Producer, Herbert B. Leonard (Screen Gems, 711 Fifth Ave., N. Y.; PL 1-4432). Accepting photos and resumes of general male and female dramatic talent by mail only, c/o above address.

"Lamp Unto My Feet" (religious-dramatic series). Producer, CBS (524 W. 57th St., N. Y.; JU 6-6000); casting director, Paula Hindlin. Accepting photos and resumes of general male and female dramatic talent, c/o above address. No duplicates.

NBC-TV. (30 Rockefeller Plaza, N. Y.; CI 7-8300). Casting director Edith Hamlin is accepting photos and resumes of male and femme dramatic performers for several shows. Mail information to her, c/o above address.

Films

"Chicapee Falls" (D). Producer, Oscar Lerman (1472 Broadway, N. Y.; BR 9-5218, suite 1109). Parts available for leading lady, 20-30, and leading man, 25-35, six feet tall or over. Mail photos and resumes, c o Jeanette Kamins, above address.

Miscellaneous

N. Y. Summer Resort. Director, Michael Skori (75-15 210 St. Bayside, L. I., N. Y.; HO 8-4251). Spot available for femme singer with good English and Yiddish repertoire. Phone above number, 9-11 a.m. for appointment.

Concert Review

N.Y. Philharmonic
(With Leonard Bernstein)

Back on the Carnegie podium after a four-month absence, Leonard Bernstein, the Philharmonic's musical director, started his spring survey of contemporary music with Charles Ives' Symphony No. 2, a work he introduced to N. Y. several years ago and which he apparently intends to make a repertory piece. It is not one of the pieces for which Ives has been lately and often mentioned yet he experimented with certain harmonic ideas in advance of Schoenberg and Stravinsky.

Second Symphony is a well knit piece of Americana with folk tunes, patriotic medleys and hymns and anything indigenous to the American scene—including a trumpet blaring reminder of "Columbia, the Gem of the Ocean." Certainly the afternoon audience preferred it greatly to Alban Berg's "Three Orchestral Pieces, op. 6" to which Bernstein brought his gift of conveying music which though reminiscent of Wagner and more so Mahler, is decades ahead in pure sound and orchestral technique.

Program opened with a work not belonging to his survey of contemporary music, Mozart's "Linz" Symphony, No. 36 in C which got a tasteful if rather dry reading.

Goth.

Theatre in Education Bard Bits Win N.Y. Performing Arts Studes

Scenes from Shakespeare's "Romeo and Juliet," "Richard II" and "A Midsummer Night's Dream" are being presented by Theatre in Education, Inc., as its sixth annual secondary school tour. The program, playing all but four of its 58 scheduled dates in Connecticut auditoriums, features an all-Equity cast of four men and two women, under the direction of Ernestine Perrie, who also adapted the capsule excerpts.

Interspersed with narrative text by Marchette Chute, the scenes are cleverly conceived and executed for maximum visual appeal and action for the captive student audiences. As caught last Friday (10) at the N.Y. Highschool for the Performing Arts, the program appears successful. The students, presumably up on their Bard owing to the course of their specialized studies, lapped up the show.

CASTS AND CREDITS

Theatre in Education, Inc., (Lyn Ely, managing director) presentation of scenes from Shakespeare's "Romeo and Juliet," "Richard II" and "Midsummer Night's Dream," adapted by Ernestine Perrie, with narrative text by Marchette Chute. Staged by Perrie; fencing choreography, Lawrence Greenfield; costumes, Elanor Knowles; settings, Robert Jeffords.

ROMEO AND JULIET
Benvolio ..... Roger Hamilton
Mereutio ..... Page Johnson
Tybalt ..... David Lunney
Romeo ..... Terence Scammell

RICHARD II
Richard ..... Page Johnson
Bolingbroke ..... Roger Hamilton

A MIDSUMMER NIGHT'S DREAM
Lysander ..... Terence Scammell
Hermia ..... Gwyda DonHowe
Helena ..... Lurinda Barrett
Oberon ..... Roger Hamilton
Puck ..... Page Johnson
Demetrius ..... David Lunney

The furious swordplay designed by Lawrence Greenfield for the "Romeo and Juliet" sequence and the comic cavorting contrived by Perrie for the "Midsummer" scenes drew the most attention. Also pleasant are Eleanor Knowles flexible costumes which lend a touch of color and authenticity to the otherwise sparsely - ornamented stage and the inventive patterns in which various actors rearrange the settings in view of the audience.

The industrious cast is generally effective. Roger Hamilton handles the narrating chores competently and is a pleasant Oberon. Page Johnson provides vivid characterizations as Puck and Mercutio, but is less successful in a hurried scene as Richard II. Terence Scammel is an okay Romeo and Lysander, and David Lunney is a credable Tybalt and Demetrius. Gwyda DonHowe and Laurinda Barrett are lithe and often-amusing as Hermia and Helena, respectively.

The program runs 50 minutes, to fit the average assembly period and is presented admission-free. Theatre In Education is a non-profit organization financed through contributions from individuals, organizations and foundations. The current six-and-a-half week tour, which began March 1, will have played 65 performances in 58 schools in 44 towns when it ends April 17. Lyn Ely is the managing director. Kali.

It's Christopher Norris In 'The Sound of Music'

New York.

Editor, VARIETY:

The name is Christopher Norris —with an "N," not an "M." You have committed the cardinal sin and misspelled her name in your review of the touring production of "The Sound of Music" in Detroit. For a seven-year-old getting her first notice, and for one of our future and better citizens and finer mothers-in-law, I beg your abject apology.

I think she is the greatest ever, and I think so with the same fine and impartial judgment that I give my enemies. I beg your indulgence.

Arthur Norris ("N," not "M").

(Our abject apologies herewith to Miss Norris (with an "N," not "M") and our congratulations to her father, the sender of the above telegram.—Ed.)

Four acting companies from the American Theatre Wing are currently presenting an admission-free series of musical comedy, Shakespeare, Restoration and contemporary works in New York schools.

JAMES LAURIE BACK HOME

Australian Transfers Producing—Starts With 'Wong'

Melbourne, March 7.

Australian-born impresario James Laurie is transferring activities of his London firm, Concerts Management to here. Starts with "The World of Suzie Wong" at the 3,000-seater St. Kilda Palais here for six weeks on March 25. Playing title role will be Jacqui Chan, publicized as former model of Anthony Armstrong-Jones.

Laurie is meantime negotiating for a theatre in Sydney to present future shows, which would not necessarily be dramas. He said he is planning an opera with cast of 150 for next year. He aims to bring new blood to Aussie theatre with English capital, and is making a start with Melbourne and Sydney.

"Suzie" is to be a replica of London production. It will be staged by David Turnbull who directed it.

Laurie has previously been associated with Down Under tours of Margot Fontyn and the Sadler's Wells "The Merry Widow."

'N.Y. OPERA FESTIVAL' SETS 5TH FALL TOUR

Using the billing "New York Opera Festival," the Wagner Opera Co. will again hit the road next October and November. It's a fifth coast-to-coaster for the company since reorganized in 1956 by Felix Salmaggi.

Travelling by bus, the company of 65 singers, musicians, choristers and stagehands will stick to three bread-and-butter works, "Carmen," "La Traviata" and "Butterfly." Latter will be performed in both Italian and English.

Joan Bennett-Don Cook To Barn-Tour 'Pleasure'

Joan Bennett and Donald Cook, who've been appearing as a team in legit for several years and costarred this season in a bus-and-truck tour of "Pleasure of His Company," will continue their association with the comedy following the windup of their road stint. The performers, who subbed briefly last season for Cornelia Otis Skinner and Cyril Ritchard when the Broadway company toured the play, are scheduled for a summer theatre hike this year in a "Pleasure" package to be sent out by Floyd F. Ackerman Associates.

The Ackerman outfit, which was responsible for around 23 strawhat packages last summer, also plans 1961 packages of "Curious Savage," with Spring Byington; "You Can't Take It With You," with Charles Coburn, and a revue starring George Jessel. Other contemplated presentations include "The World of Suzie Wong," "Marriage-Go-Round," "Majority of One" and "Invitation to a March."

Forrest Carter, formerly of Professional Artists, will be in charge of the packaging operation for the organization, which will also book the American Savoyards' Gilbert & Sullivan presentations, in addition to "Naughty Marietta" and Bizet's "Carmen."

Hunterdon Hills Theatre Bought by Philly Group

The Hunterdon Hills Playhouse, Clinton, N. J., dark last season, has been purchased by James F. Griffith, Greg Nallin and Carl Leswing, who plan a 15-week season of dramatic stock there to open in June. Besides the 600-seater, the property acquired by the trio includes a restaurant, bar, two dwellings, a lake and 35 acres of wooded countryside. The new owners, Philadelphia area residents, intend booking star packages.

The property was purchased from Ione Hutaine, who's owned it since 1939. Griffith, formerly associated with the Valley Forge Music Fair, at Devon, Pa., and Leswing will be active in running the theatre and Nallin will supervise the operation of the restaurant and bar.

HUGH HOOKS STEPS IN

Takes Over Road Dates From Witherspoon-Grimes

Denver, March 14.

Definite assurance has been given that "A Majority of One" and "Fiorello," two roadshows originally scheduled to play Denver through Witherspoon-Grimes, which recently entered bankruptcy, will still play the city in May, was given this week by Hugh Hooks, the City's remaining legit impresario.

Although contracts hadn't been signed at the time this was written, Hooks says that that long distance telephone conversation with the producer assure him that these and many other attractions will play here under his local management.

Among the plays and other stage attractions which are either definitely booked or for which negotiations are well under way by Hugh Hooks Entertainments are "Gypsy," "Bye Bye Birdie," "Sound of Music," "N. Y. Opera Festival," Carlos Montoya, Fred Waring and his Pennsylvanians and Ringling Bros. circus, which played Denver last year under Hooks management.

Harry Zelzer's Romance With McCormick in Chi Is Merely Mathematics

Chicago, March 14.

Harry Zelzer, local longhair impresario, obviously has a strong yen for the new McCormick Place Theatre on the lake front. He had already booked the Met Opera there for four days in May, and now has taken the house for the returning Moiseyev dance troupe June 5-10.

Zelzer's romance with the new showcase is basically simple economics. The theatre seats 5,000, the most in town and 1,400 more than the Kemper Opera House, where his big attractions have berthed till now. Other points would favor McCormick Place, however. Though it hasn't been tested under fire yet (some finishing touches remain to be done), the theatre reputedly has topnotch acoustics and sightlines.

Zelzer doesn't disclose his bookkeeping, but the last time the Met played the Opera House, in 1958, it had a $10 top for the six performances and the house was scaled to yield somewhere in the vicinity of $140,000. At McCormick Place, obviously, and even with the same top (though it may go to a rumored $12), the gross potential will be substantially improved. The house hadn't been scaled for the Met stand at this writing, however.

Zelzer has been talking additional longhair dates for the new theatre—it wouldn't surprise, for instance, if some ballet docks there anon. The more favorable lake front site, while logical for some powerhouse attractions, doesn't forecast a total abandonment by Zelzer of the Opera House, which figures to remain more suitable for a number of his presentations.

Zelzer uses several downtown theatres from time to time, depending on attractions, but his primary culture domes have been the Opera House and Orchestra Hall, the latter primarily for a tandem series of classical recitals.

Martha Raye-'Cadillac' To Open Ft. Worth Sked

A spring season of four comedies followed by a summer season of seven musicals will begin April 19 at the Casa Manana Theatre, Fort Worth. The first of the straight plays, each running four days, will be Martha Raye in "The Solid Gold Cadillac." Sal Mineo in "Operation Madball" will be presented April 26-29, with "Send Me No Flowers" due May 3-6 and "Marriage-Go-Round" set for May 10-13.

The first of the musicals, scheduled for a three-week run starting May 27, will be "Calamity Jane." The Fort Worth presentation will mark the legit preem of the property, adapted from the 1953 Warner Bros. filmmusical of the same title.

The productions slated to follow "Jane," each for a two-week run, are "Pajama Game," "Wizard of Oz," "High Button Shoes," "Texas Li'l Darlin'," "Show Boat" and a special "Holiday in Mexico' variety show as the season finale, Aug. 28-Sept. 9.

2 'Mattress' Tourers 260G in Red; That's 140G Over Capitalization

The two-company "Once Upon a Mattress" touring venture represents a deficit to date of more than double its capitalization. The productions, financed jointly at $120,000, are in the hole for that amount, plus an estimated $140,000 excess. Thus, the deficit at the present time is figured to be about $260,000.

The financial condition of the enterprise is based on its audited standing as of last Jan. 28, with allowance for estimated subsequent profit. The producers of the two road companies, one playing major cities and the other split-week stands, are Frances Cannon Hersey and Michael Dewell. The two are connected with the National Phoenix Theatre, Inc., from which they obtained the rights to present the touring editions of the musical.

The major city touring troupe, headed by Dody Goodman and Buster Keaton, is principally responsible for the heavy deficit thus far incurred by the venture. That presentation, which folds next Saturday (18) at the end of a three-week Boston stand, had an operating loss of $112,561 as of last Jan. 28. The figure covered 21 weeks of playing time.

In addition to the operating loss, there's an unrecouped production cost of $83,226 for that company. Additional expenses of $250 raised the total deficit on that edition of the musical to $196,037 as of Jan. 28. That amount may be down to about $175,000 when the show is closed as a result of healthy business in Boston, where receipts have been bolstered by Show of the Month Club patronage.

With the closing of the Miss Goodman-Keaton company, some of the time originally slated to be filled by that presentation will be taken over by the other production, costarring Imogene Coca, Edward Everet Horton and King Donovan. The latter troupe, traveling by bus-and-truck had, as of Jan. 28, recouped $7,588 of its $92,077 production cost in a little less than 14½ weeks of touring.

Thus, the end-of-January deficit on the bus-and-truck company was $84,489. Added to the coin to be recouped on the other presentation, that represented a Jan. 28 deficit of $280,524 after the deduction of $2 in miscellaneous income. Affecting a change in the overall figure, besides estimated subsequent operating income, will be previously unreported souvenir program income and the outcome of negotiations for a partial waiver of $14,000 owed the S. Hurok office, which has been booking the major city tour.

Since the bus-and-truck company is scheduled to end its tour next May 27 in Washington, that leaves, including this week, only 11 more weeks of playing time for that entry. It's unlikely the show, during that time, will make back the estimated $140,000 deficit in excess of the investment in the two-company operation. The payment of any debts over the investment in the project is the responsibility of the management in accordance with the standard limited partnership setup under which the venture was financed.

It's possible the backers may be tapped for an additional 10% of their investment, since there's provision for that in the partnership. If the overcall is exercised, the investment would then climb to $132,000. However, as of Jan. 28, the backers had only put up $120,000 and the deficit in excess of that amount was $160,524. It's figured that about $20,000 has been sliced from that figure since the end of January.

Substantial cuts in running expenses of the company now in Boston have been executed through the waiver and/or reduction of cast salaries, various royalties, booking fee and rentals. The bus-and-truck company has also cut costs when necessary by a reduction in the weekly payment to Broadway Theatre Alliance, which is booking the show for split-week subscription stands, a paring of the royalty rights payment and elimination of the $350 weekly expense, also charged by the other production.

Anent the heavy operating losses registered by the major city touring company, $61,510 was dropped in the four-week period from Dec. 19-Jan. 14. The show lost $13,296 the week of Dec. 19-24 in Cleveland and $48,214 the next three weeks in Detroit.

The rights to present "Mattress" throughout the U. S. and Canada during the 1960-61 season were acquired by the National Phoenix, which in exchange for assigning the rights to Miss Hersey and Dewell, is in for a 40% cut of any net profits on the two-company venture. The backers are in for the regular 50% and the management 10%.

The $120,000 basic budget for the enterprise excluded about $40,000 in bonds put up by the producers. Dewell, incidentally, is also listed as one of the backers of the project, with a $66,600 investment. "Mattress," a musical parody of Hans Christian Andersen's "The Princess and the Pea," was originally produced at the Phoenix Theatre, N. Y., in May, 1959, by T. Edward Hambleton, Norris Houghton and William and Jean Eckert.

The offering, with book by Jay Thompson, Marshall Barer and Dean Fuller, music by Mary Rodgers and lyrics by Barer, subsequently moved to Broadway, where it played four different houses prior to closing last July 2. The original production, capitalized at $100,000, recently completed repayment of its investment. The current road companies each pay the original presentation $750 weekly royalty against 5% of the gross.

The National Phoenix, of which Miss Hersey is a vice-president, secretary and director, and Dewell a veepee and a director, was formed in 1958 for the purpose of producing touring shows. During the 1959-60 season, the organization toured "Mary Stuart," which had previously been revived at the Phoenix Theatre, N. Y.

Houghton and Hambleton, founders of the Phoenix operation in Manhattan, are also connected with the national outfit. Houghton, who's no longer involved in the operation of the Phoenix in N. Y., is president and a director, and Hambleton is vice-president, treasurer and a director. Thomas A. T. Jack is assistant secretary and assistant treasurer of the national organization.

Miss Hersey owns 100 shares of capital stock, par value $10 per share, of the National Phoenix. That constitutes approximately 19.1% of the corporation's outstanding stock. None of the other officers or directors own any National Phoenix stock.

See SOMC Underwriting Tour Dates in Boston

Boston, March 14.

Jerome Rosenfeld, founder and president of Boston's Show of the Month Club and its newer New York edition, is embarking on the underwriting of shows for Boston presentation. His success in the presentation of the National Phoenix Theatre touring edition of "Once Upon a Mattress," current at the Colonial, he says, led to the signing of three current Broadway shows for Boston engagements next fall.

The three guaranteed bookings are "Fiorello," "The Miracle Worker" and "Advise and Consent." It will be a return for "Miracle Worker," the original Broadway production which has tried out at the Wilbur last season, but the first local stands for the other two shows. Rosenfeld racked up a $70,000 advance from his Show of the Month Club members before tickets were placed on sale at the Colonial for "Mattress." The musical was originally skedded for two weeks here, but was extended to three.

Toronto YM-YWHA Offers Performing Arts Study

Toronto, March 14.

The Toronto YM-YWHA is emulating N. Y.'s 92d St. ditto with classes in art, drama, Jewish studies, music crafts and the humanites. Drama is headed by Leon Major, who has directed in London as well as Toronto and Montreal.

Harold Sumberg, of the Toronto Symphony, heads the music studies.

COUNCIL OF STOCK THEATRES, INC.

Announces

To All Actors' Agents.....To Stars

and to all others concerned with Summer Theatre Packages.

The members of C.O.S.T. are determined to eliminate the excessive charges which have been added to star package productions by Middlemen Packagers; and to control and raise the quality of productions which we demand as Stock Managers and which is demanded by our audiences.

It was resolved at the C.O.S.T. meeting March 6, 1961:

1. That members of C.O.S.T. will produce their own star package attractions this coming summer season.
2. That the Outside Packager, who has an attraction of interest to us, must work with a C.O.S.T. member as co-producer and adhere to the C.O.S.T. regulations.

We request the cooperation of Actors' Agents and Stars. Our mutual interest is in presenting good productions within our budgets. We have no interest in being theatre landlords to unqualified Middlemen Packagers.

For further information phone: Pl. 2-2504, Rowena Stevens, President, C.O.S.T.

Or any of the following listed C.O.S.T. members.

Theatres Listed Alphabetically	Managers	N. Y. Phones
1. Avondale Summer Theatre Indianapolis, Indiana	Wm. Tregoe 6209 Quebec Dr., Hollywood 26, Calif.
2. Bucks County Playhouse New Hope, Pa.	Michael Ellis New Hope, Pa.	Ci. 5-4157
3. Cape Playhouse Dennis, Mass.	Charles Mooney 22 East 60	Pl. 5-1503
4. Charlotte Theatre Festival Charlotte, No. Carolina	Ben Kapen 141-68 85th St., Jamaica, L. I.	Ax. 7-3253
5. Cherry County Playhouse Traverse City, Michigan	Ruth Bailey Spring Hill Lane, Cincinnati, Ohio
6. Chicago Tenthouse Theatre Chicago, Illinois	Herb Rogers 45 East End Ave.	Re. 4-6187
7. Coconut Grove Playhouse 3500 Main Highway	Owen Phillips Miami, Florida
8. Edgewater Beach Playhouse Chicago, Illinois	Arthur Morse (Attorney) 33 N. LaSalle St., Chicago, Ill.
9. Famous Artists Playhouse Syracuse, N. Y.	Murray Bernthal 416 S. Salina St., Syracuse, N. Y.
10. Falmouth Playhouse Coonamessett, Mass.	Mrs. George Gordon 125 Bay State Rd., Boston, Mass.
11. Hunterdon Hills Playhouse Clinton, N. J.	Carl Leswing Box 564, Clinton, N. J.	Ha. 9-9573
12. Ivoryton Playhouse Ivoryton, Conn.	Milton Stiefel Hotel Wellington	Ci. 7-3900
13. Kenley Players Warren, Ohio	John Kenley Warren, Ohio
14. Lake Whalom Playhouse Fitchburg, Mass.	Guy Palmerton 210 West 55	Ci. 6-2280
15. Lakes Region Playhouse Gilford, New Hampshire	Alton Wilkes Park Wald Hotel	Ci. 7-5590
16. Lakewood Summer Theatre Skowhegan, Maine	Henry Richards 200 East 36	Or. 9-4963
17. Ogunquit Playhouse Ogunquit, Maine	John Lane 136 East 55	Pl. 1-5363
18. Papermill Playhouse Millburn, N. J.	Frank Carrington Millburn N. J.	Mu. 2-7487
19. Playhouse-in-the-Park Philadelphia, Pa.	Ethelyn Thrasher 58 West 57	Lt. 1-0610
20. Pocono Playhouse Mountainhome, Pa.	Rowena Stevens Shelton Towers (Office 432)	Pl. 2-2504
21. Sombrero Playhouse 4747 No. 7th St., Phoenix, Ariz.	Richard Charlton Phoenix, Arizona
22. Spa Summer Theatre Saratoga Springs, N. Y.	John Huntington 433 West 21	Ch. 3-1245
23. Tappen Zee Playhouse Nyack, N. Y.	Bruce Becker 123 Waverly Place	Gr. 7-4464
24. Westport Country Playhouse Westport, Conn.	Jim McKenzie 331 Madison Ave.	Mu. 2-7487

MEMBERS OF C.O.S.T. NOT OPERATING AT PRESENT DATE

25. John Larson 244 West 16	Former Theatre:	Sacandaga Park, N. Y.	Ch. 2-6735
26. Ron Rawson 16 West 55	Former Theatre:	East Hampton, L. I.	Ci. 7-1381
27. Stanley Waren 465 West End Ave.	Former Theatre:	Atlantic Beach, L. I.	Tr. 7-3770

Smallscale Phoenix Grand Opera For Culture-Starved Longhairs

By THOMAS E. O'HAFFEY

Phoenix, March 14.

Grand opera in a 450-seat playhouse, with an 11-piece orchestra! That is the audacity of impresario Richard Charlton at the Sombrero here. Add that his repertory combines the Italianate "Butterfly" and the turgid Russian work, "Boris Godounov." But if the proscenium is too confining, the acoustics unsatisfactory, and $6.60 a ticket high for Arizona, the productions of both operas yet manage to be impressive—at least to these culture-starved natives.

Three performances of each opera were given, both in the English language. Anyone even remotely familiar with the musical, cultural and technical problems of grand opera must stand in some awe of this daring and, despite the flaws and hazards, exciting community contribution. Actually it is a second try with opera at the dramatic house.

In both productions, the sharp direction of Van Rosing, sets by Jack McCullagh and the lighting by Conrad Penrod are fluid and imaginative.

Maralin Niska, as the gentle, fragile "Madama Butterfly" gives a touching reading oozing pathos and sensitivity. John Guarnierl, as Pinkerton, the cad, and Sylvia Stitch as Suzuki the servant are excellent. Ned Romero is properly officious as the U. S. consul.

Excellent as the cast of both operas are, resourceful as the direction, lighting and sets, under the described circumstances, the crashing impact of all was the magnificent performance of Jerome Hines from the Met Opera in "Godounov." Powerful, dramatic, rich bass of the brooding, grief-stricken czar ignites an artistic glow which nullifies the other existing deficiencies. His penetrating death scene is so effective that it left the local longhairs stunned.

Gilbert Russell projects a convincing if screaming Prince Suiske. Tenor Keith Wyatt as the pretender displays a strong potential for future roles. Justeen Widoff is believable as the flirtatious innkeeper.

John Gurney, former Met singer, who came from retirement for this opera, gives stature to the role Pimen.

Recession Axes Artists Equity Assn. Spring Ball

The broadening recession has forced Artists Equity Assn. to abandon plans for its annual bal masque, the largest of these type events held in New York. Although a steady profit maker since its inception 15 years ago, the ball has had a gradual decrease in ticket sales during the past few years. Higher costs, coming on top of the sales decline, forced shelving of plans.

The Artists Equity ball, usually held in the spring, was a haven for designers. New ideas in costuming and sets were frequently expressed in the events. Nudes, both male and female, were also liberally exhibited. The Art Students League abandoned their soirees the previous year.

Denver Concert Series Won't Sell Single Admish

Denver, March 14.

Milton E. Meyer Jr., Denver attorney, will head a new non-profit corporation known as Community Concert Assn. of Denver, which plans to bring diversified concert attractions here.

Dorothy Kirsten is scheduled to be the first artist presented on first series of five concerts to be offered as a package at a yet undisclosed but assured modest admission price. An intensive advance ticket sale will start early in April, according to Meyer, and only seats for the entire series will be sold—there will be no box-office sale of single concerts for any of the attractions.

Guild Amer. Rep

Continued from page 67

speech, though the former might have lifted the swelling applause into an ovation. The failure to greet the first-night audience at the closing curtain and thereby highlight the auspicious start of ANTA's extended goodwill itinerary was attributed to timid stagemanship (if that's not self-contradictory).

Lobby comment lyrically lauded the performances of Misses Hayes and Havoc, but found the third act of "Skin" a bit stodgy and repetitiously wordy. The experimental nature of the tour was pointed up by members of the cast who said the audience response is being carefully appraised. If the company clicks, they said, the State Dept. will negotiate for added dates in Moscow. Also possible is an extensive repeat in Latin America.

Apart from the ostensible success of Wilder's curtain-raiser, the boxoffice pull was little short of phenomenal. Tickets for all six performances were sold out four hours they went on sale a full week before the company planed into Madrid. Over-the-curb sales at hefty markups were reported.

Shows on B'way

Continued from page 68

Tartuffe

ticularly for the Comedie's venerable "star," Louis Seigner. In the title role the actor projects a majestic fraud, alternately humble and bold, pious and lecherous, a completely fascinating humbug totally believable as well as extremely funny.

The rest of the company, is also fine. Annie Ducaux, as the elegant matron who sees through Tartuffe and, eventually, serves to unmask him, gives a rich, spirited performance. In the seduction scene, she also manages to suggest something of the comic humors which Margaret Dumont used to bring to her bouts with Marx Brothers in such films as "A Night At The Opera" and "Duck Soup." Also noteworthy are Lise Delamare, Francois Chaumette, Micheline Boudet, Jacques Charon and Georges Descrieres.

In addition to playing the central role, Seigner also directed the physically handsome production.

Anby.

Funds Accumulate for Tyrone Guthrie Rep. Co.

Minneapolis, March 14.

Supporters of the Tyrone Guthrie repertory theatre disclosed last week that they have passed the $1,000,000 mark in their drive to raise $1,900,000 to finance the showplace's construction. The theatre foundation has set May as its deadline for reaching its goal which will permit construction to start this spring. The theatre is scheduled to open a year from now.

A Feb. 7 benefit concert by the Limeliters at the U. of Minnesota netted $3,681 for the theatre foundation, pushing contributions over the $1,000,000 figure.

FOR SALE

SHUBERT THEATRE IN CINCINNATI, OHIO

to a purchaser intending to use the property as a Legitimate Theatre.

REPLY TO
Box V-2113, VARIETY
154 W. 46th St., New York 36

WANTED

Famous, well-known writer, with references, for exciting, shocking, provocative, thrilling life story.

Answer Box V-2121, VARIETY
154 W. 46th St., New York 36

PROFESSIONAL CARDS HONORED
Theatrical and TV Make Up • All Leading Cosmetic Lines • Imported & Domestic Perfumes • Distinctive Fountain Service.
FREE DELIVERY OPEN SUNDAYS
"The Drug Store of the Stars"
HADLEY REXALL DRUGS
1187 6th Ave., Cor. 46 St., NEW YORK
Telephone PLaza 7-0022

$5,000,000 TOM'W NIGHT

An All Time Record-Breaking Broadway Gross

THE

Tom'w Night (521st Perf.) a $5,000,000 Gross Attained

SOUND

In 521 Performances, 785,000 People Have Seen It

OF

550,000 Copies of Sheet Music Sold

MUSIC

875,000 Columbia Original Cast Albums Sold
2,000,000 "Single" Records Sold

NEW YORK
Lunt-Fontanne Theatre

NATIONAL COMPANY ON TOUR
Currently at Riviera Theatre, Detroit

LONDON
Opening May 18 at Palace Theatre

AUSTRALIA
Opening August 15

Shows Abroad

Continued from page 68

On the Brighter Side

they make the most of the mixed bag of lyrics and sketches, scoring most as a couple of love-birds from different strata and in a "Table Talk" sketch.

In solo items, Baxter brings his w.k. tele impressions for solid results in "Night of a Few Stars," offering travesties of Ralph Richardson, tv emcee Bruce Forsyth, Edith Evans. He also tilts at the drunken inclinations of playwright Brendan Behan, also for good results, but is not so successful in a hackneyed style of skit on Polaris submarine outcry, despite its localized slant. His "Crusoe '61" sketch needs a stronger tag.

Miss Marsden scores as a femme trying to cope with several ringing telephone booths, finally getting through to call the fire brigade to her own home. Her work with Pip Hinton and Judy Carne as Three Peeresses in the House of Lords, in search of the "ladies" room is probably their highspot.

Dance numbers, staged by Alfred Rodrigues, bring color and speed, have ingenuity, and reflect the talents of Greta Hamby, Una Stubbs, Amanda Barry, Bob Stevenson, Victor Duret, etc. "Balloons" and "Chairs" are nod-worthy.

Musically, the show isn't overstrong vocally, but numbers are put over pleasingly, with the femmes scoring, both Miss Hinton and Miss Carne proving names to note for revue and musicals. Miss Hinton's merry peppy style is best in "Boiling Point," while Miss Carne has the right pertness for "Little Instant Me," a takeoff of the age of instant teas and soups, etc.

The settings hit the right standard of modernity, the costumes meet all requirements, and James Gilbert's staging is assured. The revue can be faulted mainly on its mixed-bag of content and on the sameness of many numbers, all in the strain of intimate revue over the years and not aiming at newness and offbeat style. Gord.

Gorgonio

Paris, March 1.

Claude Sainval presentation of comedy in three acts by Tullio Pinelli, adapted by Claude Santelli. Staged by Claude Sainval; settings and costumes, Jean-Denis Malcles. Stars Jacques Dusmesnil; features Francoise Deldick, Bernard Noel, Roger Crouzet, Marcel-Andre. Opened Feb. 24, '61, at the Comedie des Champs-Elysees, Paris; $3 tops.

Gorgonio ..... Jacques Dusmesnil
Vespina ..... Francoise Deldick
Enee ..... Bernard Noel
Apollinaire ..... Roger Crouzet
Doctor ..... Marcel-Andre
Rose ..... Jenny Orleons

A 60-year-old widower, chaste since his wife's death 25 years before and always a paragon of virtue, goes berserk over the 19-year-old, loose-morals wife of his faithful servant. He becomes her lover, supports her family, and sells his belongings to run away with her. But his age, her lack of care for him, and his children's fight to save him and their inheritance, brings on his death by a heart attack.

Perhaps what "Gorgonio" needs is Mediterranean exurberance and a Rabelaisian air. In this production, however, it seems plodding and discursive. The ideas of youth and age, excessive chastity, and love and familial devotions are rarely incorporated into the actions and characters.

Jacques Dusmesnil lacks the human warmth and zeal for the long brooding widower-turned lover, and Francoise Deldick should have more voluptuousness and femininity to make the lethal charmer's callousness affecting. The sets do not quite bring it the warmth and zest of Italy. It all adds up to doubtful boxoffice. Mosk.

TOM WHEATLEY
Currently Featured in
"ALL THE WAY HOME"

"INVEST in Mutual Funds? Sure I do, I'm looking towards the future.

"I had never invested and don't know much about the stock market. But in a Fund, your money is supervised by professional investment managers. You have to consider the costs, risks and advantages of Mutual Funds.

"And in investing, use a broker who is familiar with the financial problems faced by actors — J. Bermant & Co."

For More Information, Write or Call Today
J. BERMANT & CO.
Rm. 1202, 19 W. 44th St., N.Y. MU 7-2815

RENT OR SALE
SUMMER THEATRE
GRISTMILL PLAYHOUSE
Andover, New Jersey
Seats 800 Stage 30'x50'
EDITH PIERSON ST 6-5420

Touring Shows

(March 12-26)

Andersonville Trial—Strand, Modesto (13); Civic, San Jose (14); Harvey, Bakersfield (15); Memorial, Sacramento (16-17); Arcadia High School, Phoenix (20); Temple of Music & Art, Tucson (22); Liberty Hall, El Paso (23-24); Eetor High School, Odessa (25); Municipal, Lubbock (26).

Carnival (tryout) — National, Wash. (13-25).

Comedie Francaise—Lisner, Wash. (13); Academy of Music, Phily (14); McCarter, Princeton (15); Hancock, Boston (17-19)

Far Country (tryout—Wilbur, Boston (13-25).

Fiorello (2d Co.)—Strand, Albany (13); Capitol, Binghamton (14); Lafayette, Buffalo (15); Aud., Rochester (16-18); Shubert, Cincy (20-25).

Five Finger Exercise—Geary, S.F. (13-25).

Flower Drum Song—Shubert, Chi (13-25).

Happiest Girl in the World (tryout)—Shubert, Philly (13-25).

Hostage—Civic, Chi (13-25).

J.B.—Memorial, Louville (13-15); High School, Huntsville (16); U. of Alabama, Tuscaloosa (17); City Aud., Pensacola (18); Florida State U., Tallahasee (20-21), Marina, Panama City, Fla. (22); Temple, Birmingham (23-24); Lanier High School, Montgomery (25).

La Plume de Ma Tante—Riviera Hotel, LV (12-26).

Majority of One—Hanna, Cleve. (13-18), Nixon, Pitt (20-25).

Mark Twain Tonight—Oklahoma State U, Stillwater (13); Northeastern State U., Tahlequah, Okla. (15); Stephens College, Columbia, Mo. (17); Kansas State College, Pittsburgh, Kan. (20); Southwest Texas State College, San Marcos, Tex. (22); Music Hall, Houston (25).

Music Man (2d Co.)—Ford's, Balto (13-25).

My Fair Lady (2d Co.)—Shubert, Boston (13-25).

Once Upon a Mattress (bus-and-truck) —Loew's, Evansville, Ind. (13); Orpheum, Springfield, Ill. (14); Orpheum, Davenport, Ia. (15); Paramount, Waterloo, Ia. (16); Coronado, Rockford, Ill. (17); Shrine Mosque, Peoria (18-19); Rivoli, Toledo (21-22); Sexton High School, Lansing (23); Morris Municipal, South Bend (24-25).

Pleasure of His Company—Loew's, Canton, O. (13); Veterans Memorial, Columbus (14); Paramount, Anderson, Ind. (15); Keith Albee, Huntington, W. Va. (16); Municipal, Charleston, W. Va. (17); Syria Mosque, Pittsburgh (18); Loew's Poli, Worcester (20); Capitol, New London, Conn. (21); Bushnell Aud., Hartford (22); Shubert, New Haven (23-25).

Raisin in the Sun—Blackstone, Chi (13-25).

Sound of Music (2d Co.)—Riviera, Det. (13-25).

ATTENTION: PRODUCERS DIRECTORS AGENTS:
BROADWAY AND TV PRODUCERS SHOWCASE
An Original MUSICAL COMEDY
"GOOD-BYE-MOM"
Book by HERB FISHER Music and Lyrics by BOB CAESAR
OGONTZ Playhouse, 6035 Ogontz Ave., Philadelphia, Pa.
Fri, Sat. and Sun., March 24, 25, 26
You are cordially invited to be our guest to see our show.
For information and tickets write or phone.
MR. HERB FISHER, 1831 Danforth St., Phila. 15, Pa.
Phone PI 2-5617

Denver Post to Present 'Carousel' as 28th Annual

Denver, March 14.

"Carousel" will be the Denver Post's 28th annual week-long cuffo-admission presentation in Cheesman Park here next July. The venture is financed entirely by Helen G. Bonfils, major stockholder and secretary-treasurer of the Post, who was represented on Broadway earlier this season as co-producer of "A Thurber Carnival." She's the daughter of the late Fred G. Bonfils, co-founder of the paper with Harry Tammen.

Post executive A. G. Birch, producer of the paper's past 27 productions, will again serve in that capacity. Local non-professionals will be employed in the show, scheduled for the week of July 17.

Off-Broadway

Continued from page 66

Five Posts in the Market Place

is the latter's largely unexplored metamorphosis into a sympathetic figure, and his subsequent decision to goad the youths into killing him, sufficiently explored or credibly presented.

Aside from the obvious message that a guerrilla's lot is not a happy one, and some sincerely presented "to resist or not to resist" arguments, the point of view is cloudy, the polemics ambiguous and the dialog to-heavy with pretentious poetry and precious phrases. "Do I hear nine-year old feet?" or "that I could send you a garland of my thoughts" make it pretty heavy going on the audience and actors.

As the guerrilla leader-bridegroom, Philip Abbott is impressively commanding, but Joyce West is strained as his girl. Earl Dossey as a Greek chorus-type commentator, works hard introducing scenes, recites poetry and plays several parts, with a minimal change of interpretation. Walter Flanagan is strong and convincing as the leader's realistic friend, Barbara Ames is passable as the girl who loves him.

Joseph Boley and Richard Abbott turn in strikingly distinctive cameos as the prosecutor who after seven years has a change of heart, and a comissar-type deputy, respectively. Sidney Walters' direction is cursory, and the Gate's two-level stage has been utilized appropriately by Herbert Senn and Helen Pond, with effective lighting by Richard Nelson. Jaal.

The Kreutzer Sonata

Patt Stone presentation of two-act drama by Leo Tolstoy, adapted by and starring Roderick Lovell and Hannah Watt from Aylmer Maude's translation. Staged by Louis Lentin. Opened Feb. 15, '61, at Maidman Playhouse, N.Y.; $4.90 top weekends, $4.60 weekdays.

Leo Tolstoy's tale of marital blitz, "The Kreutzer Sonata," has been adapted for the stage by actors Roderick Lovell and Hannah Watt, from a translation by Aylmer Maude and is being presented at the Maidman Playhouse, N.Y., with the British duo both narrating and performing the piece unassisted.

Lovell and Watt, Mr. and Mrs., offstage as well as on, are acute performers. They demonstrate a nimble use speech and nuance shifting a range of emotion to keep "Kreutzer Sonata" moving easily along its sardonic course. Whether she is gloating over the trickery she employed to catch him or he is deploring the fits of jealousy that are making his life unbearable, they display an absorbing technique.

After a while, however, an audience can tire of Tolstoy's elaboration of his few basic points. It becomes redundant.

The story, set in Moscow circa 1880, follows the downhill course of a marriage from courtship to bloody finale. After some preliminary comment on the motivations and procedures behind marriage, Tolstoy proceeds to declaim his theories on love, sex, jealousy, hatred and deception, as revealed in the relationship of his ill-fated partners. Despite aforementioned merits "Sonata" eventually sags under its own weight.

Louis Lentin has staged the drama simply and effectively, placing the focus squarely on the articulation of the often-biting, sometimes-amusing dialog. His use of props and sparse scenery, including a samovar and period clothing, keeps the production clear and uncluttered. Kali.

Legit Bits

Ethelyn R. Thrasher, managing director of the John B. Kelly Playhouse, Philadelaphia, has opened N.Y. offices for the theatre.

George T. Delacorte, president of the Dell Publishing Co., has donated $150,000 to the N.Y. City Park Dept. for the building of a 2,500-seat outdoor theatre in Central Park.

A charitable fund of $122,826 has reached the New York Community Trust from the estate of Paul N. Turner, chief counsel for Actor's Equity from 1913 until his death in 1950. A disbursement has also gone to the Actor's Fund of America.

Scenic designer Robert Paine Grose is in N.Y. for conferences in preparation for the opening of the Berkshire Playhouse, Stockbridge, Mass., which he manages with his director-wife, Joan White.

John Effrat will present "Talent '61," under the auspices of the Broadway Show League, April 25 at a Broadway theatre to be announced.

The American Theatre Wing will produce a series of plays next fall under the patronage of its president, Helen Menken, as a showcase for its student body. Miss Menken is currently offering "Three Modern Japanese Plays" at the off-Broadway Players Theatre, N.Y.

The New American Library is publishing this month paper back editions of "A Raisin in the Sun," by Lorraine Hansberry; "The Dud Avocado," by Elaine Dundy (Mrs. Kenneth Tynan), "Too Late the Phalarope," by Alan Paton, and "The Grass Harp" and "A Tree of Night," by Truman Capote.

Arlene Fontana has succeeded Elaine Dunn as femme lead in the touring "Flower Drum Song," currently at the Shubert, Chicago. Miss Dunn withdrew from the Rodgers and Hammerstein musical to become the femme lead in the forthcoming road edition of "Bye Bye Birdie."

Music, a new magazine to be issued with hard covers every other month, appears in April. Publisher is Musical Merchandise Review's Vincent L. McKernin. Jay S. Harrison left the N. Y. Herald-Trib to become exec editor.

Nancy Andrews has withdrawn from the off-Broadway production of "Threepenny Opera" to succeed Juanita Hall next Monday (20) in the touring production of "Flower Drum Song," now in Chicago.

Helen Hayes, overseas with the Theatre Guild-American Repertory Co., was presented with the Order of Queen Isabella, the Catholic, by Spanish Foreign Minister Fernando Maria Castiella following the troupe's opening performance March 7 at the Teatro Espanol, Madrid.

Thomas Hughes, who succeeded Charles Meeker as managing director of the State Fair and State Fair Musicals, Dallas, is in New York to cast for his summer productions. He's accompanied by State Fair gen. mgr. Jim Stewart.

The first of 10 successive Monday night directors' seminars for "promising young professionals" was launched last Monday night (13) at the Sheridan Square Playhouse, N. Y.

Steve Allen is to star in the Katherine and Dale Eunson comedy, "Southern Comfort," which Jed Harris plans producing and directing for a Broadway opening next fall after a Coast tryout.

Lawrence Witchel, an associate of legit pressagent Howard Atlee, is set to do an "as told to" memoir based on the life of Yiddish actress Celia Adler, who's already had a two-volume memoir published in Yiddish and serialized for two years by the Jewish Daily Forward.

Don Strong will succeed Richard Kuch in "Camelot" beginning April 6.

Marian Mercer, a singer in "Fiorello," will take over March 21 the title role of "Little Mary Sunshine," the off Broadway musical at the Orpheum Theatre, N.Y. She will succeed Eileen Brennan, who is withdrawing to play Anne Sullivan in the touring company of "The Miracle Worker."

Julie Bovasso will play two parts in the Norman Twain-Helen Kamber off-Broadway production of Jack Richardson's "Galgenhumor," due in April.

Nancy Andrews will succeed Juanita Hall in "Flower Drum Song," the Rodgers and Hammerstein musical in its 17th week at the Shubert Theatre, Chicago.

Manny Davis will be company manager and Allan C. Dalzell advance p.a. for the touring edition of "Gypsy," which opens March 29 Rochester, with Ethel Merman starring.

Donald Albery is arranging with Robert E. Griffith and Harold S. Prince to present "Fiorello" on West End in the fall. Peter Coe will direct and Sean Kenny will design the production.

Hal Linden has succeeded Charles Braswell in a small role and as leading man Keith Andes' standby in "Wildcat."

Margo Jones

Continued from page 67

out the U.S. where professional productions are presented are invited to submit nominations for the award, which will be made at an Actors Fund benefit performance nearest Feb. 15 of each year. The medal was designed by Prof. Edward Bearden, of Southern Methodist U., and the undisclosed amount of the cash award is to be used by the recipient toward the production of a new play.

A pamphlet is to be distributed to theatres and theatre groups throughout the U.S., explaining the award and detailing the career of Miss Jones, who died July 24, 1955, at the age of 42.

THEATRE MANAGEMENT COURSE
4th Annual Course Sponsored By the Musical Arena Theatres Association

Consists of:
1. Payroll preparation
2. Union contracts and regulations
3. Box office procedure
4. House management
5. Office procedure
6. Royalty contracts
7. Production
8. Promotion and publicity
9. Casting

Course of instruction for prospective theatre personnel. Purpose of these classes is to provide a trained pool of available and interested personnel for stock theatre companies.

Four-week course given Saturday mornings, 9:30 a.m. to 1.30 p.m., April 8, 15, 22 and 29.

Cost of course $50.00 including all illustrative material. For information and registration write MUSICAL ARENA THEATRES ASSOCIATION, c/o Lutz & Carr, 122 E. 42 St., New York 17, N. Y., or call MU 2-1197.

WEST 47 ST.—NR. 8TH AVE. NEW YORK
5 ROOM APT.—$145.
NEWLY DECORATED
MR. FITZPATRICK — TR 7-3300

CONTACT MAN — FINANCIAL GROUP. WORKING IN ENTERTAINMENT FIELD. SEEK MAN WITH PRODUCER, AGENT AND PROMOTIONAL CONTACTS TO COOPERATE ON PARTICIPATION BASIS.
BOX V-2115, VARIETY
154 W. 46th St., New York 36

WANTED
BOOKING REPRESENTATIVE for national concert-theater management. Experience essential. Must travel. Salary open.
Box V-2117, VARIETY
154 W. 46th St., New York 36, N. Y.

Actor, Singer, Producer ?
YOU NEED PUBLICITY AND WE CAN GET IT FOR YOU! The expert services of a creative and dynamic publicity team can make the difference. We tailor our program to fit your special needs. Consult us at no cost.
Write: TELLER-LEVINSOHN ASSOCIATES
50 E. 42nd St., New York 17, N. Y.

OUTSTANDING REGIONAL THEATRE
(Professional Company)
Requires Publicity and Sales Director
Year-round position
Please furnish qualifications and minimum salary consideration
Box V-2123, VARIETY
154 West 46th Street, New York 36, N. Y.

SAN FRANCISCO — MARCH 1, 2, 3, 1961 . . .

THOUSANDS TURNED AWAY

Because:

THE SAN FRANCISCO CHRONICLE Friday, March 3, 1961

Borge Is Back, Zanier Than Ever

By Dean Wallace

Victor Borge, who had become as funny as any man can possibly become by his own efforts, evidently was still not satisfied, so he called in help. The result is that he, with the assistance of his new partner, Leonid Hambro, is now more excruciating funny.

Hambro, incidentally, is no slouch at humor himself. Regularly the orchestral pianist with the New York Philharmonic, he has made somewhat the same transformation as Borge — from concert pianist to virtuoso of buffoonery. He was first introduced to Wednesday night's Masonic Temple audience as one of the great Dane's long-lost piano pupils; but it soon became apparent that he was really more than an apprentice in the master's art of splitting people's sides.

Their buildup was based on the Blue Danube Waltz, and afer a few long-armed swipes at Van Cliburn, Tin Pan Alley, and just about any music that happened to be lying around, they eventually worked themselves and everyone else in the house up to a sufficient pitch of frenzy to tackle Liszt's Second Hungarian Rhapsody.

Tackle it they did, like a pair of mad surgeons performing an appendectomy on an elephant. They played on the piano, under it, alongside of it, in each other's hair, and finally around in a circle, a la musical chairs. As one might say, they played Liszt—and Liszt lost.

For his solo shots, Borge hauled out the trustiest item in his arsenal: Inflationary language, in which wonderful becomes two-derful, Timbuctu is Timbuc-three, etc.; and Phonetic Punctuation, guaranteed to send the most sober-sided listener into screaming fits.

This guy just doesn't quit. Mind you, after seeing him a dozen times, one is still completely at his mercy, and if you're still able to hang onto your wits by intermission time it's entirely your fault—not his.

"HILARIOUS PERFORMER—INTELLIGENT HYSTERIA."

STANLEY EICHELBAUM
San Francisco Examiner
March 2

"WOWS 'EM—FITS OF JOY."

PAUL SPEEGLE
San Francisco News Call Bulletin
March 2

Concert Management

CAMPBELL ARTISTS, INC.

George Campbell
Southbury, Connecticut
COngress 4-8200

Returning Again APRIL 7-8; SAN FRANCISCO OPERA HOUSE

Literati

D. C. Post's Newsweek Buy

In an $8,000,000 deal, the Washington Post Co. last week acquired control of Newsweek mag by purchasing the 59% interest held by the Vincent Astor Foundation. Consummation of the transaction ended a flock of conflicting reports that control of the 28-year-old publication would pass to such varied bidders as John Hay Whitney, the McCall Corp. and Sam Newhouse.

The foundation, which revealed the sale, also disclosed that the Washington Post is willing to purchase the holdings of other Newsweek shareholders on the same basis as the 59% block was acquired. Former N. Y. Governor Averell Harriman reportedly holds about a 12% interest while lesser amounts are in the hands of such individuals as Malcolm Muir, board chairman and editor-in-chief of Newsweek.

There are said to be around 300,000 Newsweek shares outstanding. Current quotes place the bid price at about $45. However, the Washington Post is believed to have paid a little more than that figure. The mag, established as News-Week, in 1933 by Thomas J. C. Martyn, was merged with another mag known as Today in 1937.

Edited by Raymond Moley, Today was founded in 1933 under the aegis of the Messrs. Astor and Harriman, among others. Upon consolidation, the two publications took the tag of Newsweek. Its circulation as of Jan 1 was 1,442,825, second only to Time in the newsmag field.

Masterminding the purchase was Philip L. Graham, 45-year-old prexy of the Washington Post. At a press conference at Newsweek's New York office Friday (10) he said he would merge the mag with the Washington Post Co. Newsweek holds a 45% interest in San Diego radio and tv station KOGO. Similarly, the Post Co. owns radio-tv station WTOP in Washington as well as WJXT, Jacksonville, Fla. He also noted that Harriman has expressed interest in selling his 40,000 Newsweek shares.

On the editorial front Osborn Elliott has been upped from managing editor to editor. He replaces John Denson who recently resigned to become editor of the N. Y. Herald Tribune.

Graham, who could be called Washington's boy wonder, wed Katherine Meyer, daughter of the late Washington Post owner Eugene Meyer, in 1940. He was named publisher in 1946 after a brief stint as associate publisher. Under his astute guidance the once struggling Post moved into the black and in 1954 it merged with the Times-Herald to make it the lone paper in the D. C. morning field.

'Molly Goldberg' In Spades

Gertrude Berg's autobiog, "Molly and Me," due via McGraw-Hill in April, is being preceded by the paperback reprint of her "Molly Goldberg Jewish Cookbook" from Pyramid. It was originally published by Doubleday in 1955 but Pyramid held it to coincide with the autobiography.

Paradoxically, actress - author Gertrude Berg couldn't click with a legit dramatization of her famed radio-tv "Molly Goldberg" character but has been a sizeable hit on Broadway and on the road as costar with Sir Cedric Hardwicke in "A Majority of One," the play by Leonard Spigelgass.

Western's Addition?

Odyssey Press Inc. is reported about to be acquired by Western Pub Co. on a stock-swap basis. Odyssey is a college textbook house.

This is in line with the trend the past two or three years for mergers and additions, especially with publishing houses publicly listed and with an eye to longrange educational book programs.

Gearing 'Em to the Headlines

"The Seizing of the Santa Maria," by Henry A. Zeiger, is a sample of gearing paperback publications to topical events. Popular Library's book was rolling off the presses as the pirated ship first pulled into Recife, Brazil.

In like manner Zeiger's "The Case Against Adolf Eichmann" was one of the first books to appear after the Nazi was apprehended.

In the same idiom, Capt. Henrique Galvao, who seized the Portuguese liner Santa Maria, has signed a contract with World for his life story, planned for early fall '61 publication. Book will contain a manifesto of the "Iberian Revolutionary Movement," in which Galvao figures as a prominent leader. Revolution's objective is overthrow of the Salazar government in Portugal and Franco's Spain.

Cosmo's Fiction Retrospective

With the present (March) issue, Cosmopolitan flies its Diamond Jubilee pennant. Readers learn it was founded in Rochester, N. Y., in 1886, sold three years later to one John B. Walker who forced circulation up to 250,000. Then in 1905 William Randolph Hearst, spreading from newspapers into magazines, acquired Cosmo and, 18 months later, had it selling over 1,000,000 monthly.

Harrison Fisher covergirls, once practically Cosmo's trademark, started in 1907. In 1925 a weakling, Hearst's International, was merged into Cosmo. The modern book has been characterized by bulking its circulation via the newsstands and adopting a "central theme" for every issue. In the latter connection 75 years spelled out "diamonds." Hence the front cover of John Wayne's cutie daughter Alisa (aged four) wearing a fortune in sparklers borrowed from Cartier's for the photograph and an inside text on how the diamond market operates.

In the same thematic vein Park Avenue is explored on the reasoning that it is the world's most "cosmopolitan" street. As to that, it may at least be conceded that those living and working on Park Avenue have more pressagents per capita than almost any other street, likely to be mentioned. Indeed nowadays one wonders if any magazine could make deadline without the good offices of pressagents and commercial photographers.

Cosmo is infusing a good deal of updated energies into its monthly issues and at 75 the bare fact of longevity must be respected. In reprising some of its name fiction from yesteryear, Ernest Hemingway, Somerset Maugham, S. S. Van Dine, Sinclair Lewis, Pearl Buck, Fannie Hurst, John Hersey, et al. the drop of names is impressive, though such names are not nowadays part of the regular "central theme" blueprinting, and lovers of fiction must sadly remark Cosmo's re-play of an essentially past practice.

Even so, the March issue is highly diverting, not least the lookback at ad-copy in the days of greater innocence, when ladies' suits retailed for $5. Land.

S. A. Mags Sue N. Y. C.

Five publishers and a magazine distributor, which filed damage claims totalling $600,000 against the City of New York last week, asserted that they would resort to court action if a settlement of the claims were not reached. Their claims stemmed from court orders obtained by the city during December and January which restrained certain publishers and distributors from handling magazines that allegedly "contribute significantly" to juvenile delinquency.

Filing the claims were Vee & Em Inc., Emengee Publications, Gala Magazines, Magtab Publishing Corp., Splendid Publications Inc. and Liberty News Distributors Inc. They contended that the order had deprived them of their property without due process of law.

Winchell Returning

As soon as N. Y. Daily Mirror editor Glen Neville got the wire from Walter Winchell, in Scottsdale, Ariz., where he has been recuperating with his wife, June, that the columnist will resume his pillar April 3. He put the news in a box on Page 2.

Neville now has word that Winchell plans to leave the Arizona retreat for Hollywood on March 22, to participate in some Damon Runyon Canver Fund charity, and starting filing from the Coast, but the April 3 teeoff remains. He has been out of the Mirror since Nov. 17 because of illness.

Lee Mortimer, who had been subbing, returns to his Tuesday column, and Mel Heimer, who was doing a supplementary Saturday column, may continue that. WW remains on his five-a-week schedule.

Publishing Stocks

(As of March 14, 1961, closing)

Allyn & Bacon (AS)	37	..
American Book (AS)	65	— 3
Book of Month (NY)	31	+ 3¼
Conde Nast (NY)	16	— ⅝
Crowell-Collier (NY)	49⅛	+ 1⅜
Curtis Pub. Co. (NY)	9⅞	+ ⅜
Grolier (OC)	63½	— 1½
Harc't, Brace (OC)	38¾	— 1½
Hearst (OC)	12½	— ¼
Holt, R&W. (NY)	65½	+ 7½
L.A. Times Mirror (OC)	42	+ 4
Macfadden (AS)	9¾	..
Macmillan (OC)	78	+ 2
McCall (NY)	48⅛	— 1¾
McGraw-Hill (NY)	119¾	— ¾
New Yorker (OC)	115	— 3
Pocket Books	38	— 1
Prentice-Hall (OC)	44	+ 2⅛
Ran'm House (OC)	46¾	— 1¾
Scott Foreman (OC)	29¾	..
Time Inc. (OC)	97½	+ ½
H. W. Sams (OC)	46⅛	— 1⅛
Western Pub. (OC)	77	+ 2

OC—Over the Counter.
N.Y.—N.Y. Stock Exchange.
AS—American Stock Exchange.
M—Midwest.
Note: Midwest and over-the-counter quotes are the Bid prices.

Crowell-Collier's Earnings

Crowell-Collier Publishing Co. reports consolidated net income for 1960 of $6,549,889, or $2.24 a share on the 2,921,261 shares of common outstanding. Sales and revenues totaled $64,410,474. Sales and earnings include those of the Macmillan Co., which was merged in 1960.

Crowell-Collier's 1959 net was $2,660,626 or $1.96 a share on the 2,660,626 common shares then outstanding. Sales and other income in 1959 were $35,491,211.

Maureen McManus Bedded

Maureen McManus, longtime publicity director for Holt, Rinehart & Winston (dating back to the Henry Holt & Co. days), is in N. Y. Hospital for minor surgery which will keep here there for two weeks. However, she plans an extended recuperative vacation for two or three months, combining it with her regular spring-summer holiday.

Ann Otto, her aide, is pinchhitting.

CHATTER

Grant Marshall, entertainment editor of the Burlington (Ia.) Hawk-Eye ("Iowa's oldest newspaper, established 1837"), due in Gotham March 26-April 2 on his annual show biz o.o.

Yasutaka Fukushima, a Hawaii state senator, has been elected president of the Hawaii Hochi, one of Honolulu's two bi-lingual daily newspapers, succeeding Mrs. Michie Makino, who becomes chairman of the board. The Hochi competes with the Hawaii Times, each of the afternoon Japanese-English language dailies maintaining circulations of an estimated 12,000.

Jack Teehan, Honolulu Advertiser reporter, suffered burns on both hands while putting out a fire in the tail section of a private plane over Niihau Island. Plane was carrying Teehan and George West, Honolulu Star-Bulletin reporter, on a photographic mission.

Mystery Writers of America's annual "Edgar Allen Poe Awards" dinner set for April 21 at the Hotel Astor, N. Y. Among the 1960 "bests" to be appraised will be books, book jackets, magazines, stores, films, tv and radio.

Gov. Mathew Welsh of Indiana has signed Senate Bill 293, which updates the state's obscenity law, passed in 1905 and recently called invalid by the State Supreme Court, to outlaw "knowingly," the sale, possession, or manufacturing of obscene literature and devices.

Israeli novelist Yael Dayan and her father, General Moshe Dayan, the eye-patched war hero of the new State of Israel, made "Roots" at the "off-Broadway" Mayfair Theatre their first legit request to World Publishing's Eleanor Kask. World publishes Miss Dayan's novels in the U.S. The Mayfair is the old Billy Rose's Diamond Horseshoe in the basement of the Paramount Hotel on West 46th St.

SCULLY'S SCRAPBOOK

By Frank Scully

Palm Springs.

Possibly more melancholy than Paris would be a song entitled "The Last Time I Saw Fowler." It isn't a mood that blows away easily after reading "Skyline," his repertorial reminiscences of the '20s as published by Viking. This, for all its feigned ribaldry and glorification of New York reporters, principally of the Hearst dynasty, is a melancholy book.

Gene was working hard on it when we last met and finding the going hard. His workshop was an outpost below the home he and Agnes owned on a ridge called Tiger Trail in Brentwood. It was across the glen from Lawrence Welk's place. The time was shortly before Gene's birthday —his last.

Of course you bring this hindsight of doom when reading such a work as "Skylire," but I recall for all his six feet and ample weight Gene didn't look good. I said as much afterward to Victor Shapiro who drove me to the Fowler manse. He and Gene were cardiacs who carried their union card with them at all times—a vial of nitroglycerine tablets. I was surprised to see Gene was still smoking cigarets, not considered the best medication for heart cases.

He hoped he wouldn't die for a long time or without too many false starts and interded to rely on the stratagem which had kept him out of the boneyard: "I make it my business to go to everybody's funeral but my own."

At the time we were discussing the vast numbers of friends who were being mowed down like wheat, I said I always read the obit columns in VARIETY first "to see if I had died last week." This remark had no more depth than Gene's, but he wondered if he could use it and I assured him anything I said could be used. It was only what I wr[illegible] that I considered mine.

I left Gene's New York and the Demon's Rue Regret in 1917. Gene came from Denver in 1918. We didn't meet until 1936 in Hollywood when MGM had its premiere of "Romeo and Juliet" and the studio wanted a photo of us together. I didn't travel in his set in Hollywood —the hard drinking, wenching Barrymore-Flynn-Tully-Dekker syndrome—so we seldom saw each other there.

Time in this respect has given Gene a sense of relative values and in "Skyline" he does not see his guardian Alfred Damon Runyon, the Demon to Gene, as something less than "the world's greatest reporter." This was Brisbane's description of Runyon whose description of Brisbane was Doubledome, or Big George. Gene's view of Brisbane was that many of his statements were like Powder River, "a mile wide and an inch deep."

The book is replete with figures of speech not found in his namesake's book of English usage, racy, original figures of speech like:

"I thought that caution meant hardening of the arteries."

"In those days a byline was a more uncommon thing than in your modern newspaper—the pages of which carry more credits than the stud book of a Kentucky breeding farm."

"Hecht said that Walter Howey had a rollercoaster for a brain."

"Runyon talked about New York, especially Broadway, as though he were its discoverer."

"Gertrude Stein was a Left Bank Sappho singing through an eggbeater."

"Without luck a reporter is as out of place as a door buzzer in a tomb."

"Jimmy Walker could make blarney sound like the Gettysburg Address."

"Mr. Brisbane plunged past us like Diogenes playing halfback for Holy Cross."

"Runyon implied that Big George (Brisbane) was as tightfisted as a pipewrench."

"Mr. Hearst was the kind of man who would call upon the north wind to snuff out a candle."

"Victor Watson seldom smiled but when he did so looked as though rigor mortis were setting in."

This is Fowler working hard to pump humor into a ruthless, bureaucratic dynasty which kept its underlings fighting for recognition and bribing well those who survived. Hearst did pay better money than anybody else in those days and the pity of it was they earned it. Even Doubledome's enormous income cost him his rights as a free man. His column Today was subject to Hearst's blue pencil.

Gene's absorption with privvies as a source of humor remains undiminished in this last of his many amusing autobiographies. He also carried on a Fowler tradition of building an anecdote longer than Joe Cook's "Why I Will Not Imitate Four Hawaiians."

The longest in "Skyline" described an ex-journalist, called Dennis Moon, by Fowler, though actually that wasn't his name. Toots Shor got up a collection for the dying man and Fowler was to take it to the patient at St. Luke's Hospital uptown. There follows at least a hundred pages of digressions before you find out whether Moon ever got the money. They are amusing digressions, but it takes a query from Tom Mitchell almost at the close of the book to bring out the fact that Moon, dying of cancer, ultimately got the purse.

Another one of Gene's teasers concerns Victor Watson who was always coming on "the greatest story since the Armistice." Watson seemingly had assigned Gene to dig up some wreck to submit to a monkey gland operation after the technique of Dr. Serge Voronoff of Ventimiglia, Italy. In the end Gene got a victim for $1,000.

No hospital would allow the operation so it was performed in a hotel. Unfortunately three medical men in good standing were photographed watching the technique and promptly fired from the medical society for being a party to the nonsense. The op was a flop.

Gene gives a classic example of what basically was wrong with Hearst journalism and that was its faiblesse for cooking up stories to make news or hanging on to coattails of a simple tale to make it seem like even a war and its byproducts of compassion and mercy were the products of a Hearst mind.

On this occasion Gene was ordered to hire a harbor boat to meet an incoming ship laden with war-wounded. Hearst was to go down as head of his trained seals.

Gene beat down the price of the container from $2,000 to $1,500 but there followed a series of all-day delays until finally Hearst went home and his guests as well.

Gene hired the boat for the next day and by this time he could corral only vagrant couples spooning on the benches of Battery Park. He offered them dancing for free aboard as the ship went down to meet the wounded heroes.

Gene handed in an expense account of $3,000. Watson nearly passed out with this one, but by then Fowler had become famous for his swindle sheets. He accounted for every nickel for some of the most staggering totals and even Runyon envied his skill in this regard.

His reminiscences began with a long account of how he got to New York from Denver on a ticket transporting the body of an old lady (and lost the corpse on the way) and ended with Gene's being the only one to refuse a pineapple sundae as Henry Ford's guest (ordering a chocolate concoction instead) during the famous libel action of Ford against the Chicago Tribune for calling him an ignorant idealist.

Hearst and Ford were good friends and Hearst thought that the only thing you could buy with money was people. As a beginner Runyon thought Fowler should ask for $60 a week. Gene asked Hearst for $100 and got it.

It's only one friend's opinion of course, but might Gene have not been a better writer if he had never gone through that soul-squishing wringer?

Certainly Runyon who believed that all writers should look at nothing but a blank wall while writing ended his days a blank. Gene did far better than that.

Broadway

VARIETY lost three associates over the weekend with the deaths of Herman Lowe, Dorothy Hirsch and Ernie Player. All were heart victims. Lowe had been the head of the VARIETY Washington bureau before the incumbent Les Carpenter. Miss Hirsch had been in the N. Y. ad dept. since 1927. Player was a member of the London bureau under Harold Myers. Lowe had gone to Philadelphia, his home town, to head the Albert Einstein Memorial Hospital but planned to return to Washington where he and his writer-wife, Florence Lowe, had long functioned. Attorney Joe Borkin had been circulating invitations to a "welcome back to Washington" cocktailery for today (15) when Lowe died. Details of all three losses in the obit section.

Jocelyn Breen, singer Bobby Breen's ex-wife, back in N. Y. to resume her modeling career.

Celeste Holm is part of the Yank contingent at the current Cartagena Film Fest in Columbia, S.A.

Comic Bobby Bell will make his film debut in the Hal Wallis production of Tennessee Williams' "Summer and Smoke."

Brendan Behan and Toronto novelist Morley Callaghan will battle it out on Canadian TV's "Fighting Words" next Sunday (19).

George Jessel is having a cigar named for him, the Toastmaster General, via an independent U.S. cigar manufacturer. He'll get a royalty.

Theatre historian Sam Stark, transplanted from Laguna Beach to Frisco, is so nuts about that city that he now signs his mail "Sam Francisco."

Remi Gassman's "electronic music" composition will be used for a George Balanchine ballet at N.Y. City Center March 22. Title: "Electronics."

Anthony M. (Tony) Rey, manager of the Hotel Astor, upped to v. p. and gen. m. of that Zeckendorf hostelry by Frank W. Kridel, executive veepee of both the Hotels Astor and Manhattan.

Tom Statho Sheridan to London for powwows with the Variety Clubs of Britain on a book publishing venture involving Jayne Mansfield. Sheridan also has a possible film deal cooking with a Rank producer for Chiquita & Johnson, ballroom team.

Honor Guest Danny Thomas' strong commitments on the Coast, plus his health (he had to cut out on the White House Correspondents' annual show a fortnight ago) caused the Jewish Theatrical Guild to postpone its next month's shindig until the fall.

Damascus VARIETY correspondent Roger Bower writes that he "is probably the only foreign stringer with two soldiers walking guard duty in front of his apartment. I felt pretty important until I learned that the U. S. Consulate General is 40 yards to the right and UAR bigwigs were billeted some 40 yards to my left."

At the home of Mrs. Isaac Stern, for an audience made up of the Women's Division of the American-Israel Cultural Foundation, Prof. Frank Pelleg, Israel authority gave a lecture on "Contemporary Music in Israel" illustrated on the piano with examples of various composers from 1910 to the twelve-tone, serial and/or electronic composers of today.

Vito Pisa's Chez Vito marks its seventh anni tonight (Wed.) with a champagne party and the release of his third LP recorded by the 14 strolling violinists and guest singer. This one is titled "Romance at Chez Vito"; first was "A Night at CV" and the second featured opera singers, hence the title "Three Musketeers of the Opera at Chez Vito."

The new 43-story office building going up on 6th Ave and 51st-52d Sts., which was to have been originally the Zeckendorf Hotel until the Uris Bros. and the Rockefellers combined to take over the site, will be named the Sperry Rand Bldg. New tenant will occupy 400,000 square feet on eight floors of the new structure, including a substreet and street floor, latter for its Univac data-processing demonstrations and ballyhoo.

Paris

By Gene Moskowitz
(66 Ave Breteuil; SUF. 5920)

New Orly Airport building houses a 300-seat cinema.

Charles Boyer into the French p. "Les Snobs," of director Jean-Pierre Mocky.

Claudia Cardinale stars in Marcel Carne's updated film of Alexandre Dumas' "Camille."

Rising young (19) femme star Dany Saval may be signed by Walt Disney on a seven-pic deal.

Mylene Demongeot to London for a film on the life of the noted racing driver Sterling Moss.

Comedie - Francaise garnering another hit with another mounting of Anton Chekhov's "Uncle Vanya."

Yael Dayan in for appearance of her second novel before heading for London and N. Y. for same chores.

Three French pix starring Jean Seberg now in first-runs here, "La Recreation," "The Adults" and "Five-Day Lover."

For the first time in 40 years, a contemporary Danish play will be done here next month. It is D. Sova's "Your Choice."

It is Ludmilla Tcherina, not Melina Mercouri, who will star in Jacques Barathier's film, "The Doll," about a revolution in a mythical Latin American state.

Sammy and Jo Siritzky, of Athos Films, bought western distribrights of the Palish "The Teutonic Knights." First opening is at the Gaumont-Palace here this summer. Film played at last Venice Film Fest.

Alexandre Astruc will not make the pic, "The Campfollowers," for Raoul Levy, but instead begins "The Sentimental Education" based on a Flaubert story. Italo director Gillo Pontecorvo will do "Campfollowers."

Three legit versions of Moliere's "Tartuffe," now on here, with a classic one being done at the Comedie-Francaise, a turn-of-the century updating by Jean Anouilh at the Comedie-Des Champs Elysees, and a more farcical one at the Palais Royal with comic Francis Blanche.

Minneapolis

By Bob Rees
(4009 Xerxes Ave. So.; WA 6-6955)

Jose Greco dance company in one-nighter at St. Paul Auditorium Friday (17).

Fred Waring's Pennsylvanians appearing at builders show in Minneapolis Auditorium through March 19.

Ice star D. Jay Lewis produced Minneapolis Skating club's 23d annual Ice Carnival with cast of 90 in Ice Center last weekend.

Osman Shrine circus in the St. Paul Auditorium hosted 190 mentally-retarded children and adults from the Faribault, Minn. state schoool.

First male vocalist to play the Hotel Radisson Flame Room in months, Don Cornell opens nine-day stay tomorrow (16), following the Kim Sisters.

Minneapolis Symphony, currently on seven-state tour, gave concert at Urbana, Ill. last week as part of U. of Illinois' 1961 Festival of Contemporary Arts.

Hong Kong

By Ernie Pereira
(Tel. 774156)

England's Royal Ballet has a summer date here.

The Chicago International Trade Fair searching for suitable Chinese acrobat team from Hong Kong to perform at the fair opening July 25.

German cellist Ludwig Hoelscher and pianist Jorg Demus to appear here April 5 and 11, respectively, under Hong Kong Music Society aegis.

Three-D films, once clicks in Hong Kong, are now very popular in Communist China, according to reports received here. The pix feature traditional Chinese jugglers and are playing to sellout crowds in Peking, Shanghai and Tientsin.

Two more resignations from Bavaria Films in Geiselgasteig Hans Kubaschewski leaving his spot as member of the board of Bavaria because of bad health, and long-time press chief Karl Heinz Kaesbach is quitting for a spot with a German publisher.

The Colony's three broadcasting stations, Radio Hong Kong, Rediffusion and Commercial Radio of which actor William Holden is a shareholder, devoted three hours of their broadcasting time for three consecutive days in a Chinese New Year charity project to raise funds for the city's needy.

Greek composer Manos Hadjidakis in town from Athens, to receive the Golden Platter, along with German text writer Fini Busch, for the German version of "Les Enfants de Piree" from the pic "Never on Sunday."

London

(HYDe Park 4561/2/3)

Jack Paar due in on Friday (17) to tape a few programs here.

Frederico Fellini is in U.K. overseeing the English dubbing of "La Dolce Vita."

Kermit Bloomgarden arrived to try and fix Manhattan rights of "King Kong."

Stage designer Sean Kenny is guest of honor at Arts Theatre Club Supper March 20.

Betsy Drake arrived in town with Cary Grant for preem of "Grass Is Greener" (U).

Gala preview of Betty Hutton show at the Pigalle was tossed Sunday (12) for press and showbiz VIP's.

Yugoslav swimming champ, Tania Velia, opened at Society Restaurant for four weeks on Monday (13).

D. J. (Jack) Goodlatte flung a "welcome back" cocktail party for Pathe News unit that's been covering the Royal Tour in India.

It was "Show Biz Award" day at the Variety Club's lunch yesterday (Tues.). BBC will televise a filmed excerpt on Sunday (19).

Eric Maschwitz, BBC tv's light entertainment boss, paid a personal screened tribute to the late George Formby on the night of his death.

Al Burnett back from U.S. Negotiations still being ironed out for a Jimmy Durante season at the Pigalle, with August or September likely for start of date here.

J. P. Donleavy and producer Phil Wiseman have set up a film company. First two productions will be Donleavy's "The Ginger Man" and "Fairy Tales of New York," with Wiseman helming.

Vivian Van Damm's estate had a net value of nil. Windmill impresario had set up his family during their lifetime and death duties and other commitments took care of the gross $70,000 which he left.

Phoenix

By Thom O'Haffey
(3820 N. 6th Ave.; AM 5-3820)

Bill Williams inked pact for his third year at Navarres caterers.

Rex Allen came home to Phoenix to host Jaycee Rodeo March 16-19.

Defunct Koko-Embers Supper Club may reopen under new management.

Art Farmer-Benny Golson Quintet due to bow in Stein & Sirloin.

Connie Conway's Trio in at Yanceys Steak House replacing Freddie Davis.

Jayne Mansfield in town for short sunning after nitery stint at Dunes, Vegas.

Adrien Keith, lead tenor for Chuck-A-Lucks, sidelined by minor throat surgery.

Helen O'Connell, Louis Quinn, Raymond Burr and Barry Sullivan one-nighted a Cerebral Palsy benefit.

Jerry Lewis, resting here, imported Coast editing crew to cut his Paramount pic, "The Ladies Man."

Kathryn Grayson and Joan Winchell in from Hollywood to eye Dick Charlton's production "Madama Butterfly."

Frisco Giants training here, ditto Boston Sox at Scottsdale, and Chi Cubs in Mesa, have valley retired showfolk aplenty second-guessing from stands.

Rome

By Robert F. Hawkins
(Stampa Estera; 675906)

Walter Reade Jr. looking over local product.

Federico Fellini to London to cast his next pic which is slated to start here in May.

Michael Curtiz may direct "Abraham" as a Yank-Iranian coproduction, according to reports here.

Jack Palance back from the U.S. and talking a "Taras Bulba" deal with local producers Sansone and Croshicki.

Maurizio Arena, local juve favorite, has opened a new Rome nitery, "El Morocco Jr., and expects to make it a legit-pix hangout.

Gillo Pontecorvo, who directed Italy's Oscar contender, "Kapo," is calling his upcoming pic "El Quinto." It'll be shot in Spain.

Leonide Moguy in town to seal pact with Romana Film's Fortunato Misiano for "Men Want to Live," which he starts April 4 in Paris.

Sergio Amidei and Ugo Pirro talking a Yank sale for their recently completed script about Spanish poet Federico Garcia Lorca.

Joseph Levine to London and U.S. after week's o.o. of local scene, including his production of "Aladdin" and "Sodom and Gomorrah."

Guy Hamilton to Israel to scout locations for Dino DeLaurentiis' "Two Enemies," which rolls here this month with David Niven and Alberto Sordi toplined.

Mel Ferrer to Yugoslavia for "Law of War," but will be back soon when pic resumes local studio interiors. Thesp directs "Return Ticket" on Ivory Coast next.

Jeper in to prep "Pontius Pilate";

In-and-out-of-Rome: Irving Ravetch and Harriet Frank to Germany after o.o. local product; Alida Valli to Madrid for "Once a Thief"; Ron Randell in for brief vacation after "King of Kings" stint; Bricktop to U.S.; Andre de Toth at Excelsior and supervising cutting on his latest, "The Mogols" (Royal), with Anita Ekberg and Jack Palance; Nadia Gray in from London; ditto Anthony Steele, for pic role; John Barrymore Jr. from Copenhagen; Hurd Hatfield in from Madrid; Angie Dickinson, Maurice Chevalier and Jean Negulesco in tele personal on behalf of their just-starting "Jessica."

Cleveland

By Glenn C. Pullen
(MAin 1-4500)

Ted Barker, former ad director for Loew's local theaters, opened his own ad-publicity agency.

Syd Friedman, head of All-Star Theatrical Agency, to direct "Miss Universe" beauty contests in Ohio.

Bob Newhart doing comedy show as part of G. Bernardi's concert series at Public Music Hall March 19.

John LaSalle's combo following Roy Liberto's Bourbon Street Six into Hickory Grill this week for two weeks.

Dave Jenkins, skating champ who turned pro in "Ice Follies," current at Cleveland Arena, given civic plague by mayor from his hometown, Akron O., Testimonial performance drew nearly dozen busloads of Akronites.

Andrea Carroll, 14-year-old singing protege of Gene Carroll's studio, made Epic disk bow with "I've Got Date With Frankie" and "Young and Lonely." Both new tunes have music by Hamish Menzies, pro pianist-composer, and lyrics by Dick Mullan, localite.

Las Vegas

By Forrest Duke
(DUdley 4-4141)

Paul White, Ted Lewis' "shadow" for many years, now singing with "The Original Ink Spots" at New Frontier.

Silver Slipper and musicians union got together amicably after three months of negotiating. New pact runs 15 months.

Dunes opened its swank new restaurant, The Sultan's Table, with Joaquin C. Noriega, recently of the Beverly-Hilton, as maitre d'.

Dave Barry, comedy star of the Eleanor Powell show at the Sahara, does something this month he's been putting off for years—he's purchased an easel and paints and will begin serious dabbling.

Palm Springs

By A. P. Scully
(Tel 324-1828)

Bill Holden back from Africa.

Janet Leigh queen of the charity week doings.

Eddie Small's place sold to Moss Hart and Kitty Carlisle.

Ginny Simms booked weekends in North Shore Beach yacht club.

Kirk Douglas and Mrs. Zeppo Marx heading up WAIF shindig.

Hoagy Carmichael posing as a Tyrolean, beer-mug, leather pants and all.

Martin Beck yanking "South Pacific" out of storage for run at the Riviera.

Gene Autry trying to knock off some weight in training with his L. A. Angels.

Joe Santley directed an Hour of St. Francis telepic in four days of shooting here.

Peter Lawford released from Desert Hospital after five days there following violent nasal hemorrhages.

Mildred and Gordon Gordon, having sold "Operation Terror" to Ladies Home Journal and Columbia, here for book salon.

Jo Jo and the Guadalajaros booked into Rim Rocks, formerly Romanoffs, and now managed by Bob Talioferro who ran the Desert Inn under Marion Davies ownership.

Hollywood

Alec Guinness in from Tokyo.

Lew Breyer in from Milwaukee.

Lee Siegel opened new talent agency.

Jeanne Crain winged to Rome to star in "Neferiti."

James Pratt checked out of 20th-Fox producer berth.

Robert Fellows hospitalized with extreme exhaustion.

Fernando Lamas off to Madrid for "Magic Mountain."

Jane Fonda arrived for Columbia's "Walk on the Wild Side."

Edith Head named costume consultant on April 17 Oscar show.

Frank Mayo, silent pix star, snagged role in "Roaring 20's" tele series.

SAG will stage a "Polio Telethon Shot Party" April 6 for members and families.

Scott Seaton, oldest member of Screen Extras Guild, celebrated 91st birthday.

George M. Cahan back from producing-directing "The Sleeping Partner" in Rio.

William Stuart and Joel Rogosin upped from assistant to full producers in WB tv dept.

Walter Seltzer returned from European locations on "Naked Edge" and "Paris Blues."

Charles Wick back from Gotham huddles with 20th-Fox on "Snow White and Three Stooges."

William Perlberg and George Seaton hop to Stockholm June 4 for completion of "Counterfeit Traitor."

Chicago

(DElaware 7-4984)

Hucksters Club, no longer a key operation, installed a Roaring 20's revue.

Sam Honigberg in town a couple days in advance of Bob Newhart's Orchestra Hall concert.

Theo Dikel grossed $11,300 in his one-night concert at Opera House a week ago, under Frank Fried aegis.

Joe Parnello, regular '88er at Trade Winds, on lend lease to Vic Damone for three weeks for Palm Springs engagement.

Local legit presagent Danny Newman repping "Miracle Worker" which opens a 10-week stand at the Erlanger April 24.

Nate Caldwell, formerly of local repertory group, Company of the Four, snared a featured role in "Raisin in the Sun" at Blackstone.

Second City Revue, Will Holt & Dolly Jonah, Tarriers, Inman & Ira, Bob Gibson and Bob Camp performed in four-hour benefit for Big Table literary magazine at Birdhouse last week. About 600 payees turned out.

WGN's Dorsey Connors, WLS deejay Jim Dunbar, Jack Karey of WCFL, Paul Saliner and columnist Maggie Daly serving on judges panel for Northwestern U.'s annual Lydians talent contest this Saturday (18).

Munich

By John Wafka
(32 Faerbergraben; Tel. 29 10 82)

"Our Town" and another Thornton Wilder creation, "Queens of France," produced as vidpix at Geiselgasteig.

British playwright Robert Bolt in town for Continental first night of his "A Man for All Seasons" at the Residence Theatre.

American legit team coming to the "Intimes Theatre" with O'Neil's "Hairy Ape." Njordis Hume is directing and Al Hoosman is in title role.

Lieselotte Pulver off to London for fitting of Marie Antoinette costumes. She will co-star as queen with Charles Laughton in a British-French pic.

Austria's poet laureate, Franz Theodor Czokor, gave an inspired reading from his plays ("The Writing on the Wall") and epics at the Cuvilliers Theatre.

Met's Leonie Rysanek bettered all-time curtain call record of the Bavarian State Opera by five when she had to take 43 bends as Senta in Wagner's "Flying Dutchman."

Carpets rolled out for Thornton Wilder whose "Queens of France" is prepared in Geiselgasteig on film for German tv, and Mario Mereno, better known as Cantinflas, who'll take bows here at the German preem of his "Pepe."

Composer Julian Freedman (initiator of Cleveland's Rockland Foundation and New York's County Conservatory) taking up working quarters at Steinwiesen, Upper Franconia, to complete score of a choreo drama based on a book by Madame Tchang-Kai-Tchek.

Fairest 'Lady' of Them All

Continued from page 1

24 performances at the State Auditorium, Dallas, Texas.

In its 65 weeks in Chicago, the touring "Lady" totaled $4,296,688. Its 11-week take in sun-baked Washington, D.C., last summer was $736,443, while in two visits to Los Angeles' Philharmonic Auditorium (15 weeks) the loot ran to $1,168,304. Third engagements will be played both in Los Angeles (June 20 through Aug. 5) and San Francisco (Aug. 8-Sept. 9) this summer.

Currently in its 11th week at the Shubert, Boston, the itinerant "Lady" will remain in the American Athens through May 20. There its weekly operating profit is in the neighborhood of $17,000, a very fancy neighborhood. Most disappointing weeks in this company's four-year trek: Shreveport, La. ($33,376); Wichita, Kansas, $40,840, and $38,506 for the first week of a five-week visit to Montreal.

While the grosses for the touring "Lady" fluctuated as much as $45,000 for successive weeks, that of the company at the Hellinger was constant over its first four years. The totals at the Hellinger for the calendar years of '57, '58 and '59: were $3,578,951, $3,603,691 and $3,554,229. The slight differential over the three years is due to fluctuating number of standees, and two non-capacity weeks in January of '59, the first experienced by the show.

Something over 6,000,000 people have contributed to the $32,000,000 take of the New York and touring companies of "My Fair Lady." As of last week Philip Adler, general manager for Herman Levin, has booked the touring "Lady" through September of '62. Levin suspects that "Lady" is good for another year at the Hellinger, though the musical no longer is a sellout save on weekends.

Global Triumph

Spectacular as have been the achievements of "My Fair Lady" in the U.S., its overseas triumphs are equally impressive. As of April 30, the musical will round out its third year at the 2,341-seat Drury Lane, London, a theatre but a block removed from Covent Garden, locale of the musical's first scene. At a $3.50 (25 shillings) top the London reproduction has played to $6,330,000 through last Saturday to profits of approximately $1,710,000, 40% of which accrues to the Eliza Company, corporate name for the management. Incidentally there's a wide gap between London and New York operating costs. The Drury Lane has a $4,000 profit on a $30,000 gross; on that same total the Hellinger would register a $7,500 deficit.

Though no longer a sellout in London, when its 1,544th performance is reached early in January of 1962, "My Fair Lady" will have had a longer run at the Drury Lane than any attraction to play the famed institution there since opening its doors with "The Humorous Lieutenant" on May 7, 1663—almost 300 years ago! "Oklahoma" is the current record holder at the Drury Lane—1,543 performances.

Opening at Her Majesty's, Melbourne, Jan. 24, 1959, during a 95-degree heatwave the original Australian company of "MFL" remained there through May 14, 1960, when it moved to Her Majesty's, Sydney, where it is now in its 43d week. An alternate company replaced the original in Melbourne on May 16, '59 and continued through Oct. 15. Total stay of two companies in Melbourne—22 months. "South Pacific," prior record holder, played 10 months in same theatre. Spokesmen for the J. C. Williamson Theatres Ltd., producers of the Australian "My Fair Lady" companies, expect the show's run in Sydney to top "Annie Get Your Guns" 53 weeks in a much smaller theatre.

After closing in Melbourne, the alternate company played 12 weeks in Adelaide, and since Feb. 11 has been a sellout in Auckland, New Zealand. "Our airlift to New Zealand," writes Peter Morrison, advertising and publicity manager for the Williamson interests, "was far and away the biggest of its kind in the history of show business here. We shipped 150 shipping tons of scenery and costumes, including the two revolves."

"Lady" is Down Under companies have played to roughly $4,600,000 in 1,300 performances in Melbourne, Sydney, Adelaide and Auckland, with Brisbane, Perth, Christchurch and Wellington yet to be tapped. Six percent of this sum filters back to our shores, split 60-40 between authors and management respectively.

As "Lady" has proved a bonanza for Sir Frank Tait and the Williamson Theatres in Australia and New Zealand, so it has enriched Lars R. Schmidt, Swedish producer with headquarters in Paris. Thus far Schmidt has set up copies of "Lady" in Stockholm, Copenhagen, Oslo, Helsinki and, most recently, Amsterdam. The Swedish production has been playing at Oscarsteatern, Stockholm, since Feb. 12, '59. Following its opening at the 2,000-seat Falkonercentret in Copenhagen on Jan. 2, 1960, the Danish company recouped its $250,000 cost in three months, enjoyed a 9-month run, briefly toured minor cities, before returning for a second run in a smaller theatre in Denmark's capital. The Norwegian production ran for seven months at the Folke Theatre in Oslo, and the lyric "Pygmalion" had had over 250 performances in the repertory of the Svenska Theatre, Helsinki, Finland.

Schmidt, recently in New York to supervise a tv engagement of his wife, Ingrid Bergman, is plotting a German production for Berlin and eventually hopes to convert Alan Jay Lerner to a French reproduction of the musical. "Lady" already has broken the 400-performance record of "Annie Get Your Gun," in Scandinavia, indeed may double it before it closes. As of the end of the year 650,000 people had seen in at Oscarsteatern, this in a city whose population is 900,000. Schmidt's four Scandinavian productions of "Lady" have grossed over $4,400,000. He pays the same royalties to authors and management—6%—as do the Australian duplicates, plus 3% to the estate of George Bernard Shaw.

Since "MFL" was christened at the Shubert Theatre, New Haven, on Saturday night, Feb. 4, '56, its 11 companies have racked up an overall gross of just short of $48,000,000 in North America, Europe and Australia. This sum embraces the guilders recently grabbed in 10 weeks in Rotterdam and seven weeks in Amsterdam (estimated) and the pesos picked up in an abortive invasion of Mexico in the spring of '59. After enjoying sellout trade in Guadalajara and Monterrey, "Mi Bella Dama" was obliged to shutter in Mexico City while playing to standees because the Mexican Federal District authorities ruled that a 12-peso (96c) top for tickets must prevail at the Place of Fine Arts.

The "MFL" management's profit from the $48,000,000 boxoffice gross and from other sources—recordings, both foreign and domestic, sheet music and license fees for commercial tieups with the show's title, is about $7,600,000. This has accrued on an original investment of $400,000, the sum put up by CBS to mount and animate the original company. The production cost of the national company came from profits of the original. Even second rate mathematicians can figure out that a $7,600,000 return on a $400,000 investment represents a 1900% profit.

Rex Harrison's Windfall

The Columbia Records' original cast album thus far has sold 3,200,000 copies, from which "MFL" management has reaped a $460,000 windfall, at the rate of 14.4c a record. Speaking of windfalls Rex Harrison's cut of 9c an album has rewarded him with $288,000, a handsome fee for a Sunday afternoon's work, when it is remembered that Mr. H. is a non-singing singer. In addition to the original cast album there are some 30 instrumental and lyric albums made by various bands, orchestras, singers, including one in Spanish and three in Norwegian. In Oslo at the Nye Theatre "the rain in Spain falls mainly in the plain," read "Det gol og mol i solen en spanjol," while in Stockholm it is "Den spanska raven," while in Amsterdam it is "Het Spaanse Graan De Orkan Doorstan."

Both the boxoffice grosses and the profits of "My Fair Lady" over a five-year span dwarf those of any other show seen hereabouts in the last century. Indeed its totals pale into insignificance the feats of David Merrick, wisely, if erroneously, identified as a boxoffice genius. In a recent issue of Time, that newsweekly stated: "Merrick has had 20 shows on Broadway since 1954, and 15 qualify as hits . . . In all his 20 shows cost $4,000,000 to produce, grossed $40,000,000 and repaid $8,000,000 to their angels, including Merrick" (Only $4,000,000 of this is profit, since the $8,000,000 returned to angels includes original investment of $4,000,000.) Thus MFL's profits are practically double the profits of Merrick's 15 hits (sic), at a tenth of the cost of the Merrick adventures, and achieved in two years less time.

GBS' Socko Postmortem B.O.

It's too bad that George Bernard Shaw, moldering in his grave since 1950, isn't around to exult in the boxoffice coups of the musical Alan Jay Lerner and Frederick Loewe fashioned from his "Pygmalion."

Shaw had a profound respect for the pound sterling. His estate gets a flat 3% royalty on the grosses of the 11 companies that have thus far played it, which means that his heirs, the British Museum, the Royal Academy of Dramatic Art and the National Gallery of Ireland have whacked up about $1,440,000. What's more at that remote day when "My Fair Lady" is screened, he will get a flat 5% of the film's boxoffice gross.

"Pygmalion" wasn't the first Shaw play to be set to music. The plot of his "Arms and the Man" was used, without his permission, for the operetta, "The Chocolate Soldier," with music by Oscar Strauss. On its production at the Lyric Theatre, London, in 1910, the program carried this line: "With apologies to George Bernard Shaw for an unauthorized parody of one of his comedies." Attempts by the German authors to pay Shaw royalty were hotly rejected. Two years before his death, Shaw sent this reply to an R.A.F. Station whose pilots sought permission to put on a musical version of "Pygmalion":

"I absolutely forbid any such outrage. If 'Pygmalion' is not good enough for your friends with its own verbal music, their talent must be extraordinary. Let them try Mozart's 'Cosi fan Tutti' or at least Offenbach's 'Grand Duchess'."

Lerner and Loewe, fitting enough, have profited most from "MFL." Their royalties from the New York, national and London companies run to over $1,000,000 for each. Add to this their royalties from the Australian and Scandinavian countries, their share of the profits as partners of producer Herman Levin and their split on the recordings and you arrive at an astronomical figure.

It will be more astronomical on that remote day when the last "Fair Lady" company closes, and work starts on the screen version, as yet unsold.

'Fireside' Chats

Continued from page 1

ger battle over which Republican would speak for that party.

Sen. Thurston Morton (R-Ky.) is chairman of the Republican National Committee and a popular man within the party. But it is doubtful if he could be chosen to answer Kennedy without also kicking up a major party squabble. But the biggest row of all would be stirred up if either Nixon or Rockefeller were tapped to talk back to Kennedy. Their supporters don't trust one another and would vigorously resist one of the men having such an advantage over the other. And Goldwater backers would be opposed to both of them.

The situation is normal for a political party out of power in Washington and without any centralized machinery for establishing definite party policy. Various GOP factions are now operating independently without discipline or a defined party line—and, in such cases, no individual can accurately speak for the party.

Kennedy plans for "fireside chats" haven't taken definite shape. That he has such programs under thought was disclosed by his associate press secretary, Andrew Hatcher, who said:

"The President feels there are certain things the public should know, and he does not feel that his press conference is the place to explain them unless certain specific questions are asked . . . (and) the President doesn't want to resort to 'planted' questions (there)."

Some Not So Incidental Info

"MFL" Boswell, Dick Maney, is also a statistical demon and asserts that the Lerner & Loewe goldmine will pass "Oklahoma!" come June 13 when it hits its 2,177th perofrmance. According to Theatre Guild statistics — theatre annuals to the contrary — the Rodgers & Hammerstein smash clocked 2,176 performances, and not the 2,248 generally credited. Originally the N. Y. Times published 2,204 and later "corrected" itself to add 40 free shows given for service men. Maney checked Theatre Guild statistics and totalizes only 2,177.

In like vein, "South Pacific" which is generally credited with 1,925 consecutive performances, to make it the No. 2 longrunning musical on Broadway, should be only 1,694, says Maney, because it went to Boston for six weeks after its first uninterrupted run from April 7, 1949 until May 16, 1953. Counting 18 extra matinees and two weeks when "SP" did 9 performances, and two weeks when it only did 7 shows, his statistics tote up to 1,694, not 1,925. The 7-performance weeks were the first when FDR died and the second when it was his funeral, and one show per week was dropped both weeks. "SP" came back to Broadway after Boston and the additional run probably accounts for the 1,925 figure. He doesn't compare this to "MFL" interrupting its Broadway run to go to Moscow under U. S. State Dept. auspices for obvious reasons.

Rex Harrison's 9c per album royalty on the 3,200,000 sold so far, monaural and stereophonic, includes the rerecorded-in-London stereo LP. Julie Andrews' cut is only 5% from the producer's share of the Columbia album, hence not as readily computable as Harrison's take.

While Lerner & Loewe share 60-40% with Herman Levin on the 6% royalty from the grosses of each foreign production, the George Bernard Shaw estate gets a straight 3% off-the-top of each foreign production, as it does from the Broadway original. Lerner & Loewe each collect 1.8% of the authors' share, i.e. 3.6% between them, and 2.4% goes to management. Computing the $48,000,000 global take, GBS' postmortem slice, via "Pygmalion," is around a million-and-a-half dollars.

Coney Island's Mustard Up

Continued from page 1

door market, notably Coney Island and the ball parks, have dubbed it the "frankfurter-in-the-round," a moniker, no doubt, that will prove as short-lived as the hula hoop.

Incredible as it may seem, no one in the past 3,000 years thought of inventing a round hot dog. But the other day news was flashed around the developed and underdeveloped world that a local wurst geschaft, American Kosher Provisions, was rapidly retooling a donut machine into a hot dog vise. The new weenie, it was reported, would be ready for distribution shortly.

Obviously, Coney Island, the fountainhead of the American hot dog, was shaken rather rudely by the news of the invasion of the round hot dog. Coney Islanders this week made it sharply clear they don't propose to take the hot dog metamorphosis from long to round with equanimity. Numerous operators of the comestible stands on Surf Avenue, the Bowery, Stillwell Avenue and the pinewood boardwalk from Brighton Beach to Sea Gate, snorted like whales when queried on the subject. They intimated they would fight the round hot dog with the ferocity of a hammerhead shark. They declared that the lifespan of the round hot dog at Coney Island would indeed be brief and unhappy.

On the other hand, a small but nonetheless articulate group of hot dog merchants felt that it was time for a retooling of the oldfashioned hot dog. Their thinking was that the "red hot" could easily stand a going-over, a renovation of major proportion—an overhauling similar to JFK's "New Frontier" goings-on in Washington.

Indeed, the panjandrums at the head of the American Kosher Provision Co. said they were inspired to new heights in hot dog manufacture by the youthfulness of the new Chief Executive's upper echelon cabinet officers now swirling around the White House. Asked if the perspiring proletariat at Coney Island could be sold on the radical notion of grabbing for a "roundie" instead of a "longie," a spokesman for the "frankfurter-in-the-round" said confidently: "Give us merely one season at the beachfront and we'll win over the masses. Just because the hot dog is 3,000 years old, doesn't mean its shape can't be altered. The hot dog isn't that sacrosanct. It is our object to eventually wipe out the straight frank and roll which serves no practical purpose whether it is eaten overhand, underhand or with the orthodox two-fisted method. The round weenie, we maintain, is far more compact and requires far less room on Surf Avenue, the beach or in a sideshow."

It is rumored in delicatessen circles that bagel makers from Williamsburg, Flatbush and Bensonhurst sectors of Brooklyn are also dough-deep in lobbying to bring about the wedding of the bagel and the round frank. Though the bagel biz isn't quite in a recession, it has been subjected to considerable competish from the Biyalastokar roll, a tenderfoot version of the bagel, sans the hole in the middle. But the heady prospect of upping sales of bagels has produced considerable saliva on the lips of bagel artisans and vendors. A keen student of the bagel this week declared that the soft frankfurter roll is a whopping affront to the hot dog, be it long or round. The bagel booster contends that today's bagel has proved its worth as a sandwich for Polish ham, Beluga caviar and, of course, belly lox with cream cheese. If it is good enough for these culinary blandishments, why not mate the bagel with the round hot dog, is the argument advanced by some experts in Coney Island.

This line of reasoning is viewed with unmixed horror by the heads of Nathan's Famous in Coney Island, the capital of the tubular hot dog. The organization men at Nathan's insist that the elongated frank is deeply grounded in American tradition. They mutter that the proponents of the bagel and the round hot dog should, at the very least, be investigated pronto by the House Un-American Activities Committee. Said a spokesman for Nathan's: "It is sheer blasphemy and irreverence to put a round hot dog in a bagel. One bite and what have you got left? Mustard on your $3 sport shirt and a hunk of meat in the gutter. This is eating?"

A number of Coney disciples of the oldfashioned hot dog, if need be, are prepared to go into the courts in an effort to put the kibosh on the round frank. This group points out that the highest court of New York is already on the side of status quo in hot dogs. Traditionalists at the seashore cite a recent Supreme Court decision which describes the Coney Island frankfurters as "plebian, but popular, elongated commodities, technically known as frankfurters but in resort idiom characterized as hot dogs."

Consequently, any attempt to alter the shape of the hot dog may call for a restraining order from the highest judicial tribunal in the state. It also was revealed this week that some Coney Island comestible purveyors would call on butchers of Frankfurt-am-Main, the genuine birthplace of weinerwurst, to file a supplementary brief, as amicus curiae, in the event that the frankfurter fracas reaches the courthouse.

There's also a plan afoot to enlist the help of show biz notables, political and sports names in the fight to stamp out the round hot dog. Help would be sought from such figures as Sophie Tucker, Rocky Graziano, former Gov. Herbert Lehman and playwright Brendan Behan. These individuals, all belonging to the orthodox school of tubular frankfurter consumption, would be asked to affix their signatures, presumably in mustard, on petitions to Governor Rockefeller, denouncing the unorthodoxy of the round dog. A growling period is obviously in store in the next few months.

OBITUARIES

DOROTHY HIRSCH

Dorothy Hirsch, 65, an advertising representative of VARIETY since 1927, died March 13 at Medical Arts Hospital, N. Y., where she had been confined for some weeks. Her health had been poor for the past two years and she was unable to make her annual November trip to Hollywood because of it.

Identified overwhelmingly with VARIETY, and through it known to scores, perhaps hundreds, of entertainers in vaudeville, radio, television, films and legit, Miss Hirsch had previously sold advertising for the N. Y. Morning Telegraph, whose Sunday edition in the old days was a sort of theatrical tradepaper.

During World War II Miss Hirsch was active in auxiliary activities, drove an ambulance and did the usual sort of food-dispensing feminine service.

In recent years heart trouble and rheumatism afflicted the adwoman. She married once and was the widow of Foster Rozar. A brother and several nieces and nephews survive.

Funeral services this (Wed.) afternoon at "The Riverside," 76th St. and Amsterdam Ave., New York, at 2:15 p.m. Interment private.

HERMAN A. LOWE

Herman A. Lowe, 55, newspaperman, publicist and head of the Washington Bureau of VARIETY and DAILY VARIETY for many years, died at his home in Philadelphia on March 12 of a heart attack.

For the last three years Lowe was director of promotion and public relations at the Einstein Medical centers. A native of New York, he was graduated from the Wharton School of the University of Pennsylvania in 1927. He joined the staff of the Philadelphia Inquirer in 1928 and worked in various capacities. He was elected by the Pennsylvania Republican State Committee during the Alfred M. Landon campaign for the presidency.

In 1942 Lowe was assigned to the Inquirer's Washington Bureau and remained with them until 1957 when he established the Lowe-Federal News Bureau, which lasted until 1958, during which time he acted as VARIETY's correspondent in the capital. He was author of "Our Sovereign State" and contributed articles to various magazines. His widow, the former Laverne Seidl, is Washington correspondent for Metropolitan Broadcasting Corp.

A son and daughter also survive.

Senator Keating's Tribute

Sen. Kenneth Keating (R-N.Y.) paid the following tribute in the Senate Monday (13) to Herman Lowe, former veteran VARIETY correspondent in Washington who died Sunday (12):

"All of us who knew him during his Washington years were saddened, I'm sure, by the death of the distinguished journalist, Herman A. Lowe. He was known to many of us, and he and his wife, who worked so closely together, were very popular members of the press corps. In his career in public service and newspaper work, Herman Lowe was a consistent force for good and for a better life for his fellow man... All of us who knew Mr. Lowe and Mrs. Lowe will, I know, want to join in extending our deepest sympathy to her and her fine family at this time."

ERNIE PLAYER

Ernie Player, 45, freelance attached to VARIETY's London bureau, died of a heart coronary in London.

Player, who was first in VARIETY, started his journalistic career in cinema trade journalism but also wrote extensively for film fan magazines and on general topics. He had a spell as a flack in the London office of Warner Bros. before returning to journalism.

For some time he had been interested in scriptwriting for tv and films. With producer Alec Snowden and director Michael Forlong he set up Jermyn Productions and wrote the screenplay for their first indie pic, "Over The Odds," now in the cutting stage.

Survived by wife and baby son.

SIR THOMAS BEECHAM

Sir Thomas Beecham, Bart., 81, who spent his life conducting symphonies and operas throughout the world, died March 8 in London of a cerebral thrombosis. He had been ill for some months, after a previous seizure of the same nature.

Independently wealthy through the patent medicine fortune established by his grandfather, Sir Thomas had been an active promoter of musical culture from well before World War I. Though he inherited a baronetcy from his father, he had been separately knighted by the British crown for his contributions.

The father was made a baronet in 1914, the son a knight in 1916. There was a one-year schism between them. The conductor was as famed for his tart witticisms as for his music and was much in demand for press, radio and television interviews whenever he toured the United States.

American engagements included practically every principal symphony, including the season of 1941-42 at Seattle and with the Metropolitan Opera.

In his earlier years he had runins with both audiences and musicians. In general the critics respected him as a competent conductor. His anger spread in 1927 to include all of Britain which he said, he was leaving forever because of its musical backgrounds. Himself no musical snob, he conducted for the Works Progress-subsidized City Orchestra in New Deal times.

His first marriage occurred in 1913 to an American, Utha Celestia Welles. In 1943 he married a British pianist, Betty Humby. She died of a heart attack while with Sir Thomas on a concert engagement in Buenos Aires. The following year the conductor married his secretary, Shirley Hudson, now 29. In addition to her his survivors include two sons by the first union.

ARTHUR JAMES PEGLER

Arthur James Pegler, 96, playwright and veteran newspaperman, died in Tucson, Ariz., March 7 of a heart attack. He was the father of the Hearst syndicated columnist Westbrook Pegler, and John Pegler, president of Television Zoomar Inc.

Pegler was a top reporter for many years in St. Paul, New York, Chicago and Minneapolis. Born in London, he originally went west about 1882 to become a cowboy, but drifted into newspaperwork starting on the St. Paul Globe. He covered Indian skirmishes in the Northwest as well as local crime stories. Once severely beaten by a gang he was writing about, he recalled that his pay ceased until he was well enough to work.

He moved to Chicago in the early part of the century and worked for the Journal and the American. Pegler later came to New York in 1916 and worked on the Tribune until 1924. He shifted to the Mirror and stayed there until 1936 when he retired. He collaborated with pressagent Charles S. Washburn on a melodrama, "The Little Lost Sister," which toured the circuits for years.

A daughter survives besides his sons.

WILBUR C. SWEATMAN

Wilbur C. Sweatman, 79, dance bandleader of the 1920s, died March 8 in New York. In recent years he had been writing songs and running his own music publishing house.

Among his early compositions were "Down Home Rag," "Old Folks Rag," "The Sweat Blues," "Virginia Diggins," "Battleship Kate," "Boogie Rag" and "That's Got 'Em." His all-Negro orchestra, which he organized in 1902 in Minneapolis, became a stepping stone for many Negro artists.

During the 1920s, his band was one of the "big timers" in the dance field ranking with the outfits of Paul Whiteman and Art Hickman. Between orchestra engagements, Sweatman was musical director of several Chicago theatres.

He was a vaude performer through the early years of the century and is said to have made the first jazz clarinet recording. Later in his career he played for radio stations and operated a theatrical agency.

Surviving are a daughter and a sister.

BELINDA LEE

Belinda Lee, 26, British actress, died March 13 in San Bernardino, Calif. as a result of an auto accident.

Born in Devon, England, she first appeared on the stage in "Point of Departure," when she was 18 years old. She made her first film appearance the following year in "Runaway Bus." Her other films include, "Footsteps in the Fog," "Man of the Moment," "Bells of St. Trinians," "Eyewitness" and "Aphrodite," among others.

MAURICE SIGLER

Maurice Sigler, 59, pop songwriter, died Feb. 6 in Jamaica, L. I., New York.

His best known songs include, "I Saw Stars," "She Shall Have Music," "Why Don't You Practice What You Preach," "Little Man You've Had a Busy Day" and "I'm in a Dancing Mood." He also wrote "Here It Is Monday" and "I've Still Got a Dollar," "Jimmy Had a Nickel," "I Want to Ring Bells" and "Everything's in Rhythm With My Heart."

Born in N. Y., he began his musical career as an orchestra banjo player. He later organized his own band for college dances, made recordings and was featured as a nitery band leader. Sigler later went to England where he did the scoring for numerous films including, "Limelight," "This'll Make You Whistle," "She Shall Have Music," "Peg of Old Drury" and "Sailing Along."

His mother, three brothers and a sister survive.

JAMES N. TAIT

James Nevin Tait, 85, impresario, died March 7 in London. He was joint managing director of J. C. Williamson Theatres Ltd. and J. & N. Tait Concerts tours of Australia and New Zealand. He ran their London office for 45 years.

During his career he booked world tours for such varied artists as Dame Clara Butt, Yehudi Menuhin, Danny Kaye, Dame Marot Fontein, Maurice Chevalier, Moiseiwitsch, Melba, Paderewski and others. He also booked such shows for Down Under as "Brigadoon," "My Fair Lady," "Annie Get Your Gun," "Irma La Douce," "South Pacific" and "The Amorous Prawn."

Survived by his brother, Sir Frank S. Tait, who is in Melbourne.

EDWIN C. HARTMAN

Ed Hartman, 51, longtime theatre manager and booker, died of a heart attack March 9 while attending the final luncheon of the United Theatre Owners convention at the Hotel Continental in Kansas City. He operated a booking service for a number of years and had been in show business since he began selling popcorn in K. C.'s Strand Theatre as a boy.

Hartman had been president of the Motion Picture Assn. of Greater Kansas City in 1955-56-57. While manager of the Crawford Theatre, Wichita, in 1932 he won a test case which permitted the showing of pictures on Sunday, until then forbidden in Kansas. He had been in K. C. since 1933 when he returned here to manage the former Murray Theatre, a neighborhood theatre now closed.

Survived by wife, daughter, four brothers and a sister.

RICHARD OSBORNE

Richard Osborne, 35, assistant general sales manager of WLW, Cincinnati, died of a cerebral hemorrhage March 7 in that city. He became ill three days earlier at his home and lapsed into a coma after being removed to a hospital.

He joined the Crosley Broadcasting Corp. in 1954 as national salesman for WLW-C, Columbus, and was later transferred to the Cincinnati clear channel station. Prior to joining the Crosley fold, he was a salesman for the Chicago Tribune and in radio with WPAY, Portsmouth, O.; WHKC, Columbus, and WCMI, Huntington, W. Va.

His wife, three sons, two daughters, a sister and brother survive.

FRED C. SANBORN

Fred C. Sanborn, 62, retired vaudevillian, died March 9 in Cupertino, Cal. A native of Massachusetts, he entered show business as a teenager playing drums around Boston. Then he went into comedy, developing a slapstick act and touring the U. S., Canada and parts of Europe for years.

Playing stooge to Ted Healy, Sanborn entered films and the team made "Soup to Nuts." He appeared in Ken Murray's "Blackouts" for three years, 1943-46, and in 1954 settled in Cupertino, a Frisco suburb, in semi-retirement.

Wife survives.

C. JULES BRULATOUR

C. Jules Brulatour, 55, son of the late Jules E. Brulatour, film financier and distributor of Eastman motion picture raw stock, died of an apparent heart attack March 11 while vacationing at a Montego Bay, Jamaica, B.W.I., hotel. Also found dead in the hotel room was his wife who was 52. She, too, was believed to have suffered a heart attack.

Brulatour was v.p. of the Marshall Hosiery Sales Co., a New York firm. His father died in 1946, leaving a net estate of $2,121,035.

Surviving are a son and four daughters.

ADOLPH GRIMM

Adolph Grimm, 71, vet vaude performer and a pioneer radio entertainer in the Cincinnati area, died March 9 in that city. In the era of stage shows at neighborhood film theatres he was a singer and hooter with Pansy Minstrels, tabloid group, and worked packs and clubs.

He and Rheiny Gau teamed as Ham & Lim, the Burger Brothers, in comedy and musical skits on WLW in radio's crystal set days. He was a court clerk for 15 years before his retirement in 1959.

His wife and son survive.

PHILIP WEINSTEIN

Philip Weinstein, 65, film distributor for nearly four decades, died March 2 in San Francisco. A native of Chicago, he started in the industry as a salesman, moved into distribution and in 1943 opened the Columbia exchange in San Francisco, which he operated until his retirement in 1953.

Wife, daughter and son survive.

DAVID SCHOOLER

David Schooler, 64, comedian, died Feb. 1, in New York. He also headlined in vaudeville with his wife, in an act known as "Schooler & Dickinson." During the last World War, he produced camp shows for the USO. In recent years, he appeared on television in nitteries.

Wife and son survive.

Guernsey Van Riper, 81, dean of Indiana ad men and board chairman of the Indianapolis ad agency, Caldwell, Larkin & Sidener-VanRiper Inc., died March 6 in Indianapolis.

Al Respondek, 44, founder of radio station KCFH, Cuero, Tex., died March 6 in San Antonio after a long illness. Surviving are his wife, four sons, four brothers and two sisters.

Mrs. John Godfrey West, 57, former actress and impersonator known professionally as Mary Wetherstreet, died March 4 in Carson City, Nev. Husband survives.

Ferris Taylor, 73, screen actor from 1932 to 1958, died of a heart attack in Hollywood, March 6. His wife and son survive.

Vincent Griffith, 65, master of ceremonies, known professionally as Bob Allen, died March 2 in New York. His wife, daughter and a brother, Frank Gaylord, survive.

Edward P. Raleigh, 60, blind tenor of KJBS's Blinderaft Ensemble show in the 1920s in San Francisco, died March 8. Two sisters and brother survive.

Husband of Frances Church, head of the contract dept. of Joe Glaser's Associated Booking Corp., died March 10 in New York after a lengthy illness.

Brother, 49, of Clair R. McCollough, National Assn. of Broadcasters exec, died March 7 in Lancaster, Pa.

Harold L. Warner Jr., 46, organist at the Byrd Theatre in Richmond, Va., died Feb. 13 in that city.

Father, of Frank Shuster, half of comedy team of Wayne & Shuster, died March 5 in Toronto, Can.

Brother, 28, of Kurt Hofmann, theatrical publicist, died March 9 in New York after a long illness.

MARRIAGES

Britt Jordan to Carlos Werner, Hamburg, West Germany, Feb. 27. Bride's a record star; he's a stage and screen actor.

Li'er Hwang to David Brackrell, London, March 4. Bride is a Chinese actress; he's a film producer.

Laraine Day to Mike Grilikhes, Hollywood, March 7. Bride's the actress; he is general program exec for CBS.

Barbara Ann Broudy to Harvey Chertok, New York, March 12. He's ad-pub supervisor of United Artists Associated Inc.

Janet Medlin to Barry Levinson, Feb. 12, New York. She's an actress-singer; he's a partner in the Savan-Levinson Inc., theatrical agency.

Dona Mae Kickhaefer to Gordon MacVey, Albuquerque, March 5. He's partner and business manager of the Albuquerque Light Opera Workshop and Albuquerque Lyric Theatre group.

BIRTHS

Mr. and Mrs. Dave Hall daughter, Chicago, March 6. Father is an actor.

Mr. and Mrs. George Fernandez, daughter, Downey, Cal., March 5. Father's recording engineer at Gold Star Recording Studios, Hollywood.

Mr. and Mrs. Alan Coxy, daughter, Burbank, Cal., March 6. Mother is actress Nola Thorp; father is an agent.

Mr. and Mrs. Edward de Souza, son, London, March [illegible]. Mother is Eileen Miranda Corp. Father is an actor.

Mr. and Mrs. James Hunter Jr., daughter, Chicago, Feb. 28. Father is with Needham, Louis & Brorby agency; mother was Joan Hallen Sp[illegible], program director of WGN-TV.

Mr. and Mrs. Hal L. Robinson, Chicago, March 7. Father is radio [illegible] and [illegible] director [illegible].

Mr. and Mrs. Herb Rosick, daughter, New York, March 8. Father is director of operations of Seven Arts Associated.

Mr. and Mrs. Stuart Johnson, son, Boston, March 5. Father is with KPRC in that city.

Mr. and Mrs. Carl Nolen, son, Dallas, March 7. Father is an account exec with KVIL in that city.

Mr. and Mrs. Gerald Auerbach, son, March 7, New York. Father is president of Advertising, Radio & Television Services, Inc., a N.Y. tv production firm.

Mr. and Mrs. William P. Dix, Jr., son, Feb. 17, Buffalo, N.Y. Mother is Gerry Jones, former model and singer; father is manager of WGR Radio, in that city.

Mr. and Mrs. Arnold Leeds, son, Feb. 17, New York. Mother is Susan Brooks, nitery-tv singer; father is an executive producer in the tv department of Doherty, Clifford, Steers & Shenfield Inc., advertising agency.

Mr. and Mrs. Mike Max, daughter, Feb. 1, South Bend, Ind.; father is a staff announcer at WSBT and WSBT-TV in that city.

Mr. and Mrs. [illegible], daughter, New York, March 10. Father is an MCA exec.

Mr. and Mrs. Don Blackburn, son, New York, March 11. Father is vice president in charge of publicity for Parkson Advertising.

Joe Gillespie

FEB. 8, 1903 — MAR. 10, 1961

GOODBYE UNCLE JOE

Case:

DID W. T. STEAD "BUY" A 13-YEAR-OLD GIRL?[1]

Case:

DID GOVERNOR WALL ORDER A MAN FLOGGED 800 TIMES WITH AN INCH-THICK ROPE?[2]

Case:

WAS A BUTCHER FROM WAGGA WAGGA, AUSTRALIA HEIR TO THE TICHBORNE FORTUNE?[3]

One of the most fascinating of all television series is Granada's "On Trial," the re-enactment of famous courtroom cases. The programmes are enlightening, entertaining, and listened-to...which is what we are after

at GRANADA TV NETWORK, ENGLAND

[1] MR. STEAD DID BUY A GIRL, BUT HIS INTENTIONS WERE QUITE INNOCENT. [2] GOVERNOR WALL WAS QUITE GUILTY. [3] THE BUTCHER DIED QUITE POOR.

FILMS | VIDEO | TV FILMS | RADIO | MUSIC | STAGE

VARIETY

PRICE 35¢

Published Weekly at 154 West 46th Street, New York 36, N. Y., by Variety, Inc. Annual subscription, $15. Single copies, 35 cents.
Second Class Postage at New York, N. Y.
© COPYRIGHT 1961 BY VARIETY, INC. ALL RIGHTS RESERVED

Vol. 222 No. 4 NEW YORK, WEDNESDAY, MARCH 22, 1961 80 PAGES

PALEY PUMPS FOR BETTER TV

Stars-and-Agents Tell Producers, Not Vice Versa, When Films Start

Hollywood, March 21.

Metro producer Joe Pasternak hopes to start and finish three pictures this year, he said yesterday. What with actors, agents, writers and stars, each with their multifarious problems, the producer has little or nothing to say when his picture will actually be before the cameras.

"Everybody is telling me when the people I want will be available and I as producer have very little voice in the matter."

This, in explanation of delay in getting his next pic gunned. As of the moment it's "Jumbo," starring Doris Day, in May. (Miss Day according to Columbia, will begin work in "Animal In Me" late summer).

Pasternak is still trying to tie up other leads for "Jumbo" and as of yesterday hadn't been set on director and other details. Hence, as matters stand, Miss Day is set and script is finl but from there on in J P is hoping for the rainbow by late next month to consolidate his position into action.

"Bottletop Affair" will probably be next. Irving and Harriet (Frank) Ravetch have just completed script on same.

Then should come "Only a Paper Moon." Saturepost yarn purchased six months ago for which outline has just been approved.

But come May, there's no guarantee "Jumbo" will roll. Originally J P wanted to do it in Cinerama. He dropped the plan but with Sol C. Siegel, production veepee looking for new triple screen projects, anything can happen on "Jumbo."

D.C. Press Club Strips Stripper From Program In Deference to JFK

Washington, March 21.

It wasn't easy, but taste, dignity, professional reputation, clean-living etc., have prevailed over the forces of vulgarity and indecency last week at the National Press Club. Someone lined up a dancer for the annual Congressional Night program tonight (Tues.). But then it was learned that she not only danced, but shed her clothes. So, the stripper was stripped from the bill. And the Press Club's good name remains unblemished.

Dancer is Julie Gibson who, one delegate assigned to assess the act, says is inoffensive and even artful. Recently from Philadelphia, she does a routine called "The Bashful Bride"—which, while hardly bashful, is not wholly immodest. She's proving a draw at the Champagne Room currently (reviewed by VARIETY March 8).

After she was approached for the program, an agonizing reappraisal took place among Clubbers

(Continued on page 77)

Veep and Mrs. Johnson See 'Carnival' in Wash.

Washington, March 21.

National Theatre manager Scott Kirkpatrick acknowledged the rap on his second floor, walkup office door. In stepped Mrs. Lyndon B. Johnson, wife of the U.S. Vice President.

"My husband and I have been trying to reach you by phone for several days," she explained, "but your line is always busy. Is there any way we could buy two tickets to 'Carnival'?"

The David Merrick production, trying out here, was SRO from the day after it opened to unanimous raves. It took Kirkpatrick 24 hours, but he produced two seats for the Vice President and Second Lady.

N.Y. Daily News Prints Twofers; Readers Use 'Em

There were at least 1,925,000 extra twofers in circulation last Monday (20) for "Tenth Man" at the Ambassador Theatre, N. Y.

A facsimile of a discount ducat for the Saint Subber-Arthur Cantor production was published in the Monday edition of the N.Y. Daily News (1,925,000 daily circulation) in answer to a number of telephone calls made to the paper by individuals requesting information about legit exchange tickets. A brief explanation of how the twofers are distributed accompanied the illustration which, incidentally, might have confused some readers,

(Continued on page 76)

62,500,000 HEARD FIGHT ON ABC RADIO

A record 62,500,000 listeners heard the exclusive ABC Radio web coverage of the Patterson-Johansson heavyweight title fight Monday night (13), according to a projection of a 100-city Trendex survey.

Audience for the third fight, says ABC, was 1,500,000 more than for their second fight a year ago, which was the previous record audience. Only surpassing auds were for certain speeches of President Roosevelt during WW II, says ABC.

Fight was carried on 550 stations in the U.S. and Canada, largest lineup for a commercial broadcast in the network's history.

'WITH QUALITY YOU CAN'T LOSE'

By GEORGE ROSEN

A lot of shows have been cast into orbit since the days of "Paley's Comet," when the CBS board chairman stunned the broadcasting industry with his now-storied razzle-dazzle maneuvers that were to project the Columbia Broadcasting System into a new era of affluence and influence. Through his capital gains acquisition of Amos 'n' Andy, Jack Benny, et al, Paley in a few bold strokes asserted himself as the master showman of the kilocycles.

Fifteen years later Paley is still pumping for a good show. If, in the intervening years, CBS has enjoyed a preeminence in the competitive programming sweepstakes (and the current Nielsens testify to the web's continued out-front status), it's primarily because the Paley zest and enthusiasm in the area of programming remain undiminished. After 32 years in the broadcasting wars, he's a sucker for quality, and with quality, says Paley, you can't help but win. "We've made a lot of money over the years, and you can't disassociate one from the other," he argues.

For all the travails, pressures, tensions (which for a period had some serious consequences to his own health) and shifting trends and economic patterns, Paley even now, as back in the immediate post-World War II days when he decided to do something about establishing a kingpin status as an

(Continued on page 34)

Ready Eichmann Trial Cameras

By JOSEPH LAPID

Tel Aviv, March 21.

Court, which will try Adolph Eichmann, finally decided to permit cameras into the courtroom. The three judges visited the courtroom in order to get firsthand information of how the cameras will be placed and they were satisfied that the shootings will not disturb the proceedings. Though anticipated, the permission is still a surprise, at least from the legal point of view, as there is no precedent in Israel.

Judges approved the agreement signed between the government and Capital City Broadcasting Co., which gives the company exclusive rights in the courtroom. This leaves for all the tv, movie and radio networks only a limited field for competition. They will place their cameras in front of the courthouse, they will interview witnesses after they appeared etc., but they will have to share among

(Continued on page 54)

Equity Disavows B'way Picketing On Theatre Segregation in South

By JESSE GROSS

The Negro American Labor Council took matters into its own hands last week in connection with the Actors Equity campaign to eliminate bookings of legit productions in segregated theatres in the South. The picketing of four Broadway theatres Saturday afternoon (18), was not sanctioned by Equity but reportedly involved at least two members of the union.

Leaflets passed out by the pickets were headlined, "The Negro American Labor Council supports Actors Equity Assn. and southern students in their fight to end racial discrimination and segregation against Negro actors in southern theatres." According to Frederick O'Neal, chairman of Equity's Committee on Ethnic Minorities, the union was not consulted about the picketing and was not aware that it was to happen until a day before the action occurred."

The picketing, according to the leaflet, was to have been confined to three theatres on the south side of 45th St., the Booth, Plymouth and Royale. It was extended to the Morosco on the other side of the street, however. Although the leaflet explained, "We are not singling out any one theatre or any one producer in our opposition to discrimination and segregation . . . ," the three theatres originally scheduled for the picketing all house David Merrick productions. The three are also operated by the Shuberts.

The Morosco, a City Investing

(Continued on page 76

Bill Randle on Culture Kick, Quits Deejay Role

Cleveland, March 21.

Bill Randle, w.k. Cleveland deejay with WERE for the last decade, is quitting his air shots, but will continue as a program and promotion consultant for the station.

The 38-year-old Randle, who is currently on the faculty of Fenn College as an instructor in European Civilization, is giving up his afternoon deejay strip to concentrate on a doctorate in American culture, which he hopes to complete this summer at Western Reserve Univ.

With WERE since 1949, Randle was an idol of teenagers and helped push the station to top position.

If Sponsors Yell Loud Enough All Webs'll Go Tint

Perhaps CBS-TV or ABC-TV won't wait until that magic 10% of the nation is saturated with tint tv sets to go to tint production. It could happen first if enough advertisers demand color—like Eastman-Kodak on the NBC Disney series—and are willing to pick up the extra cost themselves.

It's only food for thought and nothing of the sort may occur, but the idea was prompted by E-K's status. Bankroller, long on CBS' Ed Sullivan show, shifted because they insist they couldn't get color at CBS. A $6,000,000 cancellation resulted.

If the sponsors are willing to pay the extra cost of color, there are fair assurances from CBS that it

(Continued on page 52)

'MARY'S' MERRY WAYS: FAST 40% PROFIT

"Mary, Mary" will repay its entire $100,000 investment plus a 40% initial profit next Monday (27). The Roger L. Stevens production of Jean Kerr's comedy, currently in its third week at the Helen Hayes Theatre, N.Y., is earning about $11,000 weekly operating profit, plus a share of the bonus payments from the film sale.

The production cost $71,006 to bring in, including heavy expense for preliminary advertising and a small tryout profit. The first week's Broadway operating net was offset

(Continued on page 74)

Ernest Henderson's Jam; Words from His Memoirs Embarrass Israel Junket

Tel Aviv, March 21

The kidding-on-the-square here is that Ernest Henderson, Sheraton Hotels prexy, can back up his good intentions by renaming the Sheraton-Tel Aviv "KoSheraton."

No question but what some Israelis are still smarting after the rhubarb last week over Henderson's book, "World of Mr Sheraton," alleged to contain some pro-Nazi sentiment. The contretemps, of course, is that the brouhaha broke smack in the midst of a glittering VIP junket preeming the new Sheraton link.

Henderson denies anti-Semitic overtones attributed to the tome, but that doesn't remove the disquiet lingering here.

Naturally, episode was grist for witty byliners on hand Art Buchwald called the book "Henderson's Dead Sea Scroll," and Harry Golden quipped it's S.O.P. in Sheraton hostelries in lieu of the Gideon Bible.

Other Yank scribes on hand for the blowout included Earl Wilson, Bob Considine and Leonard Lyons.

NBC-TV Color a Natural to Disney; Views on Freedomland & N.Y. Fair

By ART WOODSTONE

Walt Disney, who has been in film production for 41 years and has made untold millions in that time, offered one key to his success and also tried to clear up what he felt was an erroneous impression about his company's work.

As for success, he told reporters that he sought to "keep it simple" and do only things "I believe in." As for the erroneous impression, he said, "People are wrong. I have never aimed at children. In fact, I test all the films I make only with adults; I don't know what age the children are I'm supposed to appeal to and I haven't aimed at them. The Mickey Mouse program was the first time in my life I built anything for children . . . I wouldn't be in business if I just appealed to kids."

On the threshhold of his eighth year in television, the veteran animator is preparing a series of 25 one-hour programs for a berth on NBC-TV's Sunday night schedule for next season. While he admits to spending "way over what what I get" from NBC for the 7:30-8:30 p.m. series, he seemed enthused about the prospects of being presented for the first time on video in color.

"I've been living with color since '32—a world I've lived in longer,

(Continued on page 46)

Robt. Moses Clarifies Entertainment Aspects For the N.Y. World's Fair

New York.

Editor, VARIETY:

An article in your issue of March 15th is based upon the supposition that we are not interested in amusement at the 1964-1965 New York World's Fair and are concentrating solely on industrial and foreign exhibits. This does not represent our position.

The Fair's final consideration of proposals for amusement features had to be delayed until we could determine what portion of the grounds would be used for such enterprises. This determination is now being made.

The most expensive amusements or, if you please, entertainments, will be part of the industrial exhibitions and in some foreign pavilions. Here the exhibitors can afford to put on good shows in the way they do on television, radio and the live industrial musicals, not to make money directly, but to

Continued on page 66)

Gene Barry's Nitery Bow

Gene Barry, lead in the "Bat Masterson" teleseries, is starting on a nitery tour.

His first date will be at the Lotos Club, Washington, April 20 for 10 days.

Vichey May Sell NC?

Unconfirmable but strongly reported is the possible return of Marks Levine as head of National Concerts, which he sold to Luben Vichey about seven years ago. Under a proviso in his contract Levine was obliged to stay out of concert business for five years though of late he has been active as a consultant to various orchestras and organizations.

It is believed Levine holds an option to buy, but terms are unknown.

Behan's One-Niter In Saloon (Where Else?) A Leprechaun Act

Brendan Behan is continuing the vogue set by several writers at the Blue Angel, N.Y., which seems to be on a literary kick. With the present trend, bonifaces Max Gordon & Herbert Jacoby, will look at library references before they consider hiring anyone. In the last two shows, they had Woody Allen, who has been writing for television, followed by Jack Douglas, who has been in the stalls with several comedy tomes. Now on a one-nighter, going into St. Paddy's Day, playwrite Brendan Behan gave a picturesque and unusual performance that delighted one of most crowded houses at the Blue Angel since Shelley Berman played there.

Keeping the house waiting for about one-hour, Behan first made the nitery rounds by stopping at the Village Vanguard to catch Gerry Mulligan with whom he'll appear in Alex Cohen's "Impulse." He arrived to one of the biggest salvos, starting at the door. He shook hands with Enrico Banducci, the hungry i (San Francisco) owner who had been threatening to sue him

(Continued on page 66)

FAIRS PUT $$ SQUEEZE ON HAWAII POLITICOS

Honolulu, March 21.

A group of Fair-minded boosters are urging legislature to ante up $500,000 so Hawaii can participate in the Seattle exposition and up to $1,000,000 for all-out participation in the New York World's Fair. Some tradesters predict the budget-harassed politicos will adopt a "Let George Do It," the George referring to commercial business and the several carriers that link Hawaii with the mainland.

Meanwhile, the State's faced with the problem of taking over —for the first time the so-called "50th State Fair," hitherto staged by the Honolulu Junior Chamber of Commerce.

PAUL ANKA

Says: "Thanks DINAH SHORE for this wonderful kudo." DINAH SHORE announced to 43,000,000 TV viewers.

"PAUL ANKA has sung in almost every major country in the world—to standing ovations. He has given added proof to the old saying '. . . music is the universal language' and that teen agers scream the same way everywhere."

Russo Show Biz To Crowd Paris

Paris, March 21.

The Russian show biz cultural offensive will be strong here this spring and summer. It is also a part of the cultural exchange programs between France and the USSR. In April, the Moscow Music Hall installs itself at the 5000-seater Palais Des Sports, followed by the Kirov Ballet of Leningrad, the Moscow Vachtangov Theatre and a folk group of 200 dancers and singers at the Soviet Exposition due in September.

France also will send a theatre group to Russia, Marie Bell with "Phedre," Marcel Marceau, singer Colette Renard, and the choral group of The Nine Companions of Song.

The U.S. will send the ANTA Theatre Guild with three plays, "The Skin of Our Teeth," with Helen Hayes," "Glass Menagerie" and "Miracle Worker," plus private appearances of the N.Y. Off-Broadway group, The Living Theatre with "The Connection," "Many Loves," "Jungle of the Cities" and "West Side Story."

U.S. Not Neglecting Its Culture—Geo. R. Marek

New York.

Editor, VARIETY:

"U.S. Lags on Culture," says a headline on P. 1 of last week's VARIETY. This curious statement is attributed to Isaac Stern and he was supposed to have made it before the Albuquerque Civic Symphony.

I have very great respect for Mr. Stern's interpretation of the Beethoven Concerto, but somewhat less respect for Mr. Stern's interpretation of our cultural climate. Such oversimplified pronouncements seem to me dangerous, and I am getting a little tired of the derogation of our country in favor of praising the miracles that the Soviets and other countries are supposed to perform for culture.

What is this thing called culture? Is it a concept which exists isolated in a rarefied atmosphere or is it part of life itself, that life of the citizen which is inextricably bound to freedom, to competitive development, to expression of criticism, to a choice by the public of what it wants and what it doesn't want?

It is not true, in my opinion, that we are doing nothing for culture.

(Continued on page 77)

An Agile 88

Rome March 21.

A sensation here in its Italian adaptation is the Henry James story, "The Aspern Papers." Part of the elderly former mistress of the long-dead poet is played by Emma Grammatica, herself the grand old lady of Italian legit. At the close of Act II each performance she falls to the ground, flat on her face, to the dumbfoundment of the audience.

Actress Grammatica is now 88.

'The Consul': What Does It Prove?

By GENE ARNEEL

A new plateau in home toll telecasting was reached this week as International Telemeter offered its clients in West Toronto a taped version of Gian-Carlo Menotti's "The Consul." A week's run (once nightly, two matinees) began last Thursday (16), with the viewer called upon to deposit $1.50 in the coin box for a one-time living-room exposure.

The lyric drama is offered in its entirety, just as Menotti composed it, with a couple of five-minute intermissions as he has designated and with the end of each break signalled by a buzzer as in any legit theatre.

The legit effect was further strived for via the circulation of specially-printed copies of Playbill.

This N. Y. VARIETY reviewer caught "Consul" in advance of the Etobicoke run but reputedly under the same conditions as obtaining with Canadian subscribers. A home-sized television set in the Telemeter office in New York received the play through taped transmission.

Menotti's "opera" remains a powerful work as so effectively sung by Patricia Neway repeating the lead assignment she enacted in 1951 on Broadway. Norman Kelley, Regina Sarfaty, Chester Ludgin, Evelyn Sachs, Leon Lishner and others in the cast, under the splendid direction of Bill Butler and William A. Graham, provide a vivid performance of the grim but not depressing story.

But the observer is given to wonder, whose cup of tea is this singing saga of oppressed and frustrated people in a European police state? It's an extremely specialized property for a limited art-bent audience. Certainly it isn't run-of-the-mill programming found on conventional advertising-supported video, though it's asked in the trade if this differs notably from "Play of The Week" and other highbrow trys on regular tv.

Give Telemeter a pat on the back for departing from the past pattern of features and ice hockey. But, also, let's ask a question. Lofty as it is, is "Consul" really too far ahead of what the NTA syndication offers on the regular tv outlets? Even the commercial interruptions couldn't impair, say, "Iceman Cometh." Telemeter plans to continue with fine programming, whereas possibly NTA might run into economic roadblocks. Meanwhile, there have been "Iceman," "Waltz of the Toreadors," "No Exit," etc.

View from Local Etobicoke Scene

Toronto, March 21.

Transplanting "The Consul" from stage to the black-and-white 21-inch screen of tollvision is reminscent of regular tv but packs a special wallop. For this Telemeter "theatre in the home" production, Patricia Neway sings the role she created on Broadway. (She is currently in "The Sound of Music.")

"The Consul," which has been seen in a score of countries and been translated into 12 languages, follows the Menotti story-line completely in three acts and six scenes. Five sets were built with six cameras and three mike booms used in the final taping. (The 38-piece orchestra, conducted by Werner Torkanowsky, is never on-camera.)

As in the play version, John Sorel (Chester Ludgin), an underground member, is pursued to his home by secret police and hides while they interrogate his wife and his mother (Evelyn Sachs). Sorel later emerges and advises the women to seek the aid of the consulate to obtain exit visas and meet him later across the border.

At the consulate, Magda is confronted by the secretary (Regina Sarfaty), who goes by the rule of the book. From there on, the futility and frustration of waiting for months. When Sorel returns at his own peril to be with her—and is captured—Magda returns to her apartment and turns on the gas and dies but not before singing the "dream" sequence.

Star, principals and bit singers were in excellent voice. Acting was superior with special bows to Patricia Neway, Chester Ludgin, Regina Sarfaty, Evelyn Sachs and Norman Kelley.

"The Consul" is the first of four plays to be presented over Trans-Canada Telemeter in the next seven weeks. Skedded is Carol Channing in "Show Girl" for week of April 2; Anne Meacham in "Hedda Gabler," week of April 20; "An Evening with Edith Piaf in Paris," week of May 4.

While "The Consul" is on Channel 5C of Trans-Canada Telemeter, Etobicoke subscribers are given the choice—at $1 per performance—of "The Wackiest Ship in the Army" on Channel 5A and "It Started in Naples" on Channel 5B. Stressed that films are full running time and that they—and "The Consul"—are not interrupted by commercials.

McStay.

3/22

VARIETY

Subscription Order Form

Enclosed find check for $.....

Please send VARIETY for ☐ One Year ☐ Two Years ☐ Three Years

To .....
(Please Print Name)

Street .....

City ..... Zone.... State.....

Regular Subscription Rates

One Year—$15.00 Two Years—$28.00

Three Years—$39.00

Canada and Foreign—$1 Additional Per Year

VARIETY Inc.

154 West 46th Street New York 36, N. Y.

VARIETY

Trade Mark Registered

FOUNDED 1905 by SIME SILVERMAN; Published Weekly by VARIETY, INC.
Syd Silverman, President
154 West 46th St., New York 36, N. Y. JUdson 2-2700
Hollywood 28
6404 Sunset Boulevard, Hollywood 9-1141
Washington 4
1202 National Press Building, STerling 3-5445
Chicago 11
400 No. Michigan Ave., DElaware 7-4984
London, S.W.1
49 St. James's Street, Piccadilly, HYde Park 4561-2-3

SUBSCRIPTION Annual, $15; Foreign, $16; Single Copies, 35 Cents

ABEL GREEN, Editor

Volume 222 120 Number 4

INDEX

Bills	67	New Acts	67
Casting News	74	Night Club Reviews	68
Chatter	78	Obituaries	79
Film Reviews	15	Pictures	3
House Reviews	62	Radio	25
Inside Legit	72	Record Reviews	56
Inside Pictures	19	Frank Scully	77
Inside Radio-TV	55	Television	25
International	13	TV Film	30
Legitimate	70	Television Reviews	35
Literati	77	Unit Reviews	67
Music	56	Vaudeville	62
		Wall Street	24

DAILY VARIETY
(Published in Hollywood by Daily Variety, Ltd.)
$15 a year. $20 Foreign.

DO-IT-OURSELF CENSORSHIP

Japan, Hong Kong Take Top Awards At Eighth Asian Fest in Manila

Hong Kong, March 21.

The eighth Asian Film Festival, held in Manila, is now history. Japan and Hong Kong swept the major awards by winning the coveted best picture and best actress awards, respectively. However, criticism has been leveled by some sections of the Chinese and English press in the Colony at the fest jurors' decision in giving Mandarin actress Lin Dai her third "Oscar," called the Golden Festival Award at this festival. This was for her role as a dancer in the film, "Les Belles," one of three Shaw entries. It's contended by these that the role did not require much acting.

Incidentally, Lin Dai was once considered for a role in the Hollywood film "Other Side of the Coin." Although it was expected to do so, India did not formally apply for fest membership. So when the festival is held next year in Seoul in May, Indian films may still be shown only as guest entries.

One important decision was reached at the festival. This concerned the Japanese announcement to receive 25 trainees from the "underprivileged" film-making Asian nations who will go through a course in film production for six months to one year. The Japanese will pay them while they study. Move is interpreted as a smart, timely one by the Japanese in showing their desire to enhance the standards of the film industry in these countries which also exist as markets for Japanese photographic equipment.

What is likely to occur in the near future is a gradual easing of Japanese restrictions on Asian-made films which to date are classified as foreign and so come under the foreign quota in Japan.

See Gene Picker As Indie Prod.

Hollywood, March 21.

Eugene Picker is expected to enter independent film production here following a month's vacation in Europe. Former prez of Loew's Theatres cannot, under the terms of his severance agreement, engage in exhibition for five years.

Picker has been resting pro tem at the home of his brother Arnold at Golden Beach, Florida.

He had been offered but sidestepped the presidency of the Congress of Exhibitors.

FEDERAL TAXATION UNFAIR TO 'PEAKS'

Hollywood, March 21.

Claiming that artists in film and teevee industry have six to seven years on top and then may go beaging for work, Gordon Stulberg, Columbia veepee and assistant secretary, told L.A. Lawyers Club that federal government's tax structure doesn't "take sufficient account of creative heights and depths in the life span" of entertainment performers.

He commented depreciation allowances in certain businesses, like oil and others, are taken into account, but not for actors and actresses whose peak earnings are limited by the very nature of the industry.

Stulberg pointed out that to beat situation taxwise, artists have three alternatives as recourse today:

(1) Establish "tax shelter" abroad by taking up residence in low-tax country such as Switzerland.

(2) Deferred compensation which must be worked out with Internal Revenue.

(3) To become independent producer.

Col exec also held "the lawyer who can become a confidant not only buoys up client but also serves his interests most effectively." He added, that when an attorney gives his client advice he should stick to it regardless of client's temperament.

Animal Lovers, Ahoy

American Humane Assn., which watches over the treatment of animals in show business, provides the boxscore.

Theatrical and television films last month had on the "casting" rosters 1,159 horses, 16 mules, 80 cattle, 19 dogs, three goats, 39 chickens and 12 ducks.

So Who Says Subtle Film Over-Taxes Levine's 'Sell'?

Unusual interest is mounting in the Manhattan picture trade, and especially the import fraternity, anticipating the Italo "The Women" (La Ciocciara), set for American preem in mid-April at the Sutton Theatre, N.Y.

Explanation is that Joe Levine, the Boston Barnum identified with anything but "artie" entries, has U.S. and Canadian rights to the Sophia Loren-starrer, marking his bow in the art field. Hence the buzz being generated. Will the association, admittedly incongruous, have adverse effect on the boxoffice? The Embassy Pictures topper himself maintains it shouldn't, naturally, but that doesn't obviate the question mark hovering about.

The Sutton showcasing should prove the definitive test, since newspaper ads won't have Levine ducking his responsibility. Showman's name, it's been decided, is to boldly emblazon blurb copy for all to see. This gives speculative rise to how widely known is Levine and his penchant for spectacles among art film buffs. And secondly, will bias win out among

(Continued on page 19)

Hirsch & Co. Analysis: Fiscal 1961 Deriving Small 'Spartacus' Gain

"Spartacus" got off quite well in the big locations but is not getting "equal appraisals in the second run of middle-sized cities." And for this reason the picture, along with the accounting treatment, may contribute little or nothing to fiscal 1961 for Universal, according to Hirsch & Co.

Earlier indications were that "Spartacus" would mean a major hypo to U earnings in the current year.

Hirsch says the epic should be "a much more substantial earnings factor in subsequent years."

Wall Street outfit is doing a sizeup of Decca and mentions U, financier - distributor of "Spartacus," because it's substantially owned. Theory is that Decca

(Continued on page 77)

TOA WANTS CODE TRULY RESPECTED

Washington, March 21.

In an unprecedented move for self-censorship, the Theatre Owners of America board yesterday (Mon.) authorized an exhibitor committee to advise TOA members as to the "matter and content" of all films in advance. Details of how the group will operate are, for the time being, high in the air. E. D. Martin of Columbus, Ga., who heads Martin Theatres, has been named chairman of that committee; he already chairs the censorship group.

The TOA resolution adopted by the 75-member board at its mid-winter meeting also called on the production code to expand its caution before passing films hereafter.

Concerned about U.S. Supreme Court's Times film censorship decision, TOA wants to nip state and local censor boards in the bud by exhibiting nothing requiring censorship at such levels

The resolution called on TOA members to "support and respect" the production code. The exhibitor organization wants to work closely with the motion picture assn: TOA prexy Albert M. Pickus of Stamford, Conn., slated a meeting with MPAA prez Eric Johnston to discuss tightening the code.

In its resolution, TOA's board said the organization "adheres unequivocally to the principle that the motion picture medium is entitled to the full protection offered by the federal constitution and believes that any invasion of that constitutional protection is offensive, not only to the interests of the motion picure industry but to the basic philosophy underlying our American way of life."

The section of the resolution applying to TOA's own plans read: "TOA does recognize a broad responsibility to provide the theatre-going public with the means of determining for themselves and for their families the desirability of seeing a given motion picture. Accordingly, TOA resolves that it will establish a system which will offer information to its members concerning the subject matter and content of all motion pictures available for exhibition, to the end that the members of TOA shall make such material, and any other perti-

(Continued on page 17)

Arnold Grant Sells Out; See Gene Picker's Cousin Exiting Loew's Chain

Arnold M. Grant, director of Loew's, has sold out his entire block of stock in the theatre-hotel company. This has been taken as an indication that Grant will relinquish his association with the company. He's a cousin of Eugene Picker, who recently bowed out as president of the company.

Grant disposed of 10,500 shares of Loew's, this amount being all he held. He has been known right along as a "Picker man" on the board.

Query for Trade: Is It The Hard-Ducat Aura That Makes Them Flock to Grind Run?

By VINCENT CANBY

To paraphrase United Artists' ad campaign, the fiscal story of "The Alamo" might be told this way: "The roadshow which became a grind show – the grind show which became a smash."

And thereby hangs a tale, and a subject for debate when distribs get together these days to what extent does the non-smash roadshow launching of a pic add appeal and prestige to the film when it subsequently goes out in general release?

John Wayne's multi-million dollar slice of Texas Americana, something of a disappointment in its premiere roadshow dates last fall, has now moved into a boffo general release in the domestic market. UA veep William Heineman expects it eventually to roll up the biggest domestic gross ever brought in by a UA film in 35m. general release.

The exec won't tie himself down to a specific domestic rental prediction right now, but if what he says is true, "Alamo" will be doing better than the estimated $7,500,000 brought in by the 1956 UA release, "Trapeze" and the $7,200,000 brought in by "Some Like It Hot" in 1959.

The grand-daddy of all UA grossers, of course, is Mike Todd's "Around The World in 80 Days," which earned an estimated $22,000,000, but this was through an entirely successful roadshow playoff, plus general release.

When queried as to whether he thinks the 17 roadshow dates which preceded "Alamo" added a certain extra "want-to-see" to the general release now, Heineman says candidly, "I wish I knew."

Every One Separate

His point is that every picture is so much of an individual proposition that Monday morning quarterbacking—at least on this aspect of the matter—is of no value. Non-UA industryites suggest, however, that the nature of the pic—an unsophisticated, historical adventure yarn—made it a natural for the mass audiences who are not necessarily the backbone of the roadshow patronage.

UA now has 410 35m prints on the pic at work, plus 60 70m Todd-AO prints with which the film's

(Continued on page 17)

Blacktie Shopping Center

Philadelphia, March 21.

Philly exhib Melvin Fox launches his new Levittown (N. J.) 1,200-seater, the Fox Thursday (23) with a black tie showing of "Alamo."

House, in the Levittown Shopping Centre, cost $500,000 and is equipped for 70m projection. It's named for Fox pere (Jacob, still active in local film trade).

Metro-Gaumont Longterm Deal To Coproduce

Metro this week entered a coproduction deal with S. N. E. Gaumont of France. Gaumont's Alain Poire will be exec producer and with the participation of established French performers and directors. Pact is a long-termer calling for several features a year, all to be made in France and distributed by M-G worldwide with the exception of France and Belgium, where the rights are held by Gaumont.

Details were worked out by Joseph R. Vogel, M-G president, Robert H. O'Brien, v.p.-treasurer, and Maurice Silverstein, v.p. of Metro International. Execs have been on the Continent the past week in quest of product, mainly via the coproduction route.

According to homeoffice sources, the agreement with Gaumont is the most elaborate foreign tieup entered into by M-G, calling for many high-budget projects.

Catholic Quip: Justices' Decisions Read Like Classical Anthologies

Boston, March 21.

"It must be argued, however, that once we place films in the free speech category they should have the same rules applied to them as to other free speech areas except where compelling reasons could be found to give them some unique quality." The Pilot, official newspapers of the Catholic Archdiocese of Boston, said in an editorial, "No Advance," recently.

"The Court gave no hint of why films should be singled out for 'prior restraint' except the suggestion that it was convenient—but that much could be said of books and television. In this way the film as a medium of expression is given a special kind of restriction not applied to others and no reason is supplied by the Court. This is

(Continued on page 19)

'Porgy' & Bess' On Shelf in U.S.

Samuel Goldwyn's "Porgy and Bess," which has been less than the boxoffice success initially hoped for in the domestic U. S.-Canada market, has been withdrawn from release. Decision to take the Gershwin musical out of the market was made by Goldwyn, and Columbia, the distributor, is going along with the idea.

"Porgy" has played about 2,700 United States dates, meaning lots more to go. It ran afoul of the Dixie segregation fight, Negroes there being unable to see the all-Negro film.

Undoubtedly the picture, which is strong abroad, will be re-entered in the States in the not too distant future and with a new sales and promotional push.

WALLIS LOCKS DOOR TO HIS 'NITE'S WORK'

Representatives of VARIETY, DAILY VARIETY, Time and Newsweek have been barred from advance screenings of "All in a Night's Work" by producer Hal Wallis. Latter sent the notice to Paramount, distributor of his product.

Wallis is believed vexed because of these publications' downbeat notices on his previous feature, "G. I. Blues."

MGM Merges '3d Reich' Into Rotha's Nearly Completed Hitler Documentary

Metro, which bought the film rights to William L. Shirer's nonfiction bestseller, "The Rise and Fall of the Third Reich," last December, has entered into a joint distribution agreement with Real Film of Hamburg for the documentary about Adolph Hitler which Paul Rotha has been putting together for Real.

Rotha, who has been assembling and editing the footage for producer Walter Koppel, said in New York Monday (20) that he expected his film to be ready for screening in June and that Shirer will be one of the three narrators. Rotha was en route back to Hamburg from Hollywood where he showed the pic to Metro execs. Shirer will probably also contribute to or supplement the narration already written by Rotha. Film will be known by the title of the Shirer book.

Metro will have distrib rights to English-speaking markets and other territories, with Real having rights for Germany and some other European territories.

Rotha has been acquiring footage for the pic from both sides of the Iron Curtain for the last two years.

Puns Yet

Chicago, March 21.

Part of the wall of a four-story building being demolished fell on the Surf Theatre here cutting off electrical power. House lost only the Sunday matinee.

First light to flicker back on was the title on the marquee—"Never on Sunday."

'El Cid' Battle Scenes Prove Biggest Come-On for Spain's Orange Coast

Peniscola, Spain, March 21.

Film producer Samuel Bronston has done for Spain's Orange Blossom Coast what travel groups and government tourism in Barcelona and Valencia have been aiming at for years—to kick up a tourist storm during sun-kissed winter months.

This neat little trick was accomplished last month when the Madrid-based film-maker sent his motorized production unit to the ancient peninsula town of Peniscola.

On February 4, word went out up and down the Valencia-Barcelona coast that director Anthony Mann had commenced thundering battle sequences between Ben Yussuf's untutored hordes and the valiant armies assembled by Spain's 11th Century hero, El Cid, for the prized conquest of Valencia.

Within a matter of days, thousands of tourists began trekking to Peniscola for the biggest free show any film producer ever unintentionally provided, to create a traffic and migrant population problem no one in the Bronston Organization had forseen.

Not only did Mann strain to clear ogglers from out of camera range, but mobs of fans dogged the footsteps of Charlton Heston, who plays El Cid, throughout the shooting day.

Special contingents of Spain's motorized police rushed cooperatively to the location site and cordoned off every primary artery giving access to the town. But special excursion bus loads of tourists continued to pour in from points as far inland as Madrid, Zaragoza and even Andalucia.

How El Cid saved Valencia, and probably all of Europe, from Ben Yussuf's well-organized Moslem forces back in the 11th Century, is being re-enacted in this little picturesque town founded by the Phoenicians in the Second Century B.C. This magnificent decor had been used in the past for Luis Berlanga's "Calabuch," more recently

(Continued on page 24)

'Films Lack Help College Courses Could Provide'

Oldtime industryite Arthur Mayer is making a pitch for the establishment of courses in the history, technique and appreciation of motion pictures at all American colleges.

Speaking recently at the Vanderbilt Film Symposium at Smith College, Mayer said that the colleges of the U.S. can be of inestimable value in building up support for quality productions. "No institution of learning," he said, "would for a moment consider functioning without courses in fiction, poetry and drama, but the great majority of colleges pay no attention to motion pictures."

Mayer pointed out that with 44,000,000 people attending films weekly and approximately five times that many watching pix on tv, "it would appear fully as important, if not more so, that motion picture courses be conducted at every college in the U.S."

Mayer contended that where an open market prevails and where the public pays the bill, as it does for films and not for tv, a country will get as good entertainment and art as it deserves.

"A sluggish, apathetic people," he said, "will be satisfied with sentimental, escapist movies or those concerned excessively with sex. A strong, virile nation will demand and receive films warm with humanity, tenderness and innate decency."

He indicated that if the screen version of "Lolita" becomes profitable, this is the type of picture that will increasingly dominate our screens. However, if a film, such as "Sons and Lovers" proves a success, "we will have more pictures of this high quality." Mayer's point is that the colleges of the country can be of great help in building up support for productions of the calibre of "Sons and Lovers."

BRONZE-NAME DONORS

$1,000 Gets You Immortal Billing At Film Museum

Hollywood, March 21.

Hollywood Museum Associates, set up to raise funds for upcoming Hollywood Motion Picture & Television Museum in addition to coin made available by Los Angeles County, has sent out invitations to 200 community, film and television leaders to become founder-members of organization at $1,000 a throw.

Members will have their names inscribed in bronze on Wall of Honor of the rotunda of planned $4,000,000 museum.

Founder members already signed include Desi Arnaz, Bing Crosby, Robert Cummings, Justin Dart, Walt Disney, Ralph Edwards, A. E. England, William German, William Goetz, John Guedel, Eric Johnston, Sol Lesser, Dore Schary, M. B. Silberberg, Frank Sinatra, Charles Toberman, Jack L. Warner and Jack Wrather.

MASS. FUND CLARIFIES ITS POSITION IN PAR

Boston.

Editor, VARIETY:

We were naturally interested to read your article on Page 3 of the March 15 issue of VARIETY, under the headline "Massachusetts Investment Trust Credited for Sharp Paramount Rise." We interpret your article to mean that the publication of the Annual Report of Massachusetts Investors Growth Stock Fund showing a purchase of 25,000 shares of Paramount Pictures has caused other investors to look closely at Paramount and subsequently to bid the shares up to the $80 level. It is quite possible that this is correct.

On the other hand, it has occured to us that some of your readers might misinterpret your article as meaning that purchase of the stock by Massachusetts Investors Growth Stock Fund itself had driven the stock to $80. Actually we now hold 35,000 shares in Massachusetts Investors Growth Stock Fund, 25,000 of which were purchased last year at an average price of $55.50 and 10,000 of which were purchased this year at an average price of $57.62½. We have not purchased any Paramount stock since Feb. 9, and therefore have played no direct part in the increase in the price of Paramount stock over the last month. We thought it might be interesting to you to have this information.

VARIETY has always been required reading for our industry specialist who has responsibility for the entertainment industry. You are to be congratulated on the remarkable job which you do in following and reporting on every aspect of show business.

John L. Cooper
(Director, Massachusetts Investors Growth Stock Fund Inc.)

Universal's $1.09 Pace

Further accenting its robust condition, Universal reported a first quarter net of $1,000,653, equal to $1.09 per share. That's under the comparable period last year. Like '60 quarter had "Pillow Talk" and "Operation Petticoat" momentum.

First quarter of '60, it happens, notched a $1,857,039 net, or $2.03 per share.

U. S. to Europe

Gideon Bachman
John Gielgud
Lena Horne
Betty King
Henry Levin
Frederick Loewe
Claude C. Philippe
Francoise Pierrat
Simone Pierrat
Paul Rocha
Mo Rothman
Paul Steiner
Paula Trueman

Europe to U. S.

Hardy Kruger
Henri Langlois
Art Lund
Arthur Penn

Larry Tisch to Israel; Film-Chairs Hasolelim

Laurence A. Tisch, chairman of Loew's Theatres and chairman of the 1961 campaign for the motion picture-amusement division of the United Jewish Appeal of Greater New York, off to Israel this week in connection with the community settlement of Hasolelim, in the valley of Galilee.

Division recently adopted Hasolelim as a new project, this being to provide housing, farming and other benefits for immigrants to the town.

Amusement drive last year, as spearheaded by Paramount president Barney Balaban and Metro counsel Irving Greenfield, raised $629,202.

Diversify, Yes; But in Show Biz, Columbia Credo

Hollywood, March 21.

Columbia Pictures diversification will be limited to interests identified with the entertainment biz, Abe Schneider, prexy, stated yesterday before entraining for Gotham after a month's studio visit.

"We're always examing things but we have never considered anything not identified with the entertainment world. It always has to do with showbusiness, something we know about rather than something strange and far afield."

Schneider averred there was no reason to differ from this policy now. He pointed to Screen Gems, TV commercials, TV station in Salt Lake City, Colpix Records and music companies (Columbia Pictures Music Corp. and Gower Music Corp. here and affiliation with Shapiro Bernstein in N.Y.) as typical of company's diversification policy.

Company is interested in Arc 120, but opinion is divided among execs who saw process at recent exhibition here as to its ultimate advantage. Feeling is general that money can be saved on developing prints which would give 70mm effect when screened with special lens. Since Columbia has no immediate plans for 70mm fix, negotiations are at a standstill.

Stanley Schneider, son of prexy, and Nat Cohn, h.o. exec who flew out here with Arc 120 principals, have returned east to make special study on savings, etc.

Leo Jaffe, exec veepee and treasurer, winged to Gotham yesterday. He also was here for a month. Gordon Stulberg, assistant secretary, planes out for NY today for week of high echelon confabs.

Revision in production plans for coming year will be announced in few days, including producers, properties, and titles.

On the lookout for new young talent, Col yesterday announced Gordon Carroll lining up with Gower plant as staff producer. Prior to that Arthur Hoffe was signed as producer and William Bloom has been on staff producer list prior to that.

L. A. to N. Y.

Peter Adams
Vicki Benet
Jerry Bresler
Mrs. Carl Brisson
Vivian Coleman
Joan Fontaine
Peter Glenville
Arthur Knight
Jackie Mason
Tom McDermott
Gardner McKay
Don Murray
Pat Notaro
Susan Oliver
Dick Powell
Andre Previn
Nicolas Reisini
Bert Richman
George Rosenberg
Meta Rosenberg
Gordon Stulberg
Bernie Tabakin
Walter Wood

N. Y. to L. A.

Walter Brooke
Frank Capra
Kitty Carlisle
Irving Drutman
Frank M. Folsom
Moss Hart
Herb Hellman
Jerome Hill
Jeff Livingston
Phil Regan

New York Sound Track

Spyros P. Skouras, prexy of 20th-Fox, and Arthur B. Krim, prexy of United Artists, last week issued a joint statement taking exception to details included in the March 8 VARIETY interview with producer-director Robert Rossen anent the latter's negotiations first with UA, and then 20th, on his now-shooting "The Hustler" (currently retitled "Sin of Angels"). UA had originally expressed interest in the package which was subsequently acquired by 20th. Said the Skouras-Krim statement: "We wish jointly to express our regrets that the statements made by Robert Rossen and printed in VARIETY on March 8 are inaccurate. Mr. Rossen erroneously described both his original dealings with United Artists and the circumstances under which the project was acquired by 20th Century-Fox."

Never at a Loss for Words Dept.: Otto Preminger was due in Philadelphia yesterday (Tues.) to talk before a luncheon meeting of the National Religious Publicity Council. His topics: (1) "Has the Motion Picture Production Code been violated? (2) "Crime, violence and sex in films," and (3) What religious forces might do to cooperate with the film industry."

Preparations for COMPO's April 10 dinner here honoring Eric Johnston continue apace. Joe Hyams, Warner publicity manager, has been named entertainment publicity coordinator, and Mort Sunshine is producing the dinner show . . . Morris A. Altman, formerly with Stern, Porter, Kingston & Coleman and a specialist in film accounting procedures, has been named controller of Astor Pictures International . . . Even if Astor Pictures' Italo import, "La Dolce Vita" is a smash hit in its hardticket premiere engagement here at the Henry Miller Theatre, where it opens April 19, pic will have to vacate the theatre by Oct. 4, when the legit play "The Caretaker" comes in.

George Seaton returns to the Coast later this week after seeing some shows. Partner Bill Perlberg went back over the weekend following the special exhib preem at Loew's New Rochelle last Friday (17) of "Pleasure of His Company." Both leave for Copenhagen and Stockholm in June for added scenes on "The Counterfeit Traitor," William Holden starrer, delayed by poor weather during last summer's shooting.

Beaucoup film-stage names at U's "Great Impostor" soiree at Joe Marsh's Spindletop eatery. For gimmick, a clutch of film celeb "impostors" (look-alikes) also showed up . . . That aquatic tiger touring cross-country for Continental Distributing's "Hippodrome" has an end-of-month date in L. A. on the Art Linkletter teleshow. Airing is April 13.

Alan H. Polkes, ex-Webb & Knapp, new viceprez with Loew's Realty Corp., to handle realty development for the circuit subsid.

For its film coverage of the air catch recovery of a space capsule, the United States Air Force has been awarded one of three special citations of achievement by the National Headliners Club. Presentation will be made here as the club holds its annual frolic April 8th.

Burl Ives set for U's "Spiral Road" . . . Maria Schell goes to Cannes, her starrer, "The Mark," being official British entry at the fest . . . Singer Helen Kardon, who film-preems in "Paris Blues," added to Yank contingent for the Cartagena Film Fest.

Publicist Noel Meadow carrying on a one-man crusade for support of an international film festival in Manhattan. He's had letters published in the Post and World-Telegram & Sun urging backing of a state legislature bill which would place such a fest under study, with a nine-man commission established to weigh the merits and figure costs and modus operandi.

Frank P. Rosenberg, after all that time on "One-Eyed Jacks," has gotten a producer's berth at Warners . . . Ad agency head Charles Schlaifer in Washington in connection with a report on a five-year study conducted by the Joint Commission on Mental Illness and Health. He's secretary-treasurer of the Commission . . . Gordon Stulberg, Columbia v.p. at the studio, in for homeoffice talks . . . Frank Capra will make "Pocketful of Miracles" on the Paramount lot, for UA release . . . Mo Rothman, exec v.p. of Col International, to London for huddles with Carl Foreman on releasing "Guns of Navorone" overseas, then to Rome and Paris.

Debbie Walley, young star of Col's "Gidget Goes Hawaiian," says she did all her own surfboard scenes in the pic, all "live-action" with only two process shots used for closeups . . . Mike Mayer, exec director of IFIDA, reports that the importer org has "wholeheartedly endorsed" the San Francisco film fest . . . Martin Moskowitz, assistant general sales manager of 20th-Fox, and Abe Dickstein and Bob Conn, members of the 20th "sales cabinet, spent most of last week conducting sales meets in Milwaukee, Chicago and Washington . . . Rockwell Ames handling west coast publicity on Continental Distributing's "Hippodrome" . . . 20th-Fox producer-director-writer Irwin Allen, who just completed "Voyage to The Bottom of The Sea," in town for talks with homeoffice execs.

Vincenzo Labella, technical adviser on 20th's upcoming "Francis of Assisi," in town . . . UA launched its long-range ad campaign on "West Side Story" with ads in Sunday (19) N. Y. Times. Pic doesn't open at the Rivoli until Oct. 18 . . . Nelson Riddle will score Frank Capra's "Pocketful of Miracles" for UA . . . Peter Brook is scheduled to direct "Lord of The Flies" for the indie Allen-Hodgdon Productions. Shooting is tentatively set to get underway in Puerto Rico in June . . . Janus Films' Italo import, "L'Adventura," has an April 4 date at the Beekman and Continental Distributing's "Saturday Night and Sunday Morning" an April 3 date at the Baronet.

Iowa-born French star Jean Seberg in town promoting her "new wave" hit, "Breathless" . . . Joe Roth of Atlantic Pictures will handle distribution of "The Teacher and The Miracle," U. S. rights to which were acquired by Joe Green, prexy of President Films.

Donald O'Connor, starred in "Wonders of Aladdin," added to the cast of Joe Levine's touring "Showmanship Caravan" teeupping here March 27. George Jessel previously set to toastmaster the Levine-exhib round-ups selling "Morgan the Pirate," "Thief of Bagdad," as well as "Aladdin."

J. D. Trop, head of Trop Films, is also Jack Dunn Trop, as author of the just-published "You Don't Have To Be Sick!", subtitled "nature's secrets for better health, longer life and more joyful" (Julian Press; $4.95). Book is interlarded with show biz references, with accent on the virtues of just "being able to lie down." Trop, until recently with NTA in the tv end of the operation, has a long show biz background. He deplores the athletes, weekend or regular, who "run." The "rest room" idea at Hillcrest Country Club in BevHills is a sample of what appeals to his concept of taking care of one's-self. He professes not to be a health bug and his commonsense advice on regimen (from food to work) supports that premise.

Joan Blackman replaced Juliet Prowse—now on suspension by 20th-Fox—opposite Elvis Presley in Hal Wallis' "Blue Hawaii" . . . Victor Saville exercised his five-year option, one pic annually, on Susanna York, who starred in his "Green Gage Summer" . . . Martin Manulis dickering with Joshua Logan to direct his 20th-Fox production, "Dooley," based on late Dr. Tom . . . American-International acquired screenplay of "The Maid and the Martian" from Al Burton and Gordon Hunt . . . Howard St. John with Orson Welles in UFA's upcoming "Lafayette" . . . James Woolf will produce "The L-Shaped Room," British bestseller by Lynne Reid Banks, for Warner Bros. . . . Gant Gaither, set to produce "No Bail for the Judge," angling for "My Six Loves," to star Debbie Reynolds, for his second Paramount pic.

Press handout from Paramount has it that Hal Wallis bought the rights to "Becket." But David Merrick, producer of the legiter, says no deal with anyone as yet but he's talking to two film companies . . . Dean Martin in for bow of "All in a Night's Work" . . . Par has re-established a booking office in Albany with Fred Kloepfer as booker.

MEN ONLY WED NON-WHITES

N.Y. News Hits Closed-Circuiting

N. Y. Daily News, in an editorial dated March 15, captioned "Closed-Circuit TV," observed:

"Nobody that we know of begrudges the New York Heart Assn. the $80,000 it collected from Monday evening's closed-circuit TV showing at Madison Square Garden of the Patterson-Johansson fight.

"There are those, however who question whether it is in the democratic (small d) tradition to permit these closed-circuit telecasts, with people having to leave their homes and pay to watch a production that comes over the air which belongs to everybody.

"The argument is a complex one, touching as it does on the whole pay-TV question, the rights and proper limitations of free enterprise, and so on.

"How about a reexamination of this whole closed-circuit matter, by the Federal Communications Commission and any interested committees of Congress?"

Toll-Presented 'Consul' Primes Playbill As N.Y. Atmosphere for Toronto

Trans-Canada Telemeter aired Gian Carlo Menotti's "The Consul" last week and this to its Etobicoke (W. Toronto) 5,000-plus subscribers with simulated atmospherics of Broadway theatregoing. For the going-out flavor (sans drafts, coughs, etc.), the paysee audience had a "theatre-in-the-home" Playbill, same in all respects as circulates in N.Y. legit houses.

With each copy mailed to subscribers, Telemeter enclosed a pair of also-simulated theatre tickets, informative in such whimsy vein as, "This ticket entitles you to park your car in your own garage free during the performance."

Idea for the Playbill promotion came from "Consul" co-producer Jean Dalrymple, with blessing of Gilman Kraft, publisher, who has an eye for reciprocal promotion value. (Etobicoke bonus readership, obviously, could also prove beneficial for Playbill advertisers.)

Miss Dalrymple figures to duplicate the gimmick for future attractions she's responsible for to the toll test, including Carol Channing's "Show Girl," current on Broadway and slated for Telemeter April 2; "Hedda Gabler," and possibly an Edith Piaf concert in May.

Never In Atlanta

Atlanta, March 21.

Ilya Lopert's Greek import "Never on Sunday" looks to reap an unusual publicity windfall here as a result of censor turndown. Distrib's appeal to Atlanta Library Board was due for coverage by CBS-TV cameras for an upcoming telementary the network is planning on subject of film censorship.

"Sunday" ran into veto over use of the word "whore." Similar objection to word "bastard" in "Tunes of Glory" resolved with pic's okay, so the betting is for "Sunday" to ditto.

Novins' Slant On 'Consul' Ratings

There's no rush about ratings with Telemeter in Toronto with "The Consul." Louis A. Novins, president of the home toll system, says he's deliberately going with the arty drama with the knowledge there'll be a specialized audience. He sees a "cumulative rating," what with the current engagement and future re-runs.

In contrast, the feature "Psycho" racked up such business that the film distributors are showing renewed interest in Telemeter. This Par feature took in $2,550, two weeks after it played the local theatre in Etobicoke. The theatrical exhibition drew only $2,241.

Meanwhile, "Consul" producer Jean Dalrymple relates that there have been talks with Zenith-RKO General about possibly exchanging programs. Latter is due for a test of its home toll system in Hartford. Nothing definite planned, just talk so far, about the swap.

Court Test of FCC Hartford Ruling

Washington, March 21.

Exhibitors fighting the RKO General Hartford pay-tv project will challenge the Federal Communications Commission's award in U. S. Court of Appeals here via Marcus Cohn, attorney for Connecticut Committee Against Pay TV. The move was disclosed by Philip F. Harling, chairman of the TOA anti-pay-tv committee in a report to the midwinter TOA board meeting here.

Harling challenged FCC's position that the RKO grant would be in the public interest. "We do not believe the public air waves can legally be subloined by private interests for private profit, and therefore FCC has no authority to make such a grant. We shall ask for a court ruling on these points, and, if necessary, carry our appeal right on up to the Supreme Court."

He said it was decided to go to court rather than ask FCC to review its Feb. 24 decision "in order to expedite a test of the basic issues."

UP TO 7,000 DATES FOR UA'S CHAMP PIC

With 1,250 prints of the Patterson-Johansson fight film now at work, United Artists expects to rack up between 7,000 and 7,500 bookings on the third P-J heavyweight title go-round. This would compare with 5,076 dates on the first Patterson-Johansson fight films and 6,106 on the second.

Principal reasons for the increased interest in this third bout, according to UA veep William Heineman were the first round knockdowns and the controversy surrounding the final count in the sixth (and last) round.

Heineman also reported in New York last week that 70% of the total potential bookings of the film were set in advance of fight night.

TESTIMONIAL NIGHT: IATSE TO 'SPARTACUS'

The Hollywood craft unions have bought out the L.A. Pantages Theatre for night of April 10 performance of "Spartacus." The technical chaps intend turnout as gratitude to the Universal-Bryna Productions pic for assertedly providing "more work for union members (in Hollywood) than any other picture ever made."

It's the International Alliance Coast locals' way of keeping the kettle boiling over the "runaway production" issue.

Charles Cohen Out

Charles Cohen is exiting as exec assistant to Richard Lederer, Warners ad-pub director, in what is believed to be an economy move.

Cohen has held promotional posts with various film companies since he joined the industry 25 years ago.

TABOO STRONG AS TO FEMMES

Miscegenation, a marriage between different races, is and has been big boxoffice on U. S. screens ("The World of Suzie Wong," "Sayonara," "Duel in The Sun," "Island in The Sun," to name a few), but is it a one-way street, open only to the white male?

U. S. filmmakers who have "fearlessly" detailed the love affairs of white males and alluring ladies of all other races have curiously shied away from giving the male reps of any of the non-white races the upper hand. Occasionally an oriental male has made it in miscegenation, but, until now, never the Negro male.

Race-and-rape was the boxoffice explosive factor that D. W. Griffith built into "Birth of A Nation" in 1915, the film industry's first blockbuster. The white actors under cork then were always the heavies with the lynching of the colored sergeant by the Ku Klux Klan offered as the proper way to protect white womanhood. In 1926 when Universal made its silent "Uncle Tom's Cabin" there was a good deal of implicit disapproval of white Simon Legree for trying to seduce black Liza, but there was less indignation on the thermometer than when the threatened victim was either Mae Marsh or Lillian Gish.

Situation is spotlighted by George Morris, prexy of Atlantis Films, who is now prepping the U. S. release of a six-year-old Italo film, "Anna's Sin" (Il Peccato di Anna). The film, set in modern Rome, tells of the love affair and marriage of an American Negro and a white woman.

As Morris points out, all films dealing with miscegenation until now have implied the acceptability of a white man-Negro woman situation, but stayed away from the Negro man-white woman bit. This Morris sees as a sort of holdover from the ante-bellum, plantation culture of the South which permitted a white man to have a Negro mistress but frowned on the reverse twist.

True, Harry Belafonte almost held hands with Joan Fontaine in "Island in The Sun," but nothing was consummated. There was also a suggestion of such an attraction in Belafonte's H-bomb drama, "The World, The Flesh and The Devil," but this too was inconclusive. ("Othello," being a classic is called an exception to the rule.) Situation was also touched upon in Jean Paul Sartre's "The Respectful Prostitute," though this was primarily social drama. ("Prostitute," being released this side by Times Film, is the subject of a censorship fight in Virginia where it has been banned as tending to incite to riot.)

Most miscegenation films seen here have focussed on the white man-Negro woman angle as in "I Passed for White" and in other "exposes." Recently Japanese males have been "upgraded" to the extent that they have been allowed to make love to white ladies ("Hiroshima Mon Amour," "Walk Like A Dragon," and the upcoming "Bridge to The Sun"), but Morris believes "Anna's Sin" to be a first as far as the Negro male is concerned.

As such, he expects it to "separate the men from the boys," that is the true liberals from the pseudo liberals. Picture caused no particular stir on the continent, but did give rise to a certain amount of controversy in Great Britain.

The distrib expects a similar reaction here, where the pic will go out in the dubbed version starting in April. Undoubtedly, the film will not get dates in a number of white theatres in the south, he says, but he expects wide circuit playoff elsewhere.

Mandel's RKO Staff Rally

RKO Theatre managers in N.Y. area huddled yesterday (Tues.) for rundown on spring - summer product and sundry operational matters.

Harry Mandel, circuit prez, presided.

Revised (Downward) Gate for Bout: Looks Like 470,000 Ducats, $2,400,000

Downward revisions look now to set final tally on closed circuit coverage of the latest Patterson-Johansson title bout at about $2,400,000 based on sale of some 470,000 tickets in 207 theatres and arenas. Overall TelePrompter ancillary rights (circling pix and radio, both domestic and foreign) are now seen hoisting ultimate take to very near the predicted $3,000,000.

Appears that Canadian attendance was the big disappointment, with bad weather blamed. Some locations in this country also suffered from the elements.

Despite less viewership this time, boxoffice will still show slight improvement over last fight because of higher average admission. (Second fight pulled nearly 485,000 payees for gross of $2,251,162.) Average admish this time was about $5 versus $4.70 for previous event.

Unofficially, TelePrompter sees the 207 locations sharing a near $1,000,000 gross, with Feature Sports, promoter of the bout, bagging close to $1,750,000 on percentage cut.

Columbia Diversifier

Gordon Stulberg, vp-assistant secretary of Columbia Pictures, is in Gotham from Coast for several days' confabs with homeoffice execs on plans for diversification by company into a number of new areas.

Exec will meld various links from a legal angle. Negotiations have been going on here for some time toward new move.

Champ Bout B.O.'s Dixie Variables

Atlanta, March 21.

Ralph Bridges, president of Famous Artists Inc., is trying to figure out just why the Patterson-Johansson closed circuit television fight showing did such tremendous business in Atlanta and flopped miserably in two other spots, Columbia, S.C., and Montgomery, Ala.

Telecast at Tower Theatre here drew 1,956 fight fans, who paid $11,340 with scale of $7.50, $6.50, $5.50 and $4.50. Capacity of theatre is 1,850. Seats were added to bring total of 1,956 payees, with some 50 putting out $5 for standing room. The $11,340 gross represents an alltime one-stand record for any attraction ever to play the Tower. It is estimated that at least 500 were turned away at door night of the fight.

It was a different story in Montgomery, where only 489 purchased $2,844 worth of tickets and rattled around in the 12,000-seat State Coliseum.

In Columbia's 3,000-seat Township Auditorium things were a little better, but disappointing. Take there was $3,950, which, Bridges says, was a break-even figure.

Bridges says reports he has from Savannah, Augusta and Charleston indicate fight did not draw well at all in this section of Southland.

An interesting sidelight of Atlanta showing was fact that only 54 Negro patrons bought tickets to see Patterson clobber the Big Swede in the sixth round and retain his championship. Floyd got a big hand however, from capacity crowd.

SELZNICK LAURELS IN BERLIN JUNE 29

The annual Selznick Golden Laurel awards will be presented June 29 in the course of this year's West Berlin film fest. Walter Dowling, U.S. ambassador to Germany, has been asked to make the presentation, with Eric Johnston, prexy of the Motion Picture Export Assn., participating in the ceremonies.

The awards, founded by David O. Selznick in 1949, are presented each year to those pictures and filmmakers deemed to have made the greatest contributions to international goodwill "while maintaining high cinematic artistry." U.S. films and filmmakers are excluded from eligibility.

Product in First Run Puts Disney at $42.62

Walt Disney stock on the New York Stock Exchange is back in demand, having hit a new high of $42.62½ per share, up from a low of $23.62½.

The issue seems uniquely dependent on feature releases and impressive to Wall Streeters is the fact that three of them are currently in first-run, these being "101 Dalmatians," "Swiss Family Robinson" and "Absent-Minded Professor." Last named looks to repeat the "Shaggy Dog" story."

High Court Nixes Appeal of 'Juan'

Washington, March 21.

U. S. Supreme Court on Monday (20) turned back an all-media campaign to have Times Film Corp. censorship case reheard. The high tribunal gave no reason for its refusal to reconsider its historic decision upholding the principle of prior censorship of motion pictures.

Three weeks ago Times lodged its petition for review of the 5-4 split decision handed down Jan. 23. Although the court rarely reconsiders its actions, the Times move was supported by a broad range of organizations representing communications media. List of those filing amicus curae briefs included Motion Picture Assn., American Book Publishers Council, Authors League of America, American Society of Magazine Photographers, National Assn. of Broadcasters and Playboy Magazine.

Although Justice Tom Clark in the majority opinion stressed the decision applied only to film exhibition, chief justice Earl Warren's dissenting opinion raised the bogey that all media might be subjected to prior censorship under the Times precedent.

In the actual case, Times sought to upset the section in Chicago's film ordinance which required submission of pix to police authorities before a license could be issued. Times went to court after it was denied a license for the pic "Don Juan."

SKOURAS AND PARTY HUDDLING AT STUDIO

Twentieth-Fox prexy Spyros P. Skouras and other top execs from the homeoffice left New York yesterday (Tues.) for a series of studio meetings in Hollywood.

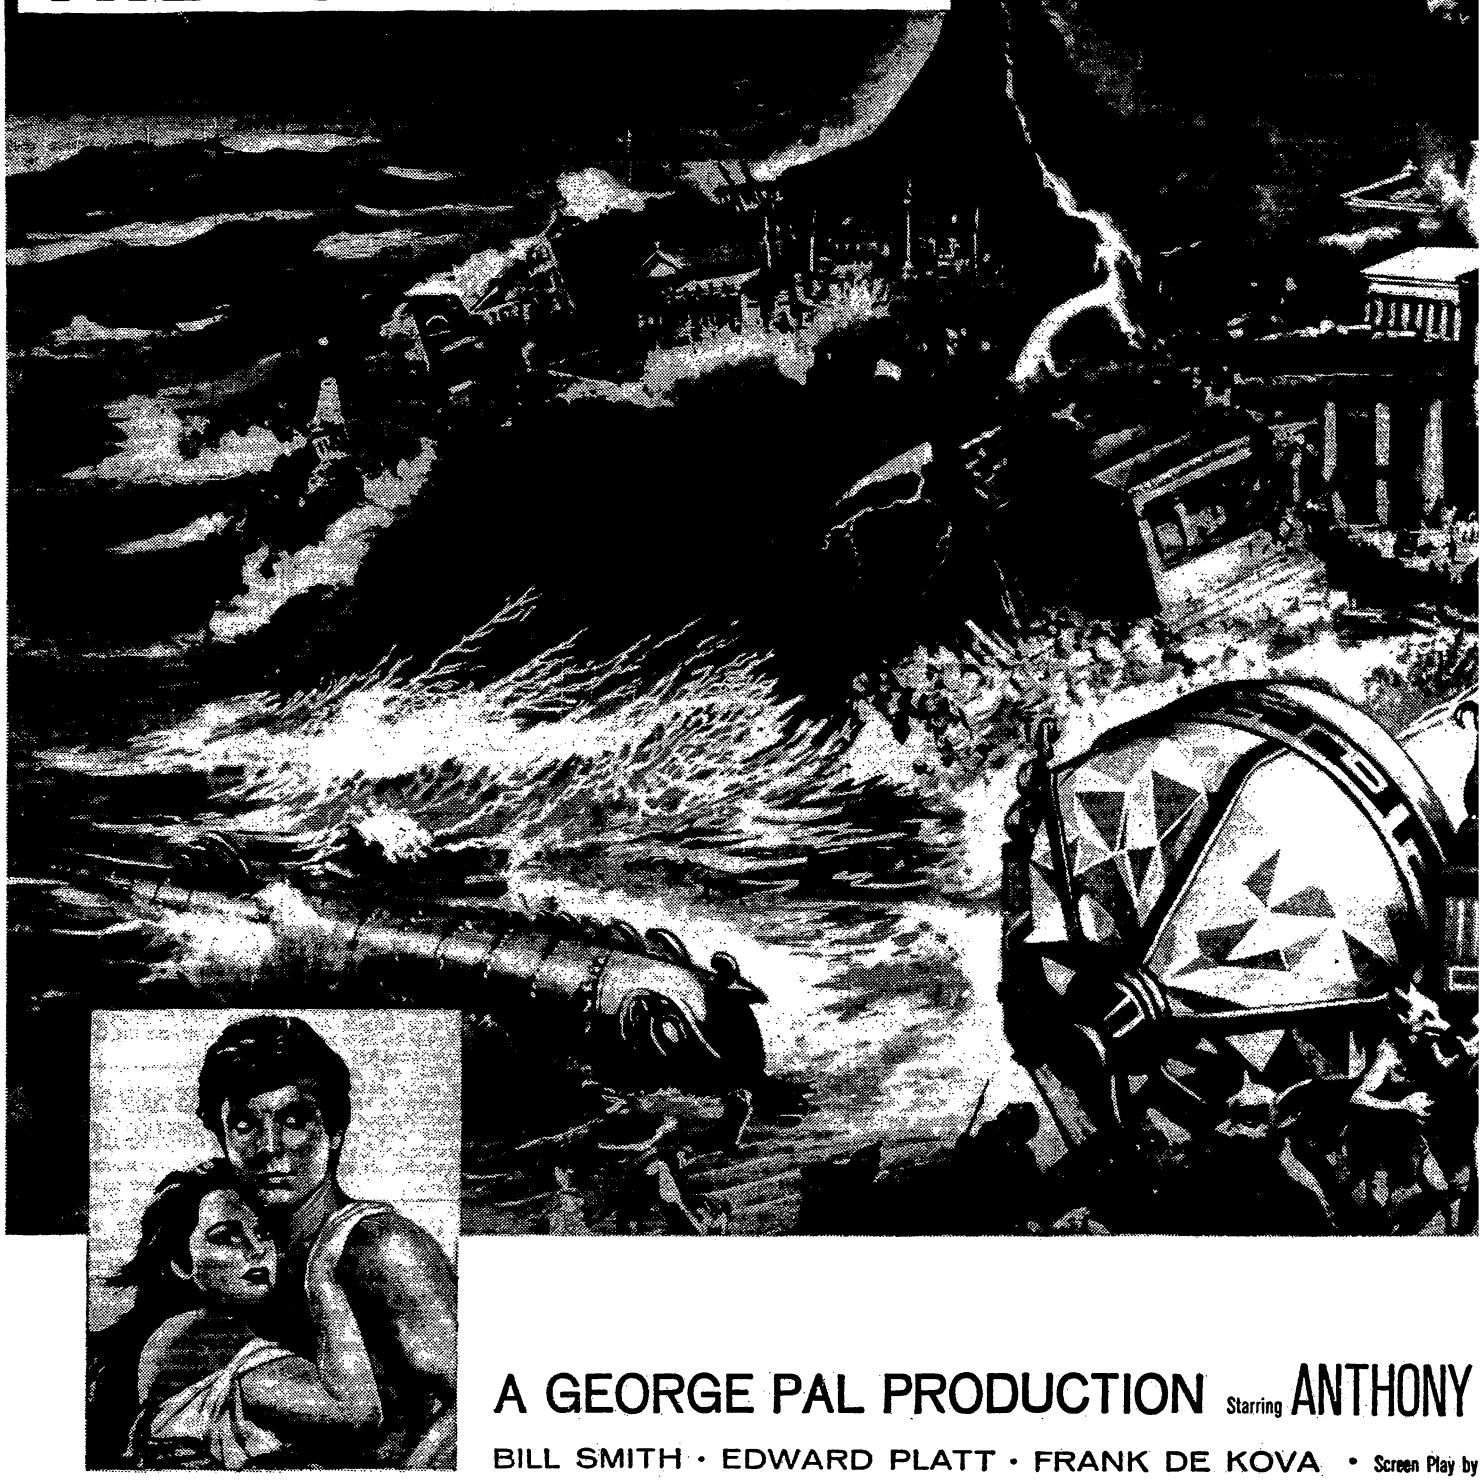
Accompanying Skouras were Murray Silverstone, prexy of 20th International; Joseph Moskowitz, veep and eastern studio rep; Charles Einfeld, veep in charge of advertising-publicity; Glenn Norris, general sales manager, and Donald Henderson, treasurer. Execs will confer with studio chief Robert Goldstein and screen new product.

Following the two days of meetings, Einfeld heads for San Francisco to check on plans for the world preem there later this year of "Francis of Assisi."

METRO-GOLDWYN-MAYER PRESENTS

ATLANTIS

THE LOST CONTINENT



A GEORGE PAL PRODUCTION Starring ANTHONY

BILL SMITH · EDWARD PLATT · FRANK DE KOVA · Screen Play by

THE MASTER OF SCIENCE FICTION,
WHO GAVE YOU THE TIME MACHINE and WAR OF THE WORLDS
GEORGE PAL, TAKES YOU ON THE STRANGEST
NOW—THE SPLENDOR, SPECTACLE and HORROR OF A WORLD LOST FOR CENTURIES
ADVENTURE YOU WILL EVER EXPERIENCE!

HALL · JOYCE TAYLOR · JOHN DALL
DANIEL MAINWARING · Based on a Play by SIR GERALD HARGREAVES · Directed by GEORGE PAL

CONTACT YOUR
M·G·M BRANCH
NOW!

New Pix Perk L.A.; 'Work' Whopping 23G, 'Professor' Smart $25,000, 'Gorgo' NSH $14,000; 'Alamo' Smash 18G, 3d

Los Angeles, March 21.

Three new pix are sparking L.A. first-runs here this week to give b.o. picture a brighter hue. "Absent-Minded Professor" is heading for a wow $25,000 opening round at the Chinese while "All in Night's Work" looms hotsy $23,000 in three theatres. "Sanctuary" is listed as good $19,000, also in three locations.

"Gorgo" is disappointing $14,000 or close in three houses. "The Entertainer" is rated dim in first general release at Iris.

"The Alamo" shapes smash $18,000 in third session at Hollywood Paramount to pace regular holdovers.

"Ben-Hur" leads hard-ticket films with stout $17,500 in 69th week at Egyptian. "Spartacus" is rated busy in 22d round at Pantages.

Estimates for This Week

Chinese (FWC) (1,408; $2-$2.40)—"Absent-Minded Professor" (BV). Wham $25,000 or near. Last week, "Suzie Wong" (Par) (13th wk), $9,500.

Warren's, Hollywood, Baldwin (B&B-FWC-State) (1,757; 756; 1,800; 90-$1.50)—"All in Night's Work" (Par) and "Breath of Scandal" (Par) Torrid $23,000. Last week, Warren's, Hollywood, "Great Impostor" (U), "Wings of Chance" (U) (2d wk), $9,300. Baldwin with Orpheum, Iris, El Rey, Loyola, Crest, "Sundowners" (WB) (1st wk, Crest 3d wk, others) "Facts of Life" (UA) (Baldwin, Loyola), "Four Desperate Men" (Indie) (3d wk, Orpheum, Iris), "Sunrise Campobello" (WB) (3d wk, El Rey; 1st wk, Crest), $21,500.

Wiltern, State, Hawaii (SW-UATC-G&S) (2,344; 2,404; 1,106; 90-$1.50)—"Gorgo" (M-G) and Calti-ki" (Indie). Thin $14,000 or close. Last week, Wiltern with Hillstreet, Pix, "Cry for Happy" (Col), "I'm All Right, Jack" (Col), $20,600. State, "Where Boys Are" (M-G), "Man Without Star" (U) (reissue) (2d wk), $3,200. Hawaii with Los Angeles, "Peyton Place" (20th) (reissue), "Circle of Deception" (20th), $6,800.

Los Angeles, Vogue, Loyola (FWC) (2,019; 810; 1,298; 90-$1.50)—"Sanctuary" (20th) and "Sniper's Ridge" (20th). Good $19,000 or less. Last week, Vogue, "Can-Can"

(Continued on page 22)

Key City Grosses

Estimated Total Gross

This Week $2,461,000
(Based on 22 cities and 257 theatres, chiefly first runs, including N. Y.)

Last Year $2,642,000
(Based on 23 cities and 247 theatres.)

'Gorgo' Sturdy $33,000, Toronto

Toronto, March 21.

Two-day blizzard dented big but new product is helping to some extent. Newcomers are "Gorgo," very solid in nine houses. "Dentist in Chair" in three spots shapes big. "Go Naked in World" at Loew's is rated big.

Holdovers include "World of Suzie Wong," in seventh frame, with no change in lusty biz, plus "Never on Sunday," in eighth frame, and "Cry for Happy," good in second stanza.

Estimates for This Week

Carlton, Danforth, Humber (Rank) (2,318; 1,330; 1,203; $1-$1.50)—"Dentist in Chair" (20th). Big $22,000. Last week, "Great Impostor" (U) (3d wk), Carlton only $8,000.

Century, Downtown, Glendale, Midtown, Oakwood, Odeon, Prince of Wales, Scarboro, State (FP-Taylor) (1,338; 1,059; 995; 1,084; 1,138; 752; 1,200; 684; 694; 50-90)—"Gorgo" (M-G). Fine $33,000.

Eglinton (FP) (918; $1.50-$2.50)—"Windjammer" (N-T) (13th wk). Good $6,000. Last week, $6,500.

Hollywood (FP) (1,080; $1-$1.25)—"Suzie Wong" (Par) (7th wk). Lusty $9,000. Last week, ditto.

Hyland (Rank) (1,357; $1-$1.50)—"Two-Way Stretch" (20th) (12th wk). Fine $4,500. Last week, same.

Imperial (FP) (3,343; $1-$1.25)—"Cry for Happy" (Col) (2d wk). Good $7,500. Last week, $12,500.

Loew's (Loew) (2,748; $1-$1.50)—"Go Naked in World" (M-G). Big $17,000 or close. Last week, "Misfits" (UA) (4th wk) $7,500.

Tivoli (FP) (935; $1.50-$2.50)—"Alamo" (UA) (19th wk). Good $4,500 in 4 days. Last week, $5,500.

Towne (Taylor) (693; (90-$1.25)—"Never On Sunday" (Lope) (8th wk). Fine $6,000. Last week, same.

University (FP) (1,360; $1.50-$2.75)—"Ben-Hur" (M-G) (66th wk). Okay $6,000. Last week, $7,000.

Uptown (Loew) (1,304; $1.50-$2.75)—"Spartacus" (U) (13th wk). Trim $8,000. Last week, $8,500.

Pitt Hot; 'Priest' Proud $15,000, 'Sword' Fat 10G, 'Exodus' Boff $18,000, 2d

Pittsburgh, March 21.

Helped by visit of Star Don Murray and producer Walter Wood, "Hoodlum Priest" is heading for a nifty $15,000 or over in first session at the Penn. Biz generally is shaping strongly this week. "Sword and Dragon" shapes pleasing on opener at the Gateway.

'Exodus" continues its torrid pace in second round at the Warner. "Great Impostor" looms good in fifth at Fulton while "World of Suzie Wong," also in fifth at Stanley is rated potent. "Spartacus" wound a highly profitable longrun at the Nixon with a big take.

Estimates for This Week

Fulton (Shea) (1,635; $1-$1.50)—"Great Impostor" (U) (5th wk). Good $6,000 after $7,300 last week.

Gateway (Associated) (2,100; $1-$1.50)—"Sword and Dragon" (Val). Sout $10,000 or near. Last week, "Cry For Happy" (Col) (2d wk), $5,900.

Nixon (Rubin) (1,760; $1.50-$2.75)—"Spartacus" (U). Finished a highly profitable 12-week run with big $13,000 for final stanza. House returns to legit until mid-May.

Penn (UATC) (3,300; $1-$1.50)—"Hoodlum Priest" (UA). Strong campaign helping this to sturdy $15,000 or over. Last week, "Gorgo" (M-G) (2d wk), $9,000.

Squirrel Hill (SW) (834, $1.25)—"Upstairs and Downstairs" (Indie) (3d wk). Fair $3,000. Last week, $3,700.

Stanley (SW) (3,700; $1-$1.50)—"Suzie Wong" (Par) (5th wk). Potent $9,500. "101 Dalmatians" (BV) opens tomorrow (Wed.).

Warner (SW) (1,513; $1.50-$2.75)—"Exodus" (UA) (2d wk). Lofty $18,000 after $20,000 opener.

'Village' Brisk $9,000, Prov.; 'Eichmann' 8½G

Providence, March 21.

Majestic's "Operation Eichmann" is rated okay here this round. "Village of Damned" looms good. Other stands, all on a holdover kick, are doing fairly well. State's third week of "Where Boys Are" is nice. Sixth round of "Suzie Wong" is rated solid at Strand.

Estimates for This Week

Albee (RKO) (2,200; 65-90)—"Village of Damned" (M-G) and "Tess of Storm Country" plus fight pix. Good $9,000. Last week, "Millionairess" (20th) and "Sniper's Ridge" (20th), $5,500.

Elmwood (Snyder) (724; $1.25-$1.75)—"Alamo" (UA) (6th wk). Fair $4,000. Fifth week, $4,200.

Majestic (SW) (2,200; 65-90)—"Operation Eichmann" (AA) and "The Unfaithfuls" (AA). Okay $8,500. Last week, "Tunes of Glory" (Lope), $7,000.

State (Loew) (3,200; 65-90)—"Where Boys Are" (M-G) and "Price of Silence" (M-G) (3d wk). Nice $7,000. Second was $11,000.

Strand (National Realty) (2,200; $1.25-$1.50)—"Suzie Wong" (Par) (6th wk). Nifty $7,000. Fifth was $11,000.

'Alamo' Mighty $21,000, Denver; 'Cry' Lusty 9G, 'Suzie' Brisk 8G, 6th

Denver, March 21.

Three new entrants here this session but only "Village of Damned," fine at Towne, looks up to hopes. "Savage Innocents" is rated slow at the Denver on initial round. "Alamo" is getting some support via addition of fight films and looms wow in third stanza at Paramount, almost same as last week. "Spartacus" shapes big in ninth round at the Aladdin while "World of Suzie Wong" is rated fast in sixth Orpheum week.

Estimates for This Week

Aladdin (Fox) (900; $1.25-$2.50)—"Spartacus" (U) (9th wk). Big $7,000 or near. Last week, $6,300.

Centre (Fox) (1,270; $1-$1.45)—"Cry for Happy" (Col) (2d wk). Fine $9,000. Last week, $12,000.

Denham (Indie) (800; $1.25-$2.50)—"Ben-Hur" (M-G) (49th wk). Strong $8,000. Last week, $7,000.

Denver (Fox) (2,432; $1-$1.25)—"Savage Innocents" (Par) and "Sad Sack" (Indie). Slow $9,000. Last week, "Gorgo" (M-G) and "Passport China" (Col) (2d wk), $6,000.

Esquire (Fox) (600; $1)—"World of Apu" (Harrison). Weak $1,600. Last week, "Millionairess" (20th) (3d wk), $2,000.

Orpheum (RKO) (2,690; $1-$1.25)—"Suzie Wong" (Par) (6th wk). Fast $8,000. Last week, $6,500.

Paramount (Indie) (2,100; 90-$1.25)—"Alamo" (UA) (3d wk). Powerful $21,000. Last week, $21,500.

Towne (Indie) (600; $1-$1.45)—"Village of Damned" (M-G). Fine $5,000. Last week, "Swiss Family Robinson" (BV) (12th wk), $4,500.

Cincy Crisp; 'Impostor' Tall $12,000, 'Robbery' 7½G; 'Pepe' Solid 7½G

Cincinnati, March 21.

This session's top newcomer, "Great Impostor," shapes smart at flagship Albee. Other first-runs, loom mostly fair to solid. "Pepe" leads in third week at Capitol. "Wackiest Ship In Army" is a sturdy holdover at Keith's. "Spartacus" exits after its 13th round at the Grand. Patterson-Johansson bout films are bolstering dualed "Blueprint For Robbery" and "Foxhole In Cairo" entry for an okay round at the Palace.

Estimates for This Week

Albee (RKO) (3,100; $1-$1.50)—"Great Impostor" (U). Stout $12,000 or over. Last week, "Suzie Wong" (Par) (5th wk), $8,000.

Capitol (SW-Cinerama) (1,400; $1.25-$1.80)—"Pepe" (Col) (3d wk). Solid $14,000 or near. Last week, $15,000.

Esquire Art (Shor) (500; $1.25)—"Never On Sunday" (Lope) (9th wk). Potent $1,300. Last week, $1,500.

Grand (RKO) (1,300; $1.75-$2.75)—"Spartacus" (U) (13th wk). Fair $6,500 in finale. Last week ditto. House resumes pop policy March 23 with "Sanctuary" (20th).

Guild (Vance) (300; $1.25)—"Man In Cocked Hat" (Indie) (3d wk). Mild $1,500. Last week, $1,400.

Hyde Park Art (Shor) (500; $1.25)—"Carry On Sergeant" (Indie). Oke $1,500. Last week, "Happened Broad Daylight" (Indie), $900.

Keith's (Shor) (1,500; 90-$1.25)—"Wackiest Ship" (Col) (2d wk). Good $7,500 after $9,000 preem.

Palace (RKO) (2,600; $1-$1.25)—"Blueprint For Robbery" (Par) and "Foxhole In Cairo" (Par). Patterson-Johansson fight films helping to okay $7,500. Last week, "Millionairess" (20th), $7,600.

Twin Drive-In (Shor) (600 cars, west side, 90c)—"Swiss Family Robinson" (BV) and "Valley of Redwoods" (20th). (subsequents). So-so $3,000. Last week, "Misfits" (UA) and "Pork Chop Hill" (UA) (subsequents), $2,600.

Valley (Wiethe) (1,200; $1.50-$2.50)—"Alamo" (UA) (13th wk-3 days). Okay $3,500 weekend windup of a good engagement. Last week, $5,500. "Exodus" (UA) follows.

Cold Clips Hub; 'Cry' Lusty $23,000, 'Village' Torrid 10G, 'Eichmann' 12G

Boston, March 21.

Bitter winter cold is hampering biz here currently. There's a fall-out all around as many of long runs are coming to a close. New arrivals are doing okay, with "Cry For Happy" solid at the Memorial. "Operation Eichmann" is rated timely at Paramount. "Village of Damned" shapes slick at Pilgrim.

"Exodus" is still going strong in 13th week on hard-ticket at the Saxon. "Where Boys Are" is okay at Orpheum in third round. "Pepe" is showing strength at Gary in fifth frame. "Ben-Hur" continues fine on moveover at Gary.

Estimates for This Week

Astor (B&Q) (1,170; $1.90-$3)—"Spartacus" (U) (21st wk). Okay $7,000 again with announcement of closing weeks. Last week, ditto.

Beacon Hill (Sack) (678; $1-$1.50)—"Tunes of Glory" (Lope) (13th wk). Good $5,000. Last week, $6,000.

Boston (Cinerama, Inc.) (1,354; $1.75-$2.65)—"Seven Wonders of World" (Cinerama) (reissue) (4th wk). Fine $12,000. Last week, $14,000.

Capri (Sack) (900; $1.80-$2.20)—"Ben-Hur" (M-G) (m.o.) (13th wk). Hep $6,000. Last week, $7,000.

Exeter (Indie) (1,376; 90-$1.50)—"Two-Way Stretch" (Indie) (4th wk). Perky $7,000. Last week, $8,000.

Gary (Sack) (1,277; $1.25-$1.80)—"Pepe" (Col) (5th wk). Peppy $10,000. Last week, $11,000.

Kenmore (Indie) (700; $1.50)—"Ballad of Soldier" (Kings) (8th wk). Big $7,000. Last week, $6,500.

Memorial (RKO) (3,000; 90-$1.49)—"Cry For Happy" (Col) and "Sword of Sherwood Forest" (Col). Happy $23,000. Last week, "Great Impostor" (U) and "Desert Attack" (20th) (4th wk), $13,000.

Metropolitan (NET) (4,357; 90-

(Continued on page 22)

Broadway Grosses

Estimated Total Gross

This Week $521,900
(Based on 29 theatres)

Last Year .....$51[illegible],200
(Based on 26 theatres)

'Impostor' Giant $22,000, St. Louis

St. Louis, March 21.

Outstanding newcomer here this session is "Great Impostor," which shapes wow at the Fox. "Gorgo" looks fair at State while "September Storm" is dull, also on opener, at the St. Louis.

"Pepe" is nice in second at Ambassador. "Hoodlum Priest" is okay in first moveover week at Loew's Mid-City.

Estimates for This Week

Ambassador (Arthur) (2,970; 60-90)—"Pepe" (Col) (2d wk). Nice $14,000. Last week, $20,000.

Apollo Art (Grace) (700; 90-$1.25)—"Never On Sunday" (Lope) (7th wk). Okay $1,500. Last week, $2,000.

Esquire (Schuchart-Levin) (1,800; $1.25-$2.50)—"Spartacus" (U) (13th wk). Holding at nice $8,000. Last week, ditto.

Fox (Arthur) (5,000; 60-90)—"Great Impostor" (U) and "Sniper's Ridge" (20th). Wham $22,000. Last week, "Suzie Wong" (Par) (5th wk), $14,000.

Loew's Mid-City (Loew) (1,160; 60-90)—"Hoodlum Priest" (UA) (m.o.). Oke $7,500. Last week, "Village of Damned" (M-G) (2d wk), $6,500.

State (Loew) (3,600; 60-90)—"Gorgo" (M-G) and "Key Witness" (Indie). Fair $10,000. Last week, "Hoodlum Priest" (UA) (2d wk), $14,000.

Pageant (Arthur) (1,000; 60-90)—"Ben-Hur" (M-G) (13th wk). Okay $1,500. Last week, same.

St. Louis (Arthur) (3,800; 60-90)—"September Storm" (20th) and "Long Rope" (20th). Dull $8,000. Last week, "Elephant Walk" (Par) and "Naked Jungle" (Par), $10,000.

Shady Oak (Arthur) 760; 60-90) "Please Turn Over" (Col) (8th wk). Good $1,500. Last week $1,600.

H.O.s Help Balto B.O.; 'Pepe' Bright $10,000

Baltimore, March 21.

"Flaming Star" opened only mildly at Stanton. "Studs Lonigan" is nice in first at the Little and "The Love Game" is pleasing in first at the Cinema.

Biggest holdovers are "Pepe," hefty in second at the Hipp and "Alamo," good in third at the New. "Exodus" is slowing up in 14th week at Mayfair and "Spartacus" is steady in ninth frame at the Town.

Estimates for This Week

Aurora (Rappaport) (367; 90-$1.50)—"Carry On Nurse" (Gov) (rerun). Oke $1,500. Last week, "Mouse that Roared" (Col) and "All Right, Jack" (Col) (reruns) (2d wk), $1,500.

Charles (Fruchtman) (500; 90-$1.80)—"Suzie Wong" (Par) (13th wk). Good $4,000 after $6,000 in 12th week.

Cinema (Schwaber) (360; 90-$1.50)—"Love Game" (Films Around World). Pleasing $2,500. Last week, "Ivan Terrible" (Janus) (2d wk), $1,000.

Five West (Schwaber) (360; 90-$1.50)—"Happened in Board Daylight" (Cont) (2d wk). Nice $2,000 after $3,000 in first.

Hippodrome (Rappaport) (2,300; 90-$1.50)—"Pepe" (Col) (2d wk). Healthy at $10,000 after $14,000 opener.

Little (Rappaport) (300; 90-$1.50)—"Studs Lonigan" (UA). Oke $2,500. Last week, "Please Turn Over" (Col) (9th wk), $2,000.

Mayfair (Fruchtman) (750; $2-$2.50)—"Exodus" (UA) (14th wk). Slowing down to $4,000 after $4,500 in 13th.

New (Fruchtman) (1,600; 90-$1.50)—"Alamo" (UA) (3d wk).

(Continued on page 22)

'Gorgo' Fancy $8,000 In K.C.; 'Spartacus' Robust 18G, 'Alamo' Socko 17G

Kansas City, March 21.

Town is rolling along on a passel of strong holdovers. Only newcomer is "Gorgo," fancy at Paramount, and likely to hold.

Big news though is "The Alamo," setting records at the Plaza in second round. "Spartacus" continues rousing in fourth at the Capri. "101 Dalmatians" is holding a heady pace at Uptown, and while "World of Suzie Wong" shapes big at the Roxy in seventh. "Exodus" is rated routine in 13th week at the Empire. Rains were no help over the week end.

Estimates for This Week

Brookside (FMW-NT) (800; $1-$1.50)—"Ben-Hur" (M-G) (5th wk). Pleasant $4,000; holds. Last week, $4,500.

Capri (Durwood) (1,260; $1.25-$3)—"Spartacus" (U) (4th wk). Handsome $18,000; holding. Last week, $19,000.

Empire (Durwood) (1,280; $1.25-$3)—"Exodus" (UA) (13th wk). Routine $9,000. Last week, $10,000.

Isis, Granada, Vista (FMW-NT) (1,360, 1,217, 700; 90)—"Little Shepherd Kingdom Come" (20th) and "Freckles" (20th). Mild $9,000. Last week, Granada hooked with Uptown, and other sub-runs.

Kimo (Dickinson) (504; 90-$1.25)—"Please Turn Over" (Col) (13th wk). Good $1,500. Last week, ditto.

Paramount (Blank-UP) (1,900; 75-$1)—"Gorgo" (M-G). Fancy $8,000; may stay. Last week, "Great Impostor" (U) (2d wk), bright $7,000.

Plaza (FMW-NT) (1,630; $1.50)—"Alamo" (UA) (2d wk). Sock pace continues at rousing $17,000; holds over, natch! Last week, terrific $22,000 despite heavy juve traffic at 50c per head.

Rockhill (Little Art Theatres) (750; 90-$1.25)—"Make Mine Mink" (Cont) (2d wk). Nifty 1,400. Last week, $2,000.

Roxy (Durwood) (850; $1-$1.50)—"Suzie Wong" (Par) (7th wk). Sturdy $7,500; holds. Last week, $8,000.

Uptown (FMW-NT) (2,043; $1-$1.25)—"101 Dalmatians" (BV) (4th wk). Solo for handsome $8,000; holds. Last week, including Granada, fancy $11,000, despite one night out of Uptown for fight tele.

Chi Spotty; 'Work' Whopping $26,000; 'Impostor' Nice 18G, 2d, 'Cry' Fairish 17G, 2d; 'Exodus' Wham 23G for 14th

Chicago, March 21.

Lenten slump is hitting most spots here currently but there are some big grossers. "All In A Night's Work" shapes socko $26,000 on United Artists initialer.

Topping the second weekers, "Great Impostor" is lively at the Roosevelt. "Sanctuary" rates mild at Woods and "Cry For Happy" looks fairish at the Oriental both in second. "Female and Flesh" is brisk at the Loop while "Millionairess" continues snappy at the Esquire both in first holdover rounds.

"Make Mine Mink" is lively in fourth Cinema stanza. "Pepe" looms big in fifth Chicago canto. "101 Dalmatians" is snappy in State-Lake sixth.

Of the hardticketers, "Exodus" remains near-capacity in 14th Cinestage round while "Spartacus" is just okay in 23d and final McVickers week.

Estimates for This Week

Carnegie (Telem't) (495; $1.50)—"Next To No Time" (SCA). Poor $2,000. Last week, "Rikisha-man" (Fave) (6th wk), $3,400.

Chicago (B&K) (3,900; 90-$1.80)—"Pepe" (Col) (5th wk). Big $26,000. Last week, $33,000.

Cinema (Stern) (500; $1.50) — "Make Mine Mink" (Cont) (4th wk). Brisk $3,700. Last week, $4,200.

Cinestage (Todd) (1,038; $1.75-$3.50)—"Exodus" (UA) (14th wk). Near-capacity $23,000. Last week, $25,500.

Esquire (H&E Balaban) (1,350; $1.25-$1.80)—"Millionairess" (20th) (2d wk). Fair $7,500. Last week, $12,500.

Loop (Telem't) (606; 90-$1.80)—"Female and Flesh" (Fal) and "Wicked Go To Hell" (Fal) (2d wk). Fine $7,400. Last week, $8,400.

McVickers (JL&S) (1,580; $1.49-$3.50)—"Spartacus" (U) (23d wk). Closed Sunday (19) at okay $9,100 in 5 days. Last week, $14,800.

Monroe (Jovan) (1,000; 65-90)—"Natchez Trace" (S&J) and "Code of Silence" (S&J). Moderate $4,300. Last week, "Fast and Sexy" (Col) and "As the Sea Rages" (Col), $4,500.

Oriental (Indie) (3,400; 90-$1.80)

(Continued on page 22)

'Spartacus' Strong 10G, L'Ville; 'Ship' Fast 15G, 'Alamo' Smart 12G, 2d

Louisville, March 21.

Strong lineup at downtown houses this week will spell fine grosses at most of first-runs this session. Weather has been ideally cool. "Spartacus" opener at the Brown shapes strong on hardticket. "Wackiest Ship in Army" and fight films at United Artists are heedin' for solid takings. "Alamo" at the Mary Anderson in second looks wow. Rialto is still closed for remodeling of the house and to prep for opening of Cinerama on March 29.

Downtown area was crowded over the weekend, and stores reported excellent biz. Negro community here has been conducting a peaceful boycott of downtown stores, but demonstrations by youth groups were absent the past weekend. Meetings of Negro leaders and white civic leaders are skedded to resume this week, in hopes of working out a satisfactory solution.

Estimates for This Week

Brown (Loew's Avenue) (1,100; $1.25-$1.75) — "Spartacus" (U). Opened big with hard-ticket policy, and strong $10,000 or close looms. Last week "Hoodlum Priest" (UA), $4,500.

Kentucky (Switow) (900, 75-$1)—"Suzie Wong" (Par) (7th wk). Okay $4,000. Last week, ditto.

Mary Anderson (People's) (900; $1-$1.50)—"Alamo" (UA) (2d wk). Strong weekend trade, with small seater again having lines. Likely wow $12,000 or near. Opener was $18,000.

Ohio (Settos) (900; 75-$1)—"Gorgo" (M-G). Fine $6,000. Last week, "Savage Innocents" (Par), $4,000.

United Artists (UA) (3,000; 75-$1.25)—"Wackiest Ship" (Col) and fight films, strong combo aiming for solid $13,000 or close in sight.

Estimates Are Net

Film gross estimates as reported herewith from the various key cities, are net; i.e., without usual tax. Distributors share on net take, when playing percentage, hence the estimated figures are net income.

The parenthetic admission prices, however, as indicated, include U. S. amusement tax.

'Exodus' Lively $20,000 in Philly

Philadelphia, March 21.

First-run theatres have been plagued by rain now for the last four Saturdays an dlast March 18 was noexception. This is blamed four Saturdays and last March 18 was no exception. This is blamed ever, is that many houses are retaining their current product and marking time until the end of Lent.

There's not a single newcomer to help bolster the overall biz lineup, with some of longruns starting to weaken. "Great Impostor" still is big in second round at Midtown while "The Alamo" is rated smash in fifth week at Stanton. "Pepe," too, is fairly bright in fifth at the Stanley.

"Exodus" shapes fast in seventh sesson at the Boyd while "World of Suzie Wong" looms okay despite being in 13th stanza at Arcadia.

Estimates for This Week

Arcadia (S&S) (536; 99-$1.80)—"Suzie Wong" (Par) (13th wk). Okay $5,000. Last week, $7,000.

Boyd (SW) (1,563; 99-$1.80)—"Exodus" (UA) (7th wk). Fast $20,000. Last week, $21,000.

Fox (Milgram) (2,200; 99-$1.80)—"Go Naked in World" (M-G) (3d wk). Bare $6,000. Last week, $8,000.

Goldman (Goldman) (1,200; $2-$2.75)—"Spartacus" (U) (19th wk). So-so $7,000. Last week, $8,000.

Midtown (Goldman) (1,000; 99-$1.80)—"Great Impostor" (U) (2d wk). Big $14,000. Last week, $17,000.

Randolph (Goldman) (2,500; 99-$1.80)—"Cry for Happy" (Col) (2d wk). Sad $8,500. Last week, $14,000.

Stanley (SW) (2,500; 99-$1.80)—"Pepe" (Col) (5th wk). Bright $12,000. Last week, $13,000.

Stanton (SW) (1,483; 99-$1.80)—"Alamo" (UA) (5th wk). Smash $10,000 or over. Last week, $11,000.

Trans-Lux (T-L) (500; 99-$1.80)—"Never on Sunday" (Lope) (17th wk). Good $6,000. Last week, $5,500.

Viking (Sley) (1,000; 99-$1.80)—"Where Boys Are" (M-G) (7th wk). Fine $6,200. Last week, $6,000.

World (R&B-Pathe) (440; 99-$1.80)—"Ballad of Soldier" (Kings) (5th wk). Bangup $3,700. Last week, $3,600.

'Gorgo' Okay $14,000 In Frisco; 'Pepe' 17G, 3d

San Francisco, March 21.

City is loaded with new exploitation pix but few of them are coming through. Best of lot is "Gorgo," rated fairly good at Warfield. Despite saturation tele campaign, "Terror of Tongs" looks only fair at Paramount. "Chivato" paired with "Riff-Raff" is drab at huge Fox.

"Great Impostor" still is smash in second at Golden Gate. "Pepe" is sock in third at St. Francis.

Estimates for This Week

Golden Gate (RKO) (2,859; $1.25-$1.50)—"Great Impostor" (U) and "Wines of Chance" (U) (2d wk). Smash $14,000 or close. Last week, $19,500.

Fox (FWC) (4,651; $1.25-$1.50)—"Chivato" (Indie) and "Riff-Raff" (Indie). Slow $8,000. Last week, "Sons and Lovers" (20th) and "Millionairess" (20th), $11,000 for 8 days.

Warfield (Loew) (2,656; $1.25-$1.50 — "Gorgo" (M-G) and "Fron-

(Continued on page 22)

'Question' Big $16,500, Seattle; 'Exodus' 11G, 3

Seattle, March 21.

The city is loaded with holdovers and some weak newcomers this stanza, and trade reflects such setup. Best newie is "Question 7," rated sock at Orpheum. "Secret Partner" is bad at Music Hall but "Exodus" looms lofty in third week at the Blue Mouse. "Spartacus" shapes fine in 13th round at the Music Box.

Estimates for This Week

Blue Mouse (Hamrick) (738; $1.50-$3)—"Exodus" (UA) (3d wk). Swell $11,000 or near. Last week, $12,300.

Coliseum (Fox-Evergreen) (1,870; $1-$1.50)—"Underworld USA" (Col) and "Carthage in Flames" (Col). Mild $6,000. Last week, "Sanctuary" (20th) and "Long Rope" (20th), $5,600.

Fifth Avenue (Fox-Evergreen) (2,500; $1-$1.50)—"Cry for Happy" (Col) (3d wk). Good $6,000. Last week, $8,600.

Music Box (Hamrick) (739; $1.50-$3)—"Spartacus" (U) (13th wk). Fine $6,000. Last week, $6,200.

Music Hall (Hamrick) (2,200; $1-$1.50)—"Secret Partner" (M-G). Bad $3,000. Last week, "Go Naked in World" (M-G), $3,200.

Orpheum (Hamrick) (2,600; $1-$1.50)—"Question 7" (Indie). Great $16,500 in 11 days.

Paramount (Fox-Evergreen) (2,300; $1.50-$1.75)—"Alamo" (UA) (4th wk). Nice $6,500. Last week, $7,800.

'Spartacus' Wow $20,000 in Mpls.; 'Alamo' Big 25G

Minneapolis, March 21.

With preems of hard-ticket "Spartacus" at refurbished Mann Theatre and "Alamo" at Orpheum, mainstem grosses here this chapter should be the highest in years, and even may set an all-time peak. "Spartacus," sharing billing with reopening of Mann showcase, appears near-capacity on initial session. "Alamo," also shapes great, boosted by advanced scale.

Most holdovers are plenty healthy and are being helped by fresh pix turnaways. "Where Boys Are" at Gopher and "Hoodlum Priest" at Lyric, both in third cantos, are hotsy. Second round for "Cry for Happy," is pleasing at State. Hardticket "Exodus" is down a bit in eighth week at Academy. "Make Mine Mink" looks stronger in second chapter than in opener at Suburban World.

Estimates for This Week

Academy (Mann) (947; $1.75-$2.65)—"Exodus" (UA) (8th wk). Down a little from last two weeks but still looks strong at $11,000. Last week, $13,000.

Century (Cinerama, Inc) (1,150; $1.75-$2.65)—"Cinerama Holiday" (Cinerama) (reissue) (13th wk). Moderate $6,500. Last week, $6,800.

Gopher (Berger) (1,000; $1-$1.25)—"Where Boys Are" (M-G) (3d wk). Potent $8,000. Last week, $8,500.

Lyric (Par) (1,000; $1-$1.25 — "Hoodlum Priest" (UA) (3d wk). Neat $6,000. Last week, $7,000.

Mann (Mann) (1,100; $1.75-$2.65)—"Spartacus" (U). Opening with huge, near-capacity $20,000. Preem was benefit for Boys Clubs of America.

Orpheum (Mann) (2,800; $1.25-$1.50)—"Alamo" (UA). Hefty buildup. Despite upped prices should push this to a smash $25,000 or better. Last week, "Great Impostor" (U) (2d wk), $8,500 at $1.25 top.

St. Louis Park (Field) (1,000; $1.25)—"Tunes of Glory" (Lope) (5th wk). Healthy $3,500. Last week, $4,300.

State (Par) (2,200; $1-$1.25)—"Cry for Happy" (Col) (2d wk). Big $8,500. Last week, $11,000.

Suburban World (Mann) (600; $1.25)—"Make Mine Mink" (Cont) (2d wk). Snappy $4,200 for this coin-getter. Last week, $4,000.

Uptown (Field) (1,000; $1.25 — "Circle of Deception" (20th). Okay $4,000. Last week, "I'm All Right, Jack" (Col) (2d run), $2,800.

World (Mann) (400; 85-$1.50)—"Royal Ballet" (Lope). Fair $4,000 for 5 days. "All in Night's Work" (Par) opens Friday (24). Last week, "Sanctuary" (20th) (2d wk), $6,000 in 9 days.

B'way B.O. Sluggish But 'Professor,' Easter Stageshow Sockeroo $165,000; 'Facts' 30G, 'Exodus' Wow 47G, 14th

Big news in an otherwise desultory week at Broadway deluxers is sock manner in which the Music Hall's Easter show teed off. "The Absent-Minded Professor," plus the annual Easter stageshow, is heading for $165,000 opening session, up to par for this show, especially one launched so early.

Otherwise, there are not many pictures doing well although many first-runs noted a brisk pickup in trade Saturday-Sunday, for some unaccountable reason. One of the better showings is being made by "101 Dalmatians," which looks to hit a big $17,000 in sixth stanza at the Palace. It continues until "Great Impostor" opens March 29, day-dating with the Trans-Lux 85th Street.

Also faring well is "Facts of Life," with a solid $22,000 likely in sixth session at the Astor, and around $8,000 at the arty Beekman in same week. "Cry For Happy" shapes to land a happy $18,000 in current (3d) round at the Forum. It looks like okay $4,500 in same week at arty Trans-Lux 52 Street.

"Go Naked in World" shapes quite bare at the Capitol in second round with $18,000 or less. "Sanctuary" was slow $20,500 in fourth stanza day-dating at Paramount and arty Trans-Lux 85th Street.

"Shadows" moved into the Embassy yesterday (Tues) after the house's highly successful longrun with "Swiss Family Robinson," which extended to 12 weeks plus four days.

"Exodus" still is pacing the hardticket films, with wow $47,000 likely for current (14th) stanza at the Warner. "Pepe" was okay $18,000 or close in 13th frame at the Criterion. "Spartacus" is holding around nice $16,000 in 24th session at the DeMille.

"The King and I" opens a hardticket engagement at the Rivoli tomorrow (Thurs) night with a benefit for the United Nations. "The Alamo" is dipping to about $13,000 in final eight-day 21st round, also on hard-ticket.

Estimates for This Week

Astor (City Inv) (1,094; 75-$2)—"Facts of Life" (UA) (6th wk). Current round winding tomorrow (Thurs), looks to hit solid $22,000 after $19,500 in fifth week.

Capitol (Loew) (4,820; $1-$2.50)—"Go Naked in World" (M-G) (2d wk). First holdover session ending tomorrow (Thurs) is heading for modest $18,000 or near after $22,000 for opener. Holding until "One-Eyed Jacks" (Par) opens March 30.

Criterion (Mass) (1,520; $1.50-$3.50)—"Pepe" (Col) (14th wk). The 13th round completed last night (Tues) was okay $18,000 for 10 performances after $18,500 for 11 shows in 12th week. Stays.

DeMille (Reade) (1,463; $1.50-$3.50)—"Spartacus" (U) (24th wk). Current week winding today (Wed) is holding at nice $16,000 or near after $17,000 for 23d week.

Embassy (Guild Enterprises) (500; 90-$1.75)—"Shadows" (BL). Opened yesterday (Tues). In ahead, "Swiss Family Robinson" (BV) (13th wk-4 days). M'ld $6,500 after $7,500 for 12th week, but winding a very healthy longrun here.

Palace (RKO) (1,642; 90-$2.50)—"101 Dalmatians" (BV) (6th wk). Present round finishing tomorrow (Thurs) looks to hold with big $17,000, compared with $13,000 in fifth week. "Great Impostor" (U) opens here March 29, day-dating with Trans-Lux 85th Street.

Forum (Moss) (813; 90-$1.80)—"Cry for Happy" (Col) (3d wk). This session ending tomorrow (Thurs) is heading for solid $17,500 after $13,000 for second. "Raisin in Sun" (Col) opens March 29.

Paramount (AB-PT) (3,665; $1-$2)—"Sanctuary" (20th) (5th-final wk). Fourth week ended Monday (20) was light $17,000, despite one preview after $16,500 for third. "All Hands On Deck" opens March 31.

Radio City Music Hall (Rockefeller) (6,200; 90-$2.75)—"Absent-Minded Professor" (BV) and annual Easter stageshow. First session ending today (Wed) looks like sockeroo $165,000. Holding of course. In ahead, "Cimarron" (M-G) and stageshow (4th wk), $90,000.

Rivoli (UAT) (1,545; $1.50-$3.50)—"Alamo" (UA) (21st-final wk). This week of eight days looks like mild $13,000 after $14,000 in 20th session. "King and I" (20th), in streamlined version, opens hardticket run tomorrow (Thurs) night with United Nations benefit.

State (Loew) (1,900; $1.50-$3.50)—"Ben-Hur" (M-G) (69th wk). This stanza ending today (Wed) is heading for big $25,600 for 13 performances after $24,000 for 68th week of 11 shows. Holding, natch!

Victoria (City Inv) (1,003; 50-$2) "All in Night's Work" (Par). Opens today (Wed). Last week, "Take Giant Step" (20th) (3d wk-5 days), was drab $6,000 despite addition of fight films. Second full week, $8,000.

Warner (SW) (1,813; $1.50-$3.50)—"Exodus" (UA) 14th wk). This round ending today (Wed) looks like wham $47,000 same as 13th week. Holds, of course.

First-Run Aries

Baronet (Reade) (430, $1.25-$2)—"Modigliani" (Cont) (4th wk). Third session finished Monday (20) was okay $5,900. Last week, $6,800. Stays until Easter pic comes in.

Fine Arts (Davis) (468; 90-$1.80)—"Breathless" (Films Around World) (7th wk). Sixth session finished Monday (20) was smash $12,500 after $13,400 for fifth week.

Beekman (R&B) (590; $1.20-$1.75) "Facts of Life" (UA) (6th wk). This week ending tomorrow (Thurs) looks to reach fine $8,000 after $9,000 for fifth stanza.

Fifth Ave. Cinema (R&B) (250; $1.25-$1.80)—"Virgin Spring" (Janus) (mo) (6th wk). This round winding tomorrow (Thurs) is like-

(Continued on page 22)

'Eichmann' Loud $13,000, Det.; 'Sinner' Good 15G, 'Suzie' Hot 12G, 13th

Detroit, March 21.

Plethora of newcomers at the first-runs is resulting in solid returns this week. "Operation Eichmann" looks great at the Adams. "Little Shepherd of Kingdom Come" is heading for a just okay total at the Fox. Michigan's "Portrait of a Sinner" looks good. The Palms' "Underworld USA" shapes nice.

Meanwhile "Exodus" is rated strong in sixth round at Mercury. "World of Suzie Wong" at Grand Circus still looks fine in 13th round. "Ben-Hur" continues brisk at the United Artists in 57th week.

Estimates for This Week

Fox (Woodmont Corp) (5,041; 75-$1.49)—"Little Shepherd Kingdom Come" (20th) and "Strange Affections" (Par). Pace is fine $15,000. Last week, "Gazebo" (M-G) and "Key Witness" (M-G) (3d wk), $9,500.

Michigan (United Detroit) (4,036; $1.25-$1.49)—"Portrait of Sinner" (AA) and "Three Blondes in His Life" (AA). Good $15,000. Last week, "Cry for Happy" (Col) and "Hell is a City" (Col), $16,000.

Palms (UD) (2,953; $1.25-$1.49 — "Underworld, USA" (Col) and "Carthage in Flames" (Col). Fine $17,000. Last week, "Village of the Damned" (M-G) and "Incredible Petrified World" (Indie), $13,000.

Madison (UD) (1,498, $1.50-$3 —"Spartacus" (U) (2d wk). Steady $4,000. Last week same.

Grand Circus (UD) (1,400; $1.25-$1.65)—"Suzie Wong" (Par) (3d wk). Nice $12,000. Last week, $12,500.

Adams (Balaban) (1,700; $1.25-$1.50 — "Operation Eichmann" (AA). Great $12,000 or near. Last week, "Go Naked in World" (M-G) (2d wk), $6,500.

United Artist (UA) (1,667, $1.25-$3)—"Ben-Hur" (M-G) (57th wk). Fine $10,000. Last week $9,200.

Music Hall (Cinerama, Inc) (1,298; $1.20-$2.65)—"Seven Wonders of World" (Cinerama) (reissue) (12th wk). Holding firm $12,000. Last week, same.

Trans-Lux Krim (Trans-Lux) (1,000; $1.49-$1.65 —"Ballad of Soldier" (Indie) and "Bowl of Cherries" (Indie) (2d wk). Strong $7,000. Last week, $8,000.

Mercury (UM) (1,465; $1.50-$3)—"Exodus" (UA) (6th wk). Big $18,000. Last week, $20,000.

ASTOR PICTURES, INC.
PROUDLY ANNOUNCES THAT ON THE EVENING OF WEDNESDAY, APRIL 19th
FEDERICO FELLINI'S
MASTERLY MOTION PICTURE

LA DOLCE VITA

WILL HAVE ITS AMERICAN PREMIERE
AT HENRY MILLER'S THEATRE
43rd St. E. of Broadway, New York 36, N. Y.
ALL SEATS RESERVED

This is the film that was won every important international award, that has broken attendance records in London, Rome, Paris, Buenos Aires and dozens of other cities. It is at once the most praised, the most condemned, the most shocking, the most moral and the most talked-about motion picture of our time.

Astor will release this film for key city runs, only, in 1961, starting this summer. The picture will be shown, advertised and promoted in a manner calculated to ensure its widest possible viewing by American audiences, as befits the importance and appeal of this outstanding attraction.

We will follow this presentation with other important features of international prominence. Our policy will be to combine superior product with superior promotion—for superior box-office.

ASTOR PICTURES, INC.
PROUDLY ANNOUNCES
THE FORTHCOMING AMERICAN RELEASE
OF

ROCCO AND HIS BROTHERS

PRODUCED BY GOFFREDO LOMBARDO
DIRECTED BY LUCHINO VISCONTI
FOR TITANUS FILMS

This is a presentation of great power and artistry, which has won a score of festival awards and the acclaim of critics around the world. In the short time it has been in release abroad, it has rivaled the exceptional grosses achieved by "LA DOLCE VITA."

"ROCCO AND HIS BROTHERS" has a story line of universal appeal:—the impact of a sophisticated and strange city upon a closely knit, unsophisticated family. Handled with scope and with strength, it abounds with great action sequences. Some of its scenes are electrifying in their raw force. And yet, it contains some of the most tender and intimate love scenes ever filmed.

It is a unique film, a different film that will prove a major box office attraction in the United States. It will be premiered this summer in New York, and shown only in key city engagements during 1961.

The GROWING DIMENSIONS of Le Cinema Internationale

Bon Jour, M'sieur—
Buon Giorno, Signor—
Buenas Dias, Senor—
Guten Tag, Mein Herr—
Greetings, Friend

In any language the Theatrical Feature Film's Renewal of Vigor and Promise Exists Today in the Face of Every Rival Distraction, Including Television.

Europe, South America, North America, Asia, the Antipodes and—most recent of all -the New Republics of Africa, Are Part of the Vast Global Market.

The Facts of This World Trade in Theatrical Features, the wonder-story of the 20th Century's Supreme Medium of Artistic Exchange, updated to April 1961, will be reappraised in penetrating detail in the . . .

INTERNATIONAL EDITION OF

NEW YORK 36
154 W. 46th St.

HOLLYWOOD 28
6404 Sunset Blvd.

CHICAGO 11
400 N. Michigan Ave.

BERLIN
Lichterfelde West
Tulpen Strasse 9a

LONDON, S.W.1
49 St. James's Street
Piccadilly

ROME
Stampa Estera (Foreign Press Club), Via Mercede 55

PARIS 7
66 Ave. Breteuil

MADRID
General Sanjurjo 24

TO BE PUBLISHED IN APRIL

An IDEAL ADVERTISING OPPORTUNITY!

Make Your Space Reservation NOW!

An Extra-Explosive Edition COMMANDING WORLD ATTENTION!

Backstage in Madrid

Madrid, March 14.

Helen Hayes was decorated by Spanish foreign minister Fernando Maria Castiella with the Order of Isabela Catolica in her dressing room at the Teatro Espanol after her opening night stint in "Skin of Our Teeth" . . . U. S. Ambassador John Davis Lodge, himself a former actor, and U. S. minister Richard Aldrich, ex-Broadway producer, put the embassy on alert and did everything but stagehand to insure Theatre Guild success here . . . Continental legit producer Lars Schmidt, with Scandinavian rights to "Miracle Worker" and plans to produce it with Ingrid Bergman soon, worked out an amicable settlement with impresario Lawrence Langer and State Dept. permitting by-invitation-only performances in the North countries . . . Film stars on hand during the four-day repertory included Esther Williams and Fernando Lamas (here for "The Magic Fountain"), Genevieve Page and Hurd Hatfield of Sam Bronston's "El Cid" cast (Heston and others on distant location), Rex Harrison and Alida Valli now in "Once A Thief" . . . Helen Hayes, June Havoc and Leif Erickson have Equity okay to tour at cut-rate while Theatre Guild is a non-profit status . . . Newcomer Barbara Barrie (Annie Sullivan in "Miracle Worker") was hailed here as one of the most promising actresses to play before footlights . . . Her Stratford (Conn.) training was a godsend on the Teatro Espanol's raked stage where gifted troupers like Helen Hayes and June Havoc feared to tread . . . VARIETY rep in Madrid offered June Havoc a ride from hotel to theatre on tense opening night and left her at the Zarzuela instead of the Espanol . . . She described the Guild troupe as "artists with devotion not only to their craft but to those devoted to the craft" . . . Backstage whisper that tour might by-pass one country now on itinerary, could not be confirmed.

Madrid Warmly Responsive to Hayes; 'Miracle Worker' Leaps Lingo Barrier

By HANK WERBA

Madrid, March 21.

Theatre Guild American Repertory Co. left for Barcelona (12) with "ole" and "bravo" still ringing in the Castillian air. ANTA-booked legit troupe with Helen Hayes, June Havoc, Leif Erickson, Helen Menken, Barbara Barrie, Rona Gale, James Broderick, Nancy Coleman and others presented an image of the American theatre in four-night stand in Madrid that drew unconditional critical acclaim.

Madrid audiences attending the single performance of Thornton Wilder's "The Skin of Our Teeth," three presentations of William Gibson's "The Miracle Worker" and two wind-up sessions of Tennessee Williams' "The Glass Menagerie," reacted with differing degrees of enthusiasm

"Miracle Worker," ushered in with markedly reduced ambassadorial and diplomatic pomp after "Skin" debut, easily walked off with top honors. It received a tear-tinged ovation that summed up a profound three-way tribute to performance, story and direction. Barbara Barrie and Rona Gale as teacher and child scored strongly.

Added virtue of "Miracle Worker" is its quantity of "mute" values, as one Spanish critic put it, that leaps language barrier and admits the audience all the way into the dramatically-keyed child-teacher-parent relationships.

Helen Hayes' reading of "Glass Menagerie" and the obviously pathetic image of human frustration also enchanced foreign audience appreciation to make the Tennessee Williams offering a close runner up for feverish applause.

Despite excellent performances by Miss Hayes, June Havoc and Leif Erickson in "Skin," and the reputation of Thornton Wilder as "the most European of American writers," the play is a change-of-pace series of brilliant verbalistics just a bit overpowering for foreign ears. In addition, the final act is a wordy reprise of Wilder's message that tends to bewilder rather than facilitate communication across the footlights. Nevertheless, "Skin" received heavy applause and numerous curtain calls.

Among the tributes penned by Madrid critics, Gonzalo Torrente said of "Skin" in Arriba that "Few groups have appeared on Madrid stages from whom we have so much to learn." Torrente was particularly impressed with "the use of all talents of all in the cast to express what the play is trying to say."

Among the raves for "Miracle Worker," Nicolas Gonzalez Ruiz of Ya, wrote: "Rona Gale, the little actress, as well as Barbara Barrie, perform magnificently, so well that any praise we can give them would be too little . . ."

Alfredo Marquerie summarized critical sentiment in ABC following the final performance. He wrote: "The good humor and touching quality of these three works, their accent on everyday life, their sprightly sharpness and sustained vibrancy, as well as the multiplicity of interpretative subtleties by the actors—will leave a long-lasting remembrance in Madrid."

Ambassador John Davis Lodge came onstage at closing performance to salute the Theatre Guild appearance here and salute it as the initial leg of an American legit trek never before attempted. His homage to Lawrence Langner and Armina Marshall (Mrs. L.) was warmly greeted.

'Tis a Pity' In Trouble in Paris

Paris, March 21.

One of the most lavish legit offerings of the season ran into trouble when femme star Romy Schneider came down with appendicitis on opening day. Show is now postponed for over two weeks which means about a $20,000 loss on top of an already gigantic cost (for here) of $80,000. Play is the Anglo Elizabethan opus, "Tis A Pity She is a Whore" of John Ford, adapted by Georges Beaume and directed by the Italian legit and film director Luchino Visconti. It is to star French pic star Alain Delon and German-Austrian film star Romy Schneider in their first legit stints.

Visconti put up one third of the production nut, Miss Schneider and Delon one third, and the remainder came from Elvire Popesco who owns the Theatre De Paris where show is to open. Visconti produced lavishly and also did the sets. The limited time that stars Miss Schneider and Delon can give the show, because of film commitments, makes the amortization of this expensive show look like a chancey thing. Play had one performance before the opening night and reports are that it was in trouble before the sudden illness of Miss Schneider put off the opening. However, interest is focused on it, and the future reopening will tell the story.

Incidentally, the French title, translated literally, is "Dommage Qu'Elle Soit Une P. . .". The usually candid French do not like their word for whore to be translated entirely in titles.

U.S. Jazzists Swinging On German Circuit

Berlin, March 14.

Several U.S. jazz ensembles are coming to Germany. Buck Clayton and his All-Stars are due in April, and the Thelonius Monk Quartet and the George Shearing Quintet in May.

At present, the Lionel Hampton band is touring Germany. Hampton's 1961 German tour is very substantial; it includes at least 28 cities. All the jazz ensembles are presented in Germany by ICA (International Concert Agency) Berne, Switzerland.

'Birdie' Aussie Click

Melbourne, March 21.

The Aussie production of "Bye Bye Birdie" at Her Majesty's here drew fine crix reception and seems destined to be a solid hit. This has been given the full treatment here by J. C. Williamson Theatres Ltd. Michael Thoma, brought out from Broadway, is credited with a great job on the staging.

Patricia Finley, imported from the U.S., did well in the top role The performances were highly praised by local crix. Aussie dancer Kevan Johnson also is a big hit in this show.

Pakistan, Italy Sign Film Pact

Karachi, March 14.

Government of Pakistan and the National Assn. of the Italian Motion Pictures Industries (ANICA) have signed a three-year agreement which provides for exchange and joint production of films between the two countries. According to the agreement, Pakistan will allow import of not more than 30 full-length pix of Italian origin into Pakistan on a rental basis in the period of July 1, 1960 to next June 30. In addition, permits will also be issued for import of shorts, newsreels, trailers, publicity material and accessories.

Replacement permit will be granted for any film rejected by Pakistan censors provided it has not been shown in any part of Pakistan and has been returned to suppliers in Italy. All permits for import of 30 feature films have been reserved for Pakistan national distributors.

Remittances of earnings for the 30 feature pix to be imported and in respect of payments for the actual cost of prints, publicity material, shorts, accessories, freight charges, etc. will be freely allowed within the limit set.

Italian suppliers will open a non-resident account in Pakistan which will be called ANICA account, exclusively for blocked earnings. Blocked money may be used by any or more of the members of ANICA on production of films in Pakistan with prior permission of Pakistan's State Bank. Joint Pakistan-Italian film ventures will be undertaken on the following main principles:

1). Pakistan artists and technicians will, among others, be employed in the productions.

2). Share of investment of Italian producers shall include any sums that may be withdrawn from the ANICA account in Pakistan, and all expenses in all currencies other than Pakistan rupees.

Failure of Mex Film Bureau Topper To Okay Production of 'Soldadera' Irks Unions; May Film It Elsewhere

Mexico City, March 21.

Because Jorge Ferretis, of the Film Bureau, is unyielding in his decision that "the filming of 'La Soldadera' will not be authorized as long as it contains scenes damaging to the ideology of our Revolution," film and union circles here are in an uproar. Producers Ed Gottlieb and Jose Bolanos talk about shooting the picture in Guatemala, the Dominican Republic or in other friendlier climes. And Carlos Tinoco, liaison man between Hollywood and the Mexican industry, is on a rampage alleging that sources of employment are being closed for Mexican film workers because of the Film Bureau "thumbs down" ruling.

Tinoco is worried about possible repercussions in Hollywood. He fears that all his spade work of recent months, counteracting "misunderstandings" and "bad trade and general press propaganda" has gone for nothing. He pointed out that in other years, by the end of March, Yank producers had turned out two or three pictures in Mexico. The score this year stands at zero.

The Mexican film union official said he found nothing derogatory in the realistic "La Soldadera" script. It is "crude, brutal and raw," he admitted, but the scenes represent truth and Mexico should not be afraid of the truth, much less Jorge Ferretis as head of the Film Bureau.

Admits Script Is Factual

Ferretis also has admitted that the script is based on actual occurrences during the stormy revolutionary days. But he thinks that the sordidness and the dregs should not be stirred up—that they are best forgotten. And his argument is that producers pay too much attention to shocking scenes in search for effects that will cause fans to gasp—and will have them lining up at the boxoffice.

The Film Bureau head reiterated he will give the script a clean bill of health if all objectionable scenes are cut. Without these, however, producers Bolanos and Gottlieb maintain picture will lack impact or real sense. Their story does deal with the sordidness surrounding female soldiers, but it also tells of women fighting for their country and to establish their own homes. Ferretis does not see it that way.

Sparks May Fly

Tinoco sounded dire warnings of taking action after the central committee of this union passes on script. If these find it appropriate, without offensive material to Mexico, the sparks are going to fly.

Ferretis, for his part, is all set to block production of the picture elsewhere, calling on friendly nations to boycott production and exhibition plans. Gottlieb, who said he has backing to pay off crews here (a total of around $24,000) and finance the production, shrugged off Ferretis avowal to instill Mexican censorship beyond the borders of the Republic.

In an atmosphere replete with accusations, charges and counter-charges, the only certain fact is that the cameras are not rolling on "La Soldadera."

15th Week of 'Pacific' Chalked Up in Acapulco

Acapulco, March 21.

"South Pacific" (20th) chalked up its 15th stanza at the Playa Hornos Theatre here last week, and is still going strong. Boxoffice admission for the Todd-AO musical is $1.60 and the management claims business has been very good without quoting figures. In the past few weeks the theatre has been using a continuous-run policy on the film for Saturday and Sunday performances. One show at night is used on other days of week.

The high tourist season is aiding the boxoffice but reports are that trade is not as big as claimed. Some say the 3,000-seat house is half full or less for many of the weekday nights. It's claimed that Mexicans just cannot afford to spend that sort of coin for film fare.

Britain's Cinema Attendance Down

London, March 21.

The number of people going to see films in Britain continues to take a downward dive. And the number of tv licenses soar ever upward. According to latest Monthly Digest of Statistics, the weekly average cinema admissions in January was 9,700,000 (over four weeks).

Although the January figure was better than the December weekly average (over five weeks) of 7,600,000 (equivalent to 9,500,000 weekly average calculated on a four-weeks basis), it was below the January, 1960 figure and also less than the 9,9000,000 weekly average for whole of last year.

Average weekly boxoffice take in January was $3,444,000 gross compared with the December (over five week) average of $2,716,000 and $3,724,000 in January, 1960.

Digest also shows that the number of tv licenses current in January reached a new high level—11,149,000 compared with 11,076,000 in December and 10,220,000 in January, 1960.

27 Nations Sending Pix to Cannes Film Fest; May Extend Show 1 Day

Paris, March 21.

Twenty-seven nations already have officially accepted invites to participate in the forthcoming Cannes Film Fest, May 3-16. The number of pix expected may force an extension of the fest for one day to May 17. Only official entries so far are Great Britain's "The Mark" and Israel's "I Like Mike," with U. S. indie "The Connection," made in N. Y. by Shirley Clarke (based on Jack Gelber's off-Broadway play) —to be shown in the Film Palace out of competition. It's a special invite of the Federation of French Film Critics, and will be eligible for side kudos.

Six French films are being mulled as official pix by the selection committee with either two or three to be chosen. The following are the films:

"Le Ciel Et La Boue" (Sky and Mud), made by Pierre Grassieu and Gerard Dallaye on a scientific expedition to New Guinea. There now is a Cannes ruling stating that documentaries could only win special kudos.

"La Princesse de Cleves," Jean Delannoy's costumer about court life in 15th Century France. It is based on a famed French classic by Madame De Lafayette.

"Amelie Ou Le Temps D'Aimer" (Amelie or Time to Love) second pic by young director Michel Drach about a youthful love affair.

"L'Annee Derniere" (Last Year), second film of Alain Resnais, who did "Hiroshima, Mon Amour."

"Une Si Longue Absence" (Such a Long Absence), a first pic by editor Henri Colpi about a woman who insists an amnesiac tramp is her husband, reported killed during the war. This already has won the Prix Louis Delluc, the top French film critic's award of the year.

"Une Femme Est Une Femme" (A Woman Is a Woman), by Jean-Luc Godard who did "Breathless," about a girl trying to convince her lover to marry her and settle down. It is a more serious remake of Philippe De Broca's "Games of Love," which treated the story as a frothy situation comedy.

Two Italian Pix

Two Italo pix up are Vittorio De Sica's "Two Women," with Sophia Loren and French actor Alain Delon (based on Alberto Moravia's book about a woman's lot during the last war) and French director Rene Clement's comedy on turn-of-the-century love manners "How Nice to Be Alive" with French actor Alain Delon and Polish thesp Barbara Lass.

Otto Preminger's "Exodus" (UA) probably will open the fest out of competition if Arab country pressures do not have it yanked since the fest is a diplomatically controlled affair. The Russian 70m pic, "The Ardent Years," of Julia Solnsteva, will probably close the fest, also out of competition.

Report 20th-Fox Ready To Produce in Mex

Mexico City, March 21.

Carlos Tinoco, aggressive head of the Union of Film Production Workers, and campaigner for better Hollywood-Mexico relations, reports that 20th-Fox plans picture production in the Republic this year. Initial film is to be "Jeronimo," now set to go before cameras early in April, Tinoco said. There's to be another Indian opus, with "Man Who Died Twice" as the final film in an initial trio of pix.

Based on experiences in filming these, 20th-Fox will make plans for 1962 and Tinoco is arguing volubly with execs, as well as with other Hollywood producers, whenever he gets the chance, that distrust in Mexico should be dissipated. Also that the republic offers excellent opportunities for producers.

IT BEGINS WHERE "PEYTON PLACE" LEFT OFF!

20th Century-Fox presents JERRY WALD'S

RETURN TO "PEYTON PLACE"

CINEMASCOPE · COLOR by DE LUXE

STARRING

CAROL LYNLEY · JEFF CHANDLER · ELEANOR PARKER · MARY ASTOR · ROBERT STERLING

LUCIANA PALUZZI · BRETT HALSEY · GUNNAR HELLSTROM AND TUESDAY WELD

DIRECTED BY JOSE FERRER · SCREENPLAY BY RONALD ALEXANDER

SELENA... who couldn't hide her past and tried to kill the only man she had ever loved!

CONNIE... who drove her husband and only daughter out of her home!

ROBERTA... whose desperate attempts on her son's marriage lead only to her own destruction!

RAFFAELA... who saw her marriage being wrecked and tried to destroy herself and her unborn child!

ALLISON... who wrote the book that started it all...who left the Town a girl and returned a woman!

IT'S ALL HERE—the town...the people...the violence that had to happen the day Allison returned—to face the accusing fingers and false morality of those she loved.

Watch It Top Those "Peyton Place" Records This Spring!

Parrish
(COLOR)

Glossy translation to screen of Mildred Savage's tome about the contest for power in Connecticut's tobacco leaf industry. Pictorially pleasing but overlong, superficial and unexciting. Rising and appealing young players in cast will spur curiosity and should advance b.o. prospects into passable sphere.

Hollywood, March 14.

Warner Bros. release of Delmer Daves production. Stars Troy Donahue, Claudette Colbert, Karl Malden, Dean Jagger, Connie Stevens, Diane McBain, Sharon Hugueny. Directed and screenplay by Daves; camera (Technicolor), Harry Stradling Sr.; editor, Owen Marks; art director, Le K. Kuter; music, Max Steiner; sound, Stanley Jones; assistant directors, Chuck Hansen, Russell Llewellyn. Reviewed at the studio, March 14, '61. Running time, 140 MINS.

Parrish McLean ..... Troy Donahue
Ellen McLean ..... Claudette Colbert
Judd Raike ..... Karl Malden
Sala Post ..... Dean Jagger
Lucy ..... Connie Stevens
Alison Post ..... Diane McBain
Paige Raike ..... Sharon Hugueny
Teete Hoxie ..... Dub Taylor
Edgar Raike ..... Hampton Fancher
Wiley Raike ..... David Knapp
Eldine Raike ..... Saundra Edwards
Eileen ..... Sylvia Miles
Rose ..... Bibi Osterwald
Addie ..... Madelyn Sherwood
Tom Weldon ..... Hayden Rorke

Delmer Daves' production of "Parrish" is a long, plodding account of man vs. monopoly in Connecticut's tobacco game. Although slickly produced, charming to the eye in its pictorial appreciation of New England's scenic beauty and carefully cast with a mixture of solid veteran troupers and a host of pretty, mostly blue-eyed, colts and fillies weaned in Warner Bros. television-indoctrinated stable, the film, for all of its length, rarely gets beneath the skin of its characters and eventually begins to sag under the bulk of too many climaxes followed by too many dramatic plateaus. One comes away from the 140-minute experience with far keener insight into the growing process of the tobacco plant than into the peculiar breed of people who do the growing in this picture.

"Parrish" does not even remotely figure to be an overpowering box-office attraction, but has elements that indicate a mild success, not the least of which is its likely strong appeal to younger audiences, who may be able to identify to some extent with the growing pains of its central characters as they encounter the initial responsibilities of maturity. Also going for the Warner Bros. release is the fact that there are a number of rising young players in the cast, attractive performers who will arouse curiosity among filmgoers.

Based on the highly "Parrish" able novel by Mildred Savage, Daves' screenplay is something of a cross between a rich man's "Tobacco Road" and a poor man's "A Place in the Sun." Troy Donahue essays the title role of a poor young man who emerges from a laborer's toil in the Connecticut tobacco fields to challenge the dynasty of mighty land baron Karl Malden, an inconceivably ruthless and greedy tycoon who would put another man's lifelong labor in his pipe and smoke it in order to gain control of the entire tobacco valley.

A number of romantic entanglements crop up to complicate this basic conflict, not the least of which are Donahue's bat-of-an-eyelash love affairs with Malden's daughter (Sharon Hugueny), his arch rival's (Dean Jagger's) daughter (Diane McBain) and a loose field girl (Connie Stevens) who gives illegitimate birth to the child of Malden's son (Hampton Fancher). Then there is the supreme complication: Malden's marriage to Donahue's mother (Claudette Colbert). At any rate, Donahue proceeds to walk out on an enviably salaried position as his stepfather's aide, acquires the last remaining strip of land in the valley independent of Malden's control and scuttles the latter's last-ditch attempt to beat him down.

Donahue is handsome and has his moments, but lacks the animation and projection that is required to bring the title character, curiously vacant and elusive as written, into clearer focus. It is a serious setback to the film, which revolves dependently around the personality of its hero. The picture's three principal veterans—Miss Colbert, Malden and Jagger—do well, particularly Malden in spite of the exaggerated nature of his role. Pretty Miss Stevens displays a nice feel for intimate romantic byplay. The strikingly beautiful and glamorous Miss McBain is effective as Jagger's spoiled daughter. Other young people who make vivid impressions are Miss Hugueny, Fancher and David Knapp. Dub Taylor pitches in with a nice character performance, and the balance of support is more than adequate.

There is a certain class stereotype about the characters—coldness and decadence among the rich, lovableness and camaraderie among the poor—that Daves has not managed to erase either as scenarist or director. It seems a rather dated concept in these socially-flattened times. Harry Stradling Sr.'s astute photography is extremely flattering to the players, particularly the young ladies who benefit enormously in close-up from the soft, careful regard of his lens. Leo K. Kuter's artwork is accurately and perceptively geared to the social status of the parties whose habitats are on display. Editor Owen Marks has done a respectable job of knitting this long film. Max Steiner's score is soft, romantic and melodic, similar in theme to that of his score for Daves' "A Summer Place." Tube

Look In Any Window

Tasteless, unpleasant meller about a junior-grade peeping Tom. Exploitable aspects may entice some, but overall b.o. prospects are lean.

Hollywood, March 13.

Allied Artists release of William Alland-Laurence E. Mascott production. Stars Paul Anka, Ruth Roman, Alex Nicol, Gigi Perreau, Carole Mathews, George Dolenz, Jack Cassidy with Robert Sampson, Dan Grayam. Directed by Alland. Screenplay, Mascott; camera, W. Wallace Kelley; editor, Harold Gordon; art director, Hilyard Brown, music, Richard Shores; sound, Charles Schelling; assistant director, Charles W. Bohart. Reviewed at the studio, March 13, '61. Running time, 87 MINS.

Craig Fowler ..... Paul Anka
Jackie Fowler ..... Ruth Roman
Jay Fowler ..... Alex Nicol
Eileen Lowell ..... Gigi Perreau
Betty Lowell ..... Carole Mathews
Carlo ..... George Dolenz
George Lowell ..... Jack Cassidy
Lindstrom ..... Robert Sampson
Webber ..... Dan Grayam

Out of the nine leading characters in "Look In Any Window," seven are thoroughly unsavory types. Included in this unpleasant cast of characters in this extremely unpleasant picture are an emotionally-disturbed teenager who is a peeping Tom on the side, a shiftless alcoholic, an unscrupulously opportunistic widower, two unfaithful wives, a wealthy and decadent businessman and a righteous, sadistic cop. In other words, not exactly wholesame, bring-the-whole-family-to-the-theatre entertainment.

Obviously a film peopled with characters of such a sensational nature has a certain air of exploitation about it, the kind that might entice a thrill-seeker to the neighborhood ozoner. But the Allied Artists release amounts to film-making at its most distasteful level, and the bulk of the general public is discerning enough not to support such fare. Such pictures are a discredit to Hollywood and a gross distortion of the American way of life.

The film was produced by William and Laurence E. Mascott, written by the latter and directed by the former. Teenage singing favorite Paul Anka essays the pivotal role, that of the demented youngster from a broken home who asserts his latent masculinity by donning a mask and spying on the ladies of the sub-bourbon community. The picture gets tangled up in irrelevant issues but ultimately gets to the crux of the matter and suggests a happy eventuality when the boy's parents agree to make a fresh go of it and the lad, caught in the act and unmasked, is ticketed for psychiatric care. No novel point is made through all this melodramatic fuss, except perhaps that people who live in glass houses shouldn't get stoned but had better draw their blinds at night.

Anka, a nitery performer and composer of some note, does not seem well-suited to the business of acting, but gives it a valiant try. He sings the lacklustre title ditty, which he wrote. Ruth Roman contributes a sultry, sexy performance as Anka's naughty mama. Alex Nicol turns in an effective portrait of his alcoholic papa. Others involved are Gigi Perreau, Carole Mathews, George Dolenz, Jack Cassidy, Robert Sampson and Dan Grayam.

Editing is haphazard, even to the extent that sound from one scene overlaps into the next. There is journeyman camera work by W. Wallace Kelley, art director by Hilyard Brown. Tube.

The Secret Ways

Outmoded cloak-and-dagger meller. Weak wicket candidate.

Hollywood, March 10.

Universal release of Richard Widmark production. Stars Widmark; features Sonja Ziemann, Charles Regnier, Walter Rilla. Directed by Phil Karlson. Screenplay, Jean Hazlewood, based on novel by Alistair MacLean; camera, Max Greene; editor, Aaron Stell; art directors, Werner and Isabella Schlichting; music, Johnny Williams; sound, Kurt Schwarz; assistant directors, Andre Farsch, Erich von Stroheim Jr. Reviewed at Westwood Village Theatre, March 10, '61. Running time, 112 MINS.

Michael Reynolds ..... Richard Widmark
Julia ..... Sonja Ziemann
The Count ..... Charles Regnier
Jansei ..... Walter Rilla
Colonel Hidas ..... Howard Vernon
Elsa ..... Senta Berger
Minister Sokenov ..... Heinz Moog
Herrman Sheffler ..... Hubert von Meyerinck
The Fat Man ..... Oskar Wegrostek
Border Official ..... Stefan Schnabel
Olga ..... Elisabeth Newmann-Viertel
Janos ..... Helmuth Janatsch
Jon Bainbridge ..... John Horsley
Peter ..... Walter Wilz
Special Agent ..... Raoul Retzer
Language Professor ..... Georg Kovarr
Sandor ..... Adi Berbe
The Commandant ..... Jochen Brockmann
Waitress ..... Brigitte Brunmuller
The Count's Men ..... Reinhard Kolldorfi, Rudolf Rosner

"The Secret Ways" is a serious film at which, regrettably, discerning audiences are likely to laugh. Cause of the unscheduled merriment is its thoroughly outmoded style and a pack of visual cliches. It emerges a ludicrous, imitative, unintentional parody of dozens of cloak-and-dagger pictures that have preceded it to the screen. Filmed in Europe by producer-star Richard Widmark, the Heath production amounts to a sort of poor man's "Third Man." Totally lacking in appeal outside of the Widmark name, the Universal-International release is a depressingly weak box-office contender and, additionally, is much too long for comfortable pairing as a supporting attraction.

The undistinguished, astonishingly uninformative screenplay was adapted by Jean Hazelwood from the novel by Alistair MacLean. Widmark stars as an American adventurer-for-hire who hires out to rescue a noted scholar from behind the Iron Curtain in Hungary. He has a running skirmish with the Budapestiferous AVO (Hungarian Secret Police), but ultimately gets his man. As directed by Phil Karlson, there are a few lively chase sequences but most of the film is burdened with suspicious eye-balling and unrealistically theatrical behavior.

The way Widmark plays the central character—with a sort of smugly, ugly Americanese swagger—one never becomes concerned about his chances for survival. There is, however, some good character work by Charles Regnier and capable enough support by Walter Rilla, Howard Vernon, Heinz Moog, Hubert van Meyerinck and Oskar Wegrostek, although each of these people and most of the bit players have been encouraged to behave like classic spy picture, strictly-from-Hungary types. The film brings a pair of delightfully good-looking young European ladies to the American screen: handsome Sonja Ziemann and a well-proportioned blonde bombshell with the culinary-sounding name of Senta Berger, latter in a preposterously irrelevant role incorporated into the film apparently for purely decorative reasons.

Max Greene's photography has an energetic bent in the run-run-run passages that comprise seemingly a good half of the film. That the picture seems overly long and repetitious is not a favorable commentary on Aaron Stell's editing. Art directors Werner and Isabella Schlichting have imported the ornate style of European architecture. Johnny Williams theme music adds an appropriately ominous note. Tube.

Cuando Regree Mama
(When Mother Returns)
(MEXICAN)

Mexico City, March 14.

Peliculas Nacionales release of Alameda Films (Cesar Santos Galindo) production. Stars Ofelia Montesco, Maria Duval, Rafael Bertrand, Pedro de Aguillon; features Hortensia Santovena, Alejandro Chiangueroti Jr., Lucero Tuboada, Rocio Rosales, Rafaelito Banquells, Enrique Edwards. Directed by Rafael Baledon. Screenplay, Ramon Obon. At Variedades Theatre, Mexico City. Running time, 90 MINS.

This is an unabashed sentimental tear-jerker centering about four children who become orphans and have the truth hidden from them for a long time. Plot concerns a pious older brother who remains silent, attempting to withhold the truth from the children. These gradually learn of the death of their parents. The ultimate acceptance of this fact is rather ingeniously presented by the youngest child.

Lucero Taborda, Rocio Rosales, Rafaelito Banquells and Enrique Edwards, the quartet of kids around whom film revolves, do quite well in their roles. And with action taking place around Christmas time, there are many festive scenes likely to be appreciated by kiddies in the audience.

Picture is about evenly divided between laughter and tears. Thanks to the sure direction of Rafael Baledon, the transition never gets out of hand. While the script is conventional, acting is on the whole convincing. This one will have a long life of many years in nabe houses in reruns, and is fitting fare for Spanish speaking area markets. Lenil.

Macario
(MEXICAN)

Mexico's "Best Foreign Film" Oscar nominee, a moving and illuminating allegory about a poor woodsman's spiritual bout with Death and material bout with hunger. On heels of nomination, a favorable arty prospect.

Hollywood, March 16.

Azteca Films release of Armando Orive Alba production. Stars Ignacio Lopez Tarso, Pina Pellicer; with Enrique Lucero, Jose Galvez, Jose Luis Jimenez, Mario Alberto Rodriguez. Directed by Roberto Gavaldon. Screenplay, Emilio Carballido, Gavaldon, from story by Bruno Traven; camera, Gabriel Figueroa; art director, Manuel Fontanals; music, Raul Lavista. Reviewed at Azteca studio projection room, March 16, '61. Running time, 91 MINS.

Macario ..... Ignacio Lopez Tarso
Macario's Wife ..... Pina Pellicer
Death ..... Enrique Lucero
The Devil ..... Jose Galvez
God ..... Jose Luis Jimenez
Don Ramuo ... Mario Alberto Rodriguez

In "Macario," the Mexican film industry has produced one of the finest films of 1960. A charming, touching allegory expressed with primitive power and spiritual significance, the Clasa Films Mundiales production, produced by Armando Orive Alba, is also a film of ethnic value, providing as it does an insight into the cultural traditions of the country and their impact on its people. Since, additionally, its artistry has been rewarded in this country with an Academy Award nomination for "Best Foreign Film," "Macario" is certain to attract a good deal of attention in the art house circuit, where it should be most favorably received.

Ignacio Lopez Tarso contributes a memorable performance as "Macario," a kind, decent, but ever-hungry woodman whose wish to have, for once in his life, one thing all to himself a turkey which he will not share with his impoverished family leads to his destruction when he shares his feast, instead, with Death, receiving in return the power to cure. In a symbolic chain of events he becomes renowned for his magical abilities to determine the life or death of his patients, until he is confronted with an ultimatum from the Inquisition to cure a viceroy's son (which he cannot) or pay with his own life. His wife (Pina Pellice) finds him expired in the forest, his half of the symbolic turkey representative of all the hunger of his life intact, suggesting the consequences of refusal to share, no matter the extent of personal motivation.

Within this complicated but compelling framework there are several passages of great emotional force and indelible beauty. The early scenes of the family's utter poverty amidst a ceremony in which rich foodstuffs are offered to the dead has great impact. Then, too, sly humor has been instilled into the passages in which Death determines, often to Macario's astonishment, which patients shall survive and which shall perish.

The film is masterfully directed by Roberto Gavaldon. The moving screenplay by Gavaldon and Emilio Carballido was adapted from a story by Bruno Traven. It benefits from the adept photography of Gabriel Figueroa, aware and meticulous art direction of Manuel Fontanals, capable special effects of Juan Munoz Ravelo, and expressive music of Raul Lavista. In addition to Tarso's exceptional portrayal, Miss Pellicer is luminous and compassionate as his wife. Enrique Lucero commanding and impressive as Death. Also fine are Jose Galvez as the Devil, Jose Luis Jimenez as God, and Mario Alberto Rodriguez as a wealthy townsman. Tube.

All In A Night's Work
(COLOR)

Periodically witty script, keen direction and a merry performance by Shirley MacLaine.

Hollywood, March 14.

Paramount release of Hal Wallis production. Stars Dean Martin, Shirley MacLaine; features Cliff Robertson, Charles Ruggles; Norma Crane. Directed by Joseph Anthony. Screenplay, Edmund Beloin, Maurice Richlin, Sidney Sheldon, based on story by Margit Veszi and play by Owen Elford; camera (Technicolor), Joseph LaShelle; editor, Howard Smith; art directors, Hal Pereira, Walter Tyler; music, Andre Previn; sound, Gene Merritt, Charles Grenzbach, assistant director, Daniel J. McCauley. Reviewed at Grauman's Chinese Theatre, March 14, '61. Running time, 94 MINS.

Tony Ryder ..... Dean Martin
Katie Robbins ..... Shirley MacLaine
Dr. Warren Kingsley Sr. ..... Charlie Ruggles
Warren Kingsley Jr. ..... Cliff Robertson
Marge Coombs ..... Norma Crane
Oliver Dunning ..... Gale Gordon
Sam Weaver ..... Jerome Cowan
Lasker ..... Jack Weston
O'Hara ..... Lin Wolfe
Mrs. Kingsley Sr. ..... Mabel Albertson
Miss Schuster ..... Mary Treen
Carter ..... Rex Evans
Albright ..... Roy Gordon
Colonel Ryder ..... Charles Evans
Baker ..... Ralph Dumke
Harry Lane ..... John Hudson

A surprisingly high reading on the laugh meter is recorded in this essentially predictable, featherweight comedy. The Hal Wallis production never really soars to any sustained comic crescendos and has plenty of barren patches between the fun but, thanks to the flashes of wit in the screenplay and the surges of zany merriment for which director Joseph Anthony and costar Shirley MacLaine are chiefly responsible, there is a presentable degree of humor and diversion to be found. With Dean Martin and Miss MacLaine as potent marquee bait, the Paramount release should prove to be a fairly respectable, though not dynamic, boxoffice attraction.

Other than a vague comment on how the most innocent circumstance can spur suspicion of foul play in today's complex, impersonal business world, there is no satiric profundity in screenplay by Edmund Beloin, Maurice Richlin and Sidney Sheldon. Consolidated from a story by Margit Veszi and a play by Owen Elford, their scenario describes with disarming disregard for reality the development of a romantic attachment between the heir to a publishing dynasty (Martin) and a girl (Miss MacLaine). She's suspected of having enjoyed intimate relations with his uncle-benefactor just prior to the latter's smiling death in bed. The entire yarn is fabricated on the false notion shared by Martin and his board of directors that Miss MacLaine is blackmailing the firm, which is seeking an important bank loan dependent on the good name of its deceased leader. As expected, everything comes clean in the end.

Miss MacLaine is still playing the sweet, naive, tanglefooted kook she began a few years back in "Some Came Running," but she plays it with such innocent sincerity and comic gusto that she thoroughly succeeds in winning over the audience and gives the film a much-needed shot in the funnybone.

Never for one moment is Martin believable in the role of the youthful publishing tycoon, but his easy-going manner and knack for supplying the comedy reaction gets him by. Then, too, there is a lamentable shortage in Hollywood of younger romantic leading men who can play it for laughs.

Cliff Robertson, in an "other guy" role, is miscast. A fine dramatic actor, he seems ill-at-ease in this lightweight environment. The film benefits from a number of exceptional supporting comic performances, prominent among which are those of Norma Crane, Jack Weston (especially good), Charles Ruggles, Gale Gordon and Jerome Cowan. Anthony's direction is outstanding—beautifully timed to get the most out of a punch line or sight gag and unusually perceptive in its incorporation of extra little bits of funny business to spank over a joke.

Joseph LaShelle's Technicolor photography is vivid and alert. Credit art directors Hal Pereira and Walter Tyler with a number of attractive, colorful sets. Sharp editing of Howard Smith is especially rewarding in its flashback technique—conveying the best quality of a swift revolving stage to isolate past from present. Most of Andre Previn's listenable score is a classical air about it, notably the freshingly different theme melody. Tube.

An open letter from the President of CINERAMA Inc.

CINERAMA INC.
575 LEXINGTON AVENUE • NEW YORK 22, N.Y. PLAZA 2-0900
CABLE ADDRESS
CINERAMA, NEW YORK

OFFICE OF THE PRESIDENT
410 PARK AVENUE
NEW YORK 22, N.Y.

TO: THE HONORABLE STEPHEN MC NICHOLS, GOVERNOR OF THE STATE OF COLORADO:

Thank you, Governor McNichols, for your sponsorship of the Rocky Mountain Premiere of "This Is Cinerama" and the introduction of the new SUPER-CINERAMA at The Cooper Theatre, Denver, Col., on Thursday evening, March 9, 1961.

We of Cinerama, Inc. were proud, happy and honored that this auspicious and important milestone in our company's progress was under your sponsorship.

TO: THE BOARD OF TRUSTEES OF THE COOPER FOUNDATION and TO
KENNETH E. ANDERSON, GENERAL MANAGER OF THE COOPER
FOUNDATION THEATRES and HIS STAFF:

Our sincere thanks for an outstanding premiere, as well as your courage in following our entirely new ideas for the design and construction of a theatre especially created for a radically different concept of entertainment.

To the Board of Trustees of the Cooper Foundation, our sincere gratitude for your confidence in approving our ideas and your decision to construct similar SUPER-CINERAMA theatres in several other cities throughout the United States.

AND OUR THANKS to the supreme judge of any entertainment, the public, for their acceptance and approval of SUPER-CINERAMA.

The public of the Rocky Mountain area has backed us up with the biggest advance box office sale of any attraction yet to be shown in Denver.

Nicolas Reisini, President

N. Reisini

CINERAMA, INC.

MUST VIRTUE ALWAYS BE DULL?

Evil Starts in Mind, Not the Eye

Misconceptions to the effect that portrayals of sex and violence in films cause impressionable young people to be delinquent are extremely dangerous because "this wrong diagnosis leads to incorrect and inadequate remedies."

This is the gist of a letter written by Donal E. J. MacNamara, dean of N. Y. Institute of Criminology, to Rep. Thomas Dodd, chairman of the U. S. subcommittee on Juvenile Delinquency.

Crime is the product of "multiple factors," MacNamara said. Legislation based on idea that films and books are responsible would almost certainly have no appreciable effect on future rate of delinquency, he told the House unit.

Saw a Sinful Poster While Strolling

Eric Johnston Biffs Critics of Films Who Never Listen to the Rebuttal

Eric Johnston, prez of the Motion Picture Assn. of America, Thursday (16) lashed out at what he calls the "strolling critic" of the motion picture industry—the do gooder who walks by a theatre and, without going inside, feels himself qualified to condemn all the sex and violence of the pic being shown.

Johnston's remarks were made before the opening sessions of the seventh annual conference of the Federation of Motion Picture Councils in New York. MPAA topper said that too many of the industry's critics have "granite ears." They "tune out" when somebody tries to talk factually and with restraint about films and tune in "when someone bellows irresponsible slander."

Johnston also cited figures involving the Green Sheet and Legion of Decency ratings to show that films today actually are more acceptable today — family - wise — than five years ago.

He said that five years ago the Green Sheet put 68.83% on the films it reviewed in the ratings for various audience groups ranging from young people to families. In 1960, the comparable figure was 69.11%. Similarly, in the 1954-55 season, the Legion of Decency reported 65.09% of the films it reviewed were morally unobjectionable for some age bracket of the American audience. Five years later, comparable figure was 72.07%.

"I am not here to say that Hollywood is devoid of sins," said Johnston. "There is at times inexcusable irresponsibility. But I must insist it is not all sin, not all violence."

'Pollyanna' and 'Hand'

Buena Vista's "Pollyanna" received the Federation's annual award as the best family film of 1960 at the final awards banquet Friday (17) evening. Columbia Pictures was host at the dinner which also saw special citations presented to Helen Winston, producer of "Hand in Hand," and producer Jerry Bresler and star Deborah Walley of "Gidget Goes Hawaiian." Both "Hand" and "Gidget" are Col releases.

At the same dinner, a representative of the Reader's Digest presented the magazine's public service award to the Larchmont-Mamaroneck Motion Picture Council in recognition of the group's attempts to bring "fine motion pictures to their community." Group was also cited for "contributing to the artistic abilities of their young people by developing their taste—especially their analytical and critical abilities in the selection of films."

Charles McCarthy, exec vice-prez of Council of Motion Picture Organizations, heads up entertainment and publicity for the tribute dinner COMPO tosses for Eric Johnston at the Waldorf April 10. Assisting McCarthy is Joseph Hyams, Warner Bros. publicity manager.

Banquet marks Johnston's 15th anni in the picture business as head of Motion Picture Assn. of America. Russell Downing heads the dinner committee.

Jack Palance into Dino De Laurentiis' "Barabbas" for Columbia release, spinning April 4 in Verona, Italy.

'3d Sex' Okay

Atlanta, March 21.

Kingsley's "Come Dance With Me." Brigitte Bardot-starrer which had censor trouble here, is now greenlighted. At same time a fine legal point seems clarified.

Pic's original nix was on grounds it showed a femme impersonator in some sequences. City law bars transvestism in theatre and night-club performances, and Mrs. Christine Gilliam, Library Board censor, construed the ban to pix. Appeal to the full board, however, reversed her and apparently cleared the air for Atlanta cinemas on this point.

Spanish-Lingual Newsreel in N.Y.

El Panamericano, first newsreel in Spanish to be released in the U.S., is now being shown in Spanish language theatres in New York, New Jersey, Pennsylvania and Florida. Third issue of the reel is now in distribution.

Heading the operation are Dr. Edward A. Palmer, formerly editor-in-chief of the Cubacolor Newsreel in Havana; Francisco Guiterrez, formerly a film laboratory and radio station owner in Cuba, and Delfin Pupo, former Cuban ambassador to Canada and a prominent business man.

Group headquarters in New York and plans eventually to extend distribution of the reel to the middle west and west coast. It is also to be available for theatrical and tv distribution in Latin America.

Query for Trade

Continued from page 3

release was launched. Considering the fact that each 70m print cost a little more than $8,000 and each 35m print something in excess of $1,000, company has almost $1,000,000 tied up in print costs alone on the film.

To make his point about the boff biz being done by "Alamo" in its general release, Heineman cited figures from 32 dates around the country where the pic is or was surpassing figures racked up by such other UA releases as "Some Like It Hot," "The Vikings" and "Solomon and Sheba." Exec said that while higher admission prices are being charged for the general "Alamo" release than were charged for the other pix, this would account for no more than one-third of the increase in theatre grosses, which are often two and three times that which the earlier pix brought in.

"Alamo," which this week wound up its premiere engagement at the Rivoli in New York, is set to reopen on Broadway following Paramount's "All in A Night's Work" at the Victoria, day-dating with an eastside house still to be set. Pic won't be moving onto the N. Y. circuits until the fourth of July.

EPISCOPAL-EYE VIEW OF FILMS

By VINCENT CANBY

Motion pictures should not be prostituted for the sake of religious groups or religious dogma any more than for the sake of the dollar. This, however, is a likely result if the film industry buckles under to various pressure groups (and would-be pressure groups) which are dismayed by the increase in adult-themed pix as well as the rise of sex and violence in films.

This is the opinion of the Rev. Malcolm Boyd, Episcopalian chaplain at Colorado State University and an outspoken critic of both the motion picture industry and its (generally uninformed) critics. Before entering the church, Boyd was active in both film and tv production and thus now enjoys a rather unique vantage point from which to survey the film industry's current public relations problems.

Being a Protestant clergyman, Boyd made his remarks primarily in connection with the debate now going on within the National Council of the Churches of Christ as to whether or not that confederation of non-Roman Catholic denominations should or could become a pressure group comparable to the Legion of Decency. His opinions, however, would seem to have even greater application to the entire area of public responsibility re censorship, family pix, sex and violence in films, etc.

At a time when the air is heavy with cliches, his remarks come like a—excuse the expression—breath of fresh air. Two samples:

On the matter of church censorship of films—for the church to become a dehumanizing force in a period of "dehumanization" would be truly sinful. The church cannot be the instrument for the censorship of artists.

Anti-Think

On family films—most so-called family films are nothing more than "homogenized" art, bland and innocuous, seldom reflecting reality or prompting serious thought of men's relations among themselves or with God.

In the course of his New York stopover Sunday (19), Father Boyd was asked his definition of a family film. It would be, he replied, a film which would bring the family together for a discussion of topics ranging anywhere from sex and love, to political or social problems. Principal effect of most of today's so-called family films is to send the family off to Howard Johnson's for chocolate sundaes.

Boyd takes particular exception to the self-styled religious pictures ranging from "The Ten Commandments" through "Solomon and Sheba," "The Story of Ruth" and "Esther and The King." More honestly religious, because they "mirror life, even its negative aspects," he feels, are such films as "Wild Is The Wind," "Separate Tables," "On The Beach," "Room at The Top," "Elmer Gantry," "La Dolce Vita" and "The Misfits."

Fall Vs. Redemptoin

Most of these he would describe as "art of the Fall," because they explore "some aspect of Hell," as opposed to the "art of Redemption," which shows an aspect of man's divinity. He also admits that today there is a "super fascination" with evil in films, but in his book, the only pix which might be called harmful to kids are those which are "phony," exploit incorrect values, destroy taste and, in effect, are "bad art." These, he says, are immoral.

Though many film producers have exploited realism for the quick buck, Boyd would be hesitant to impose any censorship curbs which might also tie the hands of the serious artist. The clergyman is not sure that some sort of non-governmental classification system might not be called for, but he agrees that this, while theoretically possible, might be unwieldy in actual practice.

Boyd thinks it's also theoreti-

(Continued on page 24)

Schoolmen Just Refuse to Be Friendly; Exhib a 'Pariah' With Ft. Lee Pastor

The Fort Lee (N.J.) "war of attrition" seems to be hardening. Latest effort of Mal Warshaw, the beset art house operator, for community acceptance got another brush when the board of education recently nixed participation in a new film series he plans for young people.

Warshaw had invited the public schools to join in an earlier series, but Superintendent Lewis F. Cole objected because of "commercial aspects." Intending to eliminate the objection, Warshaw proposes now to deliver his house, the Grand-Lee, at cost to the schools, letting them sell tickets to benefit teachers' salaries, school lunch programs, etc. The schools still aren't buying it, but the puzzler to Warshaw is the straight-faced board of education response that censorship would be involved.

"The board would have to object and or disapprove of so called objectionable films being offered at your theatre. Censorship by communities has been opposed by exhibitors for many years—the recent Chicago case is a prime example. The Fort Lee Board of Education does not want to become motion picture censors."

What's meant by the evasive reply, claims Warshaw, is that the board fears offending the town's powerful Catholic pastor. Exhib contends his cold reception in the town since opening the theatre last April 19 owes mainly to hostility from a local Catholic priest. Cleric's contention is that Grand-Lee is a wedge for lewd pix that would corrupt Fort Lee morals.

Noting he's had support from officials in surrounding towns, Warshaw likens himself to the prophet without honor in his own community. The earlier film series, he points out, was selected by the faculty of nearby Leonia High School. Films included "Cry, the Beloved Country," "Leonardo da Vinci," "Devil's Disciple," "All the King's Men" and "12 Angry Men."

'Konga' Print Order: 500

Producer Herman Cohen has set what he calls the largest print order ever made on an American International Pictures release—500 prints on his made-in-London monster pic, "Konga."

Film opens today (Wed.) in 95 theatres in Boston and the New England territory.

Cooper to Build 5 for Cinerama

Nicolas Reisini, president of Cinerama, disclosed in New York this week that the Cooper Foundation, Denver, having opened the first Super-Cinerama this month in the Colorado capital, will construct others in five additional cities. This is a new concept in film exhibition, the theatre being a four-waller, with one of the walls actually the screen extending from floor to ceiling.

Reisini said the Denver site was put up at a cost of nearly $1,000,000.

Exec added Cinerama is discussing with financing and construction companies the idea of building "Super" units in San Diego, Los Angeles and San Francisco.

Abroad, others are blueprinted for Paris, Glasgow, Manchester and possibly in Germany.

COLUMBIA'S DRIVE: SALUTING DIVISIONS

Columbia v.p.-general sales manager Rube Jackter has set a three-month sales drive, April through June, carrying a "Salute to the Division Managers" banner. In other words, the company's 11 territorial chiefs are being honored in the campaign.

Jackter said that in addition to the regular flow of new product, a group of the top releases of last year also will be marketed during the three-month period.

Another angle is that the week of June 9 is being designated "Columbia on the Screen Week." During this time all divisions will undertake to have a Col product on every screen in their respective areas.

Do-It-Ourself

Continued from page 3

nent information at their command, available to their patrons."

A TOA spokesman said the "system" devised would involve a committee which TOA hopes will work in cooperation with MPAA and the code organization under Geoffrey Shurlock. Almost nothing has been finally decided. The committee may or may not operate out of Hollywood.

In another action, the TOA board continued the liaison group headed by George Kerasotes, TOA board chairman of Springfield, Ill., set up at the 1960 annual meeting in Los Angeles to work with Geoffrey Shurlock's code organization and the Screen Producers Guild. The Kerasotes group expresses reaction of exhibitors to the effectiveness of the code.

United Theatre Owners of the Heart of America, with headquarters at Kansas City has voted to affiliate with the Theatre Owners of America, it was announced Monday (20) by UTOHOA prexy Richard Orear.

The group, operating primarily in Kansas and Missouri, is the fourth independent association to join TOA within the last six months. TOA prexy Albert M. Pickus noted. Others are the Virginia Theatre Owners Assn., Louisiana Theatre Owners Assn., and Texas Drive-In Assn.

VILLAGE CRITIC'S FILM NOW BEING SELF-CUT

"Guns of the Trees," Jonas Mekas' art pic now in editing for him, is to be handled by Emile De Antonio, distributor of the avant-garde "Pull My Daisy" and sundry imports. Low-budget film has no bookings yet, but is expected to be in release by early summer.

Mekas is editor of Film Culture mag, besides reviewing pix for the weekly Village Voice, N.Y. He describes "Guns," which he wrote and directed as an existentialist feature. Top player is Gene Carruthers, who debuted in J. Cassavetes' "Shadows."

Texas Catholics Okay Stand-In Protests

San Antonio, March 21

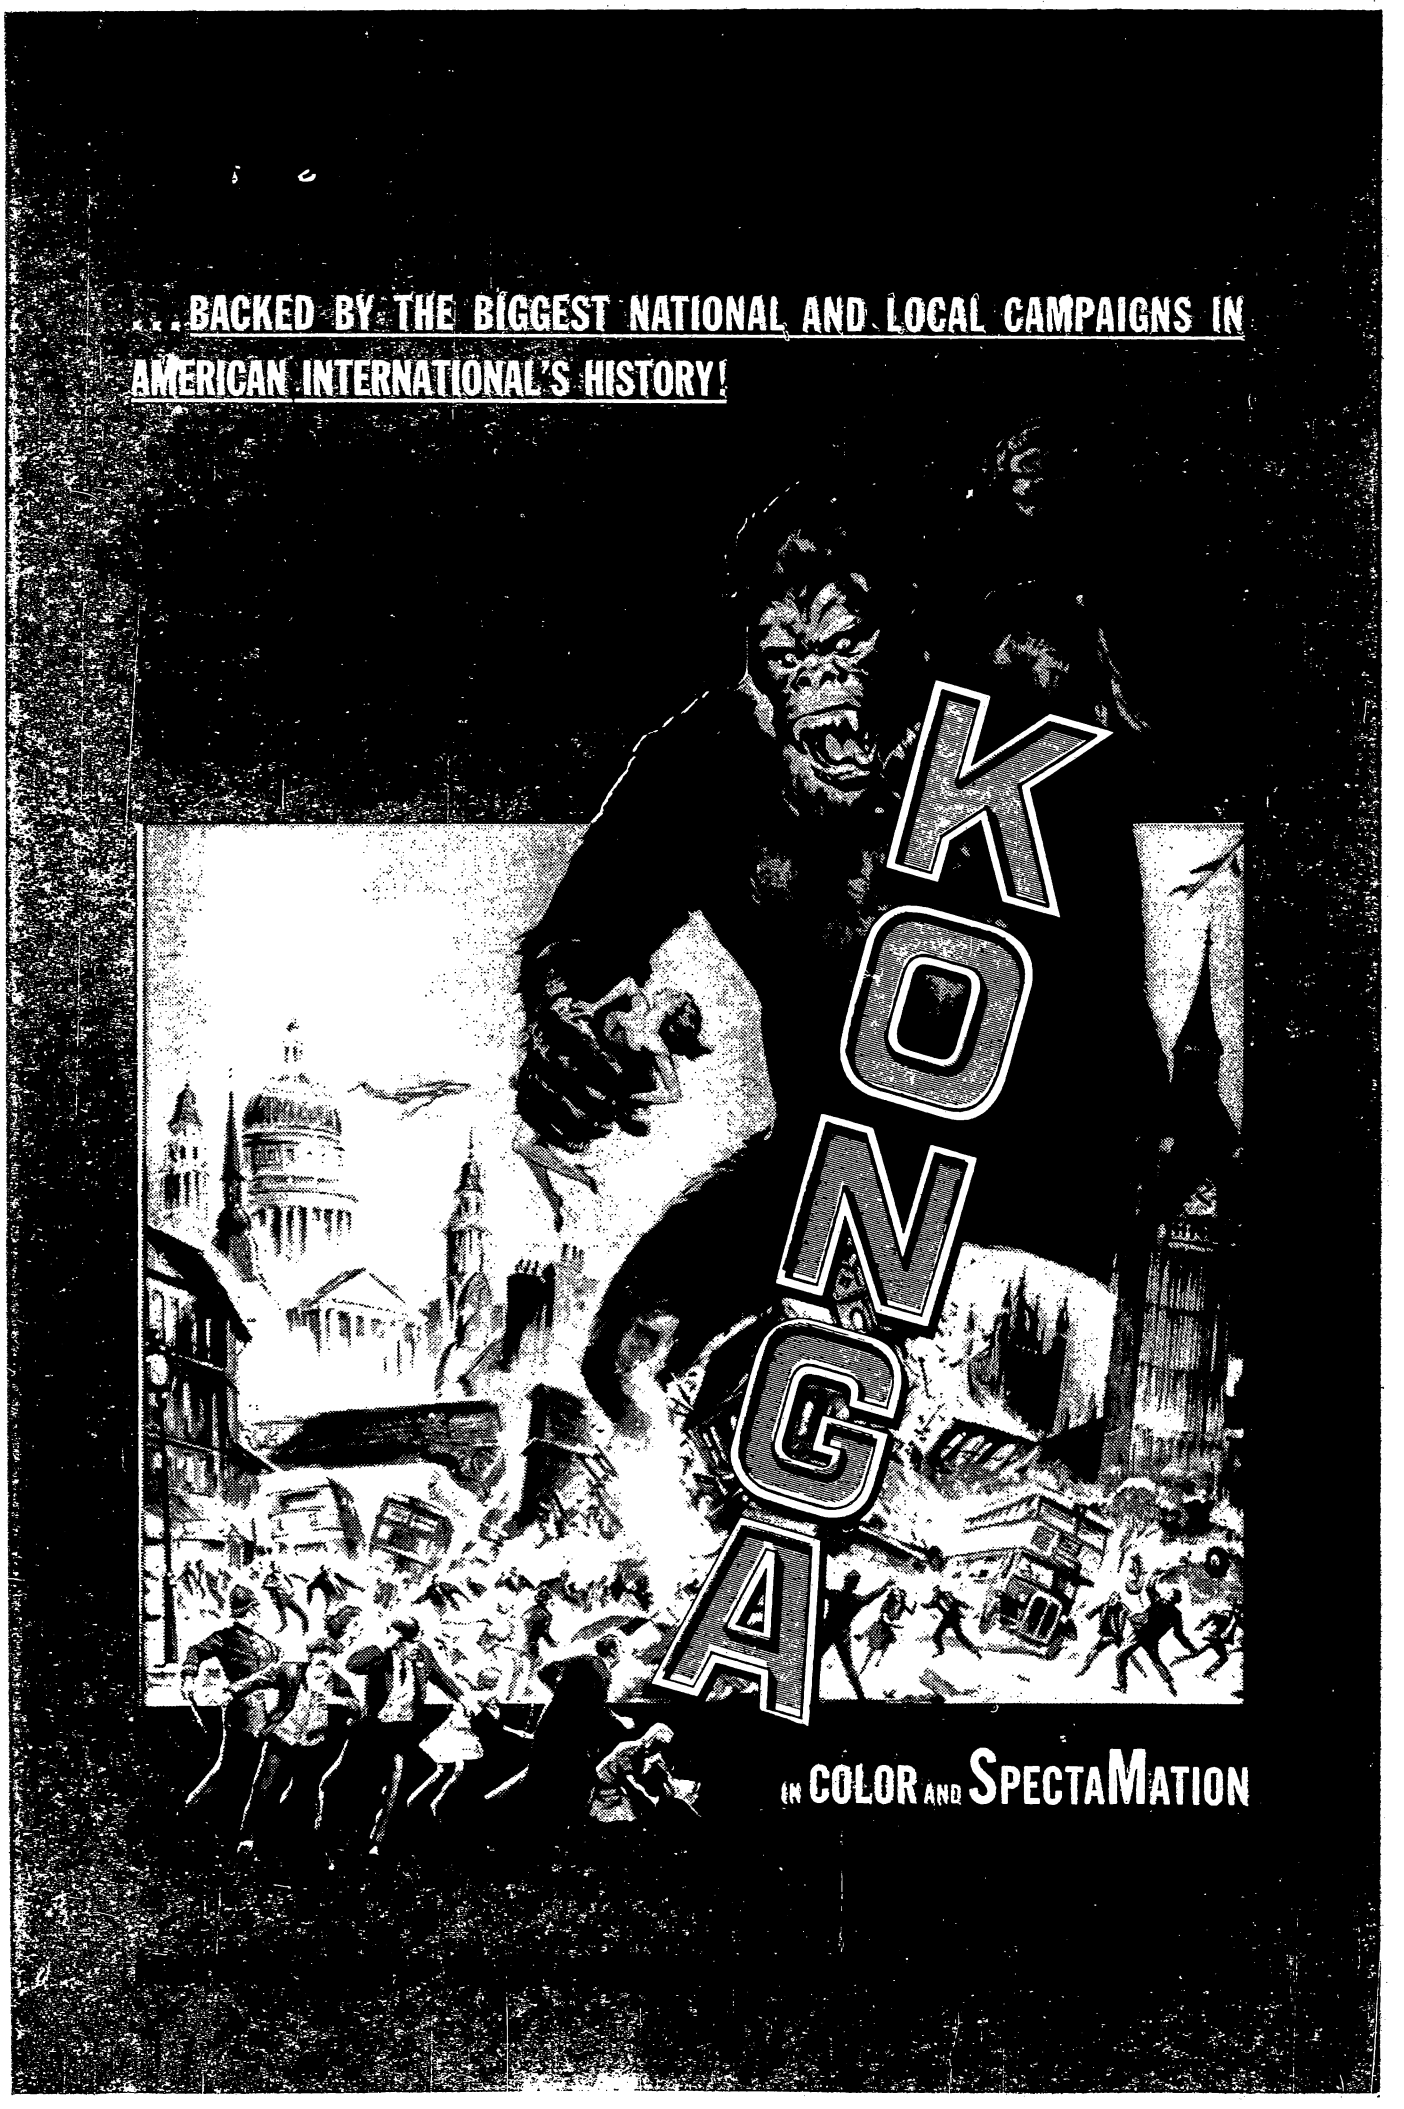
Archdiocesan Council of Catholic Men, representing groups in 22 South Texas counties, has endorsed stand - in demonstrations by Negroes at motion picture theatres.

A resolution endorsing the demonstrators, in which groups of white and Negro youth have sought to desegregate film theatres, was approved at the council's annual meeting here.

Demonstrations have been held recently in San Antonio, Austin, Houston and Dallas. The council, in the archdiocese [illegible] Catholics, a spokesman for the council said.

"We recognize that the stand-in action as recently practiced is one approach—and as such, [illegible] legally and morally good—but it is just desegregation of races or ethnic groups in the social and economic area of our community," the resolution said.

"We view as a fiction the opinion of some that segregation is a legal custom and a [illegible] practice of the community," it said.



...BACKED BY THE BIGGEST NATIONAL AND LOCAL CAMPAIGNS IN AMERICAN INTERNATIONAL'S HISTORY!
KONGA
IN COLOR AND SPECTAMATION

Inside Stuff—Pictures

A pirated Soviet film version of Arthur Miller's 1949 Pulitzer Prize-winning "Death of a Salesman" is playing key cities behind the Iron Curtain under the tag of "The Bridge Cannot Be Crossed." But it appears unlikely that Arthur Miller, author of the play, nor Columbia Pictures which produced the Hollywood film version in 1951, will be able to do much, if anything, about the situation.

Although Lenfilm Productions turned out the picture last year at its Leningrad studios, Miller was unaware that his play was being utilized as the basis for a film until a letter from a Russian fan so informed him some six weeks ago. Meantime, he's consulted his attorney. Columbia likewise is exploring copyright infringement angles. However, since the USSR is not a signatory to any of the international copyright conventions it appears that nothing can be accomplished on the legal front. Incidentally, Miller's plays are among the most frequently produced in the USSR.

Times Film Corp. is expanding its actual distribution of films, and in keeping with this policy has named Irving Sochin sales manager. Sochin at one time was sales chief with the Rank Organization when it was handling its own distribution in the U. S. Plans of Times call for titling and dubbing of some French films which it now has ready for release. Intention of the company, headed by Jean Goldwurm, is to take distrib on any unusual pic, not necessarily confining itself to foreign-made pix as in the past.

Several Warner Bros. insiders were among those who sold out stock in the company in accordance with terms of the tender offering. WB offered to buy out investors at up to $55 per share. The sellers included Jack L. Warner, president. New York Stock Exchange revealed he unloaded 5,000 shares of the common, leaving him with a total of 249,865 shares, by far the largest individual stockholder. Interestingly, Charles Allen Jr., Wall Street broker, sold 10,000 shares, but still owns 40,000 shares. Allen is a WB director. James B. Conkling, Wolfe Cohen and Herman Starr, all v.p.'s, sold out entirely. Conkling and Cohen dropped 5,000 shares each and Starr sold 7,500.

Bookers Shun 'Unemployment' Spots; Revise Concept of Saturation Playoff

Current economic downbeat is compelling some re-evaluating on saturation territorial openings. Consequence is that film companies in some instances are giving wide berth to depressed markets, principally in midwest areas.

Resistance to product in sections of rising unemployment is said to be only spotty so far, and by and large there's no alarm. But situation is such that distributors are starting to tap other territories for multiple run teeoffs.

What's unfortunate from trade standpoint is that distribs had become increasingly reliant on hinterland saturation preems, which often plowed up fancy grosses. Swing-over to provinces was in ratio to New York as declining launching site.

'Suzie Made the Theatre' So Fruchtman's Charles Names Lounge for Her

Baltimore, March 21.

It's a love affair between Paramount's "Suzie Wong" and the Charles Theatre. Pic, now in its 12th week has given house it's best grosses since it was converted to first run art-but-no-java house.

"Suzie" opened tall then settled into long profitable run with weekly average of $6,000, despite snows that crippled biz elsewhere.

Charles seats 500 and top price for "Suzie" is $1.80 where all other first-run houses operate at $1.50 top.

"It isn't stopping them" Jack Fruchtman, operator of house said. So pleased is Fruchtman with "Suzie" biz, that in buying building next door to convert into lounge, he's calling it the "Suzie Wong Room" and will be used as a waiting room for patrons.

"Suzie" made this theatre, Fruchtman said, "and we are paying tribute to her." He looks for 20-week run.

JAMES LANDIS' CLAIM VS. JOE GENTILE TAG

Hollywood, March 21.

Litigation leading to civil court and the Writers Guild of America, West's arbitration board may result from the controversy of who owns rights to screenplay "Tragedy in a Small Town."

James Landis, who claims he registered the title in June, 1960, and completed screenplay last December, declared intentions to file against Joseph Gentile, should latter produce property. Writer claims Gentile "failed to pay full amount owed for his penning script, and was never given rights to it." "Tragedy" is based in part of story "Trial of Jared Willy."

Gentile contends that rights to property were secured from oral agreement and writer was paid in full.

Catholic Quip

Continued from page 3

surely a flaw in the majority decision," the editorial said.

The editorial stated: "The recent Supreme Court decision on the matter of censorship has created more than the usual furor. The majority decision allowed so-called 'prior restraint' in connection with the showing of films. This means that a properly appointed legal censor can refuse the right to show a film in advance of even its first presentation. Up until now it has been held that a film may be shown once, and after that the censor does his work.

"The new decision has been variously received. Many have seen in it another weapon in the control of offensive films, a kind of strengthening of the forces of decency against the fast-buck operators. On the other side, the free wheeling libertarians are in a frenzy over what they think of as new curbs on the traditions of free expression. Both positions are exaggerated.

"The Court was apparently reluctant to answer the bald question, placed before it in terms which might in some circumstances inhibit the ability of the state to protect public decency. For many years the Court has maintained that there were areas of expression in which 'prior restraint' might be used. These areas were never defined; to be sure, but there seemed to be a continual acknowledgement of their existence. So it was when the Supreme Court asked to strike down the right of prior censoring the majority of the Court simply said No!

"Censorship, as an effective protection of public decency, does not in fact require 'prior restraint,' and nothing important is gained by having it. Something is lost," however, and that something may be quite valuable, the right to express the unpopular opinion at least once. A man must still take the consequences of what he says—no flood gates are opened—but he has a right to say his piece at least one time. This is much more in keeping with our traditions and the mind of the Court as expressed in earlier decisions.

"Perhaps we may be allowed to add a note about the expression of this decision itself. There must be a middle road between the simplest quoting of the necessary law and opinions and the display of learning which quotes Socrates and Milton and a batch of other notables. Nowadays, too many Court decisions read like anthologies, suggesting the diligence of the law clerk rather than the penetrating judgement of the judge. A simple English sentence expressing a reasoned argument, with or without footnotes, would be such a relief."

Ponti Cannes Bid Nix

Wrinkle re "Two Women" mid-April preem at the Sutton, N. Y., is that it automatically voids pic as official Italian entry at Cannes in May. Fest rules state films can't be shown outside country-of-origin before judging.

Understood Carlo Ponti, producer, getting nowhere with pleas to Embassy Pictures that Sutton date by stayed.

So Who Says

Continued from page 3

those who do make the connection?

Further concern is over critics' reaction, and chiefly as to the acknowledged make-or-break scribes. The Levine link, it's professed by some filmites, could sorely try the open hostility of N.Y. Timesman Bosley Crowther, whose piece only the other Sunday raked the Levine money-makers as something like the nadir in contemporary cinema.

Yet seemingly in Levine's favor is the lustre attaching to "Women." Pic is Italy's bid in the upcoming Cannes fest. Based on an Alberto Moravia novel, it was produced by Carlo Ponti and directed by Vittorio de Sica—a trio with plenty of first-class credentials. Miss Loren, moreover, took a "Silver Ribbon" (equivalent to an Oscar for top femme thesp) for her effort.

Fact that she stars makes Levine's buy of "Women" seem even more canny, since it figures to let him play it both sides of the street. The femme obviously is marketable in conventional houses, and in a way that makes the yarn irrelevant.

Kinser Into Washington; Fletcher for Indianapolis

20th-Fox has appointed Howard B. Kinser, manager of Indianapolis branch, to manage the larger Washington office.

Vern Fletcher, former salesman in Salt Lake City, succeeds Kinser in Indianapolis.

UA's Year-End Hard-Ducat Trio, Plus One From Metro, 'King of Kings'

United Artists will have a large corner on the film roadshow market in New York by next December when Stanley Kramer's now-shooting "Judgment at Nuremburg" opens its hardticket date at the Palace in Times Square

"Judgment," if all goes according to present plans, will give UA three roadshows on Broadway at one time—the others being Otto Preminger's "Exodus," current tenant of the Warner and which is expected to hold, plus the Robert Wise-Jerome Robbins "West Side Story," scheduled to preem at the Rivoli Oct. 18.

The only other hardticket attraction definitely set for the new season is Samuel Bronston's Spanish-shot Metro release, "King of Kings," which will follow the reissue of "Gone With the Wind" at Loew's State.

150 GET 'EICHMANN'

Another 100 Dates Pend As AA Goes for Soak

Allied Artists, which opened "Operation Eichmann" in 150 situations last week, has another 100 dates set for this frame.

"Operation" is first of a number of biopix on the Nazi genocidal technician to break domestically. AA entry is timed for peak playoff by time Eichmann's trial in Israel gets going next month.

Two Days After Oscars, UA Re-Releasing Couple; Aim at New Firstruns

United Artists' "The Apartment" and "Elmer Gantry," which were responsible for 15 of UA's 41 Academy Award nominations this year, will be released as a package starting April 19. The Oscars will be aired April 17.

UA veep William Heineman anticipates between 250 and 300 first-run house bookings in key cities to launch the reissue.

Paar's Hugh Downs As 'Jules Verne' Narrator

Hugh Downs, of the Jack Paar telecast, has been tapped by Embassy Pictures for his filmic debut as narrator of "Fabulous World of Jules Verne," sci-fi yarn which Warners will release this summer in combination with "Bimbo the Great."

Announcer was to film special sequences in New York this week. Pic is first in the new MystiMation process that combines live photography, cartoon animation and lithographic techniques.

20th, Columbia Settle For N.Y.-Based Fieldmen With Publicists Local

Two-year pact has been signed by 20th-Fox and Columbia with Publicists Local 872 (Writers Assn. East), stipulating a pension fund in addition to setting pay scales.

Deal only covers fieldmen paid out of New York, the homeoffice exploiteers being covered by Screen Publicists Guild contract.

New pact followed a three-year organizing effort by the local, which also has contracts with Paramount and RKO Theatres. Understood the union is near an initial accord with Warner Bros. and Universal, as well. And Harry Rice, prez of the local, says dickers are in progress with other film companies plus tv and radio networks.

Golden Globe Awards Handed Out

Hollywood, March 21.

United Artists, which swept to an all-time high of 41 nominations in upcoming Academy Oscar sweepstakes, came through with eight of the 34 Golden Globe awards presented last Thursday by the Hollywood Foreign Press Assn. in its annual ceremony, to again lead the field. Columbia Pictures copped three, Warner Bros. two.

Rock Hudson and Tony Curtis ties for "World's Favorite Actor," first time in org's history. Hudson won last year, and Curtis the previous stanza.

Other awards:

Best dramatic actor, Burt Lancaster, "Elmer Gantry."

Best dramatic actress, Greer Garson, "Sunrise at Campobello."

World favorite actress, Gina Lollobrigida.

Best supporting actor, Sal Mineo, "Exodus."

Best supporting actress, Janet Leigh, "Psycho."

Lemmon Report

For the second consecutive year Jack Lemmon won Best Actor Award for a Performance in a Musical and/or Comedy. He won in 1960 for "Some Like It Hot," this year "The Apartment."

Shirley MacLaine was named Best Actress in a Comedy and/or Musical and in her absence the award was accepted by Lemmon.

"The Apartment" also won Best Comedy of the Year award.

"Spartacus" was hailed Best Dramatic Picture of the Year.

"Song Without End," William Goetz's Columbia production, was voted Best Musical.

"Hand In Hand" was voted "the motion picture which contributed the most towards better international understanding." Helen Winston was present to receive award.

"The Sundowners" received a Golden Globe award for "outstanding merit in authenticity and characterization."

The annual Samuel Goldwyn International Award, for the best foreign film released during previous 12 months, went to the Greek-produced film, "Never On Sunday." Goldwyn again made the presentation.

Golden Globes to the three outstanding foreign films for 1960 were given to Sweden's "Virgin Spring," France's "La Verite" and England's "The Man With The Green Carnation."

Jack Cardiff was named best director for 20th-Fox's Jerry Wald production, "Sons And Lovers."

DeMille Award

Annual Cecil B. DeMille Award, for outstanding contributions to the motion picture industry, was won by Fred Astaire.

A special award was bestowed upon Catinflas, inscribed, "To little Pepe, for the joy and comedy his motion pictures have brought to the world."

Stanley Kramer, whose most recent production was "Inherit The Wind," received a special award for "continuous artistic integrity and daring over the years in the production and direction of fine motion pictures."

The three male and three femme newcomers hailed as "the international stars of tomorrow" for 1961 included:

Michael Callan, Ina Balin, Brett Halsey, Hayley Mills, Marb Damon, Nancy Kwan.

The Golden Globe for the best original musical score was won by "The Alamo," produced, directed by and starring John Wayne. The composer, Dimitri Tiomkin, accepted from Natalie Wood.

5 Television Awards

The five television awards were: Hanna-Barbera Productions, "for progress on international television in cartoons."

The "Perry Mason" series, "for interest and consistency in continuing performances."

"The Bell Telephone Hour," "for consistent contributions to culture and international artistry."

"Hong Kong" series, "for outstanding merit in the adventure field."

"The 20th Century Presents," news documentary featuring Walter Cronkite, "for brilliant depiction of memorable events."

ORDINARY 'B' KAPUT; IT'S GIMMICK TODAY

Hollywood, March 21.

World-market conditions are such that the day of making the ordinary "B" type program picture is diminishing. And taking its place is the new trend of filming pictures with gimmicks. So says Herman Cohen who recently returned from London where he produced American - International's "Konga."

"Aside from major production boasting all-star casts—very few films land in the profitable black. And the ones that do are generally those films that have an exploitable angle," he declared.

Cohen claims that although "Konga" has no marquee allure, (costars Britishers Michael Gough, Margo Johns), it will measure up to most major productions with top names because of its exploitable angles. That of being lensed in a new process, SpectaMation, and being story-lined with a science-fiction flavor. "We wouldn't stand a chance of making a dollar in today's market if we didn't add the science-fiction touch and trick photography to 'Konga'."

The producer said that seven of the 10 months shooting time on "Konga" was spent on special effects. Film reportedly cost close to $1,000,000—most of which was spent in the SpectaMation process developed by Cohen and Rank's Dunham Labs.

"The small independent producer can't afford to compete with the majors," he said. "They can't get the name stars nor can they afford them. He's compelled to turn to gimmicks since the plain old everyday programmer is passe." He added: "Give the public something different such as gimmicks and you can compete with any major production in the world."

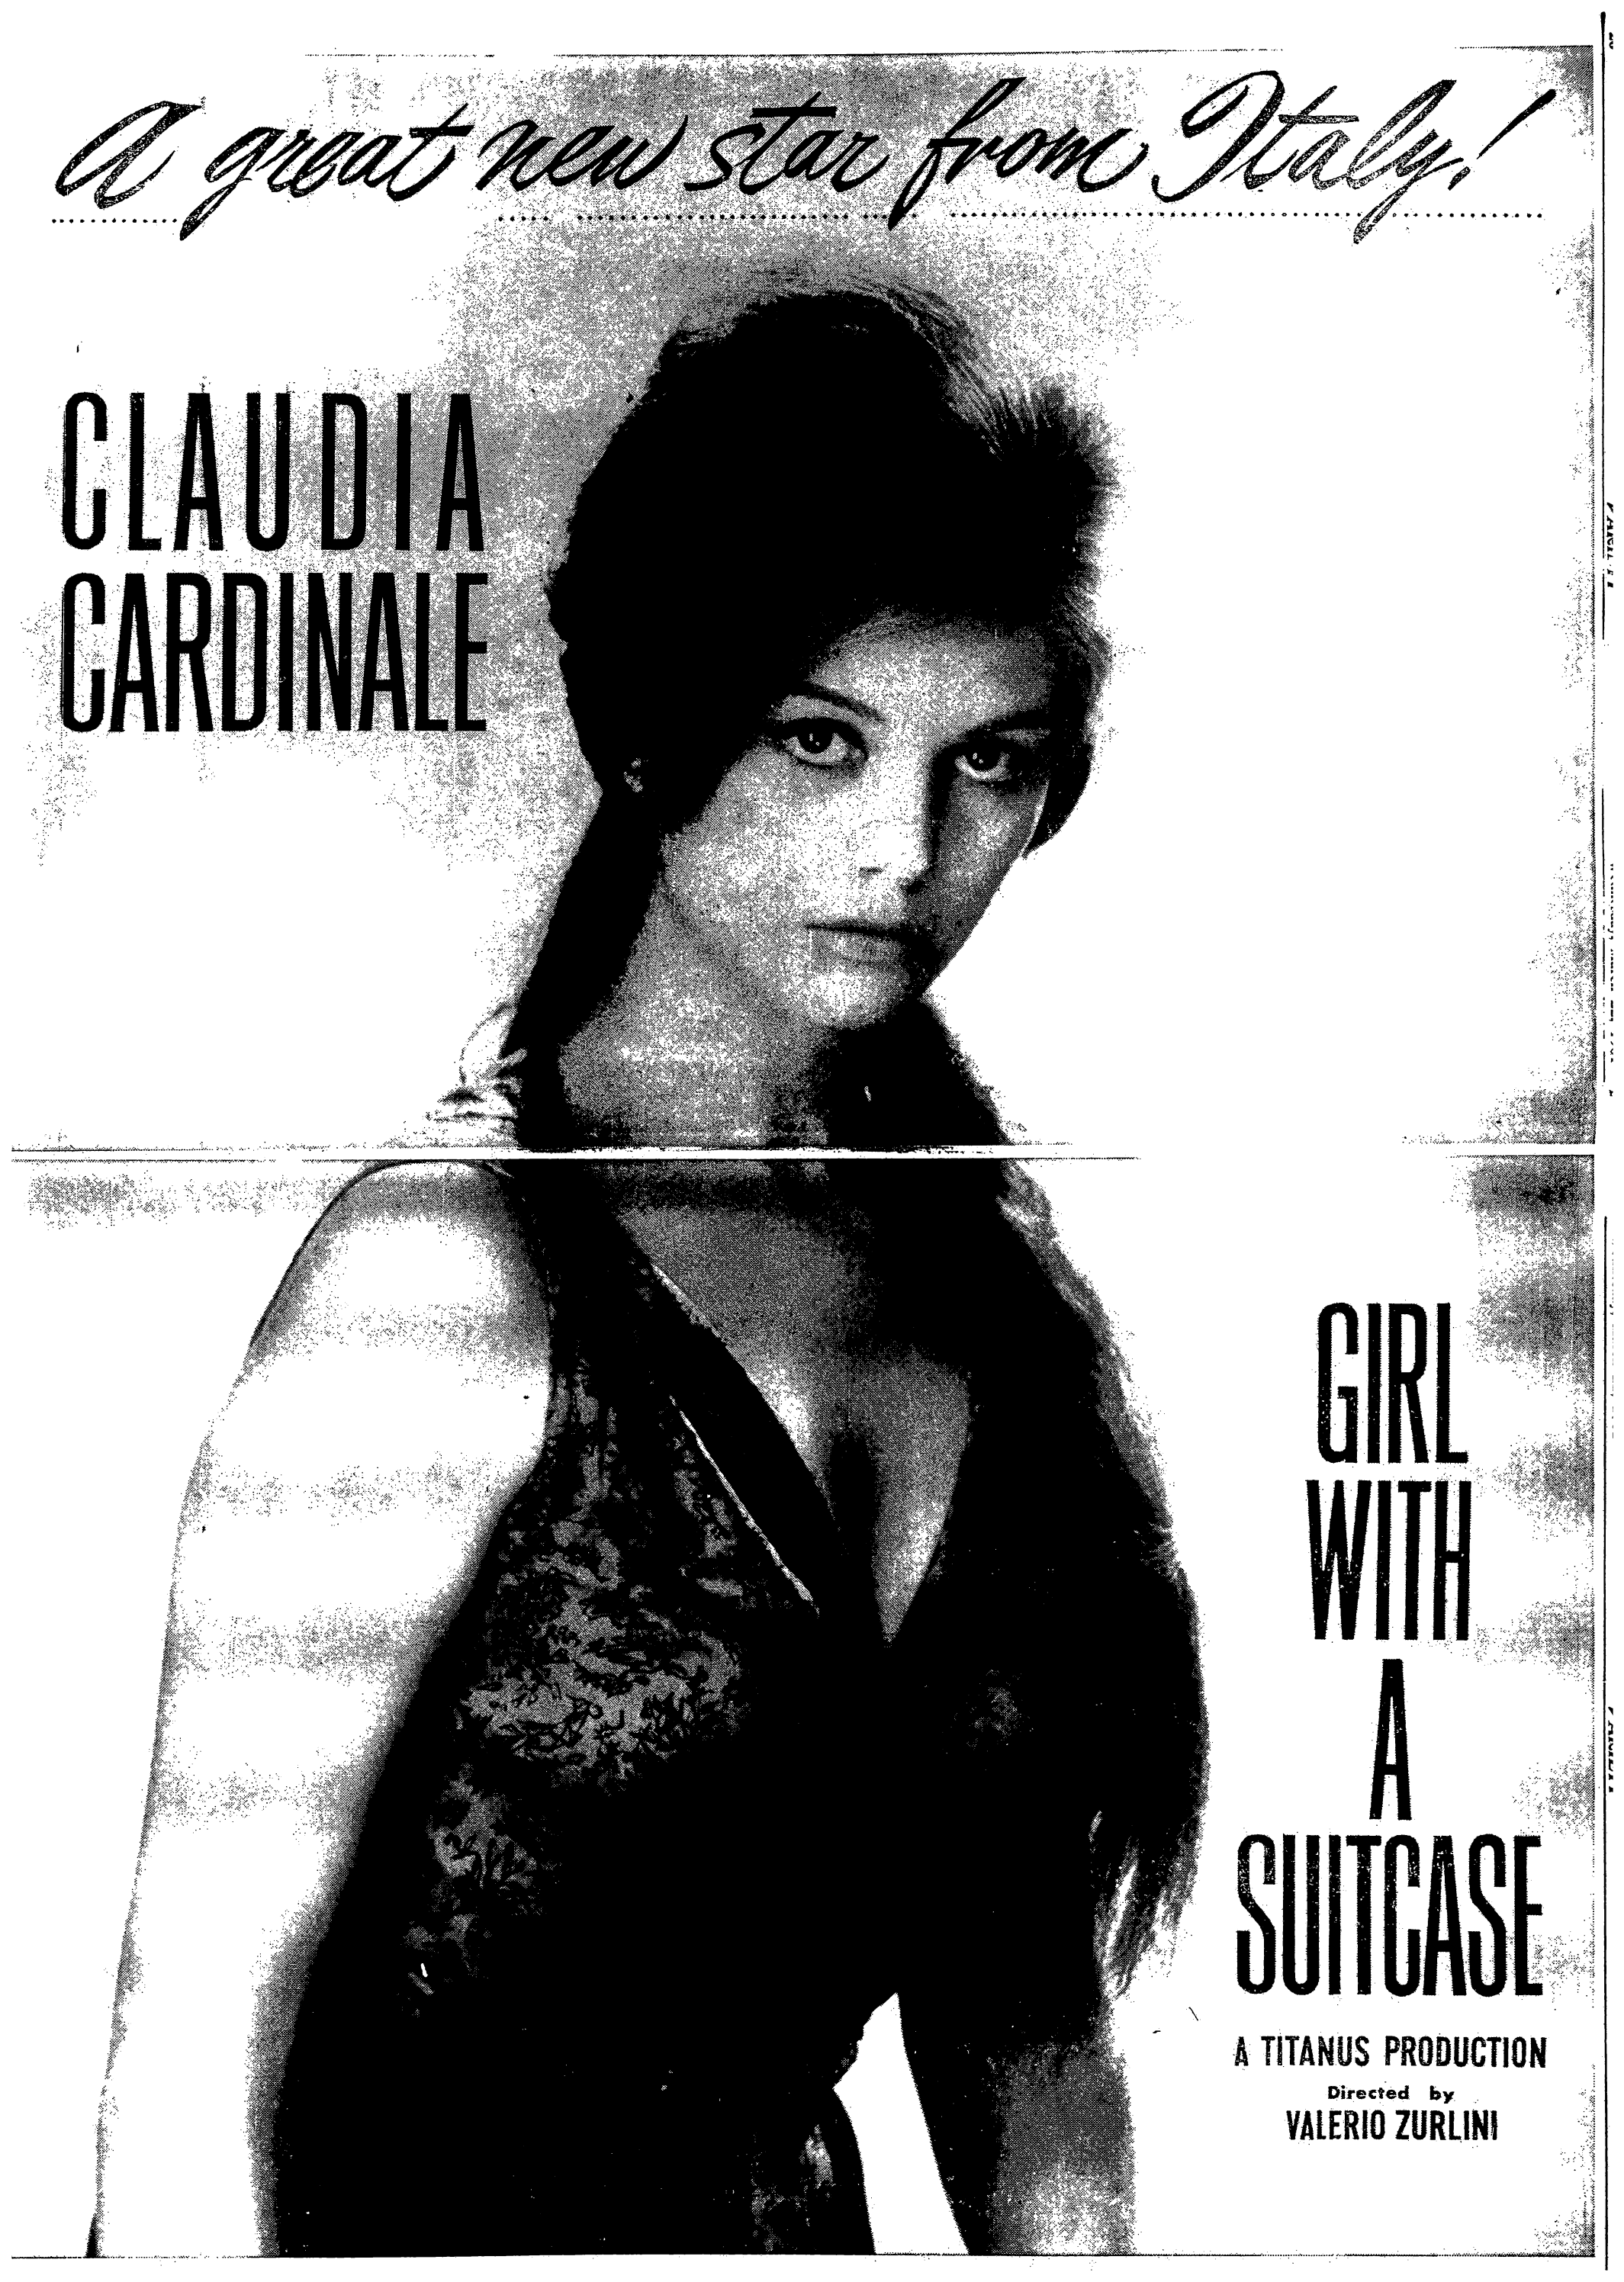
Alfred Katz's Latin Swing Of United Artists Branches

Alfred Katz, United Artists foreign division manager, left New York Monday (20) for Mexico on first lap of extensive tour of company's offices in Central and South America.

His itinerary includes Guatemala, Panama, Peru, Chile, Argentina, Uruguay, Brazil, Trinidad, Venezuela and Puerto Rico.

A great new star from Italy!

CLAUDIA CARDINALE



GIRL WITH A SUITCASE

A TITANUS PRODUCTION

Directed by

VALERIO ZURLINI

Picture Grosses

'Eichmann' Trim $12,000, D.C. Ace

Washington, March 21.

Biz shapes spotty here this round. Capitol's initial round of "Crowning Experiment" is rated good if not outstanding. Other newcomers include "Gold of Seven Saints," mild at two Stanley Warner locations, and "Operation Eichmann" at Keith's, where a nitty take looms.

Holdovers aren't doing badly. "Alamo" looms okay in fourth Palace week. "Exodus" and "Spartacus" still are doing well, especially the latter in ninth round.

Estimates for This Week

Ambassador- Metropolitan (SW) (1,490; 1,000; 90-$1.49)—"Gold of Seven Saints" (WB) and "Auntie Mame" (WB) (reissue). Mild $10,600. Last week, "Fever in Blood" (WB) and "No Time for Sergeants" (WB) reissue), $8,000.

Apex (K-B) (940; 75-$1.10)—"Happened in Broad Daylight" (Cont) (2d wk). Fair $4,000. Last week, $5,500.

Capitol (Loew) (3,426; 90-$1.49)—"Crowning Experiment" (Indie). Good $10,000 or close. Last week, "Cry for Happy" (Col) (2d wk), $9,000.

Keith's (RKO) (1,850; $1-$1.49)—"Operation Bichmann" (AA) and fight pix. Nifty $12,000. Last week, "Misfits" (UA) (6th wk), $7,000.

MacArthur (K-B) (900; $1.25)—"Entertainer" (Cont) (3d wk). Oke $4,000. Last week, $4,900.

Ontario (K-B) (1,240; $1-$1.49)—"Tunes of Glory" (Lope) (5th wk). Good $5,000. Last week, $5,000.

Palace (Loew) (2,390; $1-$1.49)—"Alamo" (UA) (4th wk). Okay $9,000. Last week, $11,000.

Playhouse (T-L) (459; $1-$1.49)—"Question 7" (deRochemont) (3d wk). Mild $3,500. Last week, $4,100.

Plaza (T-L) (276; $1-$1.80)—"No Morals" (Indie) (2d wk). Nifty $6,500 after $7,700 opener.

Town (King) (800; $1.25-$1.49)—"Suzie Wong" (Par) (13th wk). Nice $5,000, same as last week.

Trans-Lux (T-L) (600; $1.49-$2)—"Pepe" (Col) (5th wk). Hefty $7,000. Last week, $7,900.

Uptown (SW) (1,300; $1.25-$2.25)—"Exodus" (UA) (4th wk). Sock $12,500. Last week, $12,000.

Warner (SW) (1,440; $1.49-$2.25)—"Spartacus" (U) (9th wk). Solid $11,000. Last week, $10,000.

CHICAGO

(Continued from page 9)

—"Cry For Happy" (Col) (2d wk). Fairish $17,000 or near. Last week, $25,000.

Roosevelt (B&K) (1,400; 90-$1.50)—"Great Impostor" (U) (2d wk). Smooth $18,000 or close. Last week, $35,000.

State-Lake (B&K) (2,400; 90-$1.80)—"101 Dalmatians" (BV) (6th wk). Slick $15,000 or near. Last week, $17,000.

Surf (H&E Balaban) (685; $1.85)—"Never On Sunday" (Lope) (m.o.) (7th wk). Trim $5,700. Last week, $5,300.

Todd (Todd) (1,089; $1.75-$3.50)—"Ben-Hur" (M-G) (65th wk). Sturdy $17,000. Last week, $18,000.

United Artists (B&K) (1,700; 90-$1.80)—"All In Night's Work" (Par). Smash $26,000. Last week, "Misfits" (UA) (6th wk), $12,500.

Woods (Essaness) (1,200; 90-$1.80)—"Sanctuary" (20th) (2d wk). Light $12,000. Last week, $20,000.

World (Teitel) (606; 90-$1.25)—"Tosca" (Film Rep.). Mild $4,100. Last week, "Entertainer" (Cont) (5th wk), $4,100.

BALTIMORE

Continued from page 8)

Good $7,500 after $11,000 in second.

Playhouse (Schwaber) (460; 90-$1.50)—"Never on Sunday" (Lope) (18th wk). Holding at $2,000 after same last stanza.

Stanton (Fruchtman) (2,200; 90-$1.50)—"Flaming Star" (20th). Dim $6,000 for first four days. Last week, "Great Impostor" (U) (2d wk), $7,000.

Town (Rappaport) (1,275; $1.50-$2.50)—"Spartacus" (U) (9th wk). Holding at okay $5,000 with last week's lead displayed.

'Partner' Slow $9,000, Buff.; 'Impostor' 10G, 2

Buffalo, March 21.

Biz is in a happy mood here currently but there is no help from the few new bills. "Secret Partner" shapes slow at the Buffalo. "World of Suzie Wong" is rated okay in sixth round at the Center. "Great Impostor" looks fancy in second at Lafayette while "Cry For Happy" is fair in second stanza at Century.

Estimates for This Week

Buffalo (Loew) (3,500; 75-$1)—"Secret Partner" (Indie) and "Strange Case Dr. Manning" (Indie). Slow $9,000. Last week, "Gorgo" (M-G) and "Frontier Uprising" (Indie), $12,000.

Center (AB-PT) (2,000; 70-$1.25)—"Suzie Wong" (6th wk). Okay $8,500. Last week, $10,000.

Century (UATC) (2,700; 70-$1)—"Cry For Happy" (Col) (2d wk). Fair $7,000. Last week, $9,600.

Lafayette (Basil) (3,000; 70-$1)—"Great Impostor" (U) and "Between Time, Eternity" (U) (2d wk). Fast $10,000 or close. Last week, $11,200.

Paramount (AB-PT) (3,000; 70-$1)—"Auntie Mame" (WB) and "No Time for Sergeants" (WB) (reissues). Soft $9,000. Last week, "Underworld U.S.A." (Col) and "Passport China" (AI) (5 days), $5,000.

Teck (Loew) (1,200; 70-$1.25)—"Misfits" (UA) (3d wk-4 days). Fair $2,000. Last week, $4,000.

Cinema (Martina) (450; 70-$1)—"Carry On Nurse" (Gov) (20th wk). Strong $2,300. Last week, $2,500.

SAN FRANCISCO

(Continued from page 9)

tier Uprising" (UA). Good $14,000. Last week, "Go Naked In World" (M-G) and "Operation Bottleneck" (UA) (2d wk), $6,500.

Paramount (Par) (2,646; $1.25-$1.50)—"Terror Of Tongs" (Col) and "Sword Sherwood Forest" (Col). Fair $11,000. Last week, "Portrait Of A Sinner" (Indie) and "48 Hours To Live" (Indie), $9,000.

St. Francis (Par) (1,400; $1-$1.50)—"Pepe" (Col) (3d wk). Sock $17,000. Last week, $20,000.

Orpheum (Cinerama, Inc.) (1,456; $1.75-$2.65)—"Seven Wonders of World" (Cinerama) (reissue) (12th wk). Okay $11,000. Last week, $9,500.

United Artists (No. Coast) (1,151; $1.75-$3.50)—"Spartacus" (U) (13th wk). Big $42,000. Last week, $13,500.

Stagedoor (A-R) (440; $1.25-$1.50)—"League Of Gentlemen" (Kaye) (2d wk). Smash $6,000. Last week, $7,000.

Vogue (S. F. Theatres) (364; $1.50)—"Virgin Spring" (Janus) (13th wk) and "Seventh Seal" (Janus) (reissue) (3d wk). Fast $2,200. Last week, $2,600.

Coronet (United California) (1,250; $1.50-$3.50) — "Ben-Hur" (M-G) (65th wk). Smart $10,000. Last week, $11,000.

Alexandria (United California) (1,610; $1.49-$3.50)—"Exodus" (UA) (6th week). $15,000. Last week, $16,000.

Presidio (Hardy) (774; $1.25-$1.50)—"Hand In Hand" (Indie). Fair $3,000. Last week, second-run.

BROADWAY

(Continued from page 9)

ly to land good $3,500 after $4,500 for fifth week.

55th St. Playhouse (Moss) (253; $1.25-$2)—"Don Quixote" (M-G) 9th wk). This frame finishing tomorrow (Thurs.) looks like fancy $7,000 via some added school kid shows after $6,000 in eighth week.

Normandie (T-L) (592; $1.25-$1.80)—"All in Night's Work" (Par). Opens today (Wed.) In ahead, "Hand in Hand" (Col) (6th wk-8 days), mild $5,000 after $5,500 for fifth week.

Little Carnegie (L. Carnegie) (520; $1.25-$2)—"Tunes of Glory" (Lope) (14th wk). The 13th round completed Monday (20) was great $12,000 after $12,500 in 12th week.

Guild (Guild) (450; $1-$1.75)—"Two-Way Stretch" (BL) (9th wk). Eighth stanza finished Sunday (19) was fancy $10,500 to top the $10,000 in seventh week.

Murray Hill (R&B) (565; 95-$1.80)—"Ballad of Soldier" (Kings) (13th wk). The 12th stanza ended Monday (20) was —bright $7,000 after $7,000 for 11th week.

Paris (Pathe Cinema) (568; 90-$1.80)—"Love and Frenchwoman" (Kings) (4th wk). Third week ended Sunday (19) was fancy $13,500 after $15,000 in second.

Plaza (Lopert) (525; $1.50-$2)—"Never on Sunday" (Lope) (23d wk). The 22d session completed Monday (20) was great $15,000 after $17,000 in 21st week.

68th St. Playhouse (Leo Brecker) (370; 90-$1.65)—"Days of Thrills, Laughter" (20th). Opened yesterday (Tues.). In ahead, "Millionairess" (20th). Landed fair $5,900 in 11-day fifth session.

Sutton (R&B) (561; 95-$1.80)—"League of Gentlemen" (Kings) (9th wk). Eighth round ended Monday (20) was good $8,500 after $10,000 for seventh week.

Trans-Lux 52d St. (T-L) (540; $1-$1.50)—"Cry for Happy" (Col) (3d wk). This session winding tomorrow (Thurs.) is heading for fair $4,500. Second was $6,000. "Raisin in Sun" (Col) opens March 29.

Trans-Lux 85th St. (T-L) (550; $1.25-$2)—"Sanctuary" (20th) (5th wk). Fourth stanza ended Monday (20) was meek $3,500 after $4,500 in third. "Great Impostor" (U) opens March 29.

World (Perfecto) (390; 90-$1.50)—"Male and Female" (Mishkin) (5th wk). Current stanza winding tomorrow (Tues.) looks like slick $11,000 after $13,000 in fourth. Pic is having biggest run of any film to play at house in years.

LOS ANGELES

(Continued from page 8)

(20th) (m.o.), "Let's Make Love" (20th) (reissue), $3,200.

El Rey (FWC) (861; 90-$1.50)—"Sons and Lovers" (20th) and "Murder Inc." (20th) (reissues. Dull $3,500.

Hillstreet, Pix (Metropolitan-Prin) (2,752; 756; 90-$1.50)—"Cry for Happy" (Col) and "I'm All Right, Jack" (Col) (2d wk). Soft $8,500.

Hollywood Paramount (State) (1,468; $1-$2.40)—"Alamo" (UA) (3d wk). Lush $18,000. Last week, $20,000.

Crest (State) (750; 90-$1.50)—"Sundowners" (WB) and "Sunrise at Campobello" (WB) (2d wk). Slim $2,200.

Iris (FWC) (825; 90-$1.50)—"Entertainer" (Cont) and "Stella" (Indie) (1st general release). Dim $3,000.

Orpheum (Metropolitan) (2,213; 90-$1.50) — "Patterson-Johansson Fight Pic" (UA) and "High Powered Rifle" (20th) (reissue). Drab $2,200 in 5 days.

Four Star (UATC) (868; 90-$1.50)—"Hand in Hand" (Col) (5th wk). Handy $4,000. Last week, $4,200.

Beverly (State) (1,150; $1.49-$2.40)—"Grass Is Greener" (U) (6th wk). Fine $4,000. Last week, $4,900.

Music Hall (Ros) (720; $1.85-$2.25)—"Ballad of Soldier" (Kings) (7th wk). Trim $5,000. Last week, $5,200.

Warner Beverly (SW) (1,316; $1.50-$3.50)—"Pepe" (Col) (12th wk). Slow $10,500. Last week, $10,000.

Fox Wilshire (FWC) (1,990; $1.80-$3.50)—"Exodus" (UA) (13th wk). Brisk $15,000. Last week, $15,600.

Fine Arts (FWC) (631; $2-$2.40)—"Never on Sunday" (UA) (17th wk). Great $8,000. Last week, $8,100.

Warner Hollywood (Cinerama Inc.) (1,389; $1.20-$2.65)—"This Is Cinerama" (Cinerama) (reissue). Started 21st week Sunday (19) after trim $14,000 last week.

Pantages (RKO) (1,513; $1.80-$3.50)—"Spartacus" (U) (22d wk). Busy $12,500. Last week, $12,200 (in 5 days).

Egyptian (UATC) (1,392; $1.25-$3.50) — "Ben-Hur" (M-G) (69th wk). Stout $17,500. Last week, $17,300.

AIDES GET NEW DUTIES

Peter Nelson, Curtis Harrington Upped in Wald Unit

Jerry Wald has handed additional responsibilities to two aides as a result of his expanded program of 30 pix for 20th-Fox during next three years.

Peter Nelson becomes exec in charge of new properties. As such, he'll spearhead a search for original and published works for possible screen adaptation.

Curtis Harrington will head up search for new acting talent in the new Wald format, and will launch a policy of issuing descriptive rundowns for use of agents handling acting talent sought.

National Boxoffice Survey

Trade Holding Up; 'Exodus' Champ, 'Alamo' Big 2d, 'Impostor' 3d, 'Spartacus' 4th, 'Pepe' 5th

As the income tax deadlines come closer and Lenten influences are felt more strongly the only thing amazing about first-run film biz is that it's holding up as well as it is currently. While the weather has been favorable for the boxoffice some of the recent releases have not been.

This session it is a tight race between "The Alamo" (UA) and "Exodus," also from United Artists, for top laurels. While the former likely has been running up higher gross totals because playing in so many key cities, currently it is not playdating in enough keys covered by VARIETY to overcome the big totals run up by "Exodus" in the major key cities. Hence, "Exodus" again is champ, the same as it has been for four successive weeks.

"Alamo," of course, is a strong second. Its coin total does not include numerous engagements in the south, not covered by VARIETY, where it is topping or doubling the take of such high grosses as "Solomon and Sheba" and "Some Like It Hot."

"Great Imposter" (U) is moving up to third. It was fourth last week. "Spartacus" (U) is climbing from sixth to fourth position.

"Pepe" (Col), second last round, is slipping to fifth. "Cry for Happy," also from Columbia, is winding up sixth. "Ben-Hur" (M-G) will take seventh money.

"World of Suzie Wong" (Par) is capturing eighth place. "Gorgo" (M-G), which was 12th a week ago, is finishing ninth. "101 Dalmations" (BV) rounds out the Top 10 pix. "Never On Sunday" (Lope), "Where Boys Are" (M-G) and "Ballad of Soldier" (Kings) are the runner-up films.

"All in Night's Work" (Par) looms as highly promising among the newcomers. It is smash in Chi and torrid in L.A. "Operation Eichmann" (AA), okay in Providence, looks great in Detroit and smooth in Washington.

"Absent-Minded Professor" (BV), rated wow in L.A., is great in opening session at the N.Y. Music Hall where it is paired with the annual Easter stageshow. "Underworld USA" (Col), mild in Seattle, looms fine in Detroit.

"Hoodlum Priest" (UA), due soon at N.Y. Astor, shapes stout in Pitt and okay in St. Louis and Minneapolis. "Terror of Tongs" (Col) is rated fair in Frisco. "Portrait of Sinner" (AA) shapes good in Detroit.

"Village of Damned" (M-G), hotsy in Boston, shapes fine in Denver and good in Providence. "Tunes of Glory" (Lope) is hep in N.Y. and Minneapolis.

"Make Mine Mink" (Cont), tall in K.C., looms brisk in Chi and bangup in Minneapolis. "Wackiest Ship" (Col), good in Cincy, shapes stout in Louisville.

"Facts of Life" (UA) still is solid in N.Y. "Entertainer" (Cont) is okay in Washington.

(Complete Boxoffice Reports On Pages 8-9)

'To Hell' Hefty $6,000, Omaha; 'Naked' Slim 2½G

Omaha, March 21.

Biz is offish at downtown first-runs this week, although the oldie combo of "To Hell And Back" and "Lawless Breed" is proving solid at the Omaha. Other new bill, "Millionairess," looks sad at Orpheum with no thanks to the city's only daily paper which panned this pic and refused some of the sexy ads. Third week of "Go Naked in World" is naked at wickets of the State.

Estimates for This Week

Cooper (Cooper) (687; $1.55-$2.20)—"This is Cinerama" (Cinerama) (reissue) (5th wk). Fair $5,000. Last week, $7,000.

Omaha (Tristates) (2,066; 75-$1)—"To Hell And Back" (U) and "Lawless Breed" (U) (reissues). Good $6,000. Last week, "Cry for Happy" (Col), $4,600.

Orpheum (Tristates) (2,877; 75-$1) — "Millionairess" (20th). Bad $5,000. Last week, "Great Impostor" (U) (2d wk), $6,500.

State (Cooper) (743; $1)—"Go Naked in World" (M-G) (3d wk). Dull $2,500. Last week, $3,500.

BOSTON

(Continued from page 8)

$1.25) — "Bramble Bush" and "Summer Place" (reissues). Oke $9,500. Last week, "Millionairess" (20th) and "Sniper Ridge" (20th), $11,000.

Orpheum (Loew) (2,900; 90-$1.49)—"Where Boys Are" (M-G) (3d wk). Good $12,000. Last week, $14,000.

New Fenway (Indie) (1,350; $1.25)—"Quiet Flows Don" (Indie) (2d wk). Oke $3,000. Last week, $4,000.

Paramount (NET) (2,357; 70-$1.25) — "Operation Eichmann" (AA) and "Serengeti" (AA). Timely $12,000. Last week, "Fever in Blood" (WB) and "Rio Bravo" (Indie), $8,000.

Pilgrim (ATC) (1,900; 75-$1.25)—"Village of Damned" (M-G) and "Five Bold Women" (Indie). Hotsy $10,000 or over. Last week, "Giant" (WB) reissue) (2d wk), $6,000.

Saxon (Sack) (1,100; $1.50-$3)—"Exodus" (UA) (13th wk). Slick $17,000. Last week, $18,000.

State (Trans-Lux) (730; 75-$1.25)—"Naked in Night" (Indie) and "Age of Infidelity" (Indie) (2d wk). Nice $3,800. Last week, $4,500.

Lafleche, Sask. — Chamber of Commerce has been successful in getting the Globe theatre reopened after a lengthy hiatus because of bad business.

'ALAMO' SMASH 11½G, PORT.; 'SUZIE' HOT 10G

Portland, Ore., March 21.

Trade shapes much stronger this stanza than a week ago. Lone newcomer is combo of "White Warrior" and "Gold of Seven Saints," but it's not doing well at reopened Oriental. "The Alamo" is smash in second at Orpheum for standout showing. "101 Dalmatians" also is sock in first holdover round at Fox. "World of Suzie Wong" is rated lusty in second Paramount week.

Estimates for This Week

Broadway (Parker) (983; $1.50-$3)—"Spartacus" (U) (7th wk). Steady $6,500. Last week, $6,600.

Fox (Evergreen) (1,600; $1-$1.49)—"101 Dalmatians" (BV) (2d wk). Torrid $12,000 or over. Last week, $16,000.

Hollywood (Evergreen) (900; $1.25-$2.49)—"Ben-Hur" (M-G) (2d wk) on popular prices. Loud $9,000. Last week, $8,700.

Music Box (Hamrick) (640; $1.50-$3)—"Exodus" (UA) (9th wk). Up to big $12,000. Last week, $10,800.

Oriental (McFadden) (2,000; $1)—"White Warrior" (WB) and "Gold of Seven Saints" (WB) and fight pix. Drab $3,500. Last week, house closed.

Orpheum (Evergreen) (1,536; $1-$1.49)—"Alamo" (UA) and "Wonderful Hong Kong" (Col) plus fight pix (2d wk). Smash $11,500. Last week, $12,100.

Paramount (Port-Par) (3,400; $1-$1.49)—"Suzie Wong" (Par) (2d wk). Lusty $10,000. Last week, $11,200.

CINERAMA SCALING

Two Unreelings Saturday Night Part of Policy

Albany, March 21.

Scale for Cinerama, which opens at the new Hellman Theatre March 24, will be $1.50 and $2, Monday through Thursday and Sunday nights; $2 and $2.50, Friday and Saturday evenings; $1.25 and $1.50, Saturday matinees; $1.50 and $2, Sunday matinees.

The first engagement for Cinerama in Northeastern New York, it is scheduled for 10 screenings weekly—two, on Saturday nights.

Reservations for tickets may be made at five stores, in Albany, Troy, Schenectady, Saratoga and Glens Falls. Mrs. Jay Malone, who had been in charge of personnel and special events for Neil Hellman's Thruway Motel (adjoining the theatre), is directing a crew of salesmen working on theatre parties for the Cinerama engagement.

international film, TV film and documentary market

a new outstanding success of the MILAN TRADE FAIR

"ideal setup in which to conduct picture business" — VARIETY

The Spring meeting from 12 to 28 April coincides with Milan Trade Fair, the world's greatest display of sample goods and products.

The Autumn meeting takes place in mid-October.

Hundreds of full-length, TV and documentary films of scientific, cultural tourist and publicity interest are shown by producers of International Importance to buyers and renters of films coming from all parts of the world.

Eight projection studios, numerous discussion rooms, a polyglot secretariat and International telephone exchange, telex installations and all the most modern technical equipment provide this undertaking with the best possible means to promote contacts and business transactions in the world of cinema and film production.

Include a visit to the "International film, TV film and documentary market" in your Spring trip to Europe.

Exhibitors and distributors: entry fee Lit. 10,000 ($ 16).

Producers: entry fee Lit. 10,000 ($ 16) without limit to number of films presented.

Applications to participate should reach MIFED a fortnight before opening date on 12 April.

Information from:

Largo Domodossola, 1
Milano (Italy)

MIFED

Three Major Faiths on Committee To 'Reinforce' Memphis Censors

Memphis, March 21.

Rev. Paul Caudill, pastor of the First Baptist Church and chairman of a Memphis religious and citizens committee "to reinforce" the Memphis Censor Board, has rallied several other church groups to his "combat team."

Baptist minister named Msgr. M. F. Kearney, a ranking Catholic here, and Rabbi James Wax of Temple Israel as co-chairmen. Along with other Protestant and Roman Catholic clergy, Mr. Judson McKellar, chairman of the Memphis Censor board, also was named by Caudill.

Weekly meetings will be held in the Public Health Building here with the public invited as well as press, radio and tv.

Our purpose is not to replace the Censor Board but to supplement and support it," he said. "We hope that our review committee may sit with the censor board to avoid reviewing the films twice."

Memphis Citizen committee is an aftermath of the barrage against Metro's "Go Naked in the World," here several weeks ago.

STRATFORD FILM FEST MAY SHOW 'CONNECTION'

Toronto, March 21.

Dicker is on for the showing of the film version of "The Connection." Jack Gelber play dealing with dope addicts, at the Film Festival to be held for 10 days this summer at the Stratford (Ontario) Shakespearean setup. Film has been completed by a group of Manhattan actors under the direction of Shirley Clark.

John Hayes, director of the Film Festival at Stratford, Ontario, is also currently negotiating for the Greek film "A Matter of Dignity," "No Greater Love" (Japan), "Kermes" (Germany), "Le Passage du Rhine" (France), "Romeo and Juliet" (Czechoslovakia).

Sally Benson will script "Calico Sheriff" for Jack Cummings' indie slate for 20th release.

LONGEST RUN IN TOWN

It's 1⅛ miles long, to be exact, and Aqueduct race track is the greatest show in town. Sleep late —first race is not until 1:30. Have lunch (or breakfast) at the big A. Watch the show: color, excitement, conflict, triumph, etc. Socko! For reservations, call MI 1-4700. Let us entertain you—tomorrow!

POZIN & LIGHTSTONE SWING THEIR SHINGLE

Thom Pozin and Morton Lightstone, both oldtimer film buyers, have partnered for indie theatre booking as Pozin & Lightstone Theatre Enterprises, Times Square, with latter as prez. New offices open as of today (Wed.).

Lightstone had been booker for the Rugoff & Becker circuit, and Pozin had his own buying setup the past year. Both previously had worked for the Island Circuit.

Milestone for Rosian; Hy Martin at Feed

Cincinnati, March 21.

Pete Rosian was tendered a testimonial dinner here Monday (20) night in celebration of his 20th anni as district and regional sales manager of Universal Pictures with headquarters in Cleveland.

Affair was in clubroms of Tent 3, Variety Club, the sponsor. Among the close to 150 saluters were Universal's Hy Martin, general sales manager, N.Y., and branch managers from Chicago, Cleveland, Pittsburgh, Detroit, Buffalo, and reps from Nashville and Knoxville, plus numerous exhibs and fellow tradesmen.

Marc Wolf, exec of an Indiana circuit and past national chief barker of Variety Clubs, was emcee.

Must Virtue

Continued from page 17

cally possible that the National Council of Churches might become an effective pressure group, but because this goes against the "freedom of action" heritage of most non-Roman Catholic denominations, he doubts whether it will ever come to pass. He also doesn't put much stock in a proposal, now being studied by the NCC's Broadcasting & Film Commission, to get behind and promote six or eight films a year deemed significant.

Too Namby-Pamby?

"What sort of films do you think they'd pick?" Boyd asks. He has an idea that they would be the very kind of "homogenized art" he deplores most, next to the self-styled pix.

And he has no intention of cooperation to promote nothing more serious and substantial than a Walt Disney feature. Problem is, he suggests, is that most church people have no conception of what makes "a good film"—they are looking for photographed Sunday School tracts. Parenthetically, he asks, how many of these people, supposedly so concerned with the world around them, would go to see a film like "Breathless," a legitimate reflection of a time and place and attitude?

Any attempt by the church to promote films which really have "no religious dimension," he says, would simple be another example of the church's further retreating "from reality into fantasy."

Boyd would like to see the church participate in "a massive educational program," stimulating the serious consideration of films, through seminars, discussion groups, articles in church as well as lay publications, all desgined to create interest in the films of value and (the other side of the coin) scorn for the "homogenized." By education, he emphasizes that he doesn't simply mean general education to make good Christians, but specific studies of the film medium itself.

Any church attempt to influence the film industry more directly, he feels, would eventually demean the art and add nothing to the moral or intellectual stamina of the public. And even the clergy, he adds, must learn to differentiate between the self-styled religious pic ("The Story of Ruth"), the implicitly religious pic ("Room at the Top") and the film of no religious dimension whatsoever he would create an Albert Zugsmith production or two or perhaps Jerry Lewis' "Cinderfella").

LOUIS POLLOCK SUES, CHARGES 'BLACKLIST'

Hollywood, March 21.

Louis Pollock, screen writer, is suing major motion picture companies for alleged "blacklisting" which assertedly has prevented him from obtaining work in motion pictures and television in Hollywood for period of more than six years.

Pollock said he was advised by office of attorney David Shapiro in Washington, D. C., that Antitrust Laws violation complaint based on section one and two of Sherman Act had been filed March 14 between 2-3 p.m. in Federal Court, District of Columbia.

Damages of $300,000, trebled in antitrust procedure, are being sought against all majors, excluding United Artists and Walt Disney.

Complaint, according to Pollock, is similar to that previously filed against the industy in Federal Court by 12 self-proclaimed Hollywood "blacklistees," except for his contention that he was "blacklisted as a case of mistaken identity."

Pollock, in DAILY VARIETY on Dec. 18, 1959, contended that he had been confused with a clothing store proprietor in San Diego, who had same name but spelled "Pollack," using letter "a," whereas writer has second "o" in Pollock. The San Diego man was subpoenaed April 19, 1954, by a subcommittee of the House Committee on Un-American Activities, to answer allegations of Communist ties. He refused to testify, pleading the First, Fourth and Fifth Amendments.

Although Shapiro also filed complaint for the 12 Hollywood "blacklistees," in the pending Washington court cases, Pollock said his suit is a separate action. Shapiro, who was in Los Angeles last week, said he would not make any objection should the film companies suggest that the two suits be consolidated.

Karsh of Ottawa Doing Stills for Levine's 'Sodom'

Yousef Karsh, the Ottawa camera portraitist, is set to snap his first location stills when he goes to Morocco next month to focus on Joe Levine's "Sodom and Gomorrah" company.

High-priced photog of world notables is expected to be on location minimum of two or three weeks.

'El Cid'

Continued from page 4

for the Procusa production, "The Buccaneers of the Caribbean," and some other local film projects.

Everything about this operation is grandiose. To match the abrupt thousand-year-old walls that rise around this Mediterranean pueblo, Anthony Mann ordered a half-mile of age-old fortress constructed at sea-level complete with semi-Moorish gateway. When art directors Colasanti and Moore reconstructed the time-swept fortifications and that gateway, the town of Peniscola really looked worth fighting for.

Medieval Apthenticity

Equally impressive is the endless conglomeration of medieval L.S.T.'s, war machines, catapults, early historical ordnance at all shapes and sizes used by contending blocs in these crucial military contests, as well as a dozen reconstructed mosques for the town formerly under Arab domination from 700 until El Cid chased them out in 1099.

Around Charlton Heston as El Cid and Herbert Lom as Ben Yussuf director Mann has mustered one of the biggest troop concentration s in filmdom's annals. To make this possible, the Spanish army has again entered the scene with understanding collaboration for the first time since Stanley Kubrick committed, uncommitted and recommitted the Spanish G.I. for his big battle scenes in "Spartacus." It was then that the Spanish High Command stated their troops would be available for only those film productions that contributed in some measure to the glory of Spain or to its armed forces.

Convinced that the $7,000,000 Bronston vehicle for Heston and Sophia Loren would faithfully depict the life and times of Spain's greatest warrior and hero, the war minister put his Hancock on movement orders that sent thousands of pollus and cavalry to Peniscola. After deploying massive formations through one full length siege and two major battles, director Mann confirmed his belief that the staging of similar scenes without the use of trained soldiers would take twice as long and cost twice as much to any producer. He particularly lauded the Spartan discipline of the Spanish foot-soldier and the entire complicated system of coordination that made it possible to array almost 5,000 combatants for large-scale warfare.

Another phenomenon that lightened the director's burden was the Mediterranean winter sunshine. Noting that several important Hollywood productions were forced to abandon foreign locations and return to the relatively safe California clime, Mann emphasized that he had not lost two hours of shooting time during the five weeks the Bronston unit conducted its medieval Mediterranean warfare.

Bronston himself, during a brief visit to the coastal location area, admitted that weather had been his biggest gamble during the production of "El Cid." But week after week of consecutive mild sunshine has now strengthened his enthusiasm for Spain as a site to manufacture blockbusters the year round. Bronston pointed out that he also had had five months of continuous sunshine during "King of Kings" last year. But that was during the normal summer season, when film-makers have the natural odds going for them.

The Orange Blossom Coast will remember for many years to come the exploits of "El Cid" at Peniscola. But now that the Bronston invasion is over, life between Valencia and Barcelona is slowly recovering its normal pace. The orange harvest can now be crated and the fishing fleets that provide the Spanish palate with an endless variety of tasty seafood have scrapped Ben Yussuf invasion trimmings and are again putting out to the tranquil Mediterrean to cast their nets. "El Cid" saved Valencia at Peniscola.

Amusement Stock Quotations

Week Ended Tues. (21)

N. Y. Stock Exchange

1960-61 High	Low		*Weekly Vol. in 100s	Weekly High	Weekly Low	Tues. Close	Net Change for wk.
45¼	23¾	ABC Vending	138	45¼	41	45¼	+3
52½	25¾	Am Br-Par Th	190	49⅜	47½	48⅞	+ ⅜
42¼	19½	Ampex	3540	25¼	23	23⅛	—2
45¼	34	CBS	401	38¾	37¾	38¼	— ¼
34⅞	14⅝	Col Pix	640	34⅞	30½	34¼	+3
39¾	17⅜	Decca	400	36½	34½	34½	—1⅝
49¼	20	Disney	†173	43	40¼	41½	+ ⅝
136¼	94	Eastman Kdk	411	118¼	111¾	114¾	+ ¾
8½	5⅝	EMI	595	6¾	6⅜	6⅞	..
23⅞	11⅜	Glen Alden	654	16	15	15	— ⅝
25¾	14	Loew's Thea.	392	24¾	23½	24⅜	+ ⅛
62½	22¼	MCA Inc.	93	62½	54½	59	+5
59⅜	24⅞	Metro GM	†477	59⅜	56	58⅜	+1⅝
66⅞	12⅞	NAFI Corp.	1366	40⅜	35⅛	37⅜	+1⅞
13	4¾	Nat. Thea.	517	7½	6¾	7	+ ¼
82½	39½	Paramount	299	82¼	78½	79¼	—3¼
38¼	15⅞	Philco	787	22¾	20½	22	+1¼
261¾	163¼	Polaroid	345	195	181¼	192	—7½
78⅜	46½	RCA	666	59⅜	56¾	58⅜	+1⅛
15⅞	7½	Republic	196	15⅛	14½	14¾	+ ⅛
18½	12⅝	Rep., pfd.	15	18	17¼	17⅞	+ ¼
42⅝	19½	Stanley War.	86	31½	29⅝	31½	+1¾
30⅞	26¼	Storer	58	30¾	30	30⅜	+ ¼
53⅞	30	20th-Fox	¶632	53⅞	50½	51¼	— ⅛
38⅜	23⅝	United Artists	327	39⅜	37½	38	+1⅛
51⅛	28¼	Univ. Pix	14	49½	[illegible]	[illegible]	+ ¾
85	70½	Univ. pfd.	¶320	83	82⅛	82⅛	— ⅞
67¾	37⅜	Warner Bros.	68	67¾	66⅛	67	+ ⅝
129⅜	89⅛	Zenith	212	124⅝	117⅜	122	+5¼

American Stock Exchange

High	Low			High	Low	Close	Net Change
6¾	4½	Allied Artists	59	6⅛	6	5⅞	— ¼
15	10	All'd Art., pfd.	4	13⅜	12¾	12¾	— ⅝
7¼	2⅞	Buckeye Corp.	298	3¾	3¼	3⅝	+ ¼
15⅛	8½	Cap. City Bdc.	105	14⅞	13½	14½	— ¼
11¼	3⅜	Cinerama Inc.	1890	11¼	8¾	11¼	+2
15	9¼	Desilu Prods.	95	13⅞	13½	13⅞	— ⅜
7½	4½	Filmways	138	6⅞	6	6¼	— ⅞
29¾	7½	MPO Vid.	117	29¾	21	26¾	+8½
8⅞	2¼	Nat'l Telefilm	290	4⅝	4	4	— ½
25	6⅞	Technicolor	1097	25	19½	24⅞	+3⅛
16¾	8⅛	Teleprompter	491	16¾	11¼	16¾	+4¼
4¾	2	Tele Indus.	61	4⅛	3⅞	4	— ⅛
20½	8½	Trans-Lux	12	20½	18⅛	20½	+2¾
18½	5½	‡Ctlv B (GAC)	28	16	15½	15½	— ⅜

* Week Ended Mon. (20).
¶ Actual Volume.
† Ex-dividend.
‡ Listed on Midwest Exchange.

(Courtesy of Merrill Lynch, Pierce, Fenner & Smith, Inc.)

Over-the-Counter Securities

	Bid	Ask
America Corp.	2⅞	3⅜	+ ⅛
Four Star Television	20½	22½	+ ½
Gen Aniline & FA	315	335	—5
Gold Medal Studios	⅛	⅝	..
Magna Pictures	2¾	3¼	+ ¼
Metropolitan Broadcasting	21⅞	23⅜	+ ⅝
Movielab	15¾	17¼	— ½
Official Films	2⅝	2⅞	..
Screen Gems	18½	20⅛	—1
Sterling Television	1⅝	2⅛
U. A. Theatres	6	6⅞	..
Wometco Enterprises	14¼	15¾	— ½

(Source: National Assn. of Securities Dealers Inc.)

TIGER CUB or CUBS WANTED
Will Rent or Buy
Also WANTED:
WELL PROPORTIONED GIRL
Unafraid of tame tiger or cubs for swimming tank act and promotional work.
Call or write: BILL GANDALL
225 West 12 St., New York, N. Y.
WAtkins 9-1655

QQ TITLES
Serving the MP and TV Industries Since 1915
• ALWAYS READY TO SERVE YOU •
247 West 46th Street, New York
Circle 7-2126

New York Theatre

RADIO CITY MUSIC HALL
Rockefeller Center • Ci 6-4600
WALT DISNEY'S
"THE ABSENT-MINDED PROFESSOR"
FRED MacMURRAY • NANCY OLSON
KEENAN WYNN • TOMMY KIRK
and THE MUSIC HALL'S GREAT EASTER STAGE SHOW

$100,000,000 CIGGIE SPLURGE

The High Cost of 'Dedication'

CBS-TV will continue "Eyewitness to History" next season in its same Friday 10:30-11 p.m. timeslot, despite the probability that Firestone will not return as the show's sponsor. Decision to go with "Eyewitness" again gives the network a total of two hours a week of primetime pubaffairs programming, with "CBS Reports" as a weekly hour and "Twentieth Century" due to continue too, despite the Prudential cancellation.

Total outlay by the network on an annual basis for the three primetime news-pubaffairs shows will come to something in the neighborhood of $8,500,000, exclusive of time. The time charges involved would run slightly higher, about $9,000,000 annually, making the entire primetime pubaffairs bundle a $17,500,000 baby. No sponsorship prospects are yet in sight for any of the three shows.

"Eyewitness" will continue with the same staff but with a new title—it will be called simply "Eyewitness," with the "history" reference dropped. Show will be given somewhat more flexibility in subject matter, with a wider range of news subjects which could be pursued, in the feature as well as hard-news field.

Les Midgley will continue as producer and John Sharnick as associate producer, with the two occasionally splitting off into separate units when a couple of subjects are tackled on a single show. Walter Cronkite will return as anchorman and Charles Kurault as the principal field reporter and as alternate anchorman when Cronkite is on other assignments.

Firestone commitment on the show runs to the end of June, at which time "Eyewitness" hiatuses and "Person to Person" moves into its old slot for a summer run. Then "Eyewitness" returns in the fall, but without Firestone since from all indications the company now favors putting all its ad budget into print next season.

Decision to resume "Eyewitness" means that CBS has dropped its plan for a Friday night hourlong show between 10 and 11 p.m. With "Father of the Bride" now set at 9:30-10 (see separate story), "Twilight Zone" and "Eyewitness" will return in their same time periods in the fall at 10 and 10:30. Decision also firms up CBS' entire Friday night lineup, which will be the same as this year with the sole exception of "Bride" at 9:30.

The Word's 'Perception,' Mr. Hagerty

And Old Friend Takes Exception to ABC News Chief's Precepts on Coverage

Washington, March 21.

Attention, Jim Hagerty: What makes you think any radio or television reporter (or any other newsman for other media) on the Washington scene, with the great cross-section of national and international news at hand, can cover every story reported on a single on-the-air newscast?

And, Mr. Hagerty, how come you think actual coverage on the scene will produce a more perceptive or more balanced news report?

The questions were shot at a distance to the new ABC news chief and former Presidential press secretary by an old friend, Joseph F. McCaffery, one of Washington's most respected radio-tv correspondents in a speech to the Cosmopolitan Club here.

McCaffrey, former prexy of the Radio-Television Correspondents Assn., a veteran of network reporting and now a WMAL-AM-FM-TV news personality, took sharp issue with Hagerty's recent well publicized speech criticizing good looking guys who read other people's copy. McCaffrey is handsome and is on the air, but he collects a lot of his own news.

"What actually is needed in this

(Continued on page 39)

'I've Got Secret' Loses Sponsors

"I've Got a Secret" has a secret. No sponsors.

Virtually unbeknownst to the trade, except for the parties involved, the CBS-TV sales force and a few prospective clients, both R. J. Reynolds and Bristol-Myers have decided to drop "Secret" when CBS switches it to Mondays at 10:30-11 p.m. next fall. Both have been bankrolling the Goodson-Todman package for years.

Decision to drop stems primarily from CBS decision to switch the show from its longtime Wednesday at 9.30 berth. That slot has been allotted to General Foods for the incoming Gertrude Berg series. When the web informed the clients of the switch, they in turn informed CBS that the show would move without them.

So CBS is out trying to round up a pair of clients for Monday at 10:30 now that "Secret's" secret is out.

Luck of The Irish

Pittsburgh, March 21.

Bob Cochran, WHC newscaster, won his own Irish Sweepstakes in spades on St. Patrick's Day. In the morning the station notified him that he would be the permanent replacement on the 11 p.m. news show recently vacated by Ed Conway.

That afternoon his wife gave birth to twins, a boy and a girl.

Steve Allen In ABC-TV Hr. Series If Kaiser Okays

If ABC-TV's Ollie Treyz and Kaiser can get together on an agreement, Steve Allen will be returning to network television next season in a 60-minute variety show. Specifically Treyz wants him to go into the Wednesday 7:30 to 8:30 p.m. period as the replacement show for "Hong Kong," which sponsors but is dropping at the end of the season.

Kaiser still has a hold on the Wednesday time period, so any decision, as to future programming would be predicated on Kaiser's okay. Treyz has discussed the show with Allen, who is in agreement with the ABC prexy that, with the right format appealing to both adult and youth, it could be the right counter-programming for the early evening competitive battle for ratings. If Kaiser goes for the show, it would originate out of the Coast.

Allen has been missing from the spectrum this season (since the loss of his Playmouth sponsor on NBC-TV last season) and has been doing a local cross-the-board show on the Coast.

Could be that if the Allen deal doesn't come off, ABC-TV will use a new hour telefilm, Canadian Mountie series tentatively called "The Force," produced by Joseph Mansfield.

MOVE INTO NO. 1 CLIENT POSITION

With many of the sponsor bets already placed on the '61-'62 video sweepstakes, the cigaret industry shapes as the No. 1 gambler this time out, posting a record bankroll of well over $100,000,000 in primetime buys with the three tv networks.

For the balance of the six major cig firms, the web expenditures will represent a new high, and for all the outlay will be at least as great as this season's budget.

Substantially increased spending is on order for P. Lorillard, R. J. Reynolds and American Tobacco. Brown & Williamson, a major web client during the last three seasons, should be in as usual.

While Liggett & Myers' $11,000,000 or so network budget is up in the air due to the ABC pullout last week, the same coin is rapidly being redistributed in new orders. Phillip Morris, iffy to some extent because of a recent agency shuffle, has renewed its last year's lineup and may be in for additional spending when brands are settled in their new shops.

P. Lorillard, mainly via Lennen & Newell, is spending more money than ever before in a lineup that covers all three webs and almost every night of the week. Diversified to adventure, comedy, variety, and quiz, the Lorillard slate reads: alternate weeks of "Price Is Right" and "Concentration" on NBC Monday nights, and participations in the Jack Paar strip; alternate buy of "Hennessy" and "Father Knows Best" on CBS; and minutes in the new Friday night action hour on ABC, "The Corrupters," and also ABC's "Hawaiian Eye" (via Grey agency).

Lorillard also has a strong bid in for half of the Sullivan show on CBS, and reportedly a hold on part of the CBS Wednesday 7:30 to 8:30 p.m. time where "Aquanauts" is bowing out for an as yet undecided show.

—Meanwhile, Back Home

Thick smoke surrounds the flurry of web buys by major cigaret firms.

Ted Bates agency tv wigs junketed to Kentucky for huddles and screenings with Brown & Williamson ad execs on Friday. One of the items up for screening and consideration was the new NBC hour, "Dr. Kildare."

While the mull was on in the Kentucky Hills, the New York action saw Liggett & Myers buying two-minutes a week of the good doctor via McCann-Erickson.

Pall Mall's NBC Bump

American Tobacco, showing amazing resiliency, has been bounced out of NBC's "Bonanza" in favor of all-the-way bankroller Chevy, but has sprung right back with two minutes a week in the new hour "Wells Fargo, slated for a Saturday slot, and the hour "Thriller" on the network. Both buys are for Pall Mall brand, via Sullivan, Stauffer, Colwell & Bayles. Lucky Strike, via BBDO, has bought two minutes a week in ABC's "Cheyenne." Gumbinner agency, for Tarryton, has alternate weeks of the "Bachelor Father" reruns, which are shifting from NBC to ABC.

American also, along with Lever Bros., has a hold on the hot NBC half-hour opened up at 8:30 p.m. behind "Wagon Train" in the shift of "Price Is Right" to Monday nights (a show is yet to be named).

At any rate, an agency spokesman says the American orders represent an increase in both money and time in the company's network budget.

Liggett & Myers agency McCann-Erickson, which busted up a two-year romance with ABC when it split with $11,000,000 that had been spread around in adventure hours and on the Sunday half-hour

(Continued on page 54)

Groucho, Edwards Bounced From NBC Sked? Thurs. All Firmed Up But It's Musical Chairs on Fri.

NBC-TV program chieftain David Levy has reportedly never been more firm in his rejection of sponsored programming. He, with the support of prexy Bob Kintner, turned down an offer by General Mills for "Father of the Bride" Tuesdays at 10:30. (It was to have been accompanied by the fully sponsored Jane Powell anthology at 10.)

Levy's refusal was based on his desire to keep "Cain's 100" as the 10 to 11 p.m. entry that night. Web was willing to open Friday nights for both Miss Powell and "Bride," but by then Mills figured CBS had a better Friday time to offer than NBC and took 9:30 to 10 for "Bride" at the former.

Still acting more peppy than it has in years, the network this week bounced two half-hours from its tentative Thursday lineup, the new Groucho Marx stanza and Ralph Edwards' "This Is Your Life," to make room for a new hour, Metro's "Dr. Kildare." Network's Thursday night fall sked is now set with "Outlaws" at 7.30, "Kildare" from 8:30 to 9:30, followed by Tennessee Ernie to 10 and Mitch Miller from 10 to 11.

Only place the web has not moved to firm up the sked has been Fridays, which, for the moment, is wide open.

Groucho and the longtime Edward's show have not found new homes yet at NBC-TV. Their futures don't look at all promising, according to insiders, but, at the same time, a remote chance exists that one or the other (more probably Groucho) could creep into one of the web's many Friday vacancies. Actually, though, there have been objections expressed to the "high cost" of the new Groucho stanza and some network execs have objected to again using "Life," which they feel has been "around too long."

For the moment, Groucho has a "very tentative" slotting for Fridays from 9:30 to 10, but he could end up just as well earlier or later, or not at all, web sources say.

Dinah Shore and Bell Telephone are still being talked of for the 10-11 p.m. time, alternating with each other, but no firm arrangement exists. With the wide open Friday night sked at NBC, the web has, with equal tentativeness, reportedly slotted a taped hour of circus performances done in Europe by producer Larry White.

A postscript to the action at NBC the other six nights of the week is a reported decision to cancel "Tall Man" from its 8:30-9 p.m. Saturday home and replace it with another adventure stanza.

Bergman 24.9; Bing 17.2

Much-publicized collision between the Ingrid Bergman "24 Hours in a Woman's Life" special and Bing Crosby's Oldsmobile outing clearly put Miss Bergman in the winner's circle but produced disappointing rating results for both shows.

Miss Bergman scored a 24.9 Arbitron over her 90-minute CBS-TV course, while Crosby was far behind with a 17.2 average for his ABC-TV hour. Miss Bergman's share was good, a 40.2%, as contrasted with Crosby's poor 27.7% share, but size of her audience wasn't commensurate with the cost of the show or the advance notice accorded it.

Autos Roll Back Into TV; Bulk Of The Coin to NBC

Automotive money is leaking back into NBC-TV coffers for next season. Ford will be back after all, Buick has just made a buy (see separate story) and Oldsmobile is looking closely at a regularly scheduled pubaffairs stanza.

Ford will be back for all of "Alfred Hitchcock Presents" on Tuesdays, with the right to sell off part of the show. If it doesn't it must carry the whole tab under its two-year agreement with the web and Hitchcock. Same bankroller from Detroit will take all of NBC's Thursday Ernie Ford half-hour and will renew alternate halfs of the Wednesday "Wagon Train."

Buick, in lieu of Bob Hope specials has inked for alternate half-hours in Mitch Miller on NBC. Olds, meantime, is mulling a regular Dave Brinkley news stanza Wednesdays from 10:30 to 11 p.m. They'll probably have to split the stanza with R. J. Reynolds which reportedly has already made a commitment.

Phyllis Diller, Lone Sullivan Exception; She'll Get $3,500 Fee

Ed Sullivan's edict on paying $320 scale to those performing on the Jack Paar show when they work on his program, is having its first exception. Phyllis Diller, who appeared with Paar following the Sullivan blast, will be given the contracted pay of $3,500 for her May 14 show by Sullivan.

Exception is being made because of the fact that one of the Sullivan staffers gave her permission to go on the Paar show, and therefore she'll not be cut down to scale.

Sullivan's shows will be taped for the summer run. The July schedule currently calls for a month of reruns tabbed "The Best of Sullivan" and tapes exclusive for telecasts during August and September. He'll resume live Oct. 1 under his new longterm contract.

Heywood to Crosley

John (Jack) Heywood has become vicepresident and treasurer of Crosley Broadcasting, which means that the former NBC executive will shortly shift to the chain's Cincinnati headquarters.

Heywood, with NBC for 10 years, was until last Dec. 31 director of business affairs for the tv web.

Bob Newhart To Get Sealtest Coin

Sealtest has firmed up a sponsorship next season of a taped comedy half-hour fronted by Bob Newhart. Bruited about for days, the MCA 30-minute package finally got the nod last week for NBC TV's Wednesday 10 o'clock slot.

This virtually rules chances for Dinah Shore getting a Wednesday berth. Network has moved her tentatively back to Fridays from 10 to 11, but there'll be no Miss Shore as a regular part of the NBC sked unless sponsors show up soon.

What happens now to Bell Telephone, which might have alternated with Miss Shore on Wednesdays, is anybody's guess. Would-be sponsor is unhappy, it's said, with idea of moving into an alternate-week slotting Fridays at 10. Presumably, Wednesday at 10 would have been more suitable.

Meantime, back on Wednesdays, Dave Brinkley is going to get 10.30 to 11 in a match with Newhart.

RPI to Feed Presidential Press Conferences to Indie AM'ers As NBC Sets Conditions on Its Feeds

New conditions imposed by NBC on its feeds to unaffiliated stations of Presidential press conferences has caused a new blowup between the web and independent stations and brought Radio Press International into the picture as a new source of the press conference feeds. Starting with today's Wed. conference, RPI will feed it free to any station that wants it with no conditions attached.

For the past several years, NBC has been feeding the conferences to unaffiliated stations as a public service, asking that such non-affiliates credit the web or its o&o or affiliate in the area. Yesterday (Tues.), however, the network decided that for competitive reasons, new conditions would be imposed—not only was the credit mandatory, but the press conference must be carried by the indies in its entirety at the same time as broadcast by the NBC network.

Indies, among them New York's WMCA, blew their top at the new requirement, and Peter Straus, prez of RPI, owned by WMCA, announced that RPI would feed it free, with no strings attached. Straus said he had called CBS News prexy Dick Salant to see if CBS would be willing to feed the conference to non-affiliates, and quoted Salant as stating that CBS would service CBS affiliates only with the feeds. Straus, explaining RPI's decision, declared that "the Presidential press conferences are not the private property of any organization but belong to the people of the United States."

RPI will use its leased lines, which go out to 60-odd stations, to feed the conferences. Any other stations which want it can get it via phone patch by calling RPI headquarters in N.Y. Straus says it's his understanding no beepers need be used, RPI offer is sans strings, with stations permitted to use the feed at any time they wish and to excerpt it later on for use on newscasts.

NBC laid down its new policy because "we've suffered competitively for our generosity in the past," according to an NBC exec. He said that indies had been jumping the gun on NBC stations in carrying the feed, which for various reasons may be delayed on the NBC network itself. Consequently, the directive on simultaneous broadcast in its entirety was laid down.

Straus said the "entirety" condition would prevent indies from excerpting the feed for subsequent use on newscasts, but the NBC spokesman said this wasn't so.

That L&M Boycott

Rep. Alfred E. Santangelo's group, Federation of Italian-American Democratic Organizations of N. Y., is expected to announce this week that it is going ahead with its planned boycott of Liggett & Myers cigarets, even though the sponsor has decided to withdraw from ABC-TV's "Untouchables." Reportedly, Italo-American group wants sponsor to pull out immediately, not next fall as planned.

Action follows decision last Friday by Judges S. Samuel DiFalco and Ferdinand Pecora, of the National Italian-American League to Combat Defamation, to okay future "Untouchables" so long as producer Desi Arnaz doesn't use more fictional Italo names in a negative way. Arnaz agreed, but Santangelo said that this was not enough, because as he told ABC-TV last January he did not want the stanza to use real Italians either, so long as they were merely used in fictional situations.

McCann Puts Lid On ABC Pullout In Humble Exit

Honeymoon between ABC-TV and McCann-Erickson, which started a couple of years ago with a big swing of client Liggett & Myers' coin to the web, is but really over.

Besides pull out of more than $11,000,000 L&M billings and close to $3,000,000 in Coca-Cola funds last week, it was learned that another McCann client's ABC buy has been axed. Humble Oil will not renew its participation in the web's college football coverage come fall.

Effective in October, L&M cancels its part of the hours "Untouchables," "Islanders" and "Adventures in Paradise," and the half-hour "Rebel" alternate buy. "Asphalt Jungle," preeming in April with L&M coin, might be axed by the end of June, but, certainly, the cig money will pull out even if it continues. Coke's half of "Ozzie & Harriet" also has been dumped.

L&M and Coke fade was prompted by fall schedule shuffling of the shows, and, in the case of "Untouchables," also by a threatened L&M cig boycott by Italian-American groups over use of Italian gangster characters.

Toni's Buy

Toni has moved into the new Robert Young series, "Window on Main St.," as alternate-week sponsor with Scott Paper. Scott gave up half the show to accommodate Toni.

Series goes into the CBS-TV 8:30 Monday spot.

American Gas Co. Yens Live Drama

American Gas. Assn., longtime sponsor of the former "Playhouse 90" series, still yens a live network drama series. Lennen & Newell, agency for the gas company, has been doing some huddling with NBC and CBS on possible availabilities in 60-minute form as a once-a-month top coin attraction, with American Gas picking up the full tab.

NBC has been talking in terms of a Fred Coe series for the sponsor; CBS would like to revive "Playhouse 90" in 60-minute form, utilizing top scripters and directors. As yet there's been no decision.

BRISTOL-MYERS TO DROP 'PETER GUNN'

Bristol-Myers is not renewing "Peter Gunn" in '61-'62. Half-hour action stanza, fronted by Craig Stevens, moved to its current ABC-TV slot, along with its reportedly defecting sponsor, from its initial NBC-TV berth.

Stevens is now seeking to do an hour long adventure program which has been offered, among other places, to NBC-TV. But so far the web has no plans to air the new Stevens offering next season.

"Gunn" has a 10:30-11 p.m. Monday anchorage at ABC.

Scott Paper Buys

Scott Paper, resuming out its network tv buys for next season, has bought minute participations in ABC's "New Breed" private eye series. It'll be shown Tuesdays from 9 to 10 p.m.

Three weeks ago, Scott, handled by J. Walter Thompson, bought the new Robert Young half-hour series "Window on Main St." on CBS-TV. It's also committed to the Young reruns.

Westinghouse's 18 TV Specials On 3 Networks

Westinghouse Electric has bought 18 specials and is spreading them and about $8,000,000 in time and talent costs over all three tv networks. Sixteen of the eighteen will be hour stanzas and all 18, according to McCann-Erickson, Westinghouse's agency, will cover a multitude of formats—drama, music, humor, pubaffairs and news.

Series of specials will cover the period from next October to October of 1962. Six of the hours are going to CBS-TV, six or seven to NBC-TV and the rest to ABC-TV. It's understood the time periods have been selected already, and some of the Westinghouse programs may go into the Sunday at 10 slot on NBC-TV, on days when DuPont takes a hiatus from its regular Sunday series.

It'll be called "Westinghouse Presents."

Meantime, Westinghouse is ending, as known, it's sponsorship of the half-hour weekly Nanette Fabray stanza on NBC-TV. Giving up the 8:30 p.m. Friday slot and moving to 9:30 on NBC-TV for 12 summer weeks, the same bankroller will show a skein of 12 telefilms that have been picked up from a variety of Hollywood tv production shops.

SAM ZELMAN SHIFTS TO COAST FOR CBS

Sam Zelman, the top operational exec on the television side of CBS News, is giving up his post as assistant to the v.p.-general manager for television to return to the Coast. He'll resume his post there as west coast bureau manager of CBS News and news director of KNXT, the CBS-TV o&o there.

Zelman is leaving his spot purely for personal reasons, since neither he nor his family likes N.Y. after a year and a half of residence. Move has nothing to do with the reorganization of CBS News. No immediate replacement for Zelman is planned—his duties will be assumed by his two immediate subordinates, Ralph Paskman and Bill Crawford, who between them handle tv assignments and editing. Bill Eames has joined the staff as Paskman's assistant to lighten the lead.

On the Coast, Zelman will replace Bill Corrigan, who moved out from Washington to succeed Zelman when the latter came to N.Y. Corrigan will go to Israel for 17 weeks to represent the three networks as pool rep and liaison with Capitol Cities Broadcasting in the coverage of the Eichmann trial, then returns to the Washington Bureau.

TV's Cost-Per-Thousand Scorecard

Some cost-per-thousand Nielsen research, spanning all commercial prime night time on the three tv networks, provides interesting documentation in the ABC-TV Madison Ave. ascendancy.

Covering a four-week Jan.-Feb. span in '61, the Nielsen data encompassing all once-a-week prime evening shows reveals a $3.39 cost-per-thousand base for ABC-TV shows in contrast to a $3.67 projection for CBS and $4.12 for NBC.

Study shows ABC out in front on the number of commercial minutes telecast in the four-week span with 585 compared with 537 for CBS and 441 for NBC.

On weekday commercial segs, CBS has the most attractive cost-per-thousand, with $1.62, compared with $1.79 for ABC and $1.81 for NBC, with CBS also leading in number of commercial minutes: 990. NBC has 842 and ABC 663.

In refutation of the claim that it's been "held in average-audience check" this season, ABC researches the Nielsen studies thusly:

"An increase in average audience by 9% (over last year) as against NBC's 3% and CBS' 2%;

"On the entire season ABC has increased its average audience rating by 6%, NBC by 2% while CBS suffered a 4% decline in average rating."

NBC Curbs Production Protection

The growth in participation sales in tv partially was responsible for a new set of product protection rules by NBC-TV, foremost of which seems to be the elimination of exclusivity on pitchmen. Another point in the NBC sales missive to ad agencies was that the network intended reducing protection of competing products from a 15 to a 10-minute spread.

Third big point was that the sponsors of "non-regularly scheduled sports, special events or news programs" on NBC-TV could not expect protection against the advertising supplications of a competing sponsor on an adjacent program."

The elimination of an exclusive hold on hosts or announcers, who sell products on NBC-TV airtime, could, for all intents and purposes, allow such as Hugh Downs who will appear next season on a nighttime version of "Concentration" and on Jack Paar's latenighter to do commercials for, say, directly competitive soap advertisers. This is believed the first time a network has written such a provision.

As for no product protection for special news, sports and pub-affairs programs or for the show adjacent to them, there is already such a case on record at NBC-TV. Last year, R. J. Reynolds bankrolled the special East-west Shrine football game which ran until almost 7:30 p.m. It was then followed by the night's regular 7:30 entry, "Bonanza," in which American Tobacco owns a share.

Paglin Named Top Legal Man For FCC; Other Key Personnel Named

Washington, March 21.

Max D. Paglin, former Assistant Federal Communications Commission General Counsel, heads a list of top echelon personnel named to key FCC spots. Paglin becomes FCC General Counsel, top legal man at the Commission who charts FCC's many court battles (and appears himself in important cases).

Paglin succeeds John Fitzgerald, whose departure was disclosed earlier, and takes the post originally slated for Washington state attorney Kenneth O. Cox. Cox, reputed to be one of the nation's top experts on FCC matters, gained fame here in special counsel capacity for Senate Commerce Committee in radio-tv studies.

Cox takes over as head of FCC's Broadcast Bureau, formerly headed by Howard Cowgill. Whereas the General Counsel, concentrates on representing the Commission before the courts, the Broadcast Bureau is charged with overall responsibility in handling of applications and other broadcast matters within FCC.

Paglin's top aide will be Henry Geller, who was appointed Associate General Counsel. This job was last filled by Edgar Holtz.

Others named by the Commission were: Gerald M. Cahill, Assistant General Counsel for legislation; Daniel Ohlbaum, Assistant General Counsel for litigation; and James O. Juntilla, Assistant Chief of Broadcast Bureau.

All the above appointments were by the full Commission although, obviously, new FCC Chairman Newton Minow had a commanding voice in the selections.

Tedson Myers, 31-year-old New York attorney, named as Minow's Administrative Assistant (instead of Legal Asst. as previously reported), was the top appointee to the Chairman's staff.

Others were: Joel Rosenbloom, Legal Assistant; William L. North, Engineering Assistant; James B. Sheridan, Special Assistant, and Gloria Coe, Confidential Assistant.

N.Y. Carnegie Hall Salute to Benny As TV Special in Fall

Carnegie Hall's April 3 salute to Jack Benny will be taped by CBS-TV and presented by the network as a one-hour special in the fall. The Carnegie Hall show will star, besides Benny, Isaac Stern, Harry Belafonte, Van Cliburn, Eugene Ormandy and the Philadelphia Orchestra and others.

The Benny tribute is planned in appreciation of his efforts at musician employment and the furthering of serious music. Network, with Bob Banner Associates producing, will move its cameras in to tape the one-hour show. Telecast will be Sept. 27 at 10-11 p.m. Kitchens of Sara Lee has already expressed interest in half-sponsorship of the show, but deal hasn't been set.

CBS-TV Falls For Gen. Mills Dowry & Takes on 'Bride'

The CBS-TV trademarked eye had a somewhat fishy aspect to it when General Mills first poked "Father of the Bride" at the network some weeks ago, but thanks to the promise of a daytime dowry, Columbia turned it into a healthy, come-hither look. Net result: a nighttime home for "Bride," Fridays at 9:30 starting in the fall on CBS-TV.

Campbell Soups will share the tab with General Mills on the MGM-TV property, developed with General Mills financing via the BBDO shop. BBDO also tried getting CBS to pick up Four Star's Jane Powell show, which Pepsi-Cola bankrolled, but Pepsi, after all, has no daytime business.

Decision to place "Bride" at 9:30 Fridays will restore both "Route 66" and "Twilight Zone" to their current fore and aft positions, "66" at 8:30-9:30 and "Twilight" at 10-10:30. It also kills the network's hopes for an hourlong show at 10-11, with "Eyewitness to History" now set to return at 10:30 for another season. In other words, after much maneuvering, the CBS Friday schedule will still read the same as this season with a single exception, the troubled 9:30-10 period, occupied this season by "Mr. Garlund," Jackie Gleason, and, upcoming, "Way Out," with "Bride" to follow.

Exact extent and nature of the General Mills daytime business accruing to CBS hasn't been determined. For one thing, it won't be the company's afternoon ABC-TV strip, which will be gone and forgotten after this season. For another, it won't be all General Mills' daytime billings; NBC apparently is in for some of the gravy. But CBS will be getting enough to sugarcoat its previous uneasiness about the "Bride" pilot.

White-Collarites Ask CBS Pay Hike

Non-unionized white collar workers at CBS have asked the network for a 6% salary increase in the coming year in addition to other benefits. The demands, handled by the network's permanent Employee-Management Committee, are now under consideration by the company and an agreement is expected within a couple of weeks.

Other benefits asked by the employees include an additional holiday, additional salary for those employees at or above their maximum salary grades, four weeks vacation after 20 years of service instead of 25, full payment by the company of dependent coverage in the medical insurance plan after two years of employment, and liberalization of the stock purchase plan including permission for employees to purchase up to 10% of their salaries instead of the current 5% ceiling.

GOP'S TV TEAM: 'EV & CHARLIE'

Death of a Documentary

Chicago, March 21.

WBKB, the ABC o&o which has more than $40,000 tied up in the U. S. rights to a BBC documentary on Chicago, has yielded to an assortment of pressures and will blow the investment. It's not going to telecast the film, nor will it screen it for the press and civic leaders who had damned it sight unseen.

Official statement issued by general manager Matt Vieracker bases the decision on a licensee's obligation to do right by its viewership. It reads, "WBKB management feels that the film presents an unbalanced picture of the Chicago that millions of Americans—we who live here, and our many visitors—know. Accordingly, the station feels it would not be in the public interest to bring this program into the homes served by the station."

The decision was made a few days after the parent network nixed the film for a nationwide showing, which apparently had been considered when WBKB bought into the film last fall. Produced by art-documentarian Denis Mitchell, it's not a conventional travelog documentary but rather, as the title explains, "First Impressions of a Great American City."

What's been going on here ever since the film was first aired on the BBC last Feb. 21 has all the aspects of a book burning orgy. Although reviews in Manchester Guardian and London Times had called it a work of art, other reports from Britain complained that it dwelled overly on the more depressing aspects of the city. This touched off an attack on the film by the Chicago dailies, which was subsequently echoed by the local power elite.

City Hall, and the Mayor's office in particular, was nettled by what it felt was probably a "distortion" of the way of life in Chicago. While Mayor Richard J. Daley went on record to denounce the film before a print was available here, he declined to attend a screening of it last week for the reason that he didn't want to get involved in censorship. Members of his staff did attend, however, and there's good reason to believe that the city administration was somewhaht influential in WBKB's ultimate decision.

Bill Todman's Lament: 'Webs Program For Competition and Not Content'

Goodson-Todman partner Bill Todman is no doubt speaking for a good many frustrated independent producers and ad agency tele execs when he charges the networks with "programming for competition and not content."

Caught in the tightest prime-time squeeze in video history (a seller's market for sure), Todman views the web officials as war lords, mapping strategies "for the generals, not the soldiers."

The G-T shop, still the past-masters of tv's staple, the game show, with seven on the networks (and with a couple of profitable median newspapers as a sideline), is having a somewhat luckless season in the film series line.

Only in the last two years (and this year, the situation is considerably tighter than last), has it been that a reasonably good series with major sopnsors firmed cannot land a web berth, and in some instances, can't hold one that's been going, says Todman.

According to the G-T topper, the shop's proposed new half-hour, "The Yank," has orders from major bankrollers and hasn't yet been able to find the time of night on any of the webs (although a Thursday at 8:30 p.m. time was being considered by CBS).

Top that with the G-T counterpart of "Yank," "The Rebel," a fair rater (recently hit ninth place in the Arbitrons), which has the 9 p.m. ABC Sunday time and two happy sponsors, Liggett & Myers and Procter & Gamble, but which is being booted in the fall for adventure hours in the 9 to 11 Sunday time. Web has sug-

(Continued on page 55)

Sullivan Sweepstakes

CBS-TV is still juggling some 15 bids for sponsorship of the alternate week of the Ed Sullivan show, without yet having reached any decision on a choice. Network, of course, is in no rush other than the normal desire to get everybody off tenterhooks.

Reports during the week that Revlon and Lorillard had been awarded the skip-week plum vacated by Eastman Kodak were more a reflection of wishful thinking than an actuality. Fact of the matter is that CBS-TV did hold extensive talks with both advertisers and their agencies, but made no promises.

Alberto Culver In $6,500,000 Splurge On ABC Entries

ABC-TV was right: It'd have no trouble selling off "The Untouchables." Italians or no Italians, once Liggett & Myers quit for other parts of the network field. The Thursday program, which will take a 10-to-11 p.m. anchorage next season, is SRO for fall.

Miles Labs, J. B. Williams and Alberto Culver have come in to fill the empty minutes. Armour, Whitehall and Beecham (Brylcreem) are returning to round out the 60-minute Desilu production's sponsorship picture. The Miles, J. B. Williams and Alberto Culver money for "Untouchables" should

(Continued on page 34)

$3,500,000 Sales On NBC Sat. Pix

With only 22 of the 30 pictures it will use picked, NBC-TV nonetheless has a third of its new Saturday night feature film schedule sold for next season. It comes to about $3,500,000 in billings for the 9:30-11 p.m. slotting so far.

In addition to the previously acknowledged two-minutes weekly from R. J. Reynolds and a "very good" chance for a one-minute commitment by Union Carbide, Thomas Leeming (Pacquins) has decided to ride with a minute weekly. Leeming biz comes out of William Esty agency and cover 26 weeks, meaning four of the first run motion pictures will not receive its underwriting.

EQUITABLE EXPECTED TO SCRAM 'HERITAGE'

Equitable Life Assurance is not expected to continue sponsoring the Mildred Freed Alberg "American Heritage" series next season. Though apparently no decision has yet been reached, the bankroller, reliable sources anticipate, will "take other directions" next season.

Shown on NBC-TV, the series of taped historical dramas this year consisted of three hour programs and four half-hours. Year before, Equitable tried only hours in various "special" NBC slottings.

DIRKSEN-HALLECK ANSWER TO JFK

Washington, March 21.

The tune is "Love and Marriage," and a current Washington spoof goes:

Ev and Charlie, Ev and Charlie
Go together like rice and barley.

The lyricist, a Republican, doesn't have much of an appetite for the combination of rice and barley—and takes the same view of combining the Republican Congressional leaders, Sen. Everett ("Ev") Dirksen and Rep. Charlie Halleck, as the GOP television fare to compete with the Democrats' Jack Kennedy.

The GOP dilemma over how to battle President Kennedy over tv remains a huge unresolved political problem.

Latest development is the skedding once a week of a Dirksen-Halleck press conference, with tv invited.

The session is set in the Capitol building each Thursday at 9:45 a.m., allowing plenty of time for the film to get into major tv news programs. Dirksen, the Senate leader, and Halleck, the House leader, are having tv news monitored to see what use is made of their political act. Their aim is to get exposure for the Republican point of view.

After the maneuver for tv time got off to a slow start, Dirksen and Halleck hired Robert Humphreys, a genius at phrase making and political in-fighting, to help sharpen their dialog. Humphreys, who worked for the Republican National Committee for many years, had quit some 12 months ago to become director of Washington's proposed $75,000,000 National Cultural Center. With the Center apparently stalled on dead center while eggheads talked instead of moved (no one seemed able to get the fund raising effort into starting position), Humphreys was getting disgusted. He quit and joined Dirksen and Halleck.

The Dirksen-Halleck plan to get the GOP line on tv has kicked up a family fight among Republicans who don't always see public issues the same way the Congressional leadership does.

The Washington Post took up some of these complaints in a long story a few days ago.

One unnamed GOP lawmaker was quoted: "Sure, I'm unhappy about it. But what can we do about it? Halleck and Dirksen are the regularly elected House and Senate Republican floor leaders. How do you tell your leaders what they say and how they look isn't

(Continued on page 55)

Canada B'casters' Meet in Turmoil As Bans Are Posted on Com'ls

By SAM SHAW

Vancouver, March 21.

Board of Broadcast Governors proposals regulating the frequency commercials and promotional material on Canadian radio stations and limiting station giveaway contests threw the 36th annual Canadian Assn. of Broadcasters convention here into a turmoil

The proposals, which were announced by BBG vice-chairman Carlyle Allison, may be voted into effect at the next BBG meeting in Ottawa, April 11, he said. They would limit the aggregate of commercials, station and program promotional announcements and public service spots to 20 minutes per hour during peak listening hour of 6-9 a.m., noon-2 p.m. and 5-7 p.m., and to six minutes per hour during all other times. In the latter category, rules would call for at least nine minutes of pure programming between such announcements. As to giveaway contests, BBG would limit prizes to $5,000, and would limit contests to one per month unless prizes are less than $100.

Announcement by Allison came under immediate attack, with some broadcasters charging that the measures are discriminatory in favor of television. Jack Davies, manager of CFUN, Vancouver, declared, "I am worried that the radio broadcasters are becoming the whipping boys of all these experiments (by the BBG) that are going on." Speakers on the floor said the BBG proposals would

(Continued on page 34)

JFK Swears in Murrow

Washington, March 21.

President Kennedy personally swore in Edward R. Murrow as new U. S. Information Agency director at 3:15 p.m. today.

Ceremonies were at the White House.

CBS-TV In 900G Canada Sponsor Deal On Sports

What's easily the largest deal yet made by an American network in Canadian television—a time & program package running to $900,000 with options that could bring it over the $1,000,000 mark—has been set by CBS-TV in association with the Canadian Broadcasting Corp.

The deal is the $1,250,000 52-week sports package purchased on some 40 CBC-TV stations, comprising both the English and French networks—by Carling's Brewing Co. Because one of the Canadian commercial stations grabbed off rights to Canadian football, CBC-TV couldn't come up with a full-year's series of events, and CBS-TV was called in as a program supplier.

Upshot of this was that CBS-TV will undertake to supply 34 of the 52 events, with options for six more. Moreover—and this marks another first—deal is so constructed that on these occasions when CBS-TV events are used, the network will not only be the program supplier but the network of record, with the time & program billings paid by Carling's directly to CBS-TV and the latter compensating CBC-TV just as it would any regional group of its own affiliates. Conversely, on those occasions when CBC-TV supplies the program, CBS-TV is involved in no way.

CBS-TV events will consist of the entire pro football schedule of 14 games—and Carling's will pick a single contest from among CBS' several each Sunday and televise it nationally in Canada, contrasted with the regional spreads in the U.S.—the baseball "Game of the

(Continued on page 39)

Como's 1961-62 Sked: 30 Shows

Except for signing a one-year instead of two-year contract, Perry Como is said to be returning next season to NBC-TV's Wednesday color sked for Kraft on almost exactly the same financial and programmatic terms as he's had all along. Singer-emcee will still hold Wednesdays from 9 to 10 p.m.

Como will do 30 programs himself for Kraft, and his Roncom Productions will supply three others in the same time period in which he does not appear. Kraft will bankroll all.

Performer for approximately the last two months had been negotiating for a change. He wanted to do fewer shows and, as it appeared, he wanted considerably more per unit produced than he's gotten. According to reliable sources, however, the terms read no better and no worse than before. Como evidently wants to make the '61-'62 season his last year of "fulltime" tv work.

Roncom will also continue supplying the summer replacement stanza or stanzas for Como. Contract expires in Oct. 1962

JFK's Respect For a Medium

By LES CARPENTER

Washington, March 21.

In a brief speech sprinkled with wit and exhibiting a serious respect for the broadcasting industry, President Kennedy told top executives and news correspondents of the industry that a great challenge faces them in bringing truth to the heavy population of illiterates in sensitive areas of Africa, Asia and Latin America.

"We want your medium," Kennedy said at the Radio-Television Correspondents Assn. annual dinner Saturday (18), "to be used to preserve freedom. We will cooperate and serve with you in that great cause in the coming years."

He complimented the work already done by radio and said tv can become an even more useful tool of democracy in the global effort.

The stars of the dinner's show—Dinah Shore, Shelley Berman and a unit of 55 of the Harvard Glee Club—each received thanks from the President, who then turned his gratitude to the entire broadcasting industry with last Fall's televised "Great Debates" obviously in mind.

"The Vice President and I," he said, "are in your debt—for more reasons than one."

It got a laugh.

In a reference to the Republicans' new effort to get tv time by skedding weekly Capitol news conferences of the two GOP Congressional leaders, Sen. Everett Dirksen (Ill.) and Rep. Charles Halleck (Ind.), and inviting tv coverage (see separate story), Kennedy said:

"I don't want you to miss the hardhitting new show, 'Ev and Charlie.' If the sponsor switches over from 'Untouchables,' you might get this coast to coast."

Kennedy continued: "Ev and Charlie and their Old Frontiersmen came over to see me the other day. Only the cut over my eye (the President had to have five stitches there) kept me from asking for more than $350 for a guest spot on their show."

The reference showed knowledge of the Paar-Sullivan feud, but the correct figure was $30 off. It's $320.

Kennedy warmly congratulated the Assn. for electing its first woman president, Ann M. Corrick

(Continued on page 39)

Asquith Variation On Susskind Theme

London, March 21

The Association of Cinematograph, Television and Allied Technicians adopted a resolution at its annual conference expressing concern at the continuing American influence on British tv programs and calling on its general council to seek ways and means of counteracting the trend. Prexy Anthony Asquith, in his address, said that David Susskind, the American tv personality, when he was in Britain had described American television as "unimaginative, empty, innocuous, monotonous, unbalanced, puerile and drivelling."

"Britain is importing too much from America," said Asquith. "We should import only diamonds. We can manufacture our own mediocrity."

To an advertiser, the biggest minute is the one that clocks the biggest audience. In the average commercial minute, advertisers on the CBS Radio Network in 1960 reached 28 per cent more homes than on the next network, 9 per cent more homes than on the other two networks combined. 1961 promises an even bigger lead for CBS Radio, with its new program schedule– expanded news and information, more special features, important personalities and entertainment. Whether you buy a saturation campaign or co-sponsor one five-minute show... minute for minute your advertising dollars buy the biggest audiences in all network radio on the CBS Radio Network.

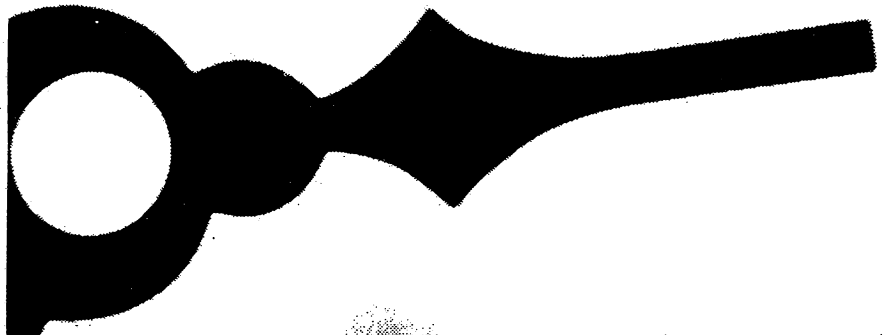
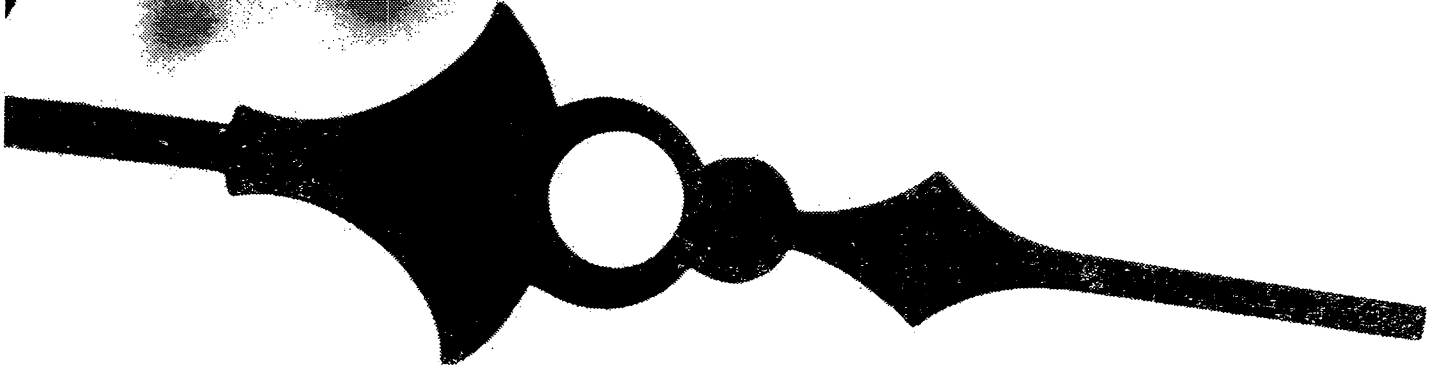
Source: Nielsen Radio Index, Sponsor Cumulative Audience Section; 12 four-week reports, Dec. 7, 1959--Dec. 4, 1960.



in all network radio is the commercial minute on the CBS Radio Network



Upbeat In Regional Specials As Sponsors Yen Multi-Market Deals

Regional sponsorship of specials, both entertainment and pub-affairs, are getting an unprecedented ride in the market place and more than one outfit plans to broaden its horizons in that field.

Latest entry in that category is Talent Associates' "The Greatest Man in the World," a one hour drama, sold to Standard Oil of California. Number of markets for the June telecast has yet to be fixed. Oil company is taking the special in cities where its Chevron product is marketed.

In the pubaffairs field, Wolper-Sterling is going full steam with three one-hour specials sold to different sponsors.

Upcoming as potential shows for regional specials are the Jo Stafford one hour vidtaped shows, 13 music-variety shows, to be filmed by Associated TeleVision, of England. Independent Television Corp. is riding with the Stafford series.

The regional special field is a catch-as-catch-can affair, with few hard and fast rules based on years of experience.

In the entertainment area, the hour vidtaped Nat King Cole special last year drew a lot of attention when it was picked up by Hamms Brewing in 50-odd midwestern markets. Same special, vidtaped in England, was sponsored in N.Y. by Rheingold. ABC Films distributed the show, making its deal with General Artists Corp. Show had been telecast in England by Associated TeleVision.

Another vidtaped show, understood to be up for regional sponsorship grabs, is a Sammy Davis Jr. special, also vidtaped in England and telecast there.

Talent Associates also had a regional one shot special last year, "100 Years from Today," a comedy revue, starring Herb Shriner, Tom Poston, Dennis Day and others, which was telecast in 100 midwestern markets under the sponsorship of the Gamble-Skogmo chain store. TA's current offering is based on a short story by James Thurber, with Irving Gaynor Neiman doing the adaptation. It will star Paul Ford, Mike Kellin and William Redfield.

Schaefer Beer, via BBDO, clinched a one-shot St. Patrick's Day special with Metropolitan Broadcasting. Under the deal the St. Paddy show was produced by Met's WNEW-TV, N.Y., and spotted by Schaefer in markets other than Met stations.

Wolper-Sterling has sold "The Legend of Valentino" to Peter Pan Foundations, "Biography of a Rookie," to Schaefer, and "Project: Man in Space" to Tidewater. All of the specials will be aired between April 10-17. Tidewater, in addition to "Project," picked up the rerun of "The Race for Space," as part of its deal. In N.Y., WPIX will telecast "Race" April 13 at 8:30 p.m., and "Project" May 11 at 8:30 p.m.

'Customs Trouble' Cues Shift of 'Wild Cargo'

Film director Roy Pinney, who junketed to India for shooting of 13 half-hours for a tele adventure series, "Wild Cargo," has switched locations to Mepal and Pakistan after "trouble with customs."

Pinney says that despite many assurances of complete cooperation received before leaving New York, "our raw film stock was confiscated upon refusal to pay an exaggerated duty, penalty and dammage charges."

Calcutta customs, he says, "has a reputation of banditry," and the unexpected charges made the unit's change of plans necessary.

Crosby's Outfit Pitches 2 Pilots

Bing Crosby Enterprises, which has been in and out of the vidpix pilot parade over the past several years, is in again with a pair of brand new pilots, and George Rosenberg, Crosby's agent, is in N.Y. this week for a series of agency and network showings.

Pilots are an hourlong property, "Ben Casey," created and produced by James Moser, and a half-hour Eve Arden comedy titled "The Colonel's Lady." The Moser show, which stars Vincent Edwards and Sam Jaffe, is a series involving doctors in a large hospital.

Miss Arden's pilot, costarring her husband, Brooks West, is about an actress who marries an Army colonel and moves onto an Army post. Stanley Roberts produced. Rosenberg-Coryell agency handles representation on the properties for Crosby.

RAYCROFT TO OF

Former manager of KPLR-TV, St. Louis, Russ Raycroft, has joined Official Films as vice president and general assistant to prexy Seymour Reed.

Before his St. Louis post, Raycroft was national tv director for Wilding, Inc., a veepee and radio director for Robert W. Orr and a tv account exec with Dancer, Fitzgerald, Sample agency.

Hollywood—Don Patton will be exec producer on L. A. Angels baseball telecasts on KHJ-TV this season. He previously directed the old Pacific Coast League games over Channel 9.

Mex Viewers Protest 'Too Many Com'ls' On Films (5-Min. Spacing)

Mexico City, March 21.

Pre-1948 Hollywood films now being telecast over three major channels here are being "marred" by too frequent and too long commercials, according to mounting public complaints reaching the Department of Communications.

In the "Hollywood Premiere" program, for example, which has a big audience following, there are two to three commercials, each 70 seconds long, every five minutes during screening time.

The Department of Communication, State and Public Education, three official entities having legal powers to enforce the Mexican Radio and Television Law, are investigating.

Telesistema, meanwhile, has acquired a new lot of 300 films from 20th-Fox, including "A Night in Rio," "In Old Chicago," "Blood and Sand," etc.

A Telesistema survey of audience viewing pictures has shown that Channel 5 attracts 40%; Channel 4, 35 and Channel 2, 29% with this lower figure attributed to use of afternoon hour instead of evening slots as on former two channels.

ABC Latino Web A Virtual Reality, Douglas Opines

Mexico City, March 21.

William Douglas, passing through Mexico, said that the Central American television network initiated some months ago is virtually a reality. Chain is being established under direction of the American Broadcasting Co. and programming on network basis is later to be distributed throughout Latin America, the United States and Europe via videotapes, Douglas said.

The Central American network is pilot project in what ultimately may be a link up of American and south of the border stations. This is a long range goal. But for the present, Douglas said that economic development of area will benefit from the network since it will aid in developing the budding common market project. And shows telecast abroad via videotapes will not only provide closer ties between Central America and the world, but also give a "clear and comprehensive picture" of cultural and commercial advances being made by the Central American republics.

ITC'S 'DANGER MAN' IN 47 COUNTRIES

Potential foreign revenues for a vidfilm series can be as high as 35% of the total gross realized from a skein. Very few properties reach that potential.

As far as total market penetration in world markets, some sort of record is claimed for Independent Television Corp's "Danger Man." Series has been sold in 47 different countries, out of an estimated total of 55 for the world tv market Market penetration of "Danger Man" beats that of "Lassie," another ITC fave in the overseas market.

Robeck to Distribute BBC's 'Age of Kings'

Peter M. Robeck & Co. has acquired U.S. distribution of British Broadcasting Corp.'s "An Age of Kings." Prior to the Robeck distribution agreement, the series had been sold to educational tv stations throughout the country, via NET, and Metropolitan Broadcasting stations in N.Y. and Washington.

"Kings" consists of 15 hourlong BBC productions of William Shakespeare plays spanning 86 years of British history.

The 'Real Mexico' to Be Portrayed To World in Series of 50 TV Shorts

Mexico City, March 21.

Culture is the big thing in Mexican television these days. Locally Channel 11, sponsored by the National Polytechnic Institute, and only cultural-educational station operating within the republic, will soon have competition in a Monterrey station to be sponsored by the Institute of Technology in the industrial city.

But Mexico is also going to send its culture abroad via a budding effort by the National Fine Arts Institute. The government wants to scotch for all time the erroneous impression that Mexico is the land of "the sleeping Indian," the happy-go-lucky drunk, the killer ready to knife or shoot just for the fun of it, and a general assumption that Mexico is a backward land of sloths and neer-do-wells who lazily sit in the sun slopping up tequila while overburdened women do the work.

Nothing could be further from the truth. But, unfortunately, irresponsible film producers, turning out bungled quickies highlighting lowest levels; and the popular ranchero songs which have hit it off big internationally, have given Mexico a sad, totally untrue sort of black celebrity.

Now, the true picture of the south of the border republic will emerge in a series of 50 shorts, to be made by the Institute, and to touch on all artistic, cultural and progress aspects of the nation. The half-hour shows (with an actual running time of 28 minutes each) will use top talent, use scientific backgrounds of all parts of the republic, and give a documentary and attractive exposition, replete with song and dance entertainment too, of the land that is Mexico. Shorts to be narrated in seven different idioms including Russian.

It is hoped this initial series will wipe out some of the international discredit that has been Mexico's lot in the past. The world, and the citizens of the republic, too, will have a visual presentation of the "true Mexico."

The Institute has issued a call to producers, directors and writers to submit script suggestions, and the cream of these will be bought and liberally paid for. This will also mark a new trend in upping substandard fees paid for tv material, with fees as low as $48 for one-half hour segment.

Series will be exported in black and white, with exception of color copies to the United States, Russia and Japan where color television is programmed.

Should 'Crawl' Be Fore or Aft?

Hollywood, March 21.

Campaign by tv guilds and crafts to force running of credits before the show instead of after has drawn a strong objection from Thomas Moore, veepee in charge of network programming for ABC-TV. Declaring that it would be a mistake to change the present position of "crawls," Moore insists credits should come at the end of a show if "they are to accomplish the job they're designed to do."

"As a person in a position to select or influence the selection of producers, directors, actors, art directors, et al," said Moore, "I can unequivocally say that credits at the close of a show are the most effective. I have seen an outstanding performance or job of direction many times and have noted the man or woman who accomplished it from the credits at the end of the show.

"In features, I have occasionally run the credits at the top to get across the name of an actor or actress but that had to be an outstanding performance."

See New Break for Yanks in Japan: Price Hike or 'Limited Free Market'

Further liberalization of Japanese restrictions regarding imports of American vidfilms is expected shortly. The liberalization is expected to come following the submission on April 1 of the budget for the next fiscal year.

Last year, the ceiling price of a half-hour episode was raised from $350 to $500. One foreign topper saw the possibility that a limited free market might be won, that is an overall restriction as to the amount of dollars that could be spent for foreign product, with no ceilings as to the price that could be paid for individual shows. Also to be lifted, according to the prediction, is the limitation of American shows that could be aired on Japanese tv.

That forecast, however, was considered too optimistic by another foreign topper. He foresaw a possible increase from $500 to about $750 per half-hour. The debate will be settled when the new budget is submitted. Whatever the particulars, though, the outlook is for a greater liberalization of the important market.

Grid Coach Pacted For Filmaster's 'Touchdown'

Hollywood, March 21.

Filmaster has signed Otto Graham, now grid coach at the U.S. Coast Guard Academy, to star in "Touchdown," half-hour series slated for fall sale by the company. Show goes into production the end of this week.

Series, produced in cooperation with the National Football League, pits the league's top quarterbacks against each other in weekly passing contests. Point system is used to tote up best accuracy in passing to moving and stationary targets.

UAA's Lopert Pix; Pact Reinstein

Harvey Reinstein has been engaged as sales director of tv activities of Lopert Pictures Co., in conjunction with a managerial shift which puts the Lopert pix-for-tv operation under the aegis of United Artists Associated. Both UAA and Lopert Pictures are subsids of United Artists.

Reinstein replaces Bob Morin, resigned. Before joining Lopert two years ago as eastern sales manager, Reinstein had been associated with Universal-International, Buena Vista, and the Walter Reade Organization. Reinstein reports to Erwin Ezzes, exec v.p. of UAA.

Pix in the Lopert bundle include "La Parisienne," "The Greatest Love," "The Horse's Mouth," and "Richard III."

New ITC Sales

Roster of sales on a variety of Independent Television Corp. properties was reported this week.

"Broken Arrow" deals include KTTV, Los Angeles; Municipal Auto Sales, Miami; KVOS, Bellingham, Wash.; KSL, Salt Lake City; KOIN, Portland, Ore.; WWJ Detroit; and KPLR, St. Louis.

New sales on "Diver Dan" include WWJ, Detroit; WFBM, Indianapolis; WJAC, Johnstown; WTVD, Raleigh - Durham; and Philadelphia, where the series was sold to Edwards Shoes.

Other sales included "Cannonball," "Best of Post," and other properties. ITC reported that sales for the January-February period was 43% over the same time span last year.

Vidpix Chatter

John McCarthy, Television Programs Export Assn. prez, due in from Far East shortly . . . J. Remi Crasto appointed foreign sales supervisor of National Telefilm Associates. Formerly, Crasto had been general manager for the Far East and Near East . . . "Sky Fighter" is now the official title for the Quinn Martin pilot costarring Lang Jeffries and Ben Cooper. Pilot, produced by Martin for ABC-TV, was tentatively titled "The Impatient Ones." John Ireland has been signed to play a leading role in the "Last Way Out," next episode to be filmed for Metro-TV's "Asphalt Jungle," Series debuts April 2 on ABC-TV.

NTA'S SALE TO SOVIET ('GULLIVER'S TRAVELS')

NTA Pictures has sold the color cartoon feature "Gulliver's Travels" to the Soviet Union through its official agency Sovexport Film.

Negotations for the sale, which have taken place for almost two years, resulted through several visits to Moscow by Vernon Burns, now NTA general manager. Burns said that with the consummation of this sale, NTA is currently working out details for additional film sales with Sovexport Films.

'Long John Silver' Tint Oldies in Pair of Sales

Chicago, March 21.

Teledynamics Corp. has sold the British-made tint vidseries, "Long John Silver," to two NBC o&os, WNBC-TV, New York, and WNBQ, Chicago. Series was made in 1955, shot in Australia, and bases on Robert Louis Stevenson's "Treasure Island." It stars the late Robert Newton.

Oldie struck the NBC stations' fancy particularly for its color values, and both outlets will be using it chiefly as a tint showcase. They've bought it in 35m for top color fidelity. Chi station is slotting the kidult series Sundays at 5:30 p.m.

ABC Films Realignment

ABC Films has made several additions and promotions in a realignment of the sales organization.

Division managers now shape up this way: Albert G. Hartigan, eastern division with offices in New York; James Delanley, southern division manager, hq'd in Houston; Michael G. Gould as head of the Chicago sales headquarters; James Tobin as head of the western operations with offices in Beverly Hills. Tobin also will act as the firm's production rep, reporting to ABC prexy Henry G. Plitt.

Donal Joannes gets title of western sales manager in charge of all syndicated sales. He'll headquarter in Beverly Hills.

'REGIONALS' KEY TO SYNDIE BIZ

MGM to Spring Post-'48s

Metro will unveil its first list of post-'48's to be made available for television at the May meeting in Washington of the National Assn. of Broadcasters.

Metro initial package of post-'48's will be less than 50 titles, according to present plans. Metro's tv syndication division, under the aegis of Dick Harper, hopes to set up an orderly release schedule of post-'48's. Under the plan, Metro each year would come into the tv market with a fresh, small group of post-'48's.

Thrust of Metro now puts the following film companies in the post-'48 camp: Columbia Pictures, 20th-Fox, Warner Bros., and United Artists. Paramount, now experimenting with its toll-tv Telemeter system, is expected to move slowly, perhaps testing the pull of some post-'48's on feevee. Universal and a few others may move more quickly now that Metro has decided to get into the post-'48 act.

ITC's 'Watch Mandell' in Soaring Activity; Foreign Biz Big Factor

Independent Television Corp., functioning in an acknowledged soft syndie market, is operating in the black, according to Abe Mandell, who now oversees all sales, both domestic and foreign.

In order to maintain a healthy operation, ITC has moved in several directions, offering sports shorties, an animated series, as well as the traditional syndie fare. In addition, ITC has copped its first network sale on a British produced series, "Danger Man," due for a midyear debut on CBS-TV.

ITC, although now completely owned by Associated TeleVision of England, is in command of its own ship in the U.S., as well as overseeing the sale of product in significant foreign areas.

Move to further diversify product supply is evidenced on a number of other fronts. ITC is underwriting a series of big budgeted Jo Stafford vidtaped specials. Series of 13 one hour specials will topline such guestars as Ella Fitzgerald and Peter Sellers. Stafford goes to London in June for production rounds. ITC also is in production on a number of one hour vidfilm projects, "Ghost Squad" and "Theatre 70," the latter an anthology series.

All of the above shows will be offered to sale in the U.S., going the traditional network first and then regional rounds. Currently, ITC for the fall season is offering "Whiplash" skein for regional buys. Outfit also had a deal with 20th-Fox for the production of two series. Scripts now are being submitted for a final okay before pilot production is kicked off.

Rise of Mandell's star at ITC underscores the importance of the

(Continued on page 52)

60% 'Miami' Sales Direct-to-Client

Direct to advertiser sales on Ziv-UA's "Miami Undercover" has passed the 60% mark, topping station sales on the series, according to syndication v.p. Len Firestone.

Among the "Undercover" advertisers are Wiedeman Brewing, Streitman Biscuit, International Harvester, Lincoln Mercury Dealers, Johnson & Johnson, Busch Bavarian, and Seifert Potatoe Chip Co.

It's reported that such recent Ziv-UA entries as second year "Lock Up" and "Case of the Dangerous Robin" also had a greater percentage of direct to advertiser sales. On the fourth year of "Sea Hunt," advertisers outnumber stations by some 20%.

Credit for the direct to advertiser upswing was attributed to the increased efforts and penetration of Ziv-UA's service force and to the accelerated use by national advertisers of syndie properties as supplemental buy to network campaigns.

A portion of the latest list of "Sea Hunt" advertisers include Standard Oil of Indiana, Howard Griffin, Savannah Sugar Refining; Holmes Pontiac, Rural Electric Assn., Carling Beer, Hamms Beer and Eckert Packing Co.

TV's Flatbush Saga

The story of Brooklyn, from the building of the bridge to the departure of the Dodgers, is being prepped for a tele adventure series via a pilot by Industrials Illustrated.

Background footage for the Flatbush saga is currently being shot by director-producer Bern Robertson. Series will view the borough through the eyes of Brooklyn Eagle reporter, and will utilize the files of the newspaper for documentation.

Majors (Sans Col) Get Brushoff In O'seas TV Deals

Major motion picture companies, with the exception of Columbia, via Screen Gems, are Johnny-come-latelies in the foreign vidfilm distribution field. Even today, with the foregin market growing, there is some question as to the efficiency and penetration of some of the majors in tv abroad.

Whether feature sales execs, stationed abroad, serve as the best salesmen for vidfilm series is a subject of sharp debate. It's contended by some that the cost savings in having execs wearing two hats usually results in the brushoff of the tv end, where the revenues are comparatively smaller.

Many of the majors, 20th-Fox for example, have realized their late start in the tv push abroad and are trying to make up for lost time. Challenge thrown to majors is a country by country, show by show, rundown of market penetration abroad. How would such a list compare to the penetration achieved by syndicators, throwing all their effort in the foreign tv field is the question asked. Excepted of course is Screen Gems, Columbia's baby which is a giant abroad.

Schubert Library To Cinema-Vue Corp.

Cinema-Vue Corp. reports the acquisition of national distribution rights to Bernard L. Schubert half-hour syndicated properties.

Schubert properties include "Topper," "Mr. and Mrs. North," "Readers Digest," "White Hunter," and "Musical Jamboree."

More 'Play of Week' Sales

Six new markets have inked to telecast National Telefilm Associates "The Play of The Week." Renewals for second year production have been signed in 11 markets. Total sales of "The Play of The Week" now include 72 markets.

New stations signing are WTMJ, Milwaukee; WTVR, Richmond; WKOW, Madison, Wis.; WFSU, Florida U. station in Tallahassee; KGLO, Mason City, Ia.; and WTVT, Tampa, Fla.

TIMING A MAJOR SELLING FACTOR

By MURRAY HOROWITZ

Timing in copping regional deals looms as one of the most vital facets of the upcoming syndie season, which loosely parallels the network '61-'62 season.

Reason for the factor of timing becoming more important than ever is the broadened network programming demands on local stations. It's forecast that the initial large regionals for the fall season won't have too much trouble placing their shows in prime syndie time, despite the limitations on the local scene.

Late regional buyers, however, could have a kingsized headache. Such latecomers, coming in fifth, sixth or seventh with shows to place locally, might find themselves crowded out of good time periods, as happened to a number of regional advertisers last season.

As spring unrolls, all syndie eyes are turned to the key regionals, advertisers whose multi-market buys can either make or break a series in more cases than admitted. Of equal importance are the national advertisers, such as Reynolds, Brown & Williamson, Ballantine, whose multi-market buys buoy the grossing performance of skeins.

Preliminary feelers in the regional area indicate that pool of regional advertisers has diminished in volume and numbers compared to previous years. Yet, the beers, tobaccos, food accounts and others are there, the estimate depending on how optimistic or pessimistic the appraiser may be.

Regionals considered ripe for a new show in the fall season include Falstaff, Budweiser, Strohs, Blue Plate, Jax Beer, Standard Oil of California, Hamm's Beer, DX Sunray, Conoco, Amoco, Standard Oil of Indiana, Hood Dairies, Ballantine, Drewry's. It's understood that such national accounts as Procter & Gamble, Lever Bros., and auto companies would listen to a syndie pitch with interest for reasons peculiar to each account. Auto companies, for example, are eschewing tall coin in week-in week-out networking because, feeling the brunt of the recession, they don't want to commit monies over a long stretch. Thirteen week deals with prime syndie properties might be looked upon with favor by Detroit.

Most syndicators blame the diminished pool of available regionals on these factors: (1) Many regional advertisers have taken the lead from network sponsors, buying participations locally rather than programs. In short, the magazine concept has grown on the local level. (2) Increased network programming spans, especially in prime time, has chopped down local availabilities; (3) networks themselves, a la "Mitch Miller's Sing Along," on NBC-TV with Ballantine sponsoring, have gotten into the regional act.

It's freely acknowledged among syndicators that regionals and multi-market national advertisers must be resold on the advantages of program buys. Many syndie houses now are gearing themselves with sales ammunition on the advantages of program identification, the avenues of promotion, exploitations and tie-ins afforded to the program buyers.

A good number of syndie houses are holding back the release of first-run product for the fall, waiting to cop key regionals. Others are wondering aloud whether the networks, finding some unsold time on their hands, might not return certain slots to the affils for local programming and selling.

The big stake, though, is in the reselling regional advertisers mission. On that, the fortunes of the '61-'62 syndie season turns to a significant extent.

Proxy Battle Threatens in WNTA Buy; Educators, Susskind Up Bid

Contending parties for WNTA-TV, Newark-N. Y., squared off with some lively bidding, as a dissident stockholder is National Theatres & Television threatened a proxy battle.

The educational group, led by Howard C. Shepherd, board chairman of the Greater New York Fund, upped its offer to $5,500,000. David Susskind, representing commercial interests, also has put in a "substantial bid," understood to be in the neighborhood of $6,000,000. Ely Landau, former NTA board chairman, now actively trying to buy the station, as leader of another commercial group, also has put in a bid. It's understood that Landau's bid exceeds $5,000,000, but is less than the $5,500,000 offered by the N. Y. educational citizens group.

Oliver Unger, NTA prexy and board chairman, was on the Coast. Reason for the Coast visit is understood to be a convening of a board of directors meeting to act on the bids. National Theatres & Television, which formerly had NTA as a subsid, now holds 38% of NTA's stock. NT&T is headquartered on the Coast. NTA is slated to hold its annual stockholders meeting in N. Y. on April 3, a date which is understood to be a target for closing the station deal.

In addition to the tv outlet, WNTA AM and FM have been put on the block. Price for these outlets is reported to run in excess of $2,000,000.

NT&T's dissident stockholder, N. Y. insurance broker Leonard Davis, has filed a pre-proxy form with the Securities and Exchange Commission. The form contains the general charge that "in order to protect the company it might be necessary to form a group to solicit proxies." NT&T holds its annual meeting in Beverly Hills on April 11. Davis, whose company was once one of the sponsors of "David Susskind's Open End," is on record as opposing the station sale.

The participants of the N. Y. citizens group organized to get the channel for educational purposes were disclosed to include: John D. Rockefeller, III, chairman of the Lincoln Center of Performing Arts; Arthur A. Houghton Jr., prez of Steuben Glass; Devereux C. Josephs, former board chairman of the N. Y. Life Insurance Co.; Dr.

(Continued on page 34)

Philly Flexibility

Philadelphia, March 21.

An experiment in scheduling of the Warner Bros. post-'50 package has paid off for WCAU-TV. Station scheduled "The High and The Mighty," starring John Wayne, on its Late Show March 10 and repeated the same film in two parts on its Early Show, March 13 and 14.

Wayne starrer hit a 27.2 Trendex with 75% share for the Late Show and an average Trendex of 18.9 and a 50% share for the two day Early Show airing.

MCA TV's 20-City Wrapup on Sale Of Hour Shows

MCA TV's four one-hour vidfilm series have been sold to an additional seven stations, bringing the total market count to 20 stations.

Pricing on the four series is understood to run along these lines: asking price for hour series is said to be equivalent to the market price of a first-run syndicated half-hour property; most deals are multiple run affairs, said to be limited to two runs. All the four hour vidfilm properties, "Riverboat," "Suspicion," "Cimarron City," and "Overland Trail" are off-network. They represent the first large scale thrust of the hour vidfilm series form in syndication.

Newest markets include WISN, Milwaukee; WCCO, Minneapolis; WCPO, Cincinnati; WOAI, San Antonio; WFBC, Greenville; KTSM, El Paso; and WNEM, Saginaw-Bay City.

Good number of the markets sold plan to telecast the hour vidfilm series in a late afternoon period, roughly extending from 5 to 7:30 p.m. Many of the stations are set to strip the four shows Monday through Thursday. Indies such as WNEW-TV, N. Y., and KTTV, Los Angeles, are much more flexible in slotting the series.

Some stations, especially in the go-to-bed-early markets, plan to slot the series in the late night feature strip. The accent to date, though, is to strip the vidfilm series in a late afternoon or early evening action-adventure bloc.

French Language Segs Get a Big U.S. Play

"Parlons Francais," a series of filmed tv French language programs is now being telecast in 25 markets. In conjunction with the telecasting, over 750,000 home study records have been produced by Americom Corp.

The tv course, produced by the Modern Language Project of Boston and presented over WGBH-TV there since September, '59, is being distributed by Heath-De Rochemont Associates.

Educational stations telecasting the course include: KQED, San Francisco; WYES, New Orleans; WMSB, East Lansing, Mich.; WMVS, Milwaukee; and KUED, Salt Lake City.

Americom, producers of "Amerdisc," records used on conjunction with the language course, was organized by Fred Hyman, former v.p. of United Artists Associates and Herman Zuckerman, noted designer. Hyman is Americom prez.

57 Markets Sold On 7 Arts WB Pix

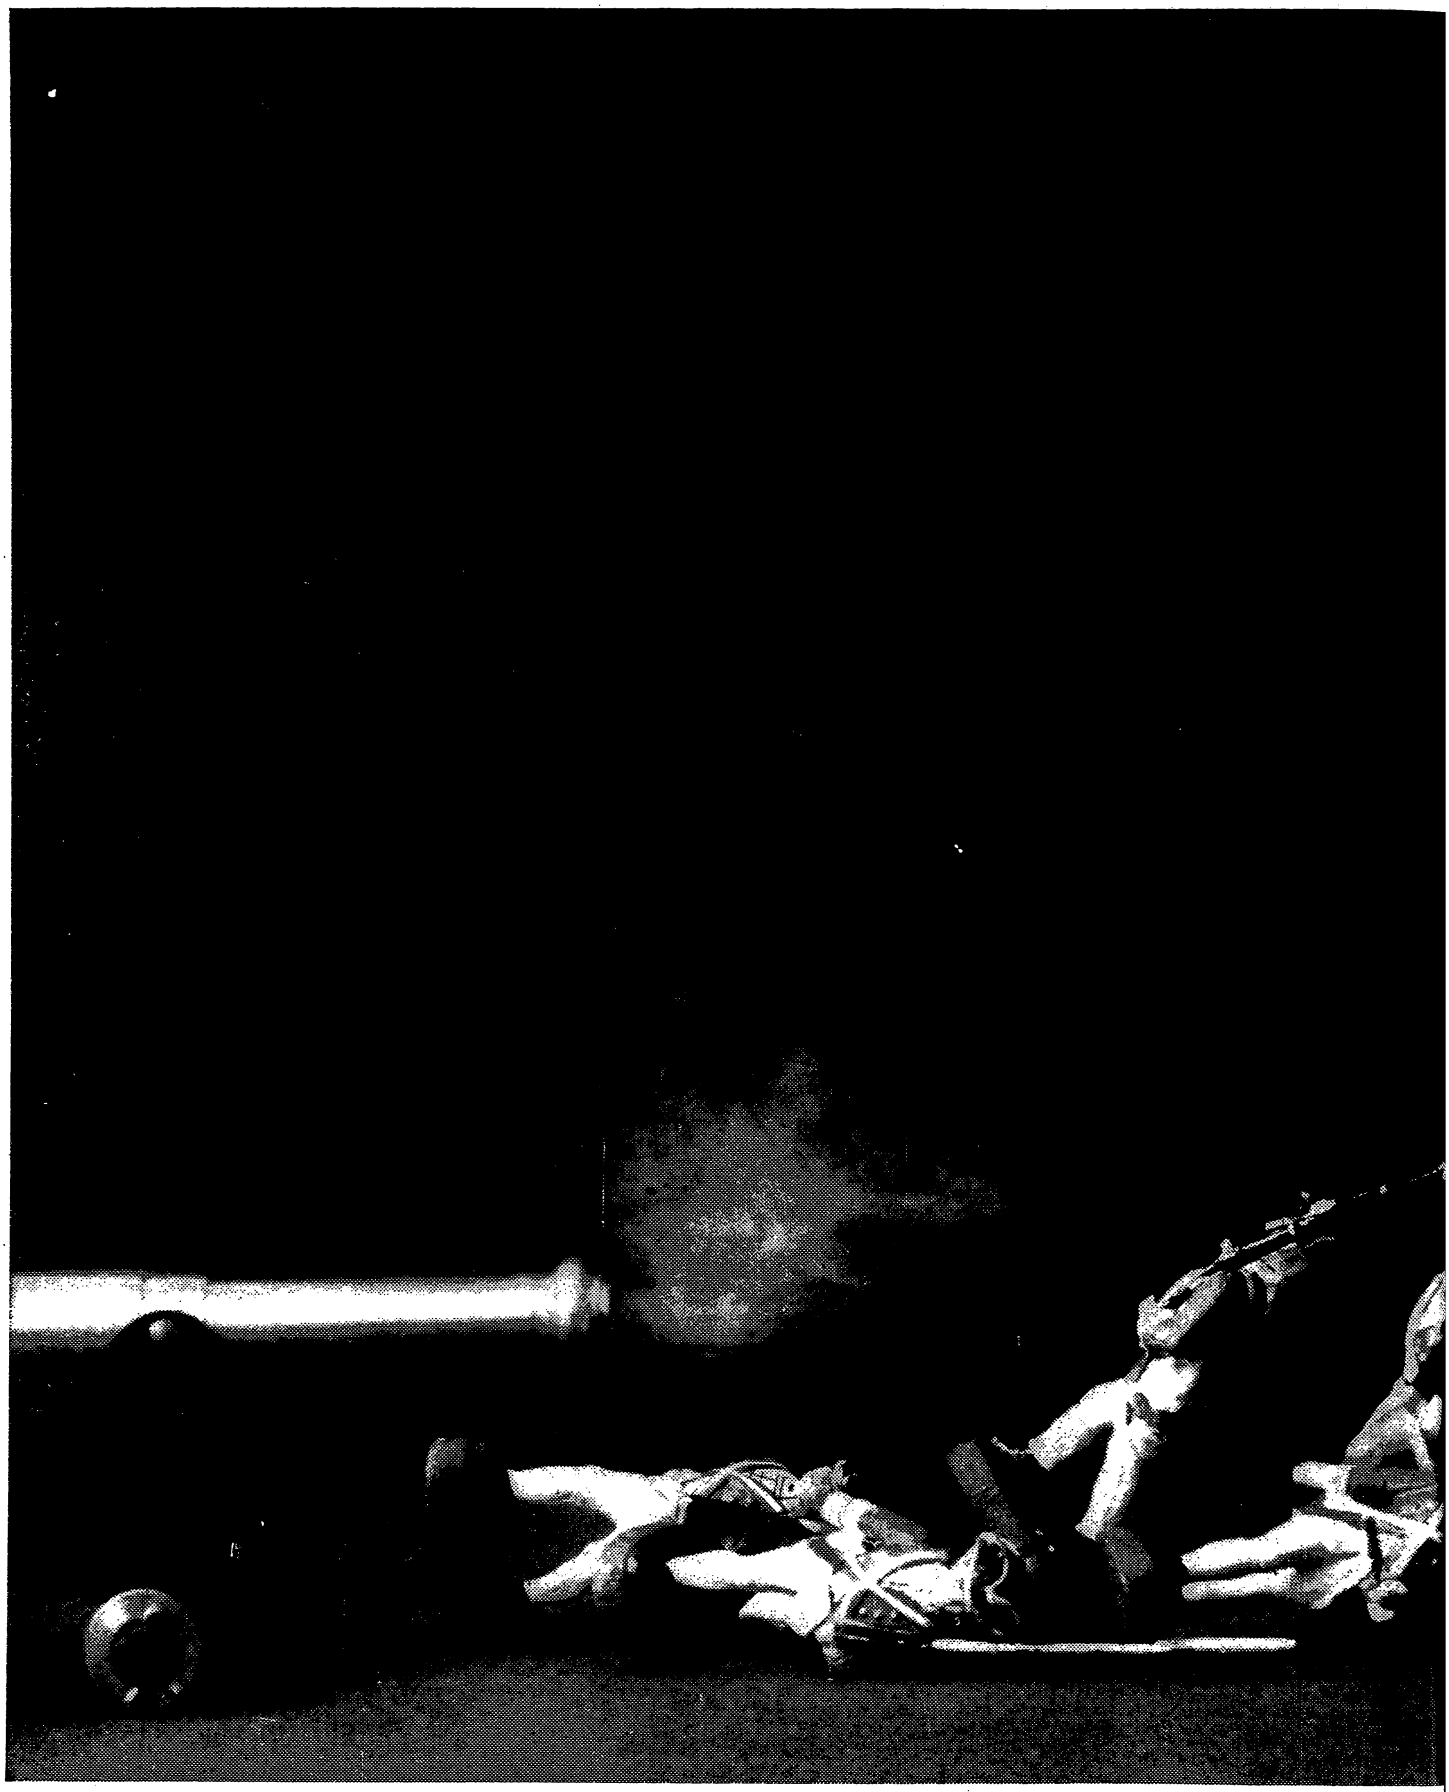
Eight additional markets have purchased the Warner Bros. post-'50 package of 40 pix, bringing the total market count now to 57.

Seven Arts Associated reported the following deals: KWWL-TV, Waterloo-Cedar Rapids, Ia.; KOLO-TV, Reno; WHEN-TV, Syracuse, N.Y.; WINK-TV, Ft. Myers, Fla.; WISH-TV, Indianapolis; KOCO-TV, Oklahoma City; KLBJ, Las Vegas, and KGLH-TV, Billings, Mont.

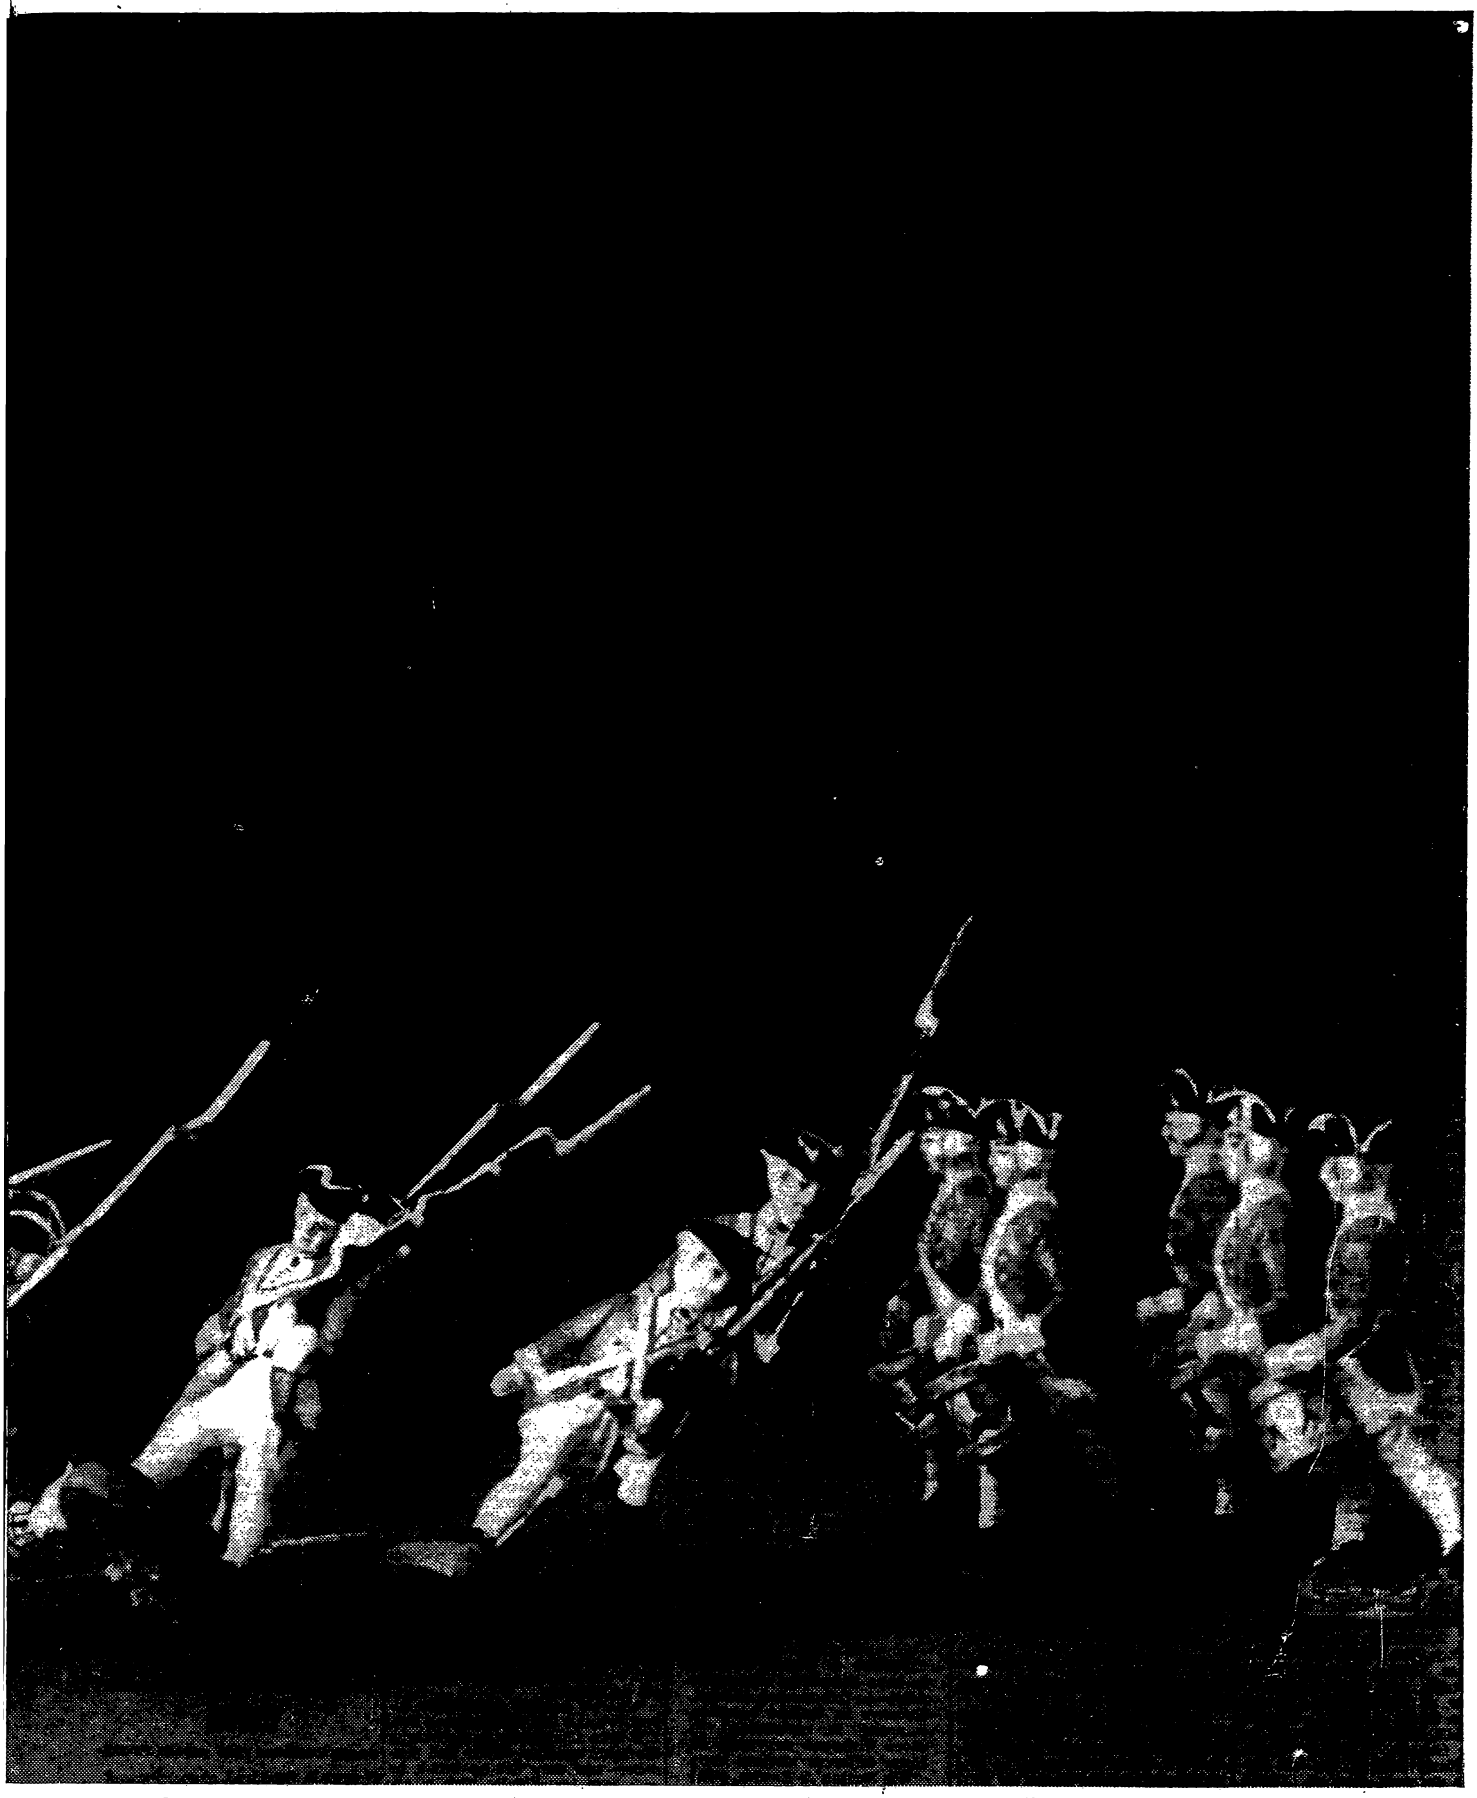
Earlier, Jay Reich Advertising bought the package for its client DeRoy's Jewelers of Johnstown, Pa., for telecasting on WJAC-TV. Jewelry outfit has a regular weekly pix slot on WJAC-TV, "DeRoy's Diamond Theatre." Another deal was inked with KOGO-TV, San Diego.

Package of 40 pix no longer includes the Marilyn Monroe starrer "Prince and the Showgirl," apparently because of some tv clearance problems at this stage. Subbed for "Showgirl" is Alfred Hitchcock's "Dial M for Murder," starring Grace Kelly, Ray Milland and Robert Cuhmings.

The special pix package, which includes such thrillers as "Cosmic Monster," "Crawling Eye," and "Ivan, Son of the White Devil," has been sold to WISH, Indianapolis; WHEN, Syracuse; and CKLW, Windsor-Detroit. Sales ranged from 10 to 21 pix.



there is nothing harder to stop than a trend



And the audience trend this season is to ABC-TV.

How did the industry fare, audience-wise, this season as against last year? How did the individual nets make out?

Compare the figures in the current National Nielsen TV Feb. II-Report* with the similar Nielsen period a year ago—and you have the answer to both questions.

Total U. S. television homes are up 1,700,000—a gain of 4%. But only ABC tops this gain with a healthy 9% boost of its own. The other two nets are behind the industry gain.

In average audience, as the chart charts it, ABC is the only net to show a gain. The other two nets are off.

Trend? What else?

	HOMES DELIVERED (% GAIN OR LOSS OVER 1960)	AVERAGE AUDIENCE (% GAIN OR LOSS ...OVER 1960)
ABC-TV	+9%	+5%
NET Y	+2%	-1%
NET Z	+3%	-1%

ABC Television Network

*Source: Nielsen National TV Report, 2 weeks ending February 19, 1961 vs. similar period 1960. Average Audience 6-11 PM Monday through Sunday. All sponsored programs.

150 CBS Radio Affils Involved In Care & Feeding Of 'In Person'

By BOB CHANDLER

One of the lip-service cliches in the network business is the periodic announcements that affiliates are going to help originate shows for the webs, either contributing pieces or feeds or serving as origination points for "shows on the road."

Well, if some CBS Radio affiliates are somewhat surprised these days, it's because for a change, a network is actually doing just that — calling on its affils for vital contributions to a network show. The program is "In Person," the 20-minute cross-the-board Ron Cochran human interest show, and in the eight and a half months it's been on the air, some 150 of CBS' 206 affiliates have contributed taped interviews for the show.

In fact, the show's producer feels that if it weren't for the affiliates, the show couldn't be done at all, or at least done properly within the original concept. Paul Loewenwarter, the producer, sees "In Person" as gaining its vitality from the fact that it covers all of America: "Sure, we could fill the show with interviews all done right here in New York, but it wouldn't be the kind of show we want," he says.

The kind of show he and Cochran want is a news-feature series, airing nightly at 7:10-7:30 and consisting of five short interviews on tape, with commentary by Cochran. The interviews are basically news-features, but they have an extra dimension, says Loewenwarter, in seeking to reveal something about the interviewee, whether he's a celebrity or unknown. The tapes are made and selected with an eye toward adding a human dimension to the information in each interview, of revealing something about the person interviewed.

Loewenwarter likes to use as an example the difficulty a stringer had in an interview of a six-year-old evangelist in Atlanta. Interview had a flat, bland quality, and when Loewenwarter inquired why, the stringer said that the youngsters father, an ex-carnival barker and obviously the hand behind the youngster's career, kept interrupting. So Loewenwarter told the stringer to do the interview again and use the tape of the father, and a more realistic and lively story was the result.

To get this kind of tape, "In Person" has called on all the network's affiliates, and some 150 have responded. In the average week of 35 interviews, Loewenwarter figures, about 20 different affiliates kick in with tapes. They enjoy participating on the show, like to hear their call letters on the air, and like to be able to see their newsmen make a little money on the side while keeping all the work in the family at the same time.

Naturally, there are some affils which are more news-conscious than others, with larger and hopper staffs, and some affiliate newsmen who've caught on to the show's style. Hence, Loewenwarter has developed a group of regulars of some 50-odd affiliates whom he depends upon heavily. Among the most-used of these are the following:

Ray Townsend at KSL, Salt Lake City, Don Miller and Gordon Sohle at WDAE, Tampa, Pinky Vedakovich, just named program director at WWL, New Orleans; Morgan Smith and KLZ, Denver; Tom Bell, WKNY, Kingston, N. Y.; Keith Gebers, KERG, Eugene, Ore.; Harry Marble, the yet-not-week announcer, now at WGAN, Portland, Me.; Warren Dorenkamp at WHEC, Rochester, N. Y., Tom Bassy at WBNS, Columbus, and Pickie Kellogg, at WKOW, Madison, Wisc.

In all cases, the talent is paid directly. In some the stations are also paid to defer out-of-pocket costs created where union rules require station personnel (usually the newsman on the interview). In addition to affiliates, "In Person" uses five or six stringers (and in one case, a newsman on the NBC station in his city who like the show and want to freelance for it). But most stringers are like Drue Smith, an independent to cover lots of broadcast conventions who covers all of the south for the show and on the strength of her performance has also been picking up assignments on "The World Tonight" for CBS News, or Josh Darsa, who's become a London stringer for CBS News as well.

"In Person" has a staff of about nine, pretty large for a radio show. Besides Loewenwarter and Cochran, who does at least one interview a day himself and writes part of the show, there's Dave Dugan, ex-legman for WCBS, N. Y., and now a fulltime Gotham interviewer for the show, and Hughes Rudd, the show's writer. There's also an assistant to the producer, basically supervising tape editor, a researcher and two fulltime tape technicians.

The care and feeding apparently pays off, since the show's fairly well sponsored. Besides, during the recent CBS Radio Affiliates meeting in N. Y., one affiliate manager got up after a full day of griping and said he wanted to register a vote of thanks for "In Person." And you don't hardly get that kind any more.

Cummings Is SRO, But Lean Pickin's For CBS Thurs.

The SRO sign is up on the new Bob Cummings show, "Fasten Your Seat Belts," with Brown & Williamson cigarets along with Kellogg signed for the ride. Series goes into the Thursday 8:30-9 period ahead of "Defenders" on CBS-TV next fall.

But despite the B&W deal, CBS saw some other Thursday night cigaret business go up in smoke last week. That was the anticipated buy of one-quarter of the hourlong "Defenders" by R. J. Reynolds, which simply didn't materialize. CBS thought it had the Reynolds business in its hip pocket thanks to a recommendation to the client by the William Esty agency. But despite the recommendation, Reynolds nixed the deal, preferring to hold some of its budget back for awhile.

So though Cummings is now SRO, the remainder of CBS' Thursday night schedule is a complete commercial blank, including the 9-10 "Defenders." Web hasn't scheduled a 7:30-8:30 show yet, though it's considering Revue's "Frontier Circus," and "CBS Reports" at 10-11 hasn't drummed up any business for the balance of this season, let alone next.

Cigaret outfit had been mentioned in connection with the Cummings show, though its identity was kept under close wraps. Speculation had centered on Reynolds, in view of its successful five-year association with the first Cummings series, "Love That Bob." But it was Brown & Williamson all along, with its money moving over from Wednesday night.

INSURANCE COIN FOR 'PROJECT 20'

Union Central Life Insurance, which ranks as one of NBC's oldest advertisers, returns to networking after a considerable layoff in order to sponsor two of NBC-TV's "Project 20" stanzas next season.

Union Central bankrolled a skein of historical dramas each week on NBC Radio from 1930 to 1936. Its return is pegged to the Civil War Centennial, with bios of U. S. Grant and Robert E. Lee to be prepared by Don Hyatt, NBC director of special projects. Old Union Central radio show was called "Roses & Drums" and had the distinction (for radio) of being the first ever done by actors in period sets and authentic period costumes, although no one at home could see them.

CBS-TV Pencils In 6 Drama Specials

Six one-hour dramatic specials be sponsored by Westinghouse on CBS-TV next season. Gordon Duff hos been named as exec producer of the series. Duff will be responsible for selecting properties and producers, and will also actively produce some of them himself. No properties have been lined up yet.

Network is budgeting the hours at $150,000. All will be original dramas, though the network will seek some sort of balance in the types of programs to be undertaken. The hour specials haven't been titled yet—best the web has come up with to date is "Playhouse 90 Mins 30." Most of the shows will air in 10-11 p.m. periods.

Gen. Sarnoff Envisions Electronically-Linked Medical Clearing House

A nationwide "medical clearing house," linked electronically with every major hospital and medical school, was recommended last week by Gen. David Sarnoff, chairman of RCA.

"I believe that electronics," Sarnoff said to a closed session of the National Health Council Forum in N. Y., can aid immeasurably by permitting the doctor to hear more through radio, to see more through television, to find information more quickly through computing techniques."

Pointing out that medical knowledge is expanding so quickly that it is outstripping "the storage capacity of any single brain," Sarnoff said computing systems create a way to accumulate knowledge compactly, keep it up to date and transmit it instantaneously.

"Through a blend of electronic computation and communication techniques it would be possible to establish a National Medical Clearing House which could serve as a central repository for all the latest medical information," he said. "A combination of communications circuits," he said, could tie doctors together everywhere.

Keeping Up With TV Awards

It's "awardsville" once more in tv land. The Edison Foundation announced its awards, Long Island U. announced the 13th annual George Polk Memorial awards (journalism, including tv) and, among others, the Alfred I. duPont memorial awards were also announced.

On Monday (20) night at N. Y.'s Waldorf-Astoria, the Edison people presented laurels to CBS, NBC, ABC, Westinghouse Broadcasting, CBC (and to "The Alamo," a feature film, and four children's books). "Twentieth Century," "Lamp Unto My Feet," "Expedition" and the NBC coverage of the politico conventions got the Edison nod, among other items.

Edward P. Morgan, WAVZ, New Haven radio outlet, and station KDKA-TV, Pittsburgh o&o of Westinghouse, won duPont awards, to be presented in Washington Friday (24).

Al Wasserman and Robert Young, for producing, writing and directing NBC-TV's "White Paper," won the Polk award for radio-tv reporting.

Paley Pumps For Better TV

Continued from page 1

day-out merry-go-round of activity. And for all the talk of easing off and enjoying the spoils of years of creative endeavor and labor, he doesn't want it any other way.

But it's basically in the program area that Paley prefers to roam. Is he happy with the state of tv today. He concedes that there's room for vast improvement; that plenty mistakes have been and are being made, by all three networks, but that overall tv is making an honest and sincere effort to entertain and enlighten the American public to the best of its ability.

He has little patience with those who argue that television is merely standing still waiting for some new revolutionary trend to hit it, or that all of tv is bogged down in mediocrity. "Of course there are some bad shows on tv. But these will go off, and better shows will replace them. If the ratings demonstrate that the public at a particular time wants an action or adventure show, then it's our responsibility to make sure that we bring in a superior type of entry.

"It doesn't matter whether it's comedy, action, a variety show or a western. These are the basic staples and will remain so. The trick is to make them good, with a proper balance in programming, and the public will buy it. If it's inferior quality it'll die, and deservedly so."

What particularly disturbs Paley is that occasionally a poor show (for example one committed to an excess of violence) will take hold with the public. "Unfortunately the whole industry takes the rap for it. Unlike the reader of a newspaper, who, if he no longer likes it, will simply throw it aside and switch to another paper, the viewer will castigate the whole of tv for that bad show. The average viewer won't differentiate, as he will with his newspaper.

"There's another regrettable aspect, when a bad show catches fire. It'll have a tendency to discourage the more creative writer and producer, who may not be faring so well with his vehicle. This is extremely unfortunate, for we can never afford to downgrade our sights. But over the long pull—for herein lies the formula for success—it'll be the better show that'll win out."

Paley confessed that his own personal preference was for live shows, but "if you make it good, the average viewer doesn't care whether it's live, film or tape." He's dedicated to the proposition that the networks must control what goes on the air. "Look at our own Thursday night fiasco this season. We made the mistake of allowing a sponsor to decide what should go where. You can bet it'll never happen again."

Similarly he's not at all opposed to the present practice of buying properties on the outside, so long as the network exercises control over the show and its content.

Paley is enthused over the network's strides in the realm of public affairs programming but is somewhat saddened by the audience turnaway, especially when it's a good, vital responsible program. However, he's convinced that ultimately these audiences will grow, if the quality and impact of the shows are maintained. It's for this reason that he has every intention of continuing "CBS Reports" in its prime time next season ("and we also hope to continue 'Twentieth Century' at either Sunday 6 or 6:30 next season, sponsor or no sponsor"). It's Paley's hope, however, that the affiliates will also recognize their responsibility to carry these shows, since it follows that a program's strength is only as good as its station allegiance.

Paley likes the zest, exuberance and enthusiasm being brought to the CBS News domain by Dick Salant and, while taking nothing away from the personality impact of a Dave Brinkley and the upgraded NBC News operation, and recognizing that CBS had perhaps settled into a dangerous state of lethargy, nonetheless pinpointed his own overall setup as still the one to beat.

Paley had three lusty cheers for ex-Gov. LeRoy Collins for his performance to date as president of the NAB, and feels that, if the promise is fulfilled, the responsibility for an improved medium can at long last be tossed back where it rightfully belongs—to the broadcasters themselves and the parent industry organization instead of the networks having to carry the load.

Paley on Pay-TV

As far as CBS board chairman Bill Paley is concerned, feevee as the "show biz of the future" is still a highly problematical thing, with its success or failure depending on how successfully they can program it. In Paley's opinion, the Canada test has thus far demonstrated that new film releases in themselves aren't the answer. And what, Paley wants to know, can pay-tv offer that the present system cannot do as good or better?

However, he's not writing it off by a long shot, with a resultant "fell alert" at CBS. "Frankly, at this point," Paley admits, "I just don't know."

Canadian B'casters

Continued from page 27

weaken the commercial principles of efficient radio broadcasters.

Allison said the measures would affect only two stations, one in Vancouver and one in Toronto, but broadcasters disagreed and said many more would be affected. One station manager from Toronto estimated the loss of revenue to his station alone at $900,000 annually.

Allison said the BBG would also recommend that private stations increase program on the arts, letters and science to at least 5% of their total air time. Further, when each station's license comes up for annual renewal, the station must produce evidence that its Canadian content in programming had increased yearly, he said.

Alberto Culver

Continued from page 27

be worth about $5,500,000 on the season.

Having been a fairly substantial NBC-TV program buyer before this, Culver is going in heavily for ABC-TV hours and may, in one way, been responsible for an ABC decision to keep the Four Star hour, "The Corrupters," in its Friday 10 o'clock time period. Stanza was almost bumped for a half-hour, fully-sponsored stanza, but that deal fell through at just about the time Culver came in with over $6,500,000 to spend at ABC-TV in '61-'62. Besides "Untouchables," where it has a minute a week, the sponsor has minutes in "Corrupters," in "Adventures in Paradise" on Mondays and in the new Sunday "Bus Stop" (affiliates, each the same size commitment as "Untouchables."

Lorillard may put another minute in "Corrupters," which suddenly gives the once shaky telefilm series a one-third sold status.

P&G's Chi News Yen

Chicago, March 21.

Procter & Gamble appears to have gone from soapers to news—in this market, at least. Through its various agencies, company is represented in three different newscasts on three different stations here.

Via Benton & Bowles, P&G has been co-sponsoring the WGN-TV newscast at 10 p.m. four times per week and, effective April 2, will add half sponsorship of the station's Sunday at 10 news. Last week, through Compton and Dancer-Fitzgerald-Sample, it purchased the open half of WBBM-TV's 6 p.m. news with Frank Reynolds, across the board, and on WNBQ it's represented by spots in the 10 p.m. newscasts, wherever there are availabilities. In all the buys, P&G products are located.

At 10, P&G is in effect opposite itself on WGN-TV and WNBQ.

WNTA

Continued from page 31

George D. Stoddard, chancellor and exec v.p. of N. Y. University; and John F. White, proxy of National Education Television and Radio Center.

Station broker Howard Stark, representing educational interests, said that NTA said it would give his bid "serious consideration." Last month, the educational group put in a bid of $4,000,000 which was rejected by NTA.

It's understood that Susskind's $6,000,000 bid included accounts receivable, film commitments and other station assets. Educational group wants the tv equipment for the cash offer.

Both Susskind and Lardau have declined to identify members of their particular groups.

Tele Follow-Up Comment

Ed Sullivan Show

Alan Jay Lerner and Frederick Loewe, whose "My Fair Lady" marked its fifth anni on Broadway last week, were paid a solid tribute on Ed Sullivan's CBS-TV show Sunday night (19). It was a straight musical stanza framed around Lerner & Loewe showtunes in handsome legit-styled setting and sparked by some outstanding talent associated with L&L musicals, past and present.

The only drawback to the show was the device used to introduce Lerner and Loewe to the tv cameras. Seated in an offstage corner next to Sullivan while the latter ran through their show biz biogs and the usual encomiums, neither Lerner nor Loewe appeared too comfortable. However, that was a small detail in an hour of excellent entertainment.

Robert Goulet, from the cast of the current "Camelot," emerged as a new tv star in the making with his looks, his savvy projection and the highgrade quality of his vocalizing. He worked together superbly with Julie Andrews on "Almost Like Being in Love" and soloed with powerful impact on "They Call The Wind Maria," from "Paint Your Wagon."

Miss Andrews also scored with several enchanting numbers, including full-dress versions of "Wouldn't It Be Loverly" and "I Could Have Danced All Night" from "My Fair Lady." From "Camelot," she was paired with Richard Burton in two fine productions of the title song and the clever material number, "What Do The Simple Folk Do." Another standout "My Fair Lady" sequence was contributed by Charles Victor, doing the "With A Little Bit of Luck" song-and-dance routine.

The stanza slowed down somewhat with a number by Manolo Fabregas, the Mexican "Henry Higgins," who delivered in Spanish. A film clip from "Gigi," with Maurice Chevalier and Hermione Gingold doing "I Remember It Well" and a song demonstration by Lerner, with Loewe at the piano, rounded out the show. Herm.

The Play of The Week

"The Wooden Dish," the current cutting on WNTA-TV's "The Play of The Week," is an exasperating play. For the most part it's dull soap opera, often tasteless and gimmicky. There are a few scenes when the play comes alive, but these bright moments are all too scarce.

What it does have—and what makes for the exasperation—is an excellent performance by Henry Hull. The vet, pro actor, plays an irascible old man doomed to a home for the aged. Hull cavorts with zest, humor and insight as he battles with his son and daughter-in-law for a place in their home. He renders more to the role than given him by author Edmund Morris.

Martha Scott as the daughter-in-law brought all the drab dreariness to her role. Lenny Chapman, as the lustful boarder, was okay in an unattractive role. Joseph Warren was pretty dense as the husband, unaware of his wife's flirtation with the boarder. Ellen Geer and George Mathews filled out the cast of the terribly troubled family.

Playwright Morris' characters wallowed in misery and guilt. Licked the lines and imagery which make for a good play. Horo.

Bell Telephone Hour

Ambition should be exec producer Barry Wood's middle name. He's tried a lot of different things on this Friday NBC-TV series, some of them highly intricate, some successful and some not, but never unsuccessful for want of trying. Last week, Friday (17), "Bell Telephone Hour" attempted a study of "music, past and present" based on Shakespearean drama. It suffered from the complexities of overproduction, which led to organized confusion.

Patrice Munsel and Alfred Drake were competent (save for an occasional shrillness in the lady's pitch) in reciting music from contemporary hits based on Shakespeare, like "Kiss Me Kate" and "The Boys From Syracuse." A strong soprano, an English woman named Joan Sutherland, did well to magnificently on operatic pieces built from Shakespeare, and Jacques D'Amboise and Violette Verdy were lithe and attractive in similarly inspired ballet sequences. Others in the large musical cast were Barbara Meister, Anita Darrian, Allesandro Giannini, Polly Rowles, Freda Holloway, and Thomas Andrew, whose performances were of varying degrees of interest and proficiency.

Wood split his hour into four parts, any two of which might still have been too many. Building his music around brief excerpts by John Gielgud from Shakespeare's prose (an interesting but confusing touch), Wood presented often indistinctive categories like the theatricalness of Shakespeare, his chief heroines, his love stories and sonzs written for Shakespeare plays. Art.

Family Classics

Rudyard Kipling's "The Light That Failed" proved to be an interesting, and often engrossing teleplay. Rendered Thursday (16) night on CBS-TV, the hour outing was one of the better "Family Classics" excursions.

There are things that date Kipling, his use of melter forms which have become clichés, his dependence on coincidence as a story contrivance, his Victorian morality, and what appears to be a certain never-grow-up romanticism. Yet, for all that, he remains an excellent story teller and the skillful adaptation of Walter Bernstein caught the temper and punch of the Kipling novel. Bernstein's vidversion had color, adept characterizations and pace. "The Light That Failed" should be used to light up the tv screen again in replays.

As the lead, Richard Basehart gave a sterling performance as the romantic artist ruined by fate and lack of love. Lois Nettleton, as the girl wooed by Basehart, had some trouble with her part. She was too shrill at times, her coldness really never explained or artistically conveyed, although the blame for her rendition of the role should be shared by Kipling and Bernstein as some of the faults were in the script.

Eric Berry was fine as the bachelor newspaperman constantly going off to the wars. Helena de Crespo, as the tart who played a pivotal role in Basehart's life, carried off her performance with force, bite and humor. Miss de Crespo was an actress in full command of her role. The supporting cast, which included Edward Atienza and George Turner, was quite competent.

When the play opened, it looked as if the fortress locale had been made of paper mache. Once the setting switched to more civilized surroundings, which was soon, the production values shone. The small screen is indeed kinder to vidtaped versions of room interiors than fortresses.

Marc Daniels directed in fine style and Jacqueline Babbin produced. Horo.

Young People's Concert

Leonard Bernstein is turning into a longhair talent scout. For the second consecutive year he relinquished the spotlight of his "Young People's Concert" to showcase youthful performers. It serves to give the tyros wide exposure and it also emerges as an enjoyable musical hour.

Uncorked for the third of a series of four "Young People's Concert" on CBS-TV Sunday afternoon (19) were a 16-year old cellist, Lynn Harrell; a 16-year old pianist, Jung Ja Kim, and a 22-year old singer, Veronia Tyler. The podium was also taken over by youthful conductors for each of the solo stints and they came off in top fashion. The baton wielders were Elyakum Shapira, Russell Stanger and Gregory Millar.

Harrell did a masterful job on a Dvorak concerto. Miss Kim gave a captivating romantic touch to a Chopin concerto and Miss Tyler brought vocal excitement to arias from Puccini and Menotti.

Bernstein returned for the closing segment to lead the N.Y. Philharmonic in Benjamin Britten's "Young Person's Guide to the Orchestra." This was heightened by a bright narration delivered by 12-year old Henry Chapin.

The show was taped at N.Y.'s

(Continued on page 50)

KIDS ARE FUNNY
(Chevy Show)
With Art Linkletter, Vic Damone, Eddie Albert, Pat Harrington Jr., Jane Wyatt, The Little Angels, others
Producer: John Guedel
Director: Bob Henry
Writers: Glenn Wheaton, Elroy Schwartz, Guedel
60 Mins., Sun. (19), 9 p.m.
CHEVROLET
NBC-TV (film)
(Campbell-Ewald)

Kids are funny, as Art Linkletter has capably demonstrated from time to time on his daytime and syndicated film shows. Trouble is, he failed to make the point stick on this nighttime filler between Dinah Shore outings on the Sunday Chevy hour. "Kids Are Funny" was a dull, awkward piece, embarrassing for the performers and painful for the audience.

Entire affair was set in the background of a party, with the guests discussing the foibles of kids with Linkletter, and the show then cutting to illustrations of the same in the form of sketches, interviews and stunts. Without exception, they all were either corny, preposterous or in bad taste; moreover, they simply weren't funny. The party conversation was awkward, as well, and Linkletter's preachments to ignore the problems of the younger generation in favor of their accomplishments failed to make much sense. Damone got in the only legitimate entertainment of the evening with a couple of songs. Chan.

THE STORY OF ST. PATRICK
With Myron McCormick, narrator; St. Kilian's Boys' Choir
Writer-Producer: Mel Baily
Director: Arthur Forrest
60 Mins.; Thurs., 8 p.m.
SCHAEFER BREWING CO.
WNEW-TV, N. Y. (tape)
(BBDO)

Metropolitan Broadcasting Corp. came up with an hour-long tribute to Ireland's patron saint Thursday (16) that unquestionably warmed the hearts of those viewers who trace their ancestry to the ould sod. But for others whose interest was more or less academic, "The Story of St. Patrick" emerged as an earnest, though unexciting documentary.

Who was Patrick—the saint, the legend? The answer was inexorably spelled out by producer Mel Bailey's script and Myron McCormick's commentary. Reciting from a lectern, McCormick narrated the accomplishments of St. Patrick from his birth in 375 A. D. to his death around 100 years later.

St. Patrick's dedication in converting the Irish barbarians to Christianity, in driving the snakes out of Ireland and his association with the country's famed shamrock were all duly noted by McCormick. Visual flavor was provided by copious scenes of New York's annual St. Patrick's Day Parade, old prints and other illustrative lore.

The St. Kilian's Boys Choir supplied a reverent background to McCormick's relentless commentary. Other sound effects helped give the taped documentary an authoritative ring. But while the program, as it was presented, no doubt would wow any Hibernian society it required better pictorial movement, a more interesting approach and a more solid production gloss to capture the general audience.

F. & M. Schaefer Brewing Co., which picked up the tab on Thursday's (16) one-shot, commendably restricted its commercials to the program's start and conclusion. The plugs were ably handled by John Feeney whose touch of brogue was certainly in keeping with the production's overall atmosphere. Gilb.

KPRC'S FREE-FOR-ALL POLITICAL TELETHON

Houston, March 21.

KPRC-TV has offered all 71 candidates for Lyndon Johnson's former Senate seat four minutes of free airtime apiece on April 1. Station says that the program will run at least two hours or as much as five hours, depending on the number of acceptances for the political telethon.

Previously, such programs have been for city council and school board races, but the largest list of candidates up till now was eight.

KPRC intends presenting the candidates for national office to the voters of South Texas as their names appear on the ballot.

THE BING CROSBY SHOW
With Maurice Chevalier, Carol Lawrence, Aldo Monaco, Hugh Lambert, others; Nelson Riddle Orch
Producer-Director: William O. Harbach
Writers: Bill Morrow, George Foster, Saul Ilson
60 Mins., Mon. (20), 9:30 p.m.
OLDSMOBILE
ABC-TV (tape)
(D. P. Brother)

Bing Crosby keeps topping himself. His latest semi-annual ABC-TV romp for Oldsmobile, with Maurice Chevalier as his singing partner and Carol Lawrence as an added starter, was a zestful, fast-moving hour with wit, warmth and good humor.

Crosby and Chevalier made a fine team, not so much in their vical meshing as in their wonderfully warm reactions to each other. And since producer-director Bill Harbach and his three writers played the hour as a sort of sly "fun with music" show, the Crosby-Chevalier pairing played off incandescently.

The twosome got their best licks in during a pair of medleys, one pegged on femme names in a "little black book" sequence of memorabilia which gave them a crack at "Louisa," "Mimi," "Gigi," "Ida," "Candy" and several more, done with appropriate tongue in cheek and cameraderie, and a second more sentimental turn pegged to "I'm Glad I'm Not Young Anymore" and "Wish I Were in Love Again." Both were topflight in performance and in effect.

Miss Lawrence got her licks in vocally and dancewise. Her thesping solo, a swing version of "Sing Sing Sing" and "Big Noise from Winetka," dance opposite Hugh Lambert and two other men, made up in exciting execution what it lacked in originality on the choreographic side. And her turn with Crosby, a cute piece of fluff titled "Flattery Charges My Battery," was pure fun Monaco is a Crosby discovery, an Italian tenor with a remarkable control of his vocal nuances plus lots of lung power.

Other high points of the show were Chevalier's solos on "Life Is Just a Bowl of Cherries" and "Pigalle" and Crosby & Chevalier with a femme chorus on the jazziest version of "Alouette" yet. Nelson Riddle orch backed with verve and distinction. Chan.

PASSOVER FESTIVAL
With Theodore Bikel, The Weavers
Producer: Mitchell Grayson
60 Mins., Mon., March 20, 7:30 p.m.
ROKEACH FOODS
WNTA-TV, N. Y. (tape)
(Smith-Greenland)

Israeli folk singer and actor Theodore Bikel and the four Weavers (sans lead singer Pete Seeger) launched WNTA-TV's week long Passover Festival, and apparently the show didn't get into the holiday spirit soon enough for some audience tastes.

At the midway point, WNTA switchboard had received a number of calls complaining that the folk song fest just wasn't Jewish. But, as though on cue, Bikel and the Weavers got down to the Passover music after the middle break.

No doubt the variety of The Weavers' folk music in the early part of the show was meant to reintroduce them via their disk clicks of the past. With Bikel, group sang "Wimoweh," "Kisses Sweeter Than Wine" and "Tzena, Tzena." Other bits off the holiday track included "Green Sleeves," in a harmonica solo by Bikel, and "Rising of the Moon."

Working before a live aud, the Weavers sounded great, although the strong Seeger lead (he's concerting on his own) was missed. Bikel, as usual, exhibited such an overflow of enthusiasm for his stint as to leave the aud (live and at home, too, no doubt), slightly abashed. He's a more deft personality when he's portraying somebody else, like a southern sheriff ("The Defiant Ones") or a prison psychologist ("I Want to Live"). He was, however, expert in the folk-song and guitar segs.

Rokeach commercials were handled by Molly Picon, first lady of the Yiddish theatre, and she came on as though she really believed in the delicacies she was pitching.

Festival continues through the week with a long list of talent, including Leonard Bernstein, Duke Ellington, Lee Remick, Henry Fonda, Sam Jaffe, Sam Levene, Zero Mostel, Otto Preminger and others. Bill.

24 HOURS IN A WOMAN'S LIFE
With Ingrid Bergman, Rip Torn, Lili Darvis, John Williams, Helena De Crespo, Jerry Orbach, others
Exec Producer: Lars Schmidt
Producer: Gordon Duff
Director: Silvio Narizzano
Adaptation: John Mortimer
90 Mins.; Mon. (20), 9 p.m.
REVLON
CBS-TV, from N. Y. (tape)
(Grey)

It's unfortunate that CBS TV chose to subject Ingrid Bergman to such scripting torment as was to be found in Stefan Zweig's "Twenty Four Hours In a Woman's Life." As presented on the network Monday night (20), it merely served to demonstrate that when television decides to take a leaf out of the Hollywood archives, it can commit extravagant and grandiose blunders with equal facility and disaster. Certainly this naired-in-mawkishness John Mortimer adaptation of the Zweig trifle whatever the author's original intent—was strictly for the B's.

The Madison Ave. scuttlebut is that once the scrapped tape, the retakes and the struck sets were toted up, the initially projected $275,000 sponsor tab perilously approached the half-million production mark. The many sets and trappings, costuming and scenes, as lavish and opulent as anything seen on tv, easily betrayed such foolish—foolish considering the story values—investiture. It takes a bit of doing and video razzle-dazzle to achieve within tv studio confines a dimension and scope more commonly expected from motion picture production. All this "Twenty Four Hours" had, plus perhaps the most gifted, videogenic personality extant in Miss Bergman.

But for what? It's conceivable that even the daytime soap opera impresarios would think twice before inflicting such old-hat tempoed corn pone on the viewer. As with the era and the mood depicted, and as with both the continuity and the rhythm, it was vintaged to a better forgotten day when Bertha Kalisch was still playing "The Kreutzer Sonata."

The stereotyped cliches were in abundance in the unfolding of this ebbing-from-joy-to-tragedy Zweig trifle. Miss Bergman is a bereaved widow trying to escape her sorrow in travelling. At Monte Carlo she meets a desperate young gambler, rescues him from suicide (better she hadn't), and all within the span of 24 hours falls in love, tries to change him and fails.

The story—told in flashback by an aged Miss Bergman—starts and ends with her relating this dramatic episode in her life to her granddaughter in order to save her from an unhappy marriage.

Thus the dominant Zweig theme concerned the inevitability of destiny. Had it been pinpointed with restraint and plausibility there might have been some excuse for this otherwise tedious exercise.

Miss Bergman's beauty was at times breath-taking. She had style, warmth and class, all of which only served to compound the embarrassment. Rip Torn tried in vain to alternately capture the incorrigible weakness of the character and the youth and charm that would make a woman like Bergman fall for him. Rose.

PLANET ICE
With Barbara Wagner, Bob Paul, Mary Lynn Shepherd, Gordon Crossland, Peter Mews, Paul Krigland, Jack Duffy, Paul Elsom, Muri Burbidge, Samuel Hersenhoren Orch (16), Cina Silvi Choristers (8), Skating Ensemble (16)
Producer-Director-Writer: Don Hudson
60 Mins.; Sun., 9 p.m.
TAPPAN-GURNEY
CBC-TV, from Toronto
(Ferguson-Marra)

In this spectacle, Don Hudson not only created a musical comedy on skates but talked the Wagner-Paul team into starring in the show during the latter's three-day holiday in Toronto. Hudson also induced teachers of figure-skating who had previously appeared in the Ice Capades and the Ice Follies to leave their schools for a swift 12-day rehearsal and production for the one-hour show. He finally videotaped "Planet Ice" at Toronto's Arena during latter part of December for full treatment via the Canadian Broadcasting Corp's tv web.

This show marked the first professional appearance on ice of Bar-

(Continued on page 50)

The Way It Really Was

In describing "Project 20's" forthcoming "The Real West," producer-director Don Hyatt was saying that most of us over 35 would be surprised to learn that many a fabled Westerner was still around when we were born.

Then Hyatt delivered a real block-buster of a digression—the sort of statement a listener instinctively knows he'll remember for the rest of his life.

"To see how close we are to all our history," he suggested, "you might try this one on for size: The last veterans of the Revolutionary War could have dandled our infant grandfathers!"

Don't bother reaching for pencil and pad; the arithmetic checks out fine. If the image is a startling one, it also serves to crystallize "Project 20's" most vital function—illuminating the relationship between past and present.

Next week the series will really be outdoing itself, for it will be presenting full-hour programs on successive nights. Tuesday evening's "The Story of Will Rogers" will be followed by Wednesday night's "The Real West." Aside from the film content (much of it shot for just these presentations), both shows will make abundant use of the now-familiar still-pictures-in-motion technique which "Project 20" first used so successfully in "Meet Mr. Lincoln."

Viewers should be warned, we suppose, that any resemblance between "The Real West" and the glamorized cowboy epics they've been accustomed to watching over the years is impossible. As a serious scholar of that 1849-1900 span in our prairie history, script-writer Phil Reisman, Jr., has had no qualms at all about exposing some of the more flagrant myths about that era.

TO PUT IT BLUNTLY, contends Reisman, even the best of the gunfighters were bums—just plain ne'er-do-wells whose heroism was invented and perpetuated by dime novelists and other professional yarn-spinners. The real builders of the West have gone unsung.

What's more, most of the tales about the shooting prowess of those days should be taken with a pound of buckshot. Wild Bill Hickok, for example, was supposed to be able to hit a dime at 50 paces, but modern experiments have shown such a stunt to have been impossible with the guns and ammunition available in the 1870's.

Even the amount of gunplay in that era, adds Reisman, has been exaggerated 'way out of proportion. Between 1870 and 1890, the figures show, the combined total of shooting fatalities in 13 of the West's most ornery communities averaged less than 18 per year. Shucks, that's hardly one good night's work on "The Nonesuchables."

"The Real West" (narrated, incidentally, by an honest-to-goodness Westerner named Gary Cooper) will be showing us the way it actually was—just as the "Project 20" of the night before (with commentary delivered by Bob Hope) will examine some of the qualities that made Will Rogers America's most beloved humorist.

For the analysis-by-camera of the Oklahoman who said, "I don't make jokes—I just watch the government and report the facts," Don Hyatt's "Project 20" staff will be using still shots; sequences from Rogers' Hollywood movies; and brand-new footage made at such places as the old Rogers homestead in Oologah and the family ranch in Santa Monica.

We'll be given a look-see at such milestones in Will's career as his roping days with the Wild West shows; his performances in "The Follies" ("Isn't it sad to think that in 20 years, all these beautiful creatures will be five years older?"); and his emergence as the nation's foremost political satirist ("Mr. Coolidge was just the man we needed. He didn't do nothin'. But that's what we wanted done").

The thoughtful, affectionate script by Richard Hanser and Rod Reed will be taking us right from the great humorist's beginnings to the world's mourning of his death in an Alaskan air crash in 1935. Among the more celebrated assessments of the charm that endeared Will to the multitudes was Lady Astor's touching eulogy: "He wasn't being funny. He was funny."

EARLIER THIS SEASON, Hyatt and his talented crew brought viewers "Those Ragtime Years," "The Coming of Christ" and a 90-minute version of "Victory at Sea."

If he had deliberately set out to re-confirm his contention that quality shows can draw huge ratings, Hyatt couldn't have come up with better proof. "The Coming of Christ" attracted the largest audience ever for a half-hour public affairs program. One week later, the "Victory at Sea" special drew a record audience for a public affairs show of any length.

In a way, it was only fitting that "Victory at Sea" should have established that mark, for the original 26-part chronicle of our Navy's role in World War II was "Project 20's" very first venture. Produced nine years ago by the late Henry (Pete) Salomon in association with Bob Sarnoff —now NBC's board chairman—the series is considered by many to be the finest documentary ever fashioned in any medium.

The "Victory at Sea" stamp should be quite evident in next week's two shows. Hyatt and Hanser were associates in that first project; and Robert Russell Bennett, who orchestrated Richard Rodgers' great background music for the naval story, has composed and arranged the score for both of next week's programs.

Hyatt is not only the producer-director for "Project 20"; he also heads NBC's over-all "Special Projects." On his agenda at the moment are such series as "The World of_____" (close-ups of famous living personalities); the resumption of "Wisdom" (in-depth interviews with leading world figures); and programs like "Music of the 30's" and "The Beauty of Woman."

If there's any single key to "Project 20's" achievements (among them "The Jazz Age," "Nightmare in Red" and "Mark Twain's America") it's the artistry with which its pictures mesh with the music and narration. Perhaps there was no more dramatic example of this than the final moments of "The Twisted Cross," an unforgettable chronicle of Adolf Hitler's rise and fall.

"If you seek his monument," the narrator concluded, "look around." Backed by Bennett's dirge-like accompaniment, the camera panned across the bombed-out city of Berlin, a once-bustling metropolis that now lay in ruins. It was a grim epitaph whose grotesque lesson fairly shrieked from the screen.

VARIETY - ARB SYNDICATION CHART

VARIETY's weekly tabulation based on ratings furnished by American Research Bureau, highlights the top ten network shows on a local level and offers a rating study in depth of the top ten syndicated shows in the same particular market. This week ten different markets are covered.

In the syndicated program listings of the top ten shows, rating data such as the average share of audience, coupled with data as to time and day of telecasting competitive programming in the particular slot, etc., is furnished. Reason for detailing an exact picture of the rating performance of syndicated shows is to reflect the true rating strength of particular series. Various branches of the industry, ranging from media buyers to local stations and/or advertisers to syndicators will find the charts valuable.

Over the course of a year, ARB will tabulate a minimum of 247 markets. The results of that tabulation will be found weekly in VARIETY. Coupled with the rating performance of the top ten network shows on the local level, the VARIETY-ARB charts are designed to reflect the rating tastes of virtually every tv market in the U. S.

(*) ARB's November, 1960 survey covered a two week period. Syndicated shows sharing one of the two weeks with an alternating or special program could not be properly judged for comparative performance. Therefore, November data will be limited to those syndicated shows which played both weeks.

RALEIGH—DURHAM

STATIONS: WRAL, WTVD. *SURVEY DATES: NOVEMBER 10-23, 1960.

TOP TEN NETWORK SHOWS RK. PROGRAM—DAY—TIME	STA.	AV. RTG
1. Wagon Train (Wed. 7:30-8:30)	WRAL	50
2. Price Is Right (Wed. 8.30-9:00)	WRAL	42
3. Perry Como (Wed. 9:00-10:00)	WRAL	40
4. Rawhide (Fri. 7:30-8:30)	WTVD	39
5. Chevy Show (Sun. 9:00-10:00)	WRAL	37
6. Route 66 (Fri. 8:30-9:30)	WTVD	35
7. Ernie Ford (Thurs. 9:30-10:00)	WRAL	34
7. Hawaiian Eye (Sun. 7:00-8:00)	WTVD	34
8. Bat Masterson (Thurs 8:30-9:00)	WRAL	31
8. Untouchables (Mon. 9.00-10:00)	WRAL	31

TOP SYNDICATED PROGRAMS RK. PROGRAM—DAY—TIME	STA.	DISTRIB.	AV. RTG.	AV. SH.
1. Death Valley Days (Wed. 7:00)	WRAL	U.S. Borax	25	57
2. Manhunt (Sat. 10:30)	WTVD	Screen Gems	24	75
3. Lock-Up (Tues. 7:00)	WRAL	Ziv-UA	19	44
3. Tombstone Territory (Thurs. 7:00)	WRAL	Ziv-UA	19	49
4. Rescue 8 (Mon. 7:00)	WRAL	Screen Gems	16	34
5. U.S. Marshal (Fri. 7:00)	WTVD	NTA	15	36
6. Sea Hunt (Fri. 8:30)	WRAL	Ziv-UA	14	26
7. The Visitor (Thurs. 10:30)	WRAL	CNP	8	31
8. Casey Jones (Sat. 8:00 a.m.)	WTVD	Screen Gems	6	67
8. Jet Jackson (Sat. 8:30 a.m.)	WTVD	Screen Gems	6	67

TOP COMPETITION PROGRAM	STA.	AV. RTG.
Rebel	WTVD	16
Fight of The Week	WRAL	7
Make That Spare	WRAL	4
Adv. In Paradise	WTVD	22
Wyatt Earp	WTVD	16
Pete & Gladys	WTVD	25
Real McCoys	WRAL	21
Route 66	WTVD	35
Detectives	WTVD	14
Cartoon Carnival	WRAL	2
Cartoon Carnival	WRAL	2

PORTLAND, OREGON

STATIONS: KOIN, KGW, KPTV. *SURVEY DATES: NOVEMBER 10-23, 1960.

1. Disney Presents (Sun. 6:30-7:30)	KPTV	34
1. Have Gun, Will Travel (Sat. 9:30-10)	KOIN	34
2. Donna Reed (Thurs. 8:00-8:30)	KPTV	32
2. Flintstones (Fri. 8.30-9:00)	KPTV	32
2. Real McCoys (Thurs. 8:30-9:00)	KPTV	32
2. 77 Sunset Strip (Fri. 9:00-10:00)	KPTV	32
3. Maverick (Sun. 7:30-8:30)	KPTV	31
3. Wagon Train (Wed. 7:30-8:30)	KGW	31
4. Perry Mason (Sat. 7:30-8:30)	KOIN	30
4. Red Skelton (Tues. 9:30-10:00)	KOIN	30
4. Untouchables (Thurs. 9:30-10:30)	KPTV	30

1. Huckleberry Hound (Thurs. 6:30)	KGW	Screen Gems	29	56
2. Sea Hunt (Tues. 7:00)	KGW	Ziv-UA	28	57
3. Highway Patrol (Wed. 6:30)	KOIN	Ziv-UA	21	44
3. Quick Draw McGraw (Mon. 6:30)	KGW	Screen Gems	21	42
3. Woody Woodpecker (Tues. 6:30)	KGW	Kellogg	21	47
4. Death Valley Days (Sat. 10:30)	KOIN	U.S. Borax	20	43
5. Best of Post (Sat. 7:00)	KGW	ITC	19	37
5. Blue Angels (Fri. 7:00)	KGW	CNP	19	43
6. Manhunt (Thurs. 7:00)	KGW	Screen Gems	18	43
6. Two Faces West (Mon. 7:00)	KGW	Screen Gems	18	37

New Horizons	KOIN	12
Interpol	KOIN	13
Ivanhoe	KGW	15
Marry A Millionaire	KOIN	15
News Central-Weather	KPTV	15
Californians	KOIN	15
Roaring 20's	KPTV	24
Fight of Week	KPTV	23
Award Theatre	KOIN	14
Treasure	KPTV	12
Adventure Tomorrow	KOIN	12
Jim Backus Show	KOIN	16
Silent Service	KPTV	16

ROCKFORD, ILL.

STATIONS: WREX, WTVO. *SURVEY DATES: NOVEMBER 10-23, 1960.

1. Gunsmoke (Sat. 9:00-9.30)	WREX	55
2. 77 Sunset Strip (Fri. 8:00-9:00)	WREX	48
3. Have Gun, Will Travel (Sat. 9:30-10)	WREX	47
4. Danny Thomas (Mon. 8:00-8:30)	WREX	45
5. Adv. In Paradise (Mon. 8:30-9:30)	WREX	41
5. Garry Moore (Tues. 9:00-10:00)	WREX	41
5. Lawrence Welk (Sat. 8:00-9:00)	WREX	41
6. Chevy Show (Sun. 8:00-9:00)	WTVO	40
6. Lawman (Sun. 7:30-8:00)	WREX	40
6. Wagon Train (Wed. 6.30-7:30)	WTVO	40

1. Sea Hunt (Sat. 10.00)	WREX	Ziv-UA	34	69
2. Coronado 9 (Thurs. 9:30)	WREX	MCA	24	52
3. U.S. Marshal (Fri. 7:00)	WREX	NTA	23	46
4. Grand Jury (Thurs. 9:30)	WTVO	NTA	20	43
4. Phil Silvers (Sat. 8:30)	WTVO	CBS	20	30
5. Cannonball (Fri. 10:30)	WREX	ITC	16	44
6. Science Fiction (Sat. 5:00)	WREX	Ziv-UA	11	58
7. Tightrope (Sun. 10:30)	WTVO	Screen Gems	9	33
8. Popeye (Sat. 11:00 a.m.)	WTVO	UAA	4	15

Tab Hunter	WTVO	14
Grand Jury	WTVO	20
Rawhide	WTVO	25
Coronado 9	WREX	24
Lawrence Welk	WREX	45
Jack Paar	WTVO	19
Hi Fi Club; F. Gordon	WTVO	6
Candid Camera	WREX	19
Sky King	WREX	23

SAGINAW-BAY CITY-FLINT

STATIONS: WNEM, WJRT, WKNX. *SURVEY DATES: NOVEMBER 10-23, 1960.

1. Wagon Train (Wed. 7:30-8:30)	WNEM	44
2. 77 Sunset Strip (Fri. 9:00-10:00)	WJRT	42
3. Untouchables (Thurs. 9:30-10:30)	WJRT	37
4. Flintstones (Fri. 8:30-9:00)	WJRT	34
5. My Three Sons (Thurs. 9:00-9:30)	WJRT	31
6. Real McCoys (Thurs. 8:30-9:00)	WJRT	30
7. Adv. In Paradise (Mon. 9:30-10:30)	WJRT	29
7. Rebel (Sun. 9:00-9:30)	WJRT	29
8. Bugs Bunny (Tues. 6:30-7:00)	WJRT	28
8. Donna Reed (Thurs. 8:00-8:30)	WJRT	28
8. Detectives (Fri. 10:00-10:30)	WJRT	28
8. Disney Presents (Fri. 6:30-7:30)	WJRT	28
8. Lawman (Sun. 8:30-9:00)	WJRT	28
8. Maverick (Sun. 7:30-8:30)	WJRT	28
8. Surfside 6 (Mon. 8:30-9:30)	WJRT	28

1. Bold Journey (Sat. 7:00)	WNEM	Banner	30	64
2. Lock-Up (Fri. 10:30)	WJRT	Ziv-UA	22	51
2. Three Stooges (Mon.-Fri. 6:00) (Sat. 9:15)	WJRT	Screen Gems	22	51
3. Death Valley Days (Tues. 7.00)	WNEM	U.S. Borax	21	36
3. Vikings (Fri. 7.30)	WJRT	Ziv-UA	21	39
3. Whirlybirds (Thurs 6:30)	WJRT	CBS	21	44
4. Deputy Dawg (Mon. 6:30)	WJRT	CBS	20	41
5. Navy Log (Wed. 7:00)	WJRT	CBS	19	40
6. Coronado 9 (Wed. 7:00)	WNEM	MCA	17	35
7. Sea Hunt (Sun. 10:30)	WNEM	Ziv-UA	15	37

Deadline	WJRT	7
Michael Shayne	WNEM	8
News: Weather	WNEM	12
Highway Patrol	WNEM	14
Interpol	WNEM	12
Learn To Draw	WNEM	7
Roy Rogers	WNEM	8
Playhouse: Expedition	WJRT	14
Dan Racen	WNEM	10
Interpol	WNEM	12
Highway Patrol	WNEM	14
Huntley-Brinkley	WNEM	19
Coronado 9	WNEM	17
Navy Log	WJRT	19
Aftermath: Mandate	WJRT	6
Edit. Weather: Belafonte	WKNX	6

SEATTLE—TACOMA

STATIONS: KOMO, KING, KIRO, KTVW. *SURVEY DATES: NOVEMBER 10-23, 1960.

1. Real McCoys (Thurs. 8:30-9:00)	KOMO	50
2. Donna Reed (Thurs. 8:00-8:30)	KOMO	45
3. 77 Sunset Strip (Fri. 9:00-10:00)	KOMO	42
4. Wagon Train (Wed. 7:30-8:30)	KING	41
5. My Three Sons (Thurs. 9:00-9:30)	KOMO	40
6. Cheyenne (Mon. 7:30-8:30)	KOMO	39
7. Guestward Ho (Thurs. 7:30-8:00)	KOMO	37
7. Untouchables (Thurs. 9:30-10:30)	KOMO	37
8. Surfside 6 (Mon. 8:30-9:30)	KOMO	36
9. Flintstones (Fri. 8:30-9:00)	KOMO	33

1. Death Valley Days (Wed. 7:00)	KING	U.S. Borax	34	57
2. Bold Journey (Thurs. 7:00)	KOMO	Banner	33	52
3. Huckleberry Hound (Thurs. 6.00)	KING	Screen Gems	27	50
4. Sea Hunt (Mon. 7:00)	KING	Ziv-UA	26	43
5. Manhunt (Tues. 7:00)	KING	Screen Gems	25	44
6. Woody Woodpecker (Mon. 6:00)	KING	Kellogg	24	46
7. Quick Draw McGraw (Wed. 6:00)	KING	Screen Gems	22	51
8. Deputy Dawg (Tues. 6:00)	KING	CBS	21	45
9. Ivanhoe (Fri. 6:00)	KING	Screen Gems	20	42
10. High Road (Thurs. 6:30)	KOMO	ABC	18	31

Rescue 8	KIRO	13
Best of Post	KING	17
Shell News	KOMO	19
News-J. Daly	KOMO	19
Husky Football	KOMO	26
Expedition	KOMO	22
Shell News	KOMO	22
News-J. Daly	KOMO	23
Shell News	KOMO	17
News-J. Daly	KOMO	17
Shell News	KOMO	20
News-J. Daly	KOMO	21
Shell News	KOMO	18
News-J. Daly	KOMO	20
Huntley-Brinkley	KING	25
Early Edition	KING	25

SYRACUSE

STATIONS: WSYR, WSYE, WHEN. *SURVEY DATES: NOVEMBER 10-23, 1960.

1. Ed Sullivan (Sun. 8:00-9:00)	WHEN	48
2. Perry Como (Wed. 9:00-10:00)	WSYR	45
2. Telephone Hour (Fri. 9:00-10:00)	WSYR	45
3. Flintstones (Fri. 8:30-9:00)	WSYR	44
4. Untouchables (Tues. 10:00-11:00)	WSYR	39
4. Groucho Marx (Thurs. 10:00-10:30)	WSYR	39
4. Westerner (Fri. 7:30-8:00)	WSYR	39
4. Detectives (Fri. 10:00-10:30)	WSYR	39
4. Law & Mr. Jones (Fri. 10:30-11:00)	WSYR	39
5. Donna Reed (Thurs. 8:00-8:30)	WSYR	37

1. Sea Hunt (Wed. 7:00)	WSYR	Ziv-UA	32	73
1. This Man Dawson (Tues. 7:00)	WSYR	Ziv-UA	32	68
2. Death Valley Days (Sat. 10:30)	WHEN	U.S. Borax	31	76
3. Three Stooges (Tues. 6:00)	WSYR	Screen Gems	29	76
4. Lock-Up (Thurs. 7:00)	WSYR	Ziv-UA	28	67
4. Popeye (Wed. 6:00)	WSYR	UAA	28	96
Sat. 8:30 a.m.)
4. U.S. Marshal (Fri. 7:00)	WSYR	NTA	28	85
5. Manhunt (Thurs. 10:30)	WSYR	Screen Gems	25	52
6. Johnny Midnight (Mon. 10:00)	WSYR	MCA	23	48
7. Air Power (Sat. 7:00)	WHEN	CBS	18	44

Nelson Family	WHEN	12
Father Knows Best	WHEN	15
Fight of The Week	WSYR	10
Make That Spare	WSYR	9
Early Show; Weather	WHEN	9
Brothers Brannigan	WHEN	14
Early Show; Weather	WHEN	7
Flicker Fun	WHEN	2
Best of Post	WHEN	6
June Allyson	WHEN	23
Honeyes; Tomorrow	WHEN	24
Sat. Cinema	WSYR	23

(Continued on page 39)

VARIETY-ARB SYNDICATION CHART

VARIETY's weekly tabulation based on ratings furnished by American Research Bureau, highlights the top ten network shows on a local level and offers a rating study in depth of the top ten syndicated shows in the same particular market. This week ten different markets are covered.

In the syndicated program listings of the top ten shows, rating data such as the average share of audience, coupled with data as to time and day of telecasting competitive programming in the particular slot, etc., is furnished. Reason for detailing an exact picture of the rating performance of syndicated shows is to reflect the true rating strength of particular series. Various branches of the industry, ranging from media buyers to local stations and/or advertisers to syndicators will find the charts valuable.

Over the course of a year, ARB will tabulate a minimum of 247 markets. The results of that tabulation will be found weekly in VARIETY. Coupled with the rating performance of the top ten network shows on the local level, the VARIETY-ARB charts are designed to reflect the rating tastes of virtually every tv market in the U. S.

(*) ARB's November, 1960 survey covered a two week period. Syndicated shows sharing one of the two weeks with an alternating or special program could not be properly judged for comparative performance. Therefore, November data will be limited to those syndicated shows which played both weeks.

(Continued from page 38)

SALT LAKE CITY—OGDEN—PROVO

STATIONS: KCPX, KUTV, KSL. *SURVEY DATES: NOVEMBER 10-23, 1960.

TOP TEN NETWORK SHOWS RK. PROGRAM—DAY—TIME	STA.	AV. RTG.
1. Perry Mason (Sat. 9:00-10:00)	KSL	43
2. Wagon Train (Wed. 9:00-10:00)	KUTV	39
2. Gunsmoke (Sat. 8:00-8:30)	KSL	39
3. Untouchables (Thurs. 8:30-9:30)	KCPX	38
4. Real McCoys (Thurs. 7:30-8:00	KCPX	35
4. My Three Sons (Thurs. 8:00-8:30)	KCPX	35
5. Lawrence Welk (Sat. 7:00-8:00)	KCPX	34
6. Rifleman (Tues. 7:00-7:30)	KCPX	31
7. Red Skelton (Tues. 7:30-8:00)	KSL	30
7. 77 Sunset Strip (Fri. 8:00-9:00)	KCPX	30

TOP SYNDICATED PROGRAMS RK. PROGRAM—DAY—TIME	STA.	DISTRIB.	AV. RTG.	AV. SH.
1. Sea Hunt (Sat. 8:30)	KSL	Ziv-UA	31	50
2. Highway Patrol (Fri. 6:00)	KSL	Ziv-UA	21	51
3. Death Valley Days (Wed. 8:30)	KUTV	U.S. Borax	19	32
4. Best of Post (Sat. 10:00)	KSL	ITC	18	38
4. Manhunt (Thurs. 9:30)	KCPX	Screen Gems	18	38
4. U.S. Marshal (Tues. 9:30)	KCPX	NTA	18	39
5. Topper (Thurs. 6:00)	KSL	Schubert	16	39
6. Blue Angels (Mon. 8:30)	KSL	CNP	15	29
7. Popeye (Sat. 4:30)	KUTV	King Features	14	64
8. Bozo The Clown (Sat. 5:00)	KUTV	Jayark	13	54
8. Pony Express (Thurs. 8:30)	KUTV	CNP	13	23

TOP COMPETITION PROGRAM	STA.	AV. RTG.
Fight of The Week	KCPX	17
Make That Spare	KCPX	16
News; Weather	KUTV	10
News; Weather	KCPX	10
Huntley-Brinkley	KUTV	11
Hawaiian Eye	KCPX	23
Weekend News	KCPX	19
Weather; Sports	KCPX	19
Twilight Zone	KSL	29
Laramie	KUTV	15
News; Weather	KCPX	13
Huntley-Brinkley	KUTV	13
Alamo; Adv. Paradise	KCPX	25
All Star Golf	KCPX	4
Comedy Time	KSL	7
Untouchables	KCPX	39

TOLEDO

STATIONS: WTOL, WSPD. *SURVEY DATES: NOVEMBER 10-23, 1960.

1. Gunsmoke (Sat. 10:00-10:30)	WTOL	46
2. Have Gun, Will Travel (Sat. 9:30-10)	WTOL	40
3. Red Skelton (Tues. 9:30-10:00)	WTOL	39
3. Garry Moore (Tues. 10:00-11:00)	WTOL	39
4. My Three Sons (Thurs. 9:00-9:30)	WSPD	38
5. Untouchables (Thurs. 9:30-10:30)	WSPD	37
6. Real McCoys (Thurs. 8:30-9:00)	WSPD	34
6. 77 Sunset Strip (Fri. 9:00-10:00)	WSPD	34
7. Flintstones (Fri. 8:30-9:00)	WSPD	33
7. Perry Mason (Sat. 7:30-8:30)	WTOL	33

1. Quick Draw McGraw (Thurs. 6:30)	WTOL	Screen Gems	25	52	Deadline	WSPD	20
1. Huckleberry Hound (Mon. 6:30)	WTOL	Screen Gems	25	56	Deadline	WSPD	18
2. Sea Hunt (Tues. 7:30)	WSPD	Ziv-UA	22	47	Lock-Up	WTOL	6
3. Tombstone Territory (Mon. 7:00)	WSPD	Ziv-UA	18	43	Watch With Ward	WTOL	17
4. Deadline (Mon.-Fri. 6:30)	WSPD	Flamingo	17	37	Huckleberry Hound	WTOL	25
					Quick Draw McGraw	WTOL	25
					Woodpecker; Wonderland	WTOL	30
					Mr. T & Friends	WTOL	22
5. Johnny Midnight (Thurs. 10:30)	WSPD	MCA	16	44	June Allyson	WTOL	9
6. Jim Backus (Sat. 7:00)	WTOL	Screen Gems	13	30	National Velvet	WSPD	20
6. Navy Log (Mon. 7:30)	WTOL	CBS	13	27	Cheyenne	WSPD	24
7. Mike Hammer (Thurs. 9:00)	WTOL	MCA	12	20	My Three Sons	WSPD	33
7. Science Fiction (Sun. 10:30)	WSPD	Ziv-UA	12	27	My Line; Belafonte	WTOL	25

SAN DIEGO

STATIONS: KFMB, KFSD, XETV (Tijuana, Mex.). *SURVEY DATES: NOVEMBER 10-23, 1960.

1. Perry Mason (Sat. 7:30-8:30)	KFMB	36
2. Wagon Train (Wed. 7:30-8:30)	KFSD	32
2. 77 Sunset Strip (Fri. 9:00-10:00)	XETV	32
3. Untouchables (Thurs. 9:30-10:30)	XETV	28
4. Flintstones (Fri. 8:30-9:00)	XETV	27
4. Ed Sullivan (Sun. 8:00-9:00)	KFMB	27
5. Rawhide (Fri. 6:30-7:30)	KFMB	26
5. Have Gun, Will Travel (Sat. 9:30-10)	KFMB	26
5. Gunsmoke (Sat. 10:00-10:30)	KFMB	26
5. Maverick (Sun. 7:30-8:30)	XETV	26

1. Manhunt (Tues. 7:00)	KFMB	Screen Gems	25	52	News	XETV	8
2. Californians (Sat. 6:30)	KFMB	CNP	21	53	Award Theatre	KFSD	9
3. Tombstone Territory (Mon. 7:00)	KFSD	Ziv-UA	19	33	Witness	KFMB	16
4. Assignment Underwater (Sat. 7:00)	KFMB	NTA	17	33	Fight of The Week	XETV	16
4. Coronado 9 (Sat. 10:30)	KFMB	MCA	17	47	Roaring 20's	XETV	11
4. Death Valley Days (Tues. 6:30)	KFMB	U.S. Borax	17	38	Up To The Minute	KFSD	15
5. Amos & Andy (Mon.-Fri. 6.00)	XETV	CBS	14	27	Dateline San Diego	KFMB	13
					Up To The Minute	KFSD	16
					News-D. Edwards	KFMB	14
					Huntley-Brinkley	KFSD	16
5. Brothers Brannigan (Thurs. 7:00)	KFSD	CBS	14	29	Sea Hunt	KFMB	14
5. Sea Hunt (Thurs. 7:00)	KFMB	Ziv-UA	14	29	Brothers Brannigan	KFSD	14
6. R.C.M.P. (Thurs. 6:30)	KFMB	CNP	12	28	Up To The Minute	KFSD	10

TAMPA—ST. PETERSBURG

STATIONS: WFLA, WTVT, WSUN. *SURVEY DATES: NOVEMBER 10-23, 1960.

1. Wagon Train (Wed. 7:30-8:30)	WFLA	49
2. Perry Mason (Sat. 7:30-8:30)	WTVT	46
3. Gunsmoke (Sat. 10:00-10:30)	WTVT	44
4. Rawhide (Fri. 7:30-8:30)	WTVT	38
4. Perry Como (Wed. 9:00-10:00)	WFLA	38
5. Checkmate (Sat. 8:30-9:30)	WTVT	37
6. Outlaws (Thurs. 7:30-8:30)	WFLA	34
6. Ed Sullivan (Sun. 8:00-9:00)	WTVT	34
6. Have Gun, Will Travel (Sat. 9:30-10)	WTVT	34
7. Price Is Right (Wed. 8:30-9:00)	WFLA	31
7. Red Skelton (Tues. 9:30-10:00)	WTVT	31
7. Ernie Ford (Thurs. 9:30-10:00)	WFLA	31
7. Ann Southern (Sat. 7:00-7:30)	WTVT	31

1. Pioneers (Mon. 7:00)	WTVT	Roebeck	31	62	Brothers Brannigan	WFLA	14
2. Sea Hunt (Tues. 7:00)	WFLA	Ziv-UA	28	47	Family Theatre	WTVT	24
3. Johnny Midnight (Sat. 10:30)	WTVT	MCA	26	67	Fight of The Week	WSUN	9
					Make That Spare	WSUN	6
4. Blue Angels (Thurs. 7:00)	WFLA	CNP	25	50	Mounted Police	WTVT	22
5. Coronado 9 (Mon. 7:30)	WTVT	MCA	22	34	Cheyenne	WSUN	23
5. Mounted Police (Thurs. 7:00)	WTVT	CNP	22	44	Blue Angels	WFLA	25
5. Tombstone Territory (Fri. 7:00)	WFLA	Ziv-UA	22	48	Shotgun Slade	WTVT	16
6. U.S. Marshal (Fri. 8:30)	WFLA	NTA	21	24	Route 66	WTVT	25
7. Huckleberry Hound (Thurs. 6:00)	WFLA	Screen Gems	20	39	Pulse News	WTVT	28
					Sports; Weather	WTVT	30
8. Quick Draw McGraw (Tues. 6:00)	WFLA	Screen Gems	18	35	Pulse News	WTVT	28
					Sports; Weather	WTVT	29

JFK's Respect For a Medium

Continued from page 27

of Westinghouse Broadcasting Co.

"Mrs. Roosevelt," he said, "must have come around to see you with a list also."

Mrs. R, promoting more women for top federal jobs, had earlier called on Kennedy with a roster of qualified women.

Emceeing the show was Ted Koop, CBS' Washington news and public affairs chief, who noted much had happened in the year since the last black tie gathering.

"Jim Hagerty has joined the industry, and Edward R. Murrow has left it," he said deadpan.

"I asked Ed Murrow the other day how he was finding it to work for the Government," Koop remarked. "Ed replied, "I'm smoking more now an enjoying it less.'"

Miss Shore, dazzling in a silver and white floor length gown, repeated her Las Vegas (Desert Inn) act, backed by her song-dance Even Half Dozen. She opened with several tunes in peppy rhythm, "Wonderful World," "Just in Time," etc., slowing down for "Hello, Young Lovers" and a charming French ballad, "When the World Was Young."

For the windup, she had a break not often coming to a femme vocalist at such a dinner. The 55-male voices of the Harvard Glee Club supported her in a spirited spiritual, "Swing Low, Sweet Chariot." It was great.

Berman said he wasn't going to make political gags. "I don't think politics is funny," he observed.

He did two routines, one about tv advertising and another about a fellow several days after an automobile appliance convention had opened. Berman was in fine form.

The section of the Harvard Glee Club which will soon make a Government-sponsored but privately financed Far Eastern tour was an obvious target for political one-liners. The singers had a special climax number for Kennedy, "The Good Ship Harvard Is White House Bound Again."

Outgoing Assn. prexy Lewis Schollenberger of CBS presided. Elmer Lower, NBC's Washington news and public affairs director, was chairman of the dinner. Producer of the show was Robert C. Doyle, Salisbury, Md., broadcaster. The U.S. Marine Band played for dinner, and Jack Morton's orchestra did the show.

Vice President Lyndon B. Johnson and House Speaker Sam Rayburn were among other top politicos attending. Numerous network brass came down from N.Y.

Kansas City—Wes Sayler, former farm director for WIBS, Topeka, has joined the farm staff of WDAF here. He was once field director of the Agriculture Hall of Fame and before that manager of the American Dairy Assn. of Oklahoma.

Word Is 'Perception,' Mr. Hagerty

Continued from page 25

field," observed McCaffrey "is not broader coverage, but greater perception, greater understanding of the overall importance of the story covered; the relationship of one particular news break here in Washington to other happenings, not only on Capitol Hill and at the White House, but in Paris, London and other areas. Today the average American hears so much about so many things from so many sources that he wants to know what it all means. To help answer this need, tv must nurture more men who spend more time reading, studying and digesting."

McCaffrey also took up the question of whether the Republicans deserve "equal time" because President Kennedy is having televised press conferences.

What about newspapers which put the President's statements on the front page and carry what Republicans say only on the basis of its newsworthiness, he asked. The GOP's real problem in getting attention is that the party is out of power, he noted.

"It is a problem much older than television, and it should not be incumbent on the tv industry to solve it—if only because it is insoluble," he said.

CBS Canada Sports

Continued from page 27

Week," and the racing Triple Crown. CBC-TV will supply the Canadian Triple Crown, along with golf, bowling, track & field and other events.

Entire deal was set up for CBS-TV by Bob Jamieson, who's been designated Canadian sales manager by the network. Jamieson, incidentally, now wears three hats for the CBS-TV sales dept.: he's also director of station clearances and assistant business manager.

IT STARTED BACK HERE IN JULY 1955–
Network Y
Network Z

—AND IT'S STILL GOING STRONG. This eye-catching pattern of audience leadership represents 136 consecutive Nielsen reports.* Interrupted only twice in 5½ years, it shows that one network consistently delivers the biggest average audience in television. CBS

*NATIONWIDE, 6-11 PM

Why WAVY-TV bought Warner's "Films of the 50's"

Says J. Glen Taylor

"We bought the Seven Arts Warner pictures because they balance out our feature library. We need to keep the number of viewers on the climb

In Tidewater, Virginia, America's 27th fast-growing market. This package of Films from the Fabulous 50's will do the job."

Warner's Films of the 50's... Money makers of the 60's

SAA

SEVEN ARTS ASSOCIATED CORP.

NEW YORK: 270 Park Avenue • YUkon 6-1717
CHICAGO: 8922-0 La Crosse, Skokie, Ill. • ORchard 4-5105
DALLAS: 5641 Charlestown Drive • ADams 9-2855
BEVERLY HILLS: 232 Reeves Drive • GRanite 6-1564

For list of TV stations programming Warner's Films of the 50's see Page One SAAS (Spot TV Rates and Data).

J. Glen Taylor
president, Tidewater Teleradio, Inc.
WAVY-TV Norfolk, Portsmouth, Newport News, Va.

'Victory By Default'

The "message" to be derived by the television industry and the networks in particular from Telemeter's assorted show biz forays with Carol Channing's "Show Girl," "Hedda Gabbler" and "The Counsul" as presentations for its Toronto pay-tv experiment comes across loud and clear: Unless the networks resume programming with imagination, initiative and respect for the more mature segments of the audience, unless they once again begin drawing in Broadway and off-Broadway talent and also encouraging new talent and experimentation instead of relying entirely on Hollywood's grind-houses, then pay-tv will begin to make giant strides forward.

The fact that free television has already presented two of the Telemeter properties, "The Consul" and "Hedda Gabbler," is ironic but is also totally irrelevant. Both were done back in that era that is now taking on the aspects of a "golden age" of tv; the point is that nothing like them is being done today. Having abdicated this role, they've left the door wide open for feevee.

And this is what is giving pay-tv its biggest edge yet—the opportunity for a victory by default. Other than NTA's "Play of the Week," or an occasional "Hallmark Hall of Fame," who's doing anything live on television today? And apart from the NBC Opera, with its few performances a season in Sunday afternoon time, who's doing opera? As for musical revues like Miss Channing's "Show Girl," it's been years since the networks have undertaken to buy up tv rights to a legiter.

From the pay-tv point of view, Telemeter's deals and announcement couldn't have come at a better time. Potentially, tollvision is a political football, especially in a recession period such as today's, when every Congressman is ready to make a hero out of himself by defending his constituents' right to free television entertainment and registering his opposition to anything that threatens free-tv.

But by taking the initiative with the type of attractions audiences can't get—any longer—on free-tv, Telemeter takes the edge off the political opposition. And while Telemeter is a wired system and therefore subject to political pressures only in an abstract sense, its actions can't but help the cause of over-the-air tollvision as will shortly get underway in Hartford via Zenith and RKO General. Over-the-air systems are under FCC jurisdiction and therefore highly prone to Congressional pressure as well as possible legislation.

Pay-tv on any major scale in the U. S.—that is, covering a large proportion of U. S. homes—is figured as being some years away, simply because the wiring process as employed by Telemeter is a long, laborious job, and because over-the-air systems like Zenith's Phonevision are both subject to Governmental authority and involve direct use of tv station facilities and channels which are already in short supply.

But the networks' refusal to program any entertainment other than the tried-and-true Hollywood westerns, private eyes, comedies and adventure stuff—in short, formula programs, as contrasted with Telemeter's apparent willingness to furnish audiences with distinctive entertainment fare, can only advance the cause of pay-tv, both wired and on-the-air.

CBS-TV Morning Surge on Billings

CBS-TV's daytime business is booming again, thanks to the web's new rotating sales plan in the morning and its new streamlined ayem price structure. Big gun in the new surge of business is Kellogg's which picked up 100 spots—10 minutes a week for a 10-week span starting in April—good for about $280,000.

Right behind the Kellogg deal is Pacquin's Hand Cream, in for three one-minute blurbs a week, and Eastman Chemical, in for 10 minutes to be spread through the spring. Also new in the morning is Curtis Publishing, which bought four single minutes for this week only which will probably be back more often for circulation pushes on specific magazine issues now that the CBS morning price is right.

Morning surge is accompanied by a lift in the quarter-hour afternoon business, which has always been healthy anyway. Nestle bought on a weekly quarter-hour, Lever and French added an alternate quarter-hour each, and Kodak dittoed. And upcoming, of course, is a fistful of General Mills business, thanks to the "Father of the Bride" package deal (see separate story).

To top things off, the early-morning "Captain Kangaroo" picked up six quarter-hours of sponsorship from Tek-Hughes Ice Cream Tooth Brushes via Young & Rubicam.

New Haven—John F. Cundiff, general sales manager of WNHC-TV, Hartford-New Haven, has been tapped as station manager of the outfit, adding latter title to existing duties as g.s.m.

Mel Brooks Cops Plea On Alimony, Citing Dearth of TV Comedy

Rising popularity of news, documentary shows and westerns on tv was cited by writer Mel Brooks in N.Y. Supreme Court last week as a major reason why he can't pay his wife $1,000 per week alimony. A longtime comedy scripter, he told Justice Vincent A. Lupiano that the new trend in viewing has cut into the market for humorous material.

But while taking due cognizance of Brooks' contention, Justice Lupiano said: "Yet, he admits that his total earnings for the year 1960 were $87,000, though $46,900 came, not from television, but as a comedy writer for a Jerry Lewis motion picture ("Ladies Man") which work, he explains, ended abruptly after 13 weeks in October, 1960. These are gross figures, of course..."

Mrs. Brooks, who is suing for a separation, was awarded $400 per week temporary alimony for the support of herself and three children. She charged Brooks committed adultery with "many women of various repute while in Hollywood."

700G Helene Curtis Biz for 'Thriller'

Chicago, March 21.

NBC-TV has its foot in the Helene Curtis door again. Cosmetic house, which hasn't done business with the web for over a year, has purchased minute participations in "Thriller" through the end of the current tv year. Buy starts April 4 and represents an estimated $700,000 in business.

Biz was placed through McCann-Erickson, one of three HC agencies.

Networks Are Starting To Ask Is Collins A Convenience & Necessity?

Garry Moore Nixed As Court Okays Bing Deal With Carol Lawrence

Garry Moore lost his suit to prevent Carol Lawrence from appearing on Monday night's (20) Bing Crosby special on ABC-TV last week, but the legal decision was regarded as having no real effect—one way or the other—on the practice of writing exclusivity clauses into guest performing contracts.

Although the basis of Moore's suit in N. Y. Supreme Court was his four-week exclusivity on the services of Miss Lawrence, dating three weeks before and one week after her scheduled April 4 appearance on his show, the circumstances in the case were so special the court made no effort to rule on the validity of the exclusivity clause.

Instead, the suit was dismissed because the Crosby show, which aired within the three-week deadline, was taped last December, because Miss Lawrence was hired for the Crosby show last November and Crosby had no knowledge of her deal with Moore, because it is a difficult thing to change the date of a telecast and because a minimum of damage to Moore was indicated by the circumstances.

Suit was brought on by the schedule change on the Crosby show, from March 13 to March 20, bringing it six days inside the three-week exclusivity period. Moore sought to have Miss Lawrence's performance deleted from the Crosby show, charging her appearance would damage her value to his show and that it would constitute a violation of her contract with his Red Wing Productions.

Justice Louis J. Capozzoli ruled in effect that there was neither knowledge nor intent on the part of Crosby to damage Moore with the schedule change, that the change was unforeseen and the difficulties involved transcended any desire to damage Moore or cause a violation of his contract.

A secondary element in the case was the hope by CBS and Revlon that the action, if successful, could cause a postponement of the Crosby show, since the change to Monday night (20) caused it to compete headon with "24 Hours In a Woman's Life," the 90-minute Ingrid Bergman special sponsored by Revlon.

Bromo Buys Late Sun. News Seg on WABC-TV

WABC-TV, the ABC flag in N.Y., is finally going to put a regular newscast on late Sunday evenings before its feature film slotting. Scott Vincent will do a quarter hour of Sabbath news in the 11 p.m. time with Bromo Seltzer picking up the full tab on the local stanza.

Bromo is pulling something unusual—for it and for local N. Y. news sponsors in general. Out of BBDO, bankroller has decided to sponsor Vincent and, while entitled to three commercial breaks per 15-minutes, will only do one one-minute spot a week. Idea is to allow room for more news.

Show begins soon. Until the shift, WABC-TV will continue airing its features at an 11 p.m. start.

LeRoy Collins, the new president of the National Assn. of Broadcasters, clearly doesn't see eye to eye with some of the important men who helped hire him.

When he told radio and television executives in N. Y. last Wednesday (15), "Some say the public interest and what interests the public is one and the same (but) I do not agree," he probably knew that the "some" he talked of might very well have included Bob Sarnoff, chairman of NBC, Bill Paley, chairman of CBS.

Neither chairman, has ever said, to public knowledge, that audience returns are the only judge of public interest (in line with the Communications Act clause on "public interest, convenience and necessity"), but each seems generally to feel that audience reaction is an important yardstick.

Paley has said to VARIETY (see separate story) and, in past times, so has Sarnoff that they feel a broadcaster has got to give the audience what it wants. (What it wants can only be determined on any catholic plane by ratings.)

This statement by Collins, a high-ranking liberal Democratic politician and former Governor of Florida, indicates the change that is taking place in the functions and duties of the NAB president.

In the days of his predecessor, the late Harold Fellows, the NAB president was a spokesman, if not for the majority, at least for the most influential or vocal elements in broadcasting. The top NAB office was a place for vigorous support and defense of industry practices—to the public and, more important, to Congress.

It would seem that Collins, recognized as a man with a highly-flavored sense of humor and an even more highly-flavored sense of morality, has made his new office the source of a public conscience, right or wrong, for broadcasters.

Broadcasters today seem to believe, generally speaking, that their business is better, more dignified and more public spirited than ever. Sure, they admit it has its faults, but sometimes observers take this self-abrogation as more a pose than a belief.

These same observers don't think Collins is posing.

"I want to see the quality of broadcasting improved with a positive program developed through the ingenuity, the resources and cooperation of broadcasters themselves." Collins said at the "Newsmaker" luncheon given him by the Radio & Television Executives Society in N. Y. last week. "I want to see this done not out of a fear of government, not because critics rant and rave, but simply because it is right that we do so in discharging our responsibility to serve the public interest to which we are committed and out of a deep pride in our art."

Collins, as an industry "spokesman," also said something that day which his employers know can cost them money. The NAB president recommended maybe six hours a week among the three television networks, ABC, CBS and NBC, of "blue ribbon" programs. He defined his "blue ribbon" as a species of "very high level, programming in prime time—programming in such areas as outstanding drama, fine music, public information and education, programming which through its quality will prove highly entertaining to substantial segments of the audience."

Almost before he stepped from the dais at the Hotel Roosevelt, after making his "laudatory but impractical recommendation" (as one industry figure put it), NBC and CBS had statements to make. ABC, which actively supports the rating system (in ads its says its public "votes everyday"), had no comment.

Top NBC brass is known to be other than fully inclined toward supporting Collins even if they are fully in support of his objectives. The NBC statement applauded his objectives (which included the control of excessive violence), but the network statement seemed to suggest that they are already meeting Collins' high aims now.

CBS, where the leaders do like Collins, said in its statement that it too supports his objectives, but, to those on the journalistic sidelines, the rest of the statement read as though CBS didn't look at itself as a full participant in creating change. "We support Governor Collins' objectives," said CBS, "and look forward to the day when they can be realized."

Collins left some members of his audience with the idea that his aims could be realized at once, if anybody wanted to try.

Stanton Opposes Manley's Bill On Rating Restriction

Sharp opposition to the Manley Bill, proposal to impose severe limitations upon the operations of rating services in New York State, was registered with members of the State Assembly last week by CBS president Frank Stanton. In a wire to each member of the Assembly, Stanton listed various reasons for CBS' opposition and invited Assemblymen to discuss the proposal further with representatives of the network.

The arrival of the bill on the floor of the Assembly for action is imminent, since it has already been reported out of committee. No hearings on the measure were held.

Stanton listed the following points as the basis of CBS' opposition:

1. Clause calling for the publication of the location of homes in a permanent sample "would undoubtedly subject such homes to abnormal pressures from outside forces, thereby invalidating the normalcy of response by sample homes. This would invalidate measurements based on carefully selected samples."

2. Though the apparent purpose of the bill is to permit evaluation of rating information by the public, this would not be achieved through the information required to be revealed because measurement "involves statistical techniques requiring specialized learning in mathematical probability field."

3. The bill "is grossly discriminatory because similar audience measurement practices are used to influence sale of advertising in newspaper, magazine, billboard and car cards businesses."

4. "Rating information is one important factor utilized by broadcasters in programming in line with taste and interests of public."

5. The bill would destroy "one of the legitimate elements in competition between stations in the same market, between national networks and between programs.

6. Though the U.S. Senate has held hearings on rating services and a House subcommittee is currently studying the technical soundness of ratings, no hearings have been held by the State Legislature. "Any legislation concerning a matter of such importance to any industry in the State of N.Y. deserves far more consideration and study by N.Y. legislators than has occurred to date."

Stanton was the only network rep to contact the legislators. NBC sent no message, but a spokesman for the web said, "We think it is a bad bill."

The Same Old Soaper Refrain

Despite the current yen for daytime game shows among the three tv networks, it's the soaper that still pulls 'em in on the National Nielsens.

The same five CBS-TV weepers that led the Nielsen pack five or more years ago are still at the top of the heap, with NBC's "Concentration" and "Price Is Right" the only entries to "invade" the Top 7 standings.

Here's how the Top 10 shapes up:

As the World Turns (CBS)	10.8
Edge of Night (CBS)	10.7
Concentration (NBC)	10.6
Guiding Light (CBS)	10.4
Secret Storm (CBS)	10.2
Search For Tomorrow (CBS)	9.9
Price Is Right (NBC)	9.1
Verdict Is Yours (CBS)	9.0
Rocky & Friends (ABC)	9.0
House Party (CBS)	8.9

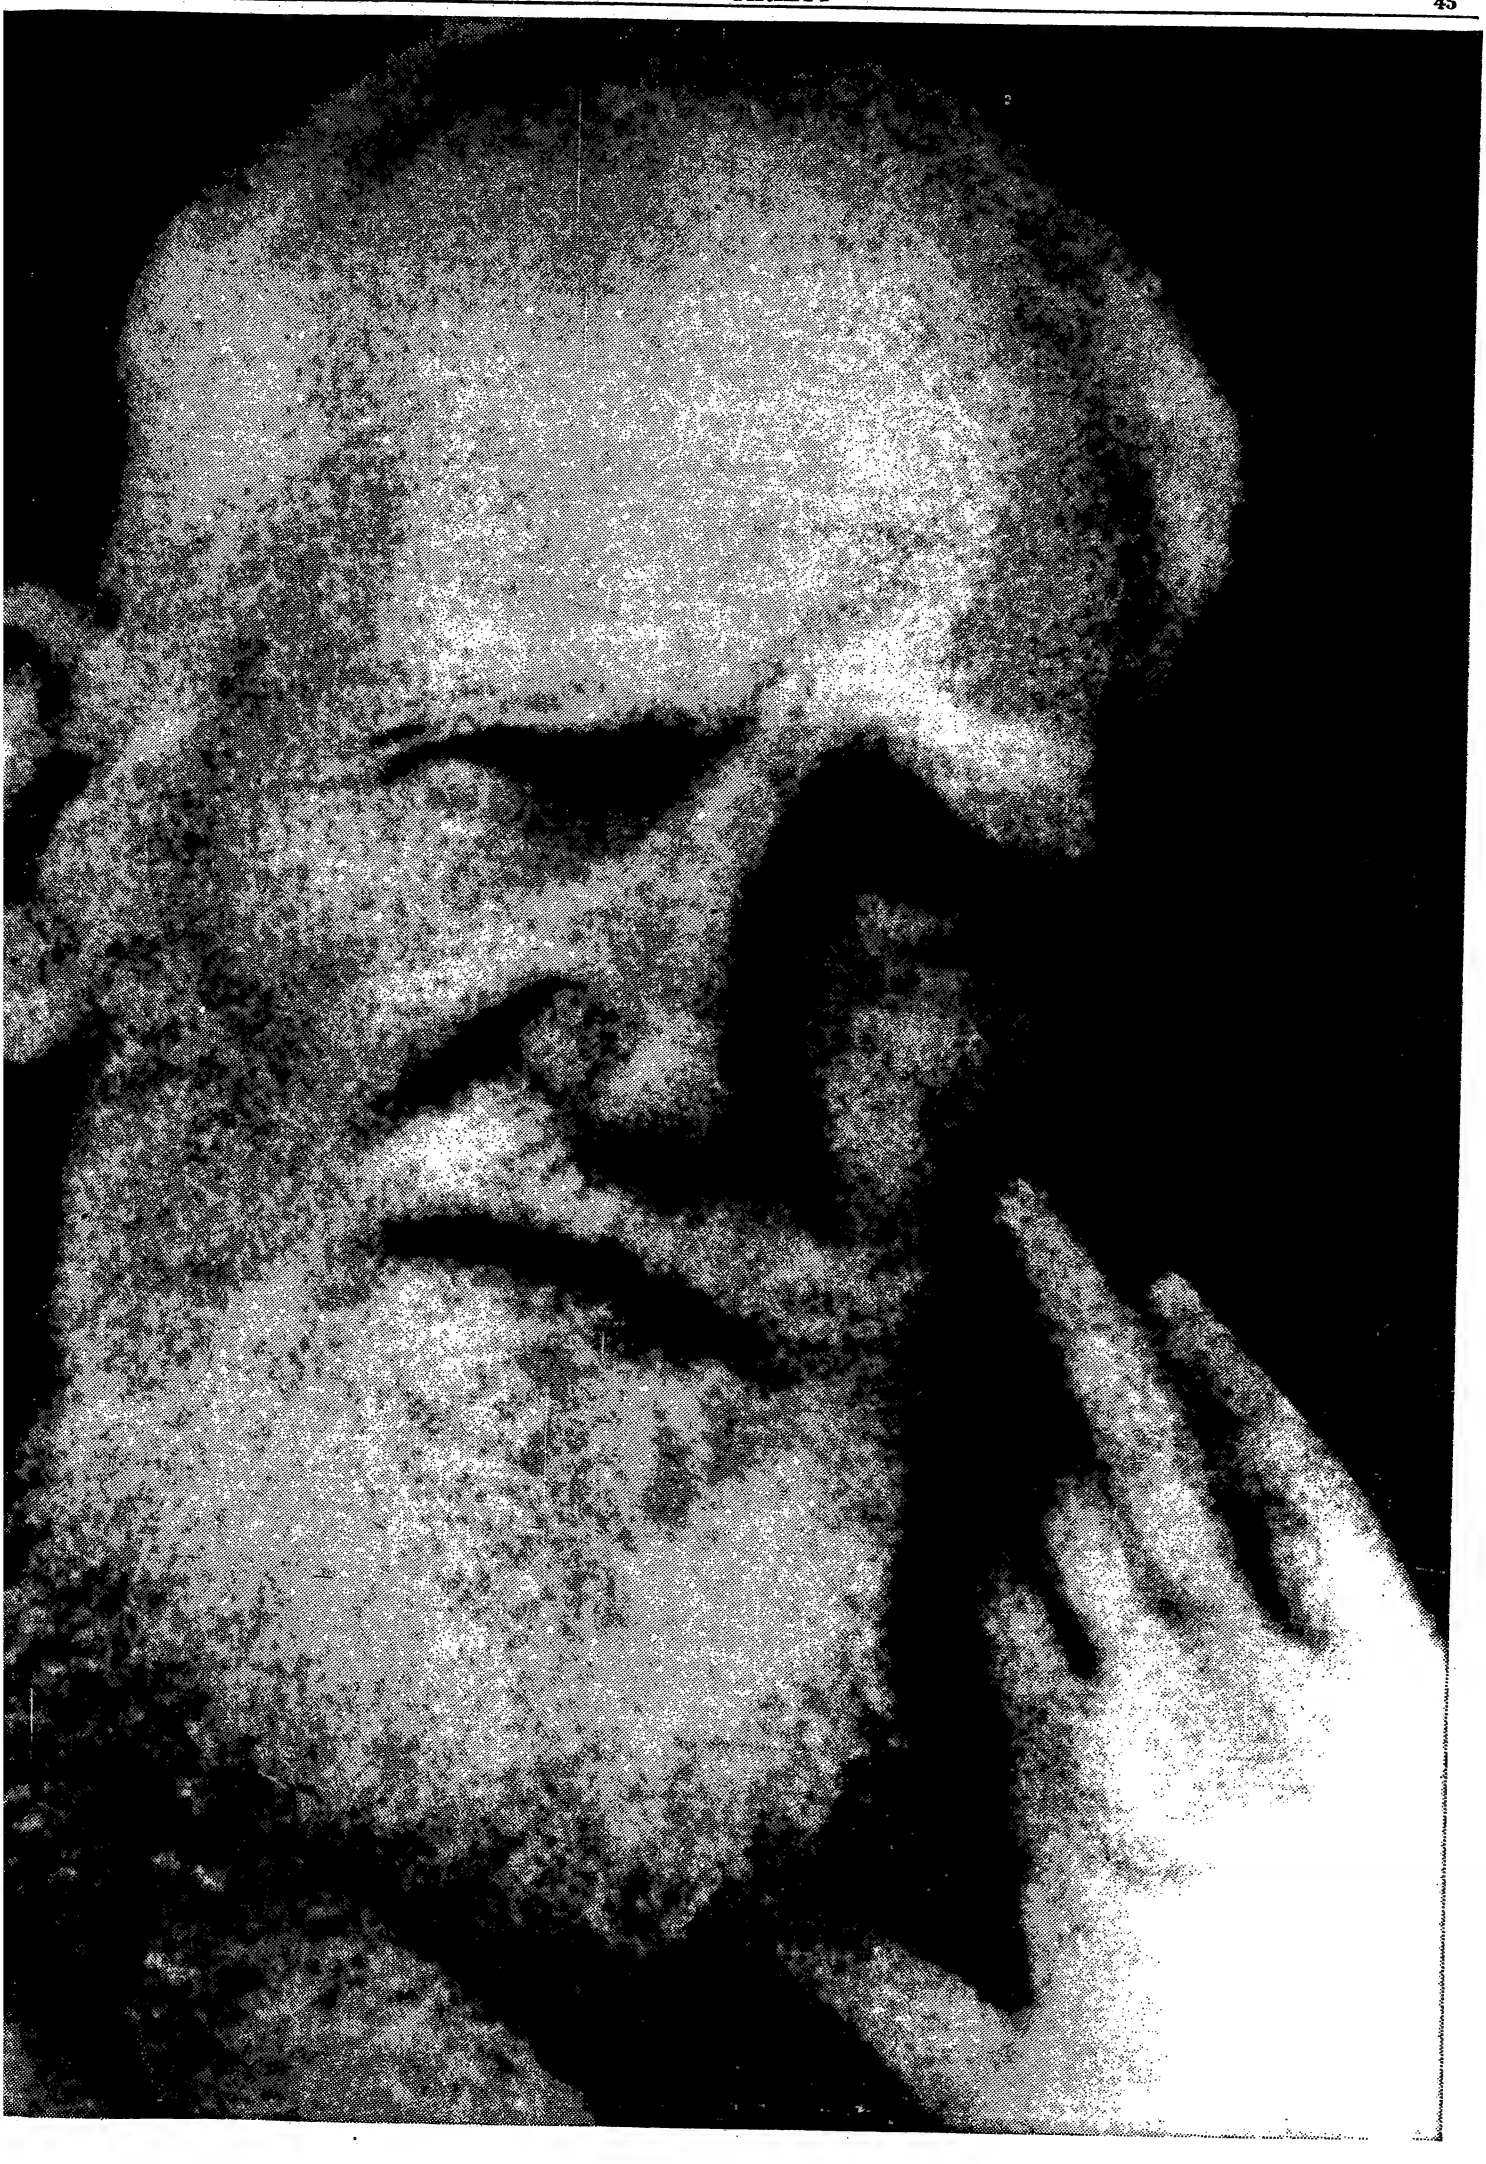
Certainly not George Bernard Shaw! Current Broadway history to the contrary, Shaw's brilliant plays need no musical embellishment to delight audiences with their sparkling wit.

KNXT proved it with a superlative locally-produced presentation of one of GBS' fairest ladies, "CANDIDA," as acted by members of Project '58 (a local actors workshop) and sponsored by the Lincoln Savings and Loan Association (a local firm). The rhapsodies were supplied by the public and press. Close to a half-million people enjoyed "...a bold, significant stride in the direction of adult entertainment" (VARIETY), "...a dramatic milestone in western television" (PASADENA STAR-NEWS) and "...the sort of thing that can give stature to local television" (LOS ANGELES TIMES). Reported SATURDAY REVIEW: "A full measure of triumph. Local television at a high level. The audience was well served."

"CANDIDA," the first ninety-minute television drama ever locally-produced by a west coast station (incidentally, there are four more to come!), is but the latest step in KNXT's continuing search for new ways to serve its audiences well. Its success is measured, in part, in the 160 awards and citations for local programming received during the station's ten-year history. More important, it is measured in the audiences themselves, who year after year have made Television 2 the favorite station in Los Angeles. KNXT

CBS Owned

Music... who needs it?



Disney On NBC-TV Color

Continued from page 2

I think, than anyone in Hollywood."

Partly because of the desire of parent RCA to advance the cause of tint television, NBC-TV has long been pushing multichrome. The "mutuality" of color interest by the network and Disney led to the new program's title, "Walt Disney's Wonderful World of Color." "I'm not selling color for RCA," he said. "I'm selling it for myself."

Just as Disney is moving from ABC-TV at the end of this season to his new NBC-TV home, his conversation on Monday (20) also ranged to different parts of the show biz spectrum.

When asked whether he was going to underwrite a Disneyland of the east, he said no. Disney expressed a fear of the vagaries of weather in the northeastern U. S. And while he thought that Florida was the one other place besides California to have such an amusement park, he didn't hold out much hope that he'd pursue a much-bandied-about idea of joining in a Floridian version of his Anaheim, Calif., Disneyland Park.

He had some thoughts on Freedomland in N. Y.'s Bronx section. "I think it was wrong from the start," the gray-haired, bemustached Hollywood vet declared. "I told that to (William) Zeckendorf."

AB-PT's Capital Gain

American Broadcasting-Paramount Theatres received $5,497,500 from Walt Disney Productions as the final installment in the $7,500,000 deal that Disney made with the tv-theatrical company to buy back a 35% interest in Disneyland Park.

Actually, Disney was supposed to pay off the coin over a five-year period, but when he made a new deal with NBC-TV for television programming, the payoff was accelerated. This prepayment results for AB-PT in capital gains (after taxes) of about $3,846,000, of 91c a share in first quarter earnings. This is besides the regular net operating earnings that ABPT intends divvying for the first quarter, not yet completed. (Last year Jan-March AB-PT net was 80c a share.)

Walt Disney commented that AB-PT "did alright" for having invested only $500,000 in Disneyland eight years ago.

Disney said that the people who built Freedomland attempted a copy of his own park, but "there were a lot of things they should have known about Disneyland that they didn't." One of the problems, as Disney saw it, was that the producers of Freedomland failed to arrange for enough entertainment that might divert potential audiences indoors. He suggested too that the N. Y. park might have been built farther upstate to appeal to a wider geographic area.

Thinks Moses on Right Track

He discussed also Robert Moses, president of the 1964 World Fair being planned for New York, and the former Park Commissioner came in for praise from Disney. The producer thought Moses was going about entertainment preparations for the Fair the proper way. Disney says he was approached by Moses to prepare entertainment features in '64 but felt that the weather would create drawbacks so that he declined. He noted that what Moses was seeking was not "another Coney Island" but something more along the lines of Copenhagen's famous Tivoli Park. Moses, Disney felt, did not want a carney atmosphere but was by no means against entertainment at the Fair.

So far, Disney has at least 30 ideas, storylines or whatheveyou buzzing for his NBC-TV 60-minute weekly series. He only needs 25, each of which will be repeated. Depending on their "appeal," he might repeat some of the stanzas a third time in future seasons, which is one way, he said, to "get money back," since he'll be spending over budget on many episodes.

A firm picture of what will be seen on tv next season was not offered, because Disney wants to see whether, when new things come in, he can achieve the fine-line programmatic balance he seeks.

Among the stanzas that have a good chance of being presented, however, are hours on European carnivals, on dance and on music (with the Vienna Boys Choir). He's also shooting a tv version of Jules Verne's "The Castaways," with Hayley Mills in the lead, a program on mathematics and a multi-parted Disney remake of "Prince & the Pauper," to be shot in England with Guy Williams in one of the leading roles. Williams was his "Zorro."

Two of Disney's former theatrical features will also be used on NBC-TV. One, he said, is chosen, the other is not. "Tonca," done with Sal Mineo not too long ago, will be seen on the air in two-hour programs as "Comanche," about an Army horse that survived Custer's Last Stand. (After the Disney interview was completed, an NBC press release, dated March 15, was delivered which noted that Disney would present "The Silver Skates" as a two-part offering on the series. "Skates" was begun two years ago, the web said, as a feature motion picture.)

The producer dwelled happily on the creation of a new character for tv—Ludwig Von Drake, "Donald Duck's uncle on the paternal side—the Continental side of the family and a glib character." Von Drake, who'll apparently have Donald as an occasional sidekick, will narrate the live action shows on music and the carnivals of Europe. He will evidently appear in other stanzas too.

Favors More Animation

Disney declared, "I'd like to do more animation . . . At ABC, they wanted me to cut down on animation and put in more westerns. I did." He's going to cut out most of the historical adventure characters when his programs appear on NBC-TV, he advised, and he's also going to eliminate the Tomorrowland offerings, because of the high expense ($400,000 to $450,000 in negative costs for an hour of such futuristics).

From outside the interview room at NBC-TV, where Disney sat facing N. Y. reporters, came more word on his operation. He had in the course of the interview mentioned the possibility of some specials on NBC-TV and, shortly after, word came from Hollywood that contracts are being drawn for him to produce two or three science specials for Bell Telephone for airing late in 1961. Bell has sponsored similar programs made by Frank Capra and, later, by Warner Bros. Because of the $400,000 nut, as Disney had explained, such science stanzas would not suit a week-to-week program budget.

Buick Buys Mitch; What's With Hope?

Future of the Bob Hope specials at NBC is up in the air, if not altogether shaky. His sponsor, Buick, will be back on the tv web next season, but the commitment is for alternate-week half-hours of the Thursday night Mitch Miller stanza—just enough of a budgetary layout to eat up the money that went this season to the Hope one-shots.

Buick is joining R. J. Reynolds in the alternate slotting on Miller's Thursday-at-10 hour. Ballantine is committed to the full alternate week hour, with the privilege of selling off part of its national buy to other regional sponsors. If it makes no such deal, it's committed to the full NBC lineup.

Still to Helm WFBG

Philadelphia, March 21.

John G. Still, formerly associated with Westinghouse stations in this city, Boston and Pittsburgh, has been named general manager of WFBG AM-FM and TV, Altoona-Johnstown, Pa.

He succeeds Frank B. "Bud" Palmer, who has been promoted to the newly-created post of manager of the midwestern sales office of Triangle Stations, with headquarters in Chicago.

VARIETY ARB FEATURE FILM CHART

VARIETY-ARB's weekly chart offers a day-by-day analysis of the top feature evening slots in a particular market. On Saturdays and Sundays, daytime feature slots compete with nighttime pix periods for designation as the top feature slot of the day. The analysis is confined to the top rated feature slots in the ARB measured period, broken down by days in the week. The ARB measured period usually covers three or four weeks. Other data such as the time slot and average share of audience is furnished. Top competition and competitive ratings also are highlighted.

Indianapolis, Ind. ● Stations: WFBM, WISH, WLWI, WTTV. ● Survey Dates: Nov. 10-23, '60.

WISH Average Rating: 3 Average Share: 30

MONDAYS 11:15-1:15

Program: LATE SHOW

Nov. 14 "HEAVEN CAN WAIT"
Gene Tierney, Don Ameche
1943, 20th Century Fox, NTA, Repeat

Nov. 21 "THE CONSTANT HUSBAND"
Rex Harrison, Kay Kendall
1954, British Lion, Schubert, 1st Run

COMPETITION PROGRAM	STATION & AVG. RATING
Jack Paar 11:30-1:00	WFBM 5
Gold Cup Theatre 11:15-2:00	WLWI 2
Citizen Soldier 11:30-12:00	WTTV 1
Wrestling 11:15-11:30	WTTV 2
Sports 11:15-11:30	WLWI 5
Weather, Sports 11:15-11:30	WFBM 5
Night Court 1:00-1:15	WFBM 1-

WISH Average Rating: 2 Average Share: 22

TUESDAYS 11:15-1:15

Program: LATE SHOW

Nov. 15 "TONIGHTS THE NIGHT"
David Niven, Yvonne DeCarlo
1955, M & A. Alexander, 1st Run

Nov. 22 "LUCKY TO BE A WOMAN"
Sophia Loren, Charles Boyer
1958, Films Around World, Schubert, 1st Run

COMPETITION PROGRAM	STATION & AVG. RATING
Jack Paar 11:30-1:00	WFBM 6
Gold Cup Theatre 11:30-2:00	WLWI 2
Crusader 11:30-12:00	WTTV 1-
State Trooper 11:15-11:30	WTTV 1
Weather, Sports 11:15-11:30	WLWI 3
Weather, Sports 11:15-11:30	WFBM 7
Night Court 1:00-1:15	WFBM 1-

WLWI Average Rating: 2 Average Share: 29

TUESDAYS 11:30-2:00
Program: GOLD CUP THEATRE

Nov. 15 "NINOTCHKA"
Greta Garbo, Melvyn Douglas
1940, MGM, MGM-TV, Repeat

Nov. 22 "THE WOMEN"
Norma Shearer, Joan Crawford, Rosalind Russell
1940, MGM, MGM-TV, Repeat

COMPETITION PROGRAM	STATION & AVG. RATING
Jack Paar 11:30-1:00	WFBM 6
Crusader 11:30-12:00	WTTV 1-
Late Show 11:30-1:15	WISH 2
Night Court 1:00-1:15	WTTV 1-

WISH Average Rating: 3 Average Share: 27

WEDNESDAYS 11:15-1:15

Program: LATE SHOW

Nov. 16 "TREAD SOFTLY STRANGER"
Diana Dors, Terence Morgan
1958, Renoun Prod., Schubert, 1st Run

Nov. 23 "PRISONER OF ZENDA"
Ronald Colman, David Niven, Raymond Massey, Madeline Carroll
1937, UA, NTA, 1st Run

COMPETITION PROGRAM	STATION & AVG. RATING
Jack Paar 11:30-1:00	WFBM 7
Gold Cup Theatre 11:30-1:45	WLWI 1
Mike Hammer 11:00-11:15	WTTV 1
Official Detective 11:30-12:00	WTTV 1
Sports Final 11:15-11:30	WLWI 5
Weather, Sports 11:15-11:30	WFBM 7
Night Court 1:00-1:15	WFBM 1

WISH Average Rating: 5 Average Share: 50

THURSDAYS 11:15-1:15

Program: LATE SHOW

Nov. 10 "IT HAD TO BE YOU"
Ginger Rogers, Cornel Wilde
1947, Columbia, Screen Gems, Repeat

Nov. 17 "GRAPES OF WRATH"
Henry Fonda, John Carradine
1940, 20th Century Fox, NTA, Repeat

COMPETITION PROGRAM	STATION & AVG. RATING
Jack Paar 11:30-1:00	WFBM 4
Gold Cup Theatre 11:15-2:00	WLWI 1
Night Court 1:00-1:15	WFBM 1
Secret Journal 11:30-12:00	WTTV 1
Interpol 11:15-11:30	WTTV 1
Sports 11:15-11:30	WLWI 2
Weather, Sports 11:15-11:30	6

WISH Average Rating: 5 Average Share: 42

FRIDAYS 11:15-2:00

Program: LATE SHOW

Nov. 11 "TARZAN & THE AMAZONS"
Brenda Joyce, Johnny Weissmuller
1945, RKO, Banner, 1st Run

Nov. 18 "TARZAN & THE SLAVE GIRL"
Lex Barker, Vanessa Brown
1950, RKO, Banner, 1st Run

COMPETITION PROGRAM	STATION & AVG. RATING
Jack Paar 11.30-1:00	WFBM 6
Gold Cup Theatre 11:30-2:00	WLWI 2
Burns & Allen, Thea. 1:00-1:30	WFBM 1
Charlie Stuart Thea. 1:30-2:00	WFBM 1-
26 Men 11:30-12:00	WTTV 1-
Medic, Police 11:15-11:30	WTTV 2
Weather, Sports 11:15-11:30	WLWI 3
Weather, Sports 11:15-11:30	WFBM 7

(Continued on page 54)

TV-Radio Production Centres

IN NEW YORK CITY . . .

Gwen Verdon to guest at the Veterans Hospital Radio & Television Guild 13th anni ball at the Essex House, April 14 . . . Barbara Walters quitting Tex McCrary's pubrelations outfit where she headed radio-tv department for a similar post with Rowland Co. . . . Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt will appear the season after next on some of the 26 half-hours that ABC-TV is preparing about her late husband, FDR; Robert D. Graff and Ben Feiner will head production on the telementary series . . . Jerry Wald, Jeanne Crain, Bobby Darin, Jane Fonda and Danny Thomas the interviewees this week on "Assingment Hollywood." Fred Robbins' syndicated radio skein . . . Seymour Robbie is directing the Gleason stanza on March 24. "Omnibus" March 27 and "Play of Week" on March 27 . . . WNBC-TV Radio veep Bill Davidson was guest speaker last week for the N. Y. Board of Ed's in-service course, "Television in Today's World" . . . Al Hollander, WABC-TV program boss, and WNEW-TV pubaffairs producer Ted Yates head the production planning group for the first telecast of the N. Y. area Emmy awards, with Ben Grauer, John Wray and David Susskind acting as advisors to the production. . . . ABC newscaster Edward P. Morgan just won $1,000 and the Alfred I. DuPont Foundation Commentator Award . . . Andrew Pearson, son of NBC's Lester Pearson, has gotten himself temporarily on the NBC paymaster's list by stringing for the web news department in the Congo . . . Larry Blyden on the April 30 "Loretta Young Show" . . . Shelley Dobbins now producing WNBC Radio's Bill Cullen morning strip. Same station's merchandising manager Joe Murphy off on a one week cruise to the Bahamas . . . Mel Howard, who constructed much of the on-the-air promo work for the web last year, off to Hollywood to speak to producers of NBC-TV shows about similar promoting next season.

John W. Kluge, proxy and chairman of Metropolitan Broadcasting, named to the board of directors of the Advertising Council for a three-year term, repping the outdoor advertising industry . . . CBS newsmen on the lecture circuit: Ernest Leiser at a U. of Chicago alumni session last Wednesday (15) on "Is TV Doing the Job?" and Walter Cronkite at Milwaukee's Sigma Delta Chi chapter yesterday (Tues.) . . . Sally Ann Howes signed for the title role in "Jane Eyre" on next month's "Family Classics" on CBS-TV . . . Glenn Hasselrooth, continuity writer on WCBS-TV's "Late Show," recuperating at home following surgery . . . Jay Barney into "Our American Heritage" as Gen. Longstreet in the "Robert E. Lee" episode taped last week for April 22 showing on NBC-TV, and also into "My True Story" on Mutual . . . Johnny Friedkin dissolved his indie flackery and joined Rogers & Cowan in Gotham in newly created slot of national publicity director . . . Eric Sevareid off to the West Indies for a brief vacation before returning to his London post for CBS . . . Mike Donovan, the CBS doorman, missed his first St. Pat's parade in many years—he's bedded with hepatitis at Knickerbocker Hosp . . . Nancy Walker inked for two Ed Sullivan guest shots, first of which is live in June, second of which was taped yesterday (Tues.) opposite Bert Lahr in a recreation of one of their "Boys Against the Girls" sketches for airing in July . . . Gerald E. Marenoff switched from director of auditing for CBS Television Stations to business manager of CBS-TV Spot Sales.

Lester L. Wolff has been elected to board of trustees of National Jewish Hospital at Denver. Wolff is proxy of co-ordinated Marketing Agency and is producer and moderator "Between the Lines" on WNTA-TV . . . National Educational Television and Radio Center received its largest mail pull from the recent "Prospects of Mankind," themed on the Peace Corp. Over 450 letters and postcards have been forwarded to NET N. Y. headquarters . . . Claudine Longet, currently dancing at the Hotel Tropicana, Las Vegas, set for a solo on the Andy Williams tv special May 21 . . . Composer-conductor-arranger Eddy Manson to guest April 4 on WCBS' "Jack Sterling Show" . . . Hertz System and E. I. DuPont de Nemours have bought spots around WPIX's Yankee game telecasts . . . General Mills has renewed half-sponsorship of the "Red Barber Show," series of post-game WPIX telecasts . . . Berr Sharfman, who has been covering video for the Newhouse Syndicate, shifts to the staff of the Harrisburg, Pa., Patriot-News as an editorial writer . . . Wall Street Journal has a brace of video articles in the hopper, one by Johnny Apple, surveying the changing dominance patterns among the three webs, the other by yet amusements beat man Stan Penn, assaying pay-tv with emphasis on programming impact.

Karl Malden appearing today on CBS Radio interview with Bob Dixon . . . Director Nick Webster en route to Berlin to handle one of Bell & Howell "Close-Up" stanzas about life behind the Iron Curtain; he's been accompanied by web staff scribe Leo Swaim . . . WABC-TV is seeking a weather girl for its new 6:15-6:30 p.m. "Report to N. Y." bowing April 10 . . . Chubby Jackson of "Chubby's Rascals" on WABC-TV, being replaced during his two-week respite by Ed Bakey . . . Barbara Joyce set for brief return engagement on "As the World Turns" soaper . . . Joe Stamler, Channel 7 (WABC-TV) topper, talking today (Wed.) for group of local school teachers at TIO session at Denacil Library . . . Jocko Maxwell, doing nightly 10-minute sports show on WNJR for G. Kreuger Brewing.

IN HOLLYWOOD .

Mel Blanc ended his long hospital siege to mend from his auto crackup injuries at home . . . Don Estey joined Jack Denove Productions as veepee in charge of industrial and training films . . . KNXT reinstated its avem strip, "Panorama Pacific," with Red Rowe back as emcee and Chet Brouwer producing . . . Carl Jampel's game show, "Seven Keys," moves from KTLA to ABC-TV April 3 with Jack Narz as emcee . . . Kathleen Crowley had to cancel several tv commitments because of severe eye burns, On St. Patrick's day, yet . . . Francis Scully, p.r. for Lever Bros. shows in Hollywood, takes off next week for a grand tour of Europe, her first sabbatical in 25 years . . . Mort Werner called Ollie Treyz on one of his two mobile phones and got Jack Paar instead. Telephone lines crossed . . . Joe Bigelow back in town and may set up a Coast office for So-Big Enterprises with Harry Sosnik, all the action being out here . . . Danny Thomas and Ernie Ford are said to be serious about retiring as weekly performers but not Jack Benny. Now in his 30th radio-tv year, he'll keep going if he has to get up to the cameras on two canes, according to Irving Fein, proxy of Benny's J & M Productions.

IN CHICAGO

Hugh Downs, Marilyn Maxwell, Pat Buttram and Ted Weems all have dotted so far to appear here for Chicago UnLimited's 25th anni salute to AFTRA on May 25. Charley Weaver is tentative, and so are other ex-Chicago radio performers Perry Como and Dave Garroway. Shindig will be held in conjunction with the unveiling of the new Sheraton-Chicago Hotel . . . Tv Academy's local chapter has skedded ABC's Jim Hagerty as speaker at its April 5 membership rally . . . Tom Walsh joined WBBM-TV's pubrelations dept., replacing Jim Stevenson who moved up as national sales service rep . . . Jules Herbuveaux, NBC Radio topper here, motored to Denver to glimpse his newest granddaughter and then to the Coast for a few tight's respite . . . Jimmy Dean takes over as "Breakfast Club" host the week of April 3, while Don McNeill vacations . . . WGN booked solid through April 29 with studio audiences for new "Barn Dance" show . . . Tv critic Paul Molloy

(Continued on page 52)

Shelton's ABC Exit

Washington, March 21.

Edgar G. Shelton Jr. has resigned as ABC's v.p. in charge of Washington maneuvering. He will continue the same activity through a new private public relations-government relations firm he is establishing here under the name of Shelton.

Shelton, who took leave from ABC last Fall to work in the political campaign of his fellow Texan, Vice President Lyndon B. Johnson, has been operating in capital corridors and offices for ABC since 1957. He received v.p. rank last year. Previously, he held posts in Government, primarily in the manpower and Defense Dept. areas. He had been a World War II Navy officer.

FTC in Colgate 'Decay' Slapdown

Washington, March 21.

Federal Trade Commission has ordered Colgate-Palmolive Co. to stop making what it regards as false claims that Colgate Dental Cream completely guards users against tooth decay.

In an opinion by Commissioner William C. Kern, FTC hit at Colgate's "invisible screen" television commercials—no longer used—showing a ball tossed at an announcer only to be deflected by a transparent pane. The claim was made that Colgate's ingrediate "Gardol" forms a "protective shield" around the teeth in the same fashion.

Denying Colgate's appeal from an earlier examiner's opinion, Commission said: "In our opinion, respondent's television commercials and print advertisements clearly and directly represent that Colgate Dental Cream with Gardol affords users complete protection against decay and against development of cavities."

One of main arguments by Colgate in its appeal was that it dropped the commercial after the original FTC complaint was issued.

FTC conceded Colgate had been cooperative, but added that the firm persisted in contending the advertising was not false.

TRIANGLE'S SPONSOR SWEEP ON SEBRING

Triangle Stations, which last week announced the group would provide independent coverage of the 12-hour sports car grind at Sebring, Fla., March 25, were racking up local sales for the spread before the week was out.

Among bankrollers are: Schmidt's beer for a half-hour film show in April on WFIL-TV; Ladd Motors for a half-hour film on WLYH-TV, Lancaster, Pa.; Midas Mufflers ditto on WNBF-TV, Binghamton, N. Y., and Noreleo on WNHC-TV, New Haven.

Radio coverage, which will feature three-minute reports every half hour from Sebring, will be sponsored by Household Finance on WFIL; by Road & Track, a New Haven sports car dealer, on WNHC; and Binghamton Laundry on WNBF.

Triangle's coverage is up for sale to non-competing stations with the tv footage available in both color and black and white. Direct radio reports will be handled by Bill Webber.

Group will have, besides Webber, a crew of six cameramen, reporters and technicians filming the endurance run and the events leading up to it.

Com'l TV to 'Feed' BBC On Eichmann's Coverage

London, March 21

Exclusive British tv rights in the Eichmann trial, starting April 10, have gone to commercial companies. But, because of public interest, ITV is making day-to-day news shots of the trial available to the rival BBC network for use in news programs.

Commercial companies are also planning several documentary programs on the trial. These will contain material exclusive to them. Rights in the trial were bought by Capital Cities Broadcasting Corp.

Bates Boss Joins Knopf Illustrious As Rosser's Dossier Hits the Stalls —On Other Madison Ave. Fronts

By BILL GREELEY

The distinguished American book publisher Alfred A. Knopf, who introduced American readers to Thomas Mann, Franz Kafka, Sigrid Undset, Albert Camus, Jean-Paul Sartre, Andre Gide, John Hersey, Dashiell Hammet, Habbil Jibran, Abraham Myerson, Katherine Mansfield, Mikhail Sholokhov and Nicholas Mansarrat, will soon premiere Rosser Reeves.

The Ted Bates board chairman is clearly a thinking man of another stripe, and, depending on your intellectual stance, the release of Reeves's "Reality in Advertising" signifies either the rise of advertising or the fall of publishing—or maybe just another promotion of Bennett Cerf, Random House topper who last year bought out the Knopf firm.

But whatever its place on the Knopf bookshelf, there's no denying "Reality in Advertising" is a lively and cogent defense—or offensive—of the hard sell. And the Knopf version, an expansion of a Reeves tract published for "Confidential" use of client and Bates' personnel, is at least apple-shot with high-sounding classical and literary references, beginning in the preface with the Karamazov Bros. and winding with Wm. Shakespeare. In between, Reeves makes several references to a number of his cronies from the Knopf stable. The works of Camus, for instance, relate to the Bates "Unique Selling Proposition," because in "The Fall," the Frenchman describes how he has many times lost the thread of conversation when distracted by a beautiful woman crossing the street. Reeves points out that the "Video Vampire," the beautiful chick in the blurb, often distracts the viewer from the USP.

The peerless pitchman is at his best when attacking Madison Ave.'s voodoo drum-beaters. Example, from "The Freudian Hoax," takes on psychological researchers: "There are one or two practitioners in advertising who claim to be in touch with the Freudian infinite. Like the Delphic oracle (dig that one), they stay in business, we suspect, because people want to believe that they know the answers. We have tried them, and we find their reports vague, subjective, and as confusing as a hall of distorted mirrors. Their findings, certainly, are not duplicatable."

But for all its impact, Reeves, as Habbil Jibran might well have said, "missed the head." He ends with a passage that has a ring of autobiography to it, and it might have been the preface: "Most advertising men, however, are still necromancers at heart. They do believe in ghosts. They listen to voodoo drums, whisper magic incantations, and mix in their potions, eye of newt and ear of frog. Some day, like the barber surgeons of 400 years ago, they must begin to look objectively at their craft. Somewhere, in our business, is the first true anatomist—a Vesalius, who will begin to trace the linkage of the tendons, or a Harvey, who will begin to speculate about the circulation of the blood. Advertising will be on the way, then, to becoming a profession."

And there are a couple of things sadly amiss in this primer of a slight 150-odd pages. Treatise could be greatly expanded, and deepened, with a few storyboard illustrations of Bates USP at work—a cross section of an animated stomach loose interpretation of dipping acid, or the same of a headbone, not with eye of newt and ear of frog, but filled with jolting trip hammers and bolts of lightning. The jarring voice-over copy would have to be left to the imagination.

Secondly, the text of FTC and FDA actions against Bates clients could be [illegible] and [illegible] appendix. There are a few people along Madison Ave. who still think there are better ways to present the Unique Selling Proposition to 109,000,000 tv viewers than like a mortar ankle circa 1890.

Up and down: Dudley D. Carroll Jr., formerly with Time, Inc., joins BBDO as an account group head on Curtis Publishing.

Veepee stripes for Leonard Carlton and Carroll Pfeiffer at Kenyon & Eckhardt.

Robert Sturtevant to Kenyon & Eckhardt as a copywriter. He was with Radio Free Europe in Munich, Germany.

Paperl, Koenig, Lois adds two copywriters, Micaad Campbell, formerly with Donahue & Co., and Renee Dorck, formerly with Bergdorf Goodman, Fifth Ave.

George R. Gibson joins L. [illegible] & Frasley as a senior account exec. He was with Gardner Advertising.

New Biz: Mamus [illegible] as to Wexton.

London Agencies

London, March 21.

General Mills, U. S. food company which invaded the British breakfast table by introducing Betty Crocker cake-mixes to U.K. last September, now all set for an assault on British breakfasts. Starting April 5, GM plans a six-week campaign to launch four new cereals: Cheerios, Sugar-Os, Cracka-Jacks and Starlies. Agent S. C. Peacock is using 45-second tv commercials and ad magazines from London, Southern and Anglia stations, as well as press advertising . . . London Press Exchange running an eight-weeks tv campaign for Hartley's jams; using four 30-second films from all stations sans Scotland . . . California Raisin Advisory Board, San Francisco, appointed J. Walter Thompson Company Ltd., to run public relations and educational program in British market . . . S. H. Benson Ltd., in charge of $10,360-a-week campaign for Prom home permanent wave, launched by Toni Co. Thirty-second spots on London, Midlands and Northern commercial tv stations back up color ads in femme magazines.

With the Station Reps

Past week has seen management shifts and appointments affecting Adam Young org, the new Storer property and Westinghouse Broadcasting and its house rep TvAR.

At Young, James F. O'Grady, who has been in charge of the video rep firm, Young-Tv, becomes exec veepee of the parent organization. Stephen A. Machinnick, who has headed up the radio division, becomes a veepee and general sales manager of both companies.

WEC has named Walter A. Schwartz as national radio sales manager. He's been in charge of the group's Detroit radio sales office which he opened in May of '59. Group's property, TvAR, has hired Ben Margolis as administrative assistant to the general manager and veepee Larry Israel. It's a newly-created post. Margolis has been with CBS since 1927, and for the last 10 years has been business manager of CBS Television Spot Sales.

At Storer Television Sales Corp., Gail Yingling has been appointed comptroller and treasurer. A CPA, Mrs. Yingling has been assistant to the comptroller at Grey Advertising for the last three years.

Briefs: Hugh H. Johnson, director of media at Kudner Agency, retires this month after 17 years with the shop. He'll continue to serve as a consultant . . . Milton H. Blackstone has been named advertising and exhibit coordinator for the 1961 American Tv Commercials Festival.

Sinclair's Skelton Pay

Sinclair Oil & Refining, long a stranger to network tv, gets into the act this spring with sponsorship of four Red Skelton shows on CBS-TV during May and June. Sinclair will alternate with S. C. Johnson & Sons, show's regular sponsor.

The company [illegible] in by Johnson to give it a [illegible] week relief on its stranglehold [illegible]. Johnson had taken over [illegible] sponsorship on the [illegible] in mid-[illegible] Pet Milk decided to pull out of network tv altogether.

Ten million viewers a week! Watching 33 million hours a week! That's the audience picture on THE LATE SHOW in just five markets...those served by the five CBS Owned stations. And the picture gets better all the time. Because THE LATE SHOW is now showing more great movie hits of the '50's...star-studded features, never before shown on television, from a prize package of more than 250 Columbia pictures (including "The Caine Mutiny," "Knock On Any Door," "The Long Gray Line," "The Marrying Kind," "The Harder They Fall" and "Valentino"). All this added to film libraries which already are seen by the largest movie audiences in each market. CBS TELEVISION STATIONS

SOURCE: Unduplicated audience, latest available NSI.

A Division of Columbia Broadcasting System, Inc.
Operating WCBS-TV New York, WBBM-TV Chicago, KNXT Los Angeles, WCAU-TV Philadelphia, KMOX-TV St. Louis (all represented by CBS Television Spot Sales).

TV Followup Comment

Continued from page 35

Carnegie Hall the previous afternoon and producer-director Roger Englander gave it strong visual values. Gros.

CBS Reports

A preview of what President Kennedy's "Peace Corps" will be up to in the next few years was dramatically and vividly portrayed in the "CBS Reports" stanza last Thursday (16) called "Crossroads Africa—Pilot for a Peace Corps." The showing put CBS right on the beam with a topical story of primary interest. Another score for the net on this show was that its narrator, Edward R. Murrow, had just a few days before received his Congressional okay as USIA chief.

The hour show centered on a group of 14 students who took their summer vacations last year in Guinea to work, teach and play among the natives. The studes were under the aegis of Rev. William S. Coffin Jr., chaplain at Yale, and under the overall direction of the Rev. James H. Robinson, director of Operation-Crossroads Africa.

The program showed in sharp pictorial terms, and often with no-punches-pulled dialog, the problems and the pleasures the youth corps finds in foreign lands, especially in Negro countries. R. Sergent Shriver, director of the "Peace Corps," was also on hand for a summation of what the org is all about and the kind of people they want in it.

In fact, the "CBS Reports" stanza served as an excellent recruiting item for Shriver and President Kennedy. It showed the American students (colored and white) in Guinea working with the locales, participating in political discussions, attending and participating in musical fests and teaching the Guinea youngsters English and the "American Way" in general to a folksy musical backing. In Shriver's pitch for the "Corps" he asked for volunteers with skills in engineering, teaching, health and agriculture. He should have mentioned folk-singing. This show made it all seem important. Gros.

NBC White Paper No. 4

"White Paper" has risen to the top of tv's public affairs heap in four trys. The NBC-TV program, done under Irving Gitlin's aegis by producer Al Wasserman, seems now to be the very best of the informational programs since the days of the old CBS-TV "See It Now." It has style, meaning, a high degree of impact and remains, as its title suggests, thoroughly provocative.

On Tuesday (14) at 10 p.m. stanza studied some of the nation's state legislatures. This great spectacle of Americana and democracy suffered sufficiently at the hands of NBC's seemingly objective newsmen to make one wonder what the state's righters are holding onto. It was immediately evident, even in the explanations of some legislators from North Carolina and Minnesota, that the Legislators are handicapped by anachronistic laws, by extreme local pressures, by a lack of money, by a lack of prestige, by a lack of time and, later, it even seemed as if many of them were impeded by a lack of knowledge of some of the complexities that faced them. Present, if muted, in the hour-long program was the suggestion of another lack—a lack of honesty on the part of some stage legislators.

Unfortunately, the work and trials of state legislatures rarely get the manner of public attention needed to make them work more effectively. In picking a subject that is frequently obscured in its particulars by the round of heavy biz before the federal government, "White Paper" did an incalculable service to the country. Whether anything good will come of it is another story; tv can't do everything, but with a few more items like this last "White Paper" it might be doing enough. Art.

Frontiers of Faith

Religioso series "Frontiers of Faith" took an offbeat flyer in a song and dance motif to deliver its message last Sunday (19) afternoon. The novelty was there, but other elements were lacking.

Titled "No Skin off My Nose," the half-hour was themed on how to live with Christian ethics in a commerical world dedicated to the buck. It must be said that the problem was much better posed than the solution. Answers, some of which were provided in outright prose by an official of the National Council of Churches, seemed far too generalized for direct application in the setting. Adam, the moniker of the man confused by the values around him, had ample justification to remain just as confused. More was needed than tricky lyrics, light stepping, and derivative music to engage, hold, and win the viewer. Problems posed were deep troublesome, needing greater flair and dramatic gifts than those offered. Outing had far more bite in its satirical thrusts and perhaps if the creative energies were bent along these lines all the way, the impact might have had greater validity.

The cast of three were engaging, Russell Nype and Eileen Brennan, as the song and dance message bearers, and William Redfield, as the confused corporate Christian. Horo.

PROGRESS IN HARTFORD

Custom-made equipment moves into Broadcast House, the distinctive new home of WTIC-TV-AM-FM in Hartford. Broadcast House, scheduled for operation in the near future, will be the first building completed in Constitution Plaza, part of the dynamic new redevelopment taking place in downtown Hartford. Advt.

Briefing Session For 300 Broadcasters On U.S. Foreign Policy

Washington, March 21.

President Kennedy and Secretary of State Dean Rust will give broadcasting news and public affairs execs and commentators the foreign policy lowdown in a special briefing conference in Washington April 3-4.

About 300 broadcasters are being invited to the sessions at which top State Dept. policy makers and key officers of other agencies will also take part. In his invitation to the broadcasters, Rusk said:

"The purpose of the conference will be to examine a number of current international issues and provide opportunity for discussion between you who report and comment on these issues and senior officers of the Dept. who are responsible for dealing with them.

"It is our hope that these discussions will provide you with useful information and, at the same time, help us to improve our understanding of your information needs."

Television Reviews

Continued from page 35

bara Wagner & Robert Paul, jointholders of the World and Olympic figure skating titles, who turned pro to star in the current tour of the Ice Capades. Produced, written and directed by Don Hudson, who also supplied two of the hitsongs, it was a marvel of planning which not only starred the Canadian championship pair but also resulted in Osborne Colson, formerly of the Ice Follies, being mainly responsible for the choreography.

The plot dealt with a lonely secretary (Mary Lynn Shepherd) who found romance when an earthbound astronaught (Gordon Crossland) erroneously landed on Planet Ice by rocket.

The "Bianca" number, "But Not for Me" and the rock 'n' roll medley, which was the brilliant finale were standards, ably backed by Samuel Hersenhoren's orch and the Gina Silvi mixed chorus. "Planet Ice" was a slick production in which grace of movement, story line and witty dialogue were predominant, with Wagner & Paul manifestly spectacular in their duet dances on skates, complete with dramatic lifts and spins. Also Hudson was fortunate in getting Mary Lynn Shepherd who, in addition to her figure skating, can sing; with Crossland, her vis-a-vis (and former star of the Ice Capades) a better skater than a baritone.

Hudson's production values were first-rate. He also had the ice painted green to offset the glare for surface and overhead cameras; with the double-reflection effects of the Wagner-Paul dance team secured by a layer of water immediately on top of the ice.

The tab was shared by the CBC and Tappan-Gurney, makers of electric ranges. Latter's commercials (by Herb May) were unobtrusive. McStay.

TRIAL BY JURY
With Dale Clark, David N. Gambrell, Judge Virlyn Moore, Academy Theatre Players, Ivy Talent Service performers, Charles Allen, others
Executive Producer: Skip Thomas
30 Mins., Tues., 8 p.m.
FIRST NATIONAL BANK OF ATLANTA
WAGA-TV, Atlanta (film)

Another in WAGA-TV Public Affairs Project 5 series, this program examined Georgia's jury system, pointing up its salient aspects displaying the virtues as well as the faults. It hit home, of course, since most citizens qualify as a potential juror or, if his luck runs out, he could become a defendant.

Georgia court machinery, like the mills of the gods, grinds exceedingly fine, therefore there's a tremendous waste of time, no matter how hard the jurists try to speed up things.

Produced with the co-operation of the Atlanta Bar Assn., the program included the appearance of David N. Gambrell, representing the Court Congestion Commission, who discussed the faults and frustrations of the present court calendar, and Judge Virlyn Moore, senior jurist of Fulton Superior Court, who offered an appraisal from the bench of the local jury system.

Charles Allen, president of the ABA, summarized present courtroom situation as revealed by association's long study and Dale Clark, WAGA-TV's director of Public Affairs, concluded with an effective editorial statement.

Members of jury, and officers of court were recruited from Atlanta's Academy Theatre and Ivy Talent Service, all of whom contributed their talent and time. Production borrowed a theatrical technique as the jurors were oblivious to the presence of the narrator (Clark) as he walked freely through the "courtroom" describing proceedings, as the action was played against an impressionistic suggestion of a courtroom.

Station's Project 5 (WAGA-TV, of course, uses Channel 5) has popular appeal locally and is indicative of the type of program that can entertain as well as instruct. Luce.

WBC's Int'l News Strip

Westinghouse Broadcasting will originate an international news strip for its radio stations, beginning Monday (27).

"Radio News Day," a 15-minute nightly series (7 p.m.), will be broadcast to WBC outlets from Washington with national news editor Jerry Landay serving as producer and anchorman. Daily format will include late national and international news, features and special events. Besides national coverage, reports will be fed from the 22 European and African nations covered by WBC's overseas news operation headed by Rod MacLeish.

RESUMES

- Catering to "Show Biz" people.
- Personalized booklet or sheet style, with or without photograph.
- Layout from countries leading colleges.
- Free consultation.
- Low rates.
- Samples on request.

ELITE SECRETARIAL SERVICE
220 Fifth Avenue, New York 1, New York

ADMINISTRATIVE ASSISTANT

Young Lady seeks diversified position with broad expansive potential. (Research, Marketing, Sales Services, etc.). Over 5 years experience with top TV Distributors and producers. Excellent references. Resume or personal interview.
Box V-2125, VARIETY
154 West 46th Street, New York 36, N. Y.

ADV. AGENCIES, TV PRODUCERS . . .
I HAVE WHAT YOU NEED:
CREATIVE TALENT
PROVEN EXPERIENCE
DYNAMIC FORCEFULNESS
Write Box V-2127, VARIETY
154 West 46th Street, New York 36, N. Y.

EVERY DAY ON EVERY CHANNEL TV
BROOKS COSTUMES
3 West 61st St., N.Y.C.-Tel. PL 7-5800

JACKIE MASON

"Mason in action . . . the freshest approach to laughter these weary ears have heard in years."
FRANK FARRELL, New York World-Telegram

Guest Starring May 3: PERRY COMO SHOW, NBC-TV
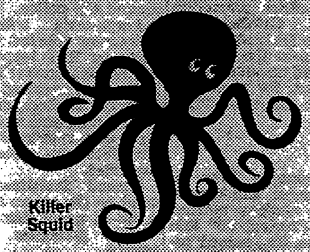
Currently, hungry i, San Francisco; Opening, Mar. 25th, EDEN ROC, Miami Beach
NEXT: CRESCENDO, L. A. — COPACABANA, N. Y.
Columbia ALBUM Soon to Be Released: "JACKIE MASON at the hungry i"
Personal Manager: BOB CHARTOFF, 157 West 57 Street, New York, N. Y.

GAC

OCEANS OF RAVES FOR "Diver Dan"

"Edwards Shoes (Sponsor) excited about DIVER DAN. After only three programs, WCAU-TV and client impressed. This show a winner."
Al Fingerman,
Ernest William Greenfield, Inc.



Killer Squid

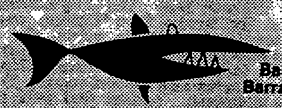
"DIVER DAN at 4:30-5:15 P.M. (period) number one in ratings." Bob Guy, Program Director, WWL-TV, New Orleans

Skipper Kipper

"Kids will be fascinated by the underwater movement. The action has an hypnotic effect that makes you follow the characters. Kids will love it . . . We have always been ahead of the trend. DIVER DAN's gonna be big! It will be a winner!"
George W. Cyr, Program Manager, WGR-TV, Buffalo

Finley Haddock

"Just a note to let you know that I have heard from Ernie Greup at WTVD about DIVER DAN. He says: ". . . Their (ITC's) product is a great one. Our children viewers scream for DIVER DAN to come back."
Donald A. Pels, Controller, Capital Cities Broadcasting



Baron Barracuda

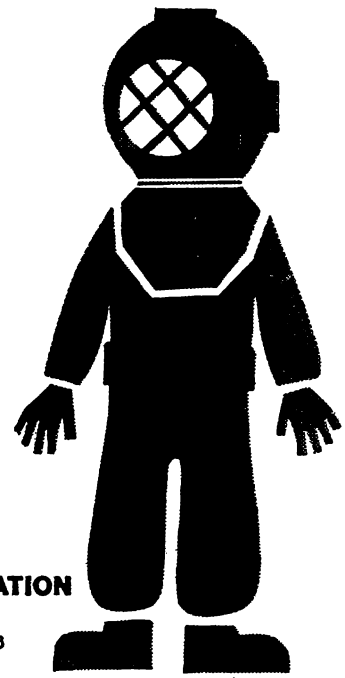
"The new concept inherent in the DIVER DAN series is very exciting . . . A great success!"
Warren Wright, Program Manager, WFBM-TV, Indianapolis

THE THRILLING ACTION ADVENTURES OF DIVER DAN AND HIS UNDERSEA FRIENDS

Delightful . . . different . . . completely flexible . . . Exploits of the fearless explorer, Diver Dan . . . the beautiful mermaid . . . and the wonderful puppet-fish . . . all part of this underwater live-and-puppet adventure in color and black-and-white. Can be shown as you see fit. One adventure flows into another for a half-hour, a 15-minute series, or include 7-minutes of DIVER DAN in your own local program.

"Diver Dan"

Already sold: New York, Chicago, Philadelphia, Indianapolis, Buffalo, Cincinnati, New Orleans, Seattle, St. Louis, Detroit and other top markets. Key stations KTVI-TV, WKRC-TV, WGR-TV, WWJ-TV, KKTV-TV, WCAU-TV, WFBM-TV, KOMO-TV, WGN-TV, WFRV-TV, WNEW-TV, WJAC-TV, WREX-TV, WTVD-TV, etc., etc. For TV's newest color-ful entertainment-success for the whole family, phone or wire today.



ITC

INDEPENDENT TELEVISION CORPORATION
488 Madison Avenue • New York 22, N.Y. • PLaza 5-2100
100 University Avenue • Toronto 1, Ontario • EMpire 2-1166

From The Production Centres

Continued from page 47

spending this week in N. Y. to confer with Doubleday on publication of his book, "And Then There Were Eight" . . . Alex Dreier, who sez he's going to add a 6 p.m. newscast on WBKB next fall, narrates the Colpix LP which showcases Negro comic Dick Gregory.

IN LONDON . . .

Associated Television's new networked "Drama 61" series kicked off Sunday (19) with "The Cruel Day" by Reginald Rose, best known here for his "Twelve Angry Men" movie . . . BBC taped the Anglo-American students' quiz programs recently broadcast by New York Station WCBS. British listeners will hear skein of four, starting Tuesday (28) . . . June Christy due to sparkle Val Parnell's "Startime" for Associated Television April 5 . . . "The Avengers" topping Saturday night ratings in the Midlands since it began, with average TAM figure for first four weeks of 51 . . . Dennis Day and Ruth Olay on the bill for Granada Television's "Variety Show" tonight (22) . . . Peter Ustinov will yak about people and places for 50 minutes with Cliff Michelmore, Derek Hart and Kenneth Allsop in BBC-TV's "After Supper" Tuesday (28).

IN BOSTON . . .

Actual sounds and voices of Ireland highlighted on WBZ-radio special St Patrick's Day tribute 20-min. documentary . . . WHDH-radio disk jock Hank Forbes receiving congrats on son, Jeff, regular left halfback and numeral winner of Harvard Freshman football team . . . John L. Williams appointed assistant program mgr. for WBZ-radio . . . David Brinkley coming to town for safe driving meeting with Joe Ryan, WBZ-TV press chief, hosting a press contingent . . . Teresa Brewer, Jerry Vale, Santo and Johnny and Dion headlining Bob Clayton's "Boston Ballroom" program over WHDH-TV, and Clayton has Fabian set for Saturday (25) from 1 to 3 p.m. . . . Second annual "TV Guide Bowl-Off" to comprise three matches at Kenmore Bowladrome April 25, May 2, and May 9. Each of Hub's four tv stations to be represented by a five-member men's team and a five-member women's team.

IN SAN FRANCISCO . . .

FCC last week granted an AM license to Service Broadcasting Co. at suburban Concord and an FM license to House of Music, Turlock, a small city in the northern end of the Central Valley . . . KPIX named Joe Ries traffic supervisor. He's up from national sales, previously worked for KTVU, Frisco, and WLW, Cincinnati . . . Ampex introduced a new "low-cost" videotape recorder designed specifically for closed circuit work—electronics of new recorder is simpler than the broadcast recorder needs only one "head" to four for the broadcast model and the basic price is $20,400 . . . Lee Patterson of "Surfside 6" in Frisco to emcee a couple events at Hi-Fi show . . . "Hawaii Calls" moved to KNBC, 6:30 p.m., Saturdays . . . KTVU's Joe Costantino, sales promotion manager, recuperating in a Berkeley hospital after surgery . . . KFRC running an "Easter Bonnet" contest . . . Ben Draper, producer of long-running "Science in Action," off to the Orient for a month to prepare tv coverage of the Pacific Science Congress which meets in Honolulu in August.

IN MINNEAPOLIS . . .

Calvin Griffith, owner of the Minnesota Twins baseball team, formerly the Washington Senators, reportedly getting $515,000 for radio-tv rights to the Twins' games this year. Last year in Washington, Griffith was paid $200,000 for similar pact . . . In neat public relations move, WCCO Radio, which preempted Metropolitan Opera broadcasts in order to carry spring training games of the Minnesota Twins, referred opera buffs to competitor KSTP, now airing the operas . . . WCCO's "Bob De Haven News" led all local shows in latest Nielsen Station Index. Ratings also gave WCCO, Twin Cities CBS affiliate, 62.1% of Nov.-Dec. listeners . . . While covering the Minnesota State House for last week's NBC White Paper, "Man in the Middle: The State Legislator," writer Bob Bendiner was mistaken for a legislature page by one redfaced lawmaker.

IN CINCINNATI . . .

WLW-T will televise 51 games of the Cincinnati Reds this season, 22 of them day and night in color. Mikers are Ed Kennedy, former WKRC radio and tv sportscaster, and Frank McCormick, ex big leaguer, for his fourth season on the air . . . WCKY, first midwest clear channel station to tape 24-hour programming, has upped its automation with IBM and Collins equipment . . . Kahn's Meats tagging telecasts of U. Cincinnati basketball games in NCAA tourney on WKRC-TV with the station's sports and weatherman at the mike . . . Jim Thomas, on Cincy tv screens since 1953, moves to Chicago after April 22 to join WGN Syndications, Inc., for international spread of his Outdoor Rambler series . . . WKRC is presenting a Saturday a.m. three-hour condensation of Stan Matlock's weekday "Magazine of the Air" programs for that week.

IN TORONTO . . .

After five years with the Canadian Broadcasting Corp. as producer, Patrick Kearney resigns next month and heads for Ireland to set up Radio Eireann's new tv service. Kearney's hq will be Dublin. Meanwhile, his task is to get programming rolling by November, and promised the aid of the BBC . . . CHUM named winner of Canada's coveted and senior John J. Gillin memorial award for best contribution to education and entertainment, plus providing a broad program of community service . . . Associated with CFRB since 1947—and continuing his a.m. show is Wally Crouter has been appointed promotion manager of largest indie radio station in Canada . . . Cathleen Nesbitt in town to do the eccentric Miss Havisham role in Dicken's "Great Expectations" to be broadcast at 9 p.m. on March 27 over the CBC-TV web for two-hour program . . . Sports car driver and announcer for Players Cigarets via tv, Gil Christie will serve as p.a. for press and radio when Stirling Moss makes his Canadian debut and opens Mosport sports car track, with Players backing.

IN PHILADELPHIA . . .

Three WCAU-TV execs veepee and general manager John A. Schneider; Mel Levine, assistant to the general manager, and Donald P. Lennox, director of public affairs, will discuss stations policies with regard to religious programming on "Inside Channel 10" (25) . . . Joel Deutsch, formerly of the Strassler Johnson Co., named assistant director of promotion for WIP . . . TV's pioneering religious series for moppets "Come Little Children" returns for a new 13-week series on WRCA-TV (26) . . . The Amity Square Club presented its "Young man of the year" award to deejay Oaky Miller (15) . . . Gene London's "Cartoon Corners General Store" on WCAU-TV, named winner of the 1961 TV Radio Mirror Award as "Best TV Children Program, Atlantic States.

IN PITTSBURGH . . .

Albert McCleery took a serious blast at David Susskind when he left here after spending a week training a crew at WQED, the tv educational station . . . KDKA gave away green trading stamps on a big St. Patrick's Day promotion. 100,000 stamps were given away with two people getting 10,000 apiece . . . Harold V. Cohen, drama critic on the Post-Gazette and host on KDKA-TV's "Double Feature for a Sunday Afternoon," is now also handling a series of films that won the Academy Awards. They will run up to the night of the awards which will be carried locally by WTAE . . . Former WWSW announcer Jack Craddock is seriously ill in East Liverpool, O. . . . Ed Mallory, who left KDKA-TV 15 months ago for Hollywood, has signed a contract with Revue for six pictures. He had a small role in "Birdman of Alcatraz"

IN DALLAS . . .

John Newland, of ABC-TV, and Johnny Crawford of "The Rifleman," to attend the April 4 weeklong opening of WFAA-TV's new $3,500,000 communications center. Other ABC stars will attend open house . . . Allen Case, a local boy who inherited a clothing store here, interviewed by Joanne Jordan on NBC-TV's "Here's Hollywood" last week. Case (whose real handle is Allen Jones) is an ex-WFAA-TV vocalist, but now a costar of "The Deputy" . . . John C. Butler named commercial manager of KIXL and KIXL-FM . . . Charles M. Boland, veteran Texas radio-tv announcer, named commercial manager of KVIL here.

Satiric Series On Italian TV Brings Neo-Fascist Beefs

Rome, March 21.

A major censorship hassle, culminating in the personal intervention of Italian Prime Minister Fanfani, has developed around a new video series titled "Tempo di Musica" (Music Time), produced by Italy's RAI-TV network.

First stanza in weekly (live) series, which is designed as a satire of customs, people, and events of the past 30 years in this country, raised such a storm of protests from various groups, but especially from neo-Fascist elements and press, that the Prime Minister asked that future numbers be toned down so as not to offend susceptibilities around the nation.

Large-scale trimmings were thereupon effected on the second show by RAI toppers to such a degree that director Daniele D'Anza and others involved threatened to walk out of show, or at least have their names removed from credits. Lack of proper rehearsals likewise threatened to cause show to be cancelled.

Second installment eventually went on the air an hour late, after a fill-in panel discussion on university problems had run its course.

Sponsors Yell

Continued from page 1

will program multichrome. Of course, there is a bug in the bag: CBS would need more than one and probably more than two regularly skedded color shows to be able properly to amortize the cost of color loops rented from AT&T—unless one sponsor wanted to pick up line charges of about $45,000 monthly. (Web must rent them by the month.)

ABC is more adamant. It does not have the reserve color equipment of CBS, which once did color and then withdrew. But a network source said that it wouldn't cost much more than a million or two to install the proper color equipment, especially since the newer network studios have room for tint.

The automotive sponsors on NBC who chose that network in the past because they wanted tint (and NBC picked up the extra cost of same) are no longer as hot on video, due to general market conditions, as they once were.

CONTACT LENS SPECIALIST

On Call 24 Hours Daily to meet your EYESIGHT EMERGENCY

• CONTACT LENSES • Fitted While You Wait (Laboratory on Premises)

• Complete Optical Service •

Eye Examinations - Glasses Fitted

Conveniently Located Grand Central - Times Square Radio City

DR. N. ROBERT SANDOW Optometrist

10 E. 43rd St., nr. Fifth Ave., N. Y.

MU 2-4466 • Night: TW 6-7801

Milt Rich on Own

Milt Rich, vet CBS publicist, has left the network to set up his own indie publicity shop. Rich already has several clients in the house, all of them in the radio-television field.

For years, Rich was publicity director of WCBS, the CBS Radio flagship station in N.Y. He then moved on to "Person to Person," heading the show's p.r. as an editorial associate on the show until its demise this season. For a brief period prior to leaving the web, he was with CBS News as its publicity liaison.

Houston — Marge Connor has been named Women's Director here at KHOU-TV. She will appear on the "Marge Connor Show" daily with a 15 minutes of names in the news, celebrity interviews.

'Watch Mandell'

Continued from page 31

foreign market to the firm. It's estimated that 25 to 30% of ITC's total take comes from sales outside the U.S. That 25 to 30%, while representing a minority of the total take, looms in the profit picture for the company. Mandell, before his promotion, had been ITC's international sales v.p. He retains that title in his new post, while overseeing domestic sales as sell. Mandell's promotion occurred in the wake of the bowout of Walter Kingsley as prexy. Mike Nidorf assumed Kingsley's prexy post, remaining as board chairman as well.

ITC's healthy position in the foreign market has a strong assist from its parent. All ITC shows are picked up by ATV, for telecasting in England. ATV's ownership also gives ITC shows preferred position in Commonwealth nations such as Canada and Australia. "Whiplash," starring Peter Graves, incidentally, was produced in Australia, the first vidfilm series with a Down Under locale.

Mgt. William Morris Agency

the most engaging "original" musical ever shaped for the small screen.

Who wrought this delight? VARIETY Captivating

FAX AXE Hax YAX!

a delightful hour of fantasy. the best original television songs the nicest sixty minutes we've seen in a long time.

We had a little gem with the little people and blarney and sauciness "O'Halloran's Luck," every 60-second minute of it, was a smasheroo. a milestone.

Thanks, Variety, for recognizing that Original Musical Theatre has at last arrived on TV. — as did every other critic with a record for calling the trade's shots!

Sincerely, Perry Cross

the most original score there was more originality and bounce than in any of the New York-bound musicals I saw here this season major asset was a far above average witty, saucy fantasy and a pure delight all the way.

refreshing musical

"O'halloran's Luck"

A SEWANEE PRODUCTION

It was original and professional—more than can be said for any other TV musical. BEST BET best TV program I've seen in recent months.

amusing, charming and warm.

blithe and volatile

—a perfect characterization of a grand role.

O'HALLORAN'S LUCK

(Sun., 9-10 p.m., KRCA-NBC)

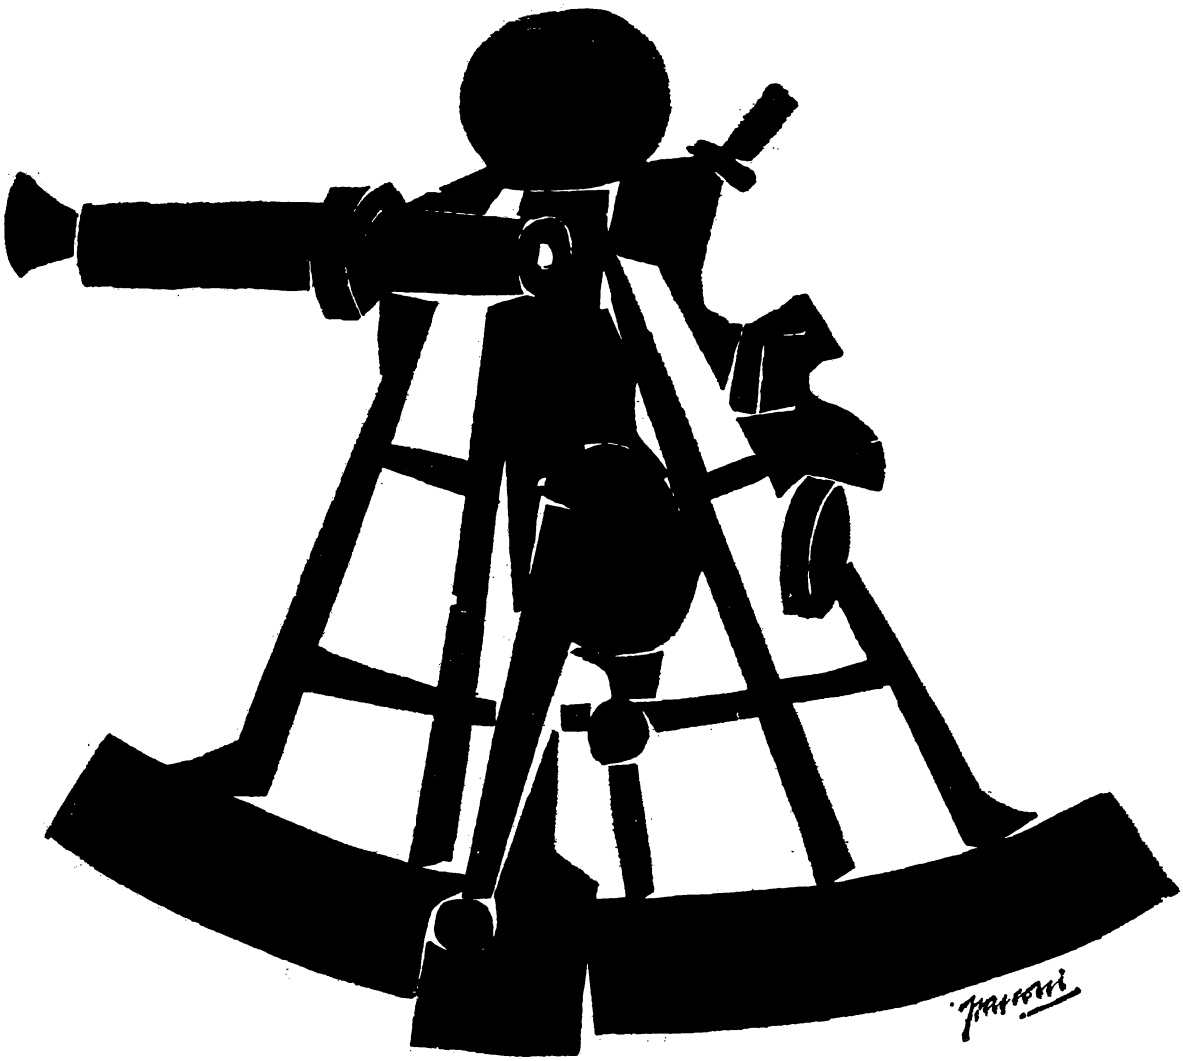
As Irish as Paddy's pig and meaty as an overstuffed porker was Art Carney's tribute, of a sort, to Ireland's patron saint. It was perhaps his best special since the award-winning VIP's of last season. Lively as a jig, rowdy-dowdy as a Pier 6 brawl and with brogues as thick as peat bog, yet and withal a delight to the ear with its original music score and eye-filling with fast movement.

Stephen Vincent Benet's "O'Halloran," a likeable Irishman, whose talisman was a leprechaun called Rory, was played to the cork by Carney and seemed to be tailored to his thespic fit. As full of blarney as an ebullient Celt, he bulled and bluffed his way from a track worker to president of the railroad. For which he could thank Rory, a creation of puppeteer Bil Baird, who waved a stick and water rushed. Baird's "little people" must have charmed the kiddies as Carney's romancing of Barbara Cook did the elders. Out of the score may come one winner, "Cheeks For My Roses," a lilting love song dueted by Carney and Miss Cook. It must have been producer Perry Cross' favorite, too, for he had it reprised.

The show's musical facet, aside from "Cheeks," was mostly robust male voices, the Frankie Laine type that almost drowned out Henri Rene's fine orchestrating. Production-wise, it was a master effort that paid off handsomely and had that special look appropriate to the occasion. Miss Cook proved a bright comedienne with a good singing voice. Show's music was credited to Diane Lampert and Peter Farrow on the lyrics and David Saxon the music. An outstander in the supporting cast was Pat Harrington Sr.

In Dinah Shore's time, it was intro'd as "The Chevy Shoe" (the Ed Sullivan influence). Commercials were neatly tied in with the shoe's paddy-waggin'. Helm.

★ ★ ★



SEXTANT celebrates its first anniversary this week continuing to create productions of imagination, quality and impact.

SEXTANT productions (1960-61): WINSTON CHURCHILL — The Valiant Years with ABC and Screen Gems; NOAH AND THE FLOOD (original musical drama by Igor Stravinsky, choreography by George Balanchine) for world premiere on CBS; THE NEIGHBORING SHORE (1960 Grand Prix winner at the Venice Film Festival).

SEXTANT productions (1961-62): FRANKLIN D. ROOSEVELT series with ABC; MIRROR IN MY HOUSE (feature film of Sean O'Casey's autobiography); THE LITTLE PRINCE (musical version of Antoine de Saint-Exupery's fable); THE BRAVEST BOAT (half-hour film of Malcolm Lowry's story).

For information: Robert D. Graff, President, Sextant, Inc. 510 Madison Avenue PLaza 2-4797

Ciggie Splurge

Continued from page 25

"The Rebel," already has relocated a good chunk of the coin with the new NBC hour entry, "Dr. Kildaire," scheduled for Thursday nights at 8:30. The buy of two minutes a week is worth more than $3,500,000 to the web.

McCann also is seeking an hour slot for the agency-Desilu bankrolled hour pilot (in two parts) based on Counter Intelligence Corps wartime cases. Could be that a good slice of the remaining L&M coin will go to the network than finds a spot for the show. Part one of the two-hour pilot is in the can, and L&M is a likely sponsor if the show lands.

There also are reports that McCann has negotiated an order for half of the 8.30 to 9:30 CBS Wednesday berth that has no show as yet designated. A possibility is the hour "Beachfront," Miami based adventure skein produced by actor Keef Brasselle.

With Albines' $3,000,000 or so billings shifted from Doyle, Dane, Bernbach to Leo Burnett in Chicago (which handles Marlboro with Burton & Bowles on Parliament), Phillip Morris may be adding another web show to the current roster, which has been renewed all the way. Lineup includes Doug Edwards CBS news outing, a sixth participation in "Perry Mason" and alternate weeks of "Dobie Gillis," both CBS; and participations in the hours "Route 66" and "Rawhide."

And it wasn't so many seasons ago that PM pulled out of its single network buy, "I Love Lucy," to plump the entire budget into spot. Company will continue its pro football on a regional basis.

With Ted Bates tele toppers in Kentucky late last week to confer with Brown and Williamson execs, the big firm's outlay has just been settled, with possibly some confirmations yet to come. This season, B&W has been in with "Surfside," "Stagecoach," "Wanted, Dead or Alive," "Naked City," "Outlaws" and "Checkmate." Already firm for the coming season are the new CBS Thursday night entry, "Fasten Your Seat Belts" (an alternate buy of the Bob Cummings half-hour) and "Dangerman," ITC adventure skein replacing "Wanted" on the same web.

B&W also reportedly has participations in the new ABC Sunday hour, "Bus Stop," and possibly the following hour entry, "Las Vegas." Also renewals on the strong hours, such as "Naked City," are assured.

Likewise, the R. J. Reynolds web lineup went up for client approval late last week, with Wm. Esty agency execs in Winston-Salem for client talks. Agency had already secured an alternate buy of "To Tell the Truth" through the summer with an option to continue the G-T quizzer in the fall.

An agency spokesman said early this week that the only new buys settled so far are two minutes a week of the NBC Saturday night feature film spread, and an alternate half of the same web's Thursday songfest with Mitch Miller.

However, renewals of "Wagon Train," "77 Sunset Strip," "Flintstones" and the other sure bets of the current season are virtually assured for Reynolds.

Winston-Salem, N. C.—Winston-Salem Broadcasting Co.'s application to purchase KTHT, Houston, from the Texas Radio Corp. has been approved by the FCC.

VARIETY ARB FEATURE FILM CHART

(Continued from page 46)

WFBM Average Rating: 9 Average Share: 29

SATURDAYS 5:30-7:00
Program: CINEMA 6

Nov. 12 "TOM SAWYER"
Jackie Coogan
1930, Paramount, MCA, 1st Run

Nov. 19 "HUCKLEBERRY FINN"
Jackie Coogan
1931, Paramount, MCA, 1st Run

COMPETITION

PROGRAM	STATION & AVG. RATING
Wrestling 5:30-6:00	WISH 12
All Star Golf 5:30-6:00	WLWI 10
I Led Three Lives 5:30-6:30	WTTV 2
Polka Parade 6:00-6:30	WISH 8
Jimmy Powers, News 6:00-6:30	WLWI 6
Country Show 6:00-6:30	WTTV 4
Whirlybirds 6:30-7:00	WISH 15
Mid West Hayride 6:30-7:00	WLWI 9
Jim Bowie	WTTV 2

WFBM Average Rating: 4 Average Share: 57

SUNDAYS 11:00-12:15
Program: PIX ON 6

Nov. 13 "ANGELS OVER BROADWAY"
Rita Hayworth, Doug Fairbanks Jr.
1940, Columbia, Screen Gems, Repeat

Nov. 20 "THE MAN I MARRIED"
Joan Bennett, Lloyd Nolan
1940, 20th Century Fox, NTA, 1st Run

COMPETITION

PROGRAM	STATION & AVG. RATING
UN In Action 11:00-11:30	WISH 1-
Church In Home 11:00-11:30	WLWI 1
Camera 3 11:30-12:00	WISH 1
Rocky & Friends 11:30-12:00	WLWI 2
TV Workshop 12:00-12:15	WISH 3
Behind Your Policy 12:00-12.15	WLWI 1
Rev. Oral Roberts	WTTV 1

GROCERY CHAIN'S BID FOR MPLS. STATION

Minneapolis, March 21.

In its first move toward diversification outside the food field, Red Owl Stores, local grocery chain which operates throughout the midwest, has filed an application with the FCC to purchase radio station KRSI from Radio Suburbia, Inc. Terms of the stock exchange on which the purchase is based were not disclosed.

The three-year-old station in suburban St. Louis is restricted to daylight broadcasting but has application pending before the FCC for removal of limitations. According to Alf L. Bergerud, president of Red Owl Stores, KRSI will be operated as an independent subsidiary of the food chain.

Wrestling Fans to JFK: 'You Gotta Do Something' But Prez Passes Buck

Washington, March 21.

President Kennedy has refused to referee televised wrestling in Washington.

Letters from outraged televiewers to the White House demanding the President "do something" about unsportsmanlike conduct have caused him to do something. He has sent the letters on to the District of Columbia Commissioners (they correspond to a city council) to wrestle over.

One letter from a Bronx televiewer said a wrestler that night had come into the ring with a blackjack strapped to his hand, while the manager of another wrestler entered the ring and smashed a contestant over the head with his cane.

"In the very capital of the U.S., you find the dirtiest, most despicable wrestling in the world," the New Yorker declared.

Promoters started calling the televised Capitol Arena attractions here "exhibitions" (rather than contests) some time back.

Goeffrey M. Thornett, secretary of the local Board of Commissioners, said the routine of the wrestlers "is very carefully rehearsed." Changes in their act might "affect the timing of the performers, creating a possible danger to either or both," he said.

Chester Gray, D. C. corporation counsel, said sponsors of the wrestling have agreed to urge the wrestlers "to show more deference to the referees."

Eichmann

Continued from page 1

themselves on an equal basis the Video tape made in the courtroom.

Capitol has installed four Marconi four-and-a-half inch cameras, which are practically noiseless and do not need much extra light.

Milton Fruchtman, executive producer of Capital expressed to this correspondent his satisfaction for the accommodations his company was given by the authorities. He promised to film every minute of the trial, as long as it lasts. According to Fruchtman every hour of the the trial will produce a tape one mile long. The tape is bilingual. One of the languages will be Hebrew, which is the official language of the court. Second will be English, French or German—the three languages into which the proceedings are going to be simultaneously translated.

Besides that, in the laboratory set up near the courthouse, two additional translations will be prepared immediately, in Spanish and Portugeze, for use in South America.

Though there is no television in Israel, a closed-circuit TV will be set up, leading from the courtroom to a nearby hall with 700 seats. There the proceedings will be available on screen, free of charge. Long queues will wait at the entrance, at least at the beginning of the trial, as at the courtroom only a few seats will be for the public. Most of the seats are reserved for diplomats, foreign observers, members of the parliament, government officials and the press.

The interest for the Eichmann trial, which will start next month, is immense.

Court Okays Coverage

Defense objections to vidtape coverage of the war crimes trial of Nazi Adolf Eichmann in Israel have been set aside by the court, according to a statement this week from the Israel Government Press Office.

Statement says the three trial judges have inspected the equipment in the courtroom and decided there will be no interference with proceedings.

Says the Press Office, "According to Israel law, the decision whether to allow photography in a courtroom is in the sole discretion of the court trying the case . . . In a reasoned judgment, the judges stated that they had visited the courtroom, observed the equipment in operation and satisfied themselves that there would be no interference whatever with the proceedings."

TOP-NOTCH RATINGS IN MARKET AFTER MARKET!

"TWO FACES WEST"

ST. LOUIS 31. GREAT FALLS 35. EUREKA 36.

Source: Nov. 1960 - Feb. 1961

For Further Details Contact

SCREEN GEMS, INC.

TELEVISION SUBSIDIARY OF COLUMBIA PICTURES CORP.

711 Fifth Avenue, New York 22 PL 1-4432

NEW YORK DETROIT CHICAGO DALLAS HOLLYWOOD ATLANTA TORONTO

EMMETT KELLY

Mgt.: LEONARD GREEN
300 E. 51st St., New York
PL 2-1764

JACKIE MASON

"Jackie Mason on TV 'again and again,' which can't be too often! Mason is a truly inspired comedian, assured, poised and explosively funny."

MARIE TORRE, New York Herald Tribune

Guest Starring May 3: PERRY COMO SHOW, NBC-TV

Currently, hungry i, San Francisco; Opening, Mar. 25th, EDEN ROC, Miami Beach

NEXT: CRESCENDO, L. A. — COPACABANA, N. Y.

Columbia ALBUM Soon to Be Released: "JACKIE MASON at the hungry i"

Personal Manager: BOB CHARTOFF, 157 West 57 Street, New York, N. Y.

GAC

Inside Stuff—Radio-TV

Because each of the "460 Secrets of Advertising Experts" (Thomas Nelson & Sons; $4.60), by Willard A. Pleuther, for 16 years veepee of BBDO, should be worth "at least a penny-a-piece," the price of the book comes to the above odd amount. Considering the 23 ad experts who contribute it's a bargain for anybody directly or peripherally concerned with advertising.

Among the experts are Bristol-Myers' Lee H. Bristol Sr., Thomas D'Arcy Brophy, ex-Kenyon & Eckhardt, John Caples (BBDO), Bennett S. Chapple Jr., v.p., U. S. Steel Corp.; William W. Mulvey, Cunningham & Walsh; John Paver, president of the National Outdoor Advertising Bureau; Alden James, of ditto; Pleuther himself; James Proud, prez of the Advertising Federation of America; Edwin W. Ebel, ad veep of General Foods; Bernice Fitz-Gibbon, ad consultant; Frederic R. Gamble, prez of American Assn. of Advertising Agencies; Dan Goldstein of Schenley's; Chester H. Lang of General Electric; N. J. Leigh (Ellson-Freeman); J. Gordon Lippincott (& Marguelies); Claude Robinson, Opinion Research Corp.; Hal Stebbins, Milton Sutter (Cunningham & Walsh), William Taubin of Doyle, Dane, Bernbach; Ivan Veit, business manager, N. Y. Times; Edward C. Von Trees, Curtis Pub. Co.; Janet Wolff, J. Walter Thompson.

There are more than 460 good ideas in advertising, promotion and marketing to be gleaned from this savvy, straight-from-the-shoulder book. Abel.

The N. Y. Daily Mirror is expanding its tv coverage with addition of John David Griffin's new daily pillar, "I See By TV." This will permit tv-radio editor Nick Kenny to broaden the scope of his personal column.

Actually the Mirror has been doing that, via supplementary columns by Charles Kenny (Nick's brother) and an occasional delving into the medium by front-of-the-paper columnist Bill Slocum.

Griffin is the son of William Griffin, publisher of the old N. Y. Sunday Enquirer (different format than the present-day sheet) and Kenny recalls writing Griffin Sr. congratulating him on its new columnist, John Griffin. The publisher-editor of the Enquirer wrote Kenny that John was his son—and 12 at the time.

U. S. Bureau of Prisons director James V. Bennett, who a few weeks ago got embroiled with ABC-TV over handling by "The Untouchables" of a story involving federal prison guards, last week threw tv a bouquet. In a letter to CBS, he bestowed high praise on "A Real Case of Murder," the March 2 "CBS Reports" segment on the problems of judicial procedure. Bennett called the show "an outstanding example of the kind of programming that can be undertaken in the public interest."

Ironic that "CBS Reports" and "Untouchables" are in direct competition with each other.

Lou Dorfsman, CBS-TV's creative director of sales promotion & advertising, who makes an annual practice of whipping off with the cream of the Art Directors Club of N. Y. awards, did it again this year.

Dorfsman yesterday (Tues.) walked off with two prizes, both Awards of Distinctive Merit. One was for his nine-second on-the-air program promotional announcements, which utilized live-action film instead of the customary slides and telops. Total of nine of his spots were cited. Other award was in the packaging section classification, where his plastic promotion kits for affiliate use copped a Distinctive Merit prize. Awards luncheon was held at the Waldorf-Astoria.

Martin Mayer, "Madison Avenue USA" author, worked over the role of the tv critic at yesterday's (Tues.) luncheon of the Radio & Television Executives Society final time buying seminar of the season. "The television critic," Mayer observed, "has been making people feel ashamed of themselves—as well they should. If ever a group of people needed a conscience, it is the people in television."

Todman's Lament

Continued from page 27

gested a 7 p.m. Sunday slot for the Nick Adams starrer, but, says Todman, "the sponsors are not selling candy." L&M has already axed the show for next year, and P&G may well do the same.

Other Casualties

Another G-T entry, "One Happy Family," which was revived Friday nights on NBC early this year after a summer replacement run, quietly vanished from the air last week. Replacement, on the entire network except New York, is "Five Star Jubilee," country and western musical out of Springfield, Mo.

A year ago, G-T saw its "Phillip Marlowe" gumshoer go off the air after it had begun to bulid and, says Todman, "if the agency execs had had their way, the show would still be running."

If "Happy Family," "Rebel" and "Yank" wind up on the syndication circuit like "Marlowe," there's still a good chance of some G-T footage in the fall sweepstakes. It's an hour adventure. "Las Vegas Beat," with NBC "committed," according to Todman, and the pilot about set for web viewing. Show, however, is likely to wind up on Friday nights against entrenched "77 Sunset Strip," a dimly viewed prospect at G-T, and ABC now definitely has slotted a "Las Vegas" hour Sunday night—and that's a lot of Chanceville per week.

Same time, Todman is not overjoyed at NBC's shuffling of "The Price Is Right" to Monday night to open up a hot half-hour following rating winner "Wagon Train" Wednesday night, but he can shrug it off, because the G-T quizzers manage to pull sizable audiences no matter where they land. "Price" will be joined on Monday by another Goodson-Todman quiz, "Concentration," the NBC morning strip emceed by Hugh Downs.

Prospects also look good for G-T's "To Tell the Truth" and, of course, the strong "What's My Line" (sold to CBS) in prime night time. And "Say When," NBC, 10:30 a.m., and "Number Please," ABC, 12:30 p.m., are this year's additions to the G-T roster of daytime stips—doing just fine, thanks.

New Ottawa Station's 'Bring 'Em In Live' Pattern in First Week's Click

Ottawa, March 21.

Hungry for a second station, Ottawa viewers have given this town's new television outlet, CJOH-TV, a solid preem week reception. Owned and operated by E. L. Bushnell Television Co., CJOH-TV debuted March 12 and has completed its first week with minimum trouble and maximum audience reception.

S. W. Griffith, v.p. and g.m., told VARIETY "Our live shows are getting the biggest reception." He named his station's magazine-style nightly stints, "Compass" (6 to 7 p.m.) and "Vue" (10 to 11:15 p.m.), both using news, interviews, music, sports, others, all live and both relaxed and smooth entries.

"We had no idea how many these people in Ottawa were for another station," said Griffith. "They want live tv. We know shows like 'Rawhide,' 'Maverick,' '77 Sunset Strip' and 'Route 66' would get good reception but we've come to using television methods of five or six years ago to bring Ottawa viewers what they want and what they've been missing." Until CJOH-TV preemed, the 70% of Ottawa's population which majors in English had only the Canadian Broadcasting Corp.'s tv station, CBOT, to watch. Sole alternative was CBOFT, the CBC all-French outlet here.

Griffiths said CJOH-TV's advance flacking over-emphasized, purposely, the possible fluffs and goofs watchers might expect from a new video station. Although CJOH-TV's troubles were fewer than expected, the sympathies of the public were aroused so greatly that the merest mixup—loss of sound, mixed lines, missed cue—would bring telephone calls "almost offering assistance," Griffiths said the station's sponsor lineup is strong and growing to their satisfaction.

CJOH-TV is operating in temporary quarters with minimum equipment. Its new building, expected for mid-summer completion, is currently three weeks ahead of schedule.

CBC HEAD DENIES COMMIE INFILTRATION

Ottawa, March 21.

Alphonse Ouimet, president of the Canadian Broadcasting Corp., denied charges made by a member of parliament in Ottawa that communists were among CBC's 7,200 employees. Ouimet told the House of Commons committee on broadcasting that CBC was stoutly protected from Commie infiltration by screening via corporation's own security force plus the Royal Canadian Mounted Police.

As to gabbers on public affairs shows, the president claimed care was taken to avoid presentation of "extreme" views.

See Senate OK On ETV Bill, But House Hopes Dim

Washington, March 21.

The $51,000,000 Federal grant bill to promote educational television was set to pass the Senate before nightfall today (Tues.), but its chances in the House dimmed significantly.

House hearings opened with House Commerce Committee Chairman Oren Harris (D-Ark.) saying the bill shouldn't be approved until the committee finds out what each state would do with the $1,000,000 grant earmarked for each. (D.C. also gets a $1,000,000 grant under it.)

"Until that information is gathered," Harris said, "I am not satisfied with the bill." In the House, he usually has his way with tv legislation.

'Ev & Charlie'

Continued from page 27

necessarily the voice or the image of the party?"

Another told the Post that Dirksen's and Halleck's problem was as much (if not more) in how they looked as what they had to say.

"From the other end of (Pennsylvania) Avenue, all is accent on youth, vigor and bright, happy faces. If it isn't Jack, it's Jacqueline or Caroline. It's unfair to Ev and Charlie."

Dirksen and Halleck, as well as the GOP National Committee, have carefully—and on purpose—refrained from demanding "equal time" with the televised Kennedy press conferences. A spokesman for them and the committee said they have "no present intention" of making such a request. But they are tabulating the coverage they get and don't get.

"We have noticed," said an aide, "that we haven't been having ABC coverage, and Jim Hagerty used to be our (GOP) man in the White House press secretary's office."

Brown Heads Grampian

Aberdeen, Scotland, March 21.

David N. F. Brown, 33-year-old executive with the British Broadcasting Corp. in London, is named as General Manager for Grampian Television Ltd.; northeast Scotland commercial tv outlet.

He began his career with the BBC as an announcer in Scotland, graduating to Scottish Program Executive. He has latterly been working in London

NOW NO. 1 in BOSTON

WNAC-TV

Between 7 P.M. and 11 P.M.

On January 1st WNAC-TV shifted to ABC-TV and immediately jumped to FIRST PLACE in prime time!

ARB Share — Sunday thru Saturday 7 P.M. – 11 P.M.

	WNAC-TV	Station A	Station B
Dec. 1960	31.4	29.5	39.1
Jan. 1961	37.2	28.5	34.3
	+18%	—3%	—12%

Nielsen Share — Sunday thru Saturday 7 P.M. – 11 P.M.

	WNAC-TV	Station A	Station B
Nov. 1960	30.3	31.2	38.5
Feb. 1961	39.5	31.4	29.1
	+30%	— —	—24%

WNAC 7 TV

An RKO GENERAL Station

For prime availabilities contact your WNAC-TV H-R Representative

Radio and Television Station Representatives

GILL-PERNA, INC.

654 Madison Avenue, New York 21, N. Y. TEmpleton 8-4740

NEW YORK
CHICAGO
DETROIT
LOS ANGELES
SAN FRANCISCO
ATLANTA
BOSTON

Jocks, Jukes and Disks

By HERM SCHOENFELD

Gary Crosby (Warner Bros.): "YOU'RE NOBODY 'TIL SOMEBODY LOVES YOU" (Southern*), turns up in a savvy version due for spins. "BABY, WON'T YOU PLEASE COME HOME" (Pickwick*) is another strong slice in similar slow tempo.

Dorothy Dandridge (Verve): "STAY WITH IT" (Comet*), a swinging ballad with a nifty lyric, gets a classy workover that'll give this performer a crack at the pop market. "SOMEBODY" (Famous*), the oldie, gets a stylish vocal.

Joe Melson (Hickory): "HEY, MISTER CUPID" (Acuff-Rose*) is a jumping teen-angled number delivered in the approved style by this songwriter. "NO ONE REAL-LY CARES" (Acuff-Rose*) is another strong slow tempo.

Randy Lee (Cameo): "TELL MY MOTHER" is a rocking tune in the style that's in a potent combination. "SO WRONG" (Cameo*), a slow ballad, is also effective.

Russ Carlyle Reeves: "THE SONG OF ARABY" (Mill City*), is a smooth swinging ... for the kids listening ... "A MAN LIVES A LONG, LONG TIME" (Carbaugh*) is ... material.

Sandy & Johnny (Canadian-American): "HOP SCOTCH" ... "SEA SHELLS" (Trinity*) ... Hawaiian flavor.

The Drifters (Atlantic): "SOME KIND OF WONDERFUL" (Aron*), is a soft ballad delivered in the type of rock ... which the teenagers dig. "HONEY BEE" (Progressive*) is another slow rocker ... with chances.

Paul Evans (Carlton): "AFTER THE HURRICANE" (Pamblilyn*), a folk-flavored ballad with a well-written lyric, is handled in excellent style by this singer. "Not Me" (Pamblilyn*) is also due for a big teenage reception.

Jimmy Banner (20th-Fox): "BIMBO" (Fairway†) is a bright moppet-angled slide handled in very appealing style by this folk singer. "YOUR CHEATIN' HEART" (Acuff-Rose†) returns in a good rhythm version.

Ford Eaglin (Imperial): "IF I COULD" (Travis†), a catchy rocking ballad, is handled with a fine blues feeling for solid impact. "GUESS WHO" (Michele†) is a fair slow-tempoed side.

Wes Farrell (FTP): "WILLY AND THE HAND JIVE" (El Dorado*) is a cute teen-slanted rhythm number delivered with an interesting blend of rocking and square-dance ideas. "YOU GOT LOVE" (Rell-Tem-Pel*) is a bright rock-

LAWRENCE WELK

Features FRANK SCOTT'S Harpsichord on a Great New Dot Album and "Single" "CALCUTTA" ...Following his Top-Hit "Last Date!"

Best Bets

BRENDA LEE ..... YOU CAN DEPEND ON ME
(Decca) ..... It's Never Too Late

Brenda Lee's "You Can Depend on Me" (Peer) turns up in a shapely ... due for big play. "It's Never Too Late" (Jat*) is another nifty ballad side.*

* * *

HUGO & LUIGI ..... LA PACHANGA
(RCA Victor) ..... Bimboney

Hugo & Luigi's "La Pachanga" (Peer) introduced a new twist in Latin Hootenany in a highly appealing setting, featuring a children's choral ensemble. "Bimboney" (Paxetary*) is a pleasing side extracted from a Hugo & Luigi album.*

* * *

THE PLATTERS ..... TREES
(Mercury) ..... Immortal Love

The Platters' "Trees" (Schirmer-Vogel) gets a respectful version but it's a cinch they'll put this standard into the jukeboxes. "Immortal Love" (A.M.C.) is a pretty rocking ballad.

* * *

JONI & TONY ..... THEME FROM 'CARNIVAL'
(MGM) ..... Can You Imagine That

Joni James and Tony Aquaviva's "Theme from 'Carnival!'" (Robbins) is a lush version of a fine tune from the Bob Merrill show score that's slated for big play. "Can You Imagine That" (Robbins*) is a pretty ballad from the same show.*

* * *

LEFTY JONES ..... TENNESSEE MOLLY
(Cadence) ..... Why Not

Lefty Jones' "Tennessee Molly" (Gil) is a driving instrumental ... "Why Not" (Gil*) is another good slice in the same groove.*

*

DAVID SEVILLE ..... FREDDY, FREDDY
(Liberty) ..... Oh Judge, Your Honor

David Seville's "Freddy, Freddy" (Monarch) is a bouncing ... with a catchy lyric brightly projected by a girl's chorus. "Oh Judge Your Honor, Dear Sir, Scoundrel" (Monarch*) is an ... material with a ... flavor.*

* * *

GENE PITNEY ..... TAKE ME TONIGHT
(Musicor) ..... Louisiana Mama

Gene Pitney's "Take Me Tonight" (Aldon) is his ... "Louisiana Mama" (Musicor*) ... where he's ...*

* * *

ALICIA ADAMS ..... LOVE BANDIT
(Capitol) ..... Dom Dooby Doom

[illegible] "Love Bandit" (Paxetary) ... "Dom Dooby Doom" ...*

LA CARA" (Aram-Rose*) is a ... ballad.

Randy Lee (Cameo): "TELL MY MOTHER" is a rocking tune in the style that's in a potent combination. "SO WRONG" (Cameo*), a slow ballad, is also effective.

Russ Carlyle Reeves: "THE SONG OF ARABY" (Mill City*), is a smooth swinging ... for the kids listening ... "A MAN LIVES A LONG, LONG TIME" (Carbaugh*) is ... material.

Sandy & Johnny (Canadian-American): "HOP SCOTCH" ... "SEA SHELLS" (Trinity*) ... Hawaiian flavor.

The Drifters (Atlantic): "SOME KIND OF WONDERFUL" (Aron*), is a soft ballad delivered in the type of rock ... which the teenagers dig. "HONEY BEE" (Progressive*) is another slow rocker ... with chances.

Paul Evans (Carlton): "AFTER THE HURRICANE" (Pamblilyn*), a folk-flavored ballad with a well-written lyric, is handled in excellent style by this singer. "Not Me" (Pamblilyn*) is also due for ...

Gloria Lambert (Columbia): "YOU AIN'T GONNA HURT ME ANYMORE" (Pamco*), a bouncing ballad ... "TOUCH TIME I HEAR" (Macy's*) is an okay country ballad.

Skip & Flip (Time): "DOUBT" (Tiger*), has a ... pat rock-'n'-roll lines ... "BETTY JEAN" (Tiger*) is in the rocking teenage-title tempo ... to give it some spinning opportunities.

Camarata Orch (Vista): "TRUMPET'S LOVER" (Walt Disney*), is being ... because of the current trumpet craze and Conrad Gozzo's soloing makes special play. "LOUIS" (Walt Disney*) has a pleasant swinging vein but it doesn't build enough excitement for the pop spinners.

Skip Roper (Colpix): "PICK OF THE WEEK" (Trinity*) picks up almost every teenage music phrase and works it into a slice that the young disk fans will take to strongly. "I GREW UP LAST NIGHT" (Trinity*) is a lighthearted rocker that's built along familiar lines.

The Do-Re-Mi Children's Chorus (Kapp): "DONDI" (Lear*) has a likable lilt and the kiddie chorus gives it an appeal that will warm some jockeys to its side. "HE'LL LOVE YOU AS YOU ARE" (Garland*) has a bright sing-along quality fashioned along gospel lines to build up its spirit.

*ASCAP. †BMI.

FOREST HILLS STADIUM AS MUSIC FETE SITE

The Forest Hills Tennis Stadium in Long Island will be the site of a music festival this summer. The fest, which will run from June 30 to Aug. 26, is being produced by Limelight Productions.

One of the features of the festival will be the "Forest Hills Folk Festival" to be held over the July 15-16 weekend. The folk segment will be under the direction of Oscar Brand. Such folksters as Theodore Bikel and Josh White are slated to appear.

Ardmore Music Snags Eurovision Prizewinner

Ardmore Music, a Capitol Records publishing arm, has acquired the American rights to the prize-winning European song, "Angelique." The song, written by Aksel V. Rasmussen, recently won the Danish Melody Grand Prix and represented Denmark in the Eurovision Melody Grand Prix in Cannes last week.

Dick Loring and Alan Hood have written an English lyric for the tune.

'Grand Ole Opry' Troupe In Tex. Bus Accident

Marfa, Tex., March 21.

Nine members of the "Grand Ole Opry" troup from Nashville, Tenn., were injured when their bus left the highway about 38 miles west of here.

Most of the injured were members of the Ray Price orch. Price and three other musicians chartered a plane here for the rest of their trip to Corpus Christi, Tex., for a performance. They were en route from El Paso, Tex.

Female members of the group were in another bus in front and didn't know of the accident. They went on to Corpus Christi. Price said none of the injured was hurt seriously.

Longplay Shorts

Dimitri Tiomkin's score for "The Alamo," a soundtrack album release by Columbia, copped the last annual Western Heritage Award for the "Outstanding Musical Composition of the Year" . . . Command Records has prepared a window display kit containing 32 assorted items for dealer use around the country . . . London Records has put a special $2.98 price tag on its new Edmundo Ros album 'Sing 'N Clap Along' and Ernest Ansermet conducting Beethoven's Ninth Symphony . . . Chris Connor, Atlantic disker, co-headlining the Fort Lauderdale Jazz Festival with the Hi-Lo's and the Gerry Mulligan Concert Jazz Band March 24-29 . . . Roulette Records new sales plan offers 33 albums free for every 100 purchased . . . Bud Greenspan has prepared an LP called "Great Moments in Boxing" for Coral release. Sportscaster Don Dunphy and Grantland Rice are among the commentators in the set . . . Orch leader Herb Zane, who plays at the Steak Pitt, Paramus, N. J., has a new LP out on the Roulette label titled "Let's Go Latin" . . . Jacy Parker has just completed his first album for MGM/Verve. He's currently on a tour of college dates in the midwest.

Album Reviews

"Is This Your Rudy Vallee?—" (Crown). Rudy Vallee, the original crooner and self-styled "Pat Boone of the Stone Age," returns to the wax sweepstakes as a comic. This set, recorded during a performance in a Coast nitery, includes one song parody and concentrates on the gags. Armed with a script loaded with gags, Vallee registers as a low-pressure performer who is able to toss off a funny line, whether blue or not, with sharp timing and appealing casualness. Some of the gags date back to before the last Presidential campaign and should have been edited out along with the tasteless final gag. The recording quality of this disk is somewhat fuzzy.

Bob Melvin: "Closer, Baby, Don't Fight It" (Capitol). Another comedy entry, this LP showcases a new young comedian, Bob Melvin, who's been playing the major niteries across the country. Melvin turns up with several solid routines which he projects with an adroit change of pace and a perceptive eye for detail. His takeoff on a lisping civil defense director is milked for maximum returns. He also scores with his comments on married life, the garment center, used car dealers, romantic techniques and his rating of the audience.

"Ill Will" (Jubilee). This is still another LP laughmaker by an expert mimic working under the nom de disk of Ill Will. This is a freewheeling comic to whom nothing is sacred. Standout bits include his takeouts on Ike, a rabbi's sermon, British war films, Sammy Davis Jr., a German teacher, a Japanese prison camp and Ralph Bellamy doing F.D.R.

Floyd Cramer: "On The Rebound" (RCA Victor). With his single release of "On The Rebound" taking off, RCA Victor has rushed this package by country pianist Floyd Cramer. It's a cleanly executed, highly melodic instrumental program in which Cramer does such tunes as "Danny Boy," "Corina, Corina," "San Antonio Rose" and "Wonderland At Night."

"The Trapp Family" (20th-Fox). Taken from the soundtrack of the German-made film about the musical family that is the subject of the "Sound of Music" legit, this set collects some of the most charming numbers from the Trapp repertory. Aimed at the folksong buffs, this package includes a variety of instrumental and vocal offerings in German and English, latter including "Oh, Susanna" and "Old Black Joe."

Pat Boone: "Great! Great! Great!" (Dot). This is an attractive wrap-up of a dozen tunes that have hit the top in recent years. Including items in the rock 'n' roll, religioso, folk and Latin categories, Pat Boone delivers in a relaxed style for easy listening, abetted by Billy Vaughn's orch. Numbers that still stand up very well are "Tweedle Dee," "The Wayward Wind," "Cherry Pink and Apple Blossom White" and "Personality."

Gene Rains: "Lotus Land" (Decca). Cut in Hawaii, this LP has another promising island combo, composed of piano, vibes, bass and percussion. This group generates a smooth, atmospheric sound over a lightly swinging beat colored by a wide variety of unusual instrumental effects. It's a style that stands up under repeated spins. Numbers include some familiar standards, like "Harbor Lights," "Ebb Tide" and "Love Is a Many-Splendored Thing" with some native tunes.

Shep Fields Orch: "The Rippling Rhythm of Shep Fields" (Dot). For the past several years Shep Fields has been rippling through the Texas territory playing band dates in the Lone Star State's chic hotels and private clubs. The oilionaires will now have to share him with the masses because this package dishes out a happy sampling of the Fields' beat that's pegged for easy dancing with its bouncy rhythms. Freddie Noble, who did the arrangements, keeps the band in a lighthearted and breezy groove accenting the "rippling rhythm" which brought the band to the fore in the mid-1930s. The book, too, is an asset, concentrating on such delights as "Moonlight Bay," "Sleepy Time Gal," "You Are My Sunshine," "Red Sails In the Sunset," "Drifting and Dreaming" and the like.

Jack Haskell: "Jack (Haskell) Swings For Jack (Paar)" (Strand). Jack Haskell has been a repeat guest on Jack Paar's NBC-TV'er for some time has developed quite a following through that exposure which should help stir sales interest. In this package dedication to Paar, Haskell swings through a fine song repertoire in an amiable manner. "Make Someone Happy," "My Baby Just Cares For Me," "I'll See You In My Dreams" and "Just Friends" are just some of the items which arranger Al Cohn has given solid rhythmic values.

Frederick Fennell Orch: "Frederick Fennell Conducts Gershwin" (Mercury). When the big orch sound is out in Frederick Fennell's hands it means more than audio gimmickry. The maestro knows how to work with a full-grown orch and how to get a rich sound that never competes with the composer's intentions. He did it in a previous release of Victor Herbert's tunes and now George Gershwin benefits by the Fennell flavor. The material is familiar but the treatment gives it an important new listening dimension.

Bert Kaempfert Orch: "Grusse Aus Der Heimat" (Cadence). U. S. interest in German maestro Bert Kaempfert was started by Decca late last year with "Wonderful By Night" and now Cadence has a chance to cash in on his popularity with a highly melodic package that gives a good cross-section of Germany's music for theatre, pix and pops. (The set was released about five years ago but it holds up well.) He's helped by four vocalists, Willy Lansel, Erich Kassen, Nana Gualdi and Carl Bay. The lingo barrier is no hindrance because Kaempfert makes everything so gemutlich.

Carmel Quinn: "Ireland's Greatest Traditional Songs" (Headline). Carmel Quinn is a legit folksinger specializing in Irish material. In this set, she delivers a tasteful repertory consisting of familiar numbers, like "I Know Where I'm Going," "The Last Rose of Summer" and "Oh Dear, What Can the Matter Be" together with a group of lesser known gaelic songs.

Herm.

Enoch Light Beefs Up Grand Awards Personnel

Enoch Light, who heads the Grand Award-Command combine, has brought in Bobby Byrne, trombonist and orch leader, into the a&r department to work with him and Julie Knapes, formerly of NBC-TV. Earl Wolf, formerly on the staff of Art Records in Detroit, has joined the sales staff under the direction of Loren Becker, the national sales manager, and augmented by Charlie Trepel, eastern sales manager; Gene Goodman, southeast district sales director, and Hugh Dallas, midwest sales director.

Eliot Tiegel, who was in trade association public relations, has taken over as the disk combine's new press chief. Light also strengthened his art department adding Jerry Sukenick to assist art director Charles Murphy. Heading the production department is Blair Wells who acts as liaison between GA suppliers and the home-office.

GA was purchased by Sam Clark for Am-Par Records about 18 months ago and is operated by Light as a separate division.

DISCOUNTERS TAKE OVER DISKS

Sale of Films With Music to TV In New Challenge by Sam Fox Music

In the wake of a suit filed last week by Jerry Vogel Music against various picture companies for selling films with music to television without authorization from music publishers, Sam Fox Music filed an action a few days later along similar lines against 20th-Century Fox and National Telefilm Associates in N.Y. Federal Court.

The basis of the new suit is that 20th-Fox company was granted a license to use the publisher's music for synchronization with motion pictures and this license did not give the studio the right to telecast these films without the consent of the owner of the musical copyrights. The complaint charges that 20th-Fox has or will receive over $10,000,000 from National Telefilm Associates for the telecasting of the films, most of which contain music owned by the Sam Fox fiirm, which has an extensive catalog of background film music. Frank Weinstein is lawyer for the Fox music company.

Outcome of both the Vogel and the Fox suits, which were filed completely independently of each other, will have an important bearing on the sale of all films to television. When the major studios began selling their film backlogs to television several years ago, a group of top publishers at that time moved to test whether the music in the films could be shown on tv without a special authorization.

That suit, handled by Julian T. Abeles, never was pressed due to an unexplained decision by some of the publishers to drop the ac-

(Continued on page 60)

Product Tie-Ins Help Beat The High Cost of Traveling For Dan Terry's Big Band

Tie-ins may be the answer to the band biz's economic problems. That's the opinion of bandleader Dan Terry who's currently rolling with his "Big Band on Campus" crew.

According to Terry, a traveling band's big problem today is the transportation nut. Buses, he says, now charge 60c to 65c a mile which adds up to a lot of coin on the hops between dates. He pointed out that on a recent bus hop from N. Y. to a college gig at VPI in Virginia, the fare came to $54C not counting the tip to the driver.

Terry now expects to beat the transportation rap via a tie-in with the Trailway Bus Line. Ernie Wilkins, with whom he is partnered in the Terry-Wilkins Publishing Co. (BMI), has composed a theme called "Trailways Five Star," which the band is featuring on all its dates and will record for the bus company's use. Because of the tie-in a special rate will be devised to cut down his traveling costs to 25c or 30c a mile.

In a similar merchandising tie, Terry has worked out a deal with Catalina, manufacturers of slacks and sweaters. The Catalina product is worn by the boys in the band and the orch features an original composition called "Catalina Crawl" on its dates. For this musical promotion, Catalina has supplied the band's uniforms gratis which helps cut the Terry-men's outlay. The bandleader and the Catalina people are also mulling plans to open a ballroom on Catalina Island, off California, as an additional promotional buildup for the manufacturer's products.

In another area, Terry has launched a transcription service as a means of bringing in additional revenue for the band. Working under the "Big Band On Campus Transcription Service" banner, he's selling his independently made disks to college radio stations around the country. There are about 600 college radio stations now in operation.

Set April 12 Date For NARAS' 'Grammy' Awards

The winners of the annual NARAS (National Academy of Recording Arts & Sciences) will be disclosed simultaneously on both coasts when members hold a dinner-dance on April 12.

Nominations in the 39 categories have been arrowed down to the finalists in each division and ballots are on their way to members for their final choices. Winners in the east will receive their "Grammies" at celebration to be held at N.Y.'s Hotel Astor. The Coast victors will receive theirs at a similar reception at the Beverly Hills Hotel.

British Tooters Hike Disk Scale

London, March 21.

British musicians have upped their fees for a three-hour pop-music recording session from $16.80 to $19.60. For a two-hour session, the new fee is $14.70 compared with $12.60. Overtime fees are increased to $2.35 for 15 minutes, with maximum of one hour on three-hour session and half-an-hour on two-hour session.

New rates do not apply to symphony, opera and ballet disks. Increases, which apply to U.S. diskeries recording here as well as to British outfits, are result of negotiations started between Musicians' Union and disk manufacturers in August, 1960.

"We issued a statement on the new fees before the end of December" said a Musicians' Union official. "Not all the companies recording here were represented at the negotiations, but we feel they all had plenty of warning—and we have had no complaints. "So far as I know, our rates are still a long way behind those paid in America."

Just Too Many Members, ASCAP Ends Annual Fete

ASCAP's longstanding tradition of holding a dinner following its spring membership meeting has come to an end this year. Main reason for eliminating the dinner was the fact that the Society's membership has swelled to over 6,000 writers and publishers, making it virtually impossible to find anyplace outside of Madison Square to accommodate the crowds. Increase in the membership has also hiked the cost of staging the dinners, which were cuffo to members in good standing, and it was decided to throw the coin into the general distribution fund.

ASCAP's east coast meeting will take place at the Waldorf Astoria next Tuesday (28) when prexy Stanley Adams and other execs will make their organizational reports. The Coast meeting was held in Hollywood three weeks ago.

Columbia Reshuffles Distrib Branch Execs

Columbia Records has realigned its distributor branch operations with five managerial exchanges.

Joseph Broderick, recently sales manager for Roskin Distributors in East Hartford, has been appointed Boston branch sales manager. Edward Masterson, former Boston branch sales manager, becomes sales manager for the Philadelphia branch. Robert Beasely, recently the Philly branch sales manager, has been re-assigned to the Columbia Records Sales Corp. as district sales manager for the northwestern region. George Deacon has been set as Baltimore branch sales manager, and Morton Paul takes over as branch operations manager in L.A.

KORVETTE'S NOW LEADING OUTLET

The mushrooming of "discount stores," which has had a profound impact on American retailing in general, is now revolutionizing merchandizing procedures in the disk biz. The discount stores, which handle a wide variety of products, have not only hit the traditional music shop but have also struck deeply into the disk discount stores, like Sam Goody's and the Record Hunter.

At the present time, the biggest disk retailer in the country by far is Korvette, a chain of stores. The volume of disk business done by this chain and others of its type, obtain them the most favorable terms from the disk distributors and permit them to operate at a consumer price level which other disk outlets cannot match.

At one time limited to New York and a few other key cities, the discount merchandizers have now spread over the whole U.S. map. Over 3,000 discount houses are now operating in the country and do about $3,000,000,000 in annual volume. For the disk industry, the interesting fact is that records is one of the few products which is handled by every one of the discount houses.

The spread of the discount stores, the spread of disks via racks into supermarkets and syndicate outlets and the growth of the disk

(Continued on page 60)

Dave Kapp Taking On Coproduction Status In 'Donnybrook' Album Deal

Dave Kapp, prexy of Kapp Records, is adding a new wrinkle to the growing disk company tieups with legit musicals. He's going into the upcoming "Donnybrook" musical as co-producer.

In the past, disk companies interested in tying up original cast album rights to a musical wrapped up the deal with an investment in the show. This marks the first time that the head of a major indie label will get a co-producer billing.

The Kapp label tied up the rights to the original cast album several weeks with an investment of over $100,000. Now the diskery's head believes that he can make a more positive contribution to the entire production in a co-producer status with Fred Herbert.

The musical is an adaptation of the film, "The Quiet Man," with a score by Johnny Burke and a book by Robert E. McEnroe. Set for the show are Art Lund, Eddie Foy Jr., Susan Johnson and Kipp Hamilton. It's scheduled for a May 18 opening on Broadway.

DIZZY GILLESPIE AVEC BALLET—CONCERT BID

Dizzy Gillespie will rearrange and augment his musical repertory as accompaniment for an experimental concert-recital scheduled for May 12 at Hunter College Auditorium, N.Y. Jazzist is working with choreographer Lennie Dale for the occasion. There will be 21 musicians and seven mixed dancers, of which Dale will be one and Pat Turner of "Tenderloin" another. Others are being selected.

Union of jazz and dance was under taken last season by George Balanchine at the N.Y. City Ballet with the Modern Jazz Quartet on the stage, but supplemented in the pit by Robert Irving's regular classical ballet orchestra. The ballet was in repertory last Thursday (16) with Eddie Costa, Jascha Zayde, Wendell Marshall & Sticks Evans in place of the Modern Jazz Quartet.

Gillespie's try for a format, for possible later touring, is being financed by two jazz impresarios, Gerry Keys and Joe Abrams. It will be scaled at $2.50-$5 under the package title of "Sounds and Movements."

Victor Shifts Sholes Out of A&R To Head Diskery's Coast Operation

In a major reshuffle of RCA Victor's artists & repertory department, Steve Sholes, longtime pop a&r chief, has been promoted to the managership of the company's Coast operation. He'll be in charge of all phases of the Coast office, including sales, a&r and custom pressing. He'll report directly to Norman Racusin Victor v.p. and operations manager.

Robert L. Yorke, Victor v.p. in charge of the disk creat on department, has not yet named a replacement, for Sholes in the pop department. There is a possibility that the various pop musical directors and producers working for Victor will work without an overall a&r chief, reporting directly to Yorke.

Sholes, who has been with Victor since 1929, has been in the company's a&r department since 1937, working initially with jazz artists. He later became identified with the country & western field and was responsible for developing such artists as Eddy Arnold, Chet Atkins, Hank Snow, Homer & Jethro, The Browns, Hank Locklin and Jim Reeves, among others.

In 1955, Sholes scored the biggest coup in the disk industry when he brought Elvis Presley to Victor, after buying out his contract from Sun Records for $35-000. Presley since that time has sold over $75,000,000 worth of disks. Sholes, incidentally, will continue to supervise Presley's recording sessions. Since Presley is spending much of his time on the Coast working in films, Sholes will be able to record him in Hollywood if necessary. Generally, however, Presley records in Victor's Nashville studios.

Sholes is formally taking over the top Coast spot, formerly held by Yorke, immediately. However, he plans to commute between Hollywood and New York for the next few months until he can move his family westwards after the close of the current school terms.

Name Herb Gottlieb To ASCAP's Coast Office

Herbert Gottlieb, former music biz exec and personal manager, has been named to ASCAP's Coast office. He'll advise the Coast membership on distribution and survey procedures and all other matters concerning the Society's operation.

Gottlieb was associated with Robbins Music, of the Big Three combine, for many years. He left Robbins in 1958 for personal management. Gottlieb will be in the N. Y. office for two weeks and then head for the Society's Coast office April 10. Formerly, the liaison between the Coast and New York was handled through board member L. Wolfe Gilbert.

Reelect Marek As RIAA Prexy

George R. Marek, veepee-general manager of RCA Victor, will prexy the Record Industry Assn. of America for another year. Marek was elected to his second one-year term at the RIAA's annual meet last week.

All of last year's officers were reelected to another term except for Archie Bleyer, Cadence prexy, who was replaced as RIAA v.p. by Jac Holzman, who heads the Elektra label. The other officers are Arnold Maxin, MGM prez as 1st veepee; Sam Clark, ABC-Paramount prez, Leon Hartstone, London sales veep, Dave Kapp, who heads his own label, veepees; John Stevenson, Childrens Record Guild topper, treasurer, and Henry Brief, who replaced John W. Griffin in January, exec secretary.

The RIAA's board of directors will be Howard F. Ballance, Irving B. Green, Goddard Lieberson, Marek, John Stevenson, Glenn E. Wallichs and Randy Wood. Ernest S. Meyers will continue as the org's general counsel.

Reiner-Brooks Album Into Capitol's Catalog

In a move to build up its comedy catalog, Capitol Records has acquired the rights to "2,000 Years With Carl Reiner & Mel Brooks," LP released last fall by World Pacific. At the same time, Alan W. Livington, Cap veep for creative services, set a deal with Mel Brooks to produce, write and perform comedy album.

Purchase price of the Reiner-Brooks LP from World Pacific was not disclosed, but Cap will reissue it under its own banner in mid-April. The transaction marked the first time the diskery has acquired material previously released on another label. In its new pressings of the album, Cap plans to use the same cover design and liner notes. The notes were written by Steve Allen.

Brooks had been a writer for Sid Caesar, contributed sketches to "New Faces of 1952" and collaborated on the Broadway musical "Shinbone Alley."

Maxin to Europe

Arnold Maxin, MGM Records prez, headed for Rome last week to join Connie Francis in her final week's tour of the Continent. While there Maxin will meet with MGM Pictures' prez Joseph Vogel and veepee-treasurer Robert O'Brien for a recheck of the diskery's foreign distributors and affiliates.

They will be joined by foreign sales manager Gene Moretti who has been visiting MGM distribs in France, Germany, Holland and England since the beginning of March.

RIAA Mulls Joining N.Y.'s '64 World's Fair With Disk Biz Pavilion

A record industry pavilion at the N. Y. World's Fair in 1964 is being mulled by the Record Industry Assn. of America.

A pitch to the members of the RIAA was made at the org's annual luncheon last week by William Berns, veepee of communications and public relations for the fair. Berns spelled out the importance of a recording industry representation at the fair since records means so much to America as well as to the rest of the world. The record manufacturers' message, he pointed out, should be made known to the more than 70,000,000 visitors that the Fair expects to handle. He extended an invite to the manufacturers present to visit the Flushing Meadow site and look over plans, blueprints, etc.

According to Henry Brief, RIAA's exec secretary, the org execs already have discussed the possibility of a pavilion at the Fair but no conclusions had been reached.

Other points taken up at the meet were adoption of the engineering committee's set of standards for the seven-inch 33 rpm disk and revision in standards for the 12-inch 33 which will be issued shortly to all manufacturers via a RIAA bulletin.

Brief also pointed out the RIAA will begin issuing monthly reports on industry sales instead of on a quarterly basis with a more comprehensive breakdown as to types of records sold. For this information the RIAA has enlisted the aid of the N.Y.U. School of Commerce to survey the field. Brief added that there will also be a recruitment drive for more members so that the industry sales figures can be made more accurate. The org had 52 members in 1960.

VARIETY'S RECORD T.I.P.S.

(Tune Index of Performance & Sales)

This weekly tabulation is based on a statistically balanced ratio of disk sales, nationally, as reported by key outlets in major cities, and music programming by the major independent radio stations.

This Wk.	Last Wk	No Wks. On Chart	TITLE, ARTIST	LABEL
1	1	5	SURRENDER Elvis Presley	Victor
2	3	9	PONY TIME Chubby Checker	Parkway
3	2	10	DON'T WORRY Marty Robbins	Columbia
4	8	10	APACHE Jorgen Ingmann	Atco
5	4	8	EBONY EYES Everly Bros.	WB
6	5	9	WHERE THE BOYS ARE Connie Francis	MGM
7	12	9	DEDICATED TO THE ONE I LOVE Shirelles	Sceptor
8	7	11	WHEELS String-a-Longs	Warwick
9	9	11	BABY SITTING BOOGIE Buzz Clifford	Columbia
10	6	13	CALCUTTA Lawrence Welk	Dot
11	25	6	I DON'T KNOW WHY Clarence Henry	Argo
12	71	2	BLUE MOON Marcels	Colpix
13	17	6	THINK TWICE Brook Benton	Mercury
14	11	7	LITTLE BOY SAD Johnny Burnette	Liberty
15	16	6	LAZY RIVER Bobby Darin	Atco
16	19	9	YOU CAN HAVE HER Roy Hamilton	Epic
17	28	5	ASIA MINOR Kokomo	Felsted
18	23	5	THE TOUCHABLES Dickie Goodman	Mark X
19	15	9	THERE'S A MOON OUT TONIGHT Capris	Old Town
20	22	9	GOODTIME BABY Bobby Rydell	Cameo
21	24	8	GEE WHIZ, LOOK AT HIS EYES Carla Thomas	Atlantic
22	34	2	ON THE REBOUND Floyd Cramer	Victor
23	10	5	HEARTS OF STONE Bill Black Combo	Hi
24	58	8	SPANISH HARLEM Ben E. King	Atco
25	14	9	WHEELS Billy Vaughn	Dot
26	37	6	STAYIN' IN Bobby Vee	Liberty
27	13	13	TOMORROW Shirelles	Scepter
28	50	4	PLEASE LOVE ME, FOREVER Cathy Jean	Valmor
29	52	4	LITTLE MISS STUCK UP Playmates	Roulette
30	18	12	SHOP AROUND Miracles	Tamla
31	67	2	FIND ANOTHER GIRL Jerry Butler	Vee Jay
32	36	3	JUST FOR OLD TIMES SAKE McGuire Sisters	Coral
33	21	5	WALK RIGHT BACK Everly Bros.	WB
34	45	4	I DON'T WANT TO CRY Chuck Jackson	Wand
35	42	4	HAPPY BIRTHDAY BLUES Kathy Young	Indigo
36	53	5	MORE THAN I CAN SAY Bobby Vee	Liberty
37	30	5	PORTRAIT OF MY LOVE Steve Lawrence	UA
38	72	3	ALL OF EVERYTHING Frankie Avalon	Chancellor
39	70	3	PONY EXPRESS Danny & Juniors	Swan
40	29	16	WINGS OF A DOVE Ferlin Husky	Capitol
41	27	8	WHAT A PRICE Fats Domino	Imperial
42	20	17	EXODUS Ferrante & Teicher	UA
43	38	10	JIMMY'S GIRL Johnny Tillotson	Cadence
44	43	10	I WANNA LOVE MY LIFE AWAY Gene Pitney	Musicor
45	26	11	EMOTIONS Brenda Lee	Decca
46	47	14	THERE SHE GOES Jerry Wallace	Challenge
47	54	2	MOTHER IN LAW E. K-Doe	Mint
48	33	2	LONELY MAN Elvis Presley	Victor
49	51	3	TAKE GOOD CARE OF HER Adam Wade	Coed
50	49	14	ANGEL BABY Rosie	Highland
51	41	13	ANGEL ON MY SHOULDER Shelbey Flint	Valiant
52	31	5	HAVIN' FUN Dion	Laurie
53	—	1	RUNAWAY Del Shannon	Big Top
54	32	9	STORY OF MY LOVE Paul Anka	ABC-Par
55	—	1	TONIGHT MY LOVE Paul Anka	ABC-Par
56	39	9	ALL IN MY MIND Maxine Brown	Nomar
57	63	3	TOP 40, WEATHER & SPORTS Mark Denning	MGM
58	—	1	GOLDEN WILDWOOD FLOWER Tom & Jerry	Mercury
59	—	1	ONE HUNDRED POUNDS OF CLAY Gene McDaniels	Liberty
60	40	12	CALENDAR GIRL Neil Sedaka	Victor
61	48	2	ORANGE BLOSSOM SPECIAL Billy Vaughn	Dot
62	65	7	WAIT A MINUTE Coasters	Atco
63	68	2	BUMBLE BOOGIE B. Bumble & Stingers	Rendezvous
64	—	1	LITTLE BOY, LITTLE GIRL Al Martino	20th
65	—	1	LONELY BLUE NIGHTS Rosie	Brunswick
66	—	3	WATUSI Vibrations	Checker
67	—	1	LITTLE SAD EYES Castelles	Era
68	—	1	CALIFORNIA SUN Joe Jones	Roul
69	69	7	ONCE UPON A TIME Rochell & Candles	Swinging
70	—	1	RONNY Marcy Jo	Robbage
71	—	1	YOUR ONE AND ONLY LOVE Jackie Wilson	Brunswick
72	83	2	DARLING Phil & Harv	Rampart
73	—	1	ROMEO Castelles	Era
74	59	2	NO ONE Connie Francis	MGM
75	60	2	LOUISIANA MAN Rusty & Doug	Hickory
76	74	2	WE BELONG TOGETHER Belmonts	Laurie
77	—	1	TO BE LOVED Pentagons	Donna
78	—	1	MODEL GIRL Johnny Mastro	Coed
79	44	6	FOR MY BABY Brook Benton	Mercury
80	86	2	EXOTIC Night Beats	Sound
81	—	1	DARK AS A DUNGEON Tenessee Ernie Ford	Capitol
82	—	1	IVORY MARBLES B-B	Cover
83	35	8	AIN'T THAT JUST LIKE A WOMAN Fats Domino	Imperial
84	80	9	AT LAST Etta James	Argo
85	57	4	DADDY, DADDY Robin Clark	Capitol
86	—	1	YOUR FRIENDS Dee Clark	Vee Jay
87	—	1	HONKY TONK, II Bill Doggett	King
88	—	1	ONE MINT JULIP Ray Charles	Impulse
89	87	5	HIDEAWAY Freddy King	Federal
90	93	4	LIKE LONG HAIR Paul Revere	Chain
91	61	19	WONDERLAND BY NIGHT Bert Kaempfert	Decca
92	92	2	DANNY BOY Jim Reeves	Victor
93	46	6	I PITY THE FOOL Bobby Bland	Duke
94	82	2	THAT'S IT, I QUIT Sam Cooke	Victor
95	—	12	UTOPIA Frank Gari	Crusade
96	—	1	DEDICATED TO THE ONE I LOVE 5 Royals	King
97	—	1	THE FUZZ Grady Martin	Decca
98	75	14	YOU ARE THE ONLY ONE Ricky Nelson	Imperial
99	79	2	MOOD INDIGO Floyd Cramer	Victor
100	55	2	I TOLD EVERY LITTLE STAR Cindy Scott	Can.-Amer.

ASCAP Orders Three-Way Coin Split In 'Dardanella' Authors' Hassle

It is music business lore that an upstart lawyer, Julian T. Abeles, bested Nathan Burkan, founder of the American Society of Composers, Authors & Publishers and attorney then for Jerome Kern, when in 1922 Abeles was able to prove his contention that the "Dardanella" base in a McCarthy & Fisher copyright had been infringed upon by a similar arrangement on "Ka-Lu-A." He sued Kern, Anne Caldwell, T. B. Harms Co., Charles Dillingham and Edward Royce, the authors, publisher, producer and stager of "Good Morning Dearie," a click legit musical of the time.

Almost 40 years later Abeles represents the Fred Fisher estate and last week won out in behalf of Mrs. Anna Fisher, survivor of the McCarthy & Fisher Music Corp., in a claim that the "Dardanella" performing rights should be allocated three-ways, in equal one-third splits, among Fisher and the estates of Johnny S. Black and Felix Bernard, who composed the tune. Fisher, besides publishing "Dardanella," had added a lyric and, more important, the ASCAP review board held that, in doing so, he also helped refurbish the melody so that while it was successful as an instrumental in May, 1919 it really became a commercial success after the December, 1919 copyright when Fisher was credited for the added lyric.

The Black estate had held that Fisher was only entitled to performance fees as author when the vocal versions were used; that, otherwise, the instrumental performance money should redound 100% to Bernard and Black estates. Incidentally, Bernard had sold out all his rights to the tune to McCarthy & Fisher Inc. shortly after it was originally published, so the claim is solely that of Black's estate.

The successor Fred Fisher Music Co. Inc. had been paying royalties one-third each, which the ASCAP review board accepted as further evidence that the claim advanced for payoff to Fisher only on the vocal version was a belated thought. Accordingly, the committee, chairmaned by Leroy Anderson and comprising Richard Ablert, Lou Alter, Arthur Israel Jr., Howard Hanson and Donald Gray, has ordered that the writer share be continued on a three-way equal split.

The "Dardanella"-Ka-Lu-A" suit was unique in that Abeles originally lost the case but later Federal Judge Learned Hand reversed himself when he conceded (1) that there could be a violation of a base—heretofore there was no legal ruling thereon; (2), since Johnny Black testified he never heard of "The Mermaid's Song" from Weber's opera, "Oberon." It was therefore original with him. Burkan had Victor Herbert and kindred distinguished expert witnesses in N. Y. Federal Court to testify that there couldn't be such thing as "infringement on a base" and, furthermore, the melody had been previously used in the Weber opera.

A highlight of the trial then was Burkan's question, "Mr. Black, you certainly heard of 'The Mermaid Song' from 'Oberon'?", with which Black responded, "I don't even know what country Oberon is in." It put ex-Little Rock lawyer Abeles on the show biz map. Subsequently he was retained by many music publishers to defend infringement claims.

Merc Bows Smash Label As New Talent Showcase

Chicago, March 21.

Mercury Records bows with a new pop label, Smash, to showcase newly signed pop talent and independently-cut masters by indie producers. New line will be manufactured, promoted and, in most instances, distributed through the same channels as the parent Mercury label.

First pressing on the new subsid is "That's The Way We Love" by The Paramours, who were signed by Nat Goodman, Mercury Coast a&r man.

Jo Stafford Rejoins Capitol as Freelancer

Jo Stafford, who's been with the Columbia label for many years, is returning to Capitol Records on a freelance deal. The singer, who was with Capitol in the 1940s, will do a stereo remake of one of her early 10-inch Cap recordings of folk songs. The LP, as yet untitled, is scheduled to be released next fall.

It's understood that her husband, Paul Weston, a musical conductor, will work with her on her album deals for Cap. Lee Gillette, an exec producer for the label, will supervise the recording of the folk album. Miss Stafford clicked big for Cap in the '40s with 1,000,000 sellers in "Temptation" in which she used the name of Carlotta B. Stump, and "Whispering Pines" with Gordon MacRae.

SACEM's General Manager Denies Report of Rift Over French Coin Distribution

Paris.

Editor, VARIETY:

In spite of my having left New York a few months ago to assume my new function at SACEM, I still read VARIETY with a great deal of interest and was rather surprise to notice in your Feb. 22 issue the article dealing with our Society. I am afraid it contains several errors.

First, Performance Rights Societies like all large entities constantly need and promote reforms and SACEM follows the general rule. However, it is not true that "many music syndicates, unions and groups are against SACEM." In fact, a great majority of the syndicates and unions of authors, composers and publishers have contributed to promoting various reforms which were recently submitted to a General Assembly of our members.

It is not correct to say that the Ministry of Culture is considering nationalization of SACEM and that "the Ministry had to arbitrate the divvying of $3,000,000 from radio and tv rights between SACEM and the various other authors' right groups." The Ministry itself has denied what have proven to be unfounded rumors.

As far as the representation of our membership on the board of directors is concerned, the SACEM electoral system is very democratic. Over 1,000 members who can be considered as professionals have the right to vote, each one having only one vote, no matter how large their income.

Finally, it is not correct to say that SACEM never gives out royalties and statistics. The SACEM balance sheets are sent every year to the membership which has the full possibility of control over our various operations.

Jean-Loup Tournier
(General Manager, SACEM)

Fine Recording Buys Everest's L. I. Studio

Fine Recording, N. Y. outfit, has purchased the lease of the Everest Sound Recording Studio in Bayside, L. I., from the Belock Instrument Corp. Harry Belock, Everest prez, built the studio several years ago at a cost of close to $1,000,000.

Fine Recording already has two studios and a theatre in N. Y. which it uses for the recording and production of stereo records, motion picture scoring, tv commercials and video tape.

Longhair Goes Boom

The percussion gimmick, which revitalized the pop album field during the past year, is now going longhair. Kapp Records is putting percussion into a classical mold on its upcoming LP, "Chorus, Organ, Brass and Percussion."

The disk was recorded with the Columbia University Choir at its home base, St. Paul's Chapel at Columbia U. in N.Y. The disk is scheduled for April 1 release.

Artist-Disk Deals

Reprise: Mort Sahl

Mort Sahl has moved over to Frank Sinatra's newly formed Reprise label. Sahl's contract with Verve Records terminated in November after the release of "The Next President," his fifth album for that label. Under the agreement with Reprise, Sahl will be exec producer of all his albums.

The deal calls for a minimum of two LPs a year. The first Sahl album under the Reprise banner will be released in early April. It was recorded during the comedian's recent stand at the Crescendo in Hollywood.

Capitol: Genevieve, Others

Genevieve, the chanteuse familiar to tv viewers via her shots on the Jack Paar Show, has joined the Capitol roster. She had previously recorded for the Cadence label. Exec artists & repertoire producer Andy Wiswell will supervise her recording sessions out of N.Y.

Also added to the Cap stable were Darrell McCall, 20-year old singer from Kenia, Ohio, and thrush Genie Pace. McCall was with Faron Young's road show company and the Cap stint will mark his first solo disking effort. His disks will be produced by a&r staffer Ken Nelson.

20th-Fox: Johnny Restivo

Johnny Restivo, who broke in on disks via the RCA Victor label, has switched to 20th-Fox Records.

The singer, who's managed by Ed Burton, is also getting a screen test by the diskery's parent company, 20th Century-Fox.

Gold Eagle: Collins, Taylor

Sonny Lester, prexy of Gold Eagle Records, has added Dorothy Collins and Ted Taylor to his label.

This marks a reunion for the trio who were with the now defunct Top Rank label where Lester functions as head of the artists & Repertoire department.

Kapp: Daniel Ericourt

French concert pianist Daniel Ericourt has been signed to a special album deal by Kapp Records. He'll record the entire piano works of Debussy.

Epic: Tony Orlando

Tony Orlando is the latest singer to be added to the Epic roster. His debut will be "Hallway To Paradise" and "Lonely Tomorrow." The Orlando records for Epic will be produced by Al Nevins-Don Kirshner Assoc., an indie producing outfit.

Capitol Reorganizes A&R Operation By Splitting Album, Single Output

Capitol Records has reorganized its artists & repertoire division to separate the production of singles and album product. According to Alan W. Livingston, v.p. for creative services and a&r boss, the realignment is designed to make single- and album production two independent, self-supporting operations and that henceforth the a&r producers will specialize in either the album or single-record fields.

Under the new organization, Voyle Gilmore, a 15-year Cap veteran, will continue to head single-record a&r activities. Dave Cavanaugh will take over as exec producer in charge of pop-album production.

Gilmore, who was named director of singles a&r last October, heads an a&r group consisting of producers Lee Gillette, Ken Nelson and Nick Venet. According to Livingston, the four men will confine their activities primarily to singles, being responsible for decisions on production and release. Gilmore will continue to report to Joe Csida, Cap veepee for eastern operations, who since last August, has had exec control over the diskery's entire singles program. In this phase of his activities, Csida, in turn, is responsible to Livingston.

On the album end, Cavanaugh will continue to be responsible to the a&r department's album planning committee, of which he is a member. The album producers will be Dave Dexter, Tom Morgan, Bill Miller, Paul Wyatt, Curly Walter, Ed Yelin, Kent Larsen, Dick Jones and Andy Wiswell. Francis Scott, director of album repertoire, will continue as administrative head of all album operations, both pop and classical. The present reorganization will not affect Cap's classical a&r staff.

"We feel that a basic division of single-record and album responsibilities is essential to a successful a&r operation in today's market," Livingston said. "Singles and albums are two very different products designed for two very different markets. Therefore it is our intention to operate, in effect, with two different a&r staffs, each independent of the other, each self-supporting. Naturally, there will be some cross-over: a number of producers now handle artists who have been equally successful in both the album and the single-record fields. However, our fundamental policy will be to handle the two product lines as though they were two different businesses, which, in many ways, they are."

Anita Bryant, Green Into Publishing Setup

Anita Bryant and Bob Green have formed a joint publishing venture with Julie Stearns music operations. Bryant and Green will have two companies, Janar Publishing Corp. (BMI) and Bobar Music (ASCAP).

The firms will be headquartered in Stearns' N. Y. office.

Lester Lanin Plays For 1st Private White House Dance in Many Years

Washington, March 21.

President and Mrs. Kennedy booked Lester Lanin and his musicians for the first private White House dinner dance given in the mansion in many years. There were 78 at the party held in honor of Mrs. Kennedy's sister, Princess Radziwill, who lives in London, and her husband, the Prince.

The formal invitations sent to personal friends included an attached note explaining it was a "private" affair and "it is hoped there will be no publicity." When this word got out, it exaggerated interest in what was actually a black-tie party in an unusual setting, but designed and executed only as a "have fun" evening. It lasted until 2 A.M.

Dancing was in the Blue Room which was used in the White House's earlier days for that purpose but hasn't been for perhaps 50 years. More recently, there have been short periods of dancing following official (and stiff) White House receptions. The larger East Room has been the scene. Lanin's orchestra, along with several others, played for the Inaugural Ball.

Criterion Plans New Push for Prince Label

Criterion Music is planning a new push on its Prince Records subsid with the signing of the Del Vikings. Mickey Goldsen, who prexies Criterion from his Coast base, plans to go into full time recording. The Del Vikings' sessions will be arranged and conducted by Chuck Sagle.

Criterion's general professional manager in the east is Lennie Hodes.

British Rock 'n' Roller Stirs Hysteria

Cliff Richard Wows South Africa—House Breaks Policy to Operate on Sabbath

By EVELYN LEVINSON

Johannesburg, March 14.

British rock 'n' roller Cliff Richard stirred a new high in hysteria here when he touched down in Johannesburg on the first leg of his South African tour. Welcomed at Jan Smuts Airport by 1,500 screaming members of his fan club, singer made a "triumphant" entrance into the city in a vast red convertible lent by champion golfer Gary Player, escorted by a posse of traffic cops and a long line of cars occupied by African Consolidated Theatres executives, newsreel cameramen, photographers and reporters.

Crowds had already started gathering outside the Carlton Hotel, and by the time schools and offices closed, the street—Johannesburg's principal shopping avenue — was jammed with yelling teenagers as performer made a personal appearance on his balcony. Police had to unscramble the resultant tangle. Since then the Traffic Department has vetoed any further "public appearances" in the city area.

News of a proposed attendance at a nearby mine to witness a native "war dance" leaked out, and mine authorities were forced to cancel the performance to avoid mobbing. At the Carlton Hotel, Richard has reportedly changed his suite following the enterprise of over-eager fans who have scaled the fire-escape and invaded his rooms.

Theatres are normally closed on Sundays, but for the first time, the booking office at the Colosseum Theatre, where the Cliff Richard Show is playing twice nightly to capacity houses, has remained open to cope with the demand for seats. Backing the star on stage are The Shadows, the musical combination usually supporting him on his recordings. In South Africa Richard is second only to Presley as a disk favorite, his current hits being "The Evergreen Tree" and "D In Love." He is also well-known here for his role as the guinea-pig rockster in the British pic "Expresso Bongo."

Included in Richard's Company are Carmela Corren (Israeli singer), Pierre Bel (French juggler), Franklin (illusionist), and Norman Vaughan (emcee). Fans are lending a polite ear to these excellent artists, but one has only to hear the concerted roar that greets the shiny-suited Richard to know why they are crammed the 2,280-seater Colosseum at prices ranging from 83c to $2.15.

From Johannesburg the Richard Show goes on a tour of South African coastal towns. It opened in Fulawayo in Southern Rhodesia and will end in Salisbury, on the homeward flight to England through the Central African Federation.

Davis' Yankee Tooters Irk Atlanta AFMers

Atlanta, March 21.

When Meyer Davis brought his band to play for the Georgia Civil War Centennial Commission's Costume Ball, he, unlike most name maestros, brought his own musicians with him.

This provoked Sonny Thorpe, president of the Atlanta Musicians, who resented fact that not one southern musician was hired to provide music for gala ball held in Exhibition Hall of Biltmore Hotel. Thorpe is reported to have criticized band's fee and the way it played Dixieland music.

On the other hand spokesman for committee which hired this so-called "Yankee band" praised the way the orch handled the antebellum-type tunes.

Proceeds from $50 per couple ball and centennial premiere of filmization of Atlanta Margaret Mitchell's "Gone With the Wind" at $15, $10 and $5 a head, went to Georgia Centennial Commission to help defray its expenses during five-year commemoration of the Civil War.

'Tzena' Composer in U.S.

Isacher Miron Matson, vice-chairman of the board of Israel's performing rights society, ACUM, arrived in the U.S. Monday (20) to huddle with U.S. music execs about ACUM affairs.

He's the composer of "Tzena, Tzena," the big U.S. hit of about 10 years ago.

On the Upbeat

New York

Mel Shayne left Richard O. Linke Assoc. to start his own personal management firm . . . Bobby Rydell, Cameo disker, making his nitery debut at Washington's Lotus Club this week . . . Sandy Siller replaced Joyce Brock as record librarian at KGW Radio, Portland, Ore. . . . Herbie Mann's Afro-Jazz Revue began a seven-week engagement at the Village Gate last night (Tues.) . . . George Scheck signed a new longterm managerial deal with singer Connie Francis . . . Cadence disker Johnny Tillotson hits the Brooklyn Paramount Easter show March 31 . . . Mitzi Mason, new Strand disker, currently at the Golden Slipper, Glen Cove, L. I. . . . Della Reese set for the Ed Sullivan Show this Sunday 26 . . . Sam Fletcher pencilled in at the Casino Royal, Washington, April 3-9 . . . Enrico, Italian-born singer, opens at the Castle, Buffalo, April 1

Jackie Wilson, who checked out of Roosevelt Hospital this week fully recovered from a shooting several weeks ago, is cancelling out of his 10-day Easter show booking at the Brooklyn Paramount. Under doctor's orders, he'll rest for the next several weeks

Music publisher Ivan Mogull on an overseas junket scouting material and lining up foreign releases for "Pony Time" and "You Can Have Her" . . . Mildred Fields launched her own personal management office with Ornette Coleman and George Russell . . . Pianist-conductor Martin Roman naw playing at the Israeli Cafe Sahbra . . . Latin bandleader Pacheco set for the summer season at the Monaco Beach Club, Lido Beach, L. I. . . . Tenor Enzo Stuarti, who wound up a three-weeker at Chicago's Drake Hotel recently, set for a November return . . . "Are You Sure," the winner of the BBC-TV Song for Europe contest which was written and recorded by the Allison Bros., was acquired for U. S. release by Lee Hartstone, veepee of London Records, during his recent European trip . . Ronnie Edelstein joined Strand Records promotion department to cover the N. Y. area . . . Sid Pastner, Strand's general manager, on the Coast for sales meetings.

Charlie Mingus held over indefinitely at the Copa City Jazz Club . . . Roger Williams' concert tour of the southwest and the midwest now includes 22 dates in 21 cities beginning April 3 in Tulsa and winding May 7 at the Air Force Academy, Colorado Springs.

London

Laurie London, who topped the American charts in 1957 with his Golden Disk "He's Got the Whole World In His Hands," flew in from Vienna with plans for a British comeback. Since his big disk hit, 17-year-old London has been singing mostly in Europe . . . Cliff Richard, Lonnie Donegan and the King Bros. signed up for the BBC's Beat Shows at the Royal Albert Hall April 8 and 22 . . . Lord Montagu's Beaulieu Jazz Festival gets a rival this summer—at Ringwood, 15 miles away. Topping the bill at Ringwood: Acker Bilk's Band whose fans were blamed for breaking up Beaulieu last year . . . BBC have banned Kokomo's "Asia Minor" disk. This beat version of Grieg's Piano Concerto in A Minor cuts across their decision not to broadcast pop versions of classics.

Chicago

Jack Teagarden set for London House here March 28 for three weeks, then to Village Vanguard, New York, for two . . . Stan Getz down for the Birdhouse, Chi, March 29-April 9 . . . Dukes of Dixieland work the Chicago Boat Show March 25-April 2, then return in June for Empire Room stint . . . Meg Myles and Phyllis Branch into the Chi Playboy Club March 30 for three weeks . . . Stan Kenton into the Riviera, Las Vegas, March 29 for four weeks followed by a two month cross country swing of the college concert circuit . . . Al Hirt group interrupts a March 30-April 15 engagement at the Cloister Los Angeles, for an April 9 shot on the Dinah Shore tv show . . . Ramsey Lewis Trio booked into the Bandbox, Denver, for three weeks starting March 22 . . . Jimmy Smith Trio down for Bambo Key Club, St. Louis, March 31 for 10 days, followed by the Jazztet April 14-23 . . . Yusef Lateef Quintet set for Toppers, Indianapolis, March 20-April 1. Gene Ammons to same spot April 3 for 12 days . . . John Coltrane plays Mardi Gras, K. C., March 31-April 11.

San Francisco

Della Reese moves into the Fairmont's big Venetian Room March 30 for three weeks . . . Bimbo Giuntoli opening a new Barry Ashton revue, "Fabulous Las Vegas," at 365 Club late this week, with Phyllis Inez headlining . . . Cannonball Adderley brought his quintet into Art Auerbach's Jazz Workshop . . . Anita O'Day opened at the Blackhawk . . . Toni Harper added to the bill at Neve, where Joe Williams—first singer to breathe some life into the place since Duke Ellington's group departed late last summer—was held over . . . Carol Brent held over at Purple Onion . . . Betty Bennett into the hungry i's Other Room.

Pittsburgh

Four Freshmen set for Carnegie Music Hall on April 25 . . . Louis Armstrong comes to Syria Mosque on April 27 . . . Klaus Kolmar, head of the William Morris concert department, in town and set Fred Waring, Mort Sahl in Syria Mosque and Ferrante & Teicher at the Carnegia Music Hall. All are fall bookings.

Tennessee Ernie Show Pulls 29G in Nashville

Nashville, March 21.

The Tennessee Ernie Ford one-nighter at the State Fairgrounds Coliseum (16) drew approximately 10,000 for two performances at the 6,500-seater. The gross was $29,000. Minnie Pearl, Owen Bradley's orch, The Jordanaires and Nashville Symphony also appeared on the programs which were emceed by Jud Collins.

The shows were sponsored by the Florence Crittenton Home.

Blumberg Joins Arliss

Walter Blumberg has joined the newly formed Arliss Records as sales and promotion director. For the past two years, Blumberg had headed sales for the Amy label.

Blumberg is currently revamping Arliss' distribution setup in preparation for label's forthcoming singles releases and its first LP.

Discounters

Continued from page 57

clubs has now made the traditional music or record shop a minor part of the business. At one time regarded as the solid base of the record industry, the record shop is now struggling to hang on against the hammerblows of the discounters' competition.

Sporadic movements by the disk retailers to organize buying cooperatives, in order to compete with the high volume stores, have not been working out too successfully. For one thing, it is proving tough to line up the retailers for such a venture and, secondly, there's not much liquid coin available for largescale purchasing.

The revolution in the disk industry's merchandising system is cueing a new approach to the mass market by the major companies. The focus is increasingly being concentrated on the special markets and the new high volume outlets rather than on the old-style record shop.

Sam Fox

Continued from page 57

tion before it came before a judge. While much of the music used in the films sold to tv is owned by publishing subsidiaries of the picture companies, substantial amounts of this music are published by independent publishers.

There's little likelihood that the present suits will be dropped before completion. Fred Fox, head of Sam Fox Music, said "we are going all the way in our action." The result of the Vogel suits will affect the exhibition of films on tv throughout the world since the publishers generally own the global rights to the music.

RETAIL ALBUM BEST SELLERS

(A National Survey of Key Outlets)

This wk.	Last wk.	No. wks. on chart
1	1	15	EXODUS (Victor) Soundtrack (LOC 1058)
2	2	9	LAWRENCE WELK (Dot) Calcutta (DLP 2539)
3	3	22	ELVIS PRESLEY (Victor) G. I. Blues (LPM 2256)
4	5	10	FRANK SINATRA (Capitol) Swinging Session (W 1491)
5	4	11	CAMELOT (Columbia) Original Cast (KOL 5620)
6	8	13	MANTOVANI (London) Music from Exodus (LL 3231)
7	6	9	GREAT MOTION PICTURE THEMES (UA) Various Artists (UAL 3122)
8	10	11	BERT KAEMPFERT (Decca) Wonderland by Night (DL 4101)
9	7	20	BOB NEWHART (WB) Button Down Mind Strikes Back (WI 393)
10	9	6	KINGSTON TRIO (Capitol) Make Way (T 1474)
11	14	6	MITCH MILLER (Columbia) Happy Times (CL 1568)
12	11	46	SOUND OF MUSIC (Columbia) Original Cast (KOL 5450)
13	12	8	RAY CONNIFF (Columbia) Memories Are Made of This (CL 1574)
14	15	14	UNSINKABLE MOLLY BROWN (Capitol) Original Cast (WAO 1509)
15	17	10	RUSTY WARREN (Jubilee) Knockens Up (JLP 2029)
16	13	19	MITCH MILLER (Columbia) Memory Sing With Mitch (CL 1542)
17	16	15	HARRY BELAFONTE (Victor) Returns to Carnegie Hall (LOC 6007)
18	21	15	LAWRENCE WELK (Dot) Last Date (DLP 3350)
19	20	30	NEVER ON SUNDAY (UA) Soundtrack (UAL 4070)
20	22	8	LIMELITERS (Victor) Tonight: In Person (LPM 2272)
21	18	6	WILDCAT (Victor) Original Cast (LOC 1060)
22	23	17	THE ALAMO (Columbia) Soundtrack (CL 1558)
23	33	31	KINGSTON TRIO (Capitol) String Along (T 1407)
24	—	1	BILL BLACK COMBO (Hi) Solid and Raunchy (12003)
25	32	12	BILLY VAUGHN (Dot) Soundowners Theme (DLP 3349)
26	19	48	BOB NEWHART (WB) Button Down Mind (W 1379)
27	40	3	JOHNNY HORTON (Columbia) Horton's Greatest Hits (CL 1596)
28	25	6	JUSTIN WILSON (Ember) Humorous World of (ELP 801)
29	24	5	MIKE NICHOLS & ELAINE MAY (Mercury) Evening with Nichols & May (OCM 2200)
30	37	2	BING CROSBY (WB) Join Bing & Sing
31	38	5	PAUL ANKA (ABC-Par) Paul Anka Sings His Big 15 (ABC-323)
32	—	1	RAY CHARLES (Impulse) Genius Plus Soul Equals Jazz (A-2)
33	35	43	SOUTH PACIFIC (Victor) Soundtrack (LOC 1032)
34	—	1	TERRY SNYDER (Command) Persuasive Percussion (RS 33-808)
35	—	1	BRENDA LEE (Decca) This Is Brenda Lee (DL 4082)
36	—	1	BROADWAY'S BEST (Columbia) Assorted Artists (BZW 1)
37	34	5	DO RE MI (Victor) Original Cast (LOC 2002)
38	—	1	FRANK SINATRA (Capitol) All the Way (W 1538)
39	30	15	ROGER WILLIAMS (Kapp) Temptation (KL 1217)
40	—	1	BOBBY RYDELL (Cameo) Rydell's Greatest Hits (C 1009)

The HIT! OF THE WEEK
LE ROY HOLMES
And Orch.
Play
THE BILBAO SONG
K 12992
M-G-M Records

VARIETY (Mar. 1)
BEST BET
"SOLID SPINNING"
MISTER LONELINESS
GENE VINCENT
on Capitol Records
FAMOUS MUSIC CORPORATION

LES BROWN
And His Band of Renown
and the
DUKES OF DIXIELAND
Appearing at the
BOAT SHOW
McCormick Place, Chicago, Ill., March 24 Thru April 2
BOOKED EXCLUSIVELY BY ASSOCIATED BOOKING CORPORATION
JOE GLASER, President
745 FIFTH AVE., NEW YORK 22, N. Y., PLAZA 9-4600
CHICAGO • MIAMI BEACH • HOLLYWOOD • LAS VEGAS • DALLAS • LONDON

LATEST RELEASE
GAMBLER'S GUITAR
by
VINNY LEE
#10189
ABC-PARAMOUNT

2 GREAT INSTRUMENTALS!
Theme from
HAND IN HAND
by DAVID CARROLL
MERCURY RECORDS #71790
M. WITMARK & SONS
BILBAO SONG
by LEROY HOLMES
M.G.M. RECORDS K12992
HARMS, INC.

WATCH THESE CLIMB!
(When You're Young And)
ONLY SEVENTEEN
Prediction—A HIT!
FRANK D'RONE on Mercury
IT'S SO WONDERFUL
Prediction—A HIT!
SYLIA SAYNT on Columbia
LET YOUR LIPS TELL ME
Prediction—A HIT!
JULIUS LaROSA on Kapp
B. F. WOOD MUSIC Co., Inc.
1619 Broadway, New York 19,
STANLEY MILLS, Prof. Mgr.

Mills HIT REMINDERS
CORRINA, CORRINA
Ray Peterson—Dunes
MOOD INDIGO
Floyd Cramer-RCA Victor
GIRL OF MY DREAMS
Marty DeRose-MGM
MILLS MUSIC, INC.
1619 Broadway New York 19

"THE GREATEST SHOWMAN IN THE PIANO PLAYING BUSINESS"

Now In Release—

LIBERACE
AT THE LONDON PALLADIUM

(Actually recorded May 14, 1960)

WITH THE LONDON PALLADIUM ORCHESTRA

Under The Direction of GORDON ROBINSON

The statement that Liberace's recent return to the London Palladium was a success would win a prize . . . if prizes were awarded for understatement.

The London press, who once upon a time cast a cold, if not hostile eye on the man they now call "Mr. Showmanship," reacted to his recent Palladium engagement in the warmest, most glowing superlatives. "He gave us all he's got . . . and he's got quite a lot," said one. "There is no stopping the applause . . ." "The greatest showman in the piano playing business . . ." "Smart, fast moving and satisfying entertainment . . ." "For sheer all-around talent and versatility I doubt very much if show business has produced a finer performer than Liberace."

And the Londoners, who jammed the famous auditorium to capacity night after night? . . . Traditional reserve notwithstanding, they flipped!

Here is Liberace, his exciting keyboard, and occasional vocal interpretations of a varied collection of well known melodies, performed in continuous sequence to the accompaniment of the London Palladium Orchestra, and recorded ON THE SPOT, at the London Palladium.

CORAL RECORDS

CRL 57346 (LP)
CRL 757346 (Stereo)

Cugat-Lane Stir Argentine Public Via Disputes With Agent, Others

Buenos Aires, March 21.

Xavier Cugat and Abbe Lane, who have been touring the provinces prior to opening at El Nacional Theatre here, can't be charged with failing to stir up interest in their Argentine engagements. Since arriving here about a month ago the Cugats became involved in a dispute with their agent, a fracas with a nitery owner and made a public apology to the latter's patrons for their failure to appear.

While recently in the resort city of Mar del Plata for stints at the Provincial Hotel and the Nogaro Theatre, the Cugats were also due to play Osvaldo Pujati's Maracaibo nitery. All three engagements were set by agent Pablo Williams. Pujati put up a $1,700 advance and claimed he spent another $750 on publicity.

But upon seeing the tiny Maracaibo, Cugat complained about its small stage. He said it could not hold its entire ensemble and it would be impossible to put on a good show. Nor did he like the price itself, having had the impression he was to appear at a country club.

Cugat communicated his displeasure to agent Williams in one of Mar del Plata's most public spots, the lobby of the Provincial Hotel in a wordy battle with he himself, brother Enrique, Miss Lane, Williams and Pujati all participating. Pujati protested that unless Cugat appeared at the Maracaibo he would take legal action and seize the bandleader's baggage.

When Cugat rejected the date as "impossible," Pujati demanded that he return the advance and appear at the Maracaibo in person to explain his failure to work there to the public. Cugat agreed. Accompanied by Miss Lane, he strode upon the Maracaibo stage around 1:20 a.m. to state why he could not perform. Pujati apparently recovered his advance.

Later, the Cugats left for bookings in Mendoza, Cordoba and Rosario, and, as the local saying goes: "la sangre no llego el rio" (the blood did not reach the river).

18-Yr.-Old Girls Could No Longer Get Martini Under Proposed Ill. Law

Chicago, March 21.

Spurred by a newspaper expose of teenage drinking in wealthy suburbs north of Chicago, the Illinois Senate Licensing and Miscellany Committee hurriedly approved a bill which, if passed, would make it illegal for taverns and package goods stores to sell beer or whisky to girls under 21. Under present laws in this state, girls 18 and over may be served in bars, but boys must be 21.

It's impossible to estimate at this point how much the proposed statute would affect cabaret business here, but it's clear that it would create an additional nuisance for business.

Despite failure in previous attempts to change the law, Sen. John Graham of north suburban Barrington paraded adamant representatives of the Women's Christian Temperance Union, Illinois Municipal League and Illinois Council of Churches armed with petitions bearing 120,000 names before an apparently foot-dragging committee. Upshot of the expose climate and anti-alcohol pressure was an 11 to 0 vote to release the bill to the Senate floor.

Girls who violate the law under Graham's bill could by fined $50 and jailed for one year. Owners of taverns and package goods stores caught selling to minors could get maximum fines of $1,000 and six months in jail.

Project Package Show With Rocky Marciano

Boston, March 21.

Booker Fred Petty, who handles ex-champ Rocky Marciano, is planning for a tour of Italy, France, England, Germany and Australia, with Marciano, acts and tooters in a package.

Both booker and fighter hail from the same home town of Brockton, Mass. Petty, whose Fred Petty Agency operates in Boston, is interviewing acts for the contemplated tour.

'Holiday on Ice' Cancels Congo

The touring African company of "Holiday on Ice" has been forced to abandon its playdate in Leopoldville, Congo, according to word received in the New York offices of the blades show. The U. S. State Dept. asked the company to postpone this stop until it's considered safe to work there. It's understood that protection couldn't be guaranteed the cast and equipment neither by U. N. troops nor from the Congolese.

The show had been playing Luanda, Angola, and was supposed to stay only two weeks. But with the unsettled conditions in Leopoldville, it extended its stand in Luanda. Unit will move on to Lagos, Nigeria, when it retrieves its equipment which it had shipped to Leopoldville. Lobito, also in Angola, will follow its Luanda date. There is a chance that the show will play Brazzaville, French Equatorial Africa, just outside Leopoldville. "Holiday" is touring under joint State Dept. and American National Theatre and Academy auspices.

Presently, "Holiday" has two editions touring in Europe. One is now in Copenhagen and the other in Amsterdam. Of course there's also the regular show which is playing American dates.

House Reviews

Folies Bergere, Paris

Paris, March 16.

Paul Derval presentation of musical revue, "Folies Cheries," in two acts (40 scenes) of Michel Gyarmathy. Staged by and costumes and sets of Gyarmathy; music, Henri Betti, J. P. Landreau, Fred Freed, G. Tabet, Pierre Larrieux, M. Glansberg; lyrics, Andre Hornez; choreography, Billy Petch; orchestrations and direction, Georges Alloo. With Lynda Gloria, Sherry Young, Silvana Blasi, Micheline Roine, Andre Vallon, Frederic Dard, Roger Stefani, Florin Luball & Asta Arisa, Arnaut, John & Arnaut, Marcellys (2), Olympiads (3), Folies Dancers (12), Folies Chorus Boys (8), Folies Nudes (12), Folies Mannequins (8), Jacqueline Brunard, Denise Dartus & Henri Barjac; $4.50 top.

After three years that old staple musical revue house, the Folies Bergere, comes up with a new show; and it should easily run for three more. The elegant costuming, and lack of it, the pace, brilliance in sets and general lavishness all combine to make this another fine entry in the classical envelope here.

One major change is the cutting out of all the oldtime suggestive skits and replacing them by production numbers. Fine stage wait vaude sketches also help.

Michel Gyarmathy again displays his inventiveness in the excellently conceived sets, costuming and the overall speed of the show. Zingy numbers are followed by slow or nude dance interludes and acts to open up again into well done production gambits.

The revue has the sumptuousness, vulgarized classical bits and general knowhow to give it a show biz "Gay Paree" aspect that easily holds the Folies renown and keeps it abreast of the fine shows at the Casino De Paris and the Lido.

Plenty of money must have gone into this scintillating affair. It begins with a rousing can-can with Roger Stefani shining in a loose-limbed terp interlude. Then comes a nude terping bit with neatly chassied Denise Dartus being manhandled by muscular Henri Barjac and Frederic Rey.

A series of expertly laid out and costumed tableaus skim through French history. These end with a gigantic jeweler's box spewing out a human necklace of the Folies Dancers, seconded by the Folies Chorus Boys, nudes and mannequins.

Lynda Gloria is a zesty Latino singer who does well in French and English songs and has a presence and projection to give cohesion to the cascading numbers. A limber bodied Yank terper, Sherry Young adds a sensuous series of vibrating dances to the proceedings. She scores in a lone number in which she couples a rubbery, suggestive movement with terp ingenuity.

An Italo segment comes next. It features a Roman orgy that's heightened by the lusty miming of sex-wild Queen Messaline by rowdy, good-humored Silvana Blasi whose smoldering songs and vulgar outgoing attitude also help. There's also a bright marriage ceremony to end part one in churchly surroundings and pealing bells, and no peeled belles in that one.

Come a human fountain, a Japanese section, a colorful turn-of the century number and a grand finale with girls coming down from the ceiling on platforms and the cast going around on a carousel.

Olympiads supply a measured gilded-bodied hand to hand act for big mitts. Marcellys do an inventive knockabout acro stint while Jacquine Brunard contributes an accordion bit with some well belted medleys.

Arnaut, John, & Arnaut do comic shenanigans while waltzing with violins wrapped around each other and playing them, or giving a take off on a trio of courting birds for big yocks.

Micheline Roine, Jacqueline Mar

(Continued on page 64)

SRO Wherever He Plays

JUST CONCLUDED 3 SMASH WEEKS PLAYBOY'S PENTHOUSE, CHICAGO

CURRENT, NEW FARM SUPPER CLUB PROVIDENCE, R. I., MONTH OF MARCH

RETURN ENGAGEMENT BLINSTRUB'S, BOSTON, MONTH OF JUNE 1961

THE CROWN ROOM, INDIANAPOLIS SEPT. 18, 1961, 3 WEEKS

"No one, not even a Danny Kaye or a Johnny Mathis can follow him."
GEORGE CLARKE, Boston Daily Record.

"Tip to talent scouts (and psychiatrists, too): Hypnotist Sam Vine." LEE MORTIMER, New York Confidential.

"Unbelievably great."
ALAN FRAZER, Boston American.

LIMITED BOOKINGS AVAILABLE

—SAM VINE—

The Hottest Act in Show Biz!

Mr Sam Vine
THE PLAYBOY CLUB
116 East Walton Street
Chicago 11, Illinois

February 13, 1961.

Dear Sam:

Congratulations! Your current engagement at The Playboy Club is breaking all records. Hypnotism makes a smart act for our room, as this booking proves. We intend to have you back again and again. Your act is tasteful, intelligent and very amusing.

Sincerely,
Victor Lownes, III
PLAYBOY MAGAZINE-THE PLAYBOY CLUB

VL/ad

WHAT THE CRITICS SAY

"Vine brings a fresh and hip approach to hypnotism." VARIETY.

"Hypnotist Sam Vine had the opening night audience (a lot of home builders) in a trance at the Playboy Club." MAGGIE DALY, Chicago's American.

"And that's the way Sam Vine moved into the big time at Blinstrub's in what must surely rank as the most impressive show of his burgeoning career . . . and in all of those in the roaring audience, Stanley Blinstrub was roaring the loudest." GEORGE CLARKE, Boston Daily Record.

Blinstrub's, Boston

Boston, Sept. 13.

Sam Vine, Ann Henry, Harrison & Kossi (2), Michael Gaylord Orch (8), $2.50 minimum.

Sam Vine, one of the most unusual acts in show biz, makes a terrific entry into the bigtime with his astounding hypno layout, in which he is producer, director, choreographer and sceneshifter, to kick off the official opening of Blinstrub's big 1,700-seater for the season. Stirring up plenty of business excitement opening night, of an unprecedented four-week stand, after skedded opening of Monday (12) was deferred by Hurricane Donna, Vine is proving the hottest ticket in town, and looks to rack up one of the biggest bonanzas in the big boite's history.

Vine comes on affably with smooth patter about hypnotism, giving it a bit of background. His monolog is crisp and nicely paced, and he's not plagued by trouble of getting volunteers, in fact he has to brush off repeaters who want to get into the act again. Forty responded to his call opening night; 11 of them femmes. Selecting 20, including six girls in a rapidfire test, Vine went to work evoking and hilarious amazement at the control he manifests over his subjects.

Gny, VARIETY.

FRED PETTY AGENCY 321 Tremont St., Boston, Mass. Tel. Liberty 2-2328

NOW IT'S THE PLAYBOY TIME

Rancho Vegas Pirated 'Nouvelle Eve,' Showman Charges in $1,000,000 Suit

Las Vegas, March 21.

Rene Bardy, show producer of Paris, filed a suit in Federal Court here Wednesday (15) seeking more than $1,000,000 in damages on the contention that the operators of El Rancho Vegas hotel pirated his show from him.

Bardy, owner of "La Nouvelle Eve" nitery in the Pigalle section of Paris, alleges unfair competition and breach of contract by El Rancho, which had a show bearing the name of his club two years ago.

Other defendants named are Beldon Katleman, owner of the hotel which burned down June 16, 1960; MCA Artists Ltd.; Roy Gerber, MCA veep in charge of the Las Vegas office; the Turret Corp., a show biz booking agency; Matt Gregory, head of the Turret firm, and Fred Haettel, local AGVA rep.

In a complaint prepared by attorney Morton Galane, Bardy contends that Katleman cancelled the show because of the absence of a dancer and vocalist. A later ruling was issued by AGVA that the cast would have to return to Europe unless its members accepted an offer from the hotel for a salary cut from $5,000 to $2,000 per week.

Bardy contends that part of his cast was used in the presentation of a later show at El Rancho with a similar title—"La Nue Eve"—and that the other defendants in the action agreed to the cancellation of the contract and subsequently deprived Bardy of his performers and scenery. He asserts that this contriving has "enriched" the hotel, but deprived him of a reasonable fee for his own show.

Bardy asks $137,237 as a reasonable fee for the lost income from his show; $250,000 for loss to the reputation of his show and reasonably prospective income; and $750,000 punitive damages.

Top Salesman

Honolulu, March 21.

Col. Tom Parker's talents are displaying another facet. Elvis Presley's manager-promoter-impresario says he's personally sold 75 tickets to the Presley U. S. S. Arizona war memorial benefit which will be staged at Pearl Harbor's big Bloch Arena Saturday (25). Price per ticket: $100.

Aside from 350 century-note seats, house will be scaled from $10 to $3, with a $50,000 gross indicated.

Tahoe Harrah's Rivals Vegas For Top Names

Lake Tahoe, March 21.

Tahoe Harrah's, northern Nevada's newest plush nitery, after its first year of operation has evolved as one of the nation's top talent buyers.

Sammy Davis Jr. just wrapped up a double frame for his Tahoe Harrah's debut, with Fred Waring following. Calibre of headliners is indicated by the sked for the next few months: April 7, Johnny Mathis; April 20, Louis Prima & Keely Smith; May 4, Eydie Gorme & Steve Lawrence; May 18, Jimmy Durante; June 8, Nat King Cole; and on July 6 Art Linkletter debuts his nitery act. Rest of the summer is filled out with such as Harry Belafonte, Kay Starr, George Burns, and Teresa Brewer. Club is also negotiating for a couple of other once-per-year power names.

Harrah's has been booking talent for about five years in its stage bars at Lake Tahoe and Reno, and in the old South Shore Room (directly opposite the location of the new club) at Tahoe, but the stable of top talent has been developed during the last two years. Russ Hall is entertainment director for both clubs. The new South Shore Room recently tried its first stage production with a successful three-week run of "Holiday in Japan," and an earlier booking of "Adventures on Ice."

Tahoe Harrah's lounge, which offers live entertainment on a 14-hour schedule, also books the better names: Ray Anthony, Mary Kaye Trio, Jerry Colonna, The Lancers, Martin Denny, Nick Lucas and Al Hirt. The show lounge at Harrah's in Reno also a round-the-clock operation, books the same calibre lounge attractions.

Omaha's Ak-Sar-Ben Fills '61 Talent Slate; 4 Agencies Bag Shows

Omaha, March 21.

Ak-Sar-Ben, Omaha's civic org that emphasizes shows in selling its annual membership, last week wound up its talent-buying for 1961, with local Don Romeo Agency bagging three shows, and Hap Peebles of Wichita, Barnes & Carruthers and GAC-Hamid one apiece.

In addition to twofers to International Hockey League contests now under way, here's what the members (20,561 is this year's goal) will get for their $10 dues this season:

April 26-27—Hap Peebles' Grand Ole Opry Revue, with Homer & Jethro, Carl Smith, June, Helen and Michelle Carter, the Plainsmen, Patsy Cline and Leon McAuliffe's Band.

May 8-9—Don Romeo show, with Les Brown's Band, Jimmy Dean, Gloria DeHaven, Henny Youngman and one supporting act.

May 11-12—Don Romeo show, featuring Buddy Ebsen, Al Kelly, Gretchen Wyler & supporting acts.

July 15-16—Omaha Symphony Orchestra concert.

July 23—Vincent Emmanuel Band concert.

July 24-26—Ernie Young circus type revue from GAC-Hamid, packed to kids, with Tippy & Cobina, Ladd Lyon, Natal and Elkins Sisters starring. Omaha Pyrotechnic fireworks concludes show.

July 28-30—Twofers for annual Horse Show.

Aug. 12-13—Mid-America Music Assn's Bowl Festival.

Aug. 14-16—Barnes & Carruthers Revue, another kid attraction, with George Carl & Arlene, Rudy Dockery's Tots, Ray & Everto, Three Lengers, Jack Marshall, Kodell, Algelite and 20 cal-lite. Howoff will be fireworks by Theodore Lorfeld.

Aug. 20—Concert by Strategic Air Command Band.

Aug. 21-23—Third kids show, this by Don Romeo, with the Three Stooges and other acts.

Aug. 25-27—Twofers for Omaha Symphony light opera production.

Sept. 9—Twofers for annual Square Dance Festival.

Sept. 22-Oct. 1—Twofers for annual Rodeo, this year starring Robert Wagon Train Horton, the riding Zerpees and Dick Riders.

Oct. 20-21—Annual Coronation and Ball, with Les Brown's Band playing for the dance the second night.

Rock-Hil-Uris Corp. To Operate N.Y. Hilton

The proposed New York Hilton Hotel in the Rockefeller Center area will be built and equipped by a new corporation formed by Rockefeller Center Inc., the Hilton Hotels Corp. and Uris Buildings Corp. Known as Rock-Hil-Uris Corp., the concern has a 20-year agreement to operate the new 2,125-room edifice.

In a joint announcement last week, the participating firms disclosed that Joseph P. Binns, a Hilton Hotels v.p., has been named prez and chief exec officer of Rock-Hil-Uris Corp. Percy Uris, board chairman of Uris Buildings Corp., is a v.p. as is Laurence S. Rockefeller, board chairman of Rockefeller Center.

Demolition of buildings on the site has been in progress since January and excavation for the foundation is slated for next month, weather permitting. The structure is expected to be completed in January, 1963.

BIGGEST VAUDE LOOP SINCE RKO

Chicago, March 21.

Coming up: the Playboy circuit.

Within the next 18 months counterparts of the highly successful Playboy Club in Chi (reputedly earning more in its first year of operation than parent Playboy Magazine) are slated to open in Miami, New York and Los Angeles, in that order. Franchises are also being set up in Baltimore, New Orleans, Pittsburgh, Detroit and St. Louis.

Prospective impact on the talent market is obvious: Chi operation employs seven vaude acts at a time, plus two musical units, spending an average $8,000 weekly for talent. The new clubs are intended to have the selfsame policy ("Disneyland for adults—with something going on all the time," as Playboy veep Vic Lownes 3d articulates it), which could possibly turn the Playboy into the biggest vaude circuit since the Keith-Orpheum and Loew palmiest days.

All of the clubs will be booked out of the Chi headquarters, chiefly by Lownes and Playboy International prexy Hugh Hefner. Execs plan to hold costs down by shaping acts into a unit here, then putting them on the Playboy circuit.

Gotham's $1,000,000 Club

According to Lownes, about $1,000,000 has been earmarked for construction of the Gotham club, which will be built from the ground up at 5 E. 59th St. It's skedded to open at the end of this year. Miami club should be unveiled within the next fortnight, and the L.A. operation is projected for late 1962.

Like the Chi prototype, all clubs will ask a $50 initiation fee from members. The Windy City Playboy, in its first year, enrolled 35,779 members, each of whom paid $50 for the privilege of buying drinks at $1.50 per.

House, a three story building with a split level entrance floor (it once housed the swank Cameo Club), has rooms dubbed Penthouse, Library, Living Room, etc. There is a closed circuit tv camera at the entrance which beams to members in the various rooms activity at the front door, as for instance who's arriving. Waitresses are sexy, but natch, and are clad in brief bunny costumes (Playboy's trademark).

Present bill, which is typical in

(Continued on page 66)

Bonn Restricts Russian Circus After Moscow Limits W. German Acts

Frankfurt, March 21.

The Moscow State Circus, which was slated to play throughout West Germany on its current tour of Europe, has been banned from about half of its German dates. West German circus owners and concert managers have demanded that the dates of the Moscow Circus be cancelled because West German artists have not been permitted to play in Russia.

The Russian Circus will now play only in Hamburg, Dortmund, Cologne and Stuttgart instead of in all major German cities where it was scheduled.

In recent months only two groups, the Hamburg Theatre Ensemble of director-producer Gustav Gruendgens and Max Greger's dance orchestra, have been given permits to play in Russia. Moreover, the performances of both groups were restricted to only four cities—Moscow, Leningrad, Kiev and Smolensk.

As a reprisal for the treatment accorded the Hamburg Theatre unit and the Greger dance orch, the 13 German circus owners and concert managers have demanded in Bonn that the Moscow Circus be similarly restricted to just four cities.

Carmel Quinn's Songs, Pipers, Clogs: A Folksy Irish Nite at Carnegie

By ROBERT J. LANDRY

The art of filling New York's Carnegie Hall with the sentimental descendants of immigrants has been practiced assiduously in recent decades by the recital impressari. There have been waves of Russians and Ukrainians from the suburbs, outpourings of Austrians, Yugoslavs, Italians, Spaniards, et al. As goes Sol Hurok, Andre Mertens, Luben Vichy and Felix Gerstman, so goes Carmel Quinn. Except that she is rather more unique in being an Irish impresario who stars herself.

Saint Patrick's Day evening is the natural occasion for Miss Quinn's occupancy (sixth year running of Carnegie at $3.50 top. A native of Dublin who acquired her vocal know-how there and in London and her American buildup with Godfrey on the air, Miss Quinn is a lot more than just a television-created personality with an on-and-off brogue. She demonstrated last Friday (17) that she is an entertainer of authority—though it's safe to say an all-Irish audience was hardly likely to resist what she, and her colleagues, were dispensing.

The point is that Miss Quinn, a standard turn in the smart cafes, is more than a singer. She can belt them out with a hearty style and excellent diction. But her trouper qualities show in the easy chatter which arises-in Carnegie to the size of a close-up. She has theatrical savvy—goes just far enough with the Irishisms. She throws in a few anecdotes with the air of having been reminded of them on the spur of the moment. There are telling homefolksy touches, like a

(Continued on page 66)

Dishes to Riches

Honolulu, March 21.

Norman Hondo, manager of the Maui Palms Hotel, heads a syndicate that has purchased Lyle C. Guslander's 51% interest in the Maui island resort. Hondo started as a dishwasher at the hotel when Guslander opened it in 1954.

Guslander will concentrate on his Kauai and Hawaii island resort properties.

Indie Agents Also Bitter Over Paar, Sullivan Situation

The Ed Sullivan-Jack Paar dispute has given the indie agent a chance to take off on both of the beleaguered parties. Both were flayed for virtually refusing to buy from those not allied with the big and prosperous offices. "We can't even get near them," seems to be the universal cry among the indies.

A pair of them said, "We used to have a chance with them at the beginning. We needed each other, but they needed us more than we did. They auditioned for talent, and sometimes went around to theatres and cafes, or at least they sent somebody to look at acts based on the recommendation of the small offices.

"Lately, it's difficult to get near any of the buyers for the top variety shows in tv. Virtually everything that comes on is from the big offices, unless some particular angle is involved." In all fairness, it was pointed out, Sullivan still goes around to look at acts whenever possible, but it's hard to get to him when he's buying.

Peculiarly enough, it was noted, the indies have supplied Paar with the talent that has remained with him for years. Included are the Martin Goodman office which provided him with Hugh Downs; Barron Polan, which booked Genevieve with him originally and Jonathan Winters who also came from the Goodman office.

The indies feel that their failure to get near these topliners when they're signing contracts has lost them a lot of clients. The majors, MCA, William Morris and General Artists Corp., have been able to snag a lot of acts, merely on the basis of being more effective in television.

Swe-Danes Trio Losing Singer Alice Babs in Fall

Stockholm, March 21.

The Swe-Danes trio, a top harmony group in Scandinavia, will break up next fall when Swedish singer Alice Babs withdraws to become a housewife. Formed less than two years ago, the unit also includes Danes Ulrick Neuman and Svend Asmussen.

Trio toured the U.S. last fall and are slated for tv dates in England next month. In explaining her withdrawal, Miss Babs said "I am happy about the success we have had, but my children are at an age when I am needed at home." Neuman and Asmussen are uncertain whether they'll try to form a similar group.

HONOLULU NITERY SWITCH

Honolulu, March 21.

Spencecliff chain is taking over operations of Woody's International restaurant-nitery. In the international Market Place from Dwight Woodworth, who'll continue to run his midtown restaurant.

The Waikiki nitery will acquire a new name after renovations are completed.

Shurr Agency Lifted His 'Little Revue,' Ben Bagley Claims in $15,000 Suit

Agents Louis Shurr and Lester Shurr have been named defendants in a $15,000 damage suit brought in N.Y. Supreme Court by producer Ben Bagley. Action charges the defendants with pirating Bagley's "Little Revue," illegally using his name and harming his reputation by producing an inferior revue.

Bagley, according to the complaint, conceived and produced the "Little Revue" during September, 1960. Lester Shurr booked the revue into the Bostonian Hotel, Boston, where it received "excellent notices." Same show played the Crystal Palace, St. Louis, in November, 1960, to critical acclaim.

But after the St. Louis date, Bagley asserted, Lester Shurr refused to give him details of an offer by the Statler Hilton in Dallas for a two-week booking. Instead, he charged, Lester Shurr commenced making plans for the Texas engagement "as if he were the producer and had a right and interest in the plaintiff's revue."

Although Bagley demanded the Shurrs cease taking over his revue, the complaint states, they nevertheless went ahead in appropriating material and informing the trade that they were the producers of the "Little Revue." All this, he claims, caused considerable confusion among agents, performers and authors. The overall effect, it's contended, was unfair competition.

Bagley, who seeks an immediate trial, also wants a permanent injunction restraining the Shurrs from using "The Little Revue" tag or his own name in any connection. In addition, he asks an accounting of all profits arising from their alleged unfair competition.

He charged that the defendants' production at the Dallas Statler Hilton was so far below the revue's standards of his own revue that a prospective 20-week booking at the Hilton chain failed to materialize. This, he maintains, through papers filed by attorney Henry [illegible] Green, caused him "great and irreparable" injury.

Vaude, Cafe Dates

New York

John Wrenn of the Tivoli Circuit, Australia, will remain at the Pierre Hotel, N.Y., until tomorrow (Thurs.) . . . Dee Anthony and Jerry Katz voted into membership of the Conference of Personal Managers East . . . Sonny Aron shifted from MCA to Durgon & Katz . . . . Stan Scottland of General Artists Corp., and wife Nanette, cruised off to Nassau Friday (17) . . . . Larry Gengo, MCA, back at his desk after a Canadian booking trip . . . . One of the largest turnouts for an agent expected at the Sam Berger (Berger, Ross & Steinman) testimonial by the City of Hope next Sunday (26) at the Hotel Waldrof-Astoria's Grand Ballroom.

Joey Bishop signed for a February date next year for the Copacabana . . . . Earl Grant moves to Basin St. East in November . . . . Edgar Bergen slated for Hillsdale (Mich.) Fair, April 28 . . . . Fisher & Marks go to the Mardi Gras, Baltimore, April 15 . . . . Boots McKenna Line booked for the Night & Day, Rio de Janeiro, April 17 . . . . Micki Marlo, Billy Falbo and Mann Bros. slated for the international, March 29 . . . . Morty Gunty goes to the Elegante, Brooklyn, April 18 . . . . Frances Faye pacted for an August date at the Pigalle, London.

Chicago

Ice Capades opens 16-day stand at the Chicago Stadium April 1 . . . Bob Newhart plays a concert date at Veterans Memorial, Columbus, April 6 . . . Chubby Checker headlines current bill at the Regal Theatre. Also on program are Drifters, Redd Foxx, Blue Notes and Jimmy Charles . . . Jerry Mathers ("Leave It To Beaver") is setting fair dates in the midwest for this summer . . . Sir Judson Smith set for Muehlebach Hotel, Kansas City, May 1 for four weeks . . . Diane Gayle & Streamliners into La Rue's, Indianapolis, June 26, for three weeks . . . Elkins Sisters skedded for Ed Sullivan Show April 3.

Dallas

Riviera Club, new privatery, opened with singing 88'er Mark Carroll, backed by Dee & Willie Barton on drums and bass . . . Patsy Shaw, comedienne, at King's Club for two weeks . . . "Split Level," new revue, opens March 25 at the Tree Club . . . Louis Armstrong inked for May 3 State Fair Music Hall date by Mrs. Iva D. Nichols . . . Johnny Bachemin's "Point Blank 1961" revue into Angelo's, Omaha, April 3, for two frames . . . "Pursuit of Happiness," new Jerry Segal revue with an eight member cast, due Thursday (23) for an indefinite run . . . Statler-Hilton's revised setup has Liza & Tom Tucker, March 23-29; Helene & Howard, March 30-April 5; Lois & Ray Hughes, April 6-12; Rowan & Martin, April 13-26; Jane Morgan, April 27-May 10 and Nelson Eddy & Gale Sherwood, May 11-24. Rich Bono's band holds at the Empire Room . . . Marie Bernard at Earl's, new privatery, for two weeks.

Hollywood

Georgia Gibbs booked into Cocoanut Grove April 1 with comic Bob Melvin . . . Pat Suzuki into Chi-Chi, Palm Springs, March 23 . . . George Shearing Quintet and Earl Grant open at Crescendo tomorrow . . . Lorraine Barry joins Ben Di Tosti group at Agua Caliene . . . Glenn Billingsley opened new Santa Monica Outrigger, with Hutch Sabiston resident manager . . . Dagmar held over at Slate Bros. . . . Martin Denny tees off four-week stand tonight at Sands Hotel, Las Vegas . . . Al Hirt steps into Cloister March 30 with Mae Williams, on her first Coast stand in four years.

Pittsburgh

Easter Monday will end the traditional dog days in Pitt cafes . . . April 3 will see Nelson Eddy & Gale Sherwood in for two frames at the Horizon Room . . . Mills Bros. in for two at Holiday House . . . Vagabonds current there with Maria Neglia . . . The Dukes of Dixieland come into the Holiday House on April 17 for two followed by a brace for both the Four Lads and Paul Anka . . . Muggsy Spanier comes back to the Riverboat Room at the Penn Sheraton for a run on April . . . Bobby Hackett is current there to be followed by Jack Purcell, a local group, for Holy Week.

Philadelphia

Roster for the Red Hill Inn slates Buddy Rich, March 24-26 . . . Joe Williams, April 7-9; Slide Hampton, April 14-16; Cal Tjades, April 2-23 . . . the Tommy Dorsey band, Lee Castle conducting, plays Sunnybrook, March 25 . . . Bobby Peterson booked into the Showboat, next month: Gene Ammons, Sonny Stitt, April 7-12; Aretha Franklin, April 24-29; Gloria Lynne, May 1-6; Fats Domino, May 8-13; Bess McCann, May 15-20; Chris Coleman, May 22-7; Miles Davis, May 29-June 3 . . . The Satellites has returned to the Fremont Hotel, in Vegas, their seventh playing date at the spot in the last five years . . . A special benefit matinee will be held at Pep's, March 24, for Lem Winchester's widow and kids. Local musicians have volunteered their services.

Reno-Tahoe

Art Linkletter firmed for a July 6-19 booking at Tahoe Harrah's . . . Billy Williams, Ford & Reynolds and Arthur Walsh head new Riverside Hotel show March 30 . . . King's IV set to open at the Sands in Las Vegas, May 17 . . . Signatures doing okay biz at Mapes Lounge . . . Characters in reprise at Harolds Club with Rusty Draper headlining . . . Frank Yankovic makes his Reno debut at the Holiday April 13 . . . George Rock Sextet to Reno Harrah's April 3 for four weeks . . . Andrini Bros. in playback at Wagon Wheel, Tahoe, with Frank Fanelli as new member on the vocals . . . Reno Harrah's converting stage bar into theatre-lounge.

House Reviews

Continued from page 62

Folies Bergere

cy and Andre Vallon do acceptable singing and em-and-femceeing.

This new Folies Bergere program is up to standard and even has a dash of balletics with Florin Luball and Asta Arisa.

Terping is generally friskier and more regulated than usual, and the exciting set perspectives, meccano effects, nudes and costumes keep the renown of this world famed tourist mecca intact. Nothing much new, but who wants to rewrite a hit? Mosk.

Music Hall, N.Y.

"Glory of Easter" production with Gladys Kriese, choral ensemble, symphony orch under Raymond Paige; "Spring Bouquet" production with Mona Elson, John Lankston, Bill Drew, Rassos (2), Alegria Bros. (3), Corps de Ballet with Helen Wood, Rockettes, Choraleers; "The Absent-Minded Professor" (BV), reviewed in VARIETY Feb. 22, 1961.

Radio City Music Hall's Easter show has now become as much a part of the New York spring scene as the St. Patrick's Day parade and the circus. Now moving into its third decade, the "Glory of Easter" still registers as impressive spectacle with its imitative cathedral atmosphere and its massed formations to the music of "Kamenoi Ostrow." As the longest-running perennial production in this showcase, it remains a surefire tourist attraction.

The rest of the layout also exploits the standard ingredients for Music Hall shows with an elaborately staged routine by the corps de ballet in which Helen Wood is spotlighted as the soloist. There's also some fancy hoofing by the high-kicking Rockettes, the surefire trademark of this house's stage shows.

Two excellent outside specialty acts have been found in The Rassos and the Alegria Bros. The Rassos score with an acrobatic cycling turn, working on top of a high platform on which they do their difficult balancing stunts. The Alegria Bros. are a standout juggling team, combining comedy byplay with a snappily-paced and razor sharp series of bits with Indian pins, hoops and balls. It rates powerful mitting.

Some pleasing tap dancing is contributed by Bill Drew who works briefly in one small corner of the stage. Mona Elson and John Lankston do a cute workover of "Don't Look at Me That Way" in a frog getup. With Gladys Kriese as soloist, the choraleers dish up an excellent medley of standards, including "With a Song in My Heart," "You Are Love" and "Love Is Sweeping the Country."

The finale, with the whole company, is another production spectacular, utilizing the elevator stage for the spring bouquet effect. Herm.

HAWAII CT. RULES OUT 'BINGO TYPE' GAMES

Honolulu, March 21.

"Fascination" and allied "bingo type" games are illegal, State Supreme Court has just ruled in a decision that may be appealed all the way to the U.S. Supreme Court.

Attorney for a local "Fascination" parlor contended that if presumed "element of chance" games violate the law, then golf and bowling tournaments, track and swimming meets, etc., are equally illegal. Justices, in unanimous decision, called that argument a "patent absurdity."

BOSTON SMASH HIT
THE GLAMOROUS NEW HOTEL
AVERY
Show folks are raving about the all new Hotel Avery. All new, large, beautifully furnished de-luxe rooms with private bath, television & radio. Air conditioning.
AVERY & WASHINGTON STS.

BILLY GLASON'S FUN-MASTER
PROFESSIONAL COMEDY MATERIAL
for all Theatricals
"We Service the Stars"
Patronize a Professional
35 Gag Files for $15. Plus $1.00 Postage
Foreign: 35 for $25
● 3 Parody Books, Per Bk. $10 ●
● 4 Blackout Books, Per Bk. $25 ●
● Minstrel Budget . . . $25 ●
How to Master the Ceremonies $3 per Copy
No C.O.D's "Always Open"
BILLY GLASON
200 W. 54th St., N.Y.C., 19 CO 5-1316
(WE TEACH EMCEEING and COMEDY)
(Let a Real Professional Train You)

"The Refreshingly Different Comedian"

LARRY WILDE
Currently
STEUBEN'S
BOSTON, MASS.
Pers. Mgt.: BILL FOSTER
1697 Broadway, N.Y. JUdson 2-3326

TIGER CUB or CUBS WANTED
Will Rent or Buy
Also WANTED:
WELL PROPORTIONED GIRL
Unafraid of tame tiger or cubs for swimming tank act and promotional work.
Call or write: BILL GANDALL
225 West 12 St., New York, N. Y.
WAtkins 9-1655

YVONNE MORAY
TOP HAT CLUB
WINDSOR, CANADA
ASSOCIATED BOOKING CORP.
JOE GLASER, Pres.

GAY'S GAGS
Topical gags, original one-liners, jokes. Published Monthly. Subscription $12 per year. Sample Copy $2. 6 back issues $4; 12 back issues $7; 24 back issues $12. Send checks, money-orders to EDDIE GAY, 242 West 72nd St., New York 23, N. Y.

BURNS AND CARLIN

Currently	Racquet Club, Dayton	Return Date
Mar. 30 - Apr. 20	Playboy Club, Chicago	Return Date
Apr. 24-30	Storyville, Boston	Return Date
May 1-7	Casino Royal, Washington
May 8-28	Crystal Palace, St. Louis

ERA Records Murray Becker, Manager GAC

JACKIE MASON
"An exciting personality and comic, Jackie Mason fills the bill on all counts . . . He just happens to be a very funny guy."
HARVEY KARMAN, Hollywood Reporter

Currently, hungry i, SAN FRANCISCO
Opening March 25th EDEN ROC, Miami Beach
NEXT: CRESCENDO, L. A. — COPACABANA, N. Y.
Guest Starring May 3rd: PERRY COMO SHOW, NBC-TV
Columbia ALBUM Soon to Be Released: "JACKIE MASON at the hungry i"
Personal Manager, BOB CHARTOFF, 157 West 57 Street, New York, N. Y.

THREE CHEERS FOR LIBERACE!!!
"Liberace show cheered . . . Liberace took over in the Palmer House Empire Room last night and before he was thru he had scored the most resounding success registered in the room in many, many months!"
CHARLIE DAWN, Chicago American
"Now we're more convinced than ever that Liberace is here to stay."
WILL LEONARD, Chicago Tribune
"Liberace's a smash this time around. The Empire Room is nothing small, and Liberace had it crammed full in his first Windy City date in about two years. He delivers a large repertoire with enough variety in the tune and tempo to sustain almost a concert hall appreciation. He gives them plenty and leaves 'em wanting more. It is that same topflight showmanship that made him the rage some years back, and it still clicks in spades."
VARIETY

Irish Nite at Carnegie

Continued from page 63

song in German for her baby-sitter in Leonia, N. J., where she is Mrs. Bill Fuller, wife of the showman who operates Irish ballrooms in N. Y. and Chicago. Later, after spotlighting Sam Levenson in a box, there was a song in Hebrew. And then, too, she sang in Gaelic, the national tongue of ancient Ireland, to the heart-ponging of her audience.

Miss Quinn's performance is keystone and arch for the St. Paddy's celebration, though she has Joe Feeney, from the Lawrence Welk program, as made star and insurance policy. Feeney has the classic, flutey, boyish, porcelain-brittle voice of the Irish tenor in the tradition of John McCormack and Morton Downey. His every number provoked tumult. He was clan chief of the Hibernians for the night, but not the less authentically powerhouse because his repertory was so welcome. His range could be imagined ahead of time—and sure enough out came "Hello, Patsy Fagan," "I Hear You Calling Me," "Macushla," "My Wild Irish Rose" and the rest of the litany for March 17 among the immigrants, but not in Dublin where the day is soberly observed, accent on the adverb.

One flaw in the Carnegie performance was the microphone setup. Putting aside the fundamental question of whether Miss Quinn and Feeney, children of the studios, needed miking or could make it on their own lungs, if they chose, the volume seemed on the blast side, especially with Feeney.

The economic arrangements of these annual Irish rallies of Miss Quinn's are not known. She spoke of working for nothing and joked whether that fact would upset Ed Sullivan. There is reference to unnamed Irish charities getting the proceeds. A boon was conferred on the occasion by the presence, from Dublin, of the Emerald Girl Pipers Band, apparently deadheaded by Rheingold Beer, which brought the group of 17 over. A brisk bunch with kilts, skirls and drums, they paraded down the aisles to the stage, offered a small concert, then paraded out again.

Essentially the program was borne on the shoulders of Miss Quinn, Finney and a six-man musical combo, presumably pickup, of which the pianist was a power of strength where the rehearsal beforehand had been slight. With the musicians was Paddy Noonan, accordionist at the Irish Ballroom upstairs over N. Y. City Center. He enchanted the masses with a medley from, naturally, Erin. Two beguiling, though amateur, groups of teenagers performed reels and clogs, the Butler Irish Dancers of Toronto, and the McErlean Junior Dancers, presumably local.

The audience, whose penchant for green as a color for scarfs and blue as a color for eyes must be remarked, was sober, eager, polite, and in an obvious state of euphoria. They were in from all the boroughs and suburbs, their children along in considerable numbers.

Of the sobriety of the "decent middle class" audience there was no shadow of a doubt but that political sensitivities are still potent was evident when Miss Quinn sang, on request of an elderly gentleman, a song of the troubles with the British. Something about the lyrics, or a neighbor's comment, had one grown-up gassoon with his jacket off in a twinkling, offering bout in the aisle. A cop came down and reasoned him back into his seat and jacket while Miss Quinn all the while attended to her lyrics, not missing one or considering it unusual at all that there should be temperament in an Irish audience.

ATTRACTIONS THAT MEAN BUSINESS

Mickey SHAUGHNESSY
Screen Comedy Star
Currently, Show Bar, Boston

BRIAN HYLAND
"Itsy Bitsy Bikini"
Now Headlining in Japan

The SKYLINERS
Harmony Singing Stars

DUKE HAZLETT
Dynamic Song Personality

DAVE "Baby" CORTEZ
and His
"Happy Organ" Trio

The FIREBALLS
Versatile Instrumentalists

The STRINGALONGS
"Wheels"
New Recording Hit

JOAN PROCTOR
(RCA Victor)
Formerly with "Rep Caps"

Write — Wire — Phone

JOLLY JOYCE AGENCY
New York City
234 West 48th Street
PLaza 7-1786 Circle 6-8800

Philadelphia
1001 Chestnut Street
WAlnut 2-4677

Hotelman's 768G Estate

Honolulu, March 21.

The late Jerome (Jerry) Zucker, nitery and hotel operator who died a year ago, left an estate valued at $768,000, court records show.

Zucker owned a downtown nitery and the Niumalu Hotel in Waikiki, subsequently selling the latter to Henry J. Kaiser as the nucleus of the Hawaiian Village hotel.

Mr. & Mrs. Kick

Dallas, March 21.

The Statler Hilton Hotel here snapped up three husband-and-wife teams for one-week dates at the Empire Room.

They include Tom & Betty Tucker, March 23; Helene & Howard, March 29; and Lois & Ray Hughes, April 6.

Brendan Behan

Continued from page 2

if he didn't keep his commitment there, but who now only hopes that Behan will pick up that date. He ultimately made his way to the front of the house and tried to straighten out the sequence of copious notes he had prepared. Behan, as a performer, is an amateur. In many spots, it was hard to understand his language. He insulted some of the more prominent citizens of New York, made fleeting references to a few prominents, and got yocks with some imaginary adventures at the YMHA. The misbehaving mike was dubbed a product of KKK.

It was hard to wade through his rich brogue, but it was evident he has the feel of a poet. There is a lilt to his voice, a rhythm to his speech and simultaneous contempt and affection for his auditors. He revealed everything and yet very little to the audience, but he did regale them very much in the manner of a visiting leprechaun undertaking to tell of the secular world in which he finds himself.

Behan sang three songs. The first, in his native Gaelic, had the feel of lyricism and folk music. The others were in a comedy vein and effective. Most of his lines were read from notes.
as audiences were concerned. Most of his lines were read from notes.

Gordon & Jacoby fortified themselves well. Apparently, they had misgivings about Behan's arrival. Shelley Berman and Orson Bean showed up—just in case, so that the overflow crowd wouldn't be disappointed. There were newspapermen from New York, the wire services, and from Canada. He gave all an interview after his show. Some reporters tried to goad him into making statements about the New York Irish who wouldn't permit him in the line of march on the St. Patrick's Day parade. He showed the skill of a diplomat in this direction. He made some statements to satisfy those papers which wouldn't print anything derogatory to the Irish, at least on March 17, and for the others quoted language so violent and colorful that they couldn't print it. All sides seemed satisfied and happy, but to try to get the sense of the interview would be like trying to gather up a cloud while wearing boxing gloves.

Maybe for American audiences he should learn the language, as spoken by natives, but his sense of poetry would be gone. His talents as a writer are, at this point, far superior to his gifts as a performer. But it was evident to the auditors that here is a unique individual, conforming to no special mould, beholden to nobody, his own master and his own man. The sight and sounds of Behan are a little overwhelming, even if his language isn't completely understood.

Jose

Now It's The Playboy Time

Continued from page 63

$8,000 weekly nut and type of acts (avant-gardish comics and modern jazz singers and combos), include Bill Henderson, Cindy & Lindy, Clancy Bros. & Tom Makem, and John Gary plus two jazz units.

Since the Playboy clubs will use so many vaude acts (126 separate acts are booked for Chi for the rest of this year), Lownes aims to utilize the circuit as a launching pad for new discoveries, such as sepia standupper Dick Gregory, being touted as the first Negro comic to break into national prominence and the prime white niteries.

"Disneyland" concept at the Chi club has the entire bill starting in the third floor Penthouse, the club's prime showcase, then filtering down, one or more acts at a time, to the Library on the second level. Musical singles or units may end their itineraries in the first floor Living Room, although the latter room often has a standing act.

Fancy Grosses

Playboy, heady with success, is not reluctant to reveal its dollar progress. Chi club grossed $169,670 in February, traditionally a quiet four weeks. And, if liquor tabs are any measure of the profit factor, $114,643 of the total was for booze. Gross take in the last four months was about $430,000.

While Associated Booking Corp. is currently the prime supplier of talent to the Chi Playboy Club, other agents are getting hep to the club's healthy appetite for acts and its implication for the future. As a result of this growing awareness, Lownes and Hefner are getting the preferred treatment from the agencies and many of the concessions in price and dates that go with it.

Incidentally, on the heels of Dick Gregory's click there, Playboy club has inked other Negro comics for future dates. Slappy White and Nipsey Russell are definitely on tap, with Redd Foxx and George Kirby under consideration.

Robert Moses

Continued from page 2

advertise their product. They charge the cost to advertising.

There will be ample space in the Meadow Lake area of the Fair for a limited, well designed, carefully organized and controlled, amusement section which will avail itself of the best resources of show business. We look forward to an outstanding attraction in the Amphitheatre and to other attractions along the Meadow Lake which, along with dramatic rides and other amusement features in the Industrial area, will afford visitors to the Fair ample opportunities for wholesome fun.

We shall not, on the other hand, have a blatant, crude, cheap, mechanical oldfashioned midway at the World's Fair with the accompanying comeon stuff, barkers, shills, etc. We welcome appropriate amusement enterprises. At this moment we are giving several such proposals friendly consideration.

We look forward therefore to the full participation of the best of show business in the World's Fair.

Sincerely,
Robert Moses,
(President, N.Y. World's Fair).

CONTINENTAL ECCENTRICS
LOLO AND LITA
FUNNY • DIFFERENT
SMART • INIMITABLE
PARIS Eddy Marquesi 11 Rue Chateaubriand.
MADRID Rafael Cortes Ave. Jose Antonio 68.
U.S.A. 719 8th Ave., New York 36, N.Y. Circle 7-2198.

"THE COMEDIAN"
The Only Real Monthly PROFESSIONAL GAG SERVICE
THE LATEST — THE GREATEST — THE MOST-UP-TO-DATEST
Now in its 126th issue, containing stories, one-liners, poemettes, song titles, hecklers, audience stuff, monologs, parodies, double gags, bits, ideas, intros, impressions and impersonations, political, interruptions Thoughts of the Day, Humorous Views of the News, Vignettes, etc.
$25 YR.—SINGLE ISSUES $3
Foreign
$35 YR.—SINGLE ISSUES $4
NO C.O.D.'s
BILLY GLASON, 200 W. 54th St. New York City 19, CO. 5-1316

B & B COSTUMES
Gowns and Costumes
INDIVIDUALLY DESIGNED MADE TO ORDER
110 W. 44th St., N. Y. CI 5-4060

COMEDY PARTNER
for young (18 yr.) comic must be able to create.
RON SAVAGE
6741 Crittenden Street
Philadelphia 19, Pa. GE 8-4888

Twelfth Week on Tour "HARLEM GLOBETROTTERS"
CAB CALLOWAY
Current CORAL Release
I'LL FOLLOW YOU b/w DANCING MAN
Variety (Jan. 11) RAVE
Management BILL MITTLER, 1619 Broadway, New York

JACKIE MASON

At the COPACABANA, New York:
"A Hit in the big time . . . Mason has a lot of funny stuff . . . he's a fresh voice and a fresh viewpoint."
Jose, VARIETY

Currently,
hungry i, SAN FRANCISCO

Opening March 25th
EDEN ROC, Miami Beach

NEXT: CRESCENDO, L. A. — COPACABANA, N. Y.

Guest Starring May 3rd: PERRY COMO SHOW, NBC-TV
Columbia ALBUM Soon to Be Released: "JACKIE MASON at the hungry i"
Personal Manager: BOB CHARTOFF, 157 West 57 Street, New York, N. Y.
GAC

New Acts

STEVE ALLEN & JAYNE MEADOWS
Comedy, Songs
65 Mins.
Flamingo, Las Vegas

The versatile Steve Allen makes his nitery debut in a dandy omnibus act which is certain to have something for any taste in entertainment. Accent is on songs and comedy, with the beautiful, talented Jayne Meadows registering a solid click in the glamor department. She is gorgeously gowned, and is sure to be a topic of conversation for the femmes who see her here during the next four weeks. Both Miss Meadows and Allen are pleasingly effective with the vocals, individually and on duets.

Allen, a master ad-libber, gets yocks with his gimmick of answering written questions from the audience, and his "Dr. Kenneth Greengrass" character is another big laugh-pulling feature. At the 88, Allen demonstrates fondness and understanding of unfettered jazz; he also tallies handily with comedy songs, and gets brisk mitt action with his medley of some of the songs he's cleffed, which include "South Rampart Street Parade," "Picnic," "Pretend You Don't See Her" and "This Could Be The Start of Something Big." For this new act, he wrote a very funny piece of special material for Miss Meadows, called "Mantan, Miltown, and Metrecal."

Bel'e Montrese, Allen's mother, almost steals the show with an hilarious bit of stumbling dialog done with the star as her partner. It's the identical act known 45 years ago as Montrose & Allen.

Gabe Dell as "Count Dracula" is featured in the finale, a happy spoof of the movie if done as a musical. Donn Trenner conducts the Nat Brandwynne orch (12) with the proper verve, the imaginative choreography, featuring the Flamingoettes (14) and the fine voice of Don Kirk, is by Tom Hansen. Jerry Franks supervised the production, which runs through April 12. Dike.

THE GRACE NOTES (3)
Songs, Dancing
25 Mins.
Frontier Room, Vancouver, Wash.

Albeit the act has been together for nearly a year, it's never been recorded under New Acts. The Grace Notes are bright fresh, and enthusiastic singers ready for the big time. Trio of lookers work hard and are top salesladies without any gimmicks. Ginny Gagnon, Lee Thornberry (Miss Alabama '58), and Genette Lane combine showmanship and tine voices for a solid 25-minute turn.

Girls score with solo chirping and blend their voices well. Best bets are "You Ought To Have A Wife" and "Too Darn Hot." They start fast and keep the customers off their mitts all the way. Finale with breakaway gowns revealing mitty chasis and demonstrate something ability. Dynamic Grace Notes are right for any situation. Fe.

ROLF HARRIS
Songs and Comedy
45 Mins.
Arctic Club, Vancouver, B. C.

Bearded young Australian Rolf Harris is composer-singer of the No. 1 Aussie hit parade tune, "Tie Me Kangaroo Down, Sport," and his current Vancouver stand marks his first North American engagement. Fresh off his arrival in this city on maiden world voyage of liner Oriana, Harris was booked into the Arctic Club on a one-week trial and played two shows nightly to capacity biz that developed very quickly via word of mouth, local tv exposure and newspaper publicity.

First extended two weeks on strength of turnaway business, then a further four weeks to the end of March. Harris' original plan to move on to San Francisco has been deferred to satisfy cash customers who dig him and keep coming back for more.

Harris opens with "Tie Me Down" theme, catchy calypso-style song that earned him a gold record Down Under on a Columbia (EMI) disking and which is due to hit the U. S. disk market via 20th Century-Fox label.

He uses self-named "wobble board" for odd but musical instrumentation on this number. Harris then switches to comedy patter in fresh, exuberant manner that lifts sometimes so-so material out of the ordinary, follows with crowd-pleasing parody of "Bill Bailey" titled "Won't You Go Home Jack Webster," built on activity of well-known local radio pundit. For change of tempo he does Australian ballad, "The Wild Colonial Boy," then segues into traditional Aussie "Waltzing Matilda" but freshens familiarity of this by explaining Down Under slang terms as he sings each verse.

For novelty, versatile Harris plays Australian aboriginal Corroborree music on a fantastic native instrument called a "didgeridoo" that sounds something like a "shofar." He also includes painting routine in his repertoire, using ordinary 4-inch house brush to slap out artistic backgrounds for children's Christmas song, another of his own compositions. He finales with tender "South Australian Lullaby" but then does takeoff on standard fake "begoff" routine to return for several encores. Although he emin addition to his "wobble board" plays accordion on several songs and "didgeridoo," Harris enjoys solid backing throughout from rhythmic house trio of Chris Gage on piano, Jim Wightman on drums, and Stan Johnston on bass.

Australian-born Harris gained most of his professional experience in England, doing six years in London's Down Under Club on once-weekly basis plus five years in tv as child entertainer. He returned to Australia in 1959 for 14 months tv work in variety and children's programs before current trip to North America.

Harris has good presence, works easily with his audience and is able to adapt material to circumstance and crowd reaction. His humor is never offensive or way out and has the crowd laughing with him rather than at him.

Against admittedly toucher competition, his versatility and genuine Australian flavor and refreshing personality give Harris excellent chance of impressing U. S. audiences. He seems to be sure-fire vaudeo material and should be a good bet for smaller rooms on the lookout for something a bit different. Sash.

KIKI PAIGE
Songs
15 Mins.
Tidelands, Houston

Although she has been touring as a single, thrush was raised in show biz and knows her way around a stage. She's a shapely brunet, and she can belt.

Opens with "Belle of the Ball," then does "Under My Skin," "'Til There Was You," "All Alone," "Meant For Me," and "Go Where You Go."

She then dons a wig for an OK impression of Keely Smith, sheds skirt to show fine legs as she does impression of Judy Garland, and bows off with carbon of Ethel Merman. Latter was best received. Skip.

EDMOND TAILLET
Songs, Impressions
15 Mins.
Bobino, Paris

Edmond Taillet has a personable mien and projection and manages to keep his mugging engaging rather than letting it fall into preciousness. This displays a show sense. Present material on torero takeoffs, tortoise impersonations and a ruffled bongo player are good but still lacking the more incisive personal tinge to make them real ribticklers.

He has the pleasing voice, mime and the spirange that will probably turn him into a fine specialized song entry here. He records for Pathe-Marconi. Mosk.

JADIN WONG
Comedy, Dancing
28 Mins.
Cimarron Room, Omaha

A former ballroom dancer with partners, Jadin Wong has decided to try as a single. Since the cute Chinese doll is capable of clever repartee and is naturally strong in the hooting dept., she has a good chance of making it.

Miss Wong (billed as being from the land of Suzie) opens in a beautiful red gown for a demure Chinese fan dance and some gags, some good, others not so. She spoofs strippers as she doffs the fancy garment, leaving her in a slinky black gown which eventually comes off to reveal her in a long slit skirt.

Miss Wong isn't going to win any awards for her voice, but few payees notice when she whams away at "This Coolie's Got to Get Hot" complete with bumps and grinds. Her closing "Irish Eyes" and an Italian medley are anticlimatic.

Miss Wong has looks and physical assets. With some sharper material and less singing she stacks as a good nitery bet. Trump.

Unit Review

O'Keefe Variety Show
Toronto, March 16.

Dave Bossin & Joe Poster production of "O'Keefe Variety Show," with Freddie Barber, Paul Kohler, Antonelli Twins, Korengo & Co., Bobby May, Bill Badgley Orch (5), At Harmonie Club, Toronto, March 16, '61; free admission.

Toronto tecoff of the Bossin-Poster production of the "O'Keefe Variety Show" reveals a fine assembly of night club acts that last two hours and had the 450 customers of the Harmonie Club more vocally enthusiastic than a nitery audience.

Show also provides eight weeks' work for the 15 American performers who travel by bus for a series of one-nighters that takes them throughout Ontario and Quebec. The sponsoring O'Keefe Brewery Co. provides the performance free, with admissions going to local charities.

From armed service camps to clubs, embracing audiences of 5-600 to 450, the unit plays such Ontario cities as Windsor, Ottawa, London, Hamilton Kingston, Peterborough, Sault Ste. Marie and Niagara Falls before jumping into Quebec. Cast travels by bus with following truck carrying lighting and sound equipment, backdrops and props for such spots as are unequipped. Harry Munro is company manager.

Judging from Toronto start at the Harmonie Club, the "O'Keefe Variety Show" provides an excellent and well-diversified two-hours entertainment that saw all acts over big, with Freddie Barber as emcee and later doing his own night club bit.

After a snappy warmup by Bill Badgley's orch (5), Bobby May juggles the clubs and hats, finishes with an acrobatic with balls on the drums and sets the keynote of the evening with his dexterity and personality.

Following are the Antonelli Twins (Lucia and Maria), two luscious brunets in blue gowns and white elbow-length gloves, who open their harmony singing with a bouncy "Umbrella Man." Girls finally begged off after a flock of tunes with their breezy Dixieland singing of "Muskrat Ramble" to an enthusiastic audience.

Same happy mood is maintained by Paul Kohler on the xylophone for his classics of "Second Hungarian Rhapsody" and "Poet and Peasant," then changing timing to "Smoke Gets in Your Eyes" and "Around the World". He drew mitt pounding as did Korengo with his manipulation of the cards, his sleight-of-hand tricks and his disappearing and transfer act, all done with agility and effect.

Freddie Barber, however, was the hit of the show with his kidding of tv commercials, his takeoff of Boris Karloff and Peter Lorre in a horror duet, his uncanny styling of Edward R. Murrow, Castro and President Kennedy; and his mimicing of great singing personalities. He not only proved himself as a takeoff artist but as a critical mimic in the present-day nitery tradition.

On diversity and individual personality, all acts had no difficulty in getting over—with a special bow to the virtuosity of the Bill Badgley backing. This Bossin-Foster production of "O'Keefe Variety Show" is splendid entertainment that ends right on the button. McStay.

'500 Ft.' Law Impractical, Sez Honolulu Nitery Op

Honolulu, March 21.

Legislature is being urged to repeal law that prohibits operation of bars or cabarets with a 500-foot radius of churches and schools.

Roy C. Kelley, who owns the Reef, Edgewater and other hotels, testified the ban is "totally impractical," especially in Waikiki which houses 80% of the state's hotels in its limited area.

CURRENT BILLS

WEEK OF MARCH 22

NEW YORK CITY

MUSIC HALL—Gladys Kreise, Helen Wood, Alegrias Bros., Rassos, Bill Drew, Corps de Ballet, Raymond Paige Orc.

AUSTRALIA

MELBOURNE (Tivoli) — John Larsen, Colin Croft, Ormonde Douglas, Nance Ramusen, Fred Dore, Allwyn Smith, Judy Hooke, Eileen Hattam, Arthur Gorman, Doreen Morrow, Vincent Foster.

SYDNEY (Tivoli)—Bob Kole, Rita Tanno, Wendy Waring, Ben Vargas, Joe Bennett, Robbin Miller, B. J. DeSimone, Joel Craig, John Mineo, Steven Ross, Patsy Hemingway, Julie Day, Reg Gollins, Ted Ziegler, Philip A'Vard, Lloyd Cunnington.

BRITAIN

BIRMINGHAM (Hippodrome) — Billy Fury, Tommy Bruce, Mark Wynter, Joe Brown, Dickie Loader, Vince Eager, Nelson Keene, Four Kesterels, George Fame, New Orleans Rockers, Valentine Girls.

BRISTOL (Hippodrome)—Jimmy Clitheroe, Michael Allport & Co., Jean & Jacqueline Dawson, Mrs. Shufflewick, Two Vitalites, Five Roberties, Ronnie Hilton.

GLASGOW (Empire)—Calum Kennedy, Billy Rusk, Jimmy Fletcher, Jimmy Dancon, Ray Long, Ken Swan & Mechree, Alan Williams' Band, Anne Gillies, Sheik Pen Ali, Laura Lee.

MANCHESTER (Palace) — Harry Secombe, Roy Castle, Gary Miller, Bert Brownhill, Francois Bros., Betty Jumel, Joy Jeckley, Edna Wynn, Max Kirsch, Medley Colson, Wish Mary Hunt, Michael Kilgarriff, Seth Joe, Sammy Curtis, Geo Mitchell Singers, Winstanley Babes, Kirby's Ballet.

NEWCASTLE (Empire) — Matt Monro, Hal Monty, Elaine Mansfield, Two Tones, Barbara & Carl, Tiro & Dotty, Susana Hernandez.

VICTORIA (Palace)—Nervo & Knox, Bud Flanagan, Naughton & Gold, Eddie Gray.

Cabaret Bills

NEW YORK CITY

BASIN ST. EAST—Benny Goodman Orc, Frances Cole, Red Norvo, Jimmy Rushing, Charlie Shavers, Milt Hinton, Marie Marchbie.

BLUE ANGEL—Dick Gregory, Dorothy Landon, Cumberland 3, Jimmy Lyon 3.

BON SOIR—Phyllis Diller, Marc Lobden, 3 Flames, Jimmie Daniels.

CHARDAS — Micheline Bardin, Lia Della, Tibor Rakossy, Dick Matta, Bill Yedia, Elemer Horvath.

CHATEAU MADRID—Carmen Amaya, El Cano 6.

COPACABANA—Nat King Cole, Gene Merton, Dominis Clarke, Paul Shelley Orc, Frank Matti Orc.

EMBERS—Joe Bushkin 3, Buck Clayton 4, Joan Bishop.

HOTEL ASTOR—Eddie Lane Orc.

HOTEL NEW YORKER—Milt Saunders Orc, Verna Lee.

HOTEL PIERRE — "No No Nanette" Zara Carroll, Jeanne Michele, Lorna Murray, Ronald Rogers, Harry Stone, Gary Tremain, Stanley Melba Orc, Joe Pecardi Orc.

HOTEL PLAZA — Marguerite Piazza, Del Sharbet Orc, M. Monroe Comm Girls.

HOTEL TAFT—Vincent Lopez Orc.

HOTEL ROOSEVELT — Jimmy Palmer Orc.

HOTEL ST. REGIS — Felicia Sanders, Milt Shaw Orc, Walter Kay Orc.

INTERNATIONAL—Ritz Bros., McKenna Line, Mike Durso Orc, Aviles Orc.

LATIN QUARTER—The Gaucards, Kosmo, Chop Chop & Charlene, H. Lawson & Kosh, Dorothea McFarland, Rudi Field, Jo Lombardi Orc, B. Harlowe Orc.

LEFT BANK—Cal Bostic.

LITTLE CLUB—Jane Harvey.

LIVING ROOM — Sunny Gale, Bobby Cole 3.

NO. 1 FIFTH AVE.—Jack Durlon, Sylvia Bernard, Joan St. James, Harry Noble, Dick Harkinson.

ROUNDTABLE — Belle Barth, Mabel Mercer.

SAHBRA — Sarah Rubane, Rafel & Zila, Martin Roman, Sara Avant Revue, & Suzanne, Leo Fuld.

SAVOY HILTON—Gunnar Hansen Orc, Marco Rizo 3, Ray Hartley.

TOWN & COUNTRY—Jewel Box Revue, Ned Harvey Orc, Martinez Orc.

UPSTAIRS & DOWNSTAIRS—Ced Carbel, Gordon Connell, Gerry Matthews, Bob Hennant, Mary L. Wilson, Pat Rull, Carl Norman, Rose Murphy, Sam Stewart, William Rey, M. & C. Allen.

VIENNESE LANTERN—Vicky Autier, Marjorie Baxter, John Modnios, Ernest Schoen, Joe Fropp.

VILLAGE BARN—Jack Wallace, Johnny King, Carol Ritz, Flute Pete, Bill Conlin, Lou Harold Orc.

VILLAGE VANGUARD — Stan Getz Junior Mance 3.

WALDORF-ASTORIA — Denise Darcel, Emil Coleman Orc, Theo. Fanidi Orc.

CHICAGO

BLUE ANGEL—"Si Si Calypso," Lord Chance, Jamica Sim, Rex V. David, Lynnum, Olga Montenegro, Lady Francine, Roger McCall, Tino Perez Orc.

CONRAD HILTON—"Ballads & Blades" Jo Marie Roddy, Willie Kall, Nerry Cuder, Angelito, Fred Nigro, Merano & Knowles, Clair Perreau Orc, Bill Christopher, Frederick & Gina, Boulevard-Dems (5), Boulevar-Dems (5).

DRAKE—Susan Barrett, Jimmy Blade Orc.

EDGEWATER BEACH—Yonely, Hal Loman & Playmates (2), Kenny Black Orc.

GATE OF HORN—Bob Gibson, Inman & Ira.

LONDON HOUSE—Barbara Carroll 3, Audrey Morris 3, Eddie Higgins.

MISTER KELLY'S—John Wilson, Wally Griffin, Marty Rubenstein, Marx & Frico.

PALMER HOUSE—Liberace, Betty Pasco, Clifford Guest, Ben Arden Orc.

PLAYBOY CLUB — Bill Henderson, Clancy Brothers & Tom Makem, Cindy & Lindy, Jackie Jackler, John Gary, Leslie Dixson, Kirk Stuart Trio.

TRADE WINDS — Irwin Corey, Adam Wade, Joe Pianello 3.

LOS ANGELES

BEN BLUE'S—Ben Blue, "Les Corps de Paree," Barbara Heller, Ivan Lane Orc (5).

COCONUT GROVE—"Anything Goes," Freddy Martin Orc.

DINO'S — Cathi Hayes, Jack Eitch, Steve La Fever.

LE CRAZY HORSE—Crazy Horse Revue.

SLATE BROS.—Jerry Lester, Earnar, Dick Stabile Trio.

STATLER HOTEL—"Playmates of '61", Skinnay Ennis Orc.

THE SUMMIT—The Tremers.

YE LITTLE CLUB — Bardy Sparks, Gloria Smith, Joe Felix Duo.

LAS VEGAS

DESERT INN—Tony Martin, Fred & Hines, Donn Arden Dancers, Copen Paces Orc, Michael Kent, Dave Allen, Milt Herth, Henri Rose, Betty Stevenson.

DUNES — "Night at Maxim's" Tony Bennett, Ferd & Reverdi, Sweets Lane & Models, Bill Reddie Orc, Al Hirt Sextet, Dyna-Tones, Fabians.

EL CORTEZ—Johnny Uhlich Trio, Mona.

FLAMINGO—Steve Allen, Jayne Meadows, Gabe Dell, Donn Trenner Orc, Nat Brandwynne Orc, Lani Groff, Fred Allen, Perry Dalrack.

FREMONT HOTEL—Joe Kung Zoomers, Fabulous Jets, Satellites.

GOLDEN NUGGET—Bob Wills, Wade Ray 5, Sunshine Boys, Bobcat & Sunny Coats.

HACIENDA — Tom Jones, Shirley Okun, Keynotes, Carlos Pena.

MINT—Pat Marino's Artists & Models of '61.

NEVADA CLUB—Vido Musso, Bel Tones, Princess Badia, Mary Lynn, Dick Sparks, Johnny Paul.

NEW FRONTIER—"Good News of '61," Bobby Sargent, The Cables, Carly Brown, Dick Rice Orcs, Jack Sparks.

RIVIERA—"La Plume de Ma Tante," Robert Clary, Liliane Montevecchi, Jack Cathcart Orc, Goulets, Dee Vine Sisters, Playboys, Peptones, Matt Henry.

SAHARA—Eleanor Powell, Don Rickles, Dave Barry, Mesa-Lardis Dancers, Lou Basil Orc, Characters, Jackie Joyce, Gabbers, Tune Jesters.

SANDS—Gordon & Sheila McRae, Hor Lola to Dancers, Copa Girls, Gene Norman, Antonio Morelli Orc, Dave Pike Orc, Monte Kunz.

SHOWBOAT—Bonnie Sloan, Steve McDonald, Dancers, Wild.

SILVER SLIPPER—Hank Henry, Shirley Kaye, Red Marshall, Diane Arden, Val Amber, Halliday, Raddenko Fox, Sensations, George Redman Orc, Jon Phillips, Charlie Teagarden Orc, Twin Lanes.

STARDUST—"Lido de Paris," Rose La Rose, Bernard Bros., Ralph Young, Bill Lynn, Happy Jesters.

THUNDERBIRD—"Showbids On Ice," Cecil Galish, Dick Westcott, Cindy Atwell, Shirley Londe, Phil Robinson, Ken Lynch, Harry Nolal, Garwood Van Orc, Skaters, Jades.

TROPICANA—"Folies Bergere," Jean Fenn, Caudine Lenart, Arpad Fox, Calvin Kay, Ray Smalls Orc, Sonny Cirella, Al De Paine 4, Lorenzo Jones, Lorna Cassella, De Fredos Pets, Sky Candis.

MIAMI-MIAMI BEACH

AMERICANA—Lou Adler Orc, Paul Carson Orc, Ross 3.

BILTMORE TERRACE—Napoleon Reed, Esther Southerland, John Tesles Orc, Jerome Moore.

CARILLON—Lou Walters Revue, Les Charettes de Espana, Chagrin & Gomez, Jimmie Alexander, Mons. Chopin, Sonny & Christine, Can-Can Girls, Jacques Denny Orc.

CHARY'S—Buddy Greco 3, Barbara Lewis 3, Dolly Fields Trio, Ken Hewitt Trio, Iris Rehan.

DEAUVILLE — Milton Berle, Lorna Sass, Dunnills, Betty George, Frances Lynn, Les Ebrede Orc, La Palmera Orc.

DIPLOMAT—Bonita Jo, Merel Corporon.

EDEN ROC—Johnny Mathis, Mel Mitchell Orc.

FONTAINEBLEAU—Louis Prima & Keely Smith, Sam Butera & Witnesses, Leo Diamond Orc, Vincent Lopez Orc.

MURRAY FRANKLIN'S—Mary Kaye Trio, Paul Gray, Jerry Lewis Pen & Cecil, Le Blue Rivers, Cassidy, Charlie Green, Eddie Peppard.

PALLADIUM—Art Mooney Orc, Cindy Orc, Ralph Tout, Candi Coretz, Michael Alex Orc.

SAXONY—Cesar Disso, Rosa Ferrer, Jeter Diosa Costello, Don Cesar Orc, The Sabres, Ivory Tower Revue, Cindy Wall, Cecil Gray, Nedia Iz, Yasmin, Sylvia Trio, Sawara Group.

SEVILLE—Caught in Act, Jack Leon, Terry Haven, Joe Bennett, Vera Fox, Anne Jones, Linda Lavin, Reid & Paul.

THUNDERBIRD—Frankie Scott, Eddie Ross, Dick Merrick, Terrifics, Bill Newton Four.

RENO-TAHOE

HAROLDS CLUB—Russ Draper Orc, Sovers, Don Cox Orc.

HARRAH'S (Reno)—Jerry Lewis, Denis & Rogers, Ted Campbell, Jack & Roy, Skeets Minton, Jim De Norman and Campbell.

HARRAH'S (Tahoe)—Sammy Davis Jr., Bob Newhart, Lancers, Skeets Minton, Joe Rene, Leighton Noble Orc.

HOLIDAY—Joe Mazze, Charlie Gold.

MAPES—Don Lane, Sensations, Nick & Paris, Fanelli & La Pata.

RIVERSIDE—Vaughn Monroe, Les Carpenters, Freddie Bell, Riverside Orc.

WAGON WHEEL (Tahoe)—Cousins, Gallons, Bruno Leonard, Bobby Lane.

SAN FRANCISCO

BLACKHAWK—Anita O'Day.

EARTHQUAKE McGOON'S—Jack Murphy Orc.

FAIRMONT HOTEL — Cindy Bess, Earle Heckscher Orc.

GAY 90'S—Ray K. Goman, Bee & Ray Goman.

HUNGRY I—Stan Wilson Burns & Berlin, Betty Bennett.

JAZZ WORKSHOP—Cannonball Adderley 5.

NEVE — Joe Williams, Tom Harper, Harry Edison 5.

NEW FACK'S—Mel Young, Bobbi Norris, Geo. Cerrati 3.

ON THE LEVEE—Kid Ory Orc.

PURPLE ONION — Don Dunn, Carol Bjent, Freddie Paris.

365 CLUB—Phyllis Inez, Barry Ashton Dancers, Roy Palmer Orc.

Copacabana, N.Y.

Nat King Cole, Gary Morton, Johnny D'Arc, Douglas Clarke; Copa Girls (8), Paul Shelley and Frank Marti orchs; $5.50 minimum.

Nat King Cole, an old pro, is back and biz is okay. Lent notwithstanding. The Capitol disk star makes beaucoup capital of his solo opportunities, mayhaps a little too much so, because he is overgenerous in his stint. While the sendoff was salvoed with plenty soundoff applause he could leave 'em a little hungrier.

There is also the sensation of a succession of surefire ballad clicks, good audience-identification stuff, but also a bit in the same groove. True, Cole tries to change pace often and achieves that with scat versions of even such ballads as "Surrey With The Fringe" but he's even more asserted in the odd-beat self-kidding number, "Mr. Cole Won't Rock 'n' Roll." Actually he does, and gets 'em, even the moneyed adult non-bobbysoxers at the ringside.

Show in toto is somewhat desultory. It starts with the Doug Coudy production and extends through comedian Gary Morton—a returner here—who is sporadic in impact. There are times when he zings in bigtime manner, at others when he gives the impression of still "developing" Actually, a more unified rather than diversified, as now, routine would give him greater effect.

Morton has enough authority, is a personable comedian attuned to the mores of the times, but the accent on Miami Beach behaviorism, interlarded with some of his other didoes, makes for diffuse reaction.

As for Cole, the personable and modest singer has 16 numbers scheduled which, with added furbelows, make for a solid hour's songalog, a shade too much for a saloon floor. He gives billing to Lee Young (drums), John Collins (guitar), Charles Harris (bass) and Ruenald Jones (trumpet), but also has augmented the Paul Shelley orchestra with a bevy of violins giving him a 22-musician backstopping. Plenty of opportunity for the lush arrangements although, paradoxically, Cole solo (vocal and or when he does his Steinwaying) still makes the best impression.

Disker also has added some scripted comedy material which he handles with seasoned monologistic dispatch. It's a nice interlude, especially as a prelude to his at-the-piano stint.

Johnny D'Arc is an okay tapster and Douglas Clarke (a shorter Tony Curtis-type) is the vocal leader. Latter should not permit himself to sag on exit; overall effect of buoyancy and youthful esprit which the eight Copa beauts impart is thus lessened.

Paul Anka still gets billing as author of the Copa score. Coudy, per usual, paces his line and the show, generally, in good shape, although not with the same verve. Incidentally, the jury could be out on those new high coiffs-and-no-lipstick that the babes sport here. Abel.

Steuben's, Boston

Boston, March 16.

Larry Wilde, Ellis & Winters, Don Dennis, Tony Bruno Orch (7); $1.50-$2.50 minimums.

Larry Wilde, comic newcomer here, is definitely a crowd pleaser. Opening night encounter with full house of noisy femme celebrants Thursday (16) found him getting off way ahead following a slick layout of fast one-liners on topical subjects, funny and clean. He also unveils a singing bit that goes over big with the femme parties that keep this pleasant 360-seater room in the heart of the Hub theatre area going nicely. Wilde has good material and uses it to good advantage.

Opening with special material bit, a song a la the name of "Wilde," he rings the bell on every number. Biggest crowd pleaser is his "Cecelia" from which he draws a terrific audience participation bit, which is unusual in this room. He does his topical one-liners then segues to a song-and-dance number with straw hat and cane, with predominant song, "Cecelia," which makes for a big production. He has to beg off after a 35-minute stint.

Opening the show are Ellis & Winters, fine terp team in a slickly paced layout of ballroom terp, from which they segue to cowboy-cowgirl theme, in costume, with a hotsy hoedown for boff effects.

Don Dennis, singing emcee, intros each one separately for big returns, and takes a spot for "Take Me to Church," "Zoom, Zoom" and "Mr. Wonderful" for boff returns. Tony Bruno opens the show with a fine swinging "Poet and Peasant Overture" on the xylophone, and then cuts the show in fine style. With Wilde, who can take bows as "Mr. Clean" of the comic school, good biz looks in the offing for freres Joe and Max Schneider. This show exits March 29. Guy.

La Grande Severine, Paris

Paris, March 14.

Clay Douglas, Nery Landa, Bob Fowler Trio, Aldo Jova Trio; $2.50 cover, $6 minimum.

The growing accent on combining food with nitery going is added to by this three-tiered affair. It has a cave with orchestra and singing, a bar on the ground floor and a private dining room upstairs for those who want quiet and talk with only some cool piped-in music.

Food is required and a good meal falls in the $6 range. Downstairs is the focal point with a long well lighted, column flanked, stone walled cave and dancing and listening while one dines.

Located in the Left Bank heart of the Latin Quarter, it was built by Maurice Girodias who has the Olympia Press which usually gets beats on noted English-speaking writers whose work is sometimes too strong, outspoken or pungent for Anglo-Saxon pubs. Many of his choices have since gone on to become names in their own countries like Henry Miller, Lawrence Durrell, Vladimir Nabokov, whose "Lolita" was first printed in English by Girodias, Jean Genet and others.

This elegant cave now looks to be catching on with the smart set who sometimes like to spend the evening in one spot. Clay Douglas supplies okay blues and ballads that fit in this surrounding. Nery Landa is a bouncy, shapely Cuban who gives out with the Latino beat backed by the Aldo Jova Trio. Douglas is accomped by the Bob Fowler Trio and both contribute well to dancing, too. Mosk.

Chez Anthony, Palm Springs

Palm Springs, March 18.

Betty Reilly, Arthur Blake, Al Anthony, Dorice Van Trio; minimum $2.

Betty Reilly and Arthur Blake split top billing in the nearest thing to a New York boite de nuit intime in the desert. Sequestered in a corner of the large La Paz Hotel, Chez Anthony seats 180 and is jammed by vacationing Hollywood celebs most of the time.

It's a hep audience and a diversely talented operation. The brains behind the enterprise is Al Anthony, who made LPs for Columbia, Dot, etc. Even the drummer, Dorice Van, can sing and warms up the show as well as her pipes.

Billed as "the Irish Senorita," Betty Reilly sings 10 numbers, only one of them, however, "Giocca Morra," as a straight ballad. The rest she tears apart, adding Yiddish choruses to Irish songs, whooping up Mexican numbers with wild ad libs and getting plenty of laughs and a big hand. "Woe Is Me" and "Little Red Riding Hook" are her best numbers, though all are tops.

No kid, she performs with the gusto of an Olympic quarter-miler. She has an infectious laugh and her whole personality bowls over this house like little Caroline Kennedy topples Washington correspondents.

Arthur Blake, a holdover with enough material to stay all season, which he probably will, chose for this Reilly opening his impersonation of Charles Laughton introducing Barbara Stanwyck, Noel Coward, Zasu Pitts, Katherine Hepburn, Jimmy Stewart, Bette Davis and Eleanor Roosevelt. Mrs. Roosevelt and Jimmy Stewart were his best. He works now without make-up or costumes.

Club doesn't get rolling until after 10 p.m. and is the only box in the Palm Springs area that is still swinging by two in the morning, something the town has needed more than an airport for a long, long time

Dorice Van Trio with maestro Anthony subbing at the piano backed the acts okay. Scul.

Harrah's, Tahoe

Lake Tahoe, March 12.

Sammy Davis Jr., Bob Melvin, Dorothy Dorben Singers & Dancers (15), Leighton Noble Orch (20); no cover, no minimum.

There's hardly a facet of nitery show biz Sammy Davis Jr. hasn't explored—and in this Tahoe Harrah's debut he's proving his talents in any area he cares to consider, and there are few he doesn't touch. His boundless energy, versatility, stage savvy, faultless presentation—all combine to suggest the epitome of show business. It's an observation obviously shared by auditors who've had this plush room filled to near capacity since opening night.

Davis' opener presages the following 40 minutes he's on (on night caught). "This World Is Mine Tonight" sets the theme, and he fails to deviate. Backed by the augmented (to 20) Leighton Noble orch, with Davis' arranger-conductor George Rhodes conducting from the 88s, headliner displays his impressive vocal prowess on "In the Still of the Night" before segueing into a mimic session that sees him give uncannily accurate carbons of Sinatra, Jerry Lewis, Brando, Eckstine, et al.

His is the ability to completely divorce self, and allow subject to come through in both voice, mannerisms, and physical appearance. Star also kids with nationalities and race (including his own) for good effect and close rapport with tablers. On the tap routines he's a master, ditto the commendable displays on a variety of instruments.

Davis men supporting are Michael Stover on drums, Bobby Morgan on guitar, and Rhodes at the keyboard. With this being the Lake Tahoe "off season," Davis is proving a strong draw for producer Russ Hall, with the elements also offering some cooperation.

Taking the opening slot (after the Dorben Singers & Dancers) is Bob Melvin, who's scored before in the Reno-Tahoe local with his trenchant observations re married and family life, the current world of teenagers and the daily headlines. Presentation is fast but studied, and neatly fits the material.

Reaping top vocal response is Melvin's impresh of traffic signs—with the sexy implications. Also commanding deep-down chuckles is routine of buying ciggies, what with all the sizes, filters, types of package, etc. And his "Have you got a minute?" line is evolving as an identifiable trademark. As a standup, Melvin rates with the best.

With the Dorben Dancers & Singers for this session is Bill Finch, who combines his baton-twirling talents with a bit of aero dancing. Choreog is expertly juxtaposed with the 15 Dorben Dancers for full effect. Lighter batons provide intricate light patterns on the darkened stage. As per usual, full offering is top league, with imagination apparent.

New show due March 23. Long.

Blue Angel, N.Y.

Dick Gregory, Dorothy Loudon, Cumberland Three, Jimmy Lyon Trio, Otis Clement; $6 minimum, $7 weekends.

With beaucoup fanfare, young Negro comic Dick Gregory, from Chicago, is in to essay some racial terrain-charting with this eastside intro to the ofay club circuit. Gregory is the topical funster who set off vibrations recently at the Chi Playboy club, and since vaulted into sharper focus via a Time mag hug and Jack Paar tv exposure.

The lad, a Joe Glaser entry, now has a clutch of plum ofay bookings to show for it, and is researched as precedential on at least two counts: initial colored standup to crack through for sustained Main Stem orbiting, and first of his race to classify as a latterday intellectual a la Sahl, Newhart, et al.

Such billing (he's intro'd here, unfortunately, as the "Negro Mort Sahl") has already kicked up dust for the seeming slight of Nipsey Russell, Sammy White, George Kirby and kindred Negro yocksmen of long tenure. But the rebuttal is that these have made only sporadic incursions of ofay rooms, and are not avant-garde besides. It's also pointed out that Gregory's comet is landing him topline status right off. But let that argument rage on the sidelines.

The pre-sell intensity that Gregory got can, of course, hinder when it's time to put up. Judged afresh in this Herbert Jacoby-Max Gordon precinct, the comic registers a split verdict. He is reasonably funny, but plainly less than avant-garde. The big buildup, least insofar as its misrepresents the case, does him a distinct disservice—why not take him on his own terms?

Gregory has enough tip-of-tongue jokes to reach risibilities in this or any other room north of Mason-Dixon (and maybe below). But the expectation of any way-out perspective, the stronger identification that launched and propels a Sahl, say, is nowhere in evidence. Missing from the set gags is the promised dimension of egghead insight.

Apart from the segregation, or sly-Negro-views-of-white-world slants, comic's topics otherwise are routine variants of the Berle to Youngman (widely shared). Wife jokes abound, for example. Most of the jokes, whatever their point, pay off to some degree, but that's hardly news, and the minimal Main Stem requirement.

The carping is certainly valid that Gregory's humor is more the clever twist than fresh satiric sagacity. His teeupper Friday (17) wasn't helped for the repetitive banter bridging the gags, a corny insistence that we-over worry. But this and early pacing trouble could be excused as unusual firstnight anxiety, a matter of psychic composure that will take care of itself.

Dorothy Loudon may very well come with the lease, being one of the evergreen Angel repeaters, and and easily one of the classiest exponents, either gender, of chi chi humor extant. Familiar though it be now, her gamut of cockeyed frames of reference, the in-group tangents, etc., all click for style and verve. Some of it may escape ken here and there, but to compensate the left-outers, Miss Loudon can disport and jest just as cannily in more direct terms.

Also reprising here is the Cumberland Three, fresh off the Shelley Berman concert whirl. Group points up the crowding in the tie-and-jacket folknik ranks, and comparisons become a take-your-pick process for most auditors. Cumberland, like others, work it mainly check-by-jowl, freshening session this time with a "New Frontier" tune that's breezy and of course topical. They have a dandy premise, but waste it, projecting as folksters 50 years hence. Turns out a spoof of r&r, which overlooks a lot of far more juicy mid-century idiocy.

Jimmy Lyon Trio knows its way by rote for Miss Loudon; with emcee Otis Clement's piano splitting the entr' acte chores. The bookings are patchy at the moment, with Dean Jones replacing Gregory on the 30th, latter due back April 6 for four frames. Miss Loudon departs today (Wed.). Pit.

Shamrock Hilton, Houston

Houston, March 16.

Fran Warren, Del Ray, K. Bert Sloan-Dick Krueger Orch (11); no cover or minimum.

Miss Warren, who has played this city several times on club dates, one-nighter and conventions, has her usual slick presentation. Thrush has the pipes for belting and her arrangements blend nicely with the Sloan-Kruetger orchestra conducted by Joe Cabot.

During her 35 minutes she does such tunes as "I Like the Likes of You," "Nice and Easy," "Over the Rainbow," her best by far this night, and a closing English medley of "Foggy Day," "Lady Is a Tramp," and "Blackbirds Bye Bye." Auditors were warm in welcoming her back to town.

Del Ray also is a regular here, and his electronic and sleight of hand feats continue to amaze. One of the more versatile magicians to appear in this town, he gets yocks and palming for his chief assistant, Butch, a teddy bear who pours himself a drink and downs it on command.

Ray also still has the sudden flashes of flame across the stage, cards that pop out of a box on command and the usual birds and handkerchiefs. This billing should keep a constant stream of auditors moving in for next two frames, with Lilo and Professor Backwards due in March 30. Skip.

Hotel Plaza, N.Y.

Marguerite Piazza; Ted Straeter and Mark Monte Orchs; $10 premiere dinner; $3 and $4 cover (Fri.-Sat.-Opening Night).

Marguerite Piazza's operatic background is almost a secret, judging from her current "strictly popular" repertoire. It's almost like underdoing a good thing. The "Pagliacci' aria is sneaked in only as part of her clown number (makeup on-floor, with prop makeup table, etc.) and the Italian medley ("Sorrento," "Marie" and "Cirribirribin," the surefire gondola hit parade) is likewise a pleasantly surreptitious throwaway as to her Italian backgrounding.

Despite the strictly musicomedy and pop repertoire, the brunet diva gives it all class, authority and sock delivery. There is no unsubtle suggestion that she is "slumming" vocally as some of the Met alumnae sometimes indicate, perhaps despite themselves, but there is a whole-hearted desire to click in the strictly popular idiom. Result is that Miss Piazza can play the mass as well as class rooms, not merely the hostelries but the Copa-style or Vegas-gaited boites.

Accent is strictly on the legit musicals with excerpts from "Birdie," "Music Man," "Wildcat," "Fair Lady," "Gypsy," "Carousel" and a heartwarming salute to one of the musicomedy greats of both Broadway and the West End, with her quartet of numbers in honor of Gertrude Lawrence.

But it's not all $6 trade; her pops range from Harold Arlen-Johnny Mercer to W. C. Handy, not to mention the excellent special assist given her by Lyn Duddy who authored the material. James Starbuck staged and (Miss) Leslie Wheel did the okay lighting.

Miss Piazza troupes like the pro she is; does a bangup job on her prime professional prowess — a singer—but manages also (1) to show off some unusual couture and (2) a pair of arresting gams. She has put a lot of time and thought into her act and the end-results are more than adequately compensatory. It pays her big hand-to-hand music dividends. Incidentally, a red sequin sheath, designed — as part of the incidental information—by herself is unique in that it took 400 hours for the seamstress to do the embroidering of the red, pink and magenta brilliants (or pailettes), to quote a non-Christian Dior statistic.

Ted Straeter, himself no slouch at the Steinway, not only does his basically compelling dansapation job but points out that "special accompanists" could go out of business because he plays the difficult accomp like he was part of the act. Same goes for his topnotch AFMers, Mark Monte, of course, is an authoritative maestro with the relief band, the Continentals. Outlook would be that maitre d'hotel John Fossatti should have a busy semester with Miss Piazza's four-weeker. Abel.

Flame Room, Mpls.

Minneapolis, March 17.

Don Cornell, Jerry Carretta, Danny Ferguson Orch (7); $1.50-$2.50 cover.

On a brief tour of the niteries sandwiched in between jaunts to Germany and Australia, baritone Don Cornell is making his first appearance in the Hotel Radisson Flame Room this session. If Cornell looks strange in this setup, it's because he's the first male performer to play this tony bistro in a pile of calendar pages.

Word-of-mouth should pull plenty of gals into the place. Warm reception that Cornell's numbers received at opening show indicates that patrons do recognize and appreciate many of his older disk clicks. Performance had tablesitters hollering for more and forced Cornell to dip into his repertoire for unrehearsed encores which also drew heavy mitting. Singer's pleasing personality and relaxed manner are definite pluses, paving the way for friendly bantering with the fans and encouraging willing audience participation in several numbers.

Pianist-director Jerry Carretta, Cornell's longtime accompanist, does a nifty job of blending the show, and Danny Ferguson's band is, as usual, firstrate in supporting the singer and playing for dinner dancing. Carretta also solos on his own composition of "Caprice." Cornell remains through March 26 with comic Mickey Sharp coming in next week and Ford & Hines following April 3 for a fortnight stay. Rees.

Hotel Roosevelt, N.O.

New Orleans, March 19.

Jimmy Durante, Sonny King, Eddie Jackson, Jack Roth, Durante Girls (6); Don Belloc Orch (12); $2.50 weeknight min; $4 Sats.

Durable, ageless Jimmy Durante, with a large following here accumulated through the years, generates his own special brand of excitement at Seymour Weiss' plush nocturnal rendezvous. He packed them in opening night (18) since he is one of those fortunate comics who works to a pre-sold aud.

For his playback, the brash, bouncy and tireless Schnoz changes the basic format of his show little; and there's no reason for any revisions since the routine is time-tested and perfect. The interplay, however, seemed a little less spirited, but the trademarked Durantics ("Stop The Music, etc.") linger on and the overall impact is still strong.

Durante introes with a delightful opener with the girls who "prance pretty for the boss," and then gets up steam. It's soon obvious that everybody's with him all the way. His lines are always good for guffaws although they've been heard often before.

His standard romp with Eddie Jackson wins hefty applause, as does Jackson's belting of the nostalgic "Bill Bailey." The yet Jackson struts his stuff with class and in show stopping fashion. On the vocals it's the Durante-Jackson styling all the way.

Sonny King, Durante's main prop, gets in some good licks for himself. Their squabbling over King's attempts to grab the spotlight gives the star ample opportunity to go through his customary boisterous aggravation.

It is quite evident that Durante is depending more and more on the services of the younger King, a top singer and a fine performer in his own right. King was on for longer periods than in previous appearances.

The long-stemmed Durante lovelies both decorate the act and give Durante excuse for some sexy gags and situations that are all clean fun. No one in the show is immune from Durante's "abuse," and that also goes for yet drummer Jack Roth and maestro Don Belloc, who prove fine foils for the comic.

Belloc and crew play the show in top form and keep the floor crowed during the ankle-bending sessions.

Show runs for two weeks, closing March 29. Linz.

Barclay Hotel, Toronto

Toronto, March 14.

Day, Dawn & Dusk, Lennie Colyer, Bobby Rose, Bob Arlen Dancers (6), Percy Curtis Orch (8); $1.50 cover.

With Day, Dawn & Dusk headlining—and on for 45 minutes with requests when caught—Al Siegal has assembled a rousing floorshow of girls, a comic and a singing emcee, plus the Percy Curtis orch lending stalwart support to all acts.

Sticking to the oldies that the customers seem to want, Day, Down & Dusk get off to a swift start with their finger-snapping "Wagon Wheels" and then segue into "Up the Lazy River" to enthusiastic hand-clapping audience participation. From then on, harmony trio was in with all arrangements done by Eddie Coleman, pianist at the grand. Robert Caver is tenor; Mack Smith, lead man.

Back here after an 18-month absence, the harmonizers slide into a rousing "This Old House" and "Honeysuckle Rose." But patrons howled for such trademarks of the trio as "Road to Mandalay" and their old-fashioned revival meeting—complete with the passing-out of tambourines to ringsiders.

This brought a foursome of spirituals, with boys finally begging off with their requested and rollicking Coleman arrangement of "Saints Go Marching In." Trio was packing in after that 18-month hiatus from the local scene. It's proof that the customers have a memory for an act that is predicated on novelty song-styling and straight harmonizing.

Comic Lennie Colyer's one-liners were slow in starting, but his dated impressions of Louis Prima, Vaughan Monroe, Louis Armstrong and Rose Murphy soon had the customers in his mitt. His impersonations of film roles portrayed by Gary Cooper, Walter Brennan, Edward G. Robinson and Liberace are all old-hat but what the patrons wanted.

Colyer's satire on a tv commercial, using alternating announcers in a swish and progressive "drunk" aiming at gin sales, was a mirth-rousing finale.

Personable Bobby Rose, as singing emcee, was in good baritone voice in participating with the gorgeously-costumed Bob Arlen Dancers in two production numbers—"Standing on the Corner" opening, with the girls in black, silver-sequined velvet gowns and picture-hats; their later "Steam Heat" gyrations in bronze skin-tights and derbies.

Acts are in till March 25. McStay.

Angelo's Omaha

Omaha, March 18.

Jack E. Leonard, Angelo's Orch (5); $1 cover.

Jack E. Leonard, he of the new look, is making his first appearance in this region in 14 years. Judging by the opening at Angelo's plush nitery last night (17), he has been missed. The 40-seater was packed and the auditors came through with ovations.

There's no middle-of-the-road with Leonard. Either you love him or you can't stand him. It happens this writer is in the former category, so it was 48 minutes of steady guffaws for us.

Leonard's rapid-fire delivery has few peers. The gags and comments, heavily spiced with rough adjectives, come fast and furious. Interspersed are a couple of songs, a [illegible] routine, special effects, the ugly broad routine, etc.

At show caught, Leonard answered audience demands for a self shoe finale in which he also kidded basketball players. "Scored 17 points tonight" he panted as he went off. That can't be correct, but there was no doubt Leonard scored with the aud. Trump.

Pigalle, London

London, March 16.

Betty Hutton, Jerry Bergman & Mimi, Pigalle Lovelies (8), Jack Nathan's Orch; Tony Scott's Mambo Cha-Cha Band. $6.18 minimum.

First of Al Burnett's bookings for summer, 1961, at the Pigalle is bouncy, breezy Betty Hutton. It's her first London cabaret appearance, though she impressed here in pix and at the London Palladium.

Burnett, no mean showman, decided that Miss Hutton's bow-in should coincide with some refurbishing of his plush saloon. Like air-conditioning, for instance, a need clearly proved when Sammy Davis Jr. wowed this niter. Plus new carpets and other things.

In short, Burnett decided that Miss Hutton was well qualified to be the hostess with the mostest to justify the fancy new improvements. And he was a good judge. This terrif performer dishes out some pop singing and some pep personality for around 60 minutes. Burnett could hardly have had a better attraction for his "New Look" rendezvous, which he claims cost him $140,000.

Backed by five slick male dancers, Miss Hutton does her singing, gagging and clowning. She puts a skein of blues songs over superbly (special bow for "Birth of the Blues" and "Willow Weep For Me") with a rather too-noisy version of "St. Louis Blues" as a finale of this segment. She also pays warm tribute to some oldtime stars, particularly Helen Morgan's version of "He's Just My Bill."

Blonde bombshell also joshes Hollywood, herself and "The Method." And she takes a snide, funny kick at "My Fair Lady." She scores with "All Of Me" and "Gonna Write Myself A Letter." In fact Miss Hutton adds up to an ebullient act which has that smooth, apparently spontaneous air.

Maybe it was eager audience anticipation for this friendly performer, but Jerry Bergman & Mimi found the first-nighters a shade sticky, a problem that seemed to have cleared up on a subsequent visit.

The Jack Nathan orchestra provides good backing, and it is a happy ending to a problem which involved the Musicians Union and the Ministry of Labor. It ended with Richard Emming playing piano for Miss Hutton and her husband, Pete Candoli, virtually swinging the show along on horn. So much so that the London public is clamoring for a special show in which Candoli and some selected musicians can go to town in a jam session. Rich.

Basin Street East, N.Y.

Benny Goodman Orch (10) with Jimmy Rushing and Maria Marshall, Kenny Cole Trio; $3 music charge.

Benny Goodman reaffirms Basin Street East's right to call itself a music room. The room has stretched a point every now and then by bringing comics and vocalists who are better suited to the Copacabana or International scene but in this session the booking is right on the beat.

With BG in charge, Basin Street East has an attraction who can bring in the musically nostalgic as well as the musical neophyte. He has more than a quarter of a century tootling spread behind him but his blowing today is still lively and exciting with an appeal for those who were around when the Goodman swing was the thing as well as those youngsters whose musical conditioning has been on the rocking electric guitar or the far out jazz sound. Although he's no longer making musical history or exciting audiences to dancing in the aisles, he's got the class and the musicianship that still spell boxoffice.

Goodman is easy on his lip these days. Not that he's slougning off his solo licks, it's just that he's spreading the work around more. Every now and then he takes off on a fine clarinet lead. But he's surrounded himself with some top-flight sidemen who can come to the fore and hold the aud while he sits back on a stool and enjoys them, too.

Among BG's featured players are Red Norvo on vibes, John Bunch on piano, Zoot Sims on tenor sax, Jimmy Wyble on guitar and Carl Fontana on trombone. And for an offbeat touch, he has a femme, Dottie Dodgion, handling the sticks. She manages to drum her way to the front with some neat rhythmic flourishes.

On the vocal end, Jimmy Rushing comes up with an outstanding blues delivery and Maria Marshall makes "The Lady Is A Tramp" and "I Can't Believe You're In Love With Me" delightful to hear again.

Also in the BG repertoire, which runs close to an hour, are "The Man I Love," "All Things You Are," and the perennials, "Don't Be That Way" and "Sing, Sing, Sing." The tunes are hard to top and so is the bandleader.

Kenny Cole, singer Nat King Cole's brother, leads a competent combo while everyone is waiting for the main event. Gros.

Colony Club, Omaha

Omaha, March 17.

Will Holt & Dolly Jones, Warren Johnson's Trio; $1 cover.

A young married couple attempting to try a new style of comedy, Will Holt & Dolly Jones fail to register at the Colony Club in their initial Omaha outing. Save for a couple of fairly clever bits, most of their material needs revamping.

Holt opens with guitar for a couple of weak songs and [illegible] gags, then moves back to the piano to bring on his blonde partner as "Little Orphan Annie." Gal's hairdo is similar to the funny-strip character but few notice because the red dress she wears is so tight.

Miss Jones does an okay "Heart Belongs to Daddy" and a special "American Way" before two try parts. Their version of a croquet match by New England honeymooners is the strongest bit. Wind up by doing "Three Penny Opera" in German, "Mack the Knife" and a Boston folk song.

Biz poor on night caught. Warren Johnson's fine combo backs show and plays for dancing. Trump.

Tidelands, Houston

Houston, March 13.

Smothers Bros., Kiki Paige, Don Cannon Orch (6); no cover or minimum.

The Smothers Bros. are folk singers, but that needn't scare prospective bookers away. They have a fresh approach to comedy that kept a near-capacity house rocking during nearly their entire 30 minutes on stage.

Brother Tom announces the numbers, and there are most of the laughs. He is a fumbling, bumbling announcer, and when he finishes he has a shy, apologetic hopeful grin that sets off excellent harmony and instrument (bass and guitar) work by brothers. Younger brother Dick (they're 24 and 22) is something of the straight man, mostly carries the lead in the vocals.

Humor is not overpowering—i.e., Tom announces an Israeli folk song, Dick tells him it's a Dutch song. Never completely surrendering, Tom gives a bit and says it's from the Israeli section of Holland.

Kiki Paige, raised in a vaudeville suitcase and until her father was killed en route to the Palace a member of the act Paige, Jewett & Kiki, has been going it for a year or so as a single thrush. She's a shapely brunette who has control of her pipes, and her know-how is evident. Auditors enjoyed act, but more of her in New Acts. Skip.

Deauville, Miami B'ch

Miami Beach, March 18.

Milton Berle, Dunhills (3), Leonard Sues, La Scala Singers, Betty George, Francis Brunn, Les Rhode Orch; $5-$7.50 minimums.

Milton Berle is topping the patronpull pace started by Jimmy Durante for the once ailing Casanova room of this biggery. Following sock opening stint by Francis Brunn, who racks up a near show-stop with his fancy juggling wizardry, Berle comes on from audience to pick up the big-hit mantle and whirl proceedings into a sustained merriment-melange that obtains through the nearly two hours he and company are onstage.

Berle, ever the canny showman with a sure feel for auditors wants, has gathered himself a solid crew to buttress his tried and true waggery, his jousts with ringsiders, "ad libs" and mugging biz. He applies the act breakaps identified with him such as on Betty George; once Berle gets the busty-build angles over with she delivers a strong upbeat tune, indicating, again, that she could be given more to do in that department. As is, it's a yock-raising segment. Ditto his wacky harmonica "duet" with highly capable batoneer Leonard Sues, who on own, spreads his virtuosity on the trumpet through straight and free wheeling trills, topping it all with much appreciated impreshes of top horn-men of the big orch era.

Peak of the hilarity comes with the La Scala singer, the high-ranging mixed-quartet's excerpts first ringing the big reaction bell and then a howling mixup with Berle in his buffoon's getup, running the full register of laugh-returns via his broad bits of biz. It's not for the Kiddis or the staid crowd, but accepted with glee by the audience. Topper is the classy Dunhills trio with their as-one hoofery and acro-flips. Berle joins them for legit as-four tappery and in a challenge routine and it caps a wham show that never lets up; his nostalgic rundown on showbiz career is an effective begoff idea. Berle's never looked or been in better comedies form than at this outing. Lacy.

Eddys', K. C.

Kansas City, March 17

Jack Douglas, Reiko, Bela Willau's Orch (6); $1.50-$2 cover.

Veteran comedy writer Jack Douglas and wife, Reiko, bring in an act of a different kind, one that's had good advance via the Jack Paar show where both have appeared several times. Reservation lists are good and it appears Eddys' is in for a pleasant fortnight. Forty-minute show draws power from both Douglas' material and Reiko's novel song bit.

Billed as two acts, lead off goes to Reiko in Japanese kimono and warbling American songs with a hot beat. She reveals an unusually deep singing voice, but talks in a high pitch, and the contrast has the customers highly amused.

Of her half dozen tunes, only "Sayonara" has a sweet touch, the others being picked largely for their incongruity, "Sing, Sing, Sing," "Come on-a My House," "Yellow Polka Dot Bikini," "Swanee" and others. She solos for 17 minutes, then turns stage over to Douglas, meanwhile having merited a strong hand.

Douglas sits this one out atop a stool most of the time, while monologging quips on the wry, sad side about Aimee Semple McPherson, summer camp counselors, authors, and others. Laughs roll out nicely, and for extra kicks he adds his folk-drummer bit, plus a toot on his Yugoslavian bugle. Finish is strong with Reiko joining him for a duet on "Poor Butterfly," occidental style.

They're here through March 30, with Guy Mitchell to follow. Quin.

Roundtable, N.Y.

Belle Barth, Cootie Williams Quartet, Tyree Glenn Quartet; $3.50 minimum.

An expurgated edition of Belle Barth bowed in N.Y. Monday (20) to the disappointment of a packed house who anticipated a flow of the shady shenanigans with which she built a rep on the Miami I. A. nitery circuit and a banned-in-Gotham disk. The N.Y. district attorney has prohibited sale of her platter, on the After Hours label, and it's become a hot under-the-counter item in the Broadway shops. The room's management probably didn't want to stir up any action by the D.A.'s office so they put the wraps on her.

A staid Belle Barth is an uncomfortable one. There were occasional hint of naughtiness and a forlorn plea to her attorney manager, Shirley Wolfe, in the audience, "Can I tell a dirty joke?" Once in a while she seemed to be ready to let loose as with reference to Helen Traubel's singing but for the major portion of her 30-minute set she was almost too Pollyanna.

Miss Barth's singing and comedy is Catskill-based. The patter flows with Yiddishisms and her belting style is out of the Sophie Tucker-Frances Faye school. For her singing spree, Miss Barth has an easy standing repertoire. "Gossy, Gossy," "Bill Bailey," "Hava Nagilah," "My Man Don't Love Me" and "You're Nobody Till Somebody Loves You" are delivered with emotional steam. Her comic routine is also basic-Yiddish that appeals to the seltzer segment.

The audience reaction, however, was far from enthusiastic at the preem show and there was an 11 p.m. huddle on the management head as to how much she could get away with the next time up. For those at the first show, though, it probably meant scouting Broadway for some of those under-the-counter desks to find out what Miss Barth is really like.

During her stint, she does a sometime self-accomp on piano and gets a good musical backing from Cootie Williams Quartet Williams, a hot trumpeter, also whips up some noise on his own with some swinging numbers. Tyree Glenn, a Roundtable regular also supplies several pleasing musical interludes with his quartet. Gros.

Little Club, N.Y.

Jack Harvey, Murray Grand; $3.50 minimum.

Billy Reed has been on the Broadway scene for a few years, starting as a hoofer to his present preeminence as the Little Club boniface. His dictum is that every day is another opening and you have to prove yourself all over again. As a result of this style thinking, he has, at various occasions, changed the format of his spot. This time he has opened the small and charming Plush Room in the back of the store, and has installed Jane Harvey as the thrush-in-attendance.

Reed fondly remembers the era when there was a multitude of small rooms where singers and comedians abounded. These presented a constant temptation for an evening out

Miss Harvey and the Plush Room seem like an effective combination for the late trade. Both are vivid and both reflect a mood. The room itself, done in reds with crystal chandeliers, produces warmth and Miss Harvey further adds to that mood. She sings quietly with a strong rhythmic feeling but torching seems to be her specialty.

Without a mike, Miss Harvey rides a full range of tunes, but it's the quieter numbers that do best by her. There are other songs, such as "Come By Sunday," written by her accompanist Murray Grand, which also put her ahead in the crowd's estime. She performs laudably. Jose.

Dallas Station Promotes Shows With Disk Names

Dallas, March 21.

KRLD radio, launching a series of disk name "in person" shows, has Marty Robbins band, The Teardrops, plus Scotty McKay & The Young Men, Bobby Louis, Lonnie Smithson and Joe Poovey, dated at State Fair Music Hall March 25 for two performances.

Dan McGraw, KRLD disk jockey, will emcee the show. Ducats in advance are 99c and $1.50 at the boxoffice

Shows on Broadway

Big Fish, Little Fish

Lewis Allen & Ben Edwards (in association with Joseph I. Levine) presentation of comedy in three acts (six scenes) by Hugh Wheeler. Staged by John Gielgud; setting and lighting, Ben Edwards; costumes, Mary Grant. Stars Jason Robards Jr., Hume Cronyn; features Martin Gabel, George Grizzard, George Voskovec, Ruth White, Elizabeth Wilson. Opened March 15, '61, at the ANTA Theatre, N.Y.; $7.50 top Friday and Saturday nights, $6.90 weeknights.

Edith Maitland ..... Ruth White
Jimmie Luton ..... Hume Cronyn
William Baker ..... Jason Robards Jr.
Basil Smythe ..... Martin Gabel
Hilda Rose ..... Elizabeth Wilson
Ronnie Johnson ..... George Grizzard
Paul Stumfig ..... George Veskovec

The only fish in "Big Fish, Little Fish," which opened at the ANTA Theatre last Wednesday night (15) is a mechanical toy—symbolic, of course. The idea appears to be that although big fish prey on little fish, they're dependent on them. Or as the central character says as the third-act curtain line, "If you don't like your friends, what have you got?"

This serious comedy by television scripter Hugh Wheeler is expressively staged by John Gielgud and given a virtuoso performance by Jason Robards Jr., Hume Cronyn and Martin Gabel, with valuable assists from George Grizzard and Ruth White. It is an interesting, frequently amusing show with a lot of funny lines, but falls short of importance and seems likely to have only a moderate run. With knowing adptation, it could be a memorable picture.

The big fish of the piece is an amiable sub-editor of a New York publishing house, once a promising college professor but now living a sort of second-hand existence as the centre of a group of eccentric, jealousy possessive hangers-on. When he's offered a chance of an exciting job with a Swiss publisher, his ambition is awakened and he seems about to break away from his "barnacle" friends.

There's a hitch, however, and at the final curtain he's apparently resigned to the old rut with his demanding satellites. Telling off the successful young author who obtained the enticing job prospect and who still urges him to jettison his little coterie of admirers, he seems to be saying that friendship is largely a matter of making allowances, and that it's preferable to personal ambition and achievement.

Perhaps the assumption is that the hero is a big fish only in his very small, second-hand pond. At any rate, the audience isn't shown much to justify the idea that he's exceptionally talented and that his capacity for personal relationships (including an irresistible appeal for pathetic women) is so extraordinary.

As it happens, the hero doesn't make the decision to pass up the promising job in favor of continuing life with his hangers-on, but it's made for him by circumstances, so maybe his philosophic acceptance of the situation is merely making the best of a disappointing thing. That, added to fact that the hero's outstanding qualities must be taken on faith, makes the play's ending somewhat puzzling and unsatisfying.

Gielgud, whose direction was a vital element of "Five Finger Exercise," has staged "Big Fish, Little Fish" with finesse and notable theatrical effect. Although the role of the easy-going hero is incompletely defined and the least colorful of the leads, Robards gives a performance of seeming naturalness and quiet strength.

Cronyn offers a brilliant portrayal as a crotchety, fussy member of the little set who's constantly enraged at the others and has an unnatural affection for the big fish. It's a showy part, but he gives it unusual dimension and subtle poignance. Gabel gives a richly detailed characterization of an egocentric, hypochondriac ex-publisher whom even his pet cat doesn't like very much.

Grizzard is attractively breezy as a hedonistic, successful young novelist who uses circumstances and people to get what he wants, and Miss White, George Voskovec and Elizabeth Wilson are believable in secondary parts.

Ben Edwards has designed a suitably grubby setting representing an apartment in Manhattan's east 30's, and Mary Grant has provided appropriate clothes.

"Big Fish, Little Fish" is a good show, but not a you-gotta-see-it item. Hobe.

Hamlet

Phoenix Theatre (T. Edward Hambleton, managing director; Stuart Vaughan, artistic director) revival of drama in two acts, by William Shakespeare. Staged by Stuart Vaughan; settings and costumes, Peter Wingate; lighting, Joan Larkey; music and songs, David Amram. Features Donald Madden, Patricia Falkenhain, Alexander Scourby, John Heffernan, Joyce Ebert, Ted van Griethuysen, Ray Reinhardt, Jared Reed. Opened March 16, '61, at the Phoenix Theatre, N.Y.; $4.60 top.

King Claudius ..... Alexander Scourby
Hamlet ..... Donald Madden
Polonius ..... John Heffernan
Horatio ..... Ray Reinhardt
Laertes ..... Ted van Griethuysen
Voltemand ..... William Hindman
Cornelius ..... Tom Sawyer
Rosencrantz ..... Frederic Warriner
Guildenstern ..... Frederick Young
Osric ..... Nicholas Kepros
Gentleman ..... Tom Sawyer
Priest ..... William Hindman
Marcellus ..... Franklin Cover
Soldiers ..... Jared Reed, Elliott Sullivan
Player ..... Franklin Cover
Player King ..... Tom Sawyer
Gravedigger ..... Jared Reed
Fortinbras ..... Robert Blackburn
Norwegian Captain ..... Nicholas Kepros
Ghost of Hamlet's Father ..... Robert Blackburn
Queen Gertrude ..... Patricia Falkenhain
Ophelia ..... Joyce Ebert
Player Queen ..... Juliet Randall

Lords, Officers, Soldiers, Attendants, Players: Michael Baseleon, Guy Burton, Robert Corpora, Wayne Croft, Daniel Durning, George O'Halloran, Morrie Peirce, Garth Pillsbury, Colgate Salsbury, Frank Valenza, Edward Zanz, David Zirlin, Patricia O'Morran, David Craven, Ted Graeder, Elaine Hindman, Sheila Kortlucke, Paul Robinson, Karl E. Williams, Andrew Wollershein.

Perhaps the Phoenix Theatre is finding its own special function and place at last. With its away-from-Times Square location and moderate capacity, the operation has not been able to compete with regular Broadway, and has rarely been able to attract adequate support from its own neighborhood and other parts of the city and surrounding area.

The opening last Thursday night of "Hamlet," however, had a much higher ratio of young people in the audience than is present at most legit performances in New York, either on or off-Broadway, and the whole show seemed to reflect the spontaneity and fullness of their response. Presumably the Phoenix, with its semi-supported setup, can afford the reduced-price policy necessary to attract and exist on heavy juve patronage. If so, it may be a solution to the overall Phoenix venture and partially to the problem of educating new audiences to legit.

As for this particular edition of "Hamlet," it's a mixed blessing. The performance is generally brisk and uncluttered. The text is longer than normally used; though still considerably reduced from the original. In a way, the effect is to clarify some aspects of the drama. On the other hand, the performance seems to stretch out a bit at times, notably in the second act, and there are passages that give the impression of recitation by rote.

If there is such a thing as a poor "Hamlet," this isn't it. The effort to maintain a rapid tempo occasionally leads to haste rather than pace, with the action becoming almost chaotic and the lines obscured. In general, though, the performance is lively and the approach engagingly fresh. The staging is resourceful, with several novel touches, interesting groupings and a notably believable dual scene. The opening scenes on the castle battlements lack some of their inherent eerie quality, perhaps to a slight extent because the ghost is represented in a more tangible form than customary.

In the long, complex and exhausting title role, Donald Madden makes a convincing appearance, and he has the advantage of youthful vigor and drive. His readings are mostly clear and interesting, though there's a suggestion of reaching for novelty in several of the great speeches, and on occasions the performance is overwrought and the meaning is blurred in the rush. All things considered, it's a creditable performance, though not of star impact.

Alexander Scourby is a plausible, if unexciting Claudius. Patricia Falkenhain an unusually youthful and understandable Gertrude, Joyce Ebert an appealing but inevitably trying Ophelia, and John Heffernan a virtual caricature as Polonius. Ray Reinhardt is outstanding, which is about as much as Horatio can be, Tom Sawyer a distinct Player King, Frederic Warriner and Frederick Young acceptable as Rosencrantz and Guildenstern, Ted van Griethuysen a suitably youthful Laertes, Jared Reed a commendably hearty Gravedigger and Robert Blackburn not only visible but quite mortal as the Ghost.

Peter Wingate's scenery, consisting primarily of an arrangement of platforms, heavy set pieces and arched columns, is expressively foreboding, and the costumes are excellent. Joan Larkey's lighting and David Amram's music also contribute valuably to the overall effect.

As with most Shakespeare, this non-star and non-star-quality "Hamlet" isn't likely to draw the regular Broadway trade. It should have moderate appeal for a limited public, however, and seems a standout missionary item for new audiences. Hobe.

The Importance of Being Oscar

S. Hurock & Roger L. Stevens (in association with Michael Redgrave & Fred Sadoff) presentation of solo show of readings from the writing of Oscar Wilde, arranged and with commentary by Micheal MacLiammoir. Stars Micheal MacLiammoir; staged by Hilton Edwards; production design supervised by Lee Watson. Opened March 14, '61, at the Lyceum Theatre, N.Y.; $5.65 top.

The next thing, they'll be naming Oscar Wilde the man of the year. After several plays and films on the subject, here is another tribute to the celebrated playwright, poet, novelist, essayist, epigramatist, conversationalist and wit who fascinated, irritated and finally outraged Victorian England.

The show, titled "The Importance of Being Oscar," opened last Tuesday night (14) at the Lyceum Theatre. It's a one-man program of readings from Wilde's plays, poems, essays, letters and conversational quotes, arranged and with continuity, explanation and sympathetic comment by the star, Irish actor-author Micheal MacLiammoir, and staged by Hilton Edwards. As a rather special offering it should do well.

"The Importance," prepared and first presented at the Dublin Theatre Festival last summer and subsequently a success in London, is being offered here by S. Hurok and Roger L. Stevens, in association with the original management, British actor Sir Michael Redgrave and U.S.-born London producer Fred Sadoff. The Broadway engagement is supposed to be limited, but is obviously subject to extension. The production is scheduled to tour next season.

MacLiammoir wears a tux and appears on a stage backed by black drapes and containing only a table, sofa, straightback armchair and standing vase of flowers. He doesn't attempt to characterize Wilde, but creates an aura of his flamboyant personality, brilliance, vanity, underlying sentimentality and, at the end, his hard-learned sense of resignation and compassion. The actor holds the stage alone for two and a half hours, moving about in a full-scale performance.

The lighter portions of the show are generally the more entertaining, notably excerpts from two of Wilde's comedies, with MacLiammoir playing several different parts. Other diverting bits are from the essays, letters and conversational sallies. Also in the first half is a slightly overlong but generally interesting condensation-dramatization from Wilde's only novel, the moralistic but in that prudish era shocking "The Picture of Dorian Gray."

In the second half, after touching only sparingly on the scandal, trials and imprisonment, MacLiammoir gives a full-blown reading of Wilde's voluminous letter from Reading jail, a woeful, self-justifying half-plea and half-denunciation to his booby-trap friend, young Lord Alfred Douglas. Despite the expressive quality of much of this document, its self-pitying tone and excessive length are wearying. Thereafter, except for flashes of the old Wilde sparkle and impudence, the flavor tends to be glum.

"The Importance of Being Oscar" is a tour-de-force that should appeal to audiences with intellectual or literary interests, but there's little in it for the public that favors the sort of big, brash musicals and comedies and the lurid shock dramas generally associated with Broadway. On its own basis it's a touching tribute to a brilliant, tragic artist, and it offers a rewarding evening. Hobe.

Frank Colletti is general stage manager and Danny Brennan is stage manager of "Donnybrook," the Johnny Burke-Robert McEnroe musical Fred Hebert will present at the 46th Street Theatre, N.Y., opening May 18.

Asides and Ad-Libs

Because of the continuing success of "Oliver" in London, David Merrick probably won't be able to do the musical adaptation of "Oliver Twist" until the spring or perhaps fall of 1962, when some of the key members of the original West End cast will be available . . . Noel Coward, who's previously expressed his disapproval of theatre parties, gave a one-man audition for party agents last week of his new shipboard musical comedy, tentatively titled "Sail Away" . . . Kermit Bloomgarden also held a party-agent audition of his musical, "The Gay Life," based on Schnitzler's "The Affairs of Anatol," and a reading of the script of the Arnold Schulman play, "The Nose of Jerry Pepper," which will star Milton Berle.

Purdue Univ. will publish a theatrical quarterly, titled First Stage, starting next winter. Each issue will contain the texts of three new plays . . . The Finnish Center of the International Theatre Institute in Helsinki is now issuing a bulletin, in French and English, of Finnish stage news, and it's being circulated among drama editors in the U. S. The Polish branch of the ITI in Warsaw recently began similar distribution of a monthly report of the theatre in Poland, with the text in Polish and English . . . Nathan Cohen, entertainment editor of the Toronto Star, goes to the Coast early in April, to be gone a month. He'll tape several editions of his television series before leaving.

Coast pressagent Henry Arnsten has been issuing releases about the costarring stock engagements of Constance Bennett and Hugh Marlowe in "The Marriage-Go-Round." Since the blurbs give Marlowe top billing, is it safe to assume he's the client? . . . The American Theatre Wing will hold its annual 'Tony' Awards dinner Sunday, April 16, at the Waldorf-Astoria Hotel, N. Y. There's some interest this year in whether the new selection system will avoid the charges of "favoritism" that followed past awards . . . David Merrick, who's always concocting angles to promote his shows, is now using a metered postage stamper plugging his Broadway musical, "Irma La Douce."

Writing in the San Juan Star, Al Dinhofer summarized the eight-week season of Tapia Theatre there as "some fairly good production and some mediocre." High marks went to the French mime, Marcel Marceau, packaged by Ronald Wilford. Second laurel went to "a remarkably satisfying presentation of 'Death of a Salesman' starring Albert Dekker and Mildred Dunnock."

Playwrights who submitted scripts to the John van Druten Award judges received curiously-worded letter from Samuel Serlden of Theatre Arts Dept. at the Univ. of California at Los Angeles. Rejectees were informed that there were "many outstanding scripts among the 224 entries" and that in the opinion of the jury, "The problem of the American theatre is not lack of scripts but lack of far-sighted directors and producers. At least 15 of the submissions were outstanding. Another 35 were worth producing." Producer-director John Housman and Christian Science Monitor critic John Beaufort were among the jurors.

"The theatre is not aloof from the world in which it exists. It must reflect the attitudes and mores and the urgencies of its time. Those who work in the theatre cannot live on a small island of special interest, because that island is not especially immune to the atom or the hydrogen bomb. The perplexities of our age perplex the theatre. The tensions, harassments, and intransigencies of man sweep into the surf that licks at our island. Tell them, unknown chronicler, 25 years hence, to abstain from the shallow participation that lacks vigor and conviction; tell them to eschew the superficial that prates of art but encourages dilettantism; tell them to perspire as they aspire; and tell them that the only corruption they face is from the forces that live within themselves."—Film and legit author-director-producer Dore Schary, in an article in the Atlantic Monthly, based on a talk at the American Academy of Dramatic Arts.

"When you enter the stage in the presence of a live audience, everything you have ever learned is suddenly different. You lose your breath where you never did before; you have strength you never guessed; you are more aware of your body and less aware. Headaches and stomachaches disappear, but keeping your mouth shut has become an achievement. You can see both in front and behind you at once. You see the whole stage and the rip under your sleeve. You hear everything, each cough, each musical instrument, the grip dropping a gelatin offstage, your partner's whispered warning, the creak of your shoes; and you hear nothing—a fire engine could drive down the aisle and you would still know how many turns there were left to do; that bit of just standing around feels wonderful, but the long lifts are boring, they were fun to work out but they are boring to watch. How do you know they are boring to watch? You have not seen them. You know. Suddenly you know."—Choreographer Agnes de Mille, in an article, "To a Young Dancer," in the Atlantic Monthly.

Legit Bits

N.Y. Times columnist and former drama critic Brooks Atkinson is vacationing in Puerto Rico with his novelist-wife Oriana Atkinson. They're due back April 10. Meanwhile, the Times is using columns Atkinson wrote in advance.

Broadway producer-pressagent Arthur Cantor is collecting a fund to assist the widow and three small children of Paul Kutner, an executive in the theatre department of the Blaine, Thompson ad agency who died last Thursday (16) at the age of 33.

A second company of Jay Thompson's off-Broadway musical, "Double Entry," is being formed by producers Albert C. Lasher and Paul Lehman for a national tour to open probably in October at George and Oscar Marienthal's Chicago cabaret-theatre, The Happy Medium.

Paddy Chayefsky is in England to attend the out-of-town and London openings of his drama, "The Tenth Man," currently in its 72d week on Broadway.

Joseph Papp, producer of the N. Y. Shakespeare Festival which offers admission-free Bard performances in Central Park, will open the group's new theatre June 29 with "Much Ado About Nothing," to be followed July 24 by "A Midsummer Night's Dream" and Aug. 21 by "Richard II."

James Doolittle, general director of the Greek Theatre in Los Angeles, will sponsor a six-week American premiere tour of the Greek Tragedy Theatre in the fall. The group will probably open at the City Center in N. Y. late in August with following engagements in Boston, Chicago, San Francisco, Los Angeles and Washington.

Richard Burton will end his run in "Camelot" the end of November, and in January will begin rehearsal, under Peter Brook's direction, of Jean-Paul Sartre's Paris drama, "God and the Devil," in London. The drama will be seen there for a limited engagement at the Aldwych Theatre with Roger L. Stevens reportedly interested in the outcome.

John Raitt will star in "Pajama Game," the final presentation of the new Circle Arts Theatre's inaugural summer season in San Diego, Cal., repeating the role he played in the original Broadway production.

David Ross, producer-director of the off-Broadway 4th St. Theatre where "Hedda Gabler" is the current attraction, and his actress-wife Carmel Ross, planed to London recently to confer with Michael Meyer on the use of the latter's Ibsen translations for the 4th Street's Ibsen cycle.

Joel Spector's production of a musical version of "Three Men on a Horse" has been titled "Let It Ride." Jay Livingston and Ray Evans are collaborating on the music and lyrics for the show which is to star George Gobel.

Ann Summers has succeeded Nan

(Continued on page 72)

Baptist Nix Seen in L.A. Civic Opera Ducking Sponsorship of 'Gypsy'

Los Angeles, March 21.

For the first time the L.A. Civic Light Opera Co. will present a show in San Francisco and deliberately not sponsor same under its auspices here. The show is the Broadway smash, "Gypsy," now in its 88th week in N.Y., but due to hit the road on extensive tour March 25.

It is surmised, however, that the reason Civic Op ducks the "Gypsy" issue here is that it stages its local season in the Philharmonic auditorium, owned by the Baptist Church. In years past Civic Op occasionally has experienced some friction in mounting its musicals due to storylines, costuming and dialog. Frequently "hells" and "damn" were expurgated after a nudge from the churchfolk. As "Gypsy" deals, of course, with a burgeoning career of a burlesque stripper (Gypsy Rose Lee), it is understood that Civic Op managing director Ed Lester did not even broach the project of putting the show into the Philharmonic.

In San Francisco, however, where the Civic Op roosts at the Curran Theatre, no opposition will materialize, so "Gypsy" will be sponsored there, opening Aug. 7 for six weeks. An additional two weeks will be played at the Curran without CLOA subscription.

"Gypsy," which will tour with its original Broadway star, Ethel Merman, making one of her infrequent treks of the road, will play L.A., of course, but distinctly not under L.A. Civic Op aegis. It may play the Shrine or Biltmore. Precise date and house are not yet set.

Full complement of shows for Civic Op's season here are set. "Merry Widow" tees off sked April 17, followed by "Bye Bye Birdie," "The Sound of Music" and "Guys And Dolls." Incidentally, Civic Op has guaranteed $100,000 of the approximate $250,000 cost of mounting the road company of "Birdie," also a current Broadway smash.

244G Ford Fund Grant To Increase Exchanges Between Stage Groups

The Ford Foundation has established a Theatre Communications Group to improve cooperation among American professional, community and university theatres. Supported by a four-year $244,000 grant, the group will facilitate the exchange of artists and other theatre personnel, and enable members to study each others' methods.

The communications setup will be under the control of 13 representatives of New York and professional regional, community, summer stock and academic theatres. The executive committee will consist of Theodore Hoffman, head of the drama department of the Carnegie Institute of Technology, Pittsburgh; Jon Reich, head of the Goodman Memorial Theatre, Chicago, and Nina Vance, managing director of the Alley Theatre, Houston.

Pat Brown, former managing director of the Magnolia Theatre, Long Beach, Cal., will be field director. The Carnegie Institute will have administrative and financial supervision of the project and the group will be headquartered in Pittsburgh. The group's advisory board includes producing representatives from Broadway and summer stock, performers and others. In its initial stage, the program will include 24 theatres and theatre departments.

Some of the functions of the group include (1) supplying to community theatre directors who want to operate under the jurisdiction of Actors Equity Funds to enable them to study professional regional theatres that have already made the transition, (2) enabling heads of university drama departments to find professional apprenticeships for their students and (3) giving producers and directors seeking front-of-the-house or stage personnel an opportunity to study community, summer stock or academic theatres at first-hand.

Another recent Ford Founda-

(Continued on page 76)

Catawba College to Do 'Murder in City' Tryout

"Murder in the City," by Marvin Rosenberg, a professor of dramatic arts at the Univ. of California, will be preemed April 20-22 in the Blue Masque Theatre of Catawba College, Salisbury, N.C. The play is the 12th to be selected for the Catawba College Drama & Speech Dept. "Contemporary Series," now in its seventh session of preeming the works of new American playwrights.

The presentation will also be the third joint project of the Blue Masque and the Office of Communication for the United Church of Christ. The theatre and the church office have been collaborating in producing dramas by unrecognized writers.

Rosenberg will be taken to Catawba to observe and work on the production of his play, which will be designed and staged by Professor B. M. Hobgood, director of the Blue Masque.

'Music' Gets Mild Press in London

London, March 21.

It's been quite a while since an American long-running musical received quite such an on-the-fence reception as "The Music Man" which opened at the Adelphi last Thursday (16). There was a lot of faint praise, but generally it was conceded that the good things about the show, notably the brisk chorus work, one or two rousing numbers and the young British leading lady, Patricia Lambert, outweighed the corny book.

The Times' anonymous critic, Anthony Cookman, rated the musical as "a show, which, though it hardly ranks with the best of its kind, is always lightly and tunefully entertaining." David Nathan, of the Daily Herald, spent much semi-critical space before calling it "a pleasant show for undemanding families—if they still exist."

Angus Hall, of the Daily Sketch, criticized star Van Johnson bitterly. Bernard Levin, normally a caustic reviewer in the Daily Express, was gentle.

John Cameron Readying Season at Ephrata, Pa.

Ephrata, Pa., March 21.

Producer-director John Cameron has arrived here to prepare a 16-week season of star policy summer stock in the Legion Star Playhouse, opening June 8 with "Marriage-Go-Round." The 600-seat semi-hardtop arena did not operate last season.

Cameron, operator of the Guthsville Playhouse, near Allentown the last several seasons, has taken a straight lease on the Legion Star Playhouse from the owners, the Ephrata Legion Club. He directed the first season at Ephrata for Producer Daisy Amoury in 1954 and returned to complete a season for Jonathan Dwight in 1957.

Ephrata will operate with an Equity company supporting guest stars. After "Marriage-Go-Round," plays will include "Goodbye, Charlie," "Five Finger Exercise" and "Make A Million."

2 Historical Plays At San Antonio This Year

San Antonio, March 21.

The Texas Historic Theatre Foundation will present two historical dramas this year at the San Jose Mission. A new piece, "The San Jose Mission Story," by Ethel Wilson Harris and Mrs. Dorothy Cinclair, will open July 21, after a preview day for patrons of the San Antonio Conservation Society.

The second work, Ramsey Yelvington's "A Cloud of Witnesses," will be presented by the theatre foundation after the "San Jose Story" ends its run. This will be the seventh year of summer theatre operation at the historic mission.

Orange Blossom Theatre Opening in Orlando, Fla.

Orlando, Fla., March 21.

The Orange Blossom Playhouse, on North Orange Blossom Trail, is scheduled to open tomorrow (Wed.) as a non-Equity operation. Lisa Hawley is president of the Orange Blossom Corp. A 10-week season is planned, starting with "Auntie Mame."

Walter O. Jensen, the stager of "Auntie Mame," heads the production staff. Lowell Fenner Jr. is associate director and Phillip Dorn is technical director.

New Service For 'Camelot' Tix To Travel Agencies

A special ticket service for travel agents throughout the world has been established by the Broadway production of "Camelot." It enables agents whose clients want to purchase tickets to the musical to order them directly from the show's management at regular box-office prices. There's no premium added to the designated ducat sum, such as the maximum $1.50 per ticket charge legally permitted N.Y. brokers.

The new service, tagged Camelot Travel Ticket Dept., is located in the Manhattan office of the musical's producers, Alan Jay Lerner, Frederick Loewe and Moss Hart. News of the department's formation was released to travel agents in the March 10 issue of the trade mag, Travel Agent. A special mailing, detailing aspects of the newly-formed department, is being sent to around 5,000 individual travel agents and ads promoting the service are scheduled for travel trade publications.

Formation of the department is believed to be the first such for a Broadway production as a direct sales link to travel agents throughout the world. Travel Agent, published twice monthly in N.Y., was instrumental in prompting the "Camelot" management to establish the service through editoral emphasis on travel agent interest in Broadway legit. The mag, published and edited by Eric Friedheim, started a Broadway legit listing last November as a service for its readers.

Besides purchasing tickets for individual clients, travel agents have also become increasingly important to Broadway legit as a result of their involvement in package show tours, for which an overall price is usually charged for transportation, living accommodations and theatre-going. The "Camelot" department was set up to make it easier for travel agents to obtain theatre tickets to the production, which opened to a reportedly unprecedented advance sale.

Business for the musical, now

(Continued on page 74)

N. Y. State Council Asks $450,000 Program

Albany, March 21.

A $450,000 program to bring a "vast panorama" of arts to a public "prevented from enjoying them by distance and high prices" is proposed by the State Council on the Arts. The group's recommendation to Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller, asks tours by established opera, ballet and theatre companies, and leading orchestras.

Among the eight steps outlined for use of the $450,000 tentatively set aside in the budget are the expenditure of up to $70,000 to underwrite a three-week state tour by a leading opera company, presenting works from the current season's repertoire, expenditure up to $65,000 for a three-week tour of the state by a leading non-profit ballet company with a repertoire including at least one new work, spending up to $80,000 to subsidize a five-week tour of the state by a leading non-profit theartical company and using up to $35,000 for circulating art exhibits at modest rentals to smaller institutions.

"There is no cultural institution in the state today," said the Council's report, "whether a museum, historical society, orchestra, opera company, a ballet or a repertory theatre that is self-supporting." The council was formed by the Governor to further the arts in New York State.

Figure 4-City Subscription Setup For Tour of Tryouts Next Season

A subscription-cushioned tryout circuit of four cities is planned for the midwest next season. As devised by Morry Efron, the project involves the establishment of a production firm to present new plays to partially guaranteed audiences in Louisville, Dayton, Cincinnati and Columbus.

The tryouts would not be immediate pre-Broadway offerings, since those considered worthy of a Main Stem outing on the strength of the midwest test would be refinanced specifically for New York. The new productions would then play the usual break-in stands prior to hitting Broadway.

For the midwest circuit, the physical calibre of the productions would be on a par with that of a stock presentation. On that basis, Efron has budgeted the producing venture at $100,000, with which he intends putting on at least four shows. Efron, incidentally, is a Broadway company-general manager who in recent years managed the Cincinnati Summer Playhouse. The latter spot was dark last summer.

Involved with Efron in the play production project is producer Manning Gurian, who's also working on his own presentation of a touring production of "Get on Board," an all-Negro revue previously presented overseas as "Jazz Train." Efron and Gurian control the rights to five properties, including two musicals and three straight comedies.

The musicals, written by David Rogers and Raymond Scott, are "Flame" and "Hat in Hand." Scott's wife, singer Dorothy Collins, is expected to star in "Flame." Two of the comedies, "I Belong to ZoZo" and "The Gentleman from Chicago," were conceived by the late Preston Sturgis. The other play, Stuart Bishop's "Babylon by Candlelight," was previously tried out in stock, but has since been re-

(Continued on page 75)

Non-Profit Setup Gets Barn at Fish Creek, Wis.

Milwaukee, March 21.

The Peninsula Players Theatre Foundation, a non-profit setup, will reopen the Peninsula Playhouse at Fish Creek, Wis., the oldest professional theatre in the state. Financial problems have beset the spot recently.

James B. McKenzie, formerly with Milwaukee's Fred Miller Theatre, has leased the theatre from Kenneth Carroad, of New York, who recently purchased the property. He plans a nine-play season.

McKenzie now manages the Westport (Conn.) Country Playhouse and the Paper Mill Playhouse, Millburn, N.J.

'Toys' Nets 100% So Far on 125G

"Toys in the Attic," which has netted nearly 100% profit thus far on its $125,000 investment, earned a $5,022 operating profit during the four-week period ended last Feb. 25 on grosses ranging from $15,386 to $18,539. The return was cleared by the production on each of the weeks involved as the result of a widespread reduction in running expenses.

The Kermit Bloomgarden presentation, on twofers since last January, is currently in its 56th week at the Hudson Theatre, N.Y., where it's potential weekly capacity gross at the regular scale is $39,600. As of Feb. 25, the Lillian Hellman drama had netted $121,583, of which $80,000 has been distributed in an even split between the backers and the management. Incidentally, the $121,583 represents the net after the deduction of 20% of the profit paid to Miss Hellman.

Contributing substantially to the show's profit status is a total of $144,000 received by the production as its 40% share, less 10% commissions, of $400,000 paid by the Mirisch Co. for the film rights. Of the picture revenue, $108,000 was received last summer and the $36,000 balance last month. Under the terms of the pic deal, the production will also get 7½% of the income over two-and-a-half times the negative costs if the film is

(Continued on page 76)

Local Group Takes Over Theatre at Hinsdale, Ill.

Chicago, March 21.

A group of local residents has formed a corporation to take over operation of the Hinsdale Summer Theatre, which actor Sidney Blackmer relinquished after a disappointing season last year. The stock house, which has a 10 year history, will be renamed the Salt Creek Playhouse and operated by Hinsdale Dramatic Arts Corp.

The president of the new group is Clyde L. Lint, who owns a manufacturing company in Hinsdale. Another principal is Carroll Layman, a radio-tv rep with the firm of Harrington, Righter & Parsons, which is tentatively handling publicity for the theatre. Tom Blank, another member of the community, will be producer, and his father, Talkie Blank, a consultant. Present plans are to form a resident company, but to spell it with package shows.

The theatre has 838 seats and can gross $18,500 at a $3.50 top.

Quinn, Riddle, Marquis Do Will Rogers Tuner

Vet radio-tv scripter Don Quinn, who authored the "Fibber McGee and Molly" and "Halls of Ivy" shows, has leaned on the Will Rogers legend for a legit musical which he is calling "Will." It calls for a $350,000 production budget, but that's "the least of the problem," the writer explains from his Hollywood headquarters.

Arranger-composer Nelson Riddle has done the tunes for the show, and Arnold Marquis, who has the exclusive contract with the Rogers family, collaborated with Quinn on the book and lyrics.

UAR Spurns Touring U.S. Repertory's Cairo Stand Because of Israeli Date

The United Arab Republic has turned down a Cairo booking of the Theatre Guild-American Repertory Co. because the troupe's itinerary includes a stopover in Tel Aviv. The UAR contends it is still in a state of war with Israel and will not recognize it even to the extent of playing the same touring shows.

Plans had been in the works for the company, which is traveling under State Dept. auspices, to play an April 1-3 date at the Cairo Opera House. Helen Hayes heads the acting contingent, which is performing a repertory of "Skin of Our Teeth," "Glass Menagerie" and "Miracle Worker." The Cairo engagement would have marked the first presentation in years of an American cultural offering in Egypt.

Since the 1956 Suez invasion there has been no important theatre group in Cairo. However, the city was previously played by such companies as the Comedie Francaise and the Old Vic. There have been recent bookings in Cairo of Russia's Bolshoi Ballet and Soviet Armenian dancers, Yugoslavia's Belgrade State Opera and Louis Armstrong's band.

The Armstrong engagement was almost cancelled a few hours before its scheduled opening, however, because of reports that the bandleader was "pro-Zionist." But the matter was cleared up and the performance went on as scheduled. U. S. officials have announced that the repertory company will play Beirut instead of Cairo, which was the only booking slated for the African continent.

Robert Seymour Quits Harrisburg Legit Group

Harrisburg, Pa., March 21.

Roebrt T. Seymour, for nine seasons managing director of the Harrisburg Community Theatre, has resigned, effective in June. His current production of "Romanoff and Juliet," ended a two-week run last Saturday (18).

Seymour says his plans are indefinite. The HCT board is interviewing successor applicants.

Shows Abroad

The Music Man

London, March 17.

Harold Fielding (in association with Kermit Bloomgarden, Herbert Greene & Frank Productions Inc) presents arrangement with Jack Hylton, of a [illegible] act (16 scenes) musical. Stars Van Johnson, Patricia Lambert. Book (in association with Franklin Lacey) by Meredith Willson; music and lyrics, Meredith Willson; staged by Robert Merriman (based on original production by Morton Da Costa); choreography, James Barron (based on original by Onna White); decor, Howard Bay; costumes, Raoul Pene Du Pois; lighting, Michael Northern; orchestrations, Don Walker and Laurence Rosenthal; vocal arrangements, Herbert Greene, musical director, Gareth Davies. Opened March 16, '61, at the Adelphi, London, $3.50 top.

Travelling Salesmen ..... Clifford Baker, Keith Galloway, Peter Hudson, Austin Kent, Graham Smith, Evan Thomas, Thomas Walling
Charlie Cowell ..... Michael Melnick
Conductor ..... Vernon Rees
Harold Hill ..... Van Johnson
Mr. Dodd ..... Cohn Cunningham
Mr. Hinks ..... Jimmy Phillips
Townswomen ..... June Grant, Maureen Hartley, Leonie Jessel, Joan O'Sullivan, Gavnor Rees, Margaret Smith
Mayor Shinn ..... C. Denier Warren
Quartet ..... Alan Thomas, Peter Rhodes, Frederick Williams, John Lloyd Parry
Marcellus Washburn ..... Bernard Spear
Tommy Dilks ..... Ben Stevenson
Marian Paroo ..... Patricia Lambert
Mrs. Paroo ..... Ruth Trettwell
Amaryllis ..... Gillian Martindale
Winthrop Paroo ..... Denis Waterman
Eulalie Shinn ..... Nan Munro
Zaneeta Shinn ..... Doreen Clan
Gracie Shinn ..... Melanie Rowland
Alice Ellis ..... Lily Landus
Maud Dunlap ..... Jessica James
Ethel Tottelmier ..... Olwen Griffiths
Mrs. Squires ..... Doreen Croft
Constable Locke ..... Vernon Rees
Townspeople ..... Gillian Barber, Anne Bailey, Sheila Cockill, Leonie Flockhart, Elaine Glenn, Valerie Le Serve, Jill Love, Joanne Mote, Carole Naylor, Belmont Eastoe, Neil Fitzwilliam, Keith Galloway, Robert Howe, Vince Lozan, James Robertson, Graham Smith, Jim Sparrow, David Wright
Children ..... Gillian Bogle, Stephen Ashworth, Simon Moreton

"The Music Man" has had four cheerful, profitable years beguiling Broadway. But in London, it's a gamble.

A very American musical, sticky with amiable sentiment, set in a hick town in Iowa in 1912 must present sturdy overseas resistance. Britain has gratefully accepted slick, lively American musicals, but any newcomers must stand up to their standard.

This one has so many flaws that it might have been hit by a quick knockout. Instead, the first night audience gave it a thumbs-up decision. As a London escapist evening out it should fare well, after a limber up at Bristol, of which not enough advantage appears to have been taken. Overall, an odd evening.

The lively train sequence which brings up the curtain gets the show away to a flying start, though most first-nighters were admiring the production too attentively to be able to dig the regional Yank lyrics. After that, for awhile, it has to wrestle with doubt and suspicion.

The lyrics, smoothly and professionally written in narrative form, are still too American for Shaftesbury Ave. consumption. The dialog is too, and lacking in lively wit. The scenery is fairly tawdry. But somehow the sheer rollicking good humor of the cast, the speed of the production and the adaptability of the show gradually prevails, and the audience accepts the several dull moments.

It would be fair to say that the show does precisely what its hero does, pushes in to a community, selling musical dreams by a confidence trick and spreading unexpected happiness. Although there aren't enough first class numbers, those that exist are put over expertly. The number "76 Trombones" is perhaps too familiar here by, thanks to TV, radio and disks, but it is produced with a zing that brings the audience to a state of happy musical acceptance.

"Till There Was You," "My Wife Kiss ..." and "Goodbye Mr. Snow" are also acceptable diversions. "Marian the Librarian" and "Shipoopi" are okay for a least s[illegible]

[illegible] is spirited and does [illegible] some gay tempo in the [illegible] chorus and finale. Van Johnson, a bit [illegible] and perhaps smiling too [illegible] hardly enough of a [illegible] to be convincing, but he has a [illegible] that gets by. Fortunately, there are no great duets or [illegible] and romantic scenes with Marian, the [illegible] prissy librarian.

The latter character uncovers a [illegible] of musicianship in Patricia Lambert, a London girl getting her first break. She sings sweetly, moves gracefully and manages to overcome unbecoming dresses and a few stodgy scenes.

The rest of the performance is adequate except for the impact made by the moppet, played by little Denis Waterman, and by the excellent male quartet, last seen and heard here in "Most Happy Fella."

The production, based on the Broadway original, is flexible, and the orchestral and dancing aides of this show stand up admirably.

Rich.

Il Marito in Collegio
(A Husband in College)

Rome, March 2.

Gino Bramieri-Lina Volonghi presentation of a musical comedy in two acts, by Leo Chiosso and Guglielmo Zucconi; based on a story by Giovannino Guareschi. Features Gino Bramieri, Lina Volonghi, Grazia Maria Spina, Mario Pisu, Renato de Carmine, Marley-Browne Dancers, Paolo Gozlino. Staged by Daniele D'Anza; music, Gigi Chichellero; dances, Gisa Geert; sets, Gianni Villa; costumes, Maurizio Monteverde. Opened Feb. 23, '61, at the Sistina Theatre, Rome; $5 top.

Camillo ..... Gino Bramieri
Donna Leonida ..... Lina Volonghi
Carlotta Wonder ..... Grazia Maria Spina
Gusmaria ..... Mario Pisu
Meditato Filet ..... Renato de Carmine

Critical success has greeted this Yank-styled musical. However, the public appears baffled by the story line "innovations" which are now standard in other lands but seem too unorthodox for lowbrows and too condescending to purist highbrows. Scenically, too, the show has elements of German avant-garde theatre to confuse further the traditionalists who prefer boy-and-girl song-and-dance productions.

"Il Marito in Collegio" (A Husband in College) is fair-to-middling entertainment with many slow spots, some risible performances, and an okay though unmemorable book. With some work, it might be worth a try abroad. The story concerns a girl who must marry someone in order to avoid forfeiture of the family fortune. In desperation, she picks a carpenter who lives and works across the street and, of course, turns out to be a good guy after all.

Gino Bramieri, an agile and funny man despite his bulky frame, is perfectly cast as the ersatz spouse who makes good, while Grazia Maria Spina is cute and acts well as the girl. Lina Volonghi, Mario Pisu, Renato de Carmine provide able support. Gisa Geert has staged delightful dance numbers, including a highlight Charleston to a knight's tourney and a hotel door-to-door chase by all partners pads with a hilarious Mack Sennett flavor.

Sets by Gianni Villa are functionally ingenious and costumes by Maurizio Monteverde stylishly bizarre.

Hach.

The Miracle Worker

London, March 16.

Donald Albery (in association with Curbishley Prentis) presents (in arrangement with Fred Coe) production on a two-act play by William Gibson. Stars Anna Massey. James Hayter features John Robinson. Staged by Peter Coe; decor, Kenneth Mabbutt; John Wakefield. Opened March 9, '61, at the Lyric, London; $2.30 top.

Doctor ..... David Walker
Kate Keller ..... Dilys Hamlett
Captain Keller ..... John Robinson
Helen Keller ..... Joanna Fox
Martha ..... Rosalyn Landor
Percy ..... Gordon Yearwood
Viney ..... Pearl Prescod
James Keller ..... Derek Fowlds
Aunt Ev ..... Ann Walton
Anagnos ..... Peter Barkworth
Annie Sullivan ..... Anna Massey
Aide ..... Rosemary King
Soap ..... Lorraine Hamilton
Brother ..... Nathne Maxwell
Kate's mother ..... Patricia Warner
Aunt ..... Pauline Forsyth
Twins Sullivan ..... James Langley, John Anthony Hall

Judging by the first night applause for "The Miracle Worker" the Broadway success looks a very likely entry for a hefty run here. Once audiences can be persuaded that its offbeat theme is by no means depressing that the play is moving, but not mawkish; sentimental but not solemn. It proves a strong but highly satisfying evening, with two fine performances in key roles.

William Gibson has skillfully and unabashedly pulled out a number of obvious theatrical tricks to keep the audience's emotions bubbling and he succeeds in keeping it moved, shocked and amused at any given moment. The play, which is virtually a documentary, would have seemed incredible had it been fiction and not truth. As it is, it would be a stony-hearted viewer who could fail to be touched by

(Continued on page 76)

Britain's Royal Ballet To Hong Kong in May

Hong Kong, March 21.

The unexpected does occur in show biz—the Royal Ballet Company will be coming here for three performances in May. The unexpected date stems from a casual conversation between Ian Hunter, of the Edinburgh Festival, when he was here several months ago, and a Chinese friend. The latter was told that Britain's Royal Ballet would be going to Japan to take part in the Osaka Festival opening next month.

Would the Royal Ballet perform here? Protracted negotiations, which began then, only recently were finalized with the ballet troupe to be presented here by impresario Harry Odell. The dancers in the Royal Ballet Company are headed by ballerina Margot Fonteyn, Michael Soames, Anya Linden, Brian Shaw, Bryan Ashbridge, Donald Britton and Lynn Seymour.

Show Out of Town

Impulse!

Toronto, March 21.

Alexander N. Cohen (in association with Andre Goulston) presentation of revue in two parts. Staged and lighted by Ralph Allswang, devised and co-produced by Monte Kay. Stars Brendan Behan; features Nina Simone Trio; Olatunji's Drums of Passion company, Maynard Ferguson's Orchestra, Carmen de Lavallade. Opened March 20, '61, at O'Keefe Centre, Toronto; $4.50 top.

Broadway producer Alexander H. Cohen has courageously assembled what he describes as a "New Wave Revue," but whether the combination of the five acts is as great as the sum of the components is debatable. The two-hour tryout here ran two hours, but will be extended to 140 minutes for Broadway with the addition of Oscar Brown Jr.

Nina Simone at the grand is a singing standout. Ditto Maynard Ferguson's orchestra and the dancing of Carmen de Lavallade and her unnamed male partner. Playwright-novelist Brendan Behan lends a new facet to his career with his singing and emceeing and, with the other acts, has no difficulty in getting over.

However, "Impulse" was a hedge-podge opening night, with many walkouts, though that is no reflection on audience response to the stars. The jazz revue, before drapes and well-lighted, opens with Ferguson's orchestra without strings doing "Give Me the Simple Life" and are on and off throughout the evening. They show excellent jazz style in the trumpeting of Ferguson and the many top-flight solos and ensembles.

Outstanding is the singing of Miss Simone in her lament ballads of "Not the Man for Me" and her shrill call of "Rags and Old Iron" in the first act. With fine backing from her instrumental trio, her "Memphis in June" in the second act is standout, plus her swing arrangement of "Old Black Joe."

Also saucy and provocative is the dancing of Miss de Lavallade, choreographed by Bill Butler, in two numbers marked by grace and understanding, plus the jungle beat of Olatunji's "Drums of Passion." Notable in the Ferguson suites are "Hey There" and a synkopat'ed treatment of "Sometimes I Feel Like a Motherless Child."

All the acts are good, but a frenzied finale between white and black jazz as exemplified by the Negro boys and Ferguson's band in a challenge bit scores on ebullience. With a company roundup of male and femme dancers at the finish, it registers with inventive choreography.

The mixture of jazz song and dance is excellent, but there were still those opening night walkouts of the minority who didn't like the "New Wave," though the great majority enjoyed themselves. Behan, with his Irish dialect topicalities, is a highlight as emcee, but the whole evening is a mixture that, individually, might be more suitable for theatreries and may be unsatisfying in a legit theatre.

McStay.

SCHEDULED B'WAY PREEMS

Big Fish, Little Fish, ANTA (3-15-61).
Hamlet, Phoenix (3-16-61).
Fig Leaves, Music Box (3-23-61).
Impulse, Royale (4-1-61).
Happiest Girl, Beck (4-2-61).
Show Boat, City Center (4-12-61).
South Pacific, City Center (4-26-61).
Porgy & Bess, City Center (5-17-61).
Donnybrook, 46th St. (5-18-61).

Inside Stuff—Legit

The N. Y. Daily News' editorial, captioned "Behan Benched," last Thursday (16) was followed by a vox pop which The News published as its lead letter. Chastising the Irish playwright as an "off-and-on-three-bottle boy" and endorsing St. Patrick's Day parade chairman Justice James J. Comerford for sidelining him, the News called Behan "a showoff whose antics, frankly, are threatening to become as boring as Lady Loverley's chatter . . . Jersey City, you can have him."

Behan rebutted,

"I read carefully a review of 'The Hostage' by John Chapman, and despite this, became a friend of his. I was often mentioned in your news columns, and at no time complained, or had cause to complain, of my treatment therein.

"I am also conscious of the fact that in Dublin, or in Fleet Street, editorials are written by university graduates of much learning. They have too much learning for ordinary day-to-deadline newspaper work and not sufficient talent to become professional creative writers, so they write these little essays, that interest or annoy nobody except as in this case. Most of them are dramatists manques with a deep detestation of such creative writers they deem successful.

"Your leader writer says he is bored by my off and on the bottle antics. He is not more bored than I, by newspaper reports of my personal activities, habits or failures. Through no fault of mine, the newspapers began reporting these things. They can stop reporting them whenever they wish and stick to more serious matters such as unemployment.

"The cure is in the hands of The News and every other newspaper that thinks my drinking habits (or non drinking habits) are of interest to the ordinary reader. They can leave my tea or champagne statistics out of the news columns, where they don't belong anyway. See you in Jersey City."

Comment at Edinburgh, Scotland, is that Queen Elizabeth's cousin, the Earl of Harewood, new artistic director of the Edinburgh International Festival, is trying new offbeat tactics to hypo interest in the annual culture feature, which has been moving into a rut. Innovations include a new look for ballet, with a triple bill of Musical Theatre for the Empire instead of classical ballet; signing of Juliette Greco, French existentialist warbler for midnight revue; two Gaelic ceilidhs Scot Highland singsongs; and Benjamin Britten's opera, "A Midsummer Night's Dream," by the Covent Garden Opera Co.

Authored by Wolf Mankowitz and Oscar Lewenstein comes a musical play "Frank the Fifth," described as a savage farce, which has already made an impact on the Continent. It is a bitter satire on banking and big business methods.

Lord Harewood has publicly stated that a "Festival can be fun." He going overboard to register the innovations.

Rehearsals started past Monday (20) on the revised version of "Camelot," the Alan Jay Lerner and Frederick Loewe musical currently in its 16th week at the Majestic Theatre, N. Y. The cuts include one scene, with the "Let Me Take You to the Fair" number, reducing the first act by seven minutes, plus three minutes in the second act. Despite the 10-minute slice in the total running time, the show will still ring up at 8:25, but will ring down earlier.

Moss Hart, who had to relinquish the staging of the production because of a heart attack during the Toronto break-in engagement, recently returned from the Coast. Alan Jay Lerner, who wrote the book and lyrics for the musical, is in town and working with Hart, but composer Frederick Loewe is away on vacation. All three are partnered in the production.

Staging of Agatha Christie's "10 Little Indians" as a high school senior class play drew a scathing "letter to the editor" article in a Honolulu newspaper. Signed "Shocked Parents," the published letter criticized choice of a vehicle in which "for two and one half hours the audience watched a fiend kill off, one by one, victims of his maniacal plot."

Strawhat producer Charlotte Harmon's upcoming Dial book (May), "How To Break Into The Theatre," is a primer on every phase of legit plus an index of agents, producers, tv packagers et al. Russell Crouse, Howard Bay, Julie Harris, Jerome Robbins are among the authorities in their respective branches of the theatre.

Legit Bits

Continued from page 70

Martin in "Under the Yum Yum Tree," at the Henry Miller Theatre, N. Y. She has been Martin's standby since the comedy opened last fall.

Hilda Simms is production assistant to Billy Baxter and Edward Friedman, producers "Mandingo," the drama due April 27 at the Cort Theatre, N. Y.

"Young Abe Lincoln" will be the first presentation of The Little Golden Theatre, a professional children's theatre group produced by Arthur Shimkin, head of Little Golden Records. The musical drama with book by Richard N. Bernstein and John Allen, lyrics by Joan Javits, music by Victor Ziskin and additional dialogue and lyrics by Arnold Sundgaard, is the first of a series planned for national tours and is proposed for a Broadway Easter week showing.

Frederick Brisson, Roger L. Stevens and Gilbert Miller will present Harold Pinter's London drama, "The Caretaker," on Broadway in the fall under Donald McWhinnie's direction.

Clifford Odets' "The Country Girl" is being presented by Equity Library Theatre through Sunday (26), at the Lenox Hill Playhouse, N. Y.

Tom Wilson has succeeded John Irving in "Mousetrap," at the off-Broadway Greenwich Mews Theatre.

Luigi Pirandello's "Giants of the Mountain" will be given a dramatic reading by members of the Living Theatre Company at the Theatre, April 3 and 10, under the auspices of the Living Theatre and the Pirandello Society.

James Hammerstein will direct the Jack Lenny and Nat Debin production of Rodgers and Hammerstein's "Flower Drug Song," slated to tour the strawhats this summer.

Richard Barr and Clinton Wilder have scheduled their off-Broadway production of Jack Richardson's "Gallows Humor," formerly titled "Galgenhumor," for April 18 at the Gramercy Arts Theatre.

Herbert Swope Jr. and Joel Schenker will co-produce "Step on a Crack," by Bernard Evslin, on Broadway next fall. Swope will direct.

John Gielgud, who staged last week's "Big Fish, Little Fish," planed back to London last Monday (19) to direct the H. M. Tennent production of "Dazzling Prospect," a comedy by John Perry and M. J. Farrell, with Margaret Rutherford as star.

Sally Ann Howes will appear in "Kwamina" on Broadway.

Douglas Watson will play Orsino this summer in "Twelfth Night" at the American Shakespeare Festival, Stratford, Conn.

Constance Bennett and Hugh Marlowe, who have been costarring in "Marriage-Go-Round" in stock, will play the same comedy for two weeks beginning May 5 at the Casa Manana Theatre, Ft. Worth.

Donald Oenslager will design the scenery for the Robert E. Griffith and Harold S. Prince production of "Kuprin."

"We Love Adventure," a children's show based on Hans Christian Anderson's story, "The Emperor's New Clothes," is being presented for two matinees, at 1 and 3 p.m., Saturdays at Judson Hall, N. Y.

B'way Spotty; 'Mary' Sellout $40,589, 'Devil's' $35,226, 'Fish' $19,937 in 6, 'Hamlet' $17,450, 'Oscar' $5,463 in 7

Broadway was uneven last week, but despite the improvement of several shows the overall condition was still downbeat. Of 31 productions on tap, only one was a sellout. That was "Mary, Mary," which had its take reduced by theatre party commissions. Nine other entries had cut-rate tickets in circulation.

Receipts for 15 productions varied less than $1,000 from the previous week. There were no closings last week.

Estimates for Last Week

Keys: C (Comedy), D (Drama), CD (Comedy-Drama), R (Revue), MC (Musical-Comedy), MD (Musical-Drama), O (Opera), OP (Operetta), Rep (Repertory), DR (Dramatic Reading).

Other parenthetic designations refer, respectively, to weeks played, number of performances through last Saturday, top prices (where two prices are given, the higher is for Friday-Saturday nights and the lower for weeknights), number of seats, capacity gross and stars. Price includes 10% Federal and 5% City tax, but grosses are net; i.e., exclusive of taxes.

Advise and Consent, Cort (D) (18th wk; 140 p) ($7.50; 1,155; $40,500) (Ed Begley, Richard Kiley, Chester Morris, Henry Jones, Kevin McCarthy). Previous week, $29,003. Moves April 17 to the Royale.

Last week, $25,257.

All The Way Home, Belasco (D) (16th wk; 125 p) ($6.90-$7.50; 997; $38,500). Previous week, $16,462 with twofers.

Last week, $16,436 with twofers.

Becket, Royale (D) (24th wk; 185 p) ($6.90-$7.50; 1,040; $45,507) (Laurence Olivier, Anthony Quinn). Previous week, $35,170 with twofers. Exits next Saturday (25) for a brief tour.

Last week, $36,473 with twofers.

Best Man, Morosco (D) (50th wk; 392 p) ($6.90-$7.50; 999; $41,000) (Lee Tracy, Frank Lovejoy), previous week, $17,100.

Last week, $15,225.

Big Fish, Little Fish, ANTA (CD) (1st wk; 5 p) ($6.90-$7.50; 1,185; $49,178) (Jason Robards, Jr., Hume Cronyn).

Opened last Wednesday night (15) to three favorable reviews (Chapman, News; McClain, Journal-American; Watts, Post), two mixed (Kerr, Herald Tribune; Taubman, Times) and two unfavorable (Aston, World-Telegram; Coleman, Mirror).

Last week, $19,937 for five performances and one preview.

Bye Bye Birdie, Shubert (MC) (48th wk; 376 p) ($8.60-$9.40; 1,453; $64,000). Previous week, $38,280.

Last week, $40,506.

Camelot, Majestic (MC) (15th wk; 121 p) ($9.40; 1,626; $84,000) (Richard Burton, Julie Andrews). Previous week, $81,509.

Last week, $80,635.

Come Blow Your Horn, Atkinson (C) (4th wk; 29 p) ($6.90-$7.50; 1,090; $43,522). Previous week, $20,314.

Last week, $21,562.

Critic's Choice, Barrymore (C) (14th wk; 109 p) ($6.50-$7.50; 1,067; $40,000) (Henry Fonda). Previous week, $24,501.

Last week, $27,823.

Devil's Advocate, Rose (D) (2d wk; 12 p) ($6.90-$7.50; 1,162; $46,045) (Leo Genn, Sam Levene, Edward Mulhore). Previous week, $23,832 for four performances and one preview.

Last week, $35,226.

Do Re Mi, St. James (MC) (12th wk; 96 p) ($8.60-$9.40; 1,615; $69,500) (Phil Silvers). Previous week, $67,501.

Last week, $67,943.

Evening With Mike Nichols and Elaine May, Golden (R) (23d wk; 187 p) ($6.90-$7.50; 773; $30,439). Previous week, $23,761.

Last week, $23,704.

Fiorello, Broadhurst (MC) (68th wk; 540 p) ($8.35-$9.40; 1,182; $58,194). Previous week, $36,198.

Last week, $36,981.

Gypsy, Imperial (MC) (88th wk; 694 p) ($8.60-$9.40; 1,428; $64,500) (Ethel Merman). Previous week, $42,693 with twofers. Exits next Saturday (25) to tour.

Last week, $43,146 with twofers.

Importance of Being Oscar, Lyceum (one-man) (1st wk; 7 p) ($5.65; 995; $26,500) (Michael MacLiammoir).

Opened limited four-week run last Tuesday night (14) to unanimous endorsement (Aston, World-Telegram; Chapman, News; Coleman, Mirror; Kerr, Herald Tribune; McClain Journal-American; Taubman, Times; Watts, Post).

Last week, $5,463 for seven performances.

Irma La Douce, Plymouth (MC) (25th wk; 196 p) ($8.60; 999; $48,250) (Elizabeth Seal, Keith Michell). Previous week, $38,052.

Last week, $38,603.

Mary, Mary, Hayes (C) (2d wk; 13 p) ($6.90-$7.50; 1,139; $43,530) (Barbara Bel Geddes, Barry Nelson, Michael Rennie). Previous week, $34,063 for five performances and two previews.

Last week, $40,589 with parties.

Miracle Worker, Playhouse (D) (73d wk; 580 p) ($6.90-$7.50; 994; $36,500) (Suzanne Pleshette, Patty Duke). Previous week, $18,509.

Last week, $16,655.

Music Man, Broadway (MC) (169th wk; 1,343 p) ($8.05; 1,900; $73,850). Previous week, $29,730 with twofers.

Last week, $30,205 with twofers. Closes April 15.

My Fair Lady, Hellinger (MC) (261st wk; 2,079 p) ($8.05; 1,551; $69,500) (Michael Allinson, Margot Moser). Previous week, $41,254 with discount tickets.

Last week, $47,819 with discount tickets.

Rhinoceros, Longacre (CD) (10th wk; 80 p) ($6.90; 1,101; $37,000) (Eli Wallach, Zero Mostel). Previous week, $29,995 with Play of the Month Guild patronage.

Last week, $25,532.

Show Girl, O'Neill (R) (10th wk; 76 p) ($6.90-$7.50; 1,076; $45,052) (Carol Channing). Previous week, $22,386.

Last week, $23,994.

Sound of Music, Lunt-Fontanne (MD) (66th wk; 524 p) ($9.60; 1,407; $75,000) (Mary Martin). Previous week, $73,007.

Last week, $73,263.

Taste of Honey, Booth (D) (24th wk; 191 p) ($6.90; 807; $30,500) (Joan Plowright, Angela Lansbury). Previous week, $14,978.

Last week, $15,861.

Tenderloin, 46th St. (MC) (22d wk; 176 p) ($8.60-$9.60; 1,342; $65,331) (Maurice Evans). Previous week, $35,848 with twofers.

Last week, $35,658 with twofers.

Tenth Man, Ambassador (D) (71st wk; 559 p) ($6.90-$7.50; 1,155; $41,562). Previous week, $14,214 with twofers.

Last week, $14,617 with twofers.

13 Daughters, 54th St. (MC) (3d wk; 20 p) ($8.60-$9.40; 1,434; $60,172) (Don Ameche). Previous week, $22,164.

Last week, $21,191.

Toys in the Attic, Hudson (D) (55th wk; 432 p) ($6.90-$7.50; 1,065; $39,600) (Maureen Stapleton, Patricia Jessel, Anne Revere, Robert Loggia). Previous week, $12,311 with twofers.

Last week, $12,656 with twofers. Closes April 8.

Under the Yum Yum Tree, Miller's (C) (18th wk; 141 p) ($6.90-$7.50; 912; $30,486). Previous week $12,304 with twofers. Has to vacate house April 15.

Last week, $13,521 with twofers.

Unsinkable Molly Brown, Winter Garden (MC) (20th wk; 156 p) ($8.60-$9.40; 1,404; $68,000). Previous week, $51,378.

Last week, $54,579.

Wildcat, Alvin (MC) (12th wk; 91 p) ($8.60-9.40; 1,453; $65,000) (Lucille Ball). Previous week, $61,431.

Last week, $61,520. Lays off next week.

Miscellaneous

Hamlet, Phoenix (D) (1st wk; 6 p) ($4.60; 1,150; $29,882).

Opened last Thursday (16) to five favorable notices (Aston, World-Telegram; Davis, News; McClain, Journal - American; Taubman, Times; Watts, Post) and two unfavorable (Coleman, Mirror; Kerr, Herald Tribune).

Last week, $17,450 for six performances and two previews.

Touring Shows

(March 19-April 2)

Andersonville Trial — Arcadia High School, Phoenix (20); Temple of Music & Art, Tucson (22); Liberty Hall, El Paso (23-24); Eton High School, Odessa (25); Municipal, Lubbock (26); Municipal, Amarillo (27); Municipal, San Angelo (28); City Aud., Beaumont (30); Will Rogers, Ft. Worth (31-1).

Carnival (tryout)—National, Wash. (20-25); Forrest, Philly (27-1).

Far Country (tryout)—Wilbur, Boston (20-25, moves to N.Y.).

Fiorello (2d Co.)—Shubert, Cincy (20-25); Palace, Youngstown (27-28); Ohio Theatre, Mansfield (30); Municipal, Dayton (31-1).

Five Finger Exercise—Geary, S.F. (20-1).

Flower Drum Song—Shubert, Chi (20-1).

Gypsy—Auditorium, Rochester (29-1).

Happiest Girl in the World (tryout)—Shubert, Philly (20-25), moves to N.Y.).

Impulse (tryout)—O'Keefe, Toronto (20-25, moves to N.Y.).

Hostage—Civic, Chi (20-1).

J.B.—Florida State U., Tallahasee (20-21); Marina Aud., Panama City, Fla. (22); Temple, Birmingham (23-24); Lanier High School, Montgomery (25); Grambling College, Ruston, La. (27-28); City Aud., Jackson, Miss. (29); Municipal Aud., Savannah (31); Peabody, Daytona Beach (1).

La Plume de Ma Tante—Riviera Hotel, Las Vegas (19-2).

Majority of One—Nixon, Pitt. (20-25); National, Wash. (27-1).

Mark Twain Tonight—Carney Hall Aud., Pittsburgh, Kan. (20); Evans Aud., San Marcos Tex. (22); Music Hall, Houston (25).

Music Man (2d Co.)—Ford's, Balto (20-25); Nixon, Pitt. (27-1).

My Fair Lady (2d Co.)—Shubert, Boston (20-1).

Once Upon a Mattress (bus-and-truck)—Rivoli, Toledo (21-22); Sexton High School, Lansing (23); Morris Muripal, South Bend (24-25); O'Keefe, Toronto (27-1).

Pleasure of His Company—Loew's Poli, Worcester (20); Capitol, New London, Conn. (21); Bushnell Aud., Hartford (22); Shubert, New Haven (23-25, closes).

Raisin in the Sun—Blackstone, Chi (20-1).

Sound of Music (2d Co.)—Riviera, Det. (20-1).

Off-Broadway Shows

(Figures denote opening dates)

After Angels, W. 3rd St. (2-10-61).
American Dream, York (1-24-61)
Balcony, Circle in Square (3-3-60).
Call Me, 1 Sheridan Sq. (1-31-61).
Connection, Living Th're (Rep) (7-15-59)
Cry of Raindrop, St. Marks (5-7-61).
Death of Bessie, York (3-1-61).
Double Entry, Martinique (2-20-61).
Elsa Lanchester, 41st St. (2-4-61).
Fantasticks, Sullivan St. (5-3-60)
Feast of Panthers, E. 74th St. (3-20-61).
4-1-7 & Cage, Theatre Today (3-4-61).
Hedda Gabler, 4th St. (11-9-60).
Jungle Cities, Living (Rep) (12-20-60).
King Dark Chamber, Jan Hus (2-9-61).
Krapp's & Zoo, Cricket (1-14-60).
Ladies Night, Eleanor Gould (3-21-61).
Leave It to Jane, Sheridan Sq. (2-2-59).
Merry Sunshine, Orpheum (11-18-59).
Moon in River, East End (2-6-61).
Mousetrap, Mews (11-3-60).
O, Oysters, Village Gate (1-30-61).
Reels, Mayfair (3-6-61).
Stewed Prunes, Showplace (12-14-60).
Theatre Chance, Living Th're (6-22-60)
Threepenny Opera, de Lys (9-20-55)
Walk-up, Provincetown (2-23-61).
Worm, Horseradish, Maidman (3-13-61).

SCHEDULED OPENINGS

Square & Old Tune, Royal (3-23-61).
What A Killing, Folksbeine (3-27-61).
Under Milk Wood, Circle (3-29-61).
Only Nonsense, E. 74th St. (4-3-61).
Painted Days, Marquee (4-6-61).
Magnificent Hugo, Cornelius (4-6-61).
Hobo, Players (4-10-61).
Smiling Boy, Cherry Lane (4-11-61).
[illegible], E. 74th St. (4-17-61).
Evenings With Chekhov, Key (4-17-61).
Gallows Humor, Gramercy Arts (4-18-61).

CLOSED

Two for Fun, Madison Ave. (2-13-61); closed Sunday (19) after 35 performances.

LONDON SHOWS

(Figures denote opening dates)

Amorous Prawn, Piccadilly (12-8-59).
And Another Thing, Fortune (10-6-60).
Bargain, St. Martin's (1-19-61).
Billy Liar, Cambridge (9-13-60).
Bride Comes Back, Vaudeville (11-25-60).
Caretaker, Duchess (4-27-60).
Connection, Duke York (2-22-61).
Fairy Tales, Comedy (1-24-61).
Fings Ain't, Garrick (2-11-60).
Flower Drum Song, Palace (3-24-60).
Gazebo, Savoy (3-29-60).
Hostage, Lyric Ham. (2-13-61).
Irma La Douce, Lyric (7-17-58).
J.B., Phoenix (3-23-61).
John Borkman, Mermaid (2-16-61).
King Kong, Princes (2-23-61).
Lady From the Sea, Oven's (3-15-61).
Luisillo Dancers, Coliseum (3-6-61).
Man All Seasons, Globe (7-1-60).
Miracle Worker, Royalty (3-9-61).
Mousetrap (Ambassadors (11-25-52).
Music Man, Adelphi (3-16-61).
My Fair Lady, Drury Lane (4-30-58).
Oliver, New (6-30-60).
Repertory, Aldywich (12-15-60).
Ross, Haymarket (5-12-60).
Settled Out Court, Strand (10-19-60).
Simple Spymen, Whitehall (3-19-58).
Suzie Wong, Prince Wales (11-7-59).
Three, Criterion (2-13-61).
Watch It Sailor, Apollo (2-24-60).
West Side Story, Maiesty's (12-12-58).
You in Your Small Corner, Arts (3-21-61).
Young in Heart, Vic. Pal. (12-21-60).

SCHEDULED OPENINGS

Jacques, Royal Court (3-22-61).
Glory Be, Royal, Stratford, E. (4-3-61).
One Over Eight, Duke of York's (4-5-61).
The Rehearsal, Globe (4-6-61).
On the Brighter Side, Phoenix (4-12-61).
Sound of Music, Palace (5-18-61).

CLOSED

Changeling, R. Court (2-21-61); closed Sat. (25) after 30 performances.
Chin-Chin, Wyndham's (11-3-60); closed Sat. (25) after 164 performances.
Cinderella, Adelphi (12-23-60); closed Sat. (18) after 101 performances.
Magic Lantern, Saville (2-6-61); closed Sat. (25) after 84 performances.
Stop It Whoever, Arts (2-15-61); closed Sat. (25) after 37 performances.

'Carnival' SRO $51,910 in D. C. Date, 'Fiorello' $75,506 for Split Session, 'Sun' $28,145, 'Hostage' $18,094, Chi

Business on the road ranged from satisfactory to smash for most shows last week. Holding as top-grosser was "Sound of Music," in its third Detroit stanza. "Fiorello" trailed with a nifty split-week tally and "Majority of One" registered the high straight-play gross in Cleveland.

The "Once Upon a Mattress" company, which had been playing major cities, folded in Boston last Saturday (18) and the bus-and-truck edition of "Pleasure of His Company" closes next Saturday (25).

Estimates for Last Week

Parenthetic designations for out-of-town shows are the same as for Broadway, except that hyphenated T with show classification indicates tryout and RS indicates road show. Also, prices on touring shows include 10% Federal Tax and local tax, if any, but as on Broadway grosses are net: i.e., exclusive of taxes. Engagements are for single week unless otherwise noted.

BALTIMORE

Music Man, Ford's (MC-RS) (1st wk) ($7; 1,819; $65,000). Previous week, $60,016, Mosque, Richmond.

Last week, $57,757 with Theatre Guild-American Theatre Society subscription.

BOSTON

Far Country, Wilbur (D-T) (1st wk) ($4.95-$5.50; 1,241; $33,699) (Kim Stanley). Previous week, $12,766 for five performances, Shubert, New Haven.

Opened here March 13 to four favorable reviews (Doyle, American; Durgin, Globe; Hughes, Herald; Maloney, Traveler), one yes-no (Norton, Record) and one unfavorable (Maddocks, Monitor).

Last week, $16,124.

My Fair Lady, Shubert (MC-RS) (11th wk) ($6.50-$7; 1,717; $67,355) (Michael Evans, Caroline Dixon). Previous week, $60,277.

Last week., $60,574.

Once Upon a Mattress (Hurok), Colonial (MC-RS) (3d wk) ($6.50-$7.50; 1,685; $60,000) (Dody Goodman, Buster Keaton). Previous week, $46,132 with Show of the Month Club patronage. Ended tour here last Saturday night (18).

Last week, $28,311.

CHICAGO

Flower Drum Song, Shubert (MC-RS) (18th wk) ($5.50-$6.60; 2,100; $67,613). Previous week, $40,550.

Last week, $43,297. Exits April 15.

Hostage, Civic (CD-RS) (4th wk) ($5.50-$6.50; 904; $30,500). Previous week, $18,869.

Last week, $18,094.

Raisin in the Sun, Blackstone (D-RS) (3d wk) ($4.95-$5.50; 1,447; $42,500) (Claudia McNeil). Previous week, $24,476.

Last week, $28,145.

CLEVELAND

Majority of One, Hanna (C-RS) (2d wk) ($5; 1,515; $38,000) (Gertrude Berg, Cedric Hardwicke). Previous week, $32,140 with TG-ATS Society subscription.

Last week, $34,340 with TG-ATS subscription.

DETROIT

Sound of Music, Riviera (MD-RS) (3d wk) ($5-$6.50; 2,700; $100,000) (Florence Henderson). Previous week, $81,375 with TG-ATS subscription.

Last week, $83,485 with TG-ATS subscription.

PHILADELPHIA

Happiest Girl in the World, Shubert (MC-T) (3d wk) ($6-$7.50; 1,876; $60,000) (Cyril Ritchard). Previous week, $41,520.

Last week, almost $46,000.

SAN FRANCISCO

Five Finger Exercise, Curran (D-RS) (1st wk) ($5.40-$5.95; 1,758; $50,000) (Jessica Tandy, Roland Culver). Previous week, $26,577, Biltmore, Los Angeles.

Opened here March 13 to unanimous endorsement (Eichelbaum, Examiner; Knickerbocker, Chronicle; Speegle, News-Call Bulletin).

Last week, $27,619 with TG-ATS subscription.

WASHINGTON

Carnival, National (MC-T) (2d wk) ($4.95-$6.60; 1,563; $51,882) (Anna Maria Alberghetti). Previous week, $26,155 for four performances with TG-ATS subscription.

Last week, sellout $51,910 with TG-ATS subscription.

SPLIT WEEKS

Andersonville Trial (D-RS) (Brian Donlevy, Martin Brooks). Previous week, $26,402, six-performance split.

Last week, $27,953 for five performances with Broadway Theatre League subscription: Strand, Modesto, Monday (13), one, $5,185; Civic, San Jose, Tuesday (14), one, $5,865; Harvey, Bakersfield, Wednesday (15), one, $5,221; Memorial, Sacramento, Thursday-Friday (16-17), $11,682.

Fiorello (MC-RS). Previous week, $54,963, seven-performance split

Last week, $75,506 for eight BTL performances: Strand, Albany, Monday (13), one, $13,357; Capitol, Binghamton, Tuesday (14), one, $9,803; Lafayette, Buffalo, Wednesday (15), two, $22,346; Auditorium, Rochester, Thursday-Saturday (16-18), four, $30,000.

J.B. (D-RS) (John Carradine, Shepperd Strudwick, Frederic Worlock). Previous week, $24,510, seven-performance split.

Last week, $27,633 for seven performances: Memorial, Louisville, Monday-Wednesday (13-15), four, $13,388 with TG-ATS subscription; High School, Huntsville, Thursday (16), one BTL, $5,360; U. of Alabama, Tuscaloosa, Friday (17), one BTL, $4,615; City Auditorium, Pensacola, Saturday (18), one BTL, $4,270.

Once Upon a Mattress (bus-and-truck) (MC-RS) (Imogene Coca, Edward Everet Horton, King Donovan). Previous week, $31,221, five-performance split.

Last week, $38,305 for six performances: Loew's, Evansville, Monday (13), one BTL, $6,711; Orpheum, Springfield, Ill. Tuesday (14), one BTL, $4,783; Orpheum, Davenport, Wednesday (15), one BTL, $9,043; Paramount, Waterloo, Thursday (16), one BTL, $6,430; Coronado, Rockford, Ill., Friday (17), one $5,385; Shrine Mosque, Peoria, Saturday (18), one BTL, $5,953.

Pleasure of His Company (C-RS) (Joan Bennett, Donald Cook). Previous week, $24,002, six-performance split.

Last week, $30,540 for seven performances: Loew's, Canton, O., Monday (13), one BTL, $4,554; Veterans Memorial, Columbus, Tuesday (14), one, $2,669; Paramount, Anderson, Ind., Wednesday (15), two BTL, $7,859; Keith-Albee, Huntington, Thursday (16), one BTL, $3,836; Municipal, Charleston, Friday (17), one BTL, $7,949; Syria Mosque, Pittsburgh, Saturday (18), one, $3,673.

Menotti's 'Luther' Play For Spoletto Irritates His Italian Coin Source

Rome, March 21.

Gian-Carlo Menotti in New York and the censoring authorities here have been having some burning communications about the Italian-American composer-turned-impresario's wish to world-premiere John Osborne's new British play, "Luther," at this summer's Festival of Two Worlds at Spoleto.

Comment here is that Menotti is "incredibly naive" to imagine Catholic Italy would welcome or even permit a play about the chief architect of Protestantism. "Does Menotti fancy himself a law unto himself, expecting Italian government subsidy for his festival while glorifying Luther in a play where the Pope is a character and not too attractive a one?" Odds are that Italy will flatly veto Menotti's "Luther" choice.

Among the natives and hangers-on at Spoleto, which has been put on the map the past four years by the arts festival, Menotti is known as "The Duke of Spoleto."

CASTING NEWS

Following are available parts in upcoming Broadway, off-Broadway, and touring shows, as well as ballet, films, industrial and television shows. All information has been obtained directly by the VARIETY Casting Department by telephone calls, and has been rechecked as of noon yesterday (Tues.).

The available roles will be repeated weekly until filled, and additions to the list will be made only when information is secured from responsible parties. The intention is to service performers with leads provided by the managements of the shows involved rather than to run a wild goose marathon. This information is published without charge.

In addition to the available parts listed, the tabulation includes productions announced for later this season, but, for which, the managements, as yet, aren't holding open casting calls. Parenthetical designations are as follows: (C) Comedy, (D) Drama, (MC) Musical Comedy, (MD) Musical Drama, (R) Revue, (Rep) Repertory, (DR) Dramatic Reading.

Legit

BROADWAY

"All The Best People" (C). Producers, Joel Spector & Buff Cobb (147 W. 57th St., N.Y.; PL 7-2691). Available parts: naive femme, 21; male, 30-35; middleaged femme; executive male, 50-60; callous male, 30-35. Mail photos and resumes, c o above address.

David Merrick, 246 W. 44th St., N. Y.; LO 3-7520. Accepting photos and resumes of sopranos, baritones, tenors and boys and girls, 7-14, who sing and dance, for casting file. Mail material, c o Michael Shurtleff, above address. Indicate voice range.

"Far Country" (D). Producers, Roger L. Stevens & Joel Schenker (745 Fifth Ave., N. Y.; PL 1-1290). Part available for understudy for Steven Hill. For appointment call Terry Faye, PL 7-5100.

"Get it Up" (MC). Producer, Charles Curran (c o Lambs Club, 130 W. 44th St., N.Y.; JU 2-1515). Available parts: six femme singers, 20-23, must double with specialty; ballroom dance team, 20-23; young comedienne. Accepting photos and resumes, c o above address. Don't phone. Applicants must have intimate night club experience.

"Jennie" (MD). Producer, Newburge-Porter Prods. (148 W. 24th St., N.Y.; WA 9-6836). Available parts: male lead, 30's, tall; femme, 20, ethereal, small, lovely, must sing well; character woman, 30; barmaid, 40's, plump; character man, 40; Irish man, 50's. Mail photos and resumes, through agents only, above address.

"Kuprin" (D). Producers, Robert E. Griffith & Harold S. Prince (630 Fifth Ave., N.Y.; JU 2-0600). Part available for Russian femme, 25-30, attractive, strong. Casting director Judy Abbott is seeing applicants at 9:30 a.m.-12:30 p.m. daily, above address.

"Love A La Carte" (MC). Producer, Arthur Klein (St. James Theatre Bldg., 246 W. 44th St., N. Y.; LO 5-6376). Available parts: girl, 22; leading man, 30; second leading man, 30; character comedienne, 30. Accepting photos and resumes, above address.

"Medium Rare" (R). Producer, Robert Weiner (146 CPW, N.Y.; SU 7-1914). Parts available for male and femme revue types. Apply through agent or mail photos and resumes, c o above address.

"Nine Millionth Star" (D). Producers, Michael Charnee & Geoffrey F. Rudaw (340 E. 66th St., N. Y.; RE 4-1478). Available parts: girl, 14, boy, 16. Mail photos and resumes, c o above.

"Sound of Music" (MD). Producer: Richard Rodgers & Oscar Hammerstein 2d (488 Madison Ave., N. Y.; casting director, Eddie Blum. Auditions for possible future replacements for girls, 7-16, and boys, 11-14 all with trained voices, characters. Mail photos and resumes to above address.

"Talent '61" (R). Producer, John Effrat (c o Broadway Show League, 1619 Broadway, N.Y., suite 810; 1619 Broadway, N.Y., suite 810). Auditions tomorrow (Thurs.), Friday (24) and March 30, 31, at the Hotel Astor (Broadway & 44th St., N. Y.). The annual professional talent showcase will be presented April 25 with rehearsals beginning April 6. Do not phone the hotel.

OFF-BROADWAY

"Gallows Man" and "Mr. Sleeman Is Coming" (D). Producers, Elizabeth Raynor & Virginia Snow (c o Snow-Ray Prods., 246 W. 44th St., N. Y.). Available parts: character woman, over 40; boy, 17-20 Scandinavian appearance; girl, 16-19, Scandinavian appearance. Mail photos and resumes c o above address.

"I Want You" (MC). Producers, Theodore J. Flicker & Joseph Crayhon (c o The Premise, 154 Bleecker St., N.Y.; LF 3-5020). Available parts: Irish-American girl, 18, sexy but sweet; young leading man, thin; male song and dance team, wise crackers; man, huge, dumb, Irish cop; man, short, fat, funny; man tall, thin, evil; six beautiful girls; several low comedians. All applicants must sing and dance. Mail photos and resumes, above address.

"It Should Happen To a Dog" (C). Producer, James J. Cordes (600 Tenth Ave., N. Y.; JU 2-5999). Available parts: five character men to play older Jewish types with authentic accents. Mail photos and resumes c o above address.

"King of the Dark Chamber" (D). Producers, Van Joyce & Harold Leventhal, in association with Patricia Newhall (c o Jan Hus House, 351 E. 74th St., N. Y.; RE 4-4605). Available parts: character man, 30 heavyset, 6 feet tall, comic; femme, 30, serene majestic; femme, 20-25, cute comedienne. For interview appointment, call Ken Costigan, 4-7 p.m., at above number.

"Leave It To Jane" (MC). Producers, Joseph Berhu & Peter Katz (c o Sheridan Square Theatre, Seventh Ave. & Fourth St., N.Y.; CH 2-9609). Auditions for male and femme singers as replacements, every Thursday at 6 p.m., above address.

"Meet Peter Grant" (MD). Producer, Lee Bergman (251 W. 74th St., N. Y.; TR 3-7844). Available parts: baritone, 18-25, all-American type; ingenue, lyric soprano; character woman, 40-50, contralto; character girl, 25-40, comic, robust, contralto; character man, 18-25, immature, sad sack, high baritone or tenor; character man, 20-40, big, bass-baritone; femme, 20-35, sexy, pop contralto and sultry blues singer; bass, 18-30, burly villian; male and femme chorus singers and dancers. All applicants must dance. Auditions today (Wed.), at 10 a.m.-2 p.m. and 7-10 p.m., at Malin Studios (13 W. 49th St., N. Y.). Bring photo, resume and music.

OUT OF TOWN

"Flower Drum Song" (MC). Producers, Rodgers & Hammerstein (488 Madison Ave., N. Y.; MU 8-3640). Part available for young male singer dancer to understudy Wang San. Contract Edward Blum, above address.

"Vintage '61" (R). Producer, Zev Buffman (1605 N. Ivar Ave., Hollywood 28, Calif.; HO 4-7121). Parts available for six male and six femme singer-dancer-actors under 30. Mail photos and resumes, above address.

STOCK

Lee Guber Music Tents. Producer, Lee Guber (140 W. 58th St., N. Y.; LT 1-3250). Open call for singers today (Wed.), men at 11 a.m. and women at 2 p.m.; open call for dancers tomorrow (Thurs.), same schedule as above, both calls at Nola Studios (113 W. 57th St., N. Y.).

AUGUSTA, MICH.

Barn Theatre. Producer-director, Jack Ragotzy (200 E. 36th St., N. Y.; MU 6-0043). Available parts: leading man; ingenue lead; character woman with second woman range; male and femme musical performers who can double in dramatic roles for part of the season. Mail photos and resumes, above address.

BEVERLY, MASS.

North Shore Music Theatre. Managing director, Stephan Slane (27 W. 55th St., N. Y.). Parts available for male and femme Equity musical performers, principals and chorus, and apprentices. Mail photos and resumes, above address. Auditions for Equity singers, April 4: men, at 12 noon and girls, at 2 p.m.; open call singers, April 5: girls, at 3:30 p.m. and men, at 5 p.m., all at Pilgrim Production Studios (231 W. 54th St., N. Y.).

BRADDOCK HEIGHTS, MD.

Mountain Theatre. Producer, William O. Brining (4545 Connecticut Ave. NW, Washington, D.C.; EM 3-5051). Parts available for five male and six femme Equity dramatic performers and several non-paid apprentices. Mail photos and resumes, above address. Season opens June 20.

BRUNSWICK, ME.

Brunswick Summer Playhouse. Producer, Victoria Crandall (162 W. 54th St., N.Y.). Parts available for Equity musical performers, principals, solo dancers, chorus and apprentices. Mail photos and resumes, c o Don Wortman (60 W. 46th St., N. Y.). The 10-week season opens June 26.

CHICAGO

Chicago Music Theatre and Chicago Tenthouse Theatre. Producer, Herb Rogers (45 East End Ave., N. Y.; RE 4-5446). Parts available for male and femme musical principals. Mail photos and resumes to above address. New York auditions will be held April 3-14, through agents only.

CORNING, N. Y.

Corning Summer Theatre. Producers, Dorothy Chernuck & Omar K. Lerman (c o Corning Theatre, Houghton Park, Box 51, Corning, N. Y.; 6-4636). Parts available for male and femme actors, singers and dancers. Accepting photos and resumes c o Richard Flusser (550 Fifth Ave., N. Y.) for musical performers and above address for dramatic actors. Ten-week season begins June 26.

EPHRATA, PA.

Legion Star Playhouse. Producer-director, John Cameron (P.O. Box 334, Ephrata, Pa.). Parts available for five male and five femme Equity dramatic performers and apprentices. Mail photos and resumes, above address. N. Y. auditions will be held April 20-21, by appointment only.

FORT WORTH

Casa Manana Musicals Inc. Managing director, Michael Pollock (545 Fifth Ave., N.Y.; Rm. 1015). Parts available for male and femme musical and dramatic stock performers for the Ft. Worth theatre, opening April 19. Mail photos and resumes, c o above address.

FRAMINGHAM, MASS.

Carousel Theatre. Producer, Stanton Shifman (c o Lenny-Debin Agency, 140 W. 58th St., N.Y.; JU 2-0270). Same audition schedule as for Wallingford (see above).

HINSDALE, ILL.

Salt Creek Playhouse. Producer, Tom Blank (437 S. Jackson St., Chicago). Seeking male and femme featured performers and name stars. Mail photos and resumes c o above address. Season runs June 4-Labor Day, at the former Hinsdale Summer Theatre.

HYANNIS, MASS.

Cape Cod Melody Tent. Managing Director, David Holtzman (c o King Edward Hotel, 120 W. 44th St., N.Y.; JU 2-2503). Auditions for Equity singers, April 3, girls at 11 a.m.-1 p.m. and boys at 2-4 p.m.; open call singers, April 4, same schedule as above, all at Variety Arts Studio (225 W. 46th St., N. Y.).

NORTHPORT, L.I.

Red Barn Theatre. Producer, William Edans (c o Theatre, Northport, L.I., N.Y.; area code 516, AN 1-5900). Parts available for male and femme musical and dramatic performers, especially character people. Mail photos and resumes c o above address. Season runs May 24-Sept. 24.

PALM BEACH, FLA.

West Palm Beach Musicarnival. Producer, John Price (940 S. Military Trail, West Palm Beach, Fla.; P.O. Box 2108). Parts available for leading men and women, and male and femme chorus performers. Mail photos and resumes, through agents only, c o above address.

SPRINGFIELD, ILL.

Tent at the Lake. Producers, Jane Stanley Buckles & D. G. Buckles (c/o Buckles Theatre Co., 1472 Broadway, N. Y.; Rm. 904). Available parts: leading man and woman; ingenue; character woman. Mail photos and resumes, c/o above address, through agents only in the case of the leads.

ST. LOUIS

St. Louis Municipal Opera. Producer-director, John Kennedy (11 E. 44th St., N.Y.; MU 7-0671). Auditions for dancers: open call today (Wed.), girls at 11 a.m. and boys at 2 p.m., at Variety Arts Studio (225 W. 46th St., N. Y.).

SULLIVAN, ILL.

Summer of musicals. Producer, Guy S. Little Jr. (Box 185, Sullivan, Ill.). Parts available for male and femme Equity musical performers and paid apprentices. Mail photos and resumes, above address.

TRAVERSE CITY, MICH.

Cherry County Playhouse. Producer, Ruth Bailey (Spring Hill Lane, Cincinnati 26, Ohio; TR-1-0049). Parts available for character man, character woman with second woman range, leading man, juvenile. Mail photos and resumes c o Charles Hollerith Jr. (122 E. 76th St., N. Y.). Apprentice applicants write to Cincinnati address for application forms.

WALLINGFORD, CONN.

Oakdale Musical Theatre. Producer, Ben Segal (c o Lenny-Debin Agency, 140 W. 58th St., N.Y.; JU 2-0270). Equity auditions April 10: girl dancers at 10 a.m., boy dancers at 12 noon; girl singers at 2 p.m., boy singers at 4 p.m.; April 11: open call dancers, girls at 10 a.m. and boys at 2 p.m.; April 12: open call singers, girls at 10 a.m. and boys at 2 p.m. All calls will be held at Showcase Studios (950 Eighth Ave., N.Y.). See also Warwick and Framingham.

WARWICK, R.I.

Warwick Musical Theatre. Producer, Burton Bonoff (c o Lenny-Debin Agency, 140 W. 58th St., N.Y.; JU 2-0270). Same audition schedule as for Wallingford (see above).

TOURING

"Double Entry" (MC). Producers, Albert C. Lasher, Paul Lehman & Happy Medium (c o L&L Theatre Productions, 245 Lexington Ave., N. Y.). All principal roles available. Casting through agents only. Tour slated to begin in Chicago next fall.

"Flower Drum Song" (MC). Producer, Lenny-Debin Agency (140 W. 58th St., N.Y.; JU 2-0270). All parts available. Mail photos and resumes to Jack Lenny, c o above address. Show will tour the strawhats this summer. Auditions for dancers Monday (27), Equity males and femmes, at 10 a.m. and open call males and femmes, at 2 p.m., at Showcase Studios (950 Eighth Ave., N. Y.). Orientat types only.

"Gypsy" (MC). Producer, David Merrick (246 W. 44th St., N.Y.; LO 3-7520). All parts available for the second company. Mail photos and resumes to Michael Shurtleff, at the Merrick office. Script, published by Random House, available at Drama Book Shop (51 W. 52d St., N.Y.).

"La Plume de Ma Tante" (MC). Producer, David Merrick (246 W. 44th St., N.Y.; LO 3-7520). Available parts: two femme dancers. Mail photos and resumes c o Michael Shurtleff, above address.

SHOWS IN REHEARSAL

BROADWAY

"Donnybrook" (MC). Producer, Fred Hebert (130 W. 57th St., N. Y.; JU 6-1962).

OFF-BROADWAY

"Decameron" (R). Producers, Selma Tamber & William Tarr (250 W. 52d St., N. Y.; JU 6-0482).

"Evening With Chekhov" (D). Producer, Greg Reardon (335 W. 44th St., N. Y.; SU 7-4194).

"Gallow's Humor" (D). Producers, Richard Barr & Clinton Wilder (c o Gramercy Arts Theatre, 138 E. 27th St., N. Y.; MU 6-9630).

"Hobo" (MC). Producer, Prego Productions (21 Ninth Ave., N. Y.; BU 8-3448).

"Magnificent Hugo" (C). Producer, Cornelius Productions (319 W. 48th St., N.Y.; CI 6-9100).

"Painted Days" (C). Producer, Elliot Martin (58 W. 57th St., N.Y.; PL 7-4181).

"Seven At Dawn" (D). Producer, Connie Simon (c o Actor's Playhouse, 100 Seventh Ave. So., N. Y.; OR 5-1036).

"Smiling, The Boy Fell Dead" (MC). Producer, Theodore Mann (c/o Cherry Lane Theatre, 38 Commerce St., N. Y.; CH 2-3951).

OUT OF TOWN

"Fantasticks" (MC). Producer, Richard Allan Woody (315 E. 70th St., N.Y.; RE 7-6231).

Television

"Camera Three" (educational-dramatic series). Producer, CBS (524 W. 57th St., N. Y.; JU 6-6000); casting director, Paula Hindlin. Accepting photos and resumes of general male and female dramatic talent, c/o above address. No duplicates.

"Naked City" (dramatic series). Producer, Herbert B. Leonard (Screen Gems, 711 Fifth Ave., N. Y.; PL 1-4432). Accepting photos and resumes of general male and female dramatic talent by mail only, c o above address.

"Lamp Unto My Feet" (religious-dramatic series). Producer, CBS (524 W. 57th St., N. Y.; JU 6-6000); casting director, Paula Hindlin. Accepting photos and resumes of general male and female dramatic talent, c o above address. No duplicates.

NBC-TV, (30 Rockefeller Plaza, N. Y.; CI 7-8300). Casting director Edith Hamlin is accepting photos and resumes of male and femme dramatic performers for several shows. Mail information to her, c o above address.

Films

"Chicapee Falls" (D). Producer, Oscar Lerman (1472 Broadway, N.Y.; BR 9-5218, suite 1109). Parts available for leading lady, 20-30, and leading man, 25-35, six feet tall or over. Mail photos and resumes, c o Jeanette Kamins, above address.

Miscellaneous

N. Y. Summer Resort. Director, Michael Skori (75-15 210 St. Bayside, L. I., N. Y.; HO 8-4251). Spot available for femme singer with good English and Yiddish repertoire. Phone above number for appointment.

'Camelot' Tickets

Continued from page 71

in its 16th week at the Majestic Theatre, N.Y., has fallen a little below capacity in recent weeks. Without the special ticket service, however, travel agents desiring to accommodate clients interested in seeing the musical would have to follow the usual procedure of ordering the tickets from the b.o. by mail well in advance of the date required. This is generally regarded by agents as impractical. The new setup is intended to simplify the purchase of tickets and also to eliminate the prospect of tourists having to purchase tickets through brokers, at a premium.

Besdies producing, Lerner wrote the book and lyrics for "Camelot," Loewe composed the music and Hart was the stager. The show is based on T. H. White's novel, "The Once and Future King."

'Mary' Payoff

Continued from page 1

by the cost of large quote ads, but the show earned about $10,000 operating profit last week and will get nearly $11,000 more this week, not counting the share of the film deal bonuses.

The initial payment under the Warner Bros. sale is due next Monday, in the amount of $72,000. That represents the production's 40% share of the $200,000 down payment, less agent's commission. Subsequent film revenue, also subject to the regular 60-40 split between author and production, will be based on 10% of the weekly legit boxoffice gross, to a $500,000 ceiling, plus 5% of the film gross over double negative cost.

The profits on "Mary, Mary" will be split 50-50 by the backers and management, after deduction of a total of 20% to the stars and director. The play costars Barbara Bel Geddes, Barry Nelson and Michael Rennie, and was staged by Joseph Anthony.

Off-Broadway Reviews

The Cage and 417

George Scudder & Irving Wexler, in association with Theatre of Today, present a dual-bill consisting of Arthur Vogel's "The Cage" and Julian Mayfield's "417." Staged by Arthur Reel; choreography, Gaston Roland; settings, Reel; costumes, Anita Kaplan; lighting, Myron Odegaard. Opened March 4, '61, at Theatre of Today, N.Y.; $2 admission.

CAGE

Barker ..... Howard Wierum
Wild Man ..... Rai Tasco
Banker ..... Hal Godett
Village Idiot ..... Donald Plumley
Ruffian ..... Frank Vito
Prostitutes ..... Terriann Howard, Barbara Saturine
Gossips ... Ruth Jaroslow, Paula Martin, Marion Wexler, Bonnie Benn
Wives ..... Carol Gelfand, Laura Stuart, Geraldine Teagarden
Farmer ..... Rick Kleit
Merchants ..... Robert Donn, Andrew Shamchenko
Others: Donald Eggen, Sophia Lan, Lillian Berg, Jon Schwitzer, Mike Arquette.

417

Hubert ..... Kenneth Manigault
Corley ..... Gertrude Jeanette
James Lee ..... Ted Cole
Mrs. Jonas ..... Leslie Rivers
Crossroads ..... Garrett Saunders
Clara ..... Marguerite Davis

Off-Broadway theatres are springing up all over New York, in almost every conceivable size and shape, from village cabaret-houses to midtown converted ballrooms to uptown auditoriums. Theatre of Today, an Equity-bonded company, is in a third-floor garret on lower Fifth Ave., with folding chairs for seats, and is currently offering two one-act dramas at a $2 admission.

The plays are Arthur Vogel's "The Cage" and Julian Mayfield's "417." The former displays an interesting concept for the presentation of elementary thoughts on the dangers to society of an enlightened populace. Vogel's allegory would probably have been more effective if he weren't so persistant and repetitious in drilling home his point.

The setting is a touring carny show and the principal characters are a barker, forcefully played by Howard Wierum, and a bogus Wild Man of Borneo, affectedly portrayed by Rai Tasco. The wild man has joined the show in Australia while taking his master's degree, and has now decided to become a missionary to enlighten the American people about the knowledge and resources at their disposal. The barker, concerned with helping his show intact, disuades him from leaving on the ground that too much enlightenment is a dangerous thing.

Under the superficial presentation, however, there seems to lie a current of a different sort. The wild man is, of course, Negro and the barker is white. It often appears that the performer's idea is to awaken the American Negro to his potentialities and his adversary seems a typical anti-integrationist, spouting the conventional defenses of segregation and supporting the image of the Negro savage. In fact, the barker eventually dupes the wild man into reinforcing this image by having him behave barbarically before a group of onlookers.

Registering effectively, along with the principals, are Donald Plumley as a village idiot and Hal Godett as a small town banker who almost exposes the fraudulent act.

"417" is a problem play of a different sort. Mayfield has written a story of Harlem life as lived by a few of its inhabitants. His emphasis is not on idea, as is Vogel's in "Cage," but is on characterization. The principal figure is a daydreaming, numbers-playing old tenement janitor. As credibly and warmly played by Kenneth Manigault, he is a sympathetic and likeable combination of pathos and comedy.

Gertrude Jeanette seems to accentuate the stiffness of the stern but understanding wife. Ted Cole is sound as the janitor's angry young son and Garrett Saunders provides an amusing characterization as a frisky oldtimer. Leslie Rivers and Marguerite Davis do well in less consequential roles. Although it has its silly spots, "417" presents an often-touching and amusing picture of Harlem tenement life.

Arthur Reel has directed both pieces effectively on the tiny stage and his settings are adequate. Myron Odegaard's lighting doesn't seem to do much and Anita Kaplan's costumes are right. Gaston Roland is credited with choreography for "Cage" which is virtually non-existant. Kali.

Cry of the Raindrop

Kelsey Marechal & Seymour Litvinoff presentation of three-act drama by Lonny Chapman. Staged by Robert Paschall; music, Frank Groseclose; settings, lighting, Jock Stockwell. Features Lou Antonio, Joan Harvey, William Traylor, June Harding. Opened March 7, '61, at the St Marks Playhouse, N.Y.; $4.40 top Friday and Sunday nights, $3.90 weekdays.

Lester ..... William Taylor
Velma Jean ..... Joan Harvey
Carol Ann ..... June Harding
Clay ..... Lou Antonio

Conformity, a popular subject of attack on both the uptown and off-Broadway stages the last several seasons, get rather vacillating treatment in Lonny Chapman's "Cry of the Raindrop" at the St. Marks Playhouse. The author, an actor last seen in City Centre's revival of "Glass Menagerie," whose first play, "The Buffalo Skinner" in 1958, was critically-termed as "promising," is also the operator of the Cecilwood Playhouse, Fishkill, N.Y., where "Cry" was tried out last summer.

The drama's hero is a sort of an Oakie Angrie, 24-hour swinger and a budding public enemy rolled into one. After a stretch in reform school and prison for car theft and suspected rape, he returns to his Oklahoma hometown to see his brother and sister-in-law. The only one who "swings" with him, and literally too, is his sister-in-law's piano pupil, an awkward and charming adolescent. His sister-in-law also begins to find him attractive. At the finale, the prodigal is at the wrong end of a shotgun.

Despite the author's debatable thesis which seems to equate stability with conformity and neuroticism with non-conformity, and the trite but serviceable story line, it is in the method of presentation that the drama fumbles. Notwithstanding flashy and interesting individual scenes, imaginative dialog and good performances, the numerous asides keep retarding the story. The speeches are often pretentious, monotonous and extranous to the piot.

As the mercurial and confused youth, Lou Antonio gives a well conceived performance, despite a distracting resemblance to Marlon Brando, both physical and interpretive. June Harding is good as his awestruck companion, creating a believable early-teenage youngster, both in physical appearance and a probing, ingenuous characterization. Joan Harvey, as the wife awakened by the newcomer's arrival, turns in a sensitive performance and William Traylor is appropriately modest as the older brother.

Robert Paschall has directed tautly and briskly. The original music by Frank Groseclose, while at times rising too glibly, gives many of the scenes an effective accent. The scenery and lighting by Jock Stockwell is adequate. Jaal.

A Worm In Horseradish

Dorothy Olim & Gerald Krone presentation of three-act drama by Esther Kaufman. Staged by Gerald Krone; settings and lighting, Robin Wagner; costumes, Domingo A. Rodriguez; lobby decor by Sheldon Baron. Stars Eli Mintz, Celia Adler. Opened March 13, '61, at the Maidman Playhouse, N.Y.; $4.90 top weekends, $3.90 weekdays.

Reb Zolmen ..... Max Gulack
Yankel Feinberg ..... Eli Mintz
Golde Feinberg ..... Barbara Dana
Surka Feinberg ..... Jerome Asch
Berel ..... Harvey Solin
David Feinberg ..... Joseph Ragno
Tanta Fagi ..... Celia Adler
Uncle Morris ..... Leopold Badia
Mottel ..... Maurice Brenner
Sam ..... Wolf Landsman

Photographs of New York's Lower East Side in the early 1900's are displayed in the lobby walls of the Maidman Playhouse, where "A Worm In Horseradish" opened March 13, and period props are used onstage. The actors speak with the proper Yiddish accent, and the set and costumes are appropriate.

The characters are warm and gentle, the only villain being a slightly greedy marriage-broker. Thus the mood of the "good old days" is established. The play never amounts to much, however.

Esther Kaufman, the 63-year-old grandmother who wrote "A Worm in Horseradish," has failed to create either an engrossing drama or characters of depth. She presents such stock figures as the father who tries to teach his children that "learning is riches," the sarcastic but loving mother, the busybody aunt, the son who prefers money to education, the daughter in love with a young doctor. They come to life only superficially.

When the father loses his job and is arrested for slapping a child, when the son quits college, and when the daughter's love seems hopeless, it is difficult to care. The characters react according to formula, and they neither change nor develop because of their troubles.

Mrs. Kaufman has a keen ear for the speech of the period, however, and despite a number of clumsy puns, her lines are occasionally amusing. But nostalgia is not substitute for playwriting, and except for some lively moments in the second act, it's a tedious evening.

As the father, Eli Mintz makes the most of his material, and is occasionally humorous and touching. He is fine in the play's best scene, in which the doctor asks for the daughter's hand. Celia Adler, trapped in the stereotyped role of the aunt, can only mug her way through the evening.

The others adequate at best. Max Gulack has good moments as a visiting "greenhorn," and Joseph Ragno is believable as the son. Barbara Dana, Leopold Badia, Maurice Brenner and Wolf Landsman are unable to do much with one-dimensional parts.

As the mother, Jeanne Asch misses several opportunities to make the character more entertaining, and Harvey Solin is wooden and unconvincing as the doctor. The title, as explained in the dialog, refers to those who do not know that they are not well off, like "a worm in a horseradish."

The direction by co-producer Gerald Krone generally is passable. Robin Wagner's set and Domingo Rodriguez's costumes are appropriate. Kenn.

St. Loo Muny to Present 'Calamity' and 'Cinderella'

St. Louis, March 21.

The St. Louis Municipal Opera will open its 43d consecutive season of summer musicals June 12 in Forest Park. There will be 10 shows this year instead of the usual 12.

The season opener will be the premiere of a western musical, "Calamity Jane," based on the 1952 picture. Two other local preems will be "Take Me Along" and a stage verson of the Rodgers-Hammerstein television show, "Cinderella." Among other musicals due for the season at the outdoor theatre are "Can-Can," "Wish You Were Here" and "Flower Drum Song."

4-City Setup

Continued from page 71

written by Bishop and Warren Enters.

In connection with his contemplated producing activities, for which he's formed the Festival Co., Efron is also establishing Theatregoers' Sponsor Club to organize subscription support of the four-city venture. Those joining the club are permitted to purchase a single half-price ticket per show for all Festival Co. productions during the 1961-62 season. The membership agreement requires attendance at a minimum of three shows at club prices.

The membership goal in each of the four cities is 5,000. The enrollment fee is $5 and $3 for the purchase of discount orchestra and balcony tickets, respectively. Efron plans limiting the number of subscribers to 50% of the house in each city. Thus, the potential capacity at regular prices will be reduced only 25% at each of the theatres.

At an average discount price of $2 per ticket, a total of 5,000 subscribers in each town would guarantee a production a minimum gross of $10,000 per theatre. The shows would be booked for one-week stands in each of the four towns. Efron's ultimate goal is to present 12 tryouts a year, thus giving each city one new show every month. The productions are to tour the four-city circuit via bus-and-truck.

Backers of Festival Co. would be given the opportunity to invest in any of the properties which undergo refinancing for Broadway production, besides sharing in the producer's end of any profits accruing from such a move.

London 'Chin-Chin,' 'Seasons' to Fold; Are Original Stars Indispensable?

By DICK RICHARDS

London, March 21.

Two West End successes are about to fold because their respective stars are withdrawing. "Chin-Chin" ends its 16-weeks' run at Wyndham's Theatre next Saturday (25) and "A Man For All Seasons" shutters April 1 at the Globe after a run of nine months.

In both instances the managements ruefully state that the plays are doing fine business, but Celia Johnson is leaving "Chin-Chin" because she never likes to play anything but a limited run. Paul Scofield must leave the Robert Bolt play because he is contracted to appear this summer at the Shakespeare Festival at Stratford, Ont.

There have been inquiries why the two are not being continued with replacements for Miss Johnson and Scofield. Presumably the managements figure that the shows could not continue successfully without the original stars. Yet they have been numerous instances of hit plays surviving star replacements.

A striking example recently is "Ross," at the Haymarket, where Michael Bryant took over the title role from Alec Guinness. Bryant is a sound actor but certainly hasn't Guinness's marquee value, yet the boxoffice at the Haymarket is still clicking.

Alan Melville, a playwright making his debut as an actor, became the hero of "The Gazebo" when Ian Carmichael dropped out of the cast after nearly a year, but there is no sign of business slacking off.

In its remarkable run of over eight years, "The Mousetrap" has had innumerable changes of cast. All the principals of "My Fair Lady" have been replaced and still "M.F.L." carries on successfully. Shani Wallis succeeded Elizabeth Seal in "Irma La Douce" and Dennis Quilley is the second leading man to play opposite Miss Wallis since Keith Michell went to Broadway. "West Side Story" and "Fings Ain't Wot They Used T'Be" are two others flourishing despite several changes of cast in key roles.

Ted Kehoe to Des Moines

Des Moines, March 21.

Ted Kehoe, director of the Chattanooga Little Theatre for the last six years, will be the new director of the Des Moines Community Playhouse.

He succeeds Howard R. Orms, who resigned a year ago after seven years as director here.

Publicist Dick Maney Makes Like IBM In Re 'SP' & 'Okla' Statistics

New York.

Editor, VARIETY:

"Some Not So Incidental Info," VARIETY, March 15, is riddled with errata. "South Pacific" and "Oklahoma" are hopelessly confused. (This refers to the "My Fair Lady" statistics. By coincidence, one Ricardo Maney is the Boswell for that show —Ed.)

The annuals edited by John Chapman and Louis Kronenberger and other almanacs credit "Oklahoma!" and "South Pacific" with runs of 2,248 and 1,925 performances, respectively, in New York. Both totals are as phony as a $3 bill, as I shall proceed to demonstrate. "Oklahoma!" opened at the St. James Theatre, New York, on Wednesday night, March 31, 1943, and played through May 28, 1948. In its opening week it played 6 performances; in the 269 weeks that followed it would have played 2,152 performances in the conventional eight performance a week schedule. However, in 20 weeks it played nine performances—extra holiday matinees — and in two weeks but seven, omissions due to Roosevelt's death and funeral —a net gain of 18 performances. Thus:

Perfs. opening week	6
Perfs. in next 269 weeks at 8 per week	2,152
20 extra matinees less two cancelled net gain	18
	2,176

These figures are taken from the boxoffice statements of "Oklahoma!" for its long run which I inspected in March of '60 with the consent of the Guild. How Chapman and Kronenberger arrive at that 2,248 figure is known but to them and God. I suspect that they have embraced either the pre-Broadway performances in New Haven and Boston or the 28 free performances given for members of the armed forces. It's also possible that they included benefits for the Actors' Fund. But you can wager your last farthing, Excellency, that it only played 2,176 performances, without interruption, in New York in which it shared the receipts with the St. James.

The case of "South Pacific" is even more flagrant. It opened at the Majestic on Thursday night April 7, 1949, and had played 1,694 performances when it closed on May 16, '53, and went to Boston where it played six weeks at the Boston Opera House. It then returned to New York and played an additional 232 performances at the Broadway. These two runs are grouped in the annuals, but a run is an uninterrupted succession of performances, hence the 1,925 figure given "SP" is a snare and a delusion. Dick Maney

Theatre Institute Gives 'Electra' Series for Pros

A series of performances of Sophocles' "Electra," for members of Actors Equity and other theatrical professionals is being given tonight (Wed.) though next Tuesday (28) at the playhouse of the Institute for Advanced Studies in the Theatre Arts, N. Y. The production, using different casts at alternate performances, was staged by Dimitri Rondiris, founder and director of the Greek Tragedy Theatre, Athens.

The schedule calls for performances at 6 p.m. tonight; at 3 and 11:45 p.m. tomorrow (Thurs.), at 3 p.m. Friday (24), at 3 and 6 p.m. Saturday (25), at 1 and 5:30 p.m. Sunday (26), at 6 and 9 p.m. Monday (27) and at 3 and 6 p.m. next Tuesday (28).

Hardwicke's OK Memoir

"A Victorian in Orbit," memoirs of Sir Cedric Hardwicke, told to James Brough (Doubleday; $4.50), is the amusing summation of a long acting career that has brought its author from the Edwardian stage in London to world fame in films and tv. Book crackles with dry wit, typically British understatement of high purposes and ideals, and carries gentle scoffing at certain contemporaries.

Sir Cedric offers rebuttal to Marlon Brando's publicized statement that "acting is a bum's life," and supplies his own assessment of The Method and its abuse. On subjects outside theatre, the doughty knight is not always as keenly perceptive. Fortunately, his work deals principally with field he knows best.

His remembrances of Shaw, and snapshots he made of the dramatist, are priceless. His brief "handbook for interviewers" is often good fun. Examples: "What was the greatest shock you ever endured?" "Seeing yourself for the first time in the movies, and discovering that I couldn't act." And "What is an actor's greatest asset?" "An audience." Book is a welcome addition to show biz remembering where ponderosity too often usurps bright, honest self-appraisal. Rodo.

Yale Bowl Pops Back

New Haven, March 21.

After lying dormant for several summers due to operational red, Yale Bowl Pop Concerts will be revived on a four-concert basis, starting in July.

Series, again handled by the New Haven Junior Chamber of Commerce, with Robert F. Crosby as general chairman, has pulled as many as 16,000 fans in past concerts.

Jose Iturbi is penciled for July 22 (it may be July 15) and Aug. 19 is set for a Rodgers and Hammerstein program. Harry Berman will direct the New Haven Pops Orchestra.

Equity Disavows B'way Picketing

Continued from page 1

operation under the management of Producers Theatre, is tenanted by "The Best Man," a Roger L. Stevens production. Equity, after learning Friday (17) of the planned picketing of the Booth, Plymouth and Royale, sent telegrams to Merrick, John Shubert of the Shubert office, the NALC, the Congress of Racial Equality and the National Assn. for the Advancement of Colored People, dissociating itself from the action.

CORE and the NAACP were among those to whom the telegrams were sent because of a line in the leaflet, which stated, "Support the joint effort of the NALC, NAACP and CORE." The leaflet also emphasized, "Although the theatres are not segregated in New York, these same shows, once they leave on bus and truck tours, play in hundreds of segregated theatres throughout the U. S."

The reference to motorized touring made the attack on Merrick, whether intentional or not, doubly ironic. For one thing, Merrick and Shubert were instrumental in fostering employment of Negro stagehands on Broadway and Merrick is also believed to be the only Broadway producer currently employing a Negro production stage manager on one of his shows. In addition, Merrick is not involved in bus-and-truck touring.

Prior to the picketing, Equity had provided the NALC and the NAACP with a statement reiterating its long-standing opposition to segregation in connection with projected sit-in demonstrations in southern legit and film houses. Equity was informed by the NAACP that it did not expect the union to request its members not to cross picket lines in the event of sit-in demonstrations.

Two members of Equity, both connected with the union's Committee on Ethnic Minorities, are believed to have been instrumental in the picketing action. They're Ronald Ballard and Douglas Gordon. They were among those picketing, and Ballard also informed O'Neal of the proposed action last Friday. It's possible that Equity may take action against the two for their participation in the picketing on the basis of conduct prejudicial to the welfare of the union. Such activity could be detrimental to the union's relationship with the league of N. Y. Theatres, comprising Broadway producers and theatre owners. The Equity-League contract precludes strikes or picketing.

In the telegram sent out last Friday, Equity declared, "We wish to advise you that Actors Equity does not sanction such picketing as is contemplated and is not in any way associated with it. We are opposed to all forms of discrimination both in and out of theatre.

"In accordance with our policy we are initiating talks with the League of N. Y. Theatres to eliminate segregation where it occurs in some sections of the country. Our stand on integration is well known, but we do not condone irresponsible actions which do nothing to alleviate the situation which we all seek to remedy."

The telegram was signed by William Gibberson, assistant executive secretary of the union, and O'Neal, as chairman of the Committee on Ethnic Minorities. Angus Duncan, the union's executive secretary, was in Puerto Rico at the time.

Ballard and Gordon are also members of the NALC, as is Equity member Ossie Davis, who did not participate in the picketing. According to Bill Epton, chairman of the NALC Political Action Committee, it was just a coincidence that the three theatres originally slated for picketing housed Merrick productions. Incidentally, one of the shows involved, "Taste of Honey," has a Negro as one of its main characters.

LEE HENRY

Currently

FRED MILLER THEATRE

Milwaukee

Thru April 2

As Rev. Davidson in "Rain"

(with Monique Van Vooren)

Returning After Smash January Engagement as "Othello"

PL 7-6300 New York

MO 4-8600 Chicago

'Toys' Net 100%

Continued from page 71

made in black and white or three times the negatives costs if it is in color.

The reduction in running expenses for the four weeks ended last Feb. 25 included partial salary waivers for some cast members and the company and general managers. Miss Hellman's regular royalty of 10% of the gross and director Arthur Penn's regular royalty of 3% of the gross were reduced 50% during the four-week period. Penn also gets 5% of the profits. The payment to designer Howard Bay was cut from $100 to $50 and the weekly management fee and office expenses were also pared 50% to $150 and $175, respectively. Another partial cut was made in the weekly auditing fee.

Because of the reductions, the play was able to earn an operating profit of $332 on its low gross of $15,386 for the period. Business during the three weeks since Feb. 25 has been meagre and a closing has been set for April 8.

Local Version of 'Enemy' To Play Chi Studebaker

Chicago, March 21.

The Company of the Four, a semi-professional group which bases on the southside, has leased the Studebaker Theatre for four nights in April for a presentation of Arthur Miller's version of Ibsen's "An Enemy of the People." It'll be the first legit production at the Studebaker in almost three years. The house, a 900-seater, will be scaled from $2 to $3.50.

The group equates with New York's off-Broadway enterprises and generally gives its performances in the Univ. of Chicago vicinity, usually at John Woolman Hall. The downtown production of the Ibsen play is being partially underwritten by the School of Jewish Studies, as a benefit. The company is headed by William Macdonald and Sara and Boardman O'Connor.

Keith Prowse Issue

London, March 21.

Britain's top ticket-selling brokers, Keith Prowse, is making its offer for sale of 450,000 70c ordinary shares at $2.55 each. Expected dividend of 17½% would yield nearly $14 on the offer price.

It will be the first dividend to be paid for 10 years by the 120-year-old Keith Prowse outfit which handles nearly 75% of ticket-selling business in U. K.

Daily News Twofers

Continued from page 1

since the discounts offered were less than 50% of the b.o. price.

It was also noted in the text that twofers "can cause you headaches unless you read the fine print carefully." This was apparently overlooked by some readers, who clipped out the ducats and then attempted to make an exchange at the boxoffice. What they failed to notice, though, was that the illustrated ticket was good only for performances through last Feb. 26.

At first the "Tenth Mana" management refused to honor the News reprints, but that decision was subsequently reversed, thus putting the show in the position of having more twofers in circulation than all other Broadway discount entries combined.

244G Ford Grant

Continued from page 71

tion development was the announcement of a second series of fellowships for studies in the creative arts. The fellowships are designed primarily to assist persons not regularly associated with academic institutions to undertake studies of potential significance to others interested in the creative arts.

Fellowship recipients of awards ranging from $4,500-$7,500 include legit Lee Simonson, scenic designer, and Sol Babitz, violinist and violin editor of The International Musician.

Shows Abroad

Continued from page 72

The Miracle Worker

these three graphic weeks in the life of the young Helen Keller and the Irish, half-blind servant girl, Annie Sullivan.

Anna Massey acquires new acting stature with her performance as Annie Sullivan. Tough, determined, and with a sense of humor that prevents any maudlin note creeping into the play, she handles a difficult role with confidence and strength. She is matched by Janina Faye as the child who for most of the play is little more than a wild animal.

The two share very effective scenes, notably the one where Miss Massey fights with the child over a spoon. This is played and directed with splendid vigor and panache and, on the first night, the sequence had the audience cheering, something which is not usually seen and heard in anything but a musical.

Peter Coe's direction throughout is firm and, according to those who saw the play on Broadway, he has wisely toned down some of the background effects such as the voice of Annie's small brother. Even so, these few minutes are obtrusive and, at times, even embarrassing. Though the play stands or falls by the performances of the two leading players, some of the supporting parts demand subtle acting and here Coe is rather less well served, with the exception of Dilys Hamlett who beautifully portrays little Helen's sad, bewildered mother. John Robinson is adequate as the pompous father and Derek Fowlds can do little with the tritely written dull role of the unpleasant brother.

Sean Kenny's setting is less inspired than some of his previous work. But with all these several faults, "The Miracle Worker" still stands out as one of the most worthwhile shows that the U. S. has sent Britain for some time.

Rich.

Les Exaltes

(The Idealists)

Paris, March 10.

Elvire Popesco & Hubert De Malet presentation of a drama in three acts by Robert Musil, adapted by Philippe Jacottet. Staged by Sacha Pitoeff; sets, Andre Lacombe. Sacha Pitoeff, Features Sacha Pitoeff, Delphine Seyrig, Luce Garcia-Ville, Marc Cassot, Yves Brainville. Opened March 6, '61, at the Theatre Moderne, Paris; $3.50 top.

Regine ..... Delphine Seyrig
Marie ..... Luce Garcia-Ville
Anselme ..... Sacha Pitoeff
Thomas ..... Marc Cassot
Joseph ..... Yves Brainville
Stader ..... Pierre Leproux
Mertens ..... Madeleine Cheminat

Robert Musil's 1920's Austrian play is forbiddingly wordy, but Sacha Pitoeff, son of the pre-war stage couple Georges and Ludmilla Pitoeff, has done well with it. The drama is laid in the '20's and involves a woman who has left her stuffy husband to join her brother-in-law and sister in the house where her first husband committed suicide. There is also a man who is supposedly to run off with her. All have been childhood friends.

The characters, including the stolid husband and a private detective, search their own and each other's souls and finally it is the sister who runs off with the adventurer and the brother-in-law and wife, now disowned by the husband, are left to ponder the difficulties of human relationships. The acting has a flamboyant period quality. Delphine Seyrig is especially right as the tormented woman haunted by the memory of her dead first husband.

The settings are just draperies and a few items of furniture. The talky play is too dated for Broadway, but may be possible off-Broadway.

Mosk.

Dimitri

(THEATRE AM HECHTPLATZ, ZURICH)

Zurich, March 11.

Since Jean-Louis Barrault created Baptiste in the French film, "Children of Paradise," and Marcel Marceau toured the world with his pantomime shows, the art of the mime has gained international momentum. A young Swiss named Dimitri, 25, now looks set to enter the field. His first big-time exposure at Zurich small-seater, the Theatre am Hechtplatz, drew rave reviews and capacity audiences for a two-week engagement.

Dimitri studied with Marceau and elsewhere, and his Marceau background is apparent, but there's also a touch of Grock, Chaplin and even Danny Kaye. Yet his show has a personal style and does not rely on pantomime alone. The young performer also sings, recites, plays several instruments and has a gift for lingo imitations.

The latter, slightly reminiscent of Kaye, consist of nonsensical words, but a sure flair for intonation, movements and gestures of such diametrically opposed languages as English, Russian, French, Arabic, Italian, German, Swedish, Chinese, Japanese and various Swiss dialects. It's one of the top items in the show.

Other highlights include a hilariously mimed fight with a tricky deck-chair, the frustration of a man who wants to study acrobatics from a book of instructions, an actor auditioning vainly for a manager, a streetsinger and his reactions to various amounts of charity, a guitar-player overcome with emotion by his own sad songs, et al.

Dimitri's timing needs sharpening, which will come with experience, and he has a tendency to show all he can do, including a few average or weaker items, instead of concentrating on abilities in which he's tops. But he's a hard worker (show caught lasted 130 mins., including a 15-minutes intermission) who's uninterruptedly onstage with no partner, no sets, no music beside his own playing and only barest props.

He has the potential for international acceptance. With more experience, he'll be ready. Mezo.

THEATRE MANAGEMENT COURSE

4th Annual Course Sponsored By the Musical Arena Theatres Association

Consists of:

1. Payroll preparation
2. Union contracts and regulations
3. Box office procedure
4. House management
5. Office procedure
6. Royalty contracts
7. Production
8. Promotion and publicity
9. Casting

Course of instruction for prospective theatre personnel. Purpose of these classes is to provide a trained pool of available and interested personnel for stock theatre companies.

Four-week course given Saturday mornings, 9:30 a.m. to 1:30 p.m., April 8, 15, 22 and 29.

Cost of course $50.00 including all illustrative material. For information and registration write MUSICAL ARENA THEATRES ASSOCIATION, c/o Lutz & Carr, 122 E. 42 St., New York 17, N. Y., or call MU 2-1197.

READERS (2) AVAILABLE

EXPERIENCED

Will read, analyze and report on plays, books and scripts.

Research

Fast and reliable service assured. Write Box V-2129, Variety, 154 W. 46th Street, New York 36, N. Y.

CATSKILL OPPORTUNITY

SUMMER PLAYHOUSE IN ACCORD

AVAILABLE — audience surveyed, 4 acres plus 5000 sq. ft. modern bldg. Requires seats, stage for conversion. Heavy elec., ventilation. 10,000 cottages, resorts in area. $600 mo. 10% receipts. 2 hours from New York.

MU 3-5319

RENT OR SALE

SUMMER-THEATRE

GRISTMILL PLAYHOUSE

Andover, New Jersey

Seats 800 Stage 30'x50'

EDITH PIERSON ST 6-5420

Theatre Encore Presents

"BLIND ALLEY"

by JAMES WARWICK

Thurs. Mar. 23, Fri., Mar. 24 and Sat. Mar. 25, 8:30 p.m.

at

St. Clement's Epis. Church

423 West 46th Street, New York

All Seats $1.50

Reservations JU 6-3754, Miss Soutar

Alexander H. Cohen

AND HIS ASSOCIATES

ANNOUNCE THE REMOVAL OF THEIR OFFICES TO

TWENTY EAST FORTY-SIXTH STREET

NEW YORK 17, N. Y

MARCH 22, 1961 TN 7-3434

ONE HUNDRED FIFTEEN SHAFTESBURY AVENUE • LONDON, W. C. 2 • TEMPLE BAR 5224 • CABLES: ALEXCOHEN

SCULLY'S SCRAPBOOK

By Frank Scully

Palm Springs, March 21.

Though March 17 has long been admitted as a great day for the Irish, it looks now as if the festivities will not only run through March but the whole year. And maybe a flock of years.

But I ran into a dissenting opinion concerning the greatness of the Irish. That was Ria Mooney, director of plays for the Abbey Theatre, Dublin. She thinks the Irish suffer from one big whopping inferiority complex.

A charming vest-pocket beauty herself, speaking with an Oxford accent from which all marbles have been removed, feminine but obviously strong in her views, she nevertheless stuck to her opinion that the Irish would have been caviar for Freud's favorite complex.

Two priests, a doctor of philosophy, two students of Immaculate Heart College in Hollywood, my lady Alice and I were rather bowled over by Miss Mooney's contention that the Irish can't face up to issues.

'Great' On $42 A Week

Product herself of one of the most outstanding cultural outcroppings in modern times (she's been with the Abbey Theatre for 14 years), she couldn't even concede that the Abbey Players were great.

"Nobody used the word about an Abbey player until Hollywood bestowed it on the late Barry Fitzgerald. One simply doesn't use the word on actors earning at most $42 a week."

Miss Mooney herself used to be an actress. Then she was asked to direct. She really prefers acting because directing adds many problems to one's life. Not only casting but finding plays and all.

And sometimes a play like Eugene O'Neill's "Long Journey Into The Night," a play of 4½ hours involving only four characters, is hard to cast. In this case she had to cast herself as the mother. It took her three hours to read her own part.

The Abbey is limited to 21 players and to plays either written by Irish playwrights or about Irish subjects. They have to be new plays in the main because Ireland is dotted with amateur dramatic societies and they wouldn't go up to Dublin to see an old play or a revival.

The Cat That Came Back

It is a practice of playwrights to release their work after a year to these amateur player groups, though on one occasion after the Abbey turned down a play a provincial amateur group put it on and made a hit of it. The Abbey Theatre, powdering its red cheeks, then took the play on the bounce and produced it. That was John B. Keane's "Sive." The critical opinion, however, seemed to agree that there was every reason for having rejected it in the first place.

This must have been in the era when the Abbey Players moved over from their burnt out theatre to the Queens where plays with poetic overtones were about as welcome as Beethoven at a jazz festival.

Though W. B. Yeats and Lady Augusta Gregory who founded the Irish Literary Theatre are generally credited with the start of the Abbey Players Miss Mooney credits somebody that sounded like T. W. Rhodeson.

Then there was also a group of Irishmen in 1903 who went to London under William and Frank Fay and had quite a success.

There's also a Miss A. E. F. Hornimann, who deserves some credit as she gave the Dubliners a theatre on Abbey Street from which the players took their name.

But no doubt Yeats and Lady Gregory gave the movement the big push. Even George Moore assisted in the first production of the Literary Theatre. They opened with a series of plays by Irishmen with English actors.

But when the Literary Theatre died and the Fays showed them what amateurs could do, this was the real beginning of the Abbey Players. Yeats, Lady Gregory and John Synge were the early directors and out of their efforts grew what is generally regarded as one of the finest acting companies in the world.

Playwrights' Paradise: Abbey Theatre

Then, as now, the emphasis is on the play's the thing. Actors and their gestures come second, and the fewer the gestures the better the Abbey audiences like them. There's still enough poetry in the dialog of its playwrights to make the Abbey Theatre poetic in speech even in its most realistic dramas.

The Abbey Players perform for 11 months out of a year. They are off for the month of June. Miss Mooney has usually used the month of June to hop to London or New York and see plays and friends, but this year she got a leave from January to April and has been directing on the West Coast and "lecturing," a word that makes her shudder.

She has no use for stage Irishmen. "John Ford's Irishmen are all stage Irishmen." But she can't have too much use for the other sort either or she wouldn't be plastering them with that "inferiority" label. Imagine a nation which had produced Bernard Shaw, Oscar Wilde, Frank Harris, William Butler Yeats, James Joyce, Augustus St. Gaudens, George Moore, Lady Gregory, George Russell, Dion Boucicault, Lord Kitchner, James Stephens, Conan Doyle, T. P. O'Connor, Justin Huntley McCarthy, Lord Roberts, Sir Horace Plunkett, John Redmond, James Stuart Parnell, Eamon de Valera, Sean O'Casey and John Millington Synge, to mention a handful that fought their way to the top in the last hundred years, being labeled as acquiescent to places below the salt! Brendan Behan might fit the charge but few of the others would.

Brian Boru A Kennedy, Eh?

And President John Fitzgerald Kennedy didn't come by his guts and political know-how because his ancestors were from the Gobi Desert. Brian Boru's real name was Brian MacCinneide (pronounced Kennedy with a hard C.) He came from a little place on the river Shannon 1,000 years ago. The Danes killed his older brother and Brian became King of Munster at the age of 35. (These Kennedys mature early). He united all Ireland and slaughtered the Danes as they waded in high tide toward their Viking ships in Dublin harbor.

He died in combat and that weakened the Irish for the next invasion from the Normans. But the Irish held on to their battle cry "Kennedy Abu," ("Up Kennedy!") through the centuries.

Even under British domination one of the few papists permitted to carry arms was named John Kennedy. There were literary people as well, authors, publishers, playwrights.

The Fitzgeralds too were way up there in Irish history. Though the name is French (Fitz being a distortion of fils, son of.) Lord Edward Fitzgerald was a ringleader in the Wolfe Tone revolution of 1798 and if he had not been taken prisoner and clinked in the Tower of London, Napoleon would not have called off his plan to harass the British by invading Ireland and switched to Egypt instead.

Poor Archbishop

One Fitzgerald could create white knights, judges and bailiffs. He got in a row with an archbishop and burnt down a cathedral. When upbraided by the King of England he said he was sorry and never would have done it but he thought the Archbishop was inside.

Danny Thomas, who has been doing the benefit circuit between his tv shows, entertained a packed house of Irish partisans at the Riviera Hotel, Palm Springs, the night after Ria Mooney aired her views about Irish inferiority. Thomas told Irish, Italian, Jewish jokes, in dialect yet, and finished on the old burlesque show parody "The devil wouldn't look for Ginsburg where the River Shannon flows."

Putting The English On An Old Gag

But his pet was the one about the Irish priest under Cardinal Cushing who couldn't seem to give a sermon without sounding off about perfidious Albion. The Cardinal called him on the carpet and told him he must never say an evil word about the British from the pulpit again.

He kept quiet for five weeks, said Danny, and then late in Lent, giving an account of the Last Supper and coming on the scene of a Cockney accent said, "I s'y Guvnuh, it couldn't be me now, could it?"

Publishing Stocks

(As of March 21, 1961, closing)

Allyn & Bacon (AS)	35½	— 1½
American Book (AS)	68	+ 3
Book of Month (NY)	34	— 3
Conde Nast (NY)	17⅝	+ 1⅝
Crowell-Collier (NY)	49	— ⅛
Curtis Pub. Co. (NY)	10	+ ¾
Grolier (OC)	60½	— 3
Harc't, Brace (OC)	43½	+ 4¾
Hearst (OC)	12½	— ¾
Holt, R&W (NY)	64¾	— ¾
L.A. Times Mirror (OC)	40	— 2
Macfadden (AS)	13	+ 3¼
Macmillan (OC)	78	....
McCall (NY)	51⅜	+ 3⅝
*McGraw-Hill (NY)	42	....
New Yorker (OC)	115	....
Pocket Books	36¾	— 1¼
Prentice-Hall (OC)	43½	— ½
Ran'm House (OC)	46¼	— ½
Scott Foreman (OC)	28½	— 1¼
Time Inc. (OC)	94	— 3½
H. W. Sams (OC)	46¼	....
Western Pub. (OC)	75	— 2

*Adjusted for 3 for 1 split.
OC—Over the Counter.
N.Y.—N.Y. Stock Exchange.
AS—American Stock Exchange.
M—Midwest.
Note: Midwest and over-the-counter quotes are the Bid prices.

George Marek

Continued from page 2

Certainly more could be done, and I do not disagree that the Government could help and encourage more than it does. But the City Center in New York gets some help from New York City, the San Francisco Symphony from its city, there are state grants, there are certain Federal programs. It doesn't all add up to zero. Thoughtful people have long discussed the pros and cons of government's role in the arts. I happen to be pro, but that doesn't prevent me from acknowledging that there are some cons.

In many respects America shows today a fresh and surging vitality in the arts. Provocative and interesting paintings are being painted, provocative and interesting music is being composed, provocative and interesting books are being written. The public for music, paintings and books has grown. Go to the Metropolitan Museum on Sunday or examine sales of recordings of good music or count the audiences that come to hear Isaac Stern—and you won't come to the conclusion that we "lag on culture." The very fact that there exists an Albuquerque Civic Symphony seems to deny the indictment.

Mr. Stern also states that "The Reds give an added incentive to their artists by paying them better than the average citizens." Come now, don't we pay our artists better than we do the average citizen, whoever he may be?

George R. Marek
(Vice President and General Manager RCA Victor Record Division)

D.C. Press Club

Continued from page 1

in charge of the affair. Vice President Lyndon B. Johnson, who was on the program as a speaker, and top Congressmen were to be on hand. Also, there was the outside chance President Kennedy might pop in. As a recently-inducted Club member, he could come on his own. Understandably, the newsmen responsible were reluctant to risk any possible repercussions or sully any bluenoses.

In the process of deciding whether to bill Miss Gibson or not, at least two bona fide representatives of the Club witnessed her act at the nitery. One very high club officer took his wife (the Congressional affair is stag). The club's entertainment committee subsequently decided a club party honoring Congress was no place for a strip act.

Hirsch & Co.

Continued from page 3

earnings for the first quarter, ended April 30, will not nearly reach the $1.55 per share attained in the first quarter of 1950. But the full year's net of $4.25 should be matched. There's a notation in the Hirsch report about "several interesting films" upcoming.

Broker continues to "take a constructive view of this amusement speculation."

Literati

More Stock Issues

Publishing stocks continue to be among the Wall St. blue chips according to recent performance on the market (Holt, Rinehart & Winston's 3-2 split, etc.), and among other things is the move by Grosset & Dunlap to go public issue.

In addition, another block of Random House stock (121,870 shares) (already oversubscribed) went on the market last week. Understood that this additional stock offering is from Random House insiders (Cerf and his associates). Allen & Co. is the underwriter at $46.50.

Grosset & Dunlap is a reprint operation owned 36% by Book-of-the-Month, Random House, Little Brown, and Harper. Scribner was also recently a partner but sold its percentage back to the others.

Gable Biogs

N. Y. Journal-American night city editor George Carpozi's upcoming "Clark Gable," a Pyramid 50c paperback, probably beats the field on several biographies planned on the late star. Pyramid, incidentally, has tied in with Irwin Allen's "Voyage To The Bottom Of The Sea" (20th-Fox), a summer release.

A more or less "official" biog of the star is being worked on by Jean Garceau, longtime secretary to Gable and before that ditto for the late Carole Lombard before and during her marriage to Gable.

Atkinson's Grant

A night-class college at Toronto's forthcoming second university, York U., is being founded with $782,000 given by the Joseph E. Atkinson Foundation. It will bear the name of the late founder of Toronto Star, Canada's largest daily, and Star Weekly, largest separately-sold periodical (both now owned by the foundation).

Atkinson worked up from cub on other papers after having to quit school at 14 to earn his living. It's the foundation's largest gift, second-largest having been $250,000 to help victims of Hurricane Hazel in 1954. Atkinson's son, Joseph S. Atkinson, is now president of both foundation and the Star.

Headliners' Awards

The New York World-Telegram & Sun and Honolulu newsman William H. Ewing are winners of the National Headliners Club Awards for their coverage of major news stories in 1960. The two awards were among 23 announced by the club for outstanding journalistic achievement during the past year. Silver plaques will be presented to the winners April 8 at the annual Headliners Frolic at Atlantic City, N. J.

The World-Telegram & Sun was cited for coverage of a major domestic news story for its work on the fatal air collision over New York. Ewing, of the Honolulu Star-Bulletin, was named for coverage of a major foreign news story for his accounts of demonstrations and riots in Japan.

Awards for public service went to the Philadelphia Evening Bulletin for its expose of voter registration fraud and to the Leesburg, Fla., Daily Commercial in the under-25,000 circulation class for its campaigns for a juvenile home, a public service hospital and aid to the mentally ill and against tax waste and the Klu Klux Klan.

Mel Durslag of the Los Angeles Examiner won the sports column award. A series about admissions to the U. S. Military Academy won the news feature series award for Ben Walburn of the Columbus, Ga., Enquirer.

Holt, Rinehart's 3-2 Split

Board of Holt, Rinehart & Winston Inc. last week proposed a three-for-two split of the publishing firm's common stock and an increase in the authorized common to 5,000,000 shares from the present 3,000,000. The additional shares are contingent upon stockholder approval at the company's annual meet on May 17. Currently outstanding are 2,246,189 shares.

Firm last year had net earnings of $3,258,691 on sales totaling $38,549,350. Profit per share was $1.69. Rosy financial picture compares with a net of $2,731,801 the previous 12-month period on sales of $35,333,665. Earnings were then equivalent to $1.25 per share.

Existing quarterly dividend rate of 10c per share most likely will be continued, the board indicated, even though more shares will be outstanding after the proposed stock split. Holt, Rinehart stock, incidentally, hit a 1960-61 high last week of $67 per share.

Elizabeth Taylor Biog

Hillman Books six months ago commissioned "The Elizabeth Taylor Story," by Alan Levy, and two weeks ago it was delivered for publication. Because of the star's near-fatal illness, it has been brought up to date and rushed into publication some four months earlier than planned. There will be 16 full pages of photographs in addition to the complete text.

CHATTER

Warren G. Wheeler Jr., assistant to the president, has been elected secretary of the South Bend (Ind.) Tribune, Franklin D. Schurz, editor and publisher announced. He succeeds the late Aaron H. Huguenard. Schurz continues as president and treasurer of the corporation. Mrs. Charles Crockett continues as vicepresident, Franklin D. Schurz Jr., assistant publisher of the Hagerstown (Md.) Morning Herald and Daily Mail, was elected a director. Wheeler will continue his duties as assistant to the president.

Honolulu Star-Bulletin to devote special interest to motion pictures in its revamped Hawaiian Life weekend magazine supplement. Film and drama pages, as a matter of fact, will lead off the expanded tabloid. Walt Christie, Star-Bulletin staffer and VARIETY correspondent, will contribute a nonreviews film column each week.

Henry Cabot Lodge, former U.S. representative to the United Nations, last week joined Time, Life and Fortune as general consultant on international relations.

Espectaculos (Entertainments), weekly fan paper for general public films and other entertainment mediums, has completed its second anniversary under editorship of Jaime Valdes and Carl Hillos.

"A-1 suspense; altogether terrific."
—Saturday Review Syndicate
OPERATION TERROR
THE GORDONS'
minute-by-minute story of an F.B.I. race against a crime threatening the life of a girl teller — swept innocently and violently into the world of big-time bank robbery.
Soon to be made into a major motion picture produced and directed by Blake Edwards for Columbia Pictures release.
$2.95 DOUBLEDAY

Broadway

Vet vaude sketch writer and playwright Paul Gerald Smith hibernating in Crestline, Cal.

Lena Horne and her arranger-husband Lennie Hayton off to Paris last week on the Liberte.

The N. Y. World's Fair phone number is WF 4-1964, to coincide with the year when it debuts.

Hollywood, Fla., publicist Bert Nevins' son, Harvey, "doing the bar mitzvah bit," as he puts it, on Saturday (25).

The Stork Club is seen in a Hollywood picture for the 50th time in Paramount's "All In A Night's Work."

RCA exec Frank M. Folson to Honolulu, repping the company at the weekend benefit by Elvis Presley as part of the Pearl Harbor memorial.

Paula Stone-now-author Dick Condon, residing in Mexico City, flies in this week for his annual double-b'day celebration with former colleague Max E. Youngstein, v.p. of UA.

Cleo (Mrs. Carl) Brisson en route from the Coast, where she spent the winter, and thence back to her native Copenhagen for the spring and summer. While in New York and Hollywood the widow of the singer spends much of her time with son Frederick Brisson and his wife, Rosalind Russell.

Dinner dance stunt for one night (last night) at the Four Seasons, with the dancefloor on top of the decorative pool, may be forerunner to a supper policy for that class Park Ave. eatery. Last night's "do," fronted by Joan Fontaine vs. Earl Blackwell, was a "celebrity" shill to inaugurate the Four Seasons' new spring decor.

Showman-industrialist Louis R. Lurie, from his Frisco base, is inviting Broadway pals to a 11 a.m. brunch at his favorite S. F. haunt, Jack's, on Tuesday, April 11, at 11 a.m., and thence to the opening game of the Frisco Giants. "No funds will be solicited and if you are prompt," writes Lurie, "we can give 86 proof that we are behind the Giants!"

The Rex Smith Scholarship at the College of William & Mary, in honor of the late publicist-newspaperman and American Airlines veepee, is now a fact.—William T. Bean was selected as first recipient of the scholarship which is being administered by a committee which includes Walter Cronkite, This Week publisher Ben Wright, and other pals.

Thos. Philip C. McKenna, Phoenix metallurgist who is making his Broadway legit production bow with "Tour d'Amour" (Tower of Love), musical by Ken Englund (book) and Charles Henderson (songs), based on the building of the Eiffel Tower, is related to the Andrew Carnegie family. England, east with McKenna on business details, returns solo to Hollywood for Screen Writers Guild business, being an officer of the Guild.

Two new Polynesian-style eateries are teeing off with imitation celebrity hoedowns to put the place on the map. Phil Silvers will be the "honored guest" when Jack Kinness and Monte Proser unveil their new Lanai restaurant in the Winter Garden Theatre B'dg., and Jack Carter will ditto in behalf of Hal March at the new Tiana Tu Restaurant, on Central Park South. It's the site of the old Stampler's (since shifted to the Mayflower Hotel).

Tom Weatherly has completed the cycle—back to legit publicity with the Bill Doll organization. As he puts it, "I started my Broadway career as a p.a. for Brady & Wiman way back in '27. At one time I was successful producer (the 'Little Shows,' 'The Gay Divorce,' 'She Loves Me Not,' etc.) but now I'm back where I started—34 years ago. C'est la guerre!"

Tisch Hotels (Loew's Theatres) social exec veepee Claude C. Philippe will clarify the time and date of the April in Paris Ball, slated for Oct. 20 at the Waldorf-Astoria, until a booking snafu with the Park Ave. hostelry cropped up, when he returns from a one-week quickie to Paris next week. The Waldorf, with which Philippe was long identified, issued a statement about being "previously booked" and also chided its former business associate for attempting to "run" the Waldorf as when he was there. Ball may be shifted to the 7th Regiment Armory. Maurice Chevalier will emcee. Annual April shindig's shift to October will be keyed to the charity preem of Joshua Logan's "Fanny" (WB) film.

Current N.Y. Sunday Herald Tribune feature on "The Legend on 44th St." (the Algonquin) is keyed to the hotel's 60th anni celebration. A g.t. renovation operation, budgeted at a reported $1,500,000, had been underway for some months without disturbing the guests and, under owner Ben B. Bodne's direction, specifically designed to maintain the original decor and old-world tradition of the former Frank Case hostelry, which the late owner called "the wayward inn." Bodne's instructions for the minor-key redo (plumbing, interior decoration, etc.) included special looming, even unto preserving the original carpet patterns.

Rome

By Robert F. Hawkins
(Via Sa Estera; 675906)

Winny Weeks, folk singer, back from Paris and work in Martin Ritt's "Paris Blues."

Jeanne Crain expected to start work on "Nefertites, Queen of Nile" for Ottavio Poggi's Max Production.

Renzo Rossellini, son of Roberto, off to Buenos Aires to direct his first feature pic, "World on Beaches."

Additional actors for "Last Judgment" 131 speaking parts in all include Melina Mercouri, Fernandel, Ernest Borgnine and Nino Manfredi.

Gillo Pontecorvo, whose "Kapo" is Italy's Oscar contender, will direct "Metello," from Vasco Pratolini's novel, for Alfredo Bini and Arco Film.

Michael Wilding is latest cast addition to Guy Hamilton's Israel-locationed "Two Enemies" for Dino DeLaurentiis. Pic starts in Rome, then treks to Israel.

Federico Fellini and Luchino Visconti received their top prizes won at Mexico's Festival of Fests with "Dolce Vita" and "Rocco and his Brothers," respectively.

Jack Palance signed for two films—Dino DeLaurentiis' "Barabbas" and Titanus' "Alboino and Rosmunda," besides a stint in Vittorio DeSica's "The Last Judgment."

Nearby Spaleto top candidate as the location for "Private Lives," Noel Coward's play will be directed for the screen by Louis Malle and topline Brigitte Bardot and Marcello Mastroianni.

In-and-out-of-Rome: Metro's Maurice Silverstein, Robert O'Brien and Dave Lewis; Dean's Robert Lantz flying to Paris, pianist Vera Franchi in to join her husband, tenor Daniele Barioni; Mary Pickford, at the Excelsior, Joan Bradshaw from London; Tamara Lees to London after winding a local pic stint; Ingrid Bergman here for rest and visit with her children; Jacques Charrier, in to star in "Tiro al Piccione" under director Giuliano Monaldo; Leonard Lyons in for a quickie; Audrey and Mel Ferrer expected in from Zurich; Marlene Carol to Paris; and Marc Blitzstein here to work on Sacco and Vanzetti opera for Ford Foundation.

Chicago

(DEarborn 7-4984)

Second City unveiled new revue, "Animal Fair," this week with same resident cast.

Local singer Billy Rizzo signed to personal management by T. J. Jeffries, owner of the Chalet in Dallas.

Odetta giving Orchestra Hall concert next Friday (24) opposite Victor Borge's at the Opera House.

Producer Bob Pirosh due in this weekend to scout locations for "Hell Is For Heroes," which Par will release.

Dr. John Reich, managing director of Goodman Theatre, received an achievement award from the Immigrants Service League.

Josh White resumed his college concert tour after a two week bout with virus pneumonia. He'd been bedded in Champaign, Ill., hospital.

Carson Harris, onetime band manager, touring with Bob Newhart as road manager for his nitery circuit swing, then returned to L.A. to manage the Greek Theatre.

London

(HYde Park 4561/2/3)

Anglo-Amalgamated held its conference last weekend.

Meredith Willson in for the first night of "Music Man" last Thursday (18).

Prince Philip attended preem of Peter Sellers' latest, "Mr. Topaze" at Carlton Monday (20).

Kenneth Horne named successor to the late Gilbert Harding as chairman of BBC radio show, "20 Questions."

Pathe News celebrated its Golden Jubilee a few days ago by releasing a color issue of top events of the past few months.

Sir Laurence Olivier named as first director of Chicester, Sussex, Festival Theatre. First production will not be till June of 1962.

Jerome Whyte back in London till "The Sound of Music" is launched, on May 18. Eurice Gayson added to cast. Jean Bayless is starred.

Plaques in memory of George Formby are to be put up at two seaside theatres, the Windmill, Great Yarmouth, and the Queen's, Blackpool.

Sir Michael Redgrave returning to screen after two years. He plays a millionaire in a new Betty Box comedy, "No, My Darling Daughter," with Roger Livesey and Juliet Mills.

Robert and Jack Asher have set up their own indie production company, Asher Bros. Productions Ltd. Bob Monkhouse and Alfred Marks signed for their first, a comedy called, "She'll Have to Go."

A delegation of the Cultural Workers' Union of the USSR, representative of all sections of showbiz, will visit Britain in May on the invitation of Federation of Film Unions and Variety Artistes' Federation.

Minneapolis

By Bob Rees
(4909 Xerxes Ave. So.; WA 6-6955)

Padded Cell has the Dots Trio through tomorrow (23).

Old Log Theatre showing 1932 Eugene O'Neil play, "Days Without End."

Theatre in the Round Players readying "Summer of Seventeenth Doll" for Thursday (23) opening.

Key Club offering Ink Spots Revue with comic Johnny Q. Nut and exotic dancers Hana Chan and Margo.

Henry Hewes, Saturday Review of Literature theatre critic, here last week getting location for yarn on Tyrone Guthrie repertory theatre.

Minneapolis Chamber of Commerce planning 25th anni observance blast March 29 at Hotel Radisson for Shipstads and Johnson Ice Follies which got its start here.

Tex Beneke band inked for sixth annual Symphony ball at Hotel Radisson April 29. Program will also feature "Doc" Evans' Dixieland band and George Hormel and his Kings Wood Men.

Don Cornell, current topper at Hotel Radisson's Flame Room, first male performer to appear there in months. Kim Sisters who preceded set new one-night attendance record during boffo fortnight.

Nashville

By F. X. (Red) O'Donnell
(Phone AL 5-5491)

WSM's Larry Munson named "Sportscaster of Year in Tennessee."

Nitery singer Nicollet cut a single for Roye Lee's recording label.

Former nightclub comic Jack Lester now managing the "Fabulous Ink Spots."

Veteran DJ Noel Ball moved from WSIX to WMAK; Bob Terry named as successor.

Writer-artist Marty Robbins adding finishing touches to answer of his "Don't Worry." It's skedded for waxing by Dot.

Dub Albritten, manager of Brenda Lee, off to Coast to check scripts and set up film deals for 15-year old singer.

Voo Doo nitery pianist-vocalist Teddy Bart now doing regular weekly stints on WSM radio and Jud Collin's Channel 4 show.

Belmont Theatre shuttered and will be converted into office building. Martin chain moving booking of arty films to suburban Green Hills.

Elvis Presley, in town for RCA-Victor wax session, time-outed to visit songsmith Johnny Bragg at State Prison. Bragg is doing stretch for parole violation.

Jamie label's Duane Eddy came in to check on guitar work of Chet Atkins, Hank Garland & Grady Martin. Stayed over to wax LP and singles at Bradley studio.

Paris

By Gene Moskowitz
(66 Ave. Breteuil, Suf. 5920)

Actor Fernand Gravey voted the best dressed Parisian.

Darryl Zanuck attending opening of Juliette Greco's top singing stint at the Bobino.

Francoise Sagan doing a script based on life of writer George Sand with Claude Chabrol to direct.

Director Roger Vadim turns actor-producer for scripter Paul Gegauff's first directorial stint in "The Lazy Ones."

Charles Trenet, with bouncy, poetic new songs, looks to have a fine success in his one-man singing show at Theatre De L'Etoile.

Pete Kameron, producer of the Yank musical legiter "West Side Story," in before one month run of the show at the 2,700-seat Alhambra, May 30.

The French film museum, The Cinematheque Francaise, paying homage to the late Soviet director Alandre Doxchenko via a showing of all his pix.

If the Motion Picture Producer Assn. does not nominate "Raisin in Sun" (Col) to rep the U.S. at the coming Cannes Film Fest, May 3-16, there is a good probability that the pic will be an invited competitive entry.

Top prizes for last year's best pic ad posters, the Toulouse-Lautrec Award, went to Saul Bass for his ad on "Saint Joan" (UA) and to Polish ad man Jan Lenica for his on the Federico Italo film, "Il Bidone" (The Grafters).

Versailles Film Fest jury, composed of university students, gave top award, Golden Sun, to an abstract short by Canadian filmmaker Norman MacLaren. It was for his pic, "Horizontal Lines, Vertical Lines." Silver Sun went to a feature Czech film, "The Dove."

Philadelphia

By Jerry Gaghan
(319 N. 18th St., Locust 4-4848)

Artie Singer, local vocal coach, opened N. Y. branch for students who moved on to Manhattan.

Lilo to be special guest at Abington Memorial Hospital's "Gala Soiree at Bellevue Stratford Hotel.

Claude Rains appeared as narrator with the Philadelphia Orchestra in Richard Strauss' "Enoch Arden."

Philadelphia Lyric Opera bringing in American Theatre for one-night stand at Academy of Music this week.

Otto Preminger at the Sheraton March 21 to address a luncheon meeting of the Philadelphia Council of Churches.

Estrellita, former ballerina with New York City Center Opera, now lead danseuse with the Granadas booked into the Capri.

The Venus Lounge, heavily damaged in recent fire, plans to reopen, but not in time for the Miss Universe prelims originally skedded for downtown spot this summer.

Lee Castle, co-owner of the Rathskeller and Club Madrid, has his neck and shoulder in a cast, caused by fall from a ladder while tacking up pix of girls in show.

Paul Stoat, assistant manager at the Academy of Music, temporarily deserting the longhair field to take over the management of the New York office of John B. Kelly Playhouse in the Park.

Tokyo

By Dave Jampel
(Press Club; 211-3161)

Eugene Frenke in for spadework on "Will Adams Story," which he'll produce for Bryna.

Brian Hyland of "Polka Dot Bikini" due for week at Kokusai starting early this month.

Talk about Shochiku and Tokyo joining theatres as wedge against Toho's strength in foreign film houses.

N. Y. Times Tokyo bureau chief Bob Trumbull moving to Hong Kong with Abe Rosenthal taking over slot.

Sydney Bohem, with spouse, en route to Kowloon where he'll produce film of that name in July with Nancy Kwan.

Parade mag's Lloyd Shearer, here and in Hong Kong gathering material, visited Kyoto location of "Marines, Let's Go" (20th).

Hollywood

Ziva Rodann in from Hong Kong.

Mrs. Pat Notaro home after surgery.

Robert Fellows recovering nicely from mild heart condition.

Olivia deHavilland in on one of infrequent stays from Paris.

Irving Lazar back from contacting clients in Paris, Madrid and London.

Esther Williams legally dropped married name of Gage from her moniker.

Dean Miller skied to Tokyo to tape interviews with stars of Paramount's "My Geisha" location troupe.

MARRIAGES

Eleanor Dubin to Stanley Rothenberg, Alexandria, Va., March 17. Bride is director of the Occupational Therapy Dept. of the Menorah Home & Hospital for the Aged in Brooklyn; he's a copyright attorney.

Nancy Welch to Mark Allen, Portland, Ore., March 12. Bride is manager of Guild and Fine Arts Theatres; he's disk jockey for radio station KPOJ and head of Mark Allen Players (little theatre).

Joan Plowright to Sir Laurence Olivier, March 17, Wilton, Conn. Bride thesps.

Hannah Gold to Jack Sobel, March 16, New York. He's national sales manager of Screen Gems, Inc.

Marian Blinn McCown to James Ramsey Ullman, March 19, New York. He's an author and former legit producer.

Ginger Rogers to William Marshall, Hollywood, March 16. Bride's the actress; he's a producer.

Pamela Cripps to George Levy, Southend, Eng., March 29. He's a saxophonist with Freddy Gordon's band.

BIRTHS

Mr. and Mrs. Sam Kemp, son, Edinburgh, Scotland, March 5. Mother is Margo Henderson, tv and stage impressionist-singer; father is ex-instrumentalist and her manager.

Mr. and Mrs. George Simon, daughter, Chicago, March 14. Father is p.r. chief for Executive House there and former MCA agent and VARIETY staffer.

Mr. and Mrs. Gordon Jackson, son, London, March 10. Mother is actress Rona Anderson; father is an actor.

Mr. and Mrs. Marty Pasetta, daughter, San Francisco, Feb. 28. Father's a director at KGO-TV there.

Mr. and Mrs. Bob Cochran, twins—son and daughter, Pittsburgh, March 17. Father is newscaster on WIIC there.

Mr. and Mrs. Larry Logan, son, Feb. 24, Lafayette, La. Father is a harmonica virtuoso.

Mr. and Mrs. Allen Knowles, daughter, Feb. 28, New York. Mother is dancer Ellie Stettin; father is a dancer.

Mr. and Mrs. Abbott Simon, daughter, New York, March 1. Father handles real estate taxes for RKO Theatres and Glen Alden Corp.

Mr. and Mrs. Mundell Lowe, son, March 21, New York. Mother is legit actress, Barbara Lowe, father is the jazz guitarist.

Mr. and Mrs. Clark Gable, son, March 20, Hollywood. Mother, Mrs. Kay Spreckles Gable, has a son and daughter by previous marriage to Adolph Spreckles 2d; the film star died in the same Hollywood Presbyterian Hospital last Nov. 16, of a heart attack where his widow had Gable's only child which was delivered by Caesarean section.

Mr. and Mrs. Bobby Lord, daughter, Nashville, Tenn., March 7. Father is c&w singer on Columbia label.

Mr. and Mrs. Raye Du-Val, daughter, Farnborough, Eng., March 3. Father claims to be world's marathon drumming champ and has his own outfit, The Blue Notes.

Mr. and Mrs. Peter Boyes, son, London, March 14. Mother is actress Sally Bazeley; father is appearing in "The Mousetrap."

Mr. and Mrs. Robert Arden, daughter, London, March 9. Mother is a model; father is an actor.

Mr. and Mrs. Fred Stettner, daughter, March 19, New York. Father is an NBC exec.

Mr. and Mrs. Bob Shuttleworth, son, March 19, Hollywood. Mother is singer Gisele MacKenzie; father is singer's manager.

OBITUARIES

SEYMOUR FELIX

Seymour Felix, 67, one of the three film choreographers to win an academy award, died March 16 in Los Angeles. Called "the king of dance" by the late Florenz Ziegfeld, Felix won an Oscar in 1936 for his choreographic arrangement of "A Pretty Girl Is Like a Melody," in the film "The Great Ziegfeld."

He began a dancing career when he was 15 years old, and later was dance director of many Broadway musicals produced by Ziegfeld. He also directed dances in such films as "Cavalcade," "Alexander's Ragtime Band," "Tin Pan Alley," "Cover Girl" and "I Don't Care Girl." He signed a contract with Fox Films in 1929 as their dance supervisor. His Broadway legit credits include "Ritz Revue," "Top Hat," "Sky High" and "Pig Boy."

Felix was a product of vaudeville. As Felix & Caire the act became a standard, starting first as a kid combo, placed there by dancing master Ad Newberger who, almost at the same time, launched Eva & Harry Puck. Amelia Caire of the act is the present Mrs. Charles Freeman, wife of the Interstate Theatres booker, long headquartered in Dallas.

His wife and daughter survive.

IRENE BORDONI
March 19, 1953
L. J. W.

NAT NATHANSON

Nat Nathanson, 61, died Dec. 19, 1960 in Guam, his body being returned to his former home at Phoenix for burial. Nathanson had been an internationally-circulating showman for some 46 years, representing U.S. film distributors in the Far East, also handling American-made projection gear for export.

Nathanson hit the global trail first in 1914 with two-reelers. In 1928 he was the first to bring talking pictures to certain Pacific outposts. In turn he imported to the States in 1931 a Japanese camera described as close to the Polaroid, but could not establish it here.

Working between New York, Manila and Singapore he was captured by the Japanese and spent over three years in the Santo Tomas camp near Manila. Thereafter he opened an exchange on the Island of Guam. He wrote three books on his war experiences.

Survivors include his wife Mary, a son, three daughters, two sisters, and four grandchildren.

FRANK N. HEARN, JR.
March 26, 1932
My Darling Boy
Forever in my heart.
Mother Julie Knox

ALVAH H. CHAPMAN Sr.

Alvah H. Chapman Sr., 71, newspaper and radio-tv executive, died March 12 in Columbus, Ga. He underwent brain surgery last November. A native of Tazewell, Ga., he started his newspaper career as circulation manager of the Columbus Ledger in 1921. Named general manager of the Bradenton (Fla.) Herald in 1926, he returned to Columbus in 1938 to head the R. W. Page Corp.

The Page Corp. owns and publishes Columbus Ledger, Enquirer, Sunday Ledger-Enquirer and Bradenton Herald. It also owns Enquirer-Sun Co., which leases newspaper equipment. Chapman was v.p. of the Columbus Broadcasting Co., owners-operators of WRBL Radio and WRBL-TV, Columbus. His son Alvah Jr., is an exec with the Miami Herald.

Surviving besides his son are his wife, daughter, three sisters and a brother.

ALFRED KIRSCHNER

Alfred Kirschner, pioneer dubbing expert, died recently in Munich of a heart ailment. In the late 1920s he was credited with being the first industryite to suggest foreign language dubbing of Hollywood's new talkies.

Kirschner devised dubbing methods which are still in use today in the European exhibition studios. He started his career as assistant to his stepfather, the late impresario Sam Rachman, who managed a European cartel, Parufamet. Latter was a joint operation of Paramount, UFA and Metro.

With Paris as his headquarters, Kirschner dubbed Paramount product into seven different language versions. After World War II he moved his activities to Berlin and Munich. He dubbed Universal pix for a time, then handled Warner films until his death.

MIGUEL F. ROCHA

Miguel Faust Rocha, onetime top Argentine actor who in recent years had been in virtual retirement due to ill health, died March 6 in the Buenos Aires suburb of Vicente Lopez. After making his debut in amateur theatricals, he turned professional with the Camila Quiroga Company. In the early 1930s he was regarded as one of B.A.'s most distinguished performers.

Rocha, who worked in Hollywood in 1935, later became a star with Argentina's National Comedy Theatre. He was seen in such plays as "Cyrano de Bergerac," "Our Town" and "La Divisa Punzo." He was president of the Actors' Assn. in 1939. He was among those actors who were persecuted under the Peron regime for their political beliefs.

Surviving are his wife, daughter and a brother.

IRVING SARNOFF

Irving Sarnoff, 60, exec v.p. of Bruno-New York and brother of RCA chairman David Sarnoff, died March 19 in N. Y. of cancer. He was a pioneer, like his older brother, in the radio field, entering the business in 1925. His specialty was sales and distribution, and he built the Bruno organization, which is the RCA distributor in the N. Y. metropolitan area, to its present status of one of the largest electronic distributors in the country.

Sarnoff also was active in the field of military communications, an early interest of his, and was a member of the Armed Forces Communications & Electronics Assn. and the Defense Orientation Conference.

Survivors, besides David Sarnoff, include his wife, son, daughter and two other brothers.

ROBT. MacA. CRAWFORD

Lt. Robert MacArthur Crawford, 61, U. S. Air Force, retired composer who wrote the official Air Force song, died March 12 in New York, after a brief illness.

While attending Princeton University, he composed music for the Triangle Club shows of 1924-25. After graduation, Crawford established the Princeton Conservatory of Music. He later studied and taught voice at the Juilliard School of Music in N. Y. He also sang on the concert stage. It was while flying to a concert engagement that he composed a song which he entered in a contest sponsored by the Air Corps. The song, "Off We Go, Into the Wild Blue Yonder," won and was adopted as the official anthem of the Air Force.

His wife, four sons and a brother survive.

JESSAMINE NEWCOMBE

Jessamine Newcombe, longtime actress who was cast in many featured roles in legit, died March 15 in Hollywood. Born in London, she trained with Sir Herbert Tree in repertory. Her Broadway debut was in the 1918 production of "So This Is London."

For a time Miss Newcombe was leading lady for George M. Cohan in "Fulton of Oak Falls." She starred in many productions at Boston's Copley Theatre and the Lakewood Theatre, Skowhegan, Me. She went to the Coast in 1942 for film and radio work. After suffering a stroke in 1945 she turned to private coaching.

Surviving are her husband, former director-producer Melville Burke, and a son.

GEORGE HAROLD MESSMORE

George Harold Messmore, 76, owner of Messmore & Damon Co., makers of theatrical props, circus equipment and dinosaurs, died Feb. 15 in New York, after a long illness.

Messmore & Damon began business about 1912, and turned out an older animated papier-mache productions of man and beast. These ranged from models of Santa Claus and Mother Goose for department store windows to dancers and horror exhibits for carnivals. Born in Detroit, Messmore worked with the old Barnum & Bailey circus and the prop crew of the Metropolitan Opera before teaming up with Damon.

His wife, son and three sisters survive.

RENE ANDRE

Everlyne Adams, 42, exotic dancer known professionally as Rene Andre, died in Chicago March 12 of carbon monoxide poisoning. She was found in her car, with no indication as to whether it was suicide or accidental death.

An exotic for nearly 20 years, she retired about two years ago as a result of scars suffered on her neck from skin rejuvenation treatments she had been taking in Los Angeles. Her retirement was widely publicized inasmuch as it coincided with a civil suit she initiated against the clinic which contributed to a widespread investigation of similar operations.

SHIZU MORIYA

Shizu Moriya O'Brien, 50, an actress who appeared in many Broadway productions, in films and tv, died March 12 in New York. She came to the U. S. from Japan and was graduated from Vassar College. She went into the theatre and appeared both in the U. S. and Japan. She was the original Higa Jiga in "Teahouse of the August Moon" and played the part on Broadway for two years. Her last appearance was in a revival last winter of "Lute Song," at the City Center.

Her husband, legit stage manager Chester L. O'Brien, two brothers and a sister survive.

YASCHA PAII

Yacsha Paii, 70, Russian-born musician, who played fiddle for the Czar when six years old, died of cancer last week in Glendale, Cal. He had been associated in motion pictures with Samuel Bronston, Arthur Ripley and Jacques Grinieff. For the last year he was working on a feature which combined live animal action with a cast including Jan Clayton, Jackie Coogan and June diMaggio.

Shooting on the film had been completed in Hollywood but picture had not been cut when the producer died.

His wife and two children survive.

GLENN C. MILLER

Glenn Clark Miller, 47, assistant general manager of WCPO radio and tv stations, Cincinnati, died there March 20 from a heart attack suffered two days earlier at his home.

He joined the Scripps-Howard organization in 1944 as an announcer and advanced to station manager of WCPO in 1959 and assistant to general manager Mortimer C. Watters. Later he doubled as exec of WCPO-TV. Before entering radio he headed a Cincinnati dance band for several years.

Survived by wife, son, daughter, father and stepmother.

ROBERT F. DEGEN

Robert F. Degen, 60, a vicepresident and account executive of Ted Bates & Co., advertising agency, died March 17 in Larchmont, N. Y. A graduate of New York University, he was with Young & Rubicam and Erwin Wasey & Co., until 1933, when he joined Kenyon & Eckhardt, Inc., of which he became vicepresident and merchandising director. Degen joined Ted Bates in 1943. He was also an associate professor at N. Y. U. for several years.

His son, brother and sister survive.

CARRIE BERNHARDT

Carrie Bernhardt, 85, vet vaude singer, died March 10 in Glasgow. She began as a 10-year-old performer in the old Scotia music hall, now the Metropole Theatre, Glasgow, and later became famed as a Principal Boy in pantomime, featuring the song "After The Ball."

She had latterly appeared each year in a "Veterans of Variety" show at the Metropole, Glasgow, and was a member of a concert party which stared shows for old-age pensioners' clubs.

HARRY M. BRALOVE

Harry M. Bralove, 70, owner of the Shoreham Hotel, Washington, D.C., died of a heart attack March 20 in Golden Beach, Fla. Onetime secretary to Franklin D. Roosevelt when he was Assistant Secretary of the Navy, he assumed control of the Shoreham before it opened in 1930.

Two sons, Bernard and Allan Bralove, have been active in the hotel's management for a number of years. A third son also survives.

LUCIA COLE WARAM

Mrs. Lucia Cole Waram, wife of actor Percy C. Waram, died March 11 in Stonington, Conn. She met her husband, who began a stage career in his native England, soon after his visit to the U. S. in 1907, with a Ben Greet repertory company. She joined the company and for four years appeared with her husband in a vaudeville sketch called, "The Bosun's Mate," on the old Orpheum Circuit. She then retired from the stage.

Her son, daughter and brother also survive.

KATHLEEN KIDD

Kathleen Maud Kidd, Canadian actress, died Feb. 23 in Toronto, Can.

She appeared in the 1926 Broadway production of "Charlot's Revue." During the next seven years she appeared in "Hit the Deck," "Oh Kay" and "Good News." Her films include "What Price Glory." She returned to Canada in 1933 and turned to radio, becoming one of the best known actresses in Broadcasting Corp. dramas.

Her son survives.

VICENTE ORONA Jr.

Vicente Orona Jr., 30, a versatile Mexican actor known for his dramatic and comedy roles on films and tv, died of a heart attack March 11 in Mexico City. In recent years he was also active in adapting published works for stage and tv use.

Surviving are his father, film director Vicente Orona, and his mother, actress Matilde Brillas. He was divorced from Martha Elena Cervantes.

EDIE HALEY

Edie (Edith) Haley, 69, vet warbler and male impersonator, died recently in Manchester, Eng. She was sometimes known as Scotland's "Vesta Tilley."

A native of the north of England, she spent over 40 years in show biz in Auld Lang Syne territory, playing most of the vauderies there. She made her last stage appearance four years ago in Glasgow.

LLOYD L. LIND

Lloyd L. Lind, 49, v.p. and general sales manager of Interstate Television Corp., Allied Artists subsid, died March 19 in Norwalk, Conn., following an operation.

Lind, a veteran in the motion picture biz, was associated with Monogram Pictures, Republic Pictures, and Pathe Industries in various capacities.

Survivors include his wife and two daughters.

VIOLET HAMILTON

Violet Hamilton, 54, wardrobe mistress, died Feb. 19 in the North of England. She started as a chorus girl 40 years ago.

She was stage manager for Sandy Powell for some years and also worked for John Beaumont's pantomime companies. Her last show as wardrobe mistress was "The Brides Of March" at St. Martin's Theatre last year.

JULIUS PANDL

Julius Pandl, 68, veteran Milwaukee nitery and restaurant operator, died March 5 in that city after a year's illness. A native of Austria, he conducted Pandl's Restaurant from 1936 until the time of his death. He also owned and operated the Bismark Hotel and Vienna Garden in Milwaukee.

Surviving are his wife, son and a daughter.

HOWARD O. RENNEBOHM

Howard O. Rennebohm, 68, who retired in 1958 after 37 years as stage manager of the Capitol Theatre, Regina, Sask., died Feb. 28 in Regina. He started as an usher in Regina's first theatre in 1906 and later handled similar duties in the city hall.

Surviving are his wife, three sons, brother and two sisters.

DAVE MILLER

Dave Miller, 57, former UI musical director and for past [illegible] years in public relations, died of a heart attack March 14 in Polyword. He had recently retired from Pacific Ocean Park for past [illegible] years and once was a violinist and Crash Corrigan's manager.

His wife survives.

P. W. MAHON

P. W. Mahon, 83, longtime theatre op in Prince Albert, Sask., died March 1 in that city following a heart attack. As an associate of Famous Players Canadian Corp., he had the Strand and Orpheum Theatres and The Pines drive-in.

Survived by his wife, two sons and a daughter.

ELIZ. MUELLER-GROEBNER

Elizabeth Mueller-Groebner, 80, veteran magician who was active until recently, died Feb. 19 in Vienna. She had appeared before Emperor Franz Joseph before World War I.

Her act was also frequently seen at the former Ronacher variety house in Vienna.

NONA PAGE

Nona Page, who teamed with her husband in a tight wire act billed as Joe Page & Nona, died March 11 in Kansas City after a long illness. The couple was a familiar turn to European audiences. They also appeared in Australia from 1941-46.

Surviving, besides her husband, is a son.

JESSE SOURS

Jesse Sours, retired circus and vaudeville aerialist, died March 8 in Pontiac, Mich. He worked with the Sells-Floto and Barnum Bailey circuses for years. He also trouped in vaude until his retirement about 20 years ago.

His wife survives.

MARION B. CHRISTIE

Marion Brown Christie, 83, concert singer, died recently in Edinburgh. For years she was one of Scotland's leading contraltos and sang for the Edinburgh Choral Union as far back as 1892.

She toured the U.K., singing in many key cities.

EDGAR L. BILL

Edgar L. Bill, 69, onetime midwest broadcaster, died in retirement March 9 in Tucson, Ariz. He had been managing director of Chicago station WLS from 1924 to 1931. He later purchased WMBD in Peoria, Ill., which he operated for 20 years.

DIANA BLACKWOOD

Diana Blackwood, actress, died recently in London. She appeared with several stock companies and starred in the West End in "Six Characters In Search Of An Author."

She was also a film and tv actress.

KENNETH LOBBEN

Kenneth Lobben, 56, vet motion picture stillman, died of cancer in Hollywood, March. He launched his career in 1933 and worked at various studios until 1959.

Daughter survives.

Mrs. Grace Hickox Harrison, 81, an authority on dramatic technique and training for the stage, died March 9 in New Rochelle, N. Y. She founded the Grace Hickox Studio of Dramatic Arts in Chicago in 1917 and later established a studio at Steinway Hall in N. Y.

Paul Wittgenstein, 73, a one-armed concert pianist for whom a number of composers, including Richard Strauss, Erich Wolfgang Korngold, Franz Schmitt, Serge Borkiewicz and Serge Prokofieff, wrote music, died March 3 in Manhasset, N.Y.

Richard Atwood, 22, actor, died Feb 27 in New York. He appeared with the San Juan, Puerto Rico, Drama Festival. He most recently appeared at the Northland Playhouse in Detroit. He also had his own TV show in Rochester, N. Y., for a time.

Professor Archibald T. Davison, 77, internationally honored musicologist and choral director, who was "Doc" to Harvard collegians and to generations of Harvard and Radcliffe students, died [illegible] in Bald Rock, Mass. His [illegible] survive.

Mann Page, 71, [illegible] died March 15 in Kingston, N. Y. [illegible] and other broadcasting [illegible] were [illegible] and a sister survive.

"WIT"
"RACONTEUR"
"AUTHOR"

JACK DOUGLAS

and REIKO

GENE KNIGHT
New York Journal-American
"This guy knows how to make 'em laugh. JACK DOUGLAS has a comedy line different from any other performer."

DOROTHY KILGALLEN
New York Journal-American
"JACK DOUGLAS is the newest darling of the Hollywood audiences: they pack the Slate Bros. place to laugh at his banter . . ."

JACK O'BRIAN
New York Journal-American
"JACK DOUGLAS had a star-packed smash opening at the Slate Brothers club in H'wood . . . Danny Thomas & Red Skelton led the cheers. . . ."

HERB CAEN
San Francisco Chronicle
"His audience was laughing so long and loud that I can't tell you exactly what he said, but writer Jack Douglas' debut as a comedian at the hungry i Mon. night was a resounding success."

PAUL SPEEGLE
S. F. News-Call Bulletin
"When Douglas and Reiko went into a duet on 'Poor Butterfly' the place broke up."

BILL ROBERTS
Houston Post
"Douglas is just crazy—that's what he is—crazy with a dry reverse English on his humor that keeps the house howling."

VARIETY

Blue Angel, N.Y.
Jack Douglas, Reiko, Clancy Bros. (3) & Tom Makem, Barbara Gilbert; $4-$6-$7 minimums, according to night of the week.

Jack Douglas, wit, raconteur, author and maestro of the many bon mots, some of them so fast that the laughs pyramid, is a natural for the Blue Angel and not too esoteric for mass consumption, in the bigger spots, hotel rooms and the like. In the less than two years that he preemed as a saloon entry at The Den in Manhattan's Hotel Duane he has resolved the kinks. It may well be, too, that in 1959 he was a li'l ahead of his time. Since then, cranial comics like Sahl, Berman et al. have made their impact.

As longtime comedy scripter for Jack Paar, Douglas knows his way now around mass and class risibilities. Incidentally, he and Reiko, a Nipponese nifty (Mrs. Douglas in private life), got a terrific trailer for their Blue Angel debut by personaling on Paar's NBC'er the night before. Douglas has a fresh and refreshing brand of wit and humor which cannily pendulums from far-out to quasi-"sick" (latter not too much so) to betimes brilliant satire. The barbs are telling; the nifties undeniable; the yocks beaucoup.

Always the master of the jaundiced eye approach to current mores, he ranges from sex to "off-Broadway camps for boys where I was a part-time smoking instructor," to show biz ("everybody pushes some disease, all I got left to latch on to is jungle rot"), to Aimee Semple McPherson ("combination orgies and revival meetings").

A scintillating cynic he makes his offbeat humor pay off like an inflationary market. Author of "My Brother Was An Only Child" and "The Naked Busdriver," Douglas is a lean and laconic humorist whose style is unique. He borrows from none and, with expanding exposure now that he's taken to the saloons in earnest, will probably set a pattern all his own. The Herbert Jacoby-Max Gordon bonifacing team of the Blue Angel acted wisely in snagging him for his first trip east since coming to the fore at the Slate Bros.' Hollywood trap and later at the hungry i, Frisco.

Reiko is a cameo beauty, just under five-feet, who looks more like 16 or 17 than the 23 years she confessed to on the Paar show one night. Japanese songstress, with obvious seasoned schooling by new groom Jack Douglas, deadpans the jokes and even some of the songs. Her ring-a-ding attempts at some of the pops would be off-the-cob for Caucasians, but the Nipponese nifty, who presumably learned the lyrics from disks, sells her Fujiama razzmatazz to the hilt. On sheer optical delight she's appealing; fortifying her Oriental beauty with Occidental pops make for the extra values.

Reiko's penchant for fracturing English makes her the "Japanese Genevieve," to continue the Paar mantle. From the opening "Sing, Sing, Sing" to "Sayonara," "Poor Butterfly," "Polka Dot Bikini," "Come On-a My House" and "Fujiama Mama" (with frequent interruptions by semi-heckling Douglas) her Ginza-style rock 'n' roll mangling of the Brill Bldg. lyrics is most fetching. Kimona-clad and pony-tailed, the contrasting effect is a big plus. Abel.

Personal Management
JACK ROLLINS
200 West 57 Street, New York 19, N. Y.
JUdson 2-7977

FILMS | VIDEO | TV FILMS | RADIO | MUSIC | STAGE

MAR 30 1961

VARIETY

PRICE 35¢

Published Weekly at 154 West 46th Street, New York 36, N. Y., by Variety, Inc. Annual subscription, $15. Single copies, 35 cents.
Second Class Postage at New York, N. Y.
© COPYRIGHT 1961 BY VARIETY, INC. ALL RIGHTS RESERVED

Vol. 222 No. 5 NEW YORK, WEDNESDAY, MARCH 29, 1961 64 PAGES

WHERE THE TV ELITE DON'T MEET

Harrah's Builds Tahoe Prosperity As the 'Poor Man's Monte Carlo'

By JOE COHEN

Lake Tahoe, March 28.

Lake Tahoe is now considered the prime growth area of show business in the U.S., with an expansion program that runs counter to all existing patterns in the casino country. Lake Tahoe doesn't go after the big spender; the little guy losing only what he is able to afford is the type of spender that is approached. Big spenders, are, of course, welcome, but they cannot expect any red carpet treatment in this most democratic of all gaming areas.

Today winter weekends at Harrah's in Lake Tahoe's which has the largest casino in the country, are SRO. There are times when the traffic problem inside the spot are tremendous. Weekdays are comfortably filled. All this has come from meager beginnings four years ago, when the entire area, with the exception of two small casinos, shut up tight for the winter after Labor Day. Bill Harrah moved into Reno in 1955 and started on an expansion program for the entire area. He took over a small casino, across the road from where he is presently located. He then bought Sahadi's, and then the Stateline, and the expansion was on in earnest.

The secret of the prosperity explosion in the area, which has expanded from only 19 motels to 219 structures of that type, is the masses of small spenders who come in from San Francisco, Fresno, Sacramento and throughout California. Many of them are

(Continued on page 54)

Paar-Venue

London, March 28.

Jack Paar got himself in a rare old mixup while recording one of his programs in London. Interviewing Lord Boothby, he called him a knight. Lord Beaverbrook he alternately called "Lord" and "Mister Beaverbrook."

Cracked Bea Lillie (Lady Peel), also on the show, "That makes me a Lady in my own wrong."

'Destry,' Saudek, Willson on ABC's Westinghouse Bill

The 18 programs to be done in behalf of Westinghouse Electric next season by the three tv networks are taking shape, and principal among them will be a video adaptation on ABC-TV of "Destry Rides Again." It will mark the first time a Broadway musical has been repeated for the tv audience since Hallmarks's "Kiss Me Kate" a couple of years ago.

Bankroller is seeking Jim Garner to play the original Andy Griffith role in "Destry." If Garner does it, occasion will mark his return—temporarily—to ABC-TV, where he did "Maverick" until he walked off on producer Warner Bros. in a contract dispute.

CBS will get six dramas, which have yet to be chosen and one of the two 90-minute entries Westinghouse wants to do beginning next October. The 90-minuter will be a tv version of Walter Lord's book,

(Continued on page 42)

'Gypsy' Takes to Road With $365,000 Profit; 234G Pic Payoff Due

"Gypsy," which begins touring tomorrow night (Thurs.) in Rochester, concluded an 89-week Broadway run last Saturday (25) with an estimated $365,000 profit on a $420,000 investment. That's based on a Feb. 11 net of $341,029 for the Ethel Merman-starrer, plus estimated subsequent operating income.

The financial estimate takes into consideration a deduction of 20% of the profits as a running expense, with 15% going to Miss Merman's ex-husband, Robert F. Six, and 5% to stager-choreographer Jerome Robbins. The musical hasn't received any income yet from the sale of the film rights to Warner Bros. for $650,000 against 10% of the picture's gross. The production's 40% share, less 10% commission, of the $650,000 will be $234,000. Six's payoff is in accordance with terms of the original fiscal setup.

The net earned by the David

(Continued on page 57)

Nixon-Skouras Luncheon Recalls Wendell Willkie

Hollywood, March 28.

Visit yesterday (Monday) by former Vice-President Richard M. Nixon to 20th-Fox, as luncheon guest of prexy Spyros Skouras, set off speculation whether the meeting was all social or perhaps tinged with some business.

Officially there was no hint of anything beyond the social amenities, but fact that Skouras brought in late Republican leader, Wendell Willkie, as board chairman of 20th in 1942 was recalled. Chairmanship was not filled after Wilkie's death, but 20th recently expanded its board to 12 by adding two Wall Streeters.

Nixon has resettled here and is now counsel to the downtown law firm of Adams, Duque & Hazeltine.

LOST AUDIENCE: OPINION-MAKERS

By BOB CHANDLER

There's no way to verify it by the ratings, but nevertheless there's a growing concern among some top tv thinkers that the medium has lost a vital segment of its audience — the professional class of doctors, lawyers, teachers and business leaders. In short, the opinion-makers, the people who used to talk up the medium and who used to get excited about its crusades and accomplishments as well as its failings.

The evidence — and it's purely subjective — is that even in tv's brighter moments, far and few between as they are becoming, "nothing happens" anymore. There's no excited public reaction, no afterglow of the kind that accompanied a public affairs coup or a standout dramatic show of the past. People don't talk about tv anymore — with the exception of a Paar-Sullivan feud (which the webs would rather they forget about)—the way they used to. Even tv's best efforts

(Continued on page 34)

Opera Buffs Boo Met's Philly Fade

Philadelphia, March 28.

Rudolf Bing, general manager of the Metropolitan Opera, was booed by a capacity audience last Tuesday night (21) at the final curtain of "Turandot," the company's season closer at the Academy of Music here. The opera goers gave an eight-minute ovation to the stars, Birgit Nilsson, Franco Corelli, Leontyne Price and conductor Leopold Stokowski.

Bing said later he was encouraged by the boos. "They mean Philadelphia will miss the Met." He had announced a month ago that after 76 seasons, "Turandot" would mean the end of the company's regular Tuesday night performances in this city. There are six dates pencilled in for next season, however, according to Harold

(Continued on page 62)

'Playboy': Own Hero

Hollywood, March 28.

Heavily ballyhooed operations of Playboy, magazine for stags and the chain of cafes operated therewith, becomes the subject of a feature film wherein Playboy's owner-publisher, Hugh Hefner, will be the protagonist, with Tony Curtis set to impersonate him.

Film is first for Curtleigh Productions. Stan Margulies will function as producer, with Hefner as partner.

Curtis will be free late April following Metro's "Lady L" when the Playboy feature is to roll.

Future Participations If Toll Clicks Part of Present Come-On to Actors

Speculation about home tollvision has become further extended —and in a very real way. It's now focusing on the possibility that important name players and other talent might find in this new show business outlet a source of an annuity—specifically, a dollar payoff every time a show they now do, most likely on tape, is re-run.

International Telemeter's offering of Gian-Carlo Menotti's "The Consul" in Etobicoke, a suburb of Toronto, is an example. The whole thing was put together for about $100,000. This means not too much initial expense on Telemeter's part. And not too much of a payoff for Menotti and the star performer Patricia Neway.

But both Menotti and Miss Neway were lured by the prospect of repeats on the heels of last week's showings in Canada. If homescreen catches on, and "Consul" comes to be a reliable commodity, each showing will mean so much more income for the key parties who are on a participation basis. This revenue will be spread out over the years.

This same obtains with comedian Bob Newhart, who did a live program for Telemeter recently, all recorded on tape for future use, and future remuneration to Newhart.

The very real nature of the Telemeter exposures lies in the fact that the show business people are investing in it, donating time and talent in the hope that there will be "reissues" of their work. These will be in the form of pay-as-you-see telecasts throughout the world via Telemeter franchise holders and or via program ex-

(Continued on page 62

Hot Hulas

Honolulu, March 28.

Caution to entertainers who wear raffia hula skirts: get 'em fireproofed! Honolulu Better Business Bureau has asked local stores to apply a protective spray before offering them for sale to tourists, citing the fact that three mainland hula skirt fire fatalities have occurred in the past six months.

Source says it costs only about 4c per skirt to fireproof each skirt.

Civil War Echoes Loudly on Disks; Centennial Kick

The Civil War is being fought all over again on the turntables this year. The disk companies are commemorating the centennial of the War Between the States with a push on new and catalog material.

"Abraham Lincoln was wrong," says a current Decca promotion piece, "when he said 'The world will little note, nor long remember what we say here.'" Decca's point is based on the large number of books about the Civil War that continually flood the market and the growing number of disks that document the same period in sound.

Decca's drive is centered on five albums with an additional one in its subsid Coral catalog. Recently released is "The Blue and the Grey" featuring songs of the war

(Continued on page 54)

Times' Bistro Coverage Clicks With Saloon Set

The N. Y. Times is taking the bistro belt seriously. It could be because of the predominance of egghead comics but, whatever the reason, the paper is now giving the night club circuit regular review coverage. This emphasis on cabaret activity is being extended further with the introduction this week of a daily boxed listing of nitery openings.

The preem announcements will be similar to those run by the paper in connection with Broadway legit openings. The paper's revived coverage of the clubs after a lapse of several years began last October on a temporary basis. It's now an accepted entertainment department beat and, as such, is considered a boon to both the clubs and

(Continued on page 62)

Bellydancers Begin To Give Flamenco Sinuous Competition in Madrid

Madrid, March 28

Spaniards don't like to admit it, but the influx of bellydancers in Madrid late-spots is giving traditional flamenco sinuous competition. For the last three years the only diaphragm doll on the nitery circuit was lithe, agile Nain a Cherky. She held forth like an Oriental queen of the midriff, year after year, at the midtown boite Morocco. This season, however, there is a serious Casbah trend in late-hour entertainment

Recent imports from Egypt brightening the cellars around town are Kubrah, who heads the show at the Micheleta, and Boubouka, at the Alcazar.

In all instances, unfortunately, the exotic grinders seem to be limited to a single routine and are almost always the last turn on the program. Consequently, patrons

(Continued on page 62)

WBAL-TV Stirs a Nat'l Rhubarb With Reenactment of Murder Verdict

By LOU CEDRONE JR.

Baltimore, March 28.

With its "unprecedented public revelation of jury room activity" in which it reenacted on tape with nine of the 12 jurors the deliberations of the jury that found Melvin Davis Rees Jr., guilty of kidnaping and killing a Virginia mother and her five-year-old daughter, WBAL-TV here stirred up a nest of hornets.

Immediate reaction to the program was a postponement for a few days of the sentencing of Rees. A defense motion for a new trial had been denied last Wednesday (22), day of the telecast, by Federal Judge Roszel Thomsen, and sentencing was to follow on Thursday.

On Thursday, however, after court convened, Rees' court-appointed lawyers asked Judge Thomsen to defer sentencing, saying the defense wanted time to obtain script of the program and added that the jurors on the program "discussed facts which hadn't been brought out in the trial."

The attorney said he didn't know if program had violated Rees'

(Continued on page 40)

Advice Bob Moses Never Wants, But Here's Some—

New York.

Editor, VARIETY:

Here we go again, with talk of a New York World's Fair sans "show biz hoopla" (VARIETY, front page, March 15).

Long before my present association with The Katz Agency, when I was managing Town Hall, Olin Downes, then the great music critic of the New York Times, asked me to help him promote a classical music program at the 1939 Fair. Downes had put together a glamorous schedule of the world's finest: Boston Symphony, Elman, Rubinstein, Marian Anderson, etc., etc. I was enthusiastic, and managed a leave of absence from Town Hall to pitch in. The Fair cooperated by building us a beautiful concert hall.

But—we couldn't even whisper an announcement at the Fair of what was going on. Too undignified!

You may remember what happened: they finally had to bring in the showmen to save the Fair. Our glorious music festival was cut: the concert hall was turned over to Mike Todd and "The Hot Mikado"; and "culture alley" became a normal, exciting, Fair midway, with loud speakers making sure people at the Fair knew what was going on.

It broke our hearts a bit at the time, but we learned a lesson—When running a World's Fair, remember that you're in show biz.

Ken Klein
Public Relations Director
KATZ AGENCY

Deadpan Prez

Washington, March 28.

At the Radio-TV Correspondents' preliminaries attendant to their show for the President a week ago Saturday, he scanned the bill and nodded.

"Yes, I know about Dinah Shore and Shelley Berman, but the Harvard Glee Club, what's that?"

He's All for Dames, Too; Bauer Hopes Berlin Fest Will Be More Sexy, 1961

Berlin, March 28.

Last year, Dr. Alfred Bauer, head of Berlin Film Festival, heard some unpleasant remarks that his 1960 festival was a bit "on the dull side." In particular, those remarks were made by those journalists who missed a big international female star. "This is a men's festival!" they said and referred to the fact that mainly male stars had come for the junket.

"Well," Bauer said now. "Nobody shall say that I dislike women. I understand that the boulevard press needs a bosomy star. All right, it'll have one this year." Already months ago, he started corresponding with Jayne Mansfield and latter let Bauer know that she'd come to Berlin for the 1961 film festival. She'll bring husband Mickey Hargitay. Tony Curtis and Janet Leigh are promised to come.

Marilyn Miller Estate Negotiates a Biopic

Hollywood, March 28.

Indie production team of Al Zimbalist and Byron Roberts talking with estate of musical comedy great, Marilyn Miller. If rights are cleared will put a biopic before cameras in September. Dorothy Provine, Shirley MacLaine and Kim Novak are mentioned for title role.

Another property of pair is "The Willie Sutton Story," with pitch to be made to Tony Randall to enact the famed bankrobber who's now doing time in New York's Auburn Prison.

ANOTHER OPERATIC NEGRO

Ella Lee, another U.S. Negro operatic talent, will make her first major American solo dates next season under Columbia Artists Andre Mertens) with the Detroit Symphony. She's also set separately with the Montreal Symph.

Following the pattern forced by circumstances on so many American operatic singers, Miss Lee has been getting her seasoning in Europe. She'll debut in April at the Komissche Opera in Berlin.

PAUL ANKA

says thank you to: CHARLES DENTON, Nationally Syndicated Television Columnist and Television Editor, Los Angeles Examiner, who writes:

"PAUL ANKA is a bundle of talent. At 19, he has all the polish and stage savy of a seasoned showbusiness pro."

Tax Caution On 'Entertainment'

Tulsa, March 28.

Well-to-do wheels who pop into New York once or twice a year are being warned by their certified public accountant, one man they respect, to proceed with caution in buying theatre tickets in either New York or Chicago. "Be sure you can prove the business expense necessity" advice is likely to be taken somewhat more seriously in 1961. Legit theatres in particular may feel it.

This kind of talk accompanies every "recession," which now seem to arrive in shortwave oscillation every few years. The word in these parts is that "little millionaires" are curtailing their personal spending and only "big millionaires" (not necessarily oil alone) continue to do what they want to do.

That income tax inspectors may go after "conspicuous entertainment expenditures" this year as never before is the message. It is not good news to metropolitan hotels, cafes, playhouses or other pleasure spots.

The Deep South has enjoyed much prosperity in recent years and so far as the chaps who control the important commercial franchises go, there is no longer anything "backward" about Dixie. But the new note of caution sweeps in from Western (sic) Florida, Alabama, Louisiana and Texas.

Hope Wins Tax Refund In Foundation Case

Washington, March 28.

Federal Judge Peirson M. Hall yesterday (Mon.) ruled in favor of the Hope Foundation against U.S. Internal Revenue Bureau for a refund of $53,000 for fiscal year ended March 19, 1954. Government, in tapping Foundation for this amount, claimed Bob Hope, who contributed $100,000 to the Foundation from coin received from his "Have Tux, Will Travel" Book, and his "This Is on Me" Satevepost article, prospered by publicity and writing.

Bench held Foundation was operated exclusively for charitable purposes and was non-taxable. Appeal is up to the D.C. headquarters of IRB.

JFK Names USO V.I.P.'s

Washington, March 28.

President John F. Kennedy has named three to the board of governors of the United Service Organizations Inc. (USO), actor Ralph Bellamy, former Navy Secretary Dan A. Kimball (husband of political columnist Doris Fleeson) and Mrs. Henry Mannix of Neponsit, N.Y.

The President also appointed three to be members of the USO corporation, hotelman Barron Hilton of Los Angeles; Mrs. Fredric R. Mann of Philadelphia and Luther Skaggs Jr. of Washington.

Show Biz Income Tax Deductions

By J. S. SEIDMAN, C.P.A.
(of Seidman & Seidman)

Show people are entitled to many income tax deductions. To claim them is easy. To make them stick is something else again. The Government is entitled to proof of two things: (1) that the amount was actually spent; and (2) that the items are professional, not personal expenses. Mere say-so or "guesstimate" is not enough. If these two requirements are met, all of the following items are deductible:

Preparation expenses—research, cost of material, dialog, gags, music; special coaching lessons; costumes, wigs, shoes, makeup; repair, pressing, cleaning, dyeing, and rental of professional wardrobe; wardrobe valet; beautifying, physical culture; studio rentals, tips to studio employees; recordings of voice or program; screen tests, auditions, accompanist.

Booking expenses—scouting for engagements; agent and personal management commissions; legal expenses on contracts; income taxes paid abroad on foreign bookings.

Traveling expenses—transportation, board, and lodging away from home; automobile upkeep and depreciation; cabs from one engagement to another; expenses on trips taken to get material, background, or ideas for professional work.

Public relations expenses—development of public following; handling of fan mail; photographs; complimentary tickets; entertaining press, playwrights, critics, backers, agents, directors; club membership dues; advertising and publicity; press agent's fees.

Miscellaneous expenses—VARIETY and other trade papers; Equity and other union dues; telephone exchange; accountants' fees; bodyguards; rent, secretary, and office expense; household expenses, like rent, maid service, utilities, telephone, insurance (but only to the extent household is used actively for conferences with authors, writers, agents, or on other professional matters).

Jessel Dishes Out 'Spoon River' Style In Free Verse Salute to Manhattan

George Jessel has authored a sprightly tome of free verse, "Elegy In Manhattan" (Holt, Rinehart & Winston; $3.95), frankly patterned after Edgar Lee Masters' "Spoon River Anthology" which, in turn, he suspects was inspired by Thomas Gray's "Elegy Written In A Country Churchyard." Utilizing the canvas of the borough in which he was born, Jessel reprises the careers of show biz, politico and sports greats, "nearly all (of whom) are resting on the banks of Manhattan."

The personalities whom he eulogizes, in hard-fact approach leavened only with a little sentiment and rarely any sugarcoating, range from Maude Adams, Jacob P. Adler and Fred Allen to Jimmy Walker, Stanford White and Florenz Ziegfeld; from Max Baer and P. T. Barnum to Helen Morgan, Louis B. Mayer and William Morris Sr., from Al Jolson and Jack Johnson to Norma Talmadge (a onetime Mrs. Jessel), Eva Tanguay, Harry K. Thaw and Mike Todd. All told there are 61 such elegies, and not all are immortals or "greats" in the accepted sense because Jessel also saw fit to include such obtuse figures as Louis "Eppie" Epstein (a longtime Jolson aide whom the great star seemingly forgot in his will; obviously Jessel's not too

(Continued on page 62)

'But Not Me': Marks Levine

"No desire, no intent and no plan to return to concert management" is Marks Levine's categorical response to the rumor of his buying back in National Concerts from which he retired seven years

Levine is content to be a music consultant, a raris avis in America. He handles the Little Orchestra for one.

Paris Students Try To Halt 'Cardinal,' Legit Show; Nab 47 Rioters

Paris, March 28.

About 100 college students tried to break up a presentation of Henry De Montherlant's play, "The Spanish Cardinal" (Le Cardinal D'Espagne), at the staid Comedie-Francaise Sunday night (19). Stinkbombs were thrown and shrill yells held up the play while police arrested 47 of the rioters. However, the play was finally finished and warmly applauded by most of audience.

The 47 were held for one night and released. They said they were

(Continued on page 62)

3-29

VARIETY

Subscription Order Form

Enclosed find check for $.....

Please send VARIETY for ☐ One Year ☐ Two Years ☐ Three Years

To .....
(Please Print Name)

Street .....

City ..... Zone.... State.....

Regular Subscription Rates
One Year—$15.00 Two Years—$28.00
Three Years—$39.00
Canada and Foreign—$1 Additional Per Year

VARIETY Inc.
154 West 46th Street New York 36, N. Y.

VARIETY
Trade Mark Registered
FOUNDED 1905 by SIME SILVERMAN; Published Weekly by VARIETY, INC.
Syd Silverman, President
154 West 46th St., New York 36, N. Y. JUdson 2-2700
Hollywood 28
6404 Sunset Boulevard, Hollywood 9-1141
Washington 4
1202 National Press Building, STerling 3-5445
Chicago 11
400 No. Michigan Ave., DElaware 7-4984
London, S.W.1
49 St. James's Street, Piccadilly, HYde Park 4561-2-3

SUBSCRIPTION Annual, $15; Foreign, $16; Single Copies, 35 Cents

ABEL GREEN, Editor

Volume 222 120 Number 5

INDEX

Bills	54	New Acts	54
Casting News	58	Night Club Reviews	53
Chatter	62	Obituaries	63
Film Reviews	6	Pictures	3
House Reviews	54	Radio	17
Inside Legit	59	Record Reviews	44
Inside Radio-TV	40	Television	17
International	11	TV Film	22
Legitimate	55	Television Reviews	27
Literati	60	Vaudeville	50
Music	44	Wall Street	7

DAILY VARIETY
(Published in Hollywood by Daily Variety, Ltd.)
$15 a year. $20 Foreign.

CHEAP PAY ALONE NO SCABBING

Moonlight and Roses

Following is full text of a press handout from the Council of Motion Picture Organizations:

"The tact of Russell V. Downing, chairman of the committee making arrangement for the dinner April 10 in honor of Eric Johnston, has prevented a row between a prospective guest and the guest's wife.

"Downing received a letter marked 'Confidential' from the wife of a motion picture man who is noted for his night club activities while on his frequent trips to New York. The letter stated that the writer's husband was planning to attend the Johnston dinner but that when she had asked him if he was taking her, too, the husband had told her that the party was stag. The wife wished to know if this was true.

"The dinner, of course, is not stag, and nearly all the guests will be accompanied by their ladies. Downing, however, knows the woman's husband and his fondness for the bright lights.

"Accordingly he replied to the wife that ladies were certainly invited but that through an inadvertence this was not made plain in the invitation sent to her husband. He then wired the husband at the latter's office, telling him what he had done and advising him as a friend to bring his wife.

"The husband wired back immediately thanking Downing, ordering another ticket for his wife."

London Investors Pay $6,300,000 For One-Third WB's British Shares

London, March 28.

Warner Bros. has sold 1,000,000 of its Associated British Picture Corp. shares. Stock—part of Warners' 3,000,000 shareholding—has been sold to London investors for about $6,300,000.

Associated British owns 339 cinemas and runs 19 producers in the Midlands and the North.

In the United Kingdom both Associated British and Warner pix are handled by a joint distrib outlet Warner-Pathe.

On the 1,000,000 share deal, Sir Philip Warter, chairman of Associated, said: "I think this is a good thing for the company. For one thing it reduces the holding of the American concern and will mean the ABP will become more British.

"There have been no disagreements of any kind with Warner Brothers, with whom we have always been on the friendliest of terms. They probably thought it was a good time to sell, taking advantage of the price." He added there would be no board changes.

In 1941 Warners bought 2,000,000 Associated shares at $1.26 each and later another 1,000,000 at $2.80 each. Today Associated shares are worth around $6.44 on the London Stock Exchange.

Associated is one of the two biggest groups in U.K. film industry. Other is topped by Lord Rank who, in January, bought back 20th-Fox's half-interest in the Rank offshoot Metropolitan and Bradford Trust for $11,200,000—little more than 20th paid for it back in 1929.

Less Than Expected

Earlier anticipation in Wall Street had it that WB would unload its entire holdings in ABPC at upwards of $18,000,000. However, the board decided on peddling one-third of the stock in a deal set through Allen & Co., N. Y., and Hambros Bank Ltd., London.

Merge Disneyland If Owners OK

Hollywood, March 28.

Directorate of Walt Disney Productions Inc., at a special session held Friday (24), called a special stockholders meeting May 16 at the studio to take action on a proposed merger into parent company of its wholly-owned subsid, Disneyland Inc. Shareholders of record at close of biz April 10 will be entitled to notice of and to vote at special conclave.

Purpose of meet also is the ratification of certain agreements between the company and Walt Disney, and between Disneyland Inc., and Wed Enterprises Inc.

Fewer than 200 musicians on

WB's Quarterly 30c

Warners' board, at a meeting in New York City last Friday (24), declared the regular quarterly dividend of 30c on the common stock.

It's payable May 5 to holders of record on April 15.

Flicks Still Sell 10 Million Ducats Weekly to Britons

London, March 28.

Going to the pictures is still the top away-from-home leisure activity of the British. Despite rival claims of television, home-decorating, bowling and bingo, 10,000,000 cinema tickets are still sold in these islands every week. And, over a year, some 25,000,000 people make 520,000,000 trips to see a pic, spending $179,200,000 at the boxoffice.

These facts emerge from a new survey carried out by Group Marketing and Research for the Screen Advertising Association. Breakdown of age-groups reveals that the young adult 5,500,000 'single' and 6,750,000 'married' in the age range 16 to 34 makes up two thirds of the average cinema audience. From 16 to 24, young people go to the cinema, on average, three times in every four weeks and the number of visits is only slightly below this in the next age group 21 to 24. From 25 to 34, two-thirds remain cinemagoers, going to the cinema, on average, once a fortnight.

In the 35 to 44 age group 16 per cent of the population provide 13 per cent of admissions. Not until 45 is there a noticeable falling off in the cinema habit, for two-thirds of those who are cinemagoers in their teens remain so 10-15 years later. And, on average, they go to the pictures once a fortnight.

The survey shows that the spending power of cinemagoers in booming Britain is high—72% of the average cinema audience are full-time wage earners. Of the 11,565 people interviewed for the survey 8,507 had television. But this did not stop 34% of the tv-owners going to the cinema once a week and 28% twice a week or more.

Paul Graetz in N. Y.

Film producer Paul Graetz arrived in New York on Mon. (27) for talks with director Sidney Lumet on the beginning of shooting of "View From The Bridge," starting on April 3 in Brooklyn.

This is the first of a two-picture deal that Lumet has signed with Graetz.

ELVIN OF BRITAIN AS TO 'RUNAWAY'

By VINCENT CANBY

"If we're scabbing, let us know."

That was succinct advice given U. S. film labor toppers in New York last week by George H. Elvin, British union exec and secretary of the Association of Cinematograph, Television and Allied Technicians. Elvin, in the States on his first "look-see" trip, was in New York for a week before proceeding to Hollywood, from which he'll go to Toronto to inspect the Telemeter operation in Etobicoke.

In the course of his trip, for which Richard Walsh, prexy of the International Alliance of Theatrical Stage Employees, has been acting as unofficial host, Elvin said he had been constantly queried as to British cooperation re U. S. "runaway" production. Though he agreed that some films had been made abroad which could have been made in Hollywood, Elvin said he would not agree that British film labor was "scabbing" when they accepted wages less than those paid their Hollywood counterparts. The cost of living is less in Britain than in the States, he said, thus indicating that proportionately, British labor was not accepting a lower scale.

Purpose of his trip is for just such person-to-person discussions, leading, he hopes, to greater cooperation between the union people on both sides of the Atlantic.

Elvin said his men would be just as upset as their U. S. counterparts should they discern any movement for production "running away" from Britain. In this connection, he promised that British unions would be watching closely the pattern of British production following an accord among Britain, France and Italy leading to coproduced "national" pictures. That is, coproductions between British and continental countries which would qualify for quota benefits in both Britain and the continental market.

As To New Co-Prod.

He expects such an accord to be reached shortly, to be tested in a one year's trial period that will be automatically extended for a second year if there are no objections. Elvin notes, however, that British labor will take a dim view of the arrangement unless it results in an actual increase in number of pictures produced, since (and this depends on the number of coproductions entered into) if the number of films remains constant at, say, 100, 30 of which are coproductions, that would mean 15 less pictures actually made in British studios. Such coproductions would be made on a one-for-you, one-for-me basis.

Elvin also suggests that there may be a problem in getting the British public, which he described as a "conservative" like the American public, to accept the necessarily dubbed pictures which such coproductions with the continent would require. This has not been a barrier to the successful coproductions among French, Italian, Spanish and German producers, he thought, since those audiences are already keyed to dubbing. British audiences may not be so docile, he thinks.

Elvin bristles and then smiles when asked about the perennial complaint of some U. S. producers, who have worked in British studios, about the "tea breaks" on the set. He thinks that perhaps what those producers resent most is a strong union organization. And he says that such top U. S. filmmakers as John Ford and Joseph Mankiewicz have had nothing but praise for British studio operation.

How does he feel about prominent part being played in the British production scene by such U. S. companies as Metro, 20th and Columbia? It's quite fine, though he points out that the bulk of production still comes from such domestic companies as Rank, Associated British, British Lion, etc. He is

(Continued on page 63)

Mamoulian Mute Re 'Cleopatra'; But Explains Hollywood Woes As Its 'Live for Today' Phobia

It's sad, but true, that Hollywood's supremacy as the film capital of the world is "not what it was," and not entirely for reasons beyond the control of the U. S. film makers themselves.

This is the opinion of yet film and stage director Rouben Mamoulian given in an interview in New York Saturday (25). The director was en route back to Hollywood from London where he had rounds he worked on and then rescued from "John Lee" related "Cleopatra" project.

Acknowledging that a number of outside factors, not the least of which is television, have contributed to Hollywood's woes, Mamoulian suggested that the major film companies' preoccupation with real estate, oil and other investment activities has resulted in less serious attention being paid to the function which is the core of Hollywood—that is, filmmaking.

At the same time, he noted, there is and always has been in Hollywood a strong disposition to think "long-range." When he first went to the coast in the early 12-16s, he suggested that Paramount and the other companies maybe back an "experimental studio" to train new players and technicians. The cost would have been nominal, Mamoulian said, especially in terms of future benefits. Johnny-come-lately got anywhere, "perhaps because nobody ever felt the need to stay around long enough to enjoy the rewards." It's the old "live for today" attitude.

Mamoulian finds the situation particularly sad because "motion pictures are probably this country's greatest single contribution to the world," and Hollywood continues to be the largest center of filmmaking talent. In addition to which, Hollywood's technical facilities still outstrip those anywhere else.

Motion pictures today are more than ever an international entertainment.

(Continued on page 63)

UA Issues 33,333

New York Stock Exchange reports that United Artists has issued 33,333 additional shares of its common stock.

Listing now totals 1,277,621 shares.

AB-PT's 472 In '60, Drop 28, Add 2; Net 31% Over '59

Upbeat in its tele operation soared American Broadcasting-Paramount Theatres to record gross in 1960, with net reported up 31% from 1959. Net rose to $10,475,000 or $2.50 per share, up from $7,967,000 or $1.87 a share from previous annum.

Last year's gross, up 16%, hit $334,437,000, contrasted to $287,957,000 for '59. Though tele was the big fiscal gun, theatre holdings did well too, with allowance for offish takes blamed on product shortage resulting from last year's walkout of writers. Theatre income for the year reached $86,281,000, compared with $81,139,000 the year before.

At the close of '60, AB-PT had interests in 472 theatres after divesting 28 and acquiring two during the year.

Republic of Colombia Treated Yankee Party Dandy, Per Vietheer

U. S. delegation to the recently concluded Cartagena, Colombia, film festival received a "tremendous amount" of local publicity which must inevitably have nothing but a good effect at the boxoffices in that Latin American country, according to George Vietheer, exec officer of the Motion Picture Export Assn. Vietheer stepped in as MPEA rep with the delegation at the last minute when Robert Corkery, director of the MPEA's Latin American division, was unable to go.

In New York Friday (24), Vietheer paid particular tribute to U.S. delegates John Gavin, Barbara Baxley, Rosemary Murphy, Deborah Walley and Nancy Kovak. Group worked hard and received a "great press," he said. The fest, a non-competitive affair, is sponsored by the Colombian Tourist Board as well as the city of Cartagena. Affair ran March 10 through 20.

Travel and hotel expenses for the delegation were picked up by the host-sponsors of the fest.

U.S. pix shown included United Artists' "Never on Sunday" and "Elmer Gantry," Columbia's "Let No Man Write My Epitaph," 20th-Fox's "On The Terrace" and Paramount's "The Rat Race."

B.A. Conclave May 8 On 'Kings' Among Latins

Seymour Mayer, v.p. of Metro International, will leave New York April 3 for a month's tour of Latin American capitals, winding up in Buenos Aires where he'll set arrangements for continental conference on release of Samuel Bronston's "King of Kings."

The "Kings" conclave begins May 8 and will have M-G reps from throughout the area participating.

Boston Essaying Film Festival

Boston, March 28.

Boston is going to have a film festival. Its first annual International Film Festival will be held at the new Loeb Drama Center, Cambridge, May 22-27. San Francisco has America's only other international film fest (October).

George Papadopoulo, festival director, said only films not previously shown in the U. S. will be screened. A jury composed of art and drama critics, playwrights and cinematologists from the Greater Boston area will make the final awards on overall excellence.

The Boston International Film Festival is a non-profit organization. Any profits made will be used to establish scholarships at Greater Boston universities. The organization lists a Cambridge address, Boston International Film Festival, P. O. Box 79, Cambridge.

BUY ONLY AT PEAK

Why Producers Are Helpless Before Stars' Agents

Jerry Bresler, producer of "Gidget Goes Hawaiian" for Columbia, was in New York for, among other things, a conversation with reporters about the high cost of talent.

He opines it's a crying shame that film-makers, instead of building their own talent, go to other media for established names. This is in contrast with the record industry which develops its own stars, such as Elvis Presley, who then are hired by pic producers at fancy prices.

In springtime, all Europe sparkles with fun. It's less crowded...accommodations are plentiful. Prices are lower...your dollar buys more. And you get there on the finest Jetliner flying the Atlantic. When you arrive, you can call on TWA's friendly people at any time for helpful advice on language, shopping, currency, sightseeing. Reserve now, First Class or Economy, on the superb TWA SuperJet.

LONDON · PARIS · ROME · FRANKFURT
LISBON · MADRID · ATHENS · BOMBAY

Fly to Europe from New York or Polar Route† from Los Angeles

Call your travel agent or your nearest TWA office

†Effective April 15

U.S.A · EUROPE · AFRICA · ASIA
TWA
THE SUPERJET AIRLINE

*TWA THE SUPERJET AIRLINE is a service mark owned exclusively by Trans World Airlines, Inc.

Edgar Bergen, Importer

Hollywood, March 28.

American distribution rights to Swedish-made film, "Two Crazy Guys," starring Ingrid Thulin, have been acquired by Edgar Bergen.

Bergen will negotiate with a major for national release of comedy.

RANK DISTRIBS 'SODOM' IN ALL BUT 7 COUNTRIES

As forecast, J. Arthur Rank has taken a beaucoup slice of the distribution of "Sodom and Gomorrah," biblical spectacle which Embassy Pictures is coproducing with Italy's Titanus Films.

Deal calls for Rank to handle pic in all countries except the U.S., Canada, France, Belgium, Japan, Spain and Italy. Consortium-Pathe previously pacted for rights in France and Belgium, while Titanus will handle in Italy. Embassy, of course, retains U.S. and Canadian release.

Agreement with Rank is a participation arrangement against an undisclosed advance and guarantee.

Official confirmation of the Rank-Embassy deal was made last week in London by Joe Levine, Embassy topper; Colan W. P. MacArthur, managing director for Rank Overseas Films Ltd.; and Fred Thomas, ditto for Rank Film Distributors Ltd., which releases in the United Kingdom. Eddie Solomon, Embassy exec veepee, also made the London hop.

"Sodom" still has about two more months of location lensing in Morocco. Film co-stars Stewart Granger and Pier Angeli.

L. A. to N. Y.

Peter Arnell
Geraldine Brooks
Joe E. Brown
Sidney Carroll
Montgomery Clift
Herman Cohen
Morton DaCosta
Sol Baer Fielding
Frank M. Folsom
Judy Garland
L. Wolfe Gilbert
Virginia Grey
John Guedel
Herb Helman
Kenyon Hopkins
Leonard Kantor
Robert Kronenberg
Jerry Lewis
Laurie Main
Irving Mansfield
Tom McDermott
Jimmy McHugh
Budd Rogers
Fred Roeg
Frank Sennes
Martin Shapiro
Plato Skouras
Jeevlyn Somers
Joseph C. Youngerman

Europe to U. S.

Harvey Chertok
Hywell Davies
Jack Forrester
Heinz-Kurt Fraunstein
Jean Goldwurm
Tyrone Guthrie
Suzanne Reta Hall
Sheila Rosemay Hibbs
Sol Hurok
Harold E. Huxstep
Wolfe Kaufman
Alan Ladd
Rouben Mamoulian
Tanya Moiseiwitsch
Louis A. Novins
Donald O'Connor
G. R. A. Rice
George Rosen
Wilhelm Schmidt
Frank E. Taylor
Arthur Treffeisen
Sigrid Ziegler

U. S. to Europe

Gideon Bachmann
Tom Curtiss
Meyer Davis
Olivia de Havilland
Fred Gronich
Stanley Joseloff
Juliana Larsen
Lawrence Shubert Lawrence
Paul Steiner
Maxwell Shaw
Rose Tobias Shaw

N. Y. to L. A.

George L. Elvin
Eddie Fisher
S. Stanley Gordon
Arthur Hornblow Jr.
George Jessel
David Kapralik
Susan Oliver
Don Parker
Emmett Rogers
Charles Schlaifer
Ray Stark
Elizabeth Taylor
Max E. Youngstein

New York Sound Track

How to grab space without actually lying: one of the more tired industry publicity gambits is the "star-studded" premiere, accompanied by pounds of press releases announcing the names of celebs who (1) "have been invited" or (2) "are expected to attend," but more often don't—though actual attendance, of course, is be-ide the publicity point. In interest of historical accuracy, VARIETY herewith lists some of the public personaeges, Government dignitaries and film personalities who DID NOT attend the opening of "The King and I" at the Rivoli Thursday (23) evening: Mrs. Jacqueline Kennedy, U. S. Ambassador to the U. N. Adlai Stevenson, stars Yul Brynner and Deborah Kerr, plus a whole raft of top 20th-Fox execs who were out of town. Those who did attend include Richard Rodgers, Faye Emerson, Sheilah Graham and Meg Myles.

Producer Harold Hecht has returned from a quick trip to Buenos Aires to confer with his production manager Gilbert Kurland on advance plans for filming UA's "Taras Bulba" there this summer . . . Attorneys Ephraim London ("The Miracle" and "Lady Chatterley's Lover" cases) and Felix Bilgrey, Times Film counsel who fought the "Don Juan" case, were featured panelists on WKCR-FM's forum on film censorship Saturday (25) night.

Frank E. Taylor, producer of UA's "The Misfits," back in New York after two weeks in Europe on behalf of the pic . . . April 19 premiere of "La Dolce Vita" here at Henry Miller's Theatre will benefit the Donald Wolin Leukemia Research Fund. Incidentally, it's expected about $50,000 will be spent to convert the legit house for its first film presentation . . . Two Motion Picture Export Assn. execs in town from their overseas posts: Frederick S. Gronich, Paris rep, and Robert J. Corkery, director of the Latin American division . . . Jean Goldwurm, Times Film proxy, back from Europe.

Motion Picture Assn. of America proxy Eric Johnston hosted a lunch at the Harvard Club last Wednesday (22) for reps of the National Council of Churches. Affair was another one of those "getting to know you" sessions . . . Continental Distributing screened its new British import, "Saturday Night and Sunday Morning" at the Barnet for theatre folk last Saturday night and Sunday morning. It was a midnight screening. The original Alan Sillitoe novel is being reissued as a Signet paperback here to coincide with film's release . . . Murray M. Kaplan, Medallion Pictures sales manager, to Charlotte, N. C., last week on biz.

Richard Donner, a 30-year-old N. Y. tv director, named to direct "X-15" for Frank Sinatra's Essex Productions UA release. Pic starts rolling April 10 . . . Producer-director Robert Rossen living up a colorful group of performers to play bit parts in his now-shooting "Sin of Angels" here: Jake LaMotta, former middleweight champ; Coley Wallace, who played title role in "Joe Louis Story"; and Alexander Rose; Charles Mosconi, brother of billiard champ Willie Mosconi, who is technical adviser on the film; and Cye Martin, a local haberdasher.

Preston Lewis, a fictitious name) reports that he went into a 42nd Street theatre the other day to see how his first directorial effort, a $38,000 exploitation pic, played before a so-called "live" audience. He eschewed identifying himself and bought a ticket. To try to overhear patrons' comments, the director moved around the theatre, changing his seat as often as every 10 or 15 minutes. Suddenly he became aware that the ushers were eyeing him with suspicion and that the manager had been called. His comment: "I got outa there fast. They thought I was a peeper, but, if I had told them who I was they probably would have put me in Bellevue."

Warwickshire County Council, England, banned the British "Saturday Night and Sunday Morning" because its producers refused to remove two scenes—but later the same week the BBC televised the offending scenes. So reports Gerald Pratley from London in Toronto Star. Same release was reported banned in Ontario, but its chief censor O. J. Silverhorne is quoted by Gordon Sinclair that he has no such thought—"but certain treatments have been suggested." Asked what if they didn't go for the changes, he replied: "Oh these things have a habit of working themselves out. Don't worry. The man who owns this picture is flying out from England to see me about it. It's another 'Room at the Top' and you didn't hear any complaint of the way we handled that."

Monte Blue, part-Cherokee actor who's been in 500 films, was a guest at Toronto showing of Moral Rearmament's "Crowing Experience." How old is he? He's one year older than Jack Benny.

Loretta Young's "Things I Had to Learn" focus is the as-told-to (Helen Ferguson) condensation in Ladies' Home Journal for April.

Peter Mann, who debuts in Frank Capra's "Pocketful of Miracles," in for pre-production publicity rounds . . . Mirisch Brothers signed Jason Robards Jr. to a five-pic deal. That's in addition to his co-star role for Mirisch in "By Love Possessed."

Alan Ladd will produce "Drummer Boy" based on Marvin Schoreder Civil War novel, under his Jaguar banner, starring son David . . . Mickey Rooney will direct "Gun For Billy" for Columbia Pictures release following windup of his starrer, "Everything's Ducky" for Red Doff . . . Phoenix Film Studios (Ariz) will produce two films in late spring, both in negotiation-buy stage, to follow just-completed "Rider on a Dead Horse" . . . Gloria Elmore set to script Albert Payson Terhune's classic, "Lad: A Dog," upcoming Max J. Rosenberg production for Warner Bros. . . . E. Charles Straus will produce "Hitler" under his Three Crown banner for Allied Artists release . . . Bud Yorkin and Norman Lear launch their Paramount production, "Come Blow Your Horn," in August . . . John Houseman set to produce William Shirer's "The Rise and Fall of the Third Reich" for Metro.

Although the Patterson-Johansson title bout was shown on advertising television in Honolulu the day following the fight, Consolidated has booked the theatrical release from United Artists into its downtown Liberty Theatre, where it's augmenting a double feature bill.

Gideon Bachmann, president of the American Federation of Film Societies, off to Europe for magazine pieces and to tape interviews for his radio syndicate. He'll be present at Cannes Festival . . . Henry Miller Theatre's manager George Banyai discloses that "The Caretaker" stage play is on an "open" contingency booking and will go to another legit house is the Italian hard-ducat film "La Dolce Vita" runs beyond the tentative October date.

Mayo Simon inked a two-pic scripting deal with producers Stuart Millar and Lawrence Turman. First stint is "Unarmed in Paradise," which Allied Artists will release.

Dina Merrill in to help bally "Young Savages" . . . Not definite who Otto Preminger will take with him to Cannes, but looks like Sal Mineo and Jill Haworth, at least, will make the scene with him . . . Philly exhib David Milgram enrolled in TOA . . . Joe Levine and Eddie Solomon back from London production talks on "Sodom and Gomorrah."

Columbia pulled a midnight screening of "Raisin in the Sun" at the Forum last Thursday (23) to accomodate players in the legit shows . . . Olivia de Havilland back to her home in Paris after taking in Manhattan, L. A. and Atlanta. Last named was for a new wrinkle in industry terminology—an "anniversary premiere." Another way of saying "Gone With the Wind" is out again . . . Art work on "All in a Night's Work" misleading. The lady draped only in a towel, Shirley MacLaine, asking if perhaps she should take this off, too, actually is quite virtuous in the picture . . . The line Karl Malden throws out, "Drunk Again, Sekulovich," in "One-Eyed Jacks" has some significance. Actor's genuine moniker is Mladen Sekulovich.

Jacquelyn Hyde gets the "and introducing—" billing line in "The Shoes," indie feature shooting in N. Y. by Pintoff Productions and starring Buddy Hackett.

EXHIBS SLOW TO PRODUCE COIN

Stars' Tax Breaks Draw Raps

Washington, March 28.

Secretary of Treasury C. Douglas Dillon told a House Appropriations Subcommittee that his Department has "under study" the "possibility of plugging up (tax) loopholes on Americans who go overseas, such as movie stars, and stay there a year or two tax free."

Dillon went no further in his testimony than to say the matter was "under study."

Said Dillon: "The way that works is that if you live a certain amount of time abroad, which I think is 18 months, or if you are a resident of a foreign country, then you do not have to pay any American income tax on whatever income you earned abroad.

"That was meant," he continued, "to sort of help American companies wanting to take their people abroad to work in plants or work in offices or something like that. But it was rather perverted, if you want to use the word, by these movie stars who lifted their whole business up, since their business is themselves, and a great many of them have incorporated themselves into companies and then they move aboad and live there out of the U.S. and make movies over there. Even though the movies are made in English and shown back in the U.S., they pay no tax."

(Dillon's comment caused considerable head-shaking among theatrical personages as another, and prime, example of bureaucratic lack of sympathy for the peculiar hazards of the short-lived star and the high-risk production. For years creative people have deplored the favoritism granted oil in the ground as against talent in the human being.

Tax regulations passed to favor corporations are knocked out or modified when talent attempts to share in the same advantages. Dramatists and novelists are also badly exploited when they bring in a hit after years or no-income work on it, only to be taken for the maximum tax.

Until now none of the organizations representing talent have displayed much effective power, unlike the oil, gas and other depletion allowance industries, to get any sympathy from the likes of Dillon.—Ed.)

Orr Will Meet Reporters In N. Y., And Thats Precedental for WB

William T. Orr, v.p. in charge of both theatrical and television production for Warner Bros., will hold a press conference of about 25 in New York today (Wed.). Tradesters say it's the first time that a WB exec has offered an "exposure" of his views in memory.

Orr, who had been head of tv production at Burbank, and whose role has now been expanded to include supervision over theatrical filmmaking, very likely will want to talk about an expanded theatrical production program. New studio deals, new picture acquisitions, etc.

But of most significance of all is the fact that he's willing to address the press in the first place—for this is a break with the WB latter-day tradition of staying away. For a long time Jack L. Warner, and also Albert Warner and the late Harry M. Warner usually sized from the fourth-estaters.

Warners just didn't like to gab with press as did Nicholas M. Schenck at the mighty Loew's, for example.

Now comes the new order, like Orr, who's willing to give a workout to the getting-to-know-you routine with reporters. Nothing may come of it, of course. But a WB topnotcher is about to do a person-to-person with the press for the first time in a long time.

Johnston the Joiner

Washington, March 28.

Eric Johnston, prexy of the Motion Picture Assn. of America, has been named by House Speaker Sam Rayburn to the U.S. Citizens Commission on NATO. The U.S. group of 20, authorized by the last Congress, is to be a part of a 100-member Atlantic community commission of citizens representing the 11 NATO countries.

Johnston also is chairman of the Committee for International Economic Growth.

'Mine Own Native Setting, If I Prod.' Sez Youngstein

Max E. Youngstein sets at rest recurrent reports about possibly joining 20th-Fox or any other film company.

The United Artists veepee who, as prolific packager and negotiator of sundry UA independent pictures, has done everything but produce same, admits that "perhaps one day I will actually want to produce myself.

"But if, as and when I do it—and it wouldn't be before 1962—I certainly would do it for my own company, in preference to any other. Why not? I've been tied up too long with UA as a partner."

The kind of picture he would like to do would be "The Wall" and "The Cardinal" and, he accents, "any or all of them would have to be at a price—no fancy budgets for me."

Also, obviously, as and when Youngstein should undertake indie production he would resign from UA management.

Hyman Absorbs Stark On Stock: Terms Carry 'Suzie Wong,' Services

In a multi-million-dollar stock transaction, Ray Stark's World Enterprises has been absorbed by Seven Arts Productions, headed by Eliot Hyman. Stark's independent production of "World of Suzie Wong," Paramount release, is covered in the deal.

Agreement also sees Stark becoming exec in charge of all theatrical film operations for Seven Arts. Stark originally wanted to sell out only his interests in "Suzie" at a price of several millions. His teamup with Hyman is a new wrinkle.

AIP 'Enchanted Monkey'

Hollywood, March 28.

American International Pictures has acquired global distribution rights to Japanese feature-length color cartoon, "The Enchanted Monkey," under deal closed with Toei Pictures Corp., Tokyo.

Arrangement excludes Japan, where pic will be released by Toei.

'Two Women' to Sutton

Italian-made feature, "Two Women," Joe Levine's first art film venture, has a mid-April preem at the Sutton, N. Y., following the current "League of Gentlemen."

Pic is to be Italian entry at the Cannes fest.

WHEN DO NEW PIX ROLL, PER TALK?

By GENE ARNEEL

The top exhibitors of the United States have in mind a plan to raise $30,000,000 for film production but they've been sitting on the idea for many months and nothing has come of it yet. They are the giants of exhibition—including Loew's, United Paramount, National Theatres, RKO Theatres, and Stanley Warner, among others.

These major enterprises in the atricals raised among themselves about $3,500,000 as a basic jackpot which went into escrow. Latter expired and now has been extended to April 30. Terms of the deposit call for much more capitalization.

Aim is to (1) establish initial foundation of about $4,000,000; (2) go public for $11,000,000 more, and then, with this kind of dollar backlog, borrow another $15,000,000 from banks in first financing position.

All of this would sound like a pipedream except for the admitted fiscal stability of the original sponsoring parties and their understandable wish to enhance the production output from Hollywood, and hence their own supply source. Years of corporate background pack weight sufficient to attract public investor interests.

But why the stall, after many, many statements about the industry's need for more pictures and the top theatremen's desire to do something about it? It's noted that a public stock issue could easily be come upon (or, relatively easy) because of the Loew's etc. identification. The banks would go along, subsequently, on the strength of the negative guarantees.

Conjecture on the distribution end is that exhibs, for long talking about going into production, never really do so, in earnest. Point is made that AB-PT tried it out, made four small films, then gave up.

This new talked-about project, under the aegis of the American Congress of Exhibitors, is more elaborate. Idea is not to invade current sources of product, but would expand upon same. Specifically, if a top star makes an average of one and a half pictures a year, C. of E., with its financial inducements, would undertake to have him to make one more a year.

Distribution details are unset. One plan calls for states rights deals in the foreign terrain, with most of the domestic market to be handled by a skeltonized force to capture the major money areas. After that, states rights. One thing is made clear: No participating exhib would have preempting rights to the film output; it's all got to be sold on a competitive basis.

But, meanwhile, not too much seems to be happening. Key reason is they need a top exec to run the show, traveling between the production end and the exhibs' board. Auditions now going on.

Edison Foundation Gives Award to Wayne's 'Alamo'

John Wayne's "The Alamo" was presented with the 1960 Thomas Alva Edison Foundation award as the "best film serving the national interest" at a dinner in New York Monday (20) night.

Arthur B. Krim, prexy of United Artists, accepted on behalf of producer-director-star Wayne.

N.Y. Electrical Inspectors Trapped Shaking Down 20th's Pool Epic

That New York is something less than a wonderful town for filmmakers was dramatically spotlighted last week with the arrest Wednesday (22) of two municipal electrical inspectors on charges they tried to get $100 a day from 20th-Fox to overlook electrical violations in the "Sin of Angels" (formerly "The Hustler") set.

Arrest was made at the Ames Billiard Academy where a large number of scenes for the film are being shot. Policemen and investigators, posing as members of the film crew, reportedly paid off the inspectors with $80 in marked bills after the electrical men had agreed to reduce the fee. The inspectors are members of the City Dept. of Water Supply, Gas and Electricity.

It was further reported that the extortion attempt was made after producer-director Robert Rossen and the film company had considered abandoning work in New York when two electrical contractors, which they had engaged, failed to obtain the inspectors' approval of some equipment and installations at Ames.

Arrests called attention to a general situation which has been said to plague many other filmmakers in the city, though specific information is extremely hard if not impossible to come by. Problem is that in the eyes of the law, the guy who pays a bribe is just as guilty as the guy who extorts it.

This victims, who might have as much as $40,000 a day riding on the success of each day's shooting, have been shy about complaining, not only for fear of reprisals of one sort of another, but because the total amounts of money involved have been, comparatively speaking, small. And, once the victim plays the game, he is as hooked—legally—as the extortioner.

JACQUES FOTI

Has just arrived in Hollywood.

"An innately talented artist"—Colonia Wright; "Suave young French-Hungarian with Charles Boyer accent and Jean Frank Sinatra appeal."—New Orleans States; "Handsome fellow has top assets to clinch headliner status and Jesse Galle charm that wows the femmes."—VARIETY.

Contact BOX V-2131, VARIETY, 6404 Sunset Blvd., Hollywood 28, Cal.

Halpern's Circuit Tie With Dutch Norelco Color

Nate Halpern's Theatre Network Television appears to have a groundfloor position on large-screen closed-circuit colorcasting by virtue of a deal with Norelco-Philips of Holland for special projection equipment said to provide sharp, film-like quality on 12 by 16-foot screens.

If the acquisitions perform as promised, medium of theatre tele has scored a big breakthrough as both entertainer and pitchman. Technical hindrance to compatible color on large screens has made showmen and merchandisers wary of the theatre plunge so far. In black and white, goes the cogent reasoning, why squander the vivid colors of, say, a "Fair Lady"? Ditto viewpoint applies to innumerable commercial products which showcase to vastly better advantage in tint.

Closed circuit color per se isn't new, of course, but heretofore limited to homescreen magnitude. Banks of conventional receivers have, for example, been used for multi-city hookups by various and sundry corporations, professional bodies, etc. Halpern and associates now envision something like a national theatre network outfitted for a massive commercial entry of the closed circuit market. And projected alongside, albeit on hazy timetable, are "specials" from the Broadway stage, opera, and like divertissements of blockbuster dimensions.

Road Safety Laws Hit After-Dark Teenagers But, Indirectly, Ozoners

Anti-drive-in proposed legislation is taking on the look of a pattern. First in Connecticut, now in Ohio, state solons have moved that would probably keep teenagers under 18 from night driving. Corollary, of course, is that they must be accompanied by an adult.

Sponsors of the measures see it as a primary matter of safety. Drive-in operators, naturally, see it possibly devastating their box office.

Ohio pastures are fearful of some additional measures as well. One bill would require them to close at midnight, another would make them liable for licensing by townships. Independent Theatre Owners of Ohio is rallying opposition to these and other bills touching on exhibition.

How to Enrage 'The Natives'

[Or the Condescending White Man]

Students of current African affairs may find Warner Bros.' upcoming "Sins of Rachel Cade" of significant interest, at least according to a synopsis of the film contained in the latest report on "orderly distribution" prepared by Edward L. Hyman, veepee of American Broadcasting-Paramount Theatres. It reads in part:

"The scene of this story is laid in Africa and Angie Dickinson . . . gives a wonderfully sensitive performance of the beautiful missionary whose mission in life is to convert the natives . . . The picture has many things to recommend it. It shows very graphically the ways of life of the primitive natives, including their very amusing internal politics."

COLUMBIA, 27 WEEKS, 71c, AGAINST 78c

Columbia had earnings of $1,035,000, or 71c per share of common stock, for the 27 weeks ended last Dec. 31, compared with a net of $1,913,000, or 78c per share, for the last half (26 weeks) of 1959.

Bookkeeping procedures and non-operating income made for an important factor, rather than straight profit from operations.

Net for the 27 weeks in 1960 includes $1,617,000, which was profit on the sale of Coast real estate. The 26 weeks in 1959 includes $2,702,000, of which $2,500,000 represents foreign prints and advertising which were capitalized and written off on an amortization basis, instead of being charged as a current operating expense as was the case in past. The balance of $202,000 derived in this period from the real estate sale.

No federal tax provision was required for either period because of tax loss carryforwards from previous years.

A Raisin In The Sun

Fine, stirring film and stout b.o. contender. A few elements have been lost in translation.

Hollywood, March 28.

Columbia Pictures release of David Susskind-Philip Rose production. Stars Sidney Poitier. Directed by Daniel Petrie. Screenplay, Lorraine Hansberry, from her play. camera, Charles Lawton Jr.; editors, William A. Lyon, Paul Weatherwax; art director, Carl Anderson; music, Laurence Rosenthal; sound, George Cooper; assistant director, Sam Nelson. Reviewed at Screen Directors Guild Theatre, March 2, '61. Running time, 127 MINS.

Walter Lee Younger ... Sidney Poitier
Lena Younger ..... Claudia McNeil
Ruth ..... Ruby Dee
Beneatha ..... Diana Sands
Asagai ..... Ivan Dixon
Mary Lindner ..... John Fiedler
George Murchison ..... Louis Gossett
Travis ..... Stephen Perry
Bobo ..... Joel Fluellen
Willie Harris ..... Roy Glenn
Bartender ..... Ray Stubbs
Taxi Driver ..... Rudolph Monroe
Employer ..... George DeNormand

A blaze of truth and perception lights up Lorraine Hansberry's marvelous tale of a frustrated but indestructible Negro family in Chicago. A great play, it has now become a fine motion picture. Yet something has gone out of "A Raisin in the Sun" in its translation from the stage to the cinema, and that something is the rapport, the direct and stirring communication that binds together colored actors in person on the stage with the ordinarily predominantly white audiences on the other side of the footlights. It is an interracial bond of understanding that, to some extent, vanishes when the drama is enacted via the more impersonal medium of celluloid. There simply isn't the same reassuring togetherness about the experience, and that is the crux of its legit potency.

But it is a tribute to Miss Hansberry's creation that, although it shows to better advantage on the boards, it is still a powerful and moving drama on the screen. The David Susskind-Philip Rose production, released by Columbia, will be successful at the boxoffice because it is an important, worthwhile, timely social document and because, most of all, it is simply a good film, one that deals with genuine, everyday people who will be universally understoood. Since it arrives on the screen at such a critical juncture in U. S. white-colored relations, and is certain to penetrate areas denied the legit production, it is bound to influence people who can use some influencing in the business of living together.

Miss Hansberry has adapted her own play to fit the specifications of the screen. The changes are few. It is the touching tale of a Negro family stirred into emotional flux when the proud matriarch of the household (Claudia McNeil) receives a $10,000 life insurance payment. They plan to move into a small home in a white suburban neighborhood but when the restless, impatient son (Sidney Poitier) squanders two-thirds of the sum in a get-rich-quick scheme, the dream is apparently destroyed. Further complications ensue when the residents of the white neighborhood dispatch a "welcoming" representative whose "welcome" is a plea for them to abandon their intentions, but it is at this critical point that the son emerges from the depths of despair, attains maturity, and rallies the family back into unity and action. Undaunted, unbowed, they move.

Seven members of the original Broadway cast repeat their roles in the film. Poitier gives a striking, commanding performance. There is a poetry in the very expression of his body movements—wild, desperate gestures and thrusts of arm and restless almost choreographic floor-pacing gyrations that convey physically but clearly the inner turmoil, the years of denial that the character has had to seal within himself. Miss McNeil repeats her tour-de-force portrayal of the devout, loyal, courageous matriarch. It is an [illegible] strong [illegible] dignity and [illegible] to be [illegible] next Oscar time.

[illegible] as Poitier's sister [illegible] a [illegible] of [illegible] and one with [illegible] character is great. Ivan Dixon as Poitier's brother-in-law [illegible] Sidney Poitier [illegible] Louis Gossett, Stephen Perry, Joel Fluellen and Roy Glenn.

Director Daniel Petrie [illegible] a sensitive hand [illegible] suited to the dimensions and characteristics of the stage than to the motion picture, has nevertheless succeeded in instilling a sense of movement and variety into some unusually cramped quarters. Miss Hansberry has transferred several scenes to a neighborhood bar but, by and large, all of the action takes place in the family's small apartment. Petrie has kept his camera, manned astutely by Charles Lawton Jr., moving, and has positioned it at a number of interesting vantage points. However, the film seem to have lost some of the spirit of the play's humorous passages, and this may very well have something to do with the fact that much of the merriment (notably an African drum ritual) has the quality of a spectacle, and needs to be regarded from a distance to be properly appreciated. Petrie, a bit unwisely, has chosen to play these scenes in tight, thus missing some of the fun contained in details of the movement and interplay.

Carl Anderson's sets carry the appropriate flavor of lower middle class respectability but economic reality. Editing by William A. Lyon and Paul Weatherwax is true. There isn't a great deal of background music, but what there is —principally Laurence Rosenthal's theme strain—is heart-tugging and listenably melodic. Tube.

La Notte
(The Night)

Rome, March 21.

Dino DeLaurentiis release of Nepi (Rome)-Sofitedip-Silver Film (Paris) production. Stars Marcello Mastroianni, Monica Vitti, Jeanne Moreau; features Bernard Wicki, Maria Pia Luzi, Rosi Mazzacurati, Guido Aimone Marson, Vincenzo Corbella, Gitt Magrini Corbella, Ugo Fortunati. Directed by Michelangio Antonioni. Story and screenplay, Antonioni, Ennio Flajano, Tonino Guerra; camera, Gianni di Venanzio; music, Giorgio Gaslini; editor, Eraldo da Roma. At Fiamma, Rome. Running time, 115 MINS.

Giovanni ..... Marcello Mastroianni
Lidia ..... Jeanne Moreau
Valentina ..... Monica Vitti
Tommaso ..... Bernard Wicki
Resy ..... Rosy Mazzacurati

Only a few years ago, this engrossing film might have been shrugged off as boxoffice poison by most exhibitors. Now, pix of this kind ("Hiroshima, Mon Amour" and this same author's previous "Avventura"), which require full spectator participation, seem to have found their niche. And the niche is constantly widening. This one needs careful handling in both sales approach and foreign lingual versions, but can pay off handsomely in almost all areas where quality pix are sought.

Story is a superficially simple one. After 10 years of marriage, a popular writer and his wife begin to realize their affair is nearing the breaking point. She's bored, has had an extra-marital fling with a family friend who has just died suddenly, leaving her even more despondent. Outwardly successful, he knows he's a failure, is looking around desperately for another woman to inspire him again. More than misunderstanding, here it's a question of lack of communication between two beings—a theme which the director has developed before. Pic covers one day and a night. And when dawn breaks up the party which the couple is attending, habit, fear, loneliness and sorrow bring them together again in one last desperate act of love.

Jeanne Moreau walks off with acting honors in a carefully modulated, masterful performance as the wife. Monica Vitti is fine as a would-be distraction for the husband. Latter is played well by Marcello Mastroianni, though the range of the role is more limited, the script giving the wife the choicest acting morsels. A brief but effective cameo is contributed by Bernard Wicki as the dying friend whose death triggers the couple's thoughts and actions. Others are ably selected for a colorful backdrop which always rings true to life.

Slow pace adopted by Antonioni may irk some customers, but it fits the mood admirably. And here he lists his most accessible but also his most [illegible] film, in which [illegible] dialogs and [illegible] scenes come to grips with significant material. The technical events, from the moodsy title [illegible] by Gianni di Venanzio to the apt music by Giorgio Gaslini, are outstanding in this difficult but stimulating picture. Hawk.

Jack Webb's Mark VII registered pair of hits with MGM, "The Thin Red Line" and "The Four Fast Soldiers." [illegible] Paul Petrie [illegible] W. [illegible] a remake [illegible]

Portrait Of A Mobster

Two-dimensional account of prohibition era activities of the unsavory "Dutch" Schultz. Should attract gangster pic buffs in sufficient numbers to get by at the b.o.

Hollywood, March 21.

Warner Bros. production and release. Stars Vic Morrow, Leslie Parrish, Peter Breck. Directed by Joseph Pevney. Screenplay, Howard Browne, from book by Harry Grey; camera, Eugene Polito; editor, Leo H. Shreve; art director, Jack Poplin; music, Max Steiner; sound, M. A. Merrick; assistant director, Charles Hansen. Reviewed at the studio, March 21, '61. Running time, 108 MINS.

"Dutch Schultz" ..... Vic Morrow
Iris Murphy ..... Leslie Parrish
Frank Brennan ..... Peter Breck
Bo Wetzel ..... Norman Alden
Michael Ferris ..... Robert McQueeney
Lt. D. Corbin ..... Ken Lynch
Anthony Parazzo ..... Frank de Kova
Guthrie ..... Stephen Roberts
Vincent Coll ..... Evan McCord
Steve Matryck ..... Arthur Tenen
Louise Murphy ..... Frances Morris
John Murphy ..... Larry Blake
Joe Noe ..... Joseph Turkel
Matty Krause ..... Eddie Hanley
Lou Rhodes ..... John Kowal
"Legs" Diamond ..... Ray Danton

The enduring popularity of gangster fare, especially the quasi-documentary recollection of underworldliness in the flamboyant era of prohibition, seems to insure "Portrait Of A Mobster" of a respectable, if short-lived, boxoffice showing. For the aficionado of crime, for whom the rat-a-tat symphony of the tommy gun, the black sedan and the concealed booze distillery are the symbols of exciting entertainment, the film should be a magnet. But the Warner Bros. release appears to be nearing the point of diminishing returns—the point at which the tried and true formula suddenly begins to lapse into the overworked and shopworn parody.

The absence of novelty, depth or surprise about "Portrait Of A Mobster" indicates that a change of approach may be due if prospects for such pictures in future are to remain at the safe-and-sound commercial level.

The foundation and/or suggestion of fact that characterizes this film allows less latitude for character creation. It hems in the creator, restricts him to events and personalities explored before. In dealing with known people and incidents, in working without the freedom of pure fiction, he must manage to retain authenticity yet establish audience concern for and involvement with his despicable, but after all human, "heroes." In "Mobster," scenarist Howard Browne, tackling the book by Harry Grey, fails to accomplish this.

"Dutch" Schultz, the central character in the film, although essayed with dynamic intensity by Vic Morrow, emerges a hollow figure, and this is the crux of the picture's shortcoming. In tracing Schultz's career in crime, Browne has shed no true light on the inner nature of the man—the factors that warped his personality, shaped his destiny, formed the foul killer. The audience therefore must accept the man the way he is, and since "the way he is" is utterly distasteful, no sense of understanding is established, no insight into the base thought processes that govern his behavior. The "Portrait" thus becomes more of a snapshot.

Lovely Leslie Parrish plays Morrow's mistress, who temporarily is lured away from marriage to a weak, but decent, policeman (Peter Breck) when the latter is framed and enrolled into the Schultz organization. Miss Parrish starts off very nicely but has some difficulty conveying the latter (disillusioned and alcoholic) aspects of the character. Again, however, the character itself is superficial. Although Morrow has murdered her father, and virtually everyone on the premises is at least vaguely cognizant of the fact, the truth never occurs nor is it suggested to the astonishingly naive young women played by Miss Parrish. It strains credulity.

Breck gives a capable performance, as do most of those in support. Ray Danton is an interesting figure in his recreation of the "Legs" Diamond role. Norman Alden does an excellent job as Morrow's faithful aide who, betrayed but unaware of the intentionally kills his boyhood buddy in the end.

The production, a "house" effort for which no individual producer receives credit, is ably reined by Joseph Pevney, within the Scope cited. Newsreel footage has been incorporated smoothly to heighten authenticity. Eugene Polito's camera work is straightforward. Max Steiner's music unobtrusively mood-building, Jack Poplin's art direction an authentic reflection of period fads and styles.

In a film of this nature, editing must often account for the precise movements of several persons converging on an appointed spot for conflicting reasons. It requires some swift and tricky transitions, which Leo H. Shreve has managed without destroying mood or continuity. Tube.

The Fiercest Heart
(C'SCOPE-COLOR)

Routine action-adventure melter fabricated from mid-19th century flight of Boer people in South Africa. Promising material, but stock approach.

Hollywood, March 22.

Twentieth-Fox release of George Sherman production. Stars Stuart Whitman, Juliet Prowse, Ken Scott, Raymond Massey, Geraldine Fitzgerald, Rafer Johnson. Directed by Sherman. Screenplay, Edmund H. North, based on novel by Stuart Cloete; camera (De Luxe), Ellis W. Carter; editor, Richard Billings; art directors, Duncan Cramer, George Van Marter; music, Irving Gertz; sound, Alfred Bruzlin, Warren B. Delaplain; assistant director, Jack R. Berne. Reviewed at the studio, March 22, '61. Running time, 91 MINS.

Bates ..... Stuart Whitman
Francina ..... Juliet Prowse
Harry Carter ..... Ken Scott
Willem ..... Raymond Massey
Ante Maria ..... Geraldine Fitzgerald
Nzobe ..... Rafer Johnson
Barent ..... Michael David
Hugo Bauman ..... Eduard Franz
Sarah ..... Rachel Stephens
Peter ..... Dennis Holmes
Madrigo ..... Edward Platt
Major Adrian ..... Alan Caillou
Hendrik ..... Hari Rhodes
Mrs. Adrian ..... Katherine Henryk
Klaas ..... Oscar Beregi

Programmed into situations where African adventure is more likely to be appreciated on a purely escape basis, "The Fiercest Heart" will have entertainment value for the more easygoing customer. But overall boxoffice prospects aren't very bright for this tame, rather antiquated-in-style description of the northward trek of the Boer people through the Dark Continent along about 1837.

The 20th-Fox release has some good names and capable actors in its cast, and these will aid its fortunes, but George Sherman's production unwisely flounders in contrived, predictable melodrama at the expense of the story's loftier, more worthwhile historical values, an interesting facet which it tends to dismiss. There is a smattering of action (a pair of Zulu raids), but director Sherman has not quite managed to instill the desirable tension or realism into these passages.

The screenplay by Edmund H. North is diluted from the novel by Stuart Cloete. Stuart Whitman plays a footloose escapee from a British South African stockade who joins a band of Boer farmers journeying to their "promised land." It is the stock, but compelling theme of the self-centered adventurer who through involvement with the cause of underdog people, slowly develops ideals, undertakes a new identity, heroically leads the folks to attainment of their goal when the chips are down, and takes up with the prettiest and most desirable girl in the party (Juliet Prowse), who helps tame him into a respectable pulp.

Whitman and Miss Prowse do all that is required of them, which, histrionically speaking, isn't a great deal. They are handsome people. Veterans Raymond Massey and Geraldine Fitzgerald give presentable accounts of themselves. Ken Scott is all that a heavy should be and more. Rafer Johnson, the Olympic decathlon champ, does fine, albeit with little to say or do until the climactic moment when he utilizes his athletic prowess to good advantage by tossing a spear with javelinesque ease and precision into the heart of the Zulu gangleader, thus routing the inept enemy force with one fell swoop. There is key support of a skilled nature from Eduard Franz and Michael David, although both are anchored in stereotyped roles, Franz the "wise man," David the "other man" in the romantic triangle.

Stock African animal footage (the usual zoo-bloody-horn: zebra, contented giraffe, etc.) is incorporated for no really pertinent reason. The Duncan Cramer-George Van Marter art direction conveys an aura of space and expanse where there isn't any.

Efficiency is exhibited by Ellis W. Carter's CinemaScope-De Luxe Color lenswork and Richard Billing's editing. The Irving Gertz score is sometimes more dramatic than the drama it is accompanying. Tube.

La Ragazza con la Valigia
(Girl with a Suitcase)
(ITALIAN)

Rome, March 21.

Titanus release of a Titanus (Maurizio Lodi-Fe) production. Stars Claudia Cardinale; features Jacques Perrin, Corrado Pani, Renato Baldini, Luciana Angelillo, Riccardo Carrone, Romolo Valli. Directed by Valerio Zurlini. Screenplay, Zurlini, Piero de Bernardi, Leo Benvenuti, from a story by Valerio Zurlini. Camera, Tino Santoni; music, Mario Nascimbene; editor, Mario Serandrei. At Metropolitan, Rome. Running time, 135 MINS.

Aida ..... Claudia Cardinale
Lorenzo ..... Jacques Perrin
Marcello ..... Corrado Pani
Priest ..... Romolo Valli
Mother ..... Luciana Angelillo

A mature film cut several notches above the norm, with sensitive handling of adolescent love plus fine performances. Good value for home market and rates export attention as well. Word-of-mouth will help it build, though it needs special care and proper slotting. Some trimming in the latter part would help this over some rough spots.

Story has a familiar ring, but has been given adroit twists both in plotting and lensing to make it just that different. Sans the trimmings, it's about a young girl, Claudia Cardinale, who's had all the bad breaks in life. Left with a child by a man who abandons her, she's picked up while singing with a cheap dance band by a rich young aristocrat, who in turn after a fling soon drops her by the wayside. She traces him to his home, where he sends his younger brother, Jacques Perrin, to steer her off his track. A sensitive sixteener, he falls for her — and she for him—without even realizing it until the film's windup. When they both catch on, knowing it can't be, they leave one another, saddened but enriched by the experience.

For about two thirds of the way, director Valerio Zurlini has guided story and participants unerringly, slowly unfolding his sensitive and pure love story. Then, there's a sharp break in rhythm and style when the girl goes back to her old life, which jars the spectator, until the boy reappears and the story takes up where it left off. Zurlini takes his time in developing his affair, almost resists letting tenderness set in as though in fear of the banal and the expected.

Miss Cardinale has never been better in her instinctive portrayal of Aida, an animal-like creature with a strange morality all her own, while Perrin is excellent as the boy whom her appearance awakes to first love, jealousy, responsibilities, and eventual disappointment. Remainder of the cast is well chosen. Technical credits are all top quality, with apt music arrangements by Mario Nascimbene rating special mention. Hawk.

La Menace
(FRENCH)

Paris, March 21.

Gaumont release of Franco London-Paris Union-Gaumont-Continental production. Stars Robert Hossein; features Marie-Jose Nat, Paolo Stoppa, Elsa Martinelli, Philippe Caster, Henri Tissot. Directed by Gerard Oury. Screenplay, Frederick Dard, Oury, from novel by Dard; camera, Andre Villard; editor, Genevieve Vaury. At Ambassade-Gaumont, Paris. Running time, 80 MINS.

Savary ..... Robert Hossein
Josepha ..... Marie-Jose Nat
Cousin ..... Paolo Stoppa
Stephane ..... Philippe Caster
Girl ..... Elsa Martinelli
Jerome ..... Henri Tissot

This mixes up a sex murderer, a lonely, pretty 18-year-old orphan girl and a group of budding delinquents for an inconclusive affair. This is completely without characterization or acceptable motivation. Hence this, at best, is only a possible exploitation item abroad.

The girl wants desperately to be a part of the cabalistic young crowd. To prove herself, she accuses a druggist, who has made a pass at her, of being a sex murderer. Slaying of a young girl is unsolved at the time of her charge. But the crowd hops to the police and then she retracts this and gives up this silly crowd of adolescents only to have the druggist turn out to be the murderer. He almost kills her.

Director Gerard Oury has given this a flat tone, without allowing it to build and develop through character. While making it melodramatic, this lays no suspense. Marie-Jose Nat is properly straightlaced and bewildered as the girl while Robert Hossein just looks sickly as the sex murderer. Technical qualities are okay. However, this has an old-fashioned, shallow look about it. Mosk.

Amusement Stock Quotations

Week Ended Tues. (28)

N. Y. Stock Exchange

1960-61 High	Low		*Weekly Vol. in 100s	Weekly High	Weekly Low	Tues. Close	Net Change for wk.
52	23¾	ABC Vending	903	52	46¾	51½	+6¼
52½	25¾	Am Br-Par Th	166	49⅞	48⅜	48⅜	—¼
42¼	19½	Ampex	1638	23⅞	22¼	22⅜	—½
45¼	34	CBS	358	39	38	38¼	..
34⅞	14⅞	Col Pix	412	34⅜	30¾	31¼	—3
39¾	17⅝	Decca	448	37¾	34¼	36¼	+1¾
49¼	20	Disney	138	42	38½	40½	—1
136¼	94	Eastman Kdk	437	116¾	112	112⅞	—2¼
8½	5¾	EMI	1880	7⅛	6½	6⅞	+¼
23⅞	11⅜	Glen Alden	532	15⅝	14½	15½	+½
27⅞	14	Loew's Thea.	444	27⅞	25	27⅝	+3¼
62½	22¼	MCA Inc.	100	61¼	57¼	61	+2
60	24⅞	Metro GM	610	60	57	59¾	+1⅜
66⅞	12⅞	NAFI Corp.	370	38¾	35⅝	36½	—⅞
13	4¾	Nat. Thea.	295	7¼	6⅝	6¾	—¼
82½	39½	Paramount	162	79½	75¾	76¼	—3
39¼	15⅞	Philco	962	24¼	21¾	22¾	+¾
261¾	163¼	Polaroid	372	184¾	180¼	181	..
78⅜	46½	RCA	542	58⅜	56	56	—2⅛
15⅞	7½	Republic	180	15½	14⅝	15½	+¾
18½	12⅝	Rep., pfd.	38	18	17⅝	18	+⅛
42⅝	19½	Stanley War.	160	33¾	31⅝	33½	+2
30⅞	26¼	Storer	76	30⅞	30¼	30⅝	+¼
53⅞	30	20th-Fox	243	51⅝	49⅛	50½	—1⅛
38⅜	23⅞	United Artists	168	38⅛	35	36⅜	—1⅝
51⅛	23¼	Univ. Pix	6	46	46	46	..
67¾	37⅞	Warner Bros.	38	67	64	64	—3¾
129⅞	89⅛	Zenith	310	126	120¾	125⅞	+3⅞

American Stock Exchange

7½	4½	Allied Artists	912	7½	5⅞	6¾	+⅞
15	10	All'd Art., pfd.	32	15⅝	13	14¼	+1½
7¼	2⅞	Buckeye Corp.	210	3¾	3⅜	3⅜	—¼
16⅞	8	Cap. City Bdc.	496	16⅞	14¾	16	+1½
12⅛	3¾	Cinerama Inc.	2020	12⅛	10¾	12¾	+1⅜
15	9¼	Desilu Prods.	85	14	13⅝	13¾	—¼
7½	4½	Filmways	72	6¼	5⅞	5⅞	—⅜
25¾	7½	MPO Vid.	†88	25¼	23¼	24⅞	..
8⅞	2¼	Nat'l Telefilm	301	4⅜	4	4½	+½
25	6⅞	Technicolor	1113	25	23¼	23¼	—1⅝
16¾	8⅛	Teleprompter	857	19⅜	15¾	19⅜	+2¾
4¾	2	Tele Indus.	88	4⅛	3⅞	3⅞	—⅛
21¼	8½	Trans-Lux	12	21¼	19¼	19½	—1
18½	5½	‡Ctlv B (GAC)	20	16⅛	16⅛	16⅛	+⅝

* Week Ended Mon. (27).
† Ex-dividend.
‡ Listed on Midwest Exchange.
(Courtesy of Merrill Lynch, Pierce, Fenner & Smith, Inc.)

Over-the-Counter Securities

	Bid	Ask
America Corp.	2⅞	3¼	..
Four Star Television	22½	24½	+2
Gen Aniline & FA	320	350	+5
General Drive-In	17½	19	..
Gold Medal Studios	⅛	¾	..
Magna Pictures	3¼	3¾	+½
Metropolitan Broadcasting	20½	22	—1¾
Movielab	17½	19½	+1½
Official Films	2¾	3	..
Screen Gems	20½	22	+2
Sterling Television	1⅝	2⅛	..
U. A. Theatres	6⅛	7	+¼
Wometco Enterprises	16¾	18⅜	+2½

(Source: National Assn. of Securities Dealers Inc.)

Cuban Cinema Circuit's Tardy Payoff Crimps Salary Outlook in Exchanges

Though the major companies have made no agreement not to send features into Cuba, a Motion Picture Export Assn. exec estimates that if any have been exported in the last six or eight weeks, it's been on a strictly "occasional" basis.

Problem is payments, or, more specifically, lack or payments from Castroland.

The majors, however, have no desire to shut down their Havana exchanges, preferring, if possible, to keep them open so that employees will be taken care of as long as is economically feasible.

It's estimated that all the MPEA company exchanges have a good deal of old product in their vaults, the reissue of which should keep the exchanges operating "for at least a year." Ordinarily, the market for this product might not be too large, but dearth of new product (from the States) gives it a renewed value.

There is also a new problem in Havana. The Castro-controlled circuits reportedly have been extremely slow in paying the Havana exchanges for product used, which money, of course, would be used to pay salaries and operating costs of the exchanges. If this situation persists—and it seems short-sighted since the money only goes to pay the livelihood of Cuban nationals—the majors may be forced to take steps they would prefer to avoid. In other words, close the exchanges.

ROGER LEWIS ANOTHER WHO MAY INDIE PRODUCE

While Max E. Youngstein's independent production plans—if any—are a year off, according to the United Artists Corp. veepee (see separate story), the UA national director of advertising and publicity, Roger H. Lewis, may step out into indie filmmaking much sooner. It has reached the stage, says Lewis, where he must make a decision on "more than one very flattering offer."

While Youngstein stresses his own unit, preferably, would remain under the UA distribution umbrella, Lewis concedes that one indie producer has a UA outlet and the others have not. Beyond that it is all in the discussion stage still but, admittedly, "I will have to decide pretty quick." He adds it's not an easy decision to make in light of his happy association with the company nor has this been the first such proposal.

INTO CONSULTANCY PASTURE

A. Charles Jacobsen, treasurer and vet of more than 30 years with the Walter Reade Organization, retires from active service April 1, Walter Reade Jr., prexy, reveals. Jacobsen will continue to serve the company as a consultant.

Jacobsen started with the company in 1922.

Zanuck's Logistics For 'Longest Day' Tops Ike's Because Germans Included

With S (Shooting) Day still approximately five months off, producer Darryl F. Zanuck now has about 75% of the naval and military equipment needed for his upcoming film adaptation of Cornelius Ryan's "The Longest Day," a spokesman for Zanuck reported in New York last week.

The minute-by-minute reenactment of the June 6, 1944 Allied invasion of Normandy seems to be presenting some unique problems of logistics to the vet film producer. The multi-million dollar film also may play an important part in the fiscal future of 20th-Fox.

Company, which has been having a rough time—production-wise—in last two years, will be counting heavily on pay-dirt playoffs for such pix as "Longest Day," George Stevens' "Greatest Story Ever Told," and Walter Wanger's "Cleopatra," all of which represent sizable production investments.

If Zanuck succeeds, he may well be able to put in for five-star rank (he was a colonel in the Signal Corps), not only from 20th, but also from NATO; when General Eisenhower and friends set up the original landings, all they had to organize was the Allied participation. Zanuck here has to organize the German forces too.

8 First Cameramen

Producer is planning to use eight first cameramen and four directors, an American, an Englishman, a Frenchman and a German, with the producer having overall supervision. Actual shooting will be done in Normandy, Germany, southern England and, oddly, at a French amphibious naval station in Algeria. Latter will be necessary because there's still a good deal of landing craft (circa 1944) available at the Algerian base and, because it would be impossible to transport it to Normandy, shooting will have to be done at the North African locale.

Another problem facing the producer is availability of the huge armada of ships which covered the invasion force on June 6. Most of today's navies are shy of 1944-type battlewagons. As a result, modern battle cruisers and destroyers will probably be utilized, with their silhouettes altered to cover up such anachronisms as rocket-launching stations.

War Monuments Hinder

While some of the war monuments constructed on the Normandy beaches may make shooting at specific locations difficult, producer plans to use German fortifications along the coast which still exist. Curiously enough, no masses of men will be required for the film, since actual photographs show no more than 500 men at any one time on the beaches or elsewhere. Zanuck also swears he won't use any stock footage, not only because of the CinemaScope and color angle, but because the stuff that was shot is already so familiar.

One obvious problem turns out not to be one: acquiring a mass of vintage airplanes. It seems that because it was overcast on D-Day, the vast numbers of Allied bombers which were used were never seen from the ground, only heard. And there was only one German air attack on the invasion beaches the first day. This was carried out by two German FW 190 fighters, two specimen of which Zanuck has turned up in Spain. Still a major problem are the gliders which the Allies used. None are still around, and building them new will reportedly cost a couple of hundred thousand dollars.

Close To Book

The Ryan screenplay, first draft of which has just been completed, reportedly closely parallels the book, putting the emphasis on the individual human stories of people who were actually there. Script calls for 22 speaking roles, including 12 big roles to be filled by stars and featured players. With NATO cooperation, however, only trained soldiers will be used in actual shooting of the invasion.

Already named to posts on the Zanuck countdown are Elmo Williams, coordinator of battle and action sequences; Ted Haworth, art director; Lee Katz, general production manager; Julian Derode, associate production manager, and Fred Hift, director of publicity.

Another Levine Feed To Tub-Thump Three Upcoming Features

Joe Levine and Metro locked arms Monday (27) to tee off their touring pep rally (yclept the Metro-Levine "Showmanship Caravan" for putting into exhibition orbit "Wonders of Aladdin," "Morgan the Pirate" and "Thief of Bagdad." M-G will release all three Embassy pictures this year.

Pour-and-feed in the Waldorf Astoria Starlight Room, N. Y., was gee-whiz in spades, meaning characteristic for the mahatma-cum-Barnum. The Levine didoes no longer startle, but they never cease to amaze for his unabashed showmanship. If he's Mr. Cornball—and he's the realist to sport the tag—he should laugh all the way to the bank.

In this instance the luncheon was properly Levantine in keeping with the filmic fables that were pitched. It was Arabesque down to the harem guys 'n' gals, a gong to punctuate the diners' entry, assorted table furbelows also in keeping, and the usual zoftig promotion kit. George Jessel, long since typecast as keeper of the anecdotes, summoned the final thematic touch, "Aladdin" star Donald O'Connor, who was carted in on a "pubah" borne by the haremites. He, however, was in Brooks Bros. mufti.

The showmanship extended to the dais personalities—indicative of the Levine personal boxoffice in the industry. Of the Metro top tier, on hand were bossman Joe Vogel, plus Robert O'Brien, Robert Mochrie, Mort Spring, Benjamin Melniker, Burtus Bishop Jr., and Saal Gottlieb. Also the circuit panjandrums—Si Fabian, Harry Mandel, Preston Tisch, Ed Hyman and Harry Brandt. And rounding out were Geoffredo Lombardo, prez of Italy's Titanus; songwriter Jimmy McHugh, and Ned Depinet. And so on.

For the "hard news" of it, Levine assured the 300-plus theatremen that close to $4,000,000 was ticketed to exploit the three films. First two set for circulation are "Morgan" and "Thief," and even though both are some months away from release, Levine said exhibitor material is already available. As for advertising and publicity, it'll saturate. If they can read or hear, said Levine, they'll know about the pix. No one seemed to doubt that.

Maybe on the theory brevity is the soul of good hostmanship, Levine kept his remarks minimal—under five minutes. But even at that it's almost redundant for all the razzle dazzle. Even more modest timewise were the followup expressions from the dais. Vogel allowed how his heart really belongs to exhibition, which may have prompted him to interject that Metro's terms would be liberal. Fabian simply extolled Levineism. Mochrie, Metro's sales chief, told the assemblage that Levine "has played a major part in the resurgence of showmanship in our industry"—which was tactful understatement and in the nature of gilding the lily.

Tisch, who's chairman of Loew's executive committee, noting the luncheon was his first exposure to Levine-style showmanship, opined "I can only say it's great." No one seemed to doubt that, either. And from RKO Theatres' Mandel: "To me, Joe Levine is one of the greatest enthusiasts I've ever met."

Folding its tent, the Caravan made for Chicago, Atlanta, Dallas, Los Angeles and San Francisco.

Favorite Films Acquires British 'His and Hers'

Favorite Films, feature film reissue distrib in the 1940s, has been reactivated to handle new pix by Arthur Kerman, son of Moe Kerman, who organized the original company. First acquisition of the new company is "His and Hers," British comedy produced by Hal E. Chester and starring Terry-Thomas.

Arthur Kerman also heads Governor Television Films, which distributes features to tv.

'SIN OF ANGELS' TAG DISPUTED BY PREM

Twentieth-Fox's registration of "Sin of Angels" title for Robert Rossen's now-shooting pic, formerly called "The Hustler," is being contested by United Artists, which previously registered "The Side of The Angels" with the Title Registration Bureau of the Motion Picture Assn. of America. The UA title is for a projected Otto Preminger pic based on a novel by Alexander Fedoroff of the same name.

It's understood that no formal appeal has yet been taken and UA and 20th are negotiating. If they fail to reach an agreement, the matter could go before arbitration committee of the Title Bureau.

The Rossen film, after starting filming in New York as "The Hustler," was briefly known as "Stroke of Luck" before moving on to "Sin of Angels."

Actually it's by no means certain that "Sin of Angels" (dervied from poetry) will be retained, others still being under consideration. It's believed that Spyros Skouras personally nixed "The Hustler" because of its prostitution connotation although the story concerns pool hall hustling for bets.

Alberta's Tiger Ends One, Plans 2 More Features

An almost all-Canadian feature-length film has been completed on location at Jasper, Alta.

The producing company is Tiger Productions Ltd., with 15 Calgary businessmen putting up 75% of the necessary cash. Balance of the money is from Edmonton, Alta.

Titled "Wings of Chance," the film is based on a book, "Kirby's Gander," by John Patrick Gillese, an Alberta author. The story deals with the adventures of bush pilots in the north.

Jim Brown, the Rip Masters of the "Rin Tin Tin" series, and Frances Rafferty have the principal roles. Royal Canadian Air Force search and rescue division provided planes and technical help.

Two further features are planned this summer, with Calgary as a locale.

President of Tiger Productions is Lorne H. Reed, Calgary. D. B. Bullock, of Calgary, is a director, and Dennis Knapik, of Calgary, is secretary-treasurer. Producer of "Wings of Chance" was Larry Matanski, Edmonton.

LIGHTSTONE NEW PREZ OF CANADIAN DISTRIBS

Toronto, March 28.

Gordon Lightstone, managing director of Affiliated Pictures Corp., Canadian distributors of Paramount and Columbia films, elected prexy of Canadian Motion Picture Distributors Assn. at its annual meeting here at the King Edward Sheraton Hotel.

Robert E. Myers, general sales manager for Warner Brothers in Canada, is veepee. Clare J. Appel continues as executive director of CMPDA.

Lutherans Muster Own To View German-Made Film

Milwaukee, March 28.

In a special showing of the Lutheran-financed feature film, "Question 7," at the Wisconsin 2,770 members of confirmation classes from Lutheran and several other Protestant denomination churches attended. Beyond Milwaukee metropolitan area, Ravine, Watertown and Beloit were represented.

Players in the film, Miss Almut Eggert and Erik Schumann, attended the regular premiere, coming here from West Germany.

L.A. Lively; 'Wind' Amazing $35,000, '101 D's' Sharp 23G; 'Work' Rousing 20G, 'Professor' Wham 25G, Both 2d

Los Angeles, March 28.

Local first-runs, sparked by Easter school holidays and several blockbuster pix, are showing an overall bright picture this week although biz is rather spotty. "Gone With Wind" is the smash standout, heading for a spectacular $35,000 at Hollywood Paramount although out on reissue.

"101 Dalmatians" looks boffo $23,000 in first round, three theatres. "Millionairess" is dull $10,000 or less in two houses. "Trapp Family" is heading for happy $5,500 at Four Star.

"Absent-Minded Professor" leads the regular holdovers with wow $25,000 in second frame at Chinese. "Sanctuary" looks like it might do a busy $21,000 in second round, four spots.

"All in Night's Work" looks stout $20,000 or over in second, also in four locations. "Ben-Hur" again heads the hardticket parade. "Spartacus" shapes tall $14,000 in 23d session at Pantages.

Estimates for This Week

Orpheum, Pix (Metropolitan-Prin) (2,213; 756; 90-$1.50)— "Millionairess" (20th) and "Ferry to Hong Kong" (20th). Dull $10,000 or near. Last week, Orpheum, 'Patterson-Johansson fight pix' and "High Powered Rifle" (20th) (5 days), $21,000. Pix with Hillstreet, "Cry for Happy" (Col), "I'm All Right, Jack" (Col) (2d wk), $8,100.

Hillstreet, Iris, El Rey (Metropolitan-FWC) (2,752; 825; 861; 90-$1.50) — "101 Dalmatians" (BV). Boffo $23,000. Last week, Iris, "Entertainer" (Cont), "Stella" (In-

(Continued on page 16)

'Deck' Handy $12,000 In D.C.; 'Million'ress' 11G, 'Spartacus' Strong 12G

Washington, March 28.

Mainstem is still pinching from lack of new product this session. Biggest newcomer is "Millionairess" which heads for a good opener at Capitol. "All Hands on Deck" shapes nice at Palace.

"Pepe" is taking on new legs at the Trans-Lux in its sixth lap with a big take. "World of Suzie Wong" counts on an okay 14th session at the Town. "Exodus" is smash in fifth Uptown round. "Spartacus" shapes stout in 10th Warner week.

Estimates for This Week

Ambassador-Metropolitan (SW) (1,490; 1,000; 90-$1.49)—"Giant" (WB) (reissue). Good $12,500. Last week, "Gold of Seven Saints" (WB) and "Auntie Mame" (WB) (reissue), $7,900.

Apex (K-B) (940; 75-$1.10)—"Happened in Broad Daylight" (Cont) (3d wk). So-so $3,500. Last week, $4,200.

Capitol (Loew) (3,426; 90-$1.49)—"Millionairess" (20th). Good $11,000 or over. Last week, "Crowning Experience" (Indie), $9,500.

Keith's (RKO) (1,850; $1-$1.49)—"Operation Eichmann" (AA) and fight films (2d wk). Mild $7,000 after $12,000 opener.

MacArthur (K-B) (900; $1.25)—"Entertainer" (Cont) (4th wk). Fair $3,500. Last week, $3,700.

Ontario (K-B) (1,240; $1-$1.49)—"Tunes of Glory" (Lope) (6th wk). Good $4,000. Last week, $4,900.

Palace (Loew) (2,390; $1-$1.49)—"All Hands on Deck" (20th). Nice $12,000 or near. Last week, "Alamo" (UA) (4th wk), $13,000 in 10 days.

Playhouse (T-L) (459; $1-$1.49)—"Question 7" (Indie) (4th wk). Slow $2,000 in 5 days. Last week, $3,400.

Plaza (T-L) (278; $1-$1.90)—"No Morals" (Indie) (3d wk). Tall $5,000. Last week, $5,700.

Town (King) (800; $1.25-$1.49)—"Suzie Wong" (Par) (14th wk). Fine $4,000 for last 6 days. Last week, $5,000.

Trans-Lux (T-L) (600; $1.49-$2)—"Pepe" (Col) (6th wk). Great $9,000. Last week, $9,200.

Uptown (SW) (1,300; $1.25-$2.25)—"Exodus" (UA) (5th wk). Smash $12,000. Last week, $12,200.

Warner (SW) (1,440; $1.49-$2.25)—"Spartacus" (U) (10th wk). Stout $12,000. Last week, $11,500.

Key City Grosses

Estimated Total Gross

This Week $2,549,800
(Based on 22 cities and 253 theatres, chiefly first runs, including N. Y.)

Last Year $2,465,700
(Based on 22 cities and 247 theatres.)

'101 D's' Boff 18G, St. Loo; 'Pepe' 10G

St. Louis, March 28.

City is loaded down with holdovers this session and this is hurting the overall total take. "101 Dalmatians," big newcomer, looms wow in initial week at Loew's Mid-City. "Pepe" looks good in third at Ambassador while "Gorgo" is also good in second at State. "Great Impostor" is rated fine in first holdover round at the Fox.

Estimates for This Week

Ambassador (Arthur) (2,970; 75-$1.50)—"Pepe" (Col) (3d wk). Good $10,000. Last week, $15,000.

Apollo Art (Grace) (700; 90-$1.25)—"Never On Sunday" (Lope) (8th wk). Fine $1,200. Last week, $1,500.

Esquire (Schuchart-Levin) (1,800; $1.25-$2.50)—"Spartacus" (U) (14th wk). Firm $8,000. Last week, $8,200.

Fox (Arthur) (5,000; 90-$1.25)—"Great Impostor" (U) and "Sniper's Ridge" (20th) (2d wk). Fine $15,000. Last week, $22,000.

Loew's Mid-City (Loew) (1,160; 60-90) — "101 Dalmatians" (BV). Wow $18,000. Last week, "Hoodlum Priest" (UA), $8,000.

State (Loew) (3,600; 60-90) — "Gorgo" (M-G) and "Key Witness" (M-G) (2d wk). Good $7,000. Last week, $10,000.

Pageant (Arthur) (1,000; 90-$1.50)—"Ben-Hur" (M-G) (14th wk). Oke $1,500. Last week, $1,600.

St. Louis (Arthur) (3,800; 35-90)—"To Hell and Back" (U) and "Lawless Breed" (U) (reissues). Fair $9,000. Last week, "September Storm" (20th) and "Long Rope" (20th), $8,000.

Shady Oak (Arthur) (760; 60-90)—"Please Turn Over" (Col) (9th wk). Good $1,400. Last week, $1,500.

'Wong's' Asiatic Mate

Honolulu, March 28.

Moveover showing of "The World of Suzie Wong" (Par) at the Royal circuit's Queen theatre is attracting additional biz by being coupled with another film that was made in the Far East.

It's "Escapade in Japan" (RKO).

'101 D's' Fancy $8,500, Port.; 'Alamo' Hot 8G

Portland, Ore. March 28.

Town is bogged down with long-playing holdovers but they continue to do nicely for the most part. "Alamo" roars into a third big week at Orpheum. "Exodus" is rated bright in 10th session at Music Box. "Spartacus" moves into eighth round at Broadway. "Suzie Wong" stays at Paramount for third inning. "101 Dalmations" is fast at the Fox for third stanza.

Estimates for This Week

Broadway (Parker) (983; $1.50-$3) — "Spartacus" (U) (8th wk). Sturdy $6,500. Last week, $6,600.

Fox (Evergreen) (1,600; $1-$1.49)—"101 Dalmatians" (BV) (3d wk). Fast $8,500 or close. Last week, $12,700 after $16,000 opener.

Hollywood (Evergreen) (900; $1.25-$1.49)—"Ben-Hur" (M-G) (3d wk) on pop scale. Tall $6,500. Last week, $8,800.

Music Box (Hamrick) (640; $1.50-$3) — "Exodus" (UA) (10th wk). Bright $8,500. Last week, $12,400.

Oriental (McFadden) (2,100; $1)—"Journey To Lost City" (AI) and "Last Woman On Earth" (AI). Dull $2,500. Last week, "White Warrior" (WB) and "Gold Seven Saints" (WB) plus fight pix, $3,600.

Orpheum (Evergreen) (1,536; $1-$1.49)—"Alamo" (UA) and "Wonderful Hong Kong" (Col) (3d wk). Lofty $8,000. Last week, $11,700.

Paramount (Port-Par) (3,400; $1-$1.50) — "Suzie Wong" (Par) (3d wk). Solid $8,000. Last week, $10,100.

'Exodus' Capacity 12G, Toronto; 'Work' Lofty $16,000, 'Sons' Big 13G

Toronto, March 28.

Newcomers are off to a hefty start, with "Exodus" capacity in first at Tivoli. "All in Night's Work" looms lusty at Imperial. "Sons and Lovers" shapes hefty at Hyland. "Operation Eichmann" looks big playing nine houses. Of the holdovers, "Dentist in Chair," in second stanza, is excellent. Same is true of "World of Suzie Wong," in eighth frame, and "Never On Sunday" in ninth.

Estimates for This Week

Carlton, Danforth, Humber (Rank) (2,318; 1,330; 1,203; $1-$1.50)—"Dentist in Chair" (20th) (2d wk). Nice $15,000. Last week, $22,000.

Century, Downtown, Glendale, Midtown, Oakwood, Odeon, Prince of Wales, Scarboro, State (FP-Taylor) (1,338; 1,059; 995; 1,089; 1,138; 752; 1,200; 684; 694; 50-90)—"Operation Eichmann" (AA). Big $40,000 or near. Last week, "Gorgo" (M-G), $33,000.

Eglinton (FP) (918; $1.50-$2.50)—"Windjammer" (NT) (14th wk). Neat $7,000. Last week, $6,000.

Hollywood (FP) (1,080; $1-$1.25)—"Suzie Wong" (Par) (8th wk). Sock $8,000. Last week, same.

Hyland (Rank) (1,357; $1-$1.50)—"Sons and Lovers" (20th). Hefty

(Continued on page 16)

'101 D's' Wow $14,000 Paces Cincy; 'Exodus' Big 13G, 'Impostor' 9G, 2d

Cincinnati, March 28.

Three robust arrivals are helping Cincy film biz currently. Sharp stepup is heartening to exhibs in face of usual Holy Week slowdown, Easter shopping and telecasts of Cincinnati U.-Ohio State weekend clashes for NCCA basketball crown at Kansas City. Openers have "Exodus" shaping big at suburban Valley, "101 Dalmatians," wham at Keith's and "Sanctuary" looking good at Grand.

"Great Impostor" rates firm in second week at the Albee "Pepe" is fine in fourth week as downtown standout.

Estimates for This Week

Albee (RKO) (3,100; $1-$1.50)—"Great Impostor" (U) (2d wk). Okay $9,000. Last week, $11,000.

Capitol (SW-Cinerama) (1,400; $1.25-$1.80) — "Pepe" (Col) (4th wk). Fine $13,000. Last week, $13,500.

Esquire Art (Shor) (500; $1.25)—"Entertainer" (Cont). Hotsy $2,000. Last week, "Never On Sunday" (Lope) (9th wk), $1,400.

Grand (RKO) (1,300; $1-$1.25)—"Sanctuary" (20th). Good $9,000. Last week, "Spartacus" (U) (13th wk), $6,500 at $2.75 top.

Guild (Vance) (300; $1.25)—"Virgin Spring" (Indie). Oke $2,000. Last week, "Man In Cocked Hat" (Indie) (3d wk), $1,100.

Hyde Park Art (Shor) (500; $1.25)—"Carry On Sergeant" (Indie) (2d wk). Okay $1,200. Last week, $1,700.

Keith's (Shor) (1,500; 90-$1.25)—"101 Dalmatians" (BV). Wow $14,000. Last week, "Wackiest Ship" (Col) (2d wk), $5,000.

Palace (RKO) (2,600; $1-$1.25)—"Gold of Seven Saints" (WB) and "No Time For Sergeants" (WB) (repeat). Modest $7,500. Last week, "Blueprint For Robbery" (Par) and "Valley of Redwoods" (20th) plus fight clips, $7,600.

Twin Drive-In (Shor) (600 cars, west side, 90c)—"Operation Eichmann" (AA) and "Goddess of Love" (AA). Fair $3,000. Last week, "Swiss Family Robinson" (BV) and "Valley of Redwoods" (20th) (subsequents), $3,100.

Valley (Wiethe) (1,200; $1.50-$2.50)—"Exodus" (UA). Big $13,000. Last week, "Alamo" (UA) (13th wk-3 days), $3,800.

'Dalmatians' Philly Topper, Wow 23G; 'Cimarron' Oke 10G, 'Impostor' 12G, 3

Philadelphia, March 28.

First-run trade shapes remarkably solid here currently, with some new pix helping to firm up the overall total. Some of longruns are holding almost even with last week. Easily outstanding is "101 Dalmatians," mighty at the Stanton. "Cimarron," while no world-beater in first round, looms okay at the Viking.

"Looks in Any Window" looks only lean on initialer at the Fox. "Sanctuary" is heading for a fairly good session at the Arcadia. "Exodus" shapes big in eighth stanza at Boyd, only a step behind last week's total.

"Great Impostor" looms lively in third at Midtown. "Pepe" is fine in sixth at Stanley. "Spartacus" shapes solid in 20th session at Goldman.

Estimates for This Week

Arcadia (S&S) (536; 99-$1.80)—"Sanctuary" (20th). Good $14,000. Last week, "Suzie Wong" (Par) (13th wk), $5,000.

Boyd (SW) (1,563; $2-$2.75) — "Exodus" (UA) (8th wk). Big $20,000. Last week, $20,200.

Fox (Milgram) (2,200; 99-$1.80)—"Look in Any Window" (AA). Lean $7,000. Last week, "Naked in World" (M-G) (3d wk), $6,000.

Goldman (Goldman) (1,200; $2-

(Continued on page 16)

Broadway Grosses

Estimated Total Gross

This Week $534,000
(Based on 28 theatres)

Last Year $461,800
(Based on 26 theatres)

'Wind' Whopping $16,000, Seattle

Seattle, March 28.

Some unusually strong new fare is making the boxoffice pic look good here this session. Perhaps standout is "Gone With Wind," out again on reissue, which is heading for a mighty take opening round at Music Hall. "Pepe" is rated big at Fifth Avenue while "101 Dalmatians" shapes smash at Coliseum, both on initial stanzas. "Great Impostor" looks good at Orpheum if not up to hopes. "Exodus" is great in fourth round at the Blue Mouse.

Estimates for This Week

Blue Mouse (Hamrick) (739; $1.50-$3)—"Exodus" (UA) (4th wk). Great $12,500. Last week, $11,800.

Coliseum (Fox-Evergreen) (1,870; $1-$1.50)—"Dalmatians" (BV) and "Freckles" (20th). Smash $20,000 or near. Last week, "Underworld USA" (Col) and "Carthage in Flames" (Col) plus fight pix, $6,400.

Fifth Avenue (Fox-Evergreen) (2,500; $1-$1.50)—"Pepe" (Col). Big $13,000. Last week, "Cry for Happy" (Col) (3d wk), $5,800.

Music Box (Hamrick) (739; $1.50-$3) — "Spartacus" (U) (14th wk). Okay $7,000 or near. Last week, $6,300.

Music Hall (Hamrick) (2,200; $1-$1.50)—"Gone With Wind" (M-G) (reissue). Wow $16,000. Last week, "Secret Partner" (M-G), $3,000.

Orpheum (Hamrick) (2,600; $1-$1.50)—"Great Impostor" (U) and "Shakedown" (U). Good $7,000 or close. Last week, "Question 7" (Indie), Paramount (Fox-Evergreen) (2,300; $1.50-$1.75)—"Alamo" (UA) (5th wk). Good $5,000. Last week $6,300.

'101 D's' Smash $25,000, Frisco; 'Pepe' 16G, 4th

San Francisco, March 28.

Frisco first-run trade shapes strong this session. "101 Dalmatians" looms smash on opener at the Fox. "White Warrior" shapes fairish in initial Paramount week. "Pepe" still is great in fourth round at St. Francis. "Great Impostor" looms fine in third at Golden Gate. "Exodus" looks excellent in seventh at the Alexandria and "Spartacus" shapes good in 14th at the United Artists.

Estimates for This Week

Golden Gate (RKO) (2,859; $1.25-$1.50)—"Great Impostor" (U) and "Wings Of Chance" (U) (3d wk). Fine $10,000. Last week, $13,500.

Fox (FWC) (4,651; $1.25-$1.50)—"101 Dalmatians" (BV). Wham $25,000. Last week, "Chivato" (Indie) and "Riff Raff" (Indie), $7,500.

Warfield (Loew) (2,656; $1.25-$1.50)—"Gorgo" (M-G) and "Frontier Uprising" (UA) (2d wk). Okay $7,500. Last week, $14,000.

Paramount (Par) (2,646; $1.25-$1.50)—"White Warrior" (WB) and "My Pal Wolf" (Indie). Fair $12,000 or near. Last week, "Terror Of Tongs" (Col) and "Sword Sherwood Forest" (Col), $11,000.

St. Francis (Par) (1,400; $1-$1.50)—"Pepe" (Col) (4th wk). Wow $16,000. Last week, $18,000.

Orpheum (Cinerama, Inc.) (1,456; $1.75-$2.65)—"Seven Wonders of World" (Cinerama) (reissue) (13th wk). Okay $10,000. Last week, $11,000.

United Artists (No. Coast) (1,151; $1.75-$3.50)—"Spartacus" (U) (14th wk). Good $9,000. Last week, $11,500.

Stagedoor (A-R) (440; $1.25-$1.50)—"League Of Gentlemen" (Kaye) (3d wk). Dandy $5,500. Last week, $6,000.

Vogue (S. F. Theatres) (364; $1.50)—"Virgin Spring" (Janus) (14th wk) and "Seventh Seal"

(Continued on page 16)

Hub Down; 'Work' Smooth $21,000, 'Cimmaron' Good 12G, 'Konga' Torrid 13G

Boston, March 28.

Holy Week doldrums are taking a heavy toll at most first-runs here this week. "All In Night's Work" is lofty at the Met, "Cimarron" looks good at the Orpheum.

"Konga" shapes fat at Paramount. "Cry For Happy" is bright in second round at Memorial. "Village of Damned" still is good at Pilgrim in second. "Shangri La" is smash, at State.

"Pepe" is holding well at Gary in sixth week. "Ben-Hur" is still getting coin at Capri in 14th m.o. week.

Estimates for This Week

Astor (B&Q) (1,170; $1.90-$3)—"Spartacus" (U) (22d wk-final). Oke $5,500. Last week, $6,500. "One Eyed Jacks" (Par) opens Thursday (30).

Beacon Hill (Sack) (678; $1-$1.50)—"Tunes of Glory" (Lope) (14th wk). Fine $4,000. Last week, same.

Boston (Cinerama, Inc.) (1,354; $1.75-$2.65) — "Seven Wonders of World" (Cinerama) (reissue) (5th wk). Neat $10,000. Last week, $12,000.

Capri (Sack) (900; $1.80-$2.20)—"Ben-Hur" (M-G) (m.o.) (14th wk). Perky $4,000. Last week, $5,000.

Exeter (Indie) (1,376; 90-$1.50)—"Two-Way Stretch" (Indie) (5th wk). Hep $6,000. Last week, $7,000.

Fenway (Indie) (1,350; $1.25)—"Quiet Flows Don" (Indie) (3d wk). Nice $2,700. Last week, $3,000.

Gary (Sack) (1,277; $1.25-$1.80)—"Pepe" (Col) (6th wk). Good $7,500. Last week, $9,000.

Kenmore (Indie) (700; $1.50)—"Ballad of Soldier" (Kings) (9th wk). Stout $7,000. Last week, same.

Memorial (RKO) (3,000; 90-$1.49)—"Cry For Happy" (Col) and "Sword of Sherwood Forest" (Col) (2d wk). Nice $11,000. Last week, $23,000.

Metropolitan (NET) (4,357; 90-$1.25) — "All In Night's Work" (Par). Big $21,000. Last week, "Bramble Bush" (WB) and "Summer Place" (WB) (reissues), $8,000.

Orpheum (Loew) (2,900; 90-$1.49)—"Cimarron" (M-G). Good $12,000. Last week, "Where Boys Are" (M-G) (3d wk), $11,000.

Paramount (NET) (2,357; 70-$1.25) — "Konga" (AI) and "The Hand" (AI). Fine $13,000. Last week, "Operation Eichmann" (AA) and "Serengeti" (AA), $11,000.

Pilgrim (ATC) (1,900; 75-$1.25)—"Village of Damned" (M-G) and "Five Bold Women" (Indie) (2d wk). Good $6,000. Last week, $10,000.

Saxon (Sack) (1,100; $1.50-$3)—"Exodus" (UA) (14th wk). Good $15,000. Last week, $16,000.

State (Trans-Lux) (730; 75-$1.25)—"Shangri La" (Indie) and "Woman Bait" (Indie). Huge $9,000. Last week, "Naked in Night" (Indie) and "Age of Infidelity" (Indie) (2d wk), $3,800.

MPLS. BIZ NEAR RECORD HIGH

Chi Biz Picks Up; 'Professor' Mighty $45,000; 'Tunes' 14G, 'Eichmann' Great 22G; 'Work' Smart 21G, 'Pepe' 18G

Chicago, March 28.

Several strong newcomers are combining with sturdy holdovers to perk up first-run biz here this stanza. "Absent-Minded Professor" is a mighty $45,000 initialer at State-Lake. "Tunes of Glory" rates a smash $14,000 Esquire first session.

"Operation Eichmann" shapes a socko $22,000 in its first Woods week. "Subterraneans" is a smart $5,300 first at the Carnegie. "Rue de Paris" initials a nice $5,000 at World.

"All In Night's Work" continues big in second week at United Artists. "Cry For Happy" looks firm in its Oriental third round while same week for "Great Impostor" is nice at Roosevelt. Loop pair, "Female and Flesh" and "Wicked Go To Hell," is racking up neat third stanza.

"Make Mine Mink" is holding fine in fifth Cinema week. "Pepe" looks for a potent sixth at the Chicago. "Never On Sunday" is heading for a torrid eighth canto at the Surf.

Estimates for This Week

Carnegie (Telem't) (495; $1.50)—"Subterraneans" (M-G). Snappy $5,000 or near. Last week, "Next To No Time" (SCA), $2,000.

Chicago (B&K) (3,900; 90-$1.80)—"Pepe" (Col) (6th wk). Hep $18,000. Last week, $23,000.

Cinema (Stern) (500; $1.50) — "Make Mine Mink" (Cont) (5th wk). Nice $3,500. Last week, $3,700.

Cinestage (Todd) (1,038; $1.75-$3.50)—"Exodus" (UA) (15th wk). Solid $21,500. Last week, $23,000.

Esquire (H&E Balaban) ($1.25-$1.80)—"Tunes of Glory" (Lope). Potent $14,000 or close. Last week, "Millionairess" (20th (2d wk), $7,500.

Loop (Telem't) (606; 90-$1.80)—"Female and Flesh" (Fal) and "Wicked Go To Hell" (Fal) (3d wk). Okay $6,800. Last week, $7,400.

Monroe (Jovan) (1,000; 65-90)—"Enemy Below" (20th) and "Between Heaven and Hell" (20th). Fair $4,000. Last week, "Natchez Trace" (S&J) and "Code of Silence" (S&J), $4,500.

Oriental (Indie) (3,400; 90-$1.80)—"Cry For Happy" (Col) (3d wk). Good $14,000. Last week, $17,000.

Roosevelt (B&K) (1,400; 90-$1.50)—"Great Impostor" (U) (3d wk). Nice $13,000. Last week, $18,000.

State-Lake (B&K) (2,400; 90-$1.80)—"Absent-Minded Professor"

(Continued on page 16)

'ALAMO' NICE $7,000, BALTO; 'PEPE' OK 8G

Baltimore, March 28.

Favorable weekend weather was a help for exhibs here this frame. Only new entry is "101 Dalmatians" which is making strong showing at Stanton in first four days. "Alamo" is nice in fourth frame at the New. "Pepe" is okay in third at the Hipp. "Love Game" is rated okay in second at Cinema. "Spartacus" looms okay in 10th week at the Town. "Exodus" shapes slow in 15th round at Mayfair.

Estimates for This Week

Aurora (Rappaport) (367; 90-$1.50)—"Carry On Nurse" (Gov) (2d wk) (rerun). Okay $2,000 after $1,500 in first.

Charles (Fruchtman) (500; 90-$1.80)—"Suzie Wong" (Par) (14th wk). Pleasing $4,500 after $4,000 in previous week.

Cinema (Schwaber) (460; 90-$1.50) — "Love Game" (Films Around World) (2d wk). Oke $1,800 after $2,500 opener.

Five West (Schwaber) (460; 90-

(Continued on page 16)

'Work' Boffo 20G, Det.; 'Warrior' 15G

Detroit, March 28.

Four newcomers, three of them strong, plus solid long runs add up to a bright week for the first-runs here currently. "All in Night's Work" looms great at the Michigan. "Cimarron" head for a wham first week at the Grand Circus. "White Warrior" shapes solid at the Palms. "Circle of Deception" looks drab at the Fox.

Among the holdovers, "Exodus" is wow in seventh session at Mercury. "Spartacus" is lively in 21st round at Madison. "Ben-Hur," stays sturdy in 58th week at the United Artists.

"Operation Eichmann" is only okay in second frame at Adams.

Estimates for This Week

Fox (Woodmont Corp.) (5,041; 75-$1.49) — "Circle of Deception" (20th) and "Goddess of Love" (20th). Drab $14,000. Last week, "Little Shepherd Kingdom Come" (20th) and "Strange Affections" (Indie), $7,500.

Michigan (United Detroit) (4,036; $1.25-$1.49)—"All In Night's Work" (Par) and "Blueprint for Robbery" (Par). Great $20,000. Last week, "Portrait of Sinner" (AA) and "Three Blondes in Life" (AA), $12,500.

Palms (UD) (2,955; $1.25-$1.49)—"White Warrior" (WB) and "Gold of the Seven Saints" (WB). Fine $15,000. Last week, "Underworld, USA" (Col) and "Carthage Flames" (Col), $13,000.

Madison (UD) (1,408; $1.50-$3)—"Spartacus" (U) (21st wk). Splendid $8,500. Last week, same.

Grand Circus (UD) (1,400; $1.25-$1.65)—"Cimarron" (M-G). Wham $20,000. Last week, "Suzie Wong" (Par), $11,000 in 13th week.

Adams (Balaban) (1,700; $1.25-$1.50 — "Operation Eichmann" (AA) (2d wk). Only okay $7,000. Last week, $9,000.

United Artists (UA) (1,667; $1.25-$3)—"Ben-Hur" (M-G) (58th wk). Swell $8,000. Last week $8,500.

Music Hall (Cinerama, Inc.) (1,208; $1.20-$2.65)—"Seven Wonders of World" (Cinerama) (reissue) (13th wk). Solid $11,500. Last week, $12,000.

Trans-Lux Krim (Trans-Lux) (1,000; $1.49-$1.65)—"Ballad of Soldier" (Kings) and "Bowl of Cherries" (Indie) (3d wk). Good $6,500. Last week, $7,000.

Mercury (UM) (1,465; $1.50-$3)—"Exodus" (UA) (7th wk). Smasheroo $18,000. Last week, same.

'SPARTACUS' 15G, 'ALAMO' BIG 13G

Minneapolis, March 28.

Last week set an alltime high here for mainstem grosses, and this chapter may be almost as good. Exhibitors are in the chips with two mighty holdovers and two blockbusting newcomers. The state high school basketball tournament which brings thousands of outstaters to city is figured a big help.

"Alamo" at Orpheum and hard-ticket "Spartacus" at Mann opened to huge takes last round and appear holding nearly as high this session, with heavy patronage from tourney fans. Two new entrants are "Pepe," socko at State and "101 Dalmatians," boffo at Lyric. Another newcomer, "All in Night's Work," is also doing lively biz at World.

Other Loop holdovers are doing brisk biz, too. "Exodus" at Academy is staunch and "Cinerama Holiday" at Century on reissue, looks solid. "Where Boys Are" bows out after pleasing four-week stand at the Gopher. Suburban trade, likewise, is thriving. First-run newie, "All Hands on Deck," looms loud at St. Louis Park while "Make Mine Mink" in third inning at Suburban World is good.

Estimates for This Week

Academy (Mann) (947; $1.75-$2.65)—"Exodus" (UA) (9th wk). Starting third month and stout at $12,000. Last week, $12,200.

Century (Cinerama, Inc.) (1,150; $1.75-$2.65) — "Cinerama Holiday" (Cinerama) (reissue) (14th wk). Nice $7,500. Last week, $7,000.

Gopher (Berger) (1,000; $1-$1.25)—"Where Boys Are" (M-G) (4th wk). Winding up nifty month's run with tall $7,000. Last week, $6,500. "Cimarron" (M-G) opens tomorrow (Wed.).

Lyric (Par) (1,000; $1-$1.25)—

(Continued on page 16)

'Work' Solid 10G In K.C.; 'Alamo' Great $19,000, 3d

Kansas City, March 28.

One big newcomer here currently is "All in Night's Work" at Paramount, with a possibility of holding. Sock pace holds for "The Alamo" at Plaza, with third week doing more than double average biz for spot. "101 Dalmatians" shapes fancy at Uptown in fifth stanza.

"Spartacus" still is smash in fifth at the Capri. "World of Suzie Wong" is sturdy in eighth Roxy week. Weather turned pleasant for weekend, first in some time here.

Estimates for This Week

Brookside (FMW-NT) (800; $1-$1.50)—"Ben-Hur" (M-G) (6th wk). Tapering to $3,500. Last week, $4,000.

Capri (Durwood) (1,260; $1.25-$3—"Spartacus" (U) (5th wk). Socko $17,000; holds, natch! Last week, $18,000.

Empire (Durwood) (1,280; $1.25-$3 —"Exodus" (UA) (14th wk). Moderate $9,000; holds. Last week, same.

Isis, Granada, Vista (FMW-NT) (1,360, 1,217, 700; 90)—Currently on sub-runs. Last week, "Little Shepherd of Kingdom Come"

(Continued on page 16)

Estimates Are Net

Film gross estimates as reported herewith from the various key cities, are net; i.e., without usual tax. Distributors share on net take, when playing percentage, hence the estimated figures are net income.

The parenthetic admission prices, however, as indicated, include U. S. amusement tax.

New Films Hypo B'way; 'Work' Socko $40,000, 'Shadows' Bright 19G, 'King' Fair 15G, 'Prof.'-Easter Show 170G

Four new pictures in the last seven days plus milder weather most of time is giving Broadway film business a better tone. All-day rain last Thursday (23) was rated an unfavorable factor because it started early in day and continued until after the first show at night. The fact that this is Holy Week, always reckoned as a slow frame, is expected to curb trade until Saturday despite a long string of films being launched starting today (Wed.).

One of big new entrants, "All in Night's Work," is landing a socko $40,000 opening week, day-dating the Victoria and arty Normandie. "Shadows" is doing amazingly well with $19,000 on initial stanza at the small Embassy.

"King and I," playing in a dressed up version and on hard-ticket, looks to get a fair $15,000 opening session at the Rivoli for 12 performances. "Days of Thrills and Laughter" hit a big $9,200 for initial round at the arty 68th Street Playhouse.

Of course, the champ coin-getter still is "Absent-Minded Professor" with the annual Easter stageshow at the Music Hall. Second week is heading for a smash $170,000. Saturday's take was one of the biggest ever for a second week Saturday on an Easter show for the Hall, with better than $38,000.

"101 Dalmatians" looks okay $12,000 for the five-day seventh round at the Palace, to wind a splendid extended-run. "Great Impostor" opens today, day-dating with arty Trans-Lux 85th Street. "Facts of Life" still is in the chips with around $24,500 in seventh week, playing the Astor and arty Beekman. It stays.

"Cry For Happy" is offish in five-day fourth round at Forum and arty Trans-Lux 52d Street, "Raisin in Sun" opening at these two houses today (Wed.).

"Go Naked in World" is limping in current (third-final) session at Capitol, with "One-Eyed Jacks" replacing tomorrow (Thurs.). "Sanctuary," too, is slow in 10-day fifth week at Paramount and Trans-Lux 85th Street. "All Hands on Deck" moves into Par next Friday.

"Pepe," which is barely okay with $14,000 for 14th session at the Criterion, goes on continuous-run, popscale next Friday. "Exodus" is heading for a wow $45,000 in current (15th) week at the Warner.

Estimates for This Week

Astor (City Inv.) (1,094; 75-$2)—"Facts of Life" (UA) (7th wk). This stanza ending tomorrow (Thurs.) is heading for fine $17,000 or close after $20,000 for sixth week. Holds until sometime in April, according to present plans.

Capitol (Loew) (4,820; $1-$2.50)—"Go Naked in World" (M-G) (3rd-final wk). Current week looks like dull $12,500 for six days ending today (Wed.). Last week, $18,500. "One-Eyed Jacks" (Par) opens tomorrow (Thurs.).

Criterion (Moss) (1,520; $1.50-$3.50)—"Pepe" (Col) (15th wk). The 14th session ended last night (Tues.) was okay $14,000 or close after $17,000 on 10 performances. Goes on popscale, continuous-run next Friday (31).

DeMille (Reade) (1,463; $1.50-$3.50)—"Spartacus" (U) (25th wk). This stanza ending today (Wed.) is heading for nice $17,800 after $19,500 for 24th week. Stays indefinitely. Additional kid matinees are helping here.

Palace (RKO) (1,642; 90-$2 — "Great Impostor" (U). Opens today (Wed.). Last week, "101 Dalmatians" (BV) (7th wk-5days). Hit okay $12,000 or close after $17,000 in sixth week, for a very successful extend-run date.

Embassy (Guild Enterprises) (500; $1.50-$2)—"Shadows" (BL) (2d wk). Initial round ended Monday (27) was smash $19,000.

Forum (Moss) (813; 90-$1.80)—

(Continued on page 16)

'101 D'S' MIGHTY 10G, OMAHA; 'WORK' $9,500

Omaha, March 28.

Thanks to a pair of hefty new pix, the b.o. pace somewhat at at downtown first-runs here this week. "101 Dalmations" is mighty, approaching the house record at the State. "All In Night's Work" is proving good at the Orpheum. "Savage Innocents" is thin at the Omaha. Sixth week of hard-ticket "Cinerama" continues to disappoint at the Cooper.

Estimates for This Week

Cooper (Cooper) (687; $1.55-$2.20)—"This Is Cinerama" (Cinerama) (6th wk). Rated slow $5,000. Last week, same.

Omaha (Tristates) (2,066; 75-$1)—"Savage Innocents" (Par). Thin $4,500 or close. Last week, "To Hell and Back" (U) and "Lawless Breed" (U) (reissues), $6,000.

Orpheum (Tristates) (2,877; 75-$1)—"All In Night's Work" (Par). Good $9,500 or near. Last week, "Millionairess" (20th), $5,000.

State (Cooper) (743; $1)—"101 Dalmatians" (BV). Socko $10,000. Last week, "Naked in World" (M-G) (4th wk), $2,500.

'Spartacus' Socko $12,000 in L'ville

Louisville, March 28.

City is 100% on holdovers this week, but lineup is fairly strong. Real sockeroo is "Spartacus" in second session at the Brown. Opening week had to contend with bad weather but customers are really perking up biz currently, Saturday (25), having a turnaway line.

The Kentucky, with "World of Suzie Wong" in eighth round is nice. Third week of "Alamo" shapes great.

Estimates for This Week

Brown (Fourth Avenue) (1,100; $1.25-$1.75)—"Spartacus" (U) (2d

(Continued on page 16)

'101 D's' Smooth 20G, Pitt; 'Pepe' Giant 14G; 'Priest' Lofty 10G, 2d

Pittsburgh, March 28.

The traditional Holy Week brake on wicket take no longer holds water here because Pitt exhibs are rolling to heavy grosses this round. Stanley looms boff with "101 Dalmatians" in first round. Other new entries are "Pepe," wow at Gateway and "League of Gentlemen," big at the Squirrel Hill.

Hefty holdover biz shapes for "Hoodlum Priest" in second at Penn. "Great Impostor" in sixth at Fulton and "Exodus" on hard-ticket in thrid at Warner.

Estimates for This Week

Fulton (Shea) (1,635; $1-$1.50)—"Great Impostor" (U) (6th wk-5 days). Fine windup round at $4,500. Last week, $6,000.

Gateway (Associated) (2,100; $1.25-$1.75)—"Pepe" (Col). Wow $14,000 with advanced-ticket prices. Last week, "Sword and Dragon" (Val), $8,700.

Penn (UATC) (3,300; $1-$1.50)—"Hoodlum Priest" (UA) (2d wk). Tall $10,000. Last week, $12,500.

Squirrel Hill (SW) (834; $1.25)—"League of Gentlemen" (Union). Big $4,200. Last week, "Upstairs and Downstairs" (20th) (3d wk), $2,700.

Stanley (SW) (3,700; $1-$1.50)—"101 Dalmatians" (BV). Whopping $20,000. Last week, "Suzie Wong" (Par) (5th wk), $7,800.

Warner (SW) (1,513; $1.50-$2.75)—"Exodus" (UA) (3d wk). Loud $20,500. Last week, $18,500.

YOU CAN GO AROUND THE WORLD IN 75 INCHES,* OR LESS

Now that Spring is here again, the glint of golden prospects shimmer on the Croisette, imagination wanders Unter den Linden and floats home in a gondola. It is the time of the festivals and the world's picture makers will be in tune with the crescendo of buying and selling that rises from the Mediterranean, the marketplace of the international film industry.

The throb of profit possibilities will be there, Variety's International Film Number will be there, so take advantage of this extra impact edition to put your sales message before this important buy-sell gathering.

INTERNATIONAL EDITION OF

TO BE PUBLISHED IN APRIL

Make Your SPACE RESERVATIONS Now

LONDON, S.W.1 49 St. James's Street Piccadilly	ROME Stampa Estera (Foreign Press Club), Via Mercede 55	PARIS 7 66 Ave. de Breteuil	MADRID General Sanjurjo 24
NEW YORK 36 154 W. 46th St.	HOLLYWOOD 28 6404 Sunset Blvd.	CHICAGO 11 400 N. Michigan Ave.	BERLIN Lichterfelde West Tulpen Strasse 9a

* (The Dimensions of This Page)

Envision More-Dubbed Pix as Future Common Mart Prods. Are Completed

Paris, March 21.

Dubbing has been an accepted part of releasing foreign films here for the last 30 years, but this week two dubbed versions of important Italian pix brought the subject into play again. This also pointed up that more dubbed versions will be made of coproductions.

The pix are Michaelangelo Antonioni's "The Night" and Luchino Visconti's "Rocco and His Brothers." Critics found that the former was excellently done while the latter job was viewed as not good enough and that it possibly hurt the real worth of the pic.

Both vehicles have important French stars which led to the decision to release them only in dubbed form. Usually, in Paris, pix get simultaneous dubbed and titled production versions. And in some [illegible] a subtitled pic is shown. However, outside of Paris, titled films get only a few bookings.

[illegible] supervised the dubbing of [illegible] himself and made sure [illegible] well matched. [illegible] Jeanne Moreau herself. He also [illegible] mixing. Visconti [illegible] do his dubbing [illegible] synch [illegible]. Critics felt [illegible] impaired by the [illegible].

[illegible] that the more [illegible] of "Rocco" [illegible] than the [illegible] "Night."

[illegible] Most co-[illegible] French stars [illegible] mean [illegible] present [illegible] to more care [illegible] ing jobs.

'Salam' Tops New Pathe Program

Paris, March 28.

[illegible] of the Pathe [illegible] utilized a group [illegible] has picked [illegible] Franco-Italian [illegible] Pathe has ad[illegible] and [illegible] to other. Both [illegible] are on the [illegible].

[illegible] on and invested [illegible] of Sadam and [illegible] made in English [illegible] made by Yank [illegible] with Stewart Granger, Anouk Aimee, Rossana Podesta, [illegible] and Stanley [illegible]. The next [illegible] pic, "Private [illegible]," [illegible] Louis Malle [illegible] Christine Gouze-Renal, is [illegible] the slate though [illegible] has it [illegible] of France.

[illegible] Bresson's new pic, "The Trial of Joan of Arc", is also [illegible] the costumers, "[illegible] Wolves," "The [illegible]" and "[illegible] Corporal Epinglé." A [illegible] "The Excommunicated," a film by the son of the late director Jacques Becker, is forthcoming, as well as the critical prize-winner, "Skin and Bones," and a thriller, "The Black Monocle."

BINGO RATED THREAT TO BRITISH CINEMA

London, March 21.

British cinemas already fighting a losing battle against television, may be facing a new threat from bingo. Since the new Betting Act came into force, bingo has been making thousands of pounds for British showmen taking it into any hall that happens to be empty.

Top bingo promoters are the Mecca dance halls. Nearly 2,000 people a session sit down to play the game at their Royal ballroom in North London. Mecca expects a similar success from bingo sessions at the Lyceum Ballroom in the Strand, housed in what was once Sir Henry Irving's theatre.

Hundreds of smaller promoters are expected to follow Mecca's lead. Under the Betting Act, bingo promoters can make a profit only from the 29c entrance fee, but that's enough to make it a paying game. Prizes go up to $224.

120 Yugoslav Films Exported Last Year

Belgrade, March 21.

Yugoslavia, film distribution and import-export enterprise, last year exported 120 films, feature pix and shorts, to 42 countries.

Africa and Latin America were the best buyers, totalling 43 feature films and 25 shorts, paying $104,000. Countries of northern Europe followed with 13 feature pix and 15 shorts and documentaries for $124,031. U.S. and Canada bought one Yugoslav-produced feature pic for $12,047.

Berlin Cinemas Vote Vs. Strike

Berlin, March 21.

West Berlin's cinema owners won't go [illegible] like April 10 as originally intended. Their protest meeting will be held early in the day on April 10 [illegible] Camman, chairman of Association of Berlin Cinema Owners, said it was simply too difficult to bring all problems under one hat.

First, the local distribs said that they couldn't support the idea of a strike [illegible] financial loss would be, even [illegible] a day, too heavy. [illegible] of first-run [illegible] best financial shape [illegible] along with new arrangements. [illegible] of all the discussions [illegible] no cinemas will be closed [illegible] April 10.

Incidentally, Cammann said that he didn't like the word "strike" because [illegible] owners are employers, and [illegible] go on strike. [illegible] he felt would was a demonstration against the high amusement [illegible].

Of course [illegible] first the overall [illegible] entertainment tax will be [illegible]. But Cammann is realistic to know that it will be tough, [illegible] understanding on the part of authorities. After all, the problems of cinema owners are only secondary in the city like Berlin.

PARIS OPERA STRIKE HALTED AFTER 2 MOS.

Paris, March 28.

The strike of the choral groups at the nationalized Paris Opera ended this week. Accords will be signed Friday 31.

The walkout started Feb. 2 and reduced the Opera presentations to extract scenes from operas and ballets plus straight concerts. It also interrupted the rehearsals of a full-scale reprise of Hector Berlioz' "The Trojans" (Les Troyens).

It looks like full scale operas may be back to fill in the season through July, but it is doubtful whether "Trojans" will preem this season.

Money Prize for Best Reporting on Film Biz

Rome, March 21.

Four million Lire (some $6,400) in prize money has been set aside by Globe Films International to be awarded each year for the best reporting efforts about the film industry in dailies, weeklies, radio and tele.

Globe prexy Henry Lombroso emphasized here that contest was open to all comers in the four media (who must submit clippings and or tapes of material to Globe HQ here) without restriction to subject matter, as long as this is within the film industry field. Prize in this way differentiates from most other similar kudos which usually ask contestants to speak of company putting up the coin.

Jurists slated to judge the vast amount of "copy" expected will be chosen from all fields of the arts. Among those invited to serve are Italo industry topper Eitel Monaco, exhib head Italo Gemini, publisher Arnoldo Mondadori, Venice Film Festival director Domenico Meccoli, writers, critics, authors, directors and actors.

London Polish Film Week

London, March 21.

London is to have a Polish Film Week later this year and a British Film Week will be held in Warsaw. The British Film Producers Assn. is submitting 10 pix from which the Poles will select six.

The BFPA has suggested that Warsaw's British Week should be held in June, just before the Berlin Film Fest. The Poles favor an autumn date for Polish Week here.

Italians Mull Entries to '61 Pix Festivals

Rome, March 21.

A joint industry committee currently is choosing Italian feature pix to rep this country at the various upcoming film festivals, with the first selections expected shortly. Conjecture currently centers around possible choices for the Cannes Film Fest event (May 3-17). Several candidates are still said to be in the running in a particularly "good" year for quality pix in this country.

Films most often named as candidates for Cannes are "La Viaccia" (Arco Film), "Girl With a Suitcase" (Titanus), and "Two Women" (Carlo Ponti). There are two more pix possibles: "Naked Odyssey" (Cineriz) and "Tutti a Casa" (Dino Risi). Only one may be officially "chosen" but other may be invited by the fest itself.

Fest regulations virtually have eliminated two other candidates: Michaelangelo Antonioni's "Lo Notte" (Cineriz) due to its Paris release and Rene Clement's "Joy of Living" (Cineriz), because an official select on must be directed by an Italian. The Clement pic may be entered as French coproduction or be "invited" by fest under relatively elastic clauses.

Another local candidate, Cineriz's "The Bandit," will not be ready in time and is viewed as a probable entry at Venice.

New Dubbed Pix Visas, Effective Soon in France, Boost for U.S. Films

Paris, March 21.

Inside sources maintain that a change in the duration of dubbed film visas will soon go into effect. Previously a visa was good for only seven years, and after that any re-release, except in subtitled form, called for a new and precious visa. Now this will be wiped out and a visa always will be valid.

This may give Yanks some solid extra income and bim time via judicious use of reissues. And there also probably will no longer be a two-year limit on the age of films that can be dubbed. Latter also would allow U.S. majors to bring in pix that they feel are now of probable interest here.

A movement for a return to double features always has come to naught here.

But since this never caught on, it is considered of little importance under the new visa tenures. It is not a law yet, but it is imminent. Yanks are now looking over their backlogs to use certain films when and if it goes through. It appears extremely likely at this time.

New French Govt. Film Censorship Set to Roll, Faces Many Problems

Paris, March 28.

Although the new governmental film censorship setup is about ready to go into operation, it has many problems still facing it, including industry and pic critic boycott and internecine ministerial disagreements. The blue pencil body, the Commission De Control, still needs seven members before it can begin to function. It might go into action this week but still will have plenty of wrinkles to iron out.

Most dissenting film people are against the lack of parity in the new CDC setup. It is now composed of seven ministerial delegates, seven professional reps, and eight from sociological, teaching magistrative and medical branches. The industry feels that pressure groups and national members could easily gang up on them. However decisions are not completely binding since the [illegible] could come from the Minister of Culture Louis Terrenoire who can override CDC decisions. [illegible] have to be handed [illegible] before [illegible] CDC [illegible] the future [illegible] of the social making of a law.

[illegible] directors [illegible] and [illegible] [illegible] Also Terrenoire could have trouble with the Ministries of Justice, Education and Finance who are the main ones in demanding certain cuts and restrictions if he allows [illegible] to be affected by appeals.

Hence, film censorship here is still a [illegible] for the CDC [illegible] operation soon, then the objectors could make it [illegible] if it does not work.

Mex Sending No Films To Cannes This Year

Mexico City, March 28.

Mexico will not be represented at Cannes this year because the two or three suitable films cannot be processed by the laboratories in time, according to Oscar J. Brooks, head of the Mexican Assn. of Film Producers.

The Republic had wanted to send a picture to the French festival, but under the new official policy Mexico wants to enter only the most outstanding product.

Fear Mex Prods. May Move O'seas

Mexico City, March 21

Is a big exodus of Mexican producers about to be launched? This is the question currently worrying federal officials, union leaders and industry workers. Oscar Brooks, head of the Mexican Assn of Film Producers and one of the producers reported to be eyeing Spain, and many denied he had any intention of "abandoning" Mexico.

Speaking for himself and other producers such as Pedro Galindo, Jesus Gomez, and others, Brooks said that [illegible] making a Spanish picture or [illegible] or two, does not [illegible] we are planning to [illegible] ourselves from the national film industry."

As a matter of fact a number of producers have been considering production of films in Spain, especially because the government there is offering considerable inducement.

Mexican producers, who more and more are thinking in international terms, are interested in diversifying their activities, with on-location pix making in various parts of the world, including Japan. The matter of finance is the main problem, and that is why better financed elements here seek coproduction.

On the local front, Jesus Gregas expressed producer sentiment when he said that this is a period of watchful waiting. And producers especially want to see a clearer situation in the exhibition field, now largely under federal management.

Unions, for their part, are girding to take proper measures. In the opinion of union leaders producers have amassed considerable fortunes during last 30 years at expense of underpaid worker elements. Now, with a stricter credit policy adopted by the Film Bank, producers are crying the blues, union execs maintain, because they can no longer put the bulk of their money into "churros" or quickie production. Unions are 100% behind the government drive to boost picture quality so that Mexico can win back markets it has lost and build up regular foreign channels for exploitation of its product. The 5,000 members of the Union of Film Production Workers will not agree to passing of wage hikes in forthcoming labor - management talks.

Postpone Italo Theatre Strike

Rome, March 21.

The planned five-day shutdown of all Italian film houses and theatres, originally set for March 15, has been postponed by industry toppers. Action was taken after several meetings between exhibitor and production officials and Italo Minister for Entertainment Folchi in which industry worries were exposed.

Folchi reportedly assured the industry toppers that he would personally consider all pending picture problems (a new pic and law and new censorship legislation are also up for discussion), with special attention to the proposed new admission surtax, the direct cause of the threatened theatre shuttering.

Film officials emphasize that the strike has not been called off but merely postponed to give the government time to reconsider its decision. If this decision is confirmed, it's suggested, then strike would be called immediately. Shutdown would also affect Italy's 3,000-odd parish cinemas run by Catholic groups.

Also as a result of the strained industry-government relationship, the "Premio Miliardo" industry awards to the top 19 pix grossing over a billion lire since 1945, slated to be held in San Remo March 25, has also been postponed to a later date.

Change Producers on 'La Fayette'

UFA-Comacico Takes Over Filming of $2,000,000 Opus From Estela Films

Paris, March 28.

UFA-Comacico has taken over the production of the big scale historical opus pic, "La Fayette," from Suzy Prim's Estela Films. It's expected that $2,000,000 will be spent on the tale about the French aristocrat who took part in the French Revolution and helped the American Colonies in their revolt.

It is the first French pic in Technicolor-Technirama 70m and is being prepped as a roadshow item. It is shooting in Nice.

Film will have an English version, although a French pic by using closeups and medium shots, done with English lip synch. Yank actor Howard St. John plays Washington and Orson Welles is Benjamin Franklin, Edmund Purdom is also featured as well as British star Jack Hawkins.

Italians are repped by Vittorio De Sica, Folco Lulli and Rossana Schiaffino. Michel Le Royer plays La Fayette and Pascale Audret is his wife. Swiss-German actress Liselotte Pulver portrays Marie Antoinette. Jean Dreville is directing while Claude Renoir lenses this international pic.

Air-Conditioned House for India

Bombay, March 21.

New air-conditioned theatre, seating 1,100, likely will open its doors this month at Hyderabad, new capital city of Andhra State.

New theatre, the Basant, will play Telugu and Hindi language pictures.

IT BEGINS WHERE "PEYTON PLACE" LEFT OFF...

It looks into the face of the town... down its streets where shame became famous...

It lets you discover what happened the day Allison returned—to defend herself against the truth "Peyton Place" called indecent...

20th

JERRY WALD'S

RETURN TO PEYTON PLACE

CINEMASCOPE
COLOR by DE LUXE

STARRING
CAROL LYNLEY · JEFF CHANDLER · ELEANOR PARKER
MARY ASTOR · ROBERT STERLING · LUCIANA PALUZZI · BRETT HALSEY · GUNNAR HELLSTROM AND TUESDAY WELD

Directed by JOSÉ FERRER · Screenplay by RONALD ALEXANDER

Watch It Top Those "Peyton Place" Records This Spring!

Hal Roach Studio Liquidation Issue; Criticize 'Do Nothing' Trustees

By SID BENJAMIN

Scranton, March 28.

Liquidation of Hal Roach Studios in Culver City, Cal. is sought in proceedings instituted here before Federal Judge John W. Murphy by a $1,000,000 creditor, Reldan Trading Corp., of 120 West 31st St., New York.

Attorney George Natanson, representing Reldan, maintained at a hearing before Judge Murphy (23) that Hal Roach Studios is insolvent and "there's no use throwing good money after bad."

He also demanded that $4,000 per week in rental fees now being paid Hal Roach Studios by MGM be used to maintain the 14-acre property, which has seven sound stages, and to pay back real estate taxes.

However, Assistant U. S. Attorney James S. Palermo raised the question if federal liens would not take precedence. He said Hal Roach Studios owes $500,000 for a Reconstruction Finance Corp. loan and more than $100,000 in federal taxes.

Another major creditor, William Morris Agency, represented at the hearing by attorney Henry Greenwald, claims $1,600,000.

Hal Roach Studios is a wholly-owned subsidiary of Scranton Corp., which is in reorganization under the Bankruptcy Act.

"We are trying to preserve Hal Roach in order not to bring Scranton Corp. into bankruptcy," said attorney Norman Harris, counsel for the trustees, attorney J. Julius Levy and John F. Murphy. However, attorney Harris said a report to creditors of Hal Roach Studios may recommend liquidation. He promised the report will be filed within 60 days.

Attorney Natanson, who had expressed displeasure over failure of the trustees to come up with a plan of reorganization in the two years since the proceedings started, countered, "If we come back in March, 1962, there will still be no plan."

"That won't happen," said Judge Murphy, "because this report must be forthcoming no later than May 23."

Testimony during the 75-minute hearing disclosed payment by RKO to Hal Roach Studios of residual fees for actors and writers on Roach films have been halted because the payments were not advanced by the trustees.

Attorney Bernard Rothman, also representing the trustees, gave a detailed account of how the rental income from MGM is being used to keep skeleton forces at work on the studio property and in its New York office. He expressed the hope MGM will pick up an option to continue renting the studio after expiration of the 12-week arrangement which went into effect Jan. 27.

Buyers Unidentified

Attorney Rothman said negotiations to sell studios are continuing but refused to identify prospective purchasers in open court. He said he would give Judge Murphy a confidential report if the jurist wants it.

At the same time, Rothman admitted previous negotiations for a sale "have fallen through." They were reportedly with William Morris Agency.

Reldan moved to increase the bonds of the trustees from $75,000 apiece to an unprecedented $500,000 apiece.

This was opposed by attorney Harris, who said such boosts are in order only when trustees are guilty of defalcations or embezzlement. Attorney Natanson said Reldan did not wish to make any such intimation. But he noted that trustees who failed to take certain steps have at times been held personally responsible for losses in the value of property in their charge.

Judge Murphy reserved decision on the motion for the boost in fees. Veteran federal court attaches here cannot recall that big a sum being set for any trustee in a Bankruptcy Act proceeding.

Pat Boone through his Cooga Mooga Productions registered a protest with MPAA on Esla Productions' title, "A Child Is Waiting," contending too similar to his own proposed indie, "A Child Is Crying."

Value of Public Money

An independent company such as King Bros. Productions can be truly independent in the trade sense of the term, Herman King, a partner, indicated in New York this week. Reason is the company does its own financing via a public stock issue, thus was able to underwrite the entire $1,500,000 cost of "Gorgo," which was made in England for Metro release.

King issue now numbers 930,000 shares, traded on an over-the-counter basis. The "Gorgo" sci-fi entry ought to gross $6,000,000 in worldwide rentals, said the production exec, on the basis of returns to date.

Other titles on the Kings' forthcoming lineup: "Captain Sinbad," "Mr. Adam," "Four Came at Dawn" and "White Line to Eternity."

Prem Runs Gamut Of Censor Ideas For Church P.A.'s

Philadelphia, March 28.

A voluntary rating system, somewhat like the set-up now employed in England, was urged by Otto Preminger, at a meeting of the National Religious Publicity Council in the Sheraton Hotel here.

"It is the only feasible plan by which parents may be informed in advance just what films are acceptable for teenage children," he declared. He conceded his beliefs ran counter to the opinion of the majority in the film industry. "The trouble with them is they want to eat their cake and have it too. They want to make adult pictures, but they don't want to label them as such."

Preminger told the religious press agents he was flatly opposed to censorship. "I returned recently from Europe where I have seen censorship at work, both of the left and the right. Any group that employs it always manages to make it work for their own best purposes."

But parents can not be expected to read every review on films before their arrival, he continued, and the English rating plan gives them a good idea of what to let the children see. "I couldn't estimate how many people in the industry would agree with me," he told a questioner. "My guess is that most of the old-timers would be against it. They would be against anything that might possibly mean a cut in revenue.

"That sort of conservatism," he added, "is by no means limited to the film industry. I personally happen to prefer the English way, not because I was urged or forced to, but because that's the way I feel about it. I think the policing of children's morals should be in the hands of their parents. But I also think the parents are entitled to some protection, too."

The producer told the churchmen they were in "an ideal spot" to fight objectionable moves and sensational film advertising. "Word of mouth is still the biggest single factor in selling a movie. People go to see the films they are talking about. The best way to fight a movie you honestly do not like is by not supporting it and through your influence getting your friends not to support it." He added, "Don't give a lot of free publicity to a cheap picture by attacking it. Many that never deserved it became hits through church opposition."

Preminger also told them not to get excited about the outright salacious smoker films. "I've been in the business a long time and I never knew anybody who got rich making stag pictures or by selling French postcards. A lot of the people in that business don't even do it because of the money; but because they have to. They're sick."

Russ Downing's Op

Russell V. Downing, president of Radio City Music Hall, is recuperating at the N.Y. Hospital following an operation for an infected bladder. He had gone into the hospital for a routine checkup early last week, and it was decided to operate last Friday (24).

Downing likely will be in the hospital for two weeks, and then spend another two or three weeks at home recuperating.

Lutheran-Backed 'Question 7' Goes To 4-Wall Deals

Louis de Rochemont Associates, which feels it helped set the pattern for the kind of religious group tie-ups which permitted its "Martin Luther" to rack up long runs in small seaters in 1953-54, now is having difficulty finding available small seaters for its latest Lutheran release, the anti-Communist "Question 7."

Situation, as outlined by de Rochemont prexy, Borden Mace, is somewhat ironic since so many of the small seaters now are tied up with long runs being realized by Metro's "Ben-Hur." In New York Friday (24), Mace said he had been told by one exhib that he could not possibly have obtained the run he is now getting on "Ben-Hur" had he not had the experience of promoting "Luther."

Because of the shortage of arties due to their use by major distribs, indie distrib de Rochemont has been forced to book "Question 7" into the large-seat palaces which used to be the major companies' happy hunting grounds.

Results, in a couple of instances, have been unique. In Seattle, de Rochemont made a four-wall deal on the 2,900-seat Orpheum, and racked up $12,100 in the first seven days, plus another $12,600 in the first four days of the second week. Distrib was forced into the four-wall deal when no exhib wanted the pic.

"Question 7" was forced to conclude its Orpheum run because of the theatre's prior commitments for a symphony orchestra series and a locked booking on Universal's "The Great Impostor." However, the film will return to the Orpheum, but this time on "extremely favorable" percentage terms. Picture also was forced into a four-wall deal with the big Lyceum in Minneapolis, and according to Mace, did equally well.

Film has not done as sensational business in every one of its first seven dates (one date was said to be off), but well enough to convince Mace that perhaps the big conventional house may actually be serving a useful purpose for such a film. If you put it in an art house, says the prexy, people are liable to assume it's a foreign film and shy away. Though the film features German players and was made in Germany, it is a shot-in-English production by Americans.

The Lutheran Associates pic, which dramatizes the conflict between individual freedom and the state in East Germany, is, of course, getting solid backing from Lutheran church groups.

Charles Schneer registered "Round Trip to the Moon" with MPAA for production in Europe.

Leo Lax's Consolidated Lab Deal Gives Him $300,000 Revolving Fund

Paris, March 28

Leo Lax, a local film distrib, dubber, special effects pic lab owner, and arranger of coproductions, has signed a contract with the Yank Republic Corp. and its Consolidated Film Industries lab division.

Lax reported deal here following his five weeks in Hollywood and Gotham. He signed with Republic prexy Victor Carter and exec veepee Sidney P. Solow. Lax has a U.S. pic distrib office too.

Under this setup Lax gets a revolving credit allowance of $300,000 replenished after like summed business arrangements. It is a two way deal with Republic getting percentages and Consolidated his film work in the U.S. It permits Lax to buy more European pix for dubbing here and placing in Yank theatrical marts and video via his offices there, as well as investing in Yank films for foreign distrib rights and arranging and participating in foreign coproductions between France, Britain, Italy and West Germany, plus helping U.S. investments in these pix for Anglo speaking distrib rights.

Lax found that good, exploitable low budget pix could be made cheaper in Hollywood than in Europe. He saw films there which cost $50,000 and would have cost double here to approximate the technical quality and general distrib chances.

Lax feels that all that is lacking for a series of needed low budget pix are ideas and names, but these can be overcome by the general highgrade action aspects. Some also had the quality and subject matter for more specialized chances also, says he. Lax thinks there is a definite Hollywood "New Wave" of filmmaking talents which should be heard from soon when the right material is forthcoming. He handled the Yank indie "Private Property" for good results in France. Lax will also oversee any foreign exterior work needed on these pix.

He already has options on many pix which he will now begin to dub for the U.S. since he has the financial wherewithal insured now. Lax is also prepping one big coproduction deal per year abroad as well as his programmer pix. He feels this will insure needed films for Yank circuits as well as for European outlets.

Republic and Consolidated will share in interest on their loans from Lax's transactions. Lax's office in the U.S. is headed by Edmond Goldman who was a longtime Paramount rep in the Far East.

Library Week Poster

In conjunction with National Library Week, which starts April 16 this year, the advertising-publicity directors committee of the Motion Picture Assn. of America has arranged for the preparation and distribution of a two-color poster featuring 18 books which are now being made into films or have recently been released.

The posters are going to approximately 6,000 libraries around the country. Among the films thus cited are "The Guns of Navarone," "Breakfast at Tiffany's," "Gone With the Wind," "The Longest Day," "Hawaii" and "Advise and Consent."

Illegal Rental Rap Dropped Against Conn. Distrib

Hartford, March 28.

Government is dropping all charges of illegal film rentals against a local film distributor. Charges filed last year against Clarence B. Kantrowitz, operator of Arrow films, resulted in an off-beat trial and a hung jury, with a resultant mistrial.

Trial featured a full length showing of a western in open court. According to U. S. Atty. Harry W. Hultgren Jr., the Justice Dept. recommended a dropping of the charges because of additional cost of prosecution and fact that the offense was a misdemeanor.

Kantrowitz was originally charged with copyright infringement on five features through illegal rentals. The trial climaxed an FBI investigation that started in August of 1959 when a Chicago tavern owner was arrested for showing 16 m. prints of Hollywood productions that had only been released for theatre exhibitions.

The tavern keeper testified he rented some of the movies from Arrow Films. Kantrowitz testified that he bought and paid for the films through normal business channels. He insisted—as part of his defense—that there is a widespread open traffic in 16 m. prints of Hollywood productions by film dealers across the country.

LONGO TO COPLEY ON 'BERNADETTE' RELEASE

Boston, March 28.

Joseph P. Longo, picture public relations man, has joined Copley Advertising Agency Inc., and drawn for his first assignment the launching of the American preem in Boston of "Bernadette of Lourdes," at the Fenway Monday (3).

Cy Harvey, Janus Films, and operator of the Brattle Theatre, Cambridge, has leased the Fenway for "Bernadette," which is being distributed in New England by Edward Ruff Film Associates.

CLAIMS AA RENEGED ON 'MARCO POLO' DEALS

Hollywood, March 28.

Domino Pictures and W. Lee Wilder filed a Superior Court suit against Allied Artists, AA president Steve Broidy and v.p.-treasurer George Burrows asking $1,650,000 in damages on a charge of breach of contract.

Complaint asserts that Domino and AA entered into an oral agreement in October, 1958, whereby Wilder would produce for the Domino company "Marco Polo" as a theatrical feature plus a series of 39 telefilms. Deal, it's alleged, later was amended to include a second feature, "Bluebeard's 10 Honeymoons," with AA to finance and distribute.

Claim now is that AA refuses to proceed with either the vidpix or the features.

'Bigger Terms for Bigger Product' Is American International's Intention

Hollywood, March 28.

American International Pictures will release 12 big ones this year, according to prexy James H. Nicholson. Four will be company-produced, four will be co-produced and four will be acquired. Majority are being filmed abroad.

Company, which currently is celebrating its seventh anniversary year, is allocating approximately $1,500,000 for exploitation of its program in 1961, this year to embrace between 18 and 20, two over last year. Nicholson states AIP will ask comparable terms with other companies' product of similar calibre.

In noting rapid strides being made by firm, Nicholson reported gross revenue for 1959-60 increased 102% over previous year, and this year is expected to boost its take by 54%.

Foreign biz increased 300% last year for 40% of total revenues, exec stated. Figure is expected to jump to 50% for current year, he said.

Lineup of blockbusters includes "Black Sunday," "Konga," "Jekyll's Inferno," Master of the World," "Beware of Children," "Repitilicus," "Operation Camel," "The Hand," "Lost Battalion," "Pit and the Pendulum," "Ali Baba and the Seven Miracles" and "The Professionals."

Coin Comes Winging In For 'West Side Story'

Although the world premiere of "West Side Story" at the Rivoli, New York, is more than seven months away, advance sales already total $30,675, and that accumulated within seven days after the first ad appeared, William J. Heineman, United Artists veep, disclosed in New York yesterday (Tues.).

Figure includes both group sales and individual mail order. Pic opens Oct. 18.

Kingsley Brit. Lion Chairman

London, March 28.

David Kingsley, managing director of British Lion, has been elected chairman of the company.

HOLD YOUR BEST SUMMER PLAYING TIME
FOR ANOTHER SURE-FIRE BLOCKBUSTER FROM UNIVERSAL!

ROCK HUDSON · KIRK DOUGLAS

"THE LAST SUNSET"

GUARANTEED PRE-SOLD BY UNIVERSAL

co-starring DOROTHY MALONE · JOSEPH COTTEN · CAROL LYNLEY

NEVILLE BRAND

SCREENPLAY BY DALTON TRUMBO · DIRECTED BY ROBERT ALDRICH · PRODUCED BY EUGENE FRENKE and EDWARD LEWIS

Music by ERNEST GOLD · A Brynaprod, S.A. Production · A Universal-International Release

20 Puerto Rican Technicians Form a 'Film Cooperative' Project

By AL DINHOFER

San Juan, P.R., March 28.

An unusual cooperative composed of local film-makers and technicians was formed here this week. It is to be called Old San Juan Productions.

Cooperative head is Amilcar Tirado Santiago, 35, who has directed several documentaries on Puerto Rico for the Commonwealth government. He believes this is the first film-making cooperative in the world. He said the 20-man unit will produce full-length features.

"Our fundamental purpose is to form a national (sic) Puerto Rican cinema. We will attempt to use the medium to present Puerto Rico with dignity and respect."

The cooperative is composed exclusively of "professionals." It was formed under the auspices of the government's Cooperative Development Adm., which will supervise fiscal operations.

"However," Tirado stressed, "the cooperative will have complete creative freedom" in producing films.

Actors and writers will be contracted by the cooperative for specific films. Under consideration now are several works by Puerto Rican writers including Rene Marques, Enrique Laguerre, Abelardo Diaz Alfaro, Cesar Andreu Iglesias and Ricardo Alegria.

The first major production will be based on the Manuel Zeno Gandia novel, "La Charca," considered the best Puerto Rican novel ever written. The work deals with Puerto Rican life under Spanish rule.

Tirado emphasized that the cooperative will be non-political, which is a requirement of the Commonwealth Cooperative Law under which the group was incorporated.

Tirado said that his group has already made a half-hour color film for the Puerto Rico Institute of Culture on Spanish architecture in old San Juan. His group, he added, will soon begin another film on the University of Puerto Rico Museum.

The cooperative is composed of 20 film technicians. All but two members work in the Community Education Division of the Department of Education. Tirado has directed, for this division, several documentaries awarded prizes in Europe, among these "El Puente," "Santero," and "La Voz de la Montana."

Tirado directed the feature film "Ayer Amargo" which was shown locally and in New York, and is now on exhibition in Latin America.

Certain Films Get Push From Uncle Sam O'Seas; New Beneficiary: 'Alamo'

Washington, March 28.

The U.S. Government recognition in store for "Alamo" openings planned abroad will be extended to any "big and outstanding" Yank film when the Government is asked to give such cooperation, it was disclosed here.

Turner Shelton, head of motion pictures for the U.S. Information Agency, said USIA has been requested on behalf of "Alamo" to ask American embassies overseas to assist in "dressing up" openings (that is, cooperating in getting VIPs out for such occasions) of the John Wayne film.

This has been done in the past for "Porgy and Bess," "10 Commandments" and several other motion pictures, Shelton said. It will also be done, he added, whenever USIA is requested to do so by distributing companies for preems of "big openings" in foreign capitals of Yank films of "outstanding artistic, cultural and production merit" when it is "mutually believed the motion pictures would be beneficial to the U.S. interest."

No branch of the Government "recommends" or passes judgment publicly on any commercial film. The special treatment planned for "Alamo" consists only of a USIA request that U.S. ambassadors in countries where large openings are skedded "extend appropriate consideration" to such events.

BLANCKE, STRALEM TO SCREEN GEMS BOARD

Couple of Wall Streeters, who are members of the board of Columbia, have been added to the board of Col's 89%-owned Screen Gems Inc. Latter, which is engaged in the production and distribution of films for television, last month placed 11% of its common stock in the open market via rights to Col stockholders.

Newcomers to the SG directorate are Leo M. Blancke and Donald S. Stralem who also are partners respectively in Hemphill, Noyes & Co. and Hallgarten & Co.

It is further disclosed that Gems now has tv distribution rights to about 1,400 features, of which it owns 112, plus approximately 1,000 shorts, serials and cartoons which were released for theatrical exhibition originally.

Lopert Vs. Atlanta Over 'Sunday' Nix

Atlanta, March 28.

This burg's long awaited legal battle over censorship seems headed for a showdown following filing of a suit here Friday (24) by Lopert Pictures Corp., United Artists subsid. Suit names (a) City of Atlanta; (b) a group of individuals, including Mayor William S. Hartsfield, in their capacity as Board of Censors for censorship of motion pictures to be shown in Atlanta; and (c) Mrs. Christine Smith Gilliam, city censor.

Suit followed barring by Mrs. Gilliam of Greek-made "Never on Sunday," starring Melina Mercouri, with star and pic currently nominated for awards in upcoming Oscar sweepstakes.

Censor had barred film for use of the word "whore" and also objected to a bedroom scene between star and sailor.

Lopert, through its legal representatives, Atlanta law firm of Heyman, Abram & Young, points that Mrs. Gilliam has refused to license the showing of "Never on Sunday" and "by the reason of the unconstitutional and illegal acts of defendants, plaintiff is being deprived of its right to do so . . ."

It is pointed out in the petition Mrs. Gilliam refused to give the picture a permit unless certain cuts were made in it. This decision was appealed and the Board of Censors upheld Mrs. Gilliam's decision.

"Never on Sunday" has had widespread circulation without cuts throughout the United States, according to the petition, and the film "may not properly be characterized as obscene or licentious."

Attacking the ordinance setting up Atlanta's Censor Board, the petition says it violates Georgia's Constitution which provides that "no law shall ever be passed to curtail, or restrain the liberty of speech, or of press; any person may speak, write and publish his sentiments, on all subjects, being responsible for the abuse of that liberty." Legal eagles claim this act empowers the mayor and general council of Atlanta to "impose a previous restraint upon the exhibition of motion pictures in the City of Atlanta in direct contravention of said Constitutional provision."

It also violates the First and 14th Amendments to the Constitution of the United States in that it permits the imposition of previous restraint upon the exhibition of motion pictures in the city of Atlanta, the petition contends.

It also is contended that the ordinance attempts to create the position of "Motion Picture Censor, notwithstanding no power to create such position was granted to the mayor and general council in the charter amendment."

"Never on Sunday" is the story of a funloving prostitute, who, according to a review included in the petition, "loves her work."

Hearing on the request for a temporary restraining order has been set for April 10.

SID JUSTIN EXITS PAR AFTER 35-YEAR RUN

Hollywood, March 28.

Sidney Justin has resigned as exec assistant to v.p. Jack Karp at Paramount, ending a 35-year association with company both here and in N.Y. Bowout resulted from Justin's failure to get together with Par on a contract for himself.

Prior to being transferred to Coast in 1930, Justin spent five years in Gotham's legal department. He headed legal dept at studios before becoming Karp's aide.

Importers Study Self-Tagged Pix For 'Adults Only'

New York's importing fraternity, which heretofore has gone on the record as opposing all forms of statutory film classification but shied away from comment on self-classification, is again studying a proposal for the rating of those films deemed suitable for adults only.

It was learned in New York last week that the Independent Film Importers & Distributors of America is polling its members anent a proposal whereby an IFIDA committee would make the "adults only" decision on appropriate pictures. The proposal carefully excludes use of the word "classification" because "there has been too much confusion about this word already" and "its use now implies a statutory form."

Statement being circulated to IFIDA members notes that "we have no apologies to make for our foreign product," and adds: "We recognize, however, that a number of our pictures are intended for adults rather than children."

The system would be called an "advisory service" and, at this stage anyway, sounds somewhat like a modified form of the Motion Picture Assn. of America's Green Sheet service. Idea would be to "inform all interested parties as to our recommendations with respect to our motion pictures for children." Statement also says that IFIDA would welcome the cooperation of all "interested" groups, including industry groups, "in the establishment and procedural implementation of this service."

Implementation, of course, may be the hooker. Theatre Owners of America has proposed a system whereby it would inform exhibs about content of upcoming films, but just how, has not been decided upon as yet. Actually it would seem that the Green Sheet now does to a large extent just what the TOA proposal says it's going to do in the future.

Melson Pic Board Deadlocked, Ask Court Dissolve Corporation

Los Angeles, March 28.

Edward L. Alperson, Sr. and Jr., have filed separate suits in Superior Court against Melson Pictures Corp., each involving the feature, "The Diamond Queen," released through Warner Bros. in 1953.

Action brought by Alperson Sr. alleges breach of contract and asks payment of $3,750 plus 12½% of pic's profits, which complaint says exceeds $30,000. Alperson claims these rights were assigned to him by Motion Picture Management Corp., which, according to producer, had a contract closed May 20, 1953 with plaintiff whereby MPMC would put up a certain amount as collateral to obtain bank financing for film. At that time, Alperson states, Melson agreed to pay assignor 12½% of profit.

Second suit by Alperson Jr., asks court to dissolve Melson Pictures. Complaint declares Alperson for past six months has held 50% of outstanding shares of corporation, with balance owned by Frank Melford, prexy of Melson. Alperson charges that directors of company, of which he and his father are two, couldn't agree on management of affairs and couldn't do business any longer, internal dissension exists and two or more factions are deadlocked.

Complaint states that corporation's principal asset is the pic, "Queen," and asks court to appoint a receiver to sell defendant's interest in film and other assets and distribute proceeds.

SCHWARTZ PACT TO RUN FOR 5 YEARS

Hollywood, March 28.

Sol A. Schwartz's deal as v.p. with Columbia Pictures is for five years, it was disclosed before he hopped to N.Y. for several weeks in homeoffice.

Under terms of pact, he'll spend first year getting acquainted with production here and abroad, as a step to succeeding Samuel J. Briskin as head of Coast activities.

There's a possibility he may fly to London for confabs with Mike Frankovich, in charge of firm's European production, before returning to studio.

Oscar's 'Great But Drab' Spot

Hollywood, March 28.

Plans for "warming" the austere bareness of the Santa Monica Civic Aud., scene of this year's upcoming Academy awards ceremonies April 17, were disclosed yesterday by Preston Ames, are director for show. Assisting Ames will be Emile Kuri, both functioning in same roles they played at last year's presentation.

Ames, who said he wanted to go on record in declaring structure is a "terrific place" for the event, with many facilities never available for past Oscar affairs, reported that plans additionally called for converting interior to as theatrical an atmosphere as possible by use of drapery. Two-thirds of aud will be draped with champagne-colored material, he stated, which will be eye-appealing. Simultaneously, such drapery will enhance the accoustics for the video and radio pickup.

Some 300 feet of red carpet also will extend from street curb past the bleachers, through the lobby and down aisles of the auditorium itself. Idea back of the decorations, Ames declared, was to get a "dressed-up feel" for a dressed-up audience, and put spectators in the proper mood for ceremonies.

Flags of the 12 nations repped in the nominations also will flutter on either side of the bleachers and a 25-foot Oscar likeness will greet arrivals outside the colonnaded portico.

R. L. Grosh & Sons, as in past years, will work with Ames and Kuri on decorations, according to Ames.

Seattle Expo Will See 360-Degree Optical Demo From Cinerama

Another quarter is heard from on circular cinema projection with Cinerama's claim to the first undistorted 360-degree system. Process premieres publicly at the Seattle World Fair in April of next year, tying in the auspices of Boeing Aircraft and the U.S. Government.

According to Nicolas Reisini, Cinerama topper, the process employs a single lens for 360-degree audience perception horizontally and 180 degrees vertically. Immediate practical usage, however, will be for present Cinerama installations around the country, where it will eliminate the three-lens projections Cinerama has used from the start. Modified version of the new lens, it's said, permits photographing of 160-degree angle with a single lens.

Commercial 360-degree exhibition, however, is figured impractical by Cinerama—at least at this time.

Achievement of the single lens was a reported five-year undertaking, often with assistance from outside specialist firms. Cost of development was not learned.

Process will be housed for the Seattle expo in a "Spacearium" which Boeing will put up in the American pavilion. The aircraft maker, additionally, is bankrolling the short film to be made in the new process.

Dream of in-the-round exhibition goes back many years, much of the spadework having been done by German inventors. One such process, in fact, was being promoted in Chicago more than a year ago. Interest was reported from several major film companies, but nothing came of the project.

A similar process was shown two years ago by Walt Disney at the Brussels Fair.

Allied Warns of New Contract Clauses

Beware Lest They Pledge Popcorn Money To Universal—Or to Pay Columbia's Lawyers

Detroit, March 28.

Important changes on contract forms by Universal and Columbia are being brought to the attention of exhibs by Allied States Assn. of Motion Picture Exhibitors.

Allied's report to members points out that the new Universal contract states that the exhib agrees that "gross receipts" for the purpose of computing film rental on percentage pictures "shall include all moneys collected from patrons for services, conveniences, or commodities."

Allied said the "exact wording in the license agreement is as follows: 'It is agreed that gross receipts, for the purpose of computing Universal's rental on a percentage picture license here under, shall consist of all moneys directly or indirectly received from patrons, regardless of when or were paid, for the privilege of entry to the theatre premises on each exhibition date of such picture (exclusive only of admission taxes collected from patrons as required by law); and unless otherwise expressly authorized either in the schedule hereof or in writing by Universal for such percentage picture, shall include all moneys collected from patrons for heaters, air-conditioners, playground and parking facilities, and any other services, conveniences, or commodities, inside or outside the theatre premises, and no credits, rebates or allowances may be deducted thereof from the gross receipts."

Allied warns its members: "Every exhib should make certain that he is not agreeing to pay Universal a percentage of the concession receipts when he signs this contract. Perhaps one way to accomplish this is to type or stamp on the schedule of the contract before it is signed a specific agreement that the percentage rental arrangements apply only to boxoffice receipts."

In connection with Columbia, the Allied report states that a new contract imposes an additional obligation upon exhibs to the extent that "should Columbia start legal action against the exhib because of a breach of the agreement, the exhib must pay all expenses involved including attorney fees."

YEAR IN LOCKUP FOR NEW MEXICO OZONER

Albuquerque, March 28.

Uric A. Kane, Les Cruces, N.M., ozoner operator who recently pleaded guilty to charges of attempting to evade $33,335.72 in Federal income taxes, was sentenced to one year in prison and given a $5,000 fine.

Kane was ordered to begin serving the prison sentence on March 22 at the federal reformatory in LaTuna, Texas.

Sentence was handed down in Federal Court here by U.S. Judge Wa'do Rogers. It involved his 1954 income tax.

Picture Grosses

'101 D's' Sockeroo 30G, Denver; 'Alamo' 14G, 2d

Denver, March 28.

Big news here currently is "101 Dalmatians," which is soaring to a smash total opening week at the Denver. Only other newie is "Hand in Hand," mild at small-seater Esquire. However, many extended-runs are shaping up well. "The Alamo" still is big in fourth round at Paramount while "Cry for Happy" looks trim in third Centre stanza. "Spartacus" looms good in 10th week at the Aladdin. "World of Suzie Wong" shapes okay in seventh at Orpheum.

Estimates for This Week

Aladdin (Fox) (900; $1.25-$2.50) —"Spartacus" (U) (10th wk). Good $6,000. Last week, $7,200.

Centre (Fox) (1,270; $1-$1.45)—"Cry for Happy" (Col) (3d wk). Neat $8,000. Last week, $8,800.

Denham (Indie) (800; $1.25-$2.50)—"Ben Hur" (M-G) (50th wk). Warm $6,500. Last week, $8,000.

Denver (Fox) (2,432; $1-$1.25)—"101 Dalmatians" (BV). Smash $30,000 or over. Last week, "Savage Innocents" (Par) and "Sad Sack" (Par), $9,000.

Esquire (Fox) (600; $1)—"Hand in Hand" (Col). Mild $2,000. Last week, "World of Apu" (Indie), $1,600.

Orpheum (RKO) (2,690; $1-$1.25) —"Suzie Wong" (Par) (7th wk). Okay $6,500. Last week, $8,000.

Paramount (Indie) (2,100; 90-$1.25)—"Alamo" (UA) (4th wk) and fight pix (2d wk). Big $14,000 or near. Last week, $21,500.

Towne (Indie) (600; $1-$1.45)—"Village of Damned" (M-G) (2d wk). Hot $3,500. Last week, $5,000.

PHILADELPHIA

(Continued from page 8)

$2.75)—"Spartacus" (U) (20th wk). Solid $7,000. Last week, ditto.

Midtown (Goldman) (1,000; 99-$1.80)—"Great Impostor" (U) (3d wk). Lively $12,000 or near. Last week, $13,000.

Randolph (Goldman) (2,500; 99-$1.80)—"Cry for Happy" (Col) (3d wk). Sorry $6,000. Last week, $8,500.

Stanley (SW) (2,500; 99-$1.80)—"Pepe" (Col) (6th wk). Fine $10,500. Last week, $12,000.

Stanton (SW) (1,483; 99-$1.80)—"101 Dalmatians" (BV). Mighty $23,000. Last week, "Alamo" (UA) (5th wk), $10,000.

Trans-Lux (T-L) (500; 99-$1.80)—"Never on Sunday" (Lope) (18th wk). Oke $5,500. Last week, $6,000.

Viking (Sley) (1,039; 99-$1.80)—"Cimarron" (M-G). Okay $10,000 or over. Last week, "Where Boys Are" (M-G) (7th wk), $6,200.

World (R&B-Pathe) (440; 99-$1.80)—"Ballad of Soldier" (Kings) (6th wk). Nice $2,700. Last week, $3,600.

SAN FRANCISCO

(Continued from page 8)

(Janus) (reissue) (4th wk). Oke $1,900. Last week, $2,200.

Presidio (Hardy) (774; $1.25-$1.50)—"Hand In Hand" (Col) (2d wk). Fair $2,700. Last week, $3,000.

Coronet (United California) (1,250; $1.50-$3.50) — "Ben-Hur" (M-G) (66th wk). Smart $12,000. Last week, $10,000.

Alexandria (United California) (1,610; $1.49-$3.50)—"Exodus" (UA) (7th wk). Excellent $16,000. Last week, $15,000.

LOUISVILLE

(Continued from page 9)

wk). Getting the breaks in weather and other factors, and will top opening week with sock $12,000. Opening hurt by heavy rains, took oke $10,000.

Kentucky (Switow) (900; 75-$1) —"Suzie Wong" (Par) (8th wk), nice $4,000, 7th week about same.

Mary Anderson (People's) (900; $1-$1.50)—"Alamo" (UA) (3d wk). Great $8,000 or near. Second was $12,000.

Ohio (Settos) (900; 75-$1)—"Gorgo" (M-G) (2d wk), still pulling plenty of kids, oke $5,000 or near, after openers strong $7,500.

United Artists (UA) (3,000; 75-$1.25)—"Wackiest Ship" (Col) (2d wk). Good $7,000. First week fine $13,000, helped by fight films.

BROADWAY

(Continued from page 9)

"Raisin in Sun" (Col). Opens today (Wed.). In ahead, "Cry for Happy" (Col) (4th wk-5 days). Okay $9,000 or near after $17,000 for third full week.

Paramount (AB-PT) (3,665; $1-$2)—"Sanctuary" (20th) (5th wk-10 days). This week finishing tomorrow (Thurs) looks like slow $18,000 after $16,500 for fourth regular week. "All Hands on Deck" (20th) opens Friday (31).

Radio City Music Hall (Rockefellers) (6,200; 90-$2.75)—"Absent-Minded Professor" (BV) with annual Easter stageshow (2d wk). This week winding today (Wed.) is pushing up to smash $170,000 after $160,000 for opener. Stays through Easter holiday week and longer.

Rivoli (UAT) (1,545; $1.50-$3.50) —"King and I" (20th). This streamlined, new process version of pic, playing on hard-ticket, is heading for fair $15,000 in first round (12 shows) ending tomorrow (Thurs.). Opened with a benefit preem on night of March 23. In ahead "Alamo" (UA) (21st wk-8 days), mild $13,000, but winding a satisfactory run except for last five or six weeks, all on hard-ticket.

State (Loew) (1,900; $1.50-$3.50) —"Ben-Hur" (M-G) (70th wk). This session ending today (Wed.) looks like fine $21,500 for 11 performances after $25,600 for 13 shows in 69th week. Continues. Natch! "Gone With Wind" (M-G) reissue) opens April 26 on continuous run.

Victoria (City Inv.) (1,003; 50-$2)—"All in Night's Work" (Par) (2d wk). First round ended yesterday (Tues.) was socko $30,000 or close.

Warner (SW) (1,523; $1.50-$3.50) —"Exodus" (UA) (15th wk). This stanza winding up today (Wed.) is heading for mighty $45,000 after $46,500 on 14th week. Stays indefinitely, of course, with applications for ducats now being received for year-end holiday week.

First-Run Arties

Baronet (Reade) (430; $1.25-$2) —"Modigliani" (Cont) (5th-final wk). Fourth week ended Monday (27) was oke $5,400. Last week, $5,900. "Saturday Night and Sunday Morning" (Cont) opens April 3.

Fine Arts (Davis) (468; 90-$1.80) — "Breathless" (Films Around World) (8th wk). Seventh round completed Monday (27) was sockeroo $13,300 after $12,600 for sixth week.

Beekman (R&B) (590; $1.20-$1.75)—"Facts of Life" (UA) (7th wk). This round winding tomorrow (Thurs.) looks to hold with big $7,500 after same in sixth. "L'Avventura" (Janus) opens April 4.

Fifth Ave. Cinema (R&B) (250; $1.25-$1.80)—"Virgin Spring" (Janus) (m.o.) (7th wk). This week ending tomorrow (Thurs.) looks like trim $5,000 after $4,500 for sixth round.

Normandie (T-L) (592; $1.25-$1.80)—"All in Night's Work" (Par) (2d wk). Initial stanza finished last night (Tues.) was fine $10,000 or close.

Little Carnegie (L. Carnegie) (520; $1.25-$2)—"Tunes of Glory" (Lope) (15th wk). The 14th session ended Monday (27) was smash $11,000 after $12,000 for 13th week. Pic is giving this house its biggest engagement ever.

Guild (Guild) (450; $1-$1.75)—"Two-Way Stretch" (BL) (10th wk). Ninth frame ended Sunday (26) was lively $9,500 after $10,500 for eighth week.

Murray Hill (R&B) (565; 95-$1.80)—"Ballad of Soldier" (Kings) (14th wk). The 13th round completed Monday (27) was great $8,500 after $8,000 for 12th week.

Paris (Pathe Cinema) (568; 90-$1.80)—"Love and Frenchwoman" (Kings) (5th wk). Fourth stanza finished Sunday (26) was solid $12,500 after $13,000 for third week.

Plaza (Lopert) (525; $1.50-$2)—"Never On Sunday" (Lope) (24th wk). The 23d session ended Monday (27) was great $15,500 after $15,000 for 22d week.

68th St. Playhouse (Leo Brecher) (370; 90-$1.65)—"Days of Thrills and Laughter" (20th) (2d wk). First week finished yesterday (Tues.) was big $9,200 or close.

Sutton (R&B) (561; 95-$1.80) — "League of Gentlemen" (Kings) (10th wk). Ninth frame completed Monday (27) was big $9,000 after same for eighth week.

Trans-Lux 52d St. (T-L) (540; $1-$1.50) — "Raisin in Sun" (Col). Opens today (Wed.), day-dating with Forum. Last week, "Cry For Happy" (Col) (4th wk-5 days). Fair $2,800 after $4,500 for third full week.

Trans-Lux 85th St. (T-L) (550; $1.25-$2) — "Great Impostor" (U). Opens today (Wed.), day-dating with Palace. In ahead, "Sanctuary" (20th) (5th wk-8 days), fair $3,500 after $3,300 in fourth.

World (Perfecto) (390; 90-$1.50) —"Male and Female" (Mishkin) (6th wk). This round ending tomorrow (Thurs.) is heading for rousing $10,500 after $10,800 for fifth week.

KANSAS CITY

(Continued from page 9)

(20th) and "Freckles" (20th), mild $9,000.

Kimo (Dickinson) (504; 90-$1.25) —"Upstairs and Downstairs" (20th). Oke $2,000; stays on. Last week, "Please Turn Over" (Col) (13th wk), nifty $1,500.

Paramount (UP-Blank) (1,900; 75-$1)—"All in Night's Work" (Par). Nice $10,000 or better; holding. Last week, "Gorgo" (M-G), $5,000.

Plaza (FMW-NT) (1,630; $1.50 — "Alamo" (UA) (3d wk). Scarcely off from giant opening pace, great $19,000; stays on. Last week, $22,000.

Rockhill (Little Art Theatres) (750; 90-$1.25) — "Millionairess" (20th). Good $2,000; holds. Last week, "Make Mine Mink" (Cont) (2d wk), $1,000.

Roxy (Durwood) (850; $1-$1.50 — "Suzie Wong" (Par) 8th wk). Sturdy $7,000, unusual holding power. Last week, $7,500.

Uptown (FMW-NT) (2,043; $1-$1.25)—"101 Dalmatians" (BV) (5th wk). Fancy $8,500. Last week, $8,000.

CHICAGO

(Continued from page 9)

(BV). Boff $45,000 or near. Last week, "101 Dalmatians" (BV) (6th wk), $15,000.

Surf (H&E Balaban) (685; $1.85) —"Never On Sunday" (Lope) (8th wk). Sprightly $6,000. Last week, $5,700.

Todd (Todd) (1,089; $1.75-$3.50) —"Ben-Hur" (M-G) (66th wk). Big $17,500. Last week, $17,000.

United Artists (B&K) (1,700; 90-$1.80)—"All In Night's Work" (Par) (2d wk). Happy $21,000. Last week, $26,000.

Woods (Essaness) (1,200; 90-$1.80) — "Operation Eichmann" (AA). Sock $22,000 or close. Last week, "Sanctuary" (20th) (2d wk), $12,000.

World (Teitel) (686; 90-$1.25)—"Rue de Paris" (Lope). Good $5,300. Last week, "Tosca" (Film Rep.), $4,100.

TORONTO

(Continued from page 8)

$13,000. Last week, "Two-Way Stretch" (20th) (12th wk), $4,500.

Imperial (FP) (3,343; $1-$1.25)—"All in Night's Work" (Par). Lusty $16,000. Last week, "Cry For Happy" (Col) (2d wk), $7,500.

Loew's (Loew) (2,748; $1-$1.50)—"Go Naked in World" (M-G) (2d wk). Okay $9,500. Last week, $11,000.

Tivoli (FP) (935; $1.50-$2.50)—"Exodus" (UA). Capacity $12,000. Last week, "Alamo" (UA) (19th wk), $5,000 in last 4 days.

Towne (Taylor) (693; 90-$1.25)—"Never On Sunday" (Lope) (9th wk). Fine $6,000. Last week, $6,200.

University (FP) (1,360; $1.50-$2.75) — "Ben-Hur" (M-G) (67th wk). Okay $5,500. Last week, $6,000.

Uptown (Loew) (1,304; $1.50-$2.75)—"Spartacus" (U) (14th wk). Steady $8,500. Last week, $8,800.

National Boxoffice Survey

Biz Okay Holy Week; 'Exodus' First, '101 D's' 2d, 'Work' 3d, 'Alamo' 4th, 'Pepe' 5th

This is Holy Week, one of slower weeks of the year at the film b.o., but many key cities covered by VARIETY this session report unusually fine biz. Stalwart product is the chief explanation for strong biz tone given by exhibs generally.

Again "Exodus" (UA) is finishing on top although closely pursued by "101 Dalmatians" (BV). It's the fifth consecutive round that "Exodus" has been champ. The Disney pic, a strong second, actually is making some better individual key city showings.

"All in a Night's Work" (Par), a newcomer, is easily copping third money, and likely will be heard from more in the future. "The Alamo" (UA) is landing in fourth spot. It will come close to $400,000 gross in Chicago playing in some 60 nabes this stanza.

"Pepe" (Col) again is winding in fifth position same as a week ago. "Spartacus" (U) is landing sixth place coin. "Great Impostor," also from Universal, is finishing seventh. It has been higher for several weeks.

"Ben-Hur" (M-G) is taking eighth while "Cry For Happy" (Col) will be ninth. "Cimarron" (M-G), with some fresh playdates, is capturing 10th place. "Operation Eichmann" (AA) will finish 11th while "Never On Sunday" (Lope) rounds out the Top 12.

"Suzie Wong" (Par), "Tunes of Glory" (Lope) and "Ballad of Soldier" (Kings) are the runner-up films.

Long line of new entries are showing up this week but not all are big. "Gone With Wind" (M-G), out on reissue for the steenth time, is the most amazing newcomer. It's mighty in L. A. and wow in Seattle with equally sensational showings in smaller keys where teeing off currently.

"Look in Any Window" (AA) shapes lean in Philly. "Konga" (AI), fair in Providence, looms fast in Boston. "Sanctuary" (20th), good in Cincy, is dull in N. Y. but busy in L. A. and good in Philly.

"Absent-Minded Professor" (BV) doing mighty biz at the N. Y. Music Hall where teamed with annual Easter stageshow, also is wow in L. A. and lusty in Chi. "White Warrior" (WB), also new, is fine in Detroit but fairish in Frisco. "All Hands on Deck" (20th), which opens at N. Y. Paramount this week is rated okay in Minneapolis and Washington.

"Make Mine Mink" (Cont), fine in Chi, looms good in Minneapolis. "It Happened in Broad Daylight," also from Continental, shapes good in Balto and Washington.

"Hoodlum Priest" (UA) is rated lofty in Pitt. "King and I" (20th), back in new dressed-up version, is not doing so well on hard-ticket in N. Y.

(Complete Boxoffice Reports on Pages 8-9)

LOS ANGELES

(Continued from page 8)

die) (1st general release), $3,200. El Rey, "Sons and Lovers" (20th), "Murder Inc." (20th) (reissues), $3,300.

Four Star (UATC) (868; 90-$1.50) — "Trapp Family" (20th). Happy $5,500. Last week, "Hand in Hand"

Hollywood Paramount (State) (1,468; $1-$2.40) — "Gone With Wind" (M-G) (reissue). Mighty $35,000. Last week, "Alamo" (UA) 3d wk), $18,000.

Chinese (FWC) (1,408; $2-$2.40) —"Absent-Minded Professor" (BV) (2d wk). Wow $25,000. Last week, $22,100.

Warren's, Hollywood, Baldwin, Wiltern (B&B-FWC-State-SW) (1,737; 756; 1,800; 2,344; 90-$1.50) — "All in Night's Work" (Par) (2d wk, Warren's, Hollywood, Baldwin; 1st wk, Wiltern) and "Breath of Scandal" (Par) (2d wk, Warren's; 1st wk, Wiltern), "Rainmaker" (Par) (reissue) (Hollywood) (1st wk), "Go Naked in World" (M-G) (Baldwin) (1st wk). Good $20,000 or close. Last week, Warren's, Hollywood, Baldwin, $23,100. Wiltern with State, Hawaii, "Gorgo" (M-G), "Caltiki" (Indie), $14,100.

State, Hawaii (UATC-G&S) (2,404; 1,106; 90-$1.50) — "Gorgo" (M-G) and "Caltiki" (Indie) (2d wk). Dim $5,400.

Los Angeles, Vogue, Loyola, Beverly (FWC-State) (2,019; 810; 1,298; 1,150; 90-$2) — "Sanctuary" (20th) and "Sniper's Ridge" (20th) (2d wk, Los Angeles, Vogue, Loyola; 1st wk, Beverly). Busy $21,000. Last week, Los Angeles, Vogue, Loyola, $17,900. Beverly, "Grass Is Greener" (U) (6th wk-5 days), $4,000.

Crest (State) (750; 90-$1.50) — "Sundowners" (WB) and "Sunrise at Campobello" (WB) (3d wk). Thin $2,000. Last week, $2,600.

Music Hall (Ros) (720; $1.85-$2.25)—"Ballad of Soldier" (Kings) (8th wk). Trim $5,200. Last week, $5,300.

Warner Beverly (SW) (1,316; $1.50-$3.50) — "Pepe" (Col) (13th wk). Slow $8,000. Last week $10,000.

Fox Wilshire (FWC) (1,990; $1.80-$3.50)—"Exodus" (UA) (14th wk). Lusty $17,000. Last week, $15,500.

Fine Arts (FWC) (631; $2-$2.40) —"Never On Sunday" (Lope) (18th wk). Fine $8,500. Last week $7,900.

Warner Hollywood (Cinerama Inc.) (1,389; $1.20-$2.65)—"This Is Cinerama" (Cinerama) (reissue). Started 22d week Sunday (26) after big $13,500 last week.

Pantages (RKO) (1,513; $1.80-$3.50)—"Spartacus" (U) (23d wk). Stout $14,000 or near. Last week, $12,400.

Egyptian (UATC) (1,392; $1.25-$3.50) — "Ben-Hur" (M-G) (70th wk). Big $18,700. Last week, $17,300.

BALTIMORE

(Continued from page 9)

$1.50)—"Happened in Broad Daylight" (Cont) (3d wk). Good $2,000 after same in second.

Hippodrome (Rappaport) (2,300; 90-$1.50)—"Pepe" (Col) (3d wk). Okay $8,000 after $10,000 in second.

Little (Rappaport) (300; 90-$1.50) —"Studs Lonigan" (UA) (2d wk). Fair $1,800 after $2,500 opener.

Mayfair (Fruchtman) (750; $2-$2.50)—"Exodus" (UA) (15th wk). Slow $3,800 after $4,000 in previous week.

New (Fruchtman) (1,600; 90-$1.50)—"Alamo" (UA) (4th wk). Nice $7,000 after $7,000 in third week.

Playhouse (Schwaber) (460; 90-$1.50)—"Never On Sunday" (Lope) (19th wk). Fine $2,500 after $2,000 in 18th.

Stanton (Fruchtman) (2,800; 90-$1.50)—"101 Dalmatians" (BV). Healthy $8,000 in first 4 days. Last week, "Flaming Star" (20th), $8,000.

Town (Rappaport) (1,125; $1.50-$2.50)—"Spartacus" (U) (10th wk). Perks to oke $5,500 after $5,000 in ninth.

MINNEAPOLIS

(Continued from page 9)

"101 Dalmatians" (BV). Socko at $14,000. Last week, "Hoodlum Priest" (UA) (3d wk), $6,000.

Mann (Mann) (1,100; $1.75-$2.65) —"Spartacus" (U) (2d wk). Looks mighty $15,000 this round after opening with $18,000.

Orpheum (Mann) (2,800; $1.25-$1.50)—"Alamo" (UA) (2d wk). Drawing heavily from state cage tourney patrons for solid $13,000. Opener was $23,000.

St. Louis Park (Field) (1,000; $1.25)—"All Hands on Deck" (20th). Loud $5,000. Last week, "Tunes of Glory" (Lope) (5th wk), $4,000 for 6 days.

State (Par) (2,200; $1-$1.50)—"Pepe" (Col). Socko $18,000. Last week, "Cry For Happy" (Col) (2d wk), $8,000 at $1-$1.25 scale.

Suburban World (Mann) (800; $1.25) "Make Mine Mink" (Cont) (3d wk). Good $3,500. Last week, $4,200.

Uptown (Field) (1,000; $1-$1.50) —"Ben-Hur" (M-G) (2d run). Day-dating with three other nabe houses. Brisk $8,500. Last week, "Circle of Deception" (20th), $4,000 at $1.25 top.

World (Mann) (400; 85-$1.50)—"All in Night's Work" (Par). Lively $9,500. Last week, "Royal Ballet" (Lope), $4,000 in 5 days.

Lightstone Operating Corp. has been authorized to conduct a motion picture and entertainment business in Long Beach, Nassau County. Capital stock is 200 shares, no par value. Zimmerman & Popper of Long Beach were filing attorneys at Albany.

QQ TITLES
Serving the MP and TV Industries
Since 1915
• ALWAYS READY TO SERVE YOU •
247 West 46th Street, New York
Circle 7-2126

New York Theatre
RADIO CITY MUSIC HALL
Rockefeller Center • Ci 6-4600
WALT DISNEY'S
"THE ABSENT-MINDED PROFESSOR"
FRED MacMURRAY • NANCY OLSON
KEENAN WYNN • TOMMY KIRK
and THE MUSIC HALL'S GREAT EASTER STAGE SHOW

THE TV BATTLE FOR FACILITIES

Prudential's '20th Century' Flipflop

Prudential has done a complete flip-flop and renewed "The Twentieth Century" for a fifth season on CBS-TV. It's a $3,400,000 time & program deal, with the series moving to 6 p.m. Sunday, a half-hour earlier than in the past. Production team of Bud Benjamin & Ike Kleinerman will again produce.

Insurance outfit had axed the show after four years just a few weeks previous, claiming they wanted to try entertainment instead of public affairs, as a change of selling approach. Company screened a couple of CBS-TV shows, then went to ABC-TV to look at some of their comedy entries, and finally came back to CBS-TV. Getting "Twentieth Century" back wasn't completely easy—CBS had made a pitch to General Electric on the show and had evoked considerable interest in Schenectady, but finally decided to take Prudential's money-on-the-line.

The 6:30-7 period held until now by "Twentieth Century" will go to an entertainment series, in order to give "Lassie" at 7 a leadin more flavored to moppet tastes. Principal candidate for the slot at present is "Oh Those Bells," the Weire Bros. slapstick comedy stanza.

Auto Sponsors Turning to Sports; Chrysler, Ford in NBC, CBS Buys

Detroit tele coin, which looked pretty sparse when the network selling season started this year, has developed into quite a pile with the addition of a major sports-special splurge by Chrysler Corp. this week and purchase of one-fourth sponsorship of CBS-TV's pro football schedule by Ford.

Via Leo Burnett agency, Chrysler institutional bankroll will go to an NBC-TV sports spread, including two All Star baseball games, the World Series, East-West football and the Rose Bowl football classic. It's a switch in corporate spending for Chrysler from entertainment specials, and another indication of the change-up in automoitve tele buying strategies (i. e. a move away from the big name shows to regular series and, now, major sports). Last year's World Series was shared by longtime exclusive bankroller Gillette and General Motors.

Deal, set via J. Walter Thompson, is Ford's first buy on CBS-TV in a couple of years, other than its institutional purchases (for the entire corporate family) of the Leonard Bernstein New York Philharmonic concerts. The Ford coin will be sliced up into regional networks because of the pro grid pattern, but coverage will be national in scope.

Buy gives CBS a total of three auto sponsors on tap for next fall. Others are Cheyrolet, with a fourth of "Route 66," and Plymouth, due back for a cut of Garry Moore, either half or a quarter.

Chrysler buy puts NBC in the forefront again in car money with Ford back in for its three series, "Wagon Train," and Alfred Hitchcock and Ernie Ford, and Chevy as sole sponsor of the "Bonanza" hour in its new Sunday time.

The Revlon Rub

When Revlon assumes alternate-week half-hour sponsorship of the Ed Sullivan show next fall, do those stock options in the cosmetic house go to Sullivan with the deal?

It's recalled that when CBS-TV chose Colgate as alternate-week sponsor of the Sullivan stanza over Revlon a couple of years back, the columnist blew his stack at the web because his projected Revlon deal called for him to receive stock options as part of an overall "company spokesman" concept similar to the one he enjoyed with Lincoln-Mercury.

Nobody's talking on the matter of the stock options, but even if Revlon's offering, fact remains that had Sullivan gotten those options a couple of years ago, he'd have made a small fortune in view of the company's meteoric rise on the N.Y. Stock Exchange since then.

Ewell Show Due For CBS-TV Axe

Procter & Gamble and Quaker Oats haven't served their formal cancellation yet, but indications are both will be dropping Four Star's Tom Ewell show on CBS-TV come the end of the season. Sponsors reportedly feel show should have done better in its Tuesday at 9 slot.

CBS-TV is pitching "Ichabod," the George Chandler starrer out of the Connelly & Mosher shop, as the Tuesday night replacement. P&G and Quaker will get first crack at the comedy series, of course, but if they nix it there's a strong chance the web will program it there anyway and look elsewhere for sponsor coin.

'STOP THE CAMERA' SET BY SALTER WITH NBC

Harry Salter has set a deal for "Stop the Camera," visual adaptation of his "Stop the Music," to NBC-TV for fall slotting. Time period on the web isn't set yet.

Jim Lucas emceed the pilot version of the new series.

Burr Vamping NBC Development Post, Talks Prod. Setup

Gene Burr has refused to renew his one-year contract as v.p. in charge of program development at NBC-TV. He wants to get out of administration and back into production.

Burr and NBC prexy Robert Kintner are now negotiating a possible deal for Burr, who produced the daytimer "Verdict Is Yours" at CBS-TV before moving to NBC-TV, to produce one of NBC's daytimer (perhaps "From These Roots"). Another part of the production deal with NBC would be several guaranteed nighttime specials. If Burr doesn't move from exec to producer at NBC-TV, it's reported that two offers are open to him from indie Hollywood sources.

Burr came to NBC last May from "Verdict." At that time he is understood to have refused a two-year option (beyond his one-year firm contract).

Met Now MetroMedia

Stockholders of Metropolitan Broadcasting Corp. voted last week to change the company's name to MetroMedia Inc. Action was taken because since the acquisition of the outdoor ad firm of Foster & Kleiser, broadcasting constitutes only 50% of the company's business.

The shareholders also voted to increase the number of authorized common shares to 3,600,000 to permit future expansion, okayed a stock option plan for key employees and reelected its 13-man board of directors.

ABC-TV'S BID TO ERASE BROWNOUT

By GEORGE ROSEN

When, a few weeks back, ABC-TV proudly proclaimed the fact that it had successfully maneuvered the switchover of the Taft stations from CBS-TV, it merely served to throw into sharp focus what in reality is shaping up as the hottest battle for facilities in broadcasting annals.

One has to go back to the "freeze days" of 1952, when CBS went on its celebrated raiding spree in an allout (but only partially successful) bid to wrest 14 stations from the NBC affiliate family, to find a parallel for what is happening today—and what threatens to mount in intramural tensions and anxieties during the next year. This time, it's ABC-TV, loaded with ratings and a pocketful of money, who is the aggressor as the three networks jockey for position. Both NBC and CBS are engaged in a desperate bid to protect their flanks

Today's battle of nerves is a far more protracted and serious one than that incepted by CBS in '53, for it's recalled that in one fell swoop "Operation General Sarnoff" stemmed the Columbia tide in the now-famous Princeton defensive play when the NBC board chairman personally stepped in and won an overwhelming pledge of allegiance from the affiliate family. When the battle was over, NBC, which was threatened by a wholesale defection, had only lost Norfolk and Buffalo. Instead of critical injuries, it had emerged with minor bruises and lacerations.

Today's battle for tv facilities has far wider ramifications. Considerably more is at stake. In contrast to '53, and with the ascendancy of ABC-TV, this is a three-network economy; the competitive picture has been accelerated to a dizzying degree. ABC has become "the network to watch." Within the framework of its limited facilities and hemmed in by key two-station market "brownouts" with only partial clearance affiliations, its razzle-dazzle performance under the Leonard Goldenson-Ollie Treyz helmship over the past few years has given it an enviable industry status. In the major 24 markets where all three webs are in direct competition, it's ABC that's out in front.

But for all its conquests, ABC has long since recognized its behind-the-eight-ball status unless it can achieve the kind of national coverage required to attain undisputed supremacy. It needs major penetration in such markets as Columbia, S.C., Providence, Louisville, Dayton, Rochester, N.Y., Jacksonville, Syracuse, Wheeling-

(Continued on page 40)

P&G Yens Gobel For ABC Slotting

George Gobel is being pushed by Procter & Gamble as its entry next season in the choice Thursday 9 30-10 p.m. time on ABC-TV, sandwiched between "My Three Sons" and "The Untouchables." Web, which has rejected previous P&G offerings for the time period, and the sponsor's reps is meeting with the sponsor's reps on the Gobel telefilm stanza this week. Decision should be reached by the weekend at the latest.

If Gobel gets the ABC slotting, it'll probably mean that stand-up comedians will be filling two of the choicest slots available on network tv next season. NBC-TV is likely to get Joey Bishop's telefilm stanza for Wednesday at 8:30. Like P&G at ABC on Thursday nights, Lever Bros. and co-sponsor American Tobacco have moved very slowly in filling the time behind "Wagon Train," but Bishop definitely has the inside track now.

CBS Opens the Door to Outside 'Pubaffairs' Shows in Non-News, Non-Controversial 'Grey Areas'

A basic change in concept over the acceptance of outside packages in the public affairs field is taking place at CBS. The network heretofore has been rigid in its refusal to accept any outside-produced show or series that its own news & pubaffairs staffs might normally handle, but hereafter the field will be opened to outside producers with non-hard news packages which don't involve problems in editorial control.

Policy change came about via a ruling from CBS News prexy Dick Salant on the acceptability of a new David Wolper special, "The Golden Age of Hollywood," a pictorial history of the film capital. Network had queried Salant on the acceptability of the show, and Salant replied that as far as he was concerned, it was okay. It was Wolper who a couple of years back stirred up a ruckus when his "Race for Space" special, complete with a sponsor in Shulton Inc., was turned down by the networks, including CBS, on the basis that this was a subject which the networks alone could handle on their facilities.

Salant, in confirming the OK for the "Hollywood," declared that in his view there has been no policy change. He's always felt there are grey areas in pubaffairs, and he indicated he'd make his judgments now and in the future in terms of the original purpose of the rule, which was to maintain editorial control and balance in controversial and provocative situations. He pointed out that while he sees "Hollywood" as acceptable, today he'd still turn down "Race for Space" because of the subject matter involved and the fact that Wolper allowed Arthur, from which he secured his Russian footage, an editorial sayso in the script. But the basic judgment point is subject matter. "It's the difference between Hedda Hopper and Walter Lippman," he said.

As Salant sees it, there are three areas with which CBS News has been concerned. One is hard news, and that, in his view, must remain inviolable. Another is such special events as beauty pageants, and henceforth CBS News will have

(Continued on page 40)

TV 'Want Ads'

Signs of the times dept:

WNEW-TV, N.Y. outlet of MetroMedia, is running on-the-air "situations wanted" spots to "humanize" the nature of the economic recession. Station is taping one-minute spots with jobless persons who tell their story and job qualifications, with a phone number flashed on the screen for prospective employers to call.

A different individual is taped three times a week, and each spot is run four times a day, inclusive of a spot on the late news.

'Checkmate' May Get CBS-TV Axe; Mull 'Defenders'

Despite some fat ratings that now find it ranking 26th in the current Nielsens, "Checkmate" may be dropped from the CBS-TV schedule next fall. A cancellation would mark the first time a show so highly rated is dropped by a network and its sponsors.

Both CBS and the "Checkmate" sponsors are unhappy with the show. Feeling is that despite the good ratings, the series should be doing far better, sandwiched as it is between "Perry Mason" and "Have Gun, Will Travel" on Saturday nights. They point to the Top 10 status of its predecessor, "Wanted—Dead or Alive," which drew far higher ratings but folded when it moved to Wednesday nights to make way for "Checkmate." They also point to the fact that "Checkmate" started out with a bang but has been slipping in ranking ever since.

Big candidate for the 8:30-9:30 Saturday night slot is "The Defenders," the Herb Brodkin-Reginald Rose series which has had rave advance notices but has been unable to find sponsor coin in its tentative Thursday 9-10 slotting. CBS is arranging to show the series to the "Checkmate" clients—Brown & Williamson, Kimberly-Clark and Lever Bros.—in hopes of wrapping up a quickie sale.

If the sponsors don't go for "Defenders," then it will remain put on Thursdays and CBS will offer in its stead "The Investigators," new one-hour pilot out of the Revue shop. If on the other hand the sponsor trio do buy "Defenders," then "Investigators" looks hot to take over the 9-10 Thursday time.

Situation cued a hurry-up trip to the Coast last week by CBS-TV prexy Jim Aubrey and program v.p. Oscar Katz to get a fast gander at the rough cuts of "Investigator," in order to decide whether it or "Defenders" would be more suitable for the Saturday slot. But pending their decision, they tentatively moved "Defenders" over to the Saturday period.

Hiken's Paddy-Wagon

Nat Hiken's telefilmed comedy entry for next season has assumed a new title, "Car 54, Where Are You?" The weekly half-hour, slated for the 8:30 slot after the new NBC-TV Disney hour on Sundays, had to drop "Snow Whites" as a title because, the network feared, it would be confused with old Disney product and perhaps be looked upon as an extension of the Disney hour.

"Car 54" is about a couple of up-dated Keystone cops, according to one description.

Sullivan Plum To Revlon, Lorillard

Ed Sullivan sponsorship, vacated on the skip-week by Eastman Kodak, is going to Revlon and P. Lorillard, which will share the series with Colgate. Deal marks the first time that Sullivan will be divided three ways, and also the first time that the show will be sliced into half-hour sponsorship proportions.

CBS-TV had roughly 15 orders for the Sullivan alternate week, including some full alternate-week hour sponsorship. But Revlon and Lorillard had established something of a prior claim on the hour, since when Lincoln-Mercury pulled out a couple of years back, it was these two that raced down to the wire with Colgate, which finally got the skip-week. It was this consideration that led CBS to split the skip-hour in half and give both of them a crack at Sullivan.

Meantime, Revlon in a separate move has decided to delay two Harry Belafonte specials slated for CBS-TV telecast in May and June. Specials were never ordered on a firm basis; Revlon instead merely asked CBS to "reserve" the time for it pending a final order. When CBS last week pressed for a decision, Revlon said it had changed its marketing strategy for spring and would hold over the Belafonte shows for fall.

TV Guessing Game of the Week: What Made Ed Murrow Do It?

Biggest guessing-game of the week around Madison Ave. in general and 485 Madison in particular is what prompted Ed Murrow to do a turnabout on his longstanding principles and in his first act as U.S. Information Agency director attempt to put the lid on his own "Harvest of Shame" documentary.

If nobody can come up with the exact answer, well-intermed opinion is that Murrow simply made a series of miscalculation, born out of naivete about the rough-and-tumble of Washington pressures and politics. It's figured that Murrow was subjected to tough Senatorial pressure to suppress "Shame" and felt his confirmation in the Senate might be at stake if he didn't make some sort of concession.

Murrow later called Hugh Carleton Greene, director general of the BBC, last week and asked him as a personal favor to cancel the scheduled BBC-TV showing of "Harvest," the "CBS Reports" documentary on migratory farm workers, because it had been produced for "domestic" viewing only. Green refused, stating it was too late and the show had been extensively advertised.

Disclosure of Murrow's effort to prevent the BBC-TV showing was made by Sen. Spessard Holland (D., Fla.), who has been extremely critical of the program ever since it was originally aired on CBS-TV on Thanksgiving weekend. When Holland learned that the program had been sold by CBS-TV for showing on the BBC, he put pressure on Murrow to see if the British showing could be stopped. The private call was Murrow's concession.

What those close to Murrow believe happened was (1) he didn't dream Sen. Holland would disclose the call, and (2) he figured unless he did something to placate his Senatorial critics, his confirmation might be lost. Adding weight to this is the fact that during the Senatorial hearings on his confirmation, the only serious roadblock he faced stemmed from criticism of the "Harvest of Shame" telecast by farm-bloc legislators and the key line of questioning concerned what he would do to keep programs and films which might reflect badly on the U.S. from being used overseas.

Murrow had some second thoughts. He confessed to a meeting of USIA employes that he agreed with a Washington Post editorial branding his call to BBC as "both foolish and futile." The Post accused him of being unaware of which hat he was wearing.

"I still hope," Murrow added, "That in spite of this, I shall still have a place on which to put my hat."

There was also some hint of

(Continued on page 42)

Reverse English

Telecast of "Harvest of Shame" in England produced admiration for the U.S. in some quarters instead of the adverse reaction apparently expected by U.S.I.A. chief Ed Murrow. Example was Cassandra, columnist in the London Daily Mirror:

"The remarkable thing about the U.S. is that they take care, as in the international showing of the television programme "Harvest of Shame," to allow their deficits as well as their virtues to be entertainingly broadcast. Would the Soviet Union allow such a film to be taken? Would they allow it to be exported? The answer is no and Uncle Sam is stronger by the fact that to these two queries, he can say yes."

Joey Bishop Show Into NBC's Choice Wed. 8:30-9 Slot?

That choice 8:30 to 9 time behind "Wagon Train" on NBC-TV's Wednesday schedule next season will probably go to Joey Bishop. Lever Bros. and American Tobacco have owned the time period for the last several weeks, and they had been moving very slowly toward a choice.

Pilot of the Bishop telefilm series, meant for NBC-TV, appeared Monday (27) on CBS-TV on the Danny Thomas slot. Both shows are produced by the same principals, Thomas, Sheldon Leonard and Louis Edelman.

Last week, Bishop, who has appeared on many Jack Paar stanzas over NBC-TV, was tentatively slated to replace "Tall Man" at 8:30 on Saturdays in the NBC-TV lineup, as leadin to the web's new slate of prime time feature films from 20th-Fox. But "Tall Man," which currently holds the 8:30 period and seemed destined for cancellation, will reportedly continue in the time.

Chances for "The Joey Bishop Show" are considered excellent, with NBC holding out for this entry. American Tobacco wanted Audrey Meadows or George Gobel and Lever sought Screen Gems' "Hazel."

Hope's Back But Buick Still Doubtful; NBC's Play-or-Pay Pledge

Bob Hope will be back on NBC-TV next season, sponsor or no. Web, which has not given up hope of getting back Buick as Hope's bankroller, nonetheless has a longterm commitment to air the comedian in six to eight specials per season.

Besides Hope, NBC-TV also has '61-'62 commitments with two other big namers, who are not sponsored either. There's the Marilyn Monroe appearance for $100,000) in the tv adaptation of "Rain," and Mary Martin in the second of a two-show contract. Other one was "Peter Pan," which may not be shown again until the season after next. Web and Miss Martin have yet to pick her vehicle for '61-'62.

McGivern, BBC-TV's No. 2 Man, Quits For Post With Granada

London, March 28.

Cecil McGivern, deputy director of BBC Television until the job was abolished in January, has quit. At 53 and after 22 years with the BBC, ex-actor McGivern is starting a three-year contract with Granada TV—the northern commercial program company—on Tuesday (4) as executive producer in charge of special productions.

As BBC Television's No. 2—a post he had held for four years—McGivern was in line for the job of Director of Television when present Director, Sir Gerald Beadle, retires in June. Instead it went to program chief Kenneth Adam, and the post of deputy director was abolished in a re-shuffle of BBC top brass. McGivern, it was announced, would be tackling "a special writing assignment."

Said McGivern, explaining why he decided to quit: "They simply told me they were not going to make me director. They didn't give any reason. It was a disappointment. When the time came for me to take up the special writing job I decided it was time the BBC and I separated." Commented a BBC official: "We wish Mr. McGivern well in his new job. There is no question of a row."

Recently the BBC gave McGivern permission to appear on the Granada program to conduct an inquiry into tv in the U.K., one of the few occasions on which a BBC official has taken part in a commercial tv program.

On his Granada post, McGivern said: "I've been given a free hand to tackle anything from opera to foreign affairs. I will have some say in everything they do. I will not be in the same position of authority as I had for some time at the BBC, but I think they will listen to me."

TIO's 1st Report On Its Operations

The Television Information Office, organized in October of 1959, "to form a two-way bridge between the industry and its numerous publics," has released its first report on its activities. Outfit, headed by Louis Hausman, has sought to avoid publicity on the grounds that it couldn't do its job in a limelight of attention.

Booklet shows that TIO has distributed copies of Elmo Roper's study on "some aspects of the public's attitude toward television" in the wake of the quiz scandals, that it promulgated results of a 10-year study on tv's affect on children done by Paul Witty of Northwestern, etc.

TIO has also provided "background facts" on tv to advertisers since December, 59. Some 86 items have been mailed and cross-indexed "for convenient use."

TIO says, however, that its "most successful project" was publication and distribution of "Interaction," a study of tv pubaffairs programming "at the community level."

Besides this, TIO has taken tune-in ads in Harpers, The Atlantic, Saturday Review, The Reporter and Harvard Business Review to reach the opinion makers.

Smith to Head CBS D.C. Bureau

Howard K. Smith will head the Washington bureau of CBS News in the newly created post of chief correspondent and general manager of the bureau. He'll succeed Ted Koop as bureau boss, with Koop moving over to a CBS corporate post in D.C. as aide to Ed Bunker, CBS v.p. for Washington affairs.

The "chief correspondent" tag is nothing new for Smith, but post as administrative head of a major bureau for the network is. For several years, Smith had the title of Chief European Correspondent for CBS before returning to the States in 1957 and moving to Washington.

Smith is celebrating his 20th anni with the network this year. He's been functioning under a longterm (14-year) correspondent's contract with the web, but this is presumably being torn up and a new pact being written. Smith and CBS were at loggerheads a couple of months back over his duties, but that was amicably resolved at the time with Sig Mickelson, then CBS News prexy. New appointment, effective April 3, was made by Dick Salant, Mickelson's successor.

Sandburg's TV 'War Years'

Carl Sandburg is going to carry his knowledge of the Civil War years to television. For his first appearance of this nature, the poet is going to appear in "CBS Reports: Carl Sandburg at Gettysburg."

In another twist, the CBS pubaffairs series has hired Herbert Mitgang, an editor of the N. Y. Times and also a Civil War authority, as coproducer of the stanza. This marks a departure for the network, which has relied exclusively until now on inside production staffers for its public affairs programming.

Palmer Williams, of CBS News, will be the coproducer of the 60-minute video tape program, which will be aired April 13 at 10 p.m. Featured will be Howard K. Smith and Sandburg talking about the war, the battles and Lincoln's address at Gettysburg.

Mitgang edited and narrated a Civil War tome, bannered "Lincoln as they Saw Him," a biography based on bellum source material.

'Untouchables': Peace at Last?

Congressman Alfred E. Santangelo has agreed not to boycott "The Untouchables," the ABC-TV action hour produced by Desi Arnaz. Reportedly arrived at this week, agreement also includes a promise by the solon to keep his Federation of Italian-American Democratic Organizations from picketing ABC.

This is an unexpected change: last week, Santangelo was still against the treatment of Italians on "Untouchables," despite an agreement reached a few days earlier by Arnaz with Justice Ferdinand Pecora and Judge S. Samuel DiFalco of the National Italian-American League to Combat Defamation. Pecora and DiFalco exacted a promise from the producer to leave out all fictional Italo gangsters from the Thursday night show, plus a promise to upbeat the role of Italian-Americans in law enforcement.

Santangelo, nonetheless, persisted in seeking the omission of even real Italo gangsters from "Untouchables" if they happened to be cast in fictional situations. While ABC-TV and Arnaz have still not promised to meet this demand, Santangelo withdrew a threat to boycott one sponsor, Liggett & Myers.

L&M is leaving the stanza in the fall, but Santangelo sought to get the bankroller to quit "Untouchables" in the spring with the threat of boycott. Since the threat was withdrawn L&M will presumably ride out the summer months.

German Court Greenlights 2d Web; Individual States to Run 8 Stations

By HAZEL GUILD

Frankfurt, March 28.

Final decisions have just been announced in West Germany to end the lengthy squabble over the long-awaited second television channel here.

The federal court handed down a decision invalidating West German Chancellor Konrad Adenauer's plans to set the second channel in motion under federal control, and in effect gave the states the rights to start their own second television, just as they already control the sole channel.

And each state has now decided to set up its own separate second station as soon as possible. By June 1, it's expected that all of the seven states and West Berlin will have their second programs in operation, for at least two hours daily. Hessischer Rundfunk, located in Frankfurt, plans to beat the others by beaming out its new second channel on May 1.

The general directors of the various stations now in operation just held a conference to announce their plans and any possible coordination. The one channel now in existence operates as a loose network, with the time split for production between the various state-run stations, and the same programs appearing most of the time in every outlet.

Although it's expected that the second chanel will be different in every state, with strictly local shows, the directors did say that they will merge for outstanding events like sports, world meetings, exceptional musical performances and such, which are now generally carried on the first network and throughout other lands via the Eurovision arrangement.

Some of the newsreels produced in Hamburg will be carried on all stations, and the West German Television of Cologne will main-

(Continued on page 42)

Top 10 Arbitron

(Week ending March 26)

Gunsmoke	(CBS)	30.3
Candid Camera	(CBS)	26.2
Ingrid Bergman	(CBS)	24.9
Dobie Gillis	(CBS)	24.0
Untouchables	(ABC)	22.8
Have Gun	(CBS)	22.5
Flintstones	(ABC)	22.2
Wagon Train	(NBC)	22.2
Twilight Zone	(CBS)	22.0
What's My Line	(CBS)	22.0

CBS Preps Stock Option Plan; Paley, Stanton: 300G Per

A new stock option plan which would authorize the board of directors to grant options on 425,000 shares of common stock to key officers and employees has been proposed to the stockholders of CBS and will be voted on at the annual CBS stockholders meeting in N.Y. April 19.

The 425,000 shares would be optioned over the next 10 years, through Dec. 31, 1970. The plan replaces and is roughly similar to the first CBS stock option plan, enacted in 1951, which expired last Dec. 31. It authorizes the board to grant options to such employees as the board deems worthy, at prices to be determined by the board but not less than 95% of the fair market price of the stock at the time of the grant.

Plan was revealed in the CBS proxy statement mailed to shareholders last week. Statement also included a rundown on remuneration to key officers. Among the highlights:

CBS board chairman William S. Paley and president Frank Stanton each received in 1960 an aggregate of $300,000 in compensation, $150,000 in salary, $138,750 in paid-out compensation and $11,250 in deferred compensation. In addition, Paley's estimated annual benefits under pension plans upon retirement were listed at $59,252; Stanton's were estimated at $59,027.

CBS-TV prexy Jim Aubrey earned $100,000 in salary and an additional $40,000 in paid-out competition. He had no deferred compensation and his retirement benefits were estimated at $30,300. CBS Television Stations prexy Merle Jones received $100,096 in salary, $17,500 in additional paid-out compensation, $22,500 in deferred compensation and estimated retirement benefits of $24,300 annually. CBS Radio prez Arthur Hull Hayes was paid $63,500 in salary, $16,250 in paid-out compensation, $8,750 in deferred compensation and is entitled to an estimated $23,152 in annual retirement benefits.

Report also revealed that Aubrey had been granted options on 1,500 shares of CBS common stock last year at $41.25 a share. Only other major block allotted was 2,500 to Clarence Hopper, new prexy of CBS Electronics.

Ohio May Vote On Courtroom TV

Columbus, O., March 28.

A proposal to amend the State Constitution so that newspaper and television photographers can constitutionally be allowed to take pictures during trials may be submitted to voters in Ohio next November, if the proposal is passed by the Legislature. A similar proposal died in the session two years ago, but this year the Ohio Senate judiciary committee unanimously approved the proposed referendum.

Sen. Fred L. Hoffman, Cincinnati, sponsor of the bill, said that if it becomes a part of the Constitution, judges no longer can issue a blanket ruling that pictures cannot be taken while a trial is in progress. Hoffman said the Constitution at present does not guarantee the public the right to attend trials.

Ohio has adopted Canon 35 of the American Bar Assn.'s code of ethics forbidding picture-taking during trials, with only a few judges ignoring it and allowing pictures to be taken.

RATINGS PASS D. C. MUSTER

Dinah's Dairy Deal

Dinah Shore will definitely be back next season and with a sponsor in tow—American Dairies for approximately half of her 13 NBC-TV hourlong programs. Stanza will go in Fridays from 9:30 to 10:30 p.m., alternating with Bell Telephone's musical series.

Friday is the last night of the week to be programmed for '61-'62 by NBC-TV, but the night's schedule was shaping up rapidly this week, after considerable sweaty negotiation by the network with prospective clients. While American Dairies wanted Miss Shore to start at 10 p.m., Bell, with some 15 shows to offer next season, wanted to start at 9:30. NBC acceded to Bell, not only for the weight of its purchase, but because it gives the web a chance to program another pubaffairs stanza at 10:30 (maybe Frank McGee) to match the Wednesday at 10:30 slotting for David Brinkley.

Meantime, word has come from the Coast that NBC might grab off "Hong Kong" (now on ABC's Wednesday sked) for 8:30 to 9:30 Fridays. At 7:30, the chances for circus tapes, to be made about less than half of what an hour network tv stanza usually costs, are said to have improved immeasurably.

Incidentally, if "Hong Kong" doesn't come over to NBC with Kaiser backing, "Las Vegas Beat," made by Goodson-Todman, has the inside track for 8:30. "Beat" won out after NBC brass last week watched the pilots of several other hours, including its own "Villa Portofino."

NBC thumbed down "Riok," a Roncom production, as the 8:30 stanza Fridays, despite the program having the guarantee of some business from Brown & Williamson.

WNBQ Hoping That Huntley-Brinkley Image Will Rub Off on Own News Boys

Chicago, March 28.

NBC News in Chi, projecting the effects of the Presidential campaign for months ahead, is drenching its local on-the-air personalities in that clicko Huntley-Brinkley image. While the network news may be riding high in the Nielsens, the local counterpart isn't exactly duplicating the web; hence the attempt to burnish the Windy City boys by association.

The Chicago tv anchor, WNBQ, has been saturated for weeks with spot promos showing its newscasters in virtual shoulder-to-shoulder proximity to H&B. Object is to convey the impression that they're all of the same NBC News cloth, which technically they are, since they're paid by the web's news division rather than the station. The promos give it as Chet Huntley in New York, David Brinkley in Washington and Floyd Kalber (or Len O'Connor or Jim Hurlbut) in Chicago. It's being backed by similar print advertising in the dailies.

Chiefly it's Kalber who's getting the buildup, he being the newcomer to the Chi airwaves and the helmsman of the premium 10 p.m. newscast currently in the midst of a showdown with the three other commercial stations in town. In addition to the promos, Kalber's getting direct association with H&B as their "man in Chicago" whenever cut-ins from here are in order.

Reason the station can afford to

(Continued on page 42)

'Americans' Still Iffy For NBC Fall Sked

Fate of "The Americans" next season is undecided. Two weeks ago, the hourlong Monday telefilm skein, on less than two months, seemed destined for the axe in its 7:30 p.m. anchorage, but NBC-TV got some encouragement from the last Nielsens and now prefers waiting another few weeks before deciding on its future.

The recent 24-City Nielsen report gave NBC the lead over ABC's "Cheyenne" for the first time in innumerable moons; however CBS-TV's competing pair, "To Tell the Truth" and "Pete & Gladys" still came off first in the three-network competition.

While they started at about the same level on the Nielsens, "Americans" has been building its share while its predecessor, "Riverboat," fell off.

Walworth to Head WNBC; Davidson Dickers Web Deal

Key owned & operated managerial shift took place last week at NBC, with Theodore H. Walworth moving in from the web's Philly station to become new general manager (stripe to follow) of WNBC-TV & AM, N. Y.

Walworth, station manager and director of sales for WRCV-TV, the Philadelphia station that the federal government forced NBC to put on the selling block recently, takes over from longtime WNBC-TV-AM v.p.-g.m. Bill Davidson. Reportedly, Davidson and NBC toppers are talking about a move directly into the network operation. If that doesn't come off, there is word also that Davidson could move into RCA, parent of NBC.

Decision to move Walworth into the N. Y. station operation was made by P. A. (Buddy) Sugg, head of NBC's o&o string.

Kolodny, Lewis Exiting 'Today'

Les Kolodny and Irwin (Bud) Lewis are leaving NBC-TV's "Today" stanza, due partly to the wishes of host Dave Garroway and partly because of a desire by the network to alter the makeup of the production team.

Kolodny and Lewis were both listed as associate producers under Fred Freed, who just a few days ago took over as producer of "Today," the NBC-TV early morning strip. Reportedly, the die was cast before Freed's arrival.

From now on, "Today" will have only one associate producer. Craig Fisher was hired from CBS. There will also be a "program coordinator" who evidently will report to program manager Norman Kahn, who is remaining with the cross-the-board stanza. Assumedly, there is a cost-saving factor that was involved in limiting the stanza to just one associate producer. It's possible that Lewis will stay on with NBC in a different program capacity, but nothing definite has come of the talks being held in his behalf.

Sterling's NBC Buy

Sterling Drug has bought into two NBC-TV 60-minute stanzas for next semester. Bankroller joins Liggett & Myers in the Thursday scheduling of "Dr. Kildare" and also has taken time in the second season's exposure of "Thriller" on Tuesdays.

It's understood that Sterling will have the equivalent of three minutes every two weeks in "Kildare," a Metro package. It'll have about a minute a week in "Thriller," made out of MCA's stable.

SCIENTIFIC STUDY OKAYS SERVICES

By JAY LEWIS

Washington, March 28.

The broadcast rating services are "on the whole doing a reasonably good technical piece of work for the purposes to be served."

A committee of the American Statistical Assn. makes this overall evaluation in a 138-page report to the House Commerce Committee.

Although in no sense an all-out defense of the ratings, the study brushes aside some of the major complaints used against the services and suggests that if any blame is to be attached, the ratings are only the "tools" not the "masters."

Perhaps more important than the report itself was the implication it held for Rep. Oren Harris (D—Ark.), Chairman of the Commerce Committee and the newly-formed Subcommittee on Regulatory Agencies, successor to the Oversight unit.

In effect, he said that whatever is wrong with programming can't be blamed on the job done by the rating services. In a statement to newsmen, he explained:

"To the extent that network programming policies are based on the ratings, it is unlikely that technical improvements in methods of estimating the ratings will lead to any support for a change in programming policies.

"This does not mean that changes in policies should not be undertaken; it only means that rating surveys, however improved, will not yield results on the national level sufficiently different from the present results to indicate that a change in programming policies should be made."

The study was done at a cost of about $31,000 by the ASA's Technical Committee on Broadcast Ratings headed by William G. Madow, of the Stanford Research Institute. The now-defunct Legislative Oversight Subcommittee commissioned it a year ago.

The report, largely technical, did not gloss over what Madow termed "potentially important sources of error" in the methods used by the seven big services—ARB, Hooper, Nielsen, The Pulse, Sindlinger, Trendex and Videotape. It also contained a number of recommendations on how they might be improved. But the tenor of the report was favorable.

Stressing that it wanted to steer clear of "public policy" considerations such as the effect of ratings on programming, the report nonetheless dealt with what it viewed as the major complaints hurled by the rating detractors.

Among these were:

1. Programs of high "cultural" quality are junked because of low ratings. In answer, the report said: "We feel that the ratings are sufficiently accurate, that their defects are sufficiently known, and the willingness of the rating services to provide information on quality sufficiently clear . . . for the

(Continued on page 42)

For Whom Ayer's Bell (Tel) Tolls

The tv department at N. W. Ayer found itself last week in the middle of a frustrating bind. Agency handles Sealtest and AT&T, and both clients wanted NBC-TV's Wednesday-at-10 time next season.

Sealtest won out with a 10 to 10:30 weekly show to be fronted by Bob Newhart. This gave the sponsor a contiguous discount with its sister account Kraft (also American Dairies) on the 9-10 Perry Como show.

Just how unhappy this made AT&T cannot be determined. (AT&T is now back looking for Friday time on NBC for its 15 or 16 alternate week hours in '61-'62.)

NBC, Now Showing Some Muscle, Has Learned a Lesson: Don't Program Against Its Own Better Judgment

By ART WOODSTONE

The sales-programming tactics of NBC-TV in the last six to eight weeks have changed markedly.

Last year and in years previous, NBC fiddled around until May and June trying to pin down a schedule. This year six of the seven nights are virtually locked and the seventh (Friday) will be closed by the end of this week.

During the 1959-1960 season, the network "accommodated" advertisers in at least half a dozen instances with shows or time slots that a large segment of the program and administrative staffs of NBC did not like. These six slots affected at least four of the networks. For this coming season, NBC has accepted no programs it doesn't like and, indeed, has turned down at least three for time periods that it felt should go to the other stanzas. It may be, before the selling and program placement period is over within the next few days, that NBC will "accommodate" one, perhaps two, programs in time periods it would rather use otherwise, but, according to various network sources, such is a distant cry from the "bad old days."

Observation this season is that NBC-TV, to all intents and purposes, is in clear competition in just about 25 of the 49 half-hour periods on its prime time sked. Rest of the time, it's figured, is weakened by advertiser pressures or enticements.

Here's the way it looked at NBC-TV during the selling period for the '59-'60 season:

Procter & Gamble, which held a sway at NBC-TV that doesn't seem to prevail to any significant degree now, angled a shift of "This Is Your Life" from Wednesday into a Sunday night period against CBS-TV's "What's My Line" that NBC programmers thought was self-destructive. P&G ordered "Peter Loves Mary" for 10 Wednesdays over internal network objections. Alberto Culver, which was waving about $5,000,000 in NBC's face, demanded the Barbara Stanwyck anthology half-hour for Monday nights at 10. Nobody else would buy afterwards with a potentially commercial entry, so the 10:30 Monday time went, in a last-minute grab, to Milton Berle in a bowling show.

This Monday-night play hurt elsewhere. Web had been planning to put its hourlong series of specials in Mondays from 10 to 11

(Continued on page 42)

Humble Renews NCAA Gridcasts on ABC-TV

ABC-TV's NCAA football slate for fall has been 75% parted with Gillette in for half and Humble Oil in for a fourth bankroll.

Humble, which had a fourth of the spread last fall in its ABC preem, did not cancel for the coming season via McCann-Erickson agency as reported in VARIETY last week.

CBS Mulling Hr. 'Twilight Zone'; 'Eyewitness' Out?

It now looks as if CBS-TV will extend "Twilight Zone" to a full hour to take over the 10-11 p.m. Friday time. Expansion of the Rod Serling series is under "serious consideration" at the network, with Serling having already given a reluctant assent to the project.

Final decision hasn't been made because of "Eyewitness to History." The half-hour news stanza, now in the Friday 10:30-11 period, has substantial support at the network both as a prestige showcase and, as news programs go, a reasonably successful audience show too. "Eyewitness" has been pulling a weekly Nielsen rating of over 14 and a share near 30%.

If "Twilight Zone" is expanded, it means curtains for "Eyewitness" as a weekly show, with the news stanza reverting to a "scatter" basis—periodic specials shown on a preemptive basis. Firestone has already served its cancellation notice on "Eyewitness," but reportedly CBS-TV will make one more major effort to sell the show before finalizing the "Twilight Zone" expansion.

Ray Bradbury's 2d Win In His Plagiarism Suit Vs. CBS and Aurthur

Hollywood, March 28.

Writer Ray Bradbury won his second and possibly final victory in his plagiarism suit against CBS and writer Robert Alan Aurthur when the Frisco Court of Appeals on March 23 denied CBS' petition for a re-hearing of its earlier ruling in favor of Bradbury last Jan. 20.

Action stems from a suit for $50,000 damages filed by Bradbury in 1957 against two defendants over asserted pirating of his novel, "Fahrenheit 451," which he claimed was used in the "Playhouse 90" telecast, "A Sound of Different Drummers," Oct. 3, 1957. Case was appealed to Frisco court after Federal Judge Leon R. Yankwich ruled against Bradbury in 1959, and subsequently came up for hearing before appeals court last July.

On Jan. 20, 1961, the higher court reversed Judge Yankwich's decision, holding CBS and Aurthur were guilty of copyright infringement on "Fahrenheit." CBS attorneys then petitioned for re-hearing.

Provision in Federal law now permits CBS if it so desires to file with U.S. Supreme Court for a review of the latest ruling. Otherwise, the case will be handed to a Federal judge here to determine damages.

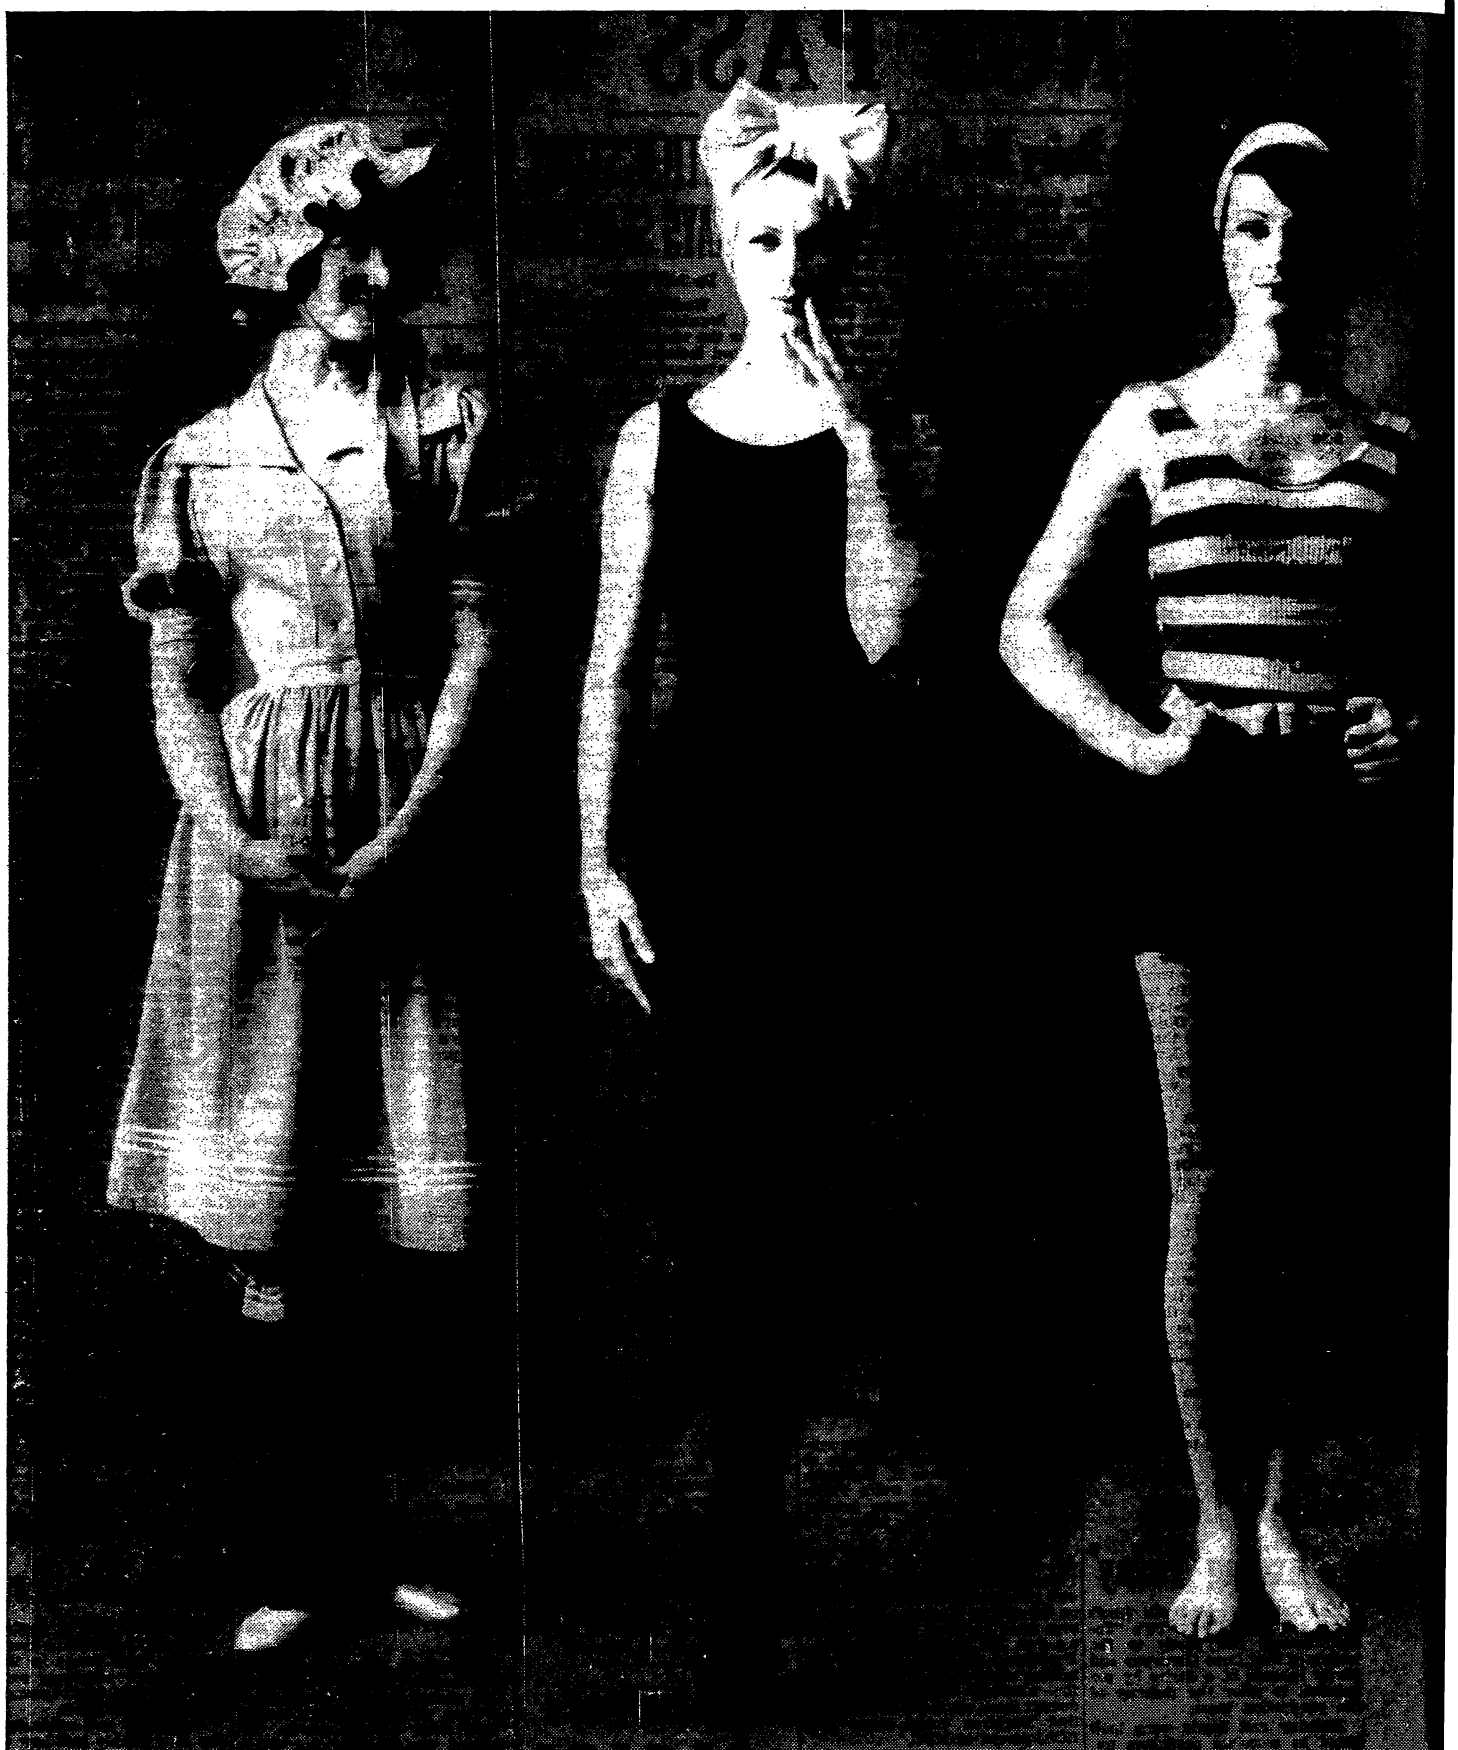
Reynolds Metals Buys Dick Powell

Reynolds Metals is shelling out about $5,000,000 next season for alternate-week hours in the new Dick Powell anthology series on NBC-TV. It's first sponsor coin for the Powell show.

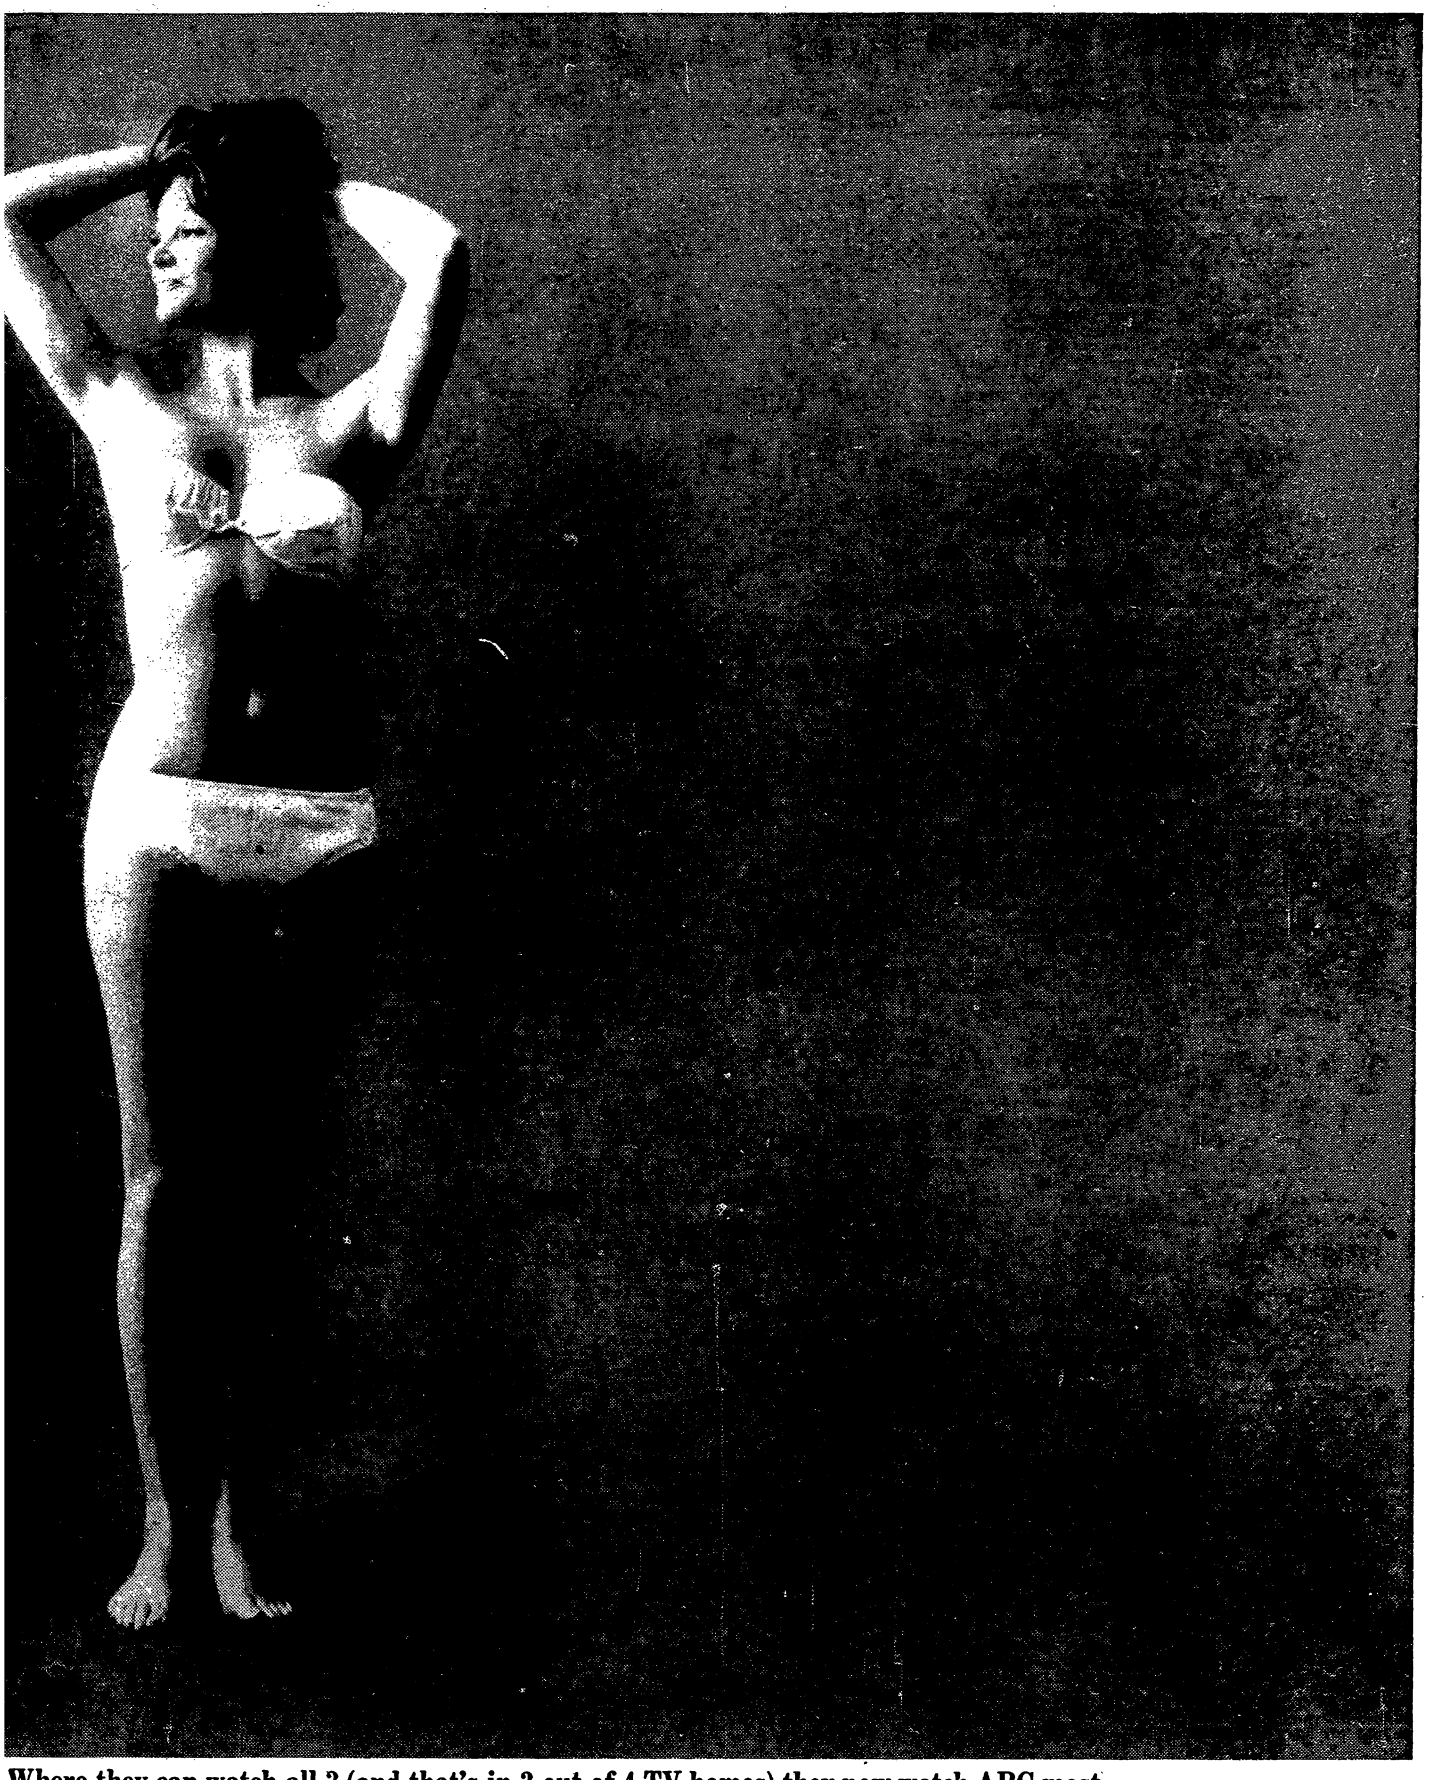
Bankroller was originally looking at a weekly half-hour on the same web but that deal fell through. Via Lennen & Newell, the Reynolds deal for "The Dick Powell Show," to be locked in Tuesday nights between 9 and 10, was consummated this week.

Reynolds has been looking at Fridays, 9:30 to 10 p.m., for an every-week sponsorship of Alan Jay Lerner's "Harry's Girls." They had also looked at a Saturday slot at NBC.

Besides its half buy in the Powell stanza, Reynolds is also having "All Star Golf" for a 26 weekend ride at NBC-TV. Stanza, carried by ABC-TV, is being given up by that network because of a failure to sell it out completely. There is no word whether Reynolds will take the entire golf show at NBC or just half.



there is nothing harder to stop than a trend



Where they can watch all 3 (and that's in 3 out of 4 TV homes) they now watch ABC most.

The biggest popularity contest in America goes on every night. It's the 3-way network competition for The Viewers' television viewing.

Who's more popular than whom?

Only way to judge is to get all 3 networks in the same viewing arena—and let the Nielsens fall where they may.

Do this and, Nielsen after Nielsen,* you come up with the same answer: ABC is the most popular. ABC is the one they dial most frequently. ABC, in short, is first.

We're talking, incidentally, about an area in which 80% of all U. S. retail sales are made. A pretty fair, country-size slice of the world's largest shopping center. That's, as we said, where ABC is first.

Trend with the leader.

ABC Television Network

*Source Nielsen 60-Market TV ratings. 9 weeks ending March 5, 1961. Average Audience, Sunday 6:30-11 PM, Monday through Saturday 7:30-11 PM. Details supplied on request.

See WNTA-TV Heading Toward Deal By Monday's (3) Stockholder Meet

More definitive word on disposition of National Telefilm Associates' broadcasting properties, WNTA-TV and WNTA AM & FM, Newark-N. Y., is expected by Monday (3), when NTA holds it annual stockholders meeting in N. Y.

Contenders for the tv outlet include a N. Y. citizens group who would convert the station to an educational station. The educational group has put in a cash bid of $5,500,000. Group headed by David Susskind, reportedly allied with Paramount Pictures, has put in a bid of $6,600,000. Group headed by Ely A. Landau, former board chairman of NTA, has put in a bid for an amount said to be $8,400,000, the bid, unlike the others, embracing the WNTA-AM & FM outlets as well. Landau bid reportedly includes $7,000,000 in cash, with the remainder in the assumption of obligations.

There are various ramifications to the bids. It's understood Susskind's offer includes the takeover of the station's accounts receivables and film contracts. Susskind offer also is said to include partial payment in the sale to NTA of post-'48 Paramount features. Educational group, if it loses out in the bidding, says it will take its fight to the Federal Communications Commission, a move which would be a precedental poser for the FCC. The case of educational and commercial interests vying the same VHF on-the-air outlet has been rare indeed.

By Monday, word on the disposal of the Newark-N. Y. radio AM & FM outlets also may be made.

Matters to be taken up at the annual meeting include a proposal to increase authorized capital stock to permit payment of a $4,233,000 debt due NT&T in stock rather than cash; approval of a restatement of the capital account charging to capital surplus the accumulated deficit in earned surplus of $10,702,617 as of Sept. 31, 1960; and approval of a restricted stock-option plan and issuance of options thereunder.

NTA directors and officers received an aggregate of $404,478 in remuneration in the fiscal year ended Sept. 30, 1960, according to the proxy statement. Included were $52,000 to Landau, $45,000 to prexy Oliver Unger, $32,250 to business affairs v.p. Samuel P. Norton, and $45,000 to station operations v.p. Ted Cott.

WMCA's ETV Support

WMCA Radio, N.Y., today (Wed.) began lending on the air editorial support to the bid of a N.Y. citizens group to buy WNTA-TV for educational purposes.

Editorial by station board chairman Nathan Strauss said: "People in New York should not allow this last television channel to be lost for public education. The Federal Communications Commission should act and if need be the Congress should act to make certain that television channel 13 become an educational tv station."

$2,000,000 Budget For Mattel's New 'Beany' on ABC

Holywood, March 28.

Production budget for the new "Beany & Cecil" animated cartoon show on ABC-TV next year is $2,000,000. Mattel Toys bought the half-hour Sunday afternoon series to start in January, 1962.

Understood the web bought the show for two years, with sponsor Mattel firmed up for one year, via toy outfit's agency, Carson & Roberts of Hollywood.

Parties to the deal include Television Artists & Producers Corp. (TAPC) and Snowball, Inc., cartoon producers. TAPC, headed by Bruce Eells, is the financing and distributing agency. Bob Clampett, creative head of Snowball, was formerly with Warner Bros., where he was the creator of the Bugs Bunny series. New series is based on the comic book characters created by Clampett, "Beany Boy" and Cecil and the Seasick Sea Serpent." Clampett also created the puppet series "Time for Beany" years ago.

Production of the series is now underway at new Hollywood facilities recently acquired by the company, according to A. C. R. Stone, prez and business-financial head of Snowball.

Eells organized TAPC following his resignation last year as exec v.p. of United Artists Television. Prior to joining UA he was v.p. and a director of Television Programs of America.

Gen. Foods Buys Into 'Dick Tracy'

Chicago, March 28.

General Foods, for its Post Cereals line, is partially underwriting the syndicated "Dick Tracy" animated series distributed by Television Personalities Inc. and produced by UPA Pictures. Through Benton & Bowles, GF is guaranteeing spots in the five-minute shows in all markets in which they're purchased, but on a depending-on-the-market basis. In most cases to date, it's two or three spots per week.

Series, in first two weeks of syndication, has dotted 15 stations for a reported total of $750,000. TPI's companion piece, "Mister Magoo," is now in over 100 markets, and sales have passed the $1,500,000, according to prexy Henry Saperstein. "Tracy" is available in 130 episodes and "Magoo" in 104. Latter is already on the air, but former isn't expected to start until June.

White Sees Leased-Wire Networking of Educ'l Shows Instead of Tape

Milwaukee, March 28.

Use of leased wires to service educational stations throughout the country was forecast by John E. White, prexy of National Educational Television and Radio Center (NET).

White, addressing the annual meet of Milwaukee vocational and adult school members, pointed out that a wired network would have some advantages over vidtaped distribution of programs, as currently practiced. Use of cable facilities when not utilized by the commercial networks represents a [illegible] problem to NET, though, White acknowledged. NET, [illegible] financed by Ford Foundation [illegible] for other financing from other sources.

WMVS-TV, Milwaukee, is an affil of NET.

At an earlier session, some 100 educational station managers and program directors attended a [illegible] panel [illegible]. There, [illegible] discuss [illegible] and explains for the future.

4-Star Inks Dean Jones For 'Ensign O'Toole' Pilot

[illegible]

BRITISH LION ENTERS COM'L PRODUCTION

London, March 28.

British Lion is turning its attention to tv advertising. It has formed a new subsidiary to make commercials, shorts and documentary films for industry at Shepperton Studios, called Littleton Park Film Productions Ltd.

Ronald Soencer, freelance director and screenplay writer, is to be managing director and Roy Boulting and Sidney Gilliat will serve on the board.

NT&T Proxy Row New Complication IN WNTA-TV Sale

Possibility of a lawsuit against directors of National Telefilm Associates if WNTA-TV and AM & FM, Newark-N. Y., are sold, was raised by National Theatres & Television dissident stockholder Leonard Davis.

Davis said the N. Y. corporation law requires two-thirds approval of stockholders for a company to sell a major asset. Davis said that if the broadcasting properties are sold without two-thirds stockholders approval and if the sale is against the interest of stockholders, he would bring a suit. It was pointed out to him that NTA has stated that it derives only 20% of its gross revenues from the broadcasting properties, with the bulk coming from film distribution. He then restated his belief that the broadcasting properties in his opinion are major assets, with the tv station running in the black, and with a good growth potential.

NTA's proxy statement, issued in preparation of its annual meeting Monday (3), makes no mention of a stockholders vote on the disposition of its broadcasting properties.

NTA board chairman Oliver Unger, asked for comment, said the company will act on advise of counsel, as to what the law requires.

Station's disposition came up in a series of salvos fired Monday (27) in the NT&T Television proxy battle by management and Davis in preparation for NT&T's April 11 annual meeting in Hollywood.

The Davis shot also had deep repercussions in the affairs of NTA, in which NT&T now owns a 38% stock interest.

Davis, who is joined with his personal attorney Philip L. Handsman, in the proxy battle, owns 1,500 shares of NT&T stock. Davis, who heads a group insurance brokerage firm, said he also owns 5,400 shares of NTA stock. There are 2,816,247 shares of NT&T stock outstanding.

Davis said he was waging his proxy fight against NT&T, rather than NTA, because NT&T has cumulative voting provisions for the election of directors. NT&T, he added, in his opinion remains in control of the affairs of NTA. He said he would attend Monday's (3) annual meeting in N. Y. of NTA stockholders to air his grievances.

NT&T management, prior to the airing of Davis' complaints Monday, mailed a missive of its own against Davis in a letter to stockholders. The management cited the comparative small number of shares owned by Davis and Handsman, comparing it to the 355,303 shares owned by NT&T's present directors and associates. The letter went into some detail of a meeting between Davis and management prior to the announced proxy fight. The management letter charged that Davis sought to use NTA as "a vehicle" for his personal ambitions to get into tv and motion picture production. The letter went on to cite various steps taken by management in exec appointments to strengthen the company.

The Davis-Handsman message to stockholders charged, among other things:

"The annual report and proxy statement of the Canter management of National Theatres & Television, Inc., reveal a situation which we believe is shocking. The earned surplus of our company has dropped from $21,000,000 to $8,000,000 in two short years. The company was required to stop paying cash dividends. More than $[illegible] of theatre properties [illegible] or disposed of during the same [illegible]

(Continued on page 42)

Networks Just Like the Ladies

Can't Live With 'Em, Can't Live Without 'Em— At Least on Hourlong Pilots

Practice of tying a vidfilm entry to a network, with the particular web financing the pilot, has its faults. The gripes about the growing practice come from producers who have succeeded with such entries, as well as those who have failed.

From the viewpoint of those who find fault with the situation, it's acknowledged that little can be done about it. For in the hour vidfilm field, as a general rule, it's just too chancy to come into the market with a 60-minute pilot and hope to find a time slot and a lineup of participating sponsors.

Nevertheless, some key producers, off-the-record, maintain some of the consequences just aren't cricket. A web, for example, can tie up a whole studio's tv effort with a number of financed pilot projects. From December to February, the whole creative push of the particular studio is thrown into the entries. The same web, meanwhile, has made similar pilot financing deals with a number of other studios. The web's "seed" money brings in many more entries than can possibly be accommodated on the schedule. Under this system, casualties exist even before the pilot is made. It's just a case of oversupply and whether the best of the lot make it on the air always is a moot point.

From the viewpoint of the losing studio, it has utilized its facilities for "dead" projects. The pilot made for one web seldom can be sold to another web or a sponsor. Such a pilot carries a rejection slip which virtually kills the property. The number of vidfilm projects that can be handled by one studio is limited. Betting on projects which may be dead before airing simply because of the plentiude of web financed projects throttles the potential for the particular studio.

The merits of the practice are readily acknowledged. It gives the producer a potential market, pilot financing, and a built-in interested party.

Amy Vanderbilt's 45-Sec. AM'ers on 'Right Thing'

Quickest quickies yet may be the series of 130 45-second radio shows featuring Amy Vanderbilt pacted by the American Greeting Card Corp. via Fuller & Smith & Ross agency.

Titled "The Right Thing to Do," capsule shows each feature Miss Vanderbilt discussing a situation involving good manners and correct social behavior. Producer is Alan Sands for Victor & Richards, New York show packagers. Agreement with the card firm runs to March of 1962, and Sands anticipates the transcribed series will run on about 100 stations.

Official Films Sked Afro Skein Among Other New Product

Banking on the broadcasters' new yen for pubservice skeins, Official Films has acquired a new half-hour documentary series on Africa and has culled historical hours and a package of five-minute quickies from the recently pacted Paramount Newsreel Library.

Produced by William Alexander and narrated by Alexander Scourby, the African series of 14 (so far scheduled) treats individually the newly independent nations, or colonies where current crises have put them in the headlines. In production are stanzas on Nigeria, Republic of Congo, French Congo, Ethiopia, Guinea, Sierra Leone, Liberia, Dutch New Guinea and Dutch Guiana, Angola, Tanganyika, Kenya, Morocco and Mauritania.

From the Par newsreels, Official has packaged a series of 26 hour documentaries slated for April release. Subjects of the first two episodes are explorer Admiral Byrd and baseball great Babe Ruth. Future stanzas will include crime in the U.S., a half century of sports, Gen. Douglas MacArthur and Franklin D. Roosevelt. Another 39 half-hours will be prepared for fall delivery.

The five-minute package will include 260 quickies titled, "Humor in the News." Package is slated for June release.

Vidpix Chatter

Pete Levathes, 20th-Fox tv topper, on Coast... Oliver Unger, National Telefilm Associates board chairman, returned from Coast... Erin O'Brien Moore signed for lead femme role in "Asphalt Jungle" episode... John McCarthy, Television Program Export Assn. prez, returned from a Far East trip. WPIX, N. Y., is telecasting "Rendezvous with Adventure" Thursday nights at 9:30 p.m... Carole Wells, of Metro's "National Velvet," joins another tv star Richard Boone in a Metro feature, titled "A Thunder of Drums"... Jack Denove has just completed shooting a second series of tv commercials for Campbell's barbecue beans. Suzanne Holeton has joined the staff of Filmex as a news director. Gloria Henry, who plays the mother of Jay North on Screen Gems' "Dennis the Menace," has returned to work after an absence of four weeks. She gave birth to a boy. [illegible] Elwood Pick Jacobs of [illegible] has been upped from [illegible] film editor to v.p. in charge of completion services. Canadian-born John Rhone, winner of the first UCLA-Screen Gems fellowship for study in the tv industry, has joined the production staff of [illegible]. Rhone completed his fellowship period with SG last month by [illegible] in all departments of the production company. His [illegible] will be assigned to [illegible] producer Harry Ackerman.

GAC Sets Talent Dept. for Com'ls

GAC-TV, tele department of General Artists Corp., has set up a special department to book the firm's talent for tv commercials.

Sam Sharber, formerly a partner in 60's East Agency, has joined GAC as agent in the new department. Assisting him will be Steven Block, formerly with Adam Breck Agency. Lou Moskowitz has moved over from GAC's legit operation to the new department.

GAC also has recently firmed several deals on the tele programming side, including the ABC-TV Pat Boone special for Bulova via McCann-Erickson; Ringling Bros. Barnum & Bailey circus telecast bankrolled by Top Value Stamps slated for CBS, April 20; Revlon's Bobby Darin special; and a WNTA-TV daytime strip featuring Buff Cobb set for debut April 10.

Chi Labor Station's 2G Posey to Educ'l TV'er

Chicago, March 28.

Chi's educational station WTTW, in the throes of its annual campaign for funds, received a check for $2,000 from AM station WCFL, non-profit outlet owned by Chicago Federation of Labor. Station construes the neighborly gesture as "a mandate from the working man."

William A. Lee, prexy of the Federation, has urged all unions to support community education via WTTW. He cited two weekly programs, "American at Work" and "Bricing Sees on" as evidence of the station's willingness to present Labor's point of view.

Educational station's budget for the coming year is $396,000, but the station feels it will be able to bring in about [illegible] of the total through its own enterprise.

MAJORS MAKING BIG LEAGUES

Large Vs. Small Post-'48 Feature Pkg. Policy Debated; Hr. Shows Also Factor

Feature film field is buzzing with some internal debates, a major one being whether it's wiser to package large or small groups of post-'48's for the market.

Companies such as Screen Gems and Seven Arts Associated are taking opposite directions. SG has opened 200 post-'48 Columbia Pictures for the market and a station can buy all 200 at a clip. Seven Arts, which bought about 120 post-'48's from Warner Bros., is selling the pix in groups, the first package being 40 pix. Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer, about to enter the post-'48 tv race, is thinking of small packages, also about 40, perhaps on a one package a year basis.

Another issue is the extent of competition, if any, offered by the off-network vidfilm hour entries. Feature execs, possessing a built-in bias, contend that the hour vidfilm are no substitute to good features and the hours are bound to lose in any rating race. Some station execs, even those not buying the 60-minuters, feel they could be programmed in feature slots. The non-buying station execs cite the two-run limitations more than any other factor in not joining the MCA TV bandwagon. These execs say a feature buy carries with it provisions of up to six and seven runs, making it economically feasible. Then, there are the charges that if the hours didn't succeed on the networks why should they succeed in syndication.

The above about summarizes the negative arguments. Nevertheless, MCA TV has wrapped up more than 20 stations for the four hour series, with station interest, on the whole, described as lively. The 60-minuters include "Riverboat," "Suspicion," "Overland Trail" and "Cimarron City." Factor in the sales, of course, is price. MCA TV is reportedly asking for each hour series a price equal to what it would receive for a half-hour first-run syndicated property.

The small versus large package argument falls along these lines: Selling a large package is more economical and results in bigger grosses. Markets don't have to be visited and revisited which entails some tall expense. Once a market is sold and the station is committed to a large group of pix, there's no danger of additional competition, which there is if the pix are offered in dribs and drabs.

Countering these contentions are the pro-small pix package proponents. Houses such as Metro want to touch base with stations time and again. Metro would rather have its station revenues from pix sales over the span of many years, rather than in one lump sum, spelling a feast or famine situation. Seven Arts, along with other houses, feel that stations, already ladened with backlogs of pre-'48's, can more easily digest small groups of post-'48's. These updated pix in small groups could be used by stations to spruce up their feature slots without creating an unbearable financial burden.

Rank, ATV Set 1st Brit. Hour Vidpix

London, March 28.

The Rank Organization and Associated Television have got together to make the first skein of one-hour tv films to be made in this country. The two outfits will finance the series, "Ghost Squad," jointly, and over $1,400,000 has been allocated to the series, which will consist of 26 episodes, based on the adventures of the special services force of Scotland Yard.

Shooting starts at Beaconfield on April 17, with Sir Donald Wolfit as star name and Connery Chappell producing. Independent Artists will switch from Beaconfield to Pinewood for a year to make their eight planned pictures.

'Staccato' Goes Syndie

John Cassavetes, actor turned producer, whose film "Shadows" now is playing theatres, will be back on tv again in reruns of the "Staccato" private eye series.

MCA TV, opening its syndication efforts on the 27 episode skein, has sold it to WNEW-TV, N. Y.; KTTV, Los Angeles; WTTG, Washington; WTVH, Peoria; KOVR, Stockton; and WTVP, Decatur.

Series had been on NBC-TV from September, '59 to March, '60, and rerun on ABC-TV from March, '60 to September, '60.

'Great Music' Set Of 23 Features Via RKO General

A package of features, consisting of operatic pix and films on the lives of composers, has been assembled by RKO General and will be offered to stations for telecasting this fall.

To date, 23 features have been assembled, 15 straight operas and eight composer biogs. Three more are expected to be added, to bring the total to 26. Twelve of the 23 assembled to date are in color.

RKO General got started on the project about 18 months ago, after RKO General execs Arthur M. Good and Ivan Reiner saw two operatic pix and felt there's a "great music" programming gap to be filled on tv. That gap, they concluded, could be filled by "great music" motion pictures. On that basis, they instituted a search for opera motion pictures and after eighteen months of viewing, contacting and negotiations, they assembled the present 23. Whenever available, RKO General secured Canadian rights to the pix, as well as U. S. rights.

Titles of the pix include "Kovanshcina," Moussorgsky's historical opera, released in 1960; "The Young Caruso," starring Ermanno Randi and Gina Lollobrigida, released in 1952; Mozart's "Don Juan," starring Cesare Danova, 1956; Gian-Carlo Menotti's "The Medium"; "The Life and Loves of Mozart"; "Figaro the Barber of Seville"; "Tosca"; "Faust and the Devil"; "La Traviata" and "Lohengrin."

It's planned to dub the dialogue in the features into English and to insert short explanatory narrative bridges between the operatic selections. Virtually all of the pix are imports.

ABC-TV Stars Set For WFAA Plant Dedication

Dallas, March 28.

A parade of 13 ABC-TV personalities will participate in the week long activities of the new WFAA-AM-FM-TV plant April 4-9, it was announced by Mike Shapiro, general manager.

The tv personalities will begin arriving April 4 and continue shuttling in and out of Dallas until April 9, appearing at various functions planned in connection with the official opening of the new $3,500,000 tv-radio home of the WFAA radio-tv facilities.

The line-up of celebraties includes Nick Adams, star of "The Rebel"; John Newland, host-director of "Alcoa Presents"; Johnny Crawford, teenage star of "The Rifleman"; Connie Stevens, of "Hawaiian Eye"; Louis Quinn of "77 Sunset Strip"; Wayne Rogers and Robert Bray of "Stagecoach West"; and Roger Perry and Georgine Darcy of "Harrigan & Son."

Stars will appear in the new studios at WFAA's new "Communications Center"

METRO, 20TH SET HOT SALES PACE

By MURRAY HOROWITZ

A resurgence of tv activity on the part of the "have-not" majors is gaining momentum. Next season, Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer will have its greatest number of vidfilm entries. Twentieth-Fox is lagging behind Metro, with only "Bus Stop" set among the new shows for '61-'62. Fox, though, has two renewals and a good potential among its new coproduction properties.

Paramount, which has taken it on the chin year after year in the network programming area, is understood to be working closely with David Susskind. The Paramount-Susskind liaison is reported not confined to Paramount's backing Susskind financially for his bid to buy WNTA-TV, Newark-N.Y. indie. It's understood that Susskind might move into a position at Paramount comparable to that of Pete Levathes, who oversees all tv activities of 20th-Fox.

The resurgence of the trio of majors, overall, may not be something to shout about at this stage. In a pre-season judgement, it looks though that Metro and 20th-Fox are on the right track. The promise is good that at least they will get exposure for some of their shows. How the shows fare for the long seasonal pull is a question to be settled later.

There are many imponderables at Paramount at this writing. Of course, part of Paramount's tv push has been and is being thrown to its toll system, Telemeter. Susskind, it's understood, also will have a hand in the Telemeter programming end. It's held very likely that Talent Associates, the Susskind-Al Levy programming operation, may fall under the Paramount fold. Paramount currently is negotiating with Susskind and Levy for a substantial stock interest in TA, reportedly in the neighborhood of 50%. Deal is said to be virtually closed.

Still riding the crest of the vidfilm wave are Screen Gems, the Columbia Pictures baby, which now has its own corporate legs, and Warner Bros., whose tv production chief, Bill Orr, has been upped to the overall studio head, embracing feature as well as tv activities.

For next season, the vidfilm wave has all but inundated the evening programming of the three webs. Estimates at this time say 90% or more of the week in, week out nighttime schedule of the three webs will consist of vidfilms. Whatever new entertainment forms are evolved, adult cartoons and more of the hour series, they appear to embrace the Hollywood vidfilm format.

Metro, now on base more times than any of the "have-not" trio next season, has the following firmed: "Father of the Bride," CBS-TV, with General Mills and Campbell Soup sponsoring; "Dr. Kildare," and "Cain's 100," NBC-TV. "Kildare" and "Cain's" are hour series, while "Father" is a half-hour outing. "Asphalt Jungle," which debuts on ABC-TV Sunday (2) night, is another possibility for next season. MGM came into the market with only one uncommitted property, "Harry's Girls," a project of Alan Jay Lerner.

20th-Fox, like Metro, did not take any scatter-shot approach to pilot making. Under the direction of Levathes and production topper Roy Huggins, all but one of its projects had been partnered with one of the three webs. "Bus Stop" has definitely been slated for next season on ABC-TV. Possibiliiies of the half-hour comedy "Margie," another ABC-TV financed project, doesn't look too good at this stage.

The chips still are not down on the other 20th-Fox projects including "House on Rue Riviera," tied with NBC-TV; "The Jayhawkers," a post-Civil War western, tied to CBS-TV; and "The Hunters," another hour vidfilm project with ABC-TV.

U.S. Pubaffairs Shows—'Favorable' Or Not—A Major Plus in Balancing U.S. Exports, Negating Vidpix Violence

The 'Hard Buy'

Blame for the wide circulation secured by some of the more violent vidpix series should be shared by the importing stations. According to foreign sales execs, many markets are offered "soft" shows, anthologies, situation comedies, etc., but, because of rating potentials, the "hard" shows are bought.

In markets as far off as Bangkok, an American vidfilm salesman pitching a show is liable to be cut off with this question: "Did it make the top ten in America?"

The sensitivity in Washington to the telecasting of CBS-TV's "Harvest of Shame" in Britain misses the mark by a long shot to anyone familar with the world tv market.

The image of America, as formed on the tv sets of the world, has and is being shaped by the U. S. vidfilm series circulating the globe. From Mexico to England to Japan, there have been outcries against America's preoccupation with blood, murder, mayhem and sex. Today, vidpix are sharing the blame with Hollywood features for accenting gangsterism, for creating an image of America in foreign eyes as unrealistic and as unfair as can be imagined.

How distorted the outcry against "Harvest of Shame" is, from this viewpoint, can be gleaned from another facet of the overseas biz. The pubaffairs shows of the webs always have been a softening counterblow to the anti-American bellows abroad. When there's a general attack against the import of American product, the violent oaters, private eyes, etc., the importing station usually points with pride at the uplift pubaffairs shows also secured from America.

If foreign viewers ever get to feel that the U. S. only exports pubaffairs shows favorable to America, the overseas market might not only go kaput, but it's effect in offsetting some of Hollywood sins also would be minimized.

In Europe, the anti-violence feeling against American vidpix has grown so that violent shows just are unsalable, according to Screen Gems European topper George Baug. In Mexico, there's a drive, enunciated by top broadcaster Emilio Azcarraga, and accentuated by Government pressure against the bad influence of U. S. vidfilms, featuring sadism, blood and guts.

Communists the world over use gangsterism reflected in American vidpix for their own political ends, propagandizing that this vidpix gangsterism and violence really is America.

Match all what is happening and put it against the outcry on "Harvest of Shame" and the distort of the focus is apparent.

MCA Sets Peak Earnings in '60 Of $6,270,000

MCA set records in 1960 for sales and net earnings, chalking up net income after taxes of $6,270,230 compared to $5,186,066 in '59, according to the annual report to stockholders.

Earnings before taxes for 1960 were $12,962,433 compared with $10,617,466 for 1959. After preferred dividends, net income in 1960 was $1.55 per share compared with $1.28 per share for the previous year.

Jules C. Stein, chairman of the board of MCA, stated that the net earnings for the company for 1960 represented an increase of about 21% over the previous year. Income for the year, from all areas, was put at $67,317,103, against $57,786,616 for '59. The bulk of the '60 income, as in the previous year, came from tv film and studio rentals. In '60, $57,593,078 was realized as income from tv film and studio rentals.

Reporting on the sales of the Paramount library, MCA stated that at Dec. 31, 1960, $14,635,275 had been paid to Paramount and on the basis of tv contracts written to date it is estimated that an additional $26,000,000 may be paid as the rentals under those contracts are collected.

Under the heading of "contingent liabilities" to notes to its financial statement, MCA stated that litigation pending against the company is not expected to result in any material liabilities. "An investigation of the company's activities by the U.S. Department of Justice with respect to alleged violations of the federal antitrust laws by talent agencies was begun in 1959. In the opinion of the company and its counsel, no such violations have existed or do exist."

In the stockholders' letter, MCA's overseas expansion was noted. It was noted that foreign offices in Australia and Japan have been was cited that foreign offices in England, Canada, France, Germany, Italy and Mexico.

3d Lead for 'Wagon'

Revue Productions will introduce a second young lead into "Wagon Train" next season, it's understood. Player, to match off with Robert Horton and the new "wagonmaster," John McIntyre, has not been chosen yet.

One of the reasons given for the reported addition of another young lead is the alleged desire of NBC-TV and the producer to cover their bases in case Horton decides he wants to quit. Actor threatened last season to leave but Revue finally induced him to stay on.

Stanza will hold its Wednesday, 7:30-8:30 p.m. slotting on NBC next season.

Banks Now Hottest Ziv-UA Sponsors

Fastest growing category of local sponsors is that of banks and banking service, according to a Ziv-UA study of its own shows. Banks and banking services now account for substantially more than $2,000,000 of Ziv-UA syndication revenues annually on first-runs.

Study shows that the present figure more than doubles the outlay of four years ago, when the category of banks already were a force in syndication sales.

Among the banking and loan establishments represented on Ziv-UA programs are: Des Moines Savings & Loan, Exchange National Bank, Colorado Springs; First National Bank of Portland, First National Bank of Great Falls, Mutual Federal Saving & Loan, El Paso; all sponsoring "Case of the Dangerous Robin."

Other banks ride different Ziv-UA series.

Cummings Taps Robson

Hollywood, March 28.

William Robson has been appointed story editor of the "Bob Cummings Show," following skein being taken over by Henry Lewis agency.

Robson formerly was story ed on "The Garlund Touch," tele-series. He dates back to the old CBS radio stable.

Specials-While-U-Wait

Despite anything you may have read or heard, it isn't true that TV producers are among the more excitable men in our industry. We know quite a few who are so cool that neither oleomargarine nor the high-priced spread would melt in their mouths.

If it weren't for such examples of enameled serenity, how on earth (or any other planet where TV life may exist) could a producer survive the suspense-laden demands of a series like the "NBC Special News Reports"?

Even calling it a "series" isn't terribly accurate, for there's no regularity about the programs' appearances. When producer Chet Hagan arrives at his desk each morning, he generally hasn't the slightest notion of where or when his next show is coming from.

Whether or not he'll be putting together a Special for that very evening depends on the sort of news breaking during the day. For each report is designed to bring viewers the background, significance and last-minute details of an outstanding event that's broken just a few hours before and is, more than likely, still in progress.

Whenever Hagan feels such a Report is called for, the only approval he usually needs is that of Julian Goodman, NBC's director of news and public affairs. There just isn't any time for debates or conferences.

Around Hagan's office, the programs are called (as you might have guessed) "Instant Specials." They may run from five to 60 minutes in length. They may be live, taped and/or filmed; their originations may be remote and/or from the studio. The essential combination is speed, ingenuity and know-how.

TAKE THE DAY the Santa Maria was seized at sea by Portuguese rebels. (This wasn't the most recent of the "Instants," but it was the most difficult.) The incident was a "natural" for a Special that very evening, but lesser souls than Hagan might have been discouraged by the absence of any material, filmed or otherwise, on which to base a worthy TV feature.

Even if the ship's precise location had been known (its position had already started the greatest guessing game since the riddle of the Sphinx), it wouldn't have been possible to shoot films and get them back here in time.

But with the energetic aid of the NBC News desk—all of the "Instants" are really cooperative ventures on the part of Chief Bill McAndrew's entire news department—wheels began turning.

Item: Chet Huntley's secretary, who speaks Portuguese like a Brazilian (because she is), dispatched a cable asking the rebel leader for his side of the story. The answer came back in a seven-page reply. But it still wasn't visual TV.

Item: Our film library came up with background footage on Portuguese dictator Antonio Salazar and his chief antagonist, Humberto Delgado, the revolutionary who had just confessed to having plotted the Santa Maria seizure.

Item: Researcher Barry Bingham, Jr., toured the tourist agencies in vain for some footage of the Santa Maria, but he did get his hands on the vessel's deck plan (complete with shuffle-board locations).

Item: Artist Jacques Barosin was enlisted to re-create the seizure with a series of pencil drawings based on information contained in the wire stories. His masterful renditions had everything but the-flowers-on-the-captain's-table.

Item: From American Heritage magazine and assorted bookshops in the vicinity of NBC came historical notes on piracy in the Caribbean; a map of the Spanish Main; and charts on sunken pirate treasure in that region. (We watched Hagan's face as he studied these last charts, and for a moment we thought we were going to lose him forever.)

Item: Last-minute developments on the incident were obtained through a message from our Puerto Rico correspondent (reporting on the U. S. Navy's search for the missing liner); and from newsman Wilson Hall's call to St. Lucia Island, which reported back on the condition of the crewmen who'd been put off the ship by the rebels.

Just a few minutes before air-time, Hagan had a hurried consultation with director Bob Priaulx and correspondent Frank McGee (who'd just finished writing the script he'd be reading on the show). The program went on the air at 10 p.m. and concluded a half-hour later. Next day, the verdict of the nation's newspaper critics rang loud and clear. "A vivid, concise and unexpectedly thorough report on the season's most bizarre story," wrote one of New York's most demanding reviewers, "...NBC's Special brought all facets into sharp focus."

OTHER OF THIS YEAR'S "INSTANTS," before and since, have reported on such matters as the collapse of Texas Tower No. 4; the arrival of our RB-47 fliers from Russia; chimpanzee "Ham's" flight into space; and (just two nights ago) the White House meeting between President Kennedy and Soviet Foreign Minister Gromyko on the Laos crisis. We sincerely feel that all the Reports were splendid examples of TV journalism working on all dynamos.

What makes the whole thing a bit easier, of course, is the confidence placed in us by the Gulf Oil Corporation, who, at the beginning of the year, undertook to sponsor these unpredictable Specials.

What's more, Gulf declared, it wanted to have nothing to do with subject matter, treatment or the selection of time periods. Finally, the oil company's commercials were to be positioned in each program on the basis of the producer's judgment.

This sort of freedom-of-movement, unprecedented in TV annals, is the kind of thing networks dream about. It also imposes a king-sized obligation on us to insure that such trust is rewarded. We hope we're succeeding.

With that sort of rooter in our corner, it's easy to explain the eagerness with which we got that cable through to the Santa Maria. Heck, with a bit more encouragement, it's just possible we could also have contacted the Nina and the Pinta.

NBC

FTC Looks Tougher Than Ever On Eve of Kintner's Departure —On Other Madison Ave. Fronts

By BILL GREELEY

Madison Ave. no doubt was hoping for an easing of Federal pressure with the elections out of the way. But last week, at least on the part of the Federal Trade Commission, the implications were quite the opposite as the Federal agency that watchdogs false and misleading ad claims leveled in on major nostrum advertisers with complaints on the eve of the departure of Chief Commissioner Earl Kintner.

Several months ago, under direct orders from the White House, Kintner launched a foray of complaints that riddled big advertisers, especially in the area of highly competative video products. Under Kintner, FTC issued its first complaints that named ad agencies along with clients, even sometimes citing agency execs involved in campaigns.

Kintner's parting shot last week, upon stepping down for the new administration appointee, Paul Rand Dixon, was to level simultaneous complaints at the aspirin purveyors: American Home Products for Anacin via subsid Whitehall Labs; Bristol-Myers for Bufferin; Plough, Inc., for St. Joseph; and Sterling Drug for Bayer Aspirin and Bayer Aspirin for Children. Bristol-Myers also was cited for another analgesic (pain reliever), Excerdrin.

No agencies were named this time, but an FTC spokesman says that their omission was strictly a matter of evidence (which would imply that campaigns originated at the client with agencies operating under directive).

The spokesman points out that the complaints are limited to "speed of action," indicating that all four campaigns are based on client research findings.

The complaints charge, "advertising for Anacin, Bayer Aspirin, Bayer Aspirin for Children and St. Joseph Aspirin falsely implies the particular product will relieve pain faster than any other analgesic available and offered for sale to consumers, and that advertisements for Bufferin misrepresent it relieves pain twice as fast as aspirin."

The complaints allege that in truth there is no significant difference in the rate of speed with which these or any other anelgesics relieve pain, and allege false and misleading statements in radio, tv, magazine and newspaper advertising. All are big tv campaigners.

Indications are that FTC's division of scientific operations has obtained new research from outside sources (agency does not have its own labs). Up to now, the nostrum makers in the fast, fast, fast relief competition have been able to come up with conflicting and confusing evidence in support of their claims. Bayer, incidentally, is a come-lately to the speed affray. When Bufferin first made its claims of relief "twice as fast as aspirin, Bayer's pitch was "Why pay more for extra ingredients that can't relieve pain?" Instead, get Bayer aspirin. It's all pain-reliever, 100% . . ."

Unless the advertisers sign consent orders and drop the campaigns (or legal ramifications cause a delay), hearings on the aspirin complaints are slated for May 23 through 26 in Washington. Handling the case for FTC is Berryman Davis, known to Madison Ave. for his snuff out of the Life cig campaign Brown & Williamson and the Lanolin Rybutol action. While he won't discuss evidence before the hearings, Berryman says of the four nostrums involved, "Three have got to be wrong."

If FTC hasn't lost its crusading zeal under the new administration, the newspapers are showing a good deal less stamina in their coverage of complaints. When Kintner's intensified program first got underway (in the aftermath of the tv quiz scandals), the agency's complaints were frontpage news. The move against the aspirin makers wound up back in the financial sections of the N. Y. dailies with single-column headline display. Prominent coverage proved to be Kintner's most potent deterrent to Madison Ave. excessiveness, and was the prime mover in ticks of adman groups to Washington to square away copy lines before campaigns were launched.

Agency Anklers

Dale Armstrong, who ankled Ted Bates agency in the recent publicity department shakedown, has joined Bates' client, Colgate-Palmolive, where he had previously worked on promotions in a consultant capacity.

Ogilvy, Benson & Mather radio-tv topper Hendrik Booraem Jr., is leaving to start his own firm. Veepee and associate broadcast director John Hoagland takes over for now.

Up and down: John P. Little, formerly with J. Walter Thompson, joins Kudner as an account supervisor.

Miss Pat Cameron, formerly with Young & Rubicam, joins Kenyon & Eckhardt as a copywriter.

Lewis Snyder, formerly with Leo Burnett, Chicago, joins J. M. Mathes as a veepee and copy director.

Robert C. Barker joins J. Walter Thompson as account supervisor on RCA. He was with Compton.

Veepee stripes for Howard Watts at Brown & Crane. He's account supervisor on Isodine Pharmacal.

New Biz: Westinghouse Broadcasting to Grey Advertising. Agency will also handle new WBC Productions subsid.

Lefrak City, Queens home-building project, to Wexton.

Chi Agencies

Chicago, March 28.

Peugeot has dropped Needham, Louis & Brorby, agency that handled the account ever since the auto debuted in the U.S. in 1958. NL&B's ads for Peugeot had won merit awards in the N. Y. Art Director show.

Dr. Julian G. Andorka exited Foote, Cone & Belding to join Earle Ludgin as research director.

Norval B. Stephens Jr., former marketing supervisor at NL&B, promoted to account exec.

Tatham-Laird clocked its 15th anni last week.

London Agencies

London, March 28.

Why don't the English learn to eat more cheese? The English Country Cheese Council is spending $336,000 on advertising this year to persuade them it's a good idea. Nation-wide tv commercials are part of the campaign which is being agented by W. S. Crawford Ltd. Rosa Heppner, a top showbiz press agent, is handling public relations for Dutch DAF car shortly driving in to U.K. market. Stuart Advertising Agency is handling Pyrex household glass which gets a boost in a one-minute tv film, prepared by James A. Jobling & Co. Backed by a specially-composed musical score, the film has been booked for 16 spots each on Tyne-Tees and TWW (Wales and West) tv stations. Dunlop Rubber Co., rolling away its biggest tire advertising campaign yet. Apart from press-ads, agent Charles F. Higham is including tv commercials and posters on roadsides and buses.

With the Station Reps

A mail promotion purposely lacking the usual razzle-dazzle seems to be doing a good job for Robert E. Eastman & Co., radio reppery.

Since April '60, prexy Robert Eastman has been sending twice-monthly letters to a list of 1,300 advertiser and agency execs. The missives are one-pagers, succinct soft-sell, usually saving the sedate spot radio pitch for the final paragraph. Starting with company presidents, the letters go to top echelon client executives and client advertising execs, and then to the prime execs on the account at the agency.

The letters can start most anywhere and wind with the spot pitch. Example Feb. 24: "It is unfortunate that most businessmen expect, and are resigned to the fact, that the government's actions on matters regarding business are settled politically rather than practically . . . The economy of spot radio and its ability to reach more people faster and more often than any other advertising medium gives it special values in the present need to sell harder and more efficiently."

Eastman has received a number of direct replies, and there's at least one account in the shop that the company figures is a direct response to the letters.

Coincidental, reppery is taking on three new stations. Moving over from Gill-Perna is WSAI, Cincinnati; from Avery-Knodel, KTAT, Houston; and from Hollingberry, WTAC, Flint, Mich.

Best Bets from A-K

Avery-Knodel has just published the third edition of its study, "Your Best Days and Nights for Grocery and Drug Spots on TV," which details the days and nights of heaviest buying volume in supermarkets and retail drug chain outlets; working hours for industrial labor shifts; opening and closing hours for business; and other pertinent facts to aid food and drug spot advertisers to schedule advantageously.

Reppery says the third edition, following one a year ago and the first one 18 months ago, has been worked up because of an unprecedented agency and advertiser response to the earlier studies.

Study also includes qualitative market characteristics of all Avery-Knodel stations.

Briefs: Minneapolis ABC-TV affiliation switches April 16 from Time-Life's WTCN-TV to 20th-Fox's KMSP-TV, which is repped by Young Television . . . James Theiss has been named sales manager for eastern stations and Lloyd Heaney sales manager for western outlets at Blair . . . Larry Israel has been upped from veepee to prexy of Westinghouse Broadcasting's house rep TvAR. Tommy Thompson has been named veepee . . . Joseph P. Dowling has been named sales promotion manager of the new Storer Television Sales. He was with CBS-TV stations division . . . Stuart I. Mackie has been named manager of Avery-Knodel's Detroit office. He's been four years with A-K's Chicago office.

Nod to Sunbeam On Takeover Of Biscayne Wave

Washington, March 28.

Sunbeam Television Corp. has won Federal Communications Commission's preliminary nod for lucrative Miami Channel 7—center of a celebrated wire-pulling hassle.

FCC directed preparation of a formal grant to Sunbeam, which emerged the only one of four applicants to receive a clean bill of health from special rehearings on the ex parte case by former Hearing Examiner Horace Stern. FCC also stresses that such action is not final and can be revised when time comes for a vote on the formal order. But, once proposed disposition is announced, reversal is rare.

The order tentatively agreed upon would deny applications by Biscayne Television Corp., East Coast Television Corp and South Florida Television Corp. In his initial decision, Stern had recommended that all three be disqualified for various off-the-record deals.

In another preliminary step announced by FCC, South Florida Amusement Co. would be awarded Channel 6 in Perrine, Fla. Publix Television Corp., and Coral Television Corp. would be denied their applications.

'Ice Capades' L.A. Simulcast

Los Angeles, March 28.

The 1961 Ice Capades will open a two-week stand May 2 at the Sports Arena. Preem-night show will be carried on a three-station simulcast by KHJ-TV, KTTV and KCOP, with Bill Welch emceeing.

Telecasts will be sponsored by Calusa Chemical Co.'s Royal Woolyn.

TV-Radio Production Centres

IN NEW YORK CITY . . .

Burr Tillstrom (Kukla and Ollie) and Fran Allison next week will make their first joint "Kukla, Fran & Ollie" tv appearance in some time—as the weeklong replacements on WNBC-TV's "Family" strip for the vacationing Paul and Mary Ritts . . . N.Y. (and Hollywood) staffs of ABC Press Information, Mike Foster's department, are clamoring to see the revival of "Gone With the Wind," because one of the key feature parts, that of Scarlet's second husband, was played by Carroll Nye, a member of the web's Coast press info staff . . . William Aaronson becomes an ABC-TV salesman, quitting GAC to take the role under sales veep Ed Scherick; Aaronson was once with ABC Radio . . . Charles H. Barris becomes manager of tv daytime programming for ABC-TV after joining the net in '59 as program supervisor for Dick Clark's "American Bandstand" . . . Jack Otter, who had been akin to his former boss's No. 2 man, takes over where Ed Friendly left off when latter shifted several weeks ago to a program veepeeship at NBC—he becomes director of special program sales . . . Bill McAndrew, NBC News exec veep, won Villanova U.'s St. Augustine Award for distinction in communications journalism . . . 88'er Lorin Hollander to solo with N.Y. Philharmonic over CBS Radio Sunday, April 2.

Gerald Gross, tv and film producer and prez of Madison Productions, will marry Mrs. Nadine Berin Brown next month; Mrs. Brown's first marriage ended in divorce . . . Vic Mizzy busy scoring pilot of NBC-TV's "Portofino" hour . . . Sigrid Pedersen joining ABC legal staff in a shift from J. Walter Thompson, where she's been since 1942 . . . Chet Huntley and David Brinkley, the NBC news team, have paired outside the shop to scribble "America Today," a piece for Redbook this issue . . . Alvin Perlmutter, WNBC-TV program manager, to Washington, D.C. to attend the State Department's foreign policy briefing on April 3 . . . While Pat Hernon vacations this week, Bob Delaney will do his WNBC Radio stanza, "Schaefer Circle of Sports" and Frank Field will sub on WNBC-TV's nightly "Weather 6" stanza . . . Sam Cook Digges, CBS Films administrative veep, was toastmaster Saturday (25) at a luncheon of the Community League-Wassaic Chapter of the Assn. for the Help of Retarded Children . . . CBS newsman Allan Jackson is preparing a thesis on "How To Write a News Program for the Ear," which he'll offer colleges around the country . . . CBS newsman Dallas Townsend, heard 12 times a week, has been with the news division at the web 20 years . . . Alma John, director of women's activities for WWRL, guest-spoke recently at Shaw U., Raleigh, N.C. and at North Carolina College . . . Ann Thomas into "Edge of Night" March 29 and 30 . . . Arthur Hull Hayes, CBS Radio prez, returns tomorrow (Thurs), from Coast after visiting owned & operated stations in L.A. and Frisco . . . Don Morrow, "Camouflage" (ABC-TV) host, is the narrator of Grimm's Fairy Tales in his first record album, issued by Roulette . . . Dale Wasserman back from Hollywood to negotiate script job for Screen Gems . . . Paul Taubman is flying to New Orleans where he'll conduct a symph orch in Civic Auditorium.

Cosmopolitan mag preems a tv column in April issue by George Christy . . . First New York area Emmy Awards telecast slated for Saturday, May 13 (WNBC-TV) will have as advisors NBC news commentator Ben Grauer, Ed Sullivan show director John Wray and Talent Associates' David Susskind. Awards are presented by New York Chapter, Academy of Television Arts & Sciences . . . Frances Spanier has the lead in the April 1 "True Story" stanza . . . CBS-TV prexy Jim Aubrey and Oscar Katz, program veepee, back from quickie Coast junket . . . The Red Barbers celebrating 31st wedding anni this week (at the Yankee's Florida spring camp, natch) . . . Producer of CBS News' "Great Challenge," Warren Bush, receives annual Marquette U. distinguished alumni award for tv at school's speech honors convocation May 9.

In the show-must-go-on tradition, actress Skippy Kolby rehearsed and taped "Trus Story" script while running 102 fever with her physician in attendance . . . Progresso Italian Foods, as a public service, will present a special Good Friday tv address by Bishop Fulton J. Sheen on WPIX from 9 to 10 p.m. . . . Dow Chemical Co., via Norman Craig & Kummel, has picked up sponsorship of WPIX's "Easter Parade" special Sunday (2) from 11:30 to 1:30 p.m. John Tillman and Gloria Okon will co-host the special.

G. R. A. Rice, prez and general manager of Sunwapta Broadcasting Co. of Edmonton, Alta., back from London yesterday (Tues.) on the Queen Elizabeth . . . Also arriving was British tv commentator Hywel Davies . . . John Vrba, veepee in charge of sales for KTTV, Los Angeles, is in for conferences with rep execs of Blair-TV and to make ad agency rounds . . . Cue mag tv columnist Art Pearlroth also is now contributing a weekly piece on video to the Herald-Tribunes' Sunday supplement, Seven Lively Arts . . . Radio-tv announcer Jay Jackson will get a Humanitarian Award at the 12th anni dinner-dance of the Association for the Help of Retarded Children, May 20, at the Astor . . . Storecast prexy Stan Joseloff is making a 10-week swing of Europe, checking out supermarket and other retail outlets as possibilities for the firm's in-store FM advertising-merchandising system.

IN CHICAGO . . .

National Lutheran Council has ordered an additional 39 installments of the kidshow, "It's Light Time," which Jim Stewart helms. So now the Fred Niles boys are calling it "It's Life Time" . . . Mike Rapchak switching to a daytime deejay chore at WCFL with Jess Barker taking over his overnight stanza . . . George Kroloff, former WAIT pubrel director, has joined the p.r. staff of the Chi. Assn. of Commerce and Industry . . . John Dreiske, Sun-Times political columnist, inked a 13-week renewal on WIND . . . Warren Culbertson expected back as WBKB weatherman next week. Only positive thing about the severe beating he took from three young bandits recently is that he has the public sympathies and is now a bigger name locally than before . . . WNBQ is auditioning for a fourth newscaster to take over the 6 p.m. spot. Floyd Kalber has been carrying too heavy a load, seven nights a week . . . Jim Hurlbut at the Florida Keys this week getting material for his NBC "Emphasis" outings . . . Ray Rayner, who's known to moppets as Chief Abernathy of WBBM-TV's "Popeye's Firehouse," will work the Capt. Kangaroo kiddie concert at McCormick Place May 14 . . . WAAF doing series of special broadcasts from the Boat Show this week. Next week it launches "Civil War Diary," which will have a four-year run.

IN LONDON .

Peggy Cass, Robert Morley, Beatrice Lillie, Dickie Henderson, Joyce Grenfell taping inserts for "The Jack Paar Show" in the ballroom of the Carlton Towers Hotel. British crew of Associated Television's international mobile recording unit working on the tapes for NBC-TV under Paar's producer Tom Cochrane . . . Nan Winton, BBC Television's only woman news reader, has lost the job. New policy is to have men only to read news. Miss Winton will still be seen as an interviewer . . . Associated Rediffusion cooking up a series of Algernon Blackwood chillers, starting tonight (Wed.) with "The Terror of the Twins" . . . Comedian Benny Hill doing a musical of "Dracula" on BBC Television Saturday (1) . . . John Gregson tops cast of "Clash of Arms," Southern Television's "Old Vic Theatre of the Air" play to be networked Saturday (1) . . . Radio Bristol, Britain's first local radio

(Continued on page 38)

Tele Follow-Up Comment

Omnibus

"Omnibus" tried hard to make an entertainment of a long song repertoire but it didn't succeed. The song string, which was wrapped up Sunday (26) on CBS-TV under the overall heading of "An Omnibus of American Song," built up to little more than a tuneful roundup that can be heard on any number of LPs.

Robert Saudek brought in some neat visual values and choreographer Bill Foster brightened things up with some happy terp conceptions but it was still just one song after another and it failed to stir up much excitement. In the vocal forefront were Edie Adams, Robert Goulet and Myron McCormick. Latter was a strange choice for a songalog show but he made up for all his previous croaking towards the end with a rousing rendition of "There Is Nothing Like A Dame" which he essayed many years ago in the Broadway production of "South Paci[illegible]."

Goulet, who is getting a lot of tv work lately, has a big voice and carried off his tune chores in a handsome manner. Miss Adams, a replacement for Tammy Grimes, who bowed out under doctor's orders, showed a many-faceted vocal personality [illegible] effect.

The hour show presented close to 30 [illegible] representative of [illegible] but it just didn't add up. Gros.

Play of the Week

It might be [illegible] that new playwright Joseph Lesueur shows promise [illegible] first play "Cool Wind Over the [illegible]." It's obvious that [illegible] a [illegible] one and he can also [illegible] orders, but as for [illegible] characters into a sensible [illegible] ing a [illegible] interesting plot he failed. It's [illegible] to believe that he even [illegible].

A number of [illegible] people populated [illegible] WNTA-TV's [illegible] all. And the [illegible] capriciously, although [illegible] no [illegible] way the [illegible] always to appear. [illegible] raced over a [illegible] course for the better part of two hours. So many [illegible] often confusing things [illegible] that when Lesueur [illegible] something [illegible] important [illegible] no impact on the viewer.

There was a [illegible] sleep-around doll, Helen, who had a penchant for bragging about the bedroom action she otherwise seemed to hate. Then there was Lexy, a morose [illegible] preferred living in a dump and who had his own penchant [illegible] for women he obviously adored and then demeaned them when they fell. Other characters walked through the excellent replica of a crumby New York flat (erected by John Ward and Ted Ralph). They shouted a lot, acted hoary and made no dent. Obviously, Lesueur was trying to hatchet the secondary characters, including a senseless, arrogant do-nothing, a thrill seeking newlywed and an alcoholic, clinging mother. To him, they were wasted, and he let you know it. But he should show something more than a vague sympathy for Helen and Lexy, his leads, yet he didn't, so that they too seemed as senseless as their cohorts.

Diana Hyland, who also gave a fine performance in Sartre's "No Exit," repeated the style of her previous role on "Play of the Week." She's Helen in this one. James Patterson, essaying Lexy the proprietor of the flat who is her best friend and worst enemy, was sometimes good but his acting affectations seemed somewhat larger than they really were, perhaps because Lexy had nothing important to relate. Carmen Mathews is an attractive woman, but she couldn't make much of her part as the clinging mother. J. D. Cannon, as the arrogant intruder, has a strong personality, one that might lend itself, with commercial success, to westerns on tv. Arthur Storch dentalized a lot as the guy who commits suicide over Helen's failure to remain chaste. Of the other characters, only George Gee, as the husband of the thrill-seeking bride, was effective—at least he came across as the perfect square, which was maybe not entirely what LeSueur hoped he'd be. Art.

U. S. Steel Hour

Thesping talents of Shirley Booth were largely wasted in this weeper, titled "Welcome Home," offered Wednesday (22) night by the "U. S. Steel Hour" on CBS-TV. The hour outing dripped with sentimentality and did nothing for the cause of "live" drama from N.Y.

On the contrary, by taking a tired property, the Theatre Guild, producers of this series, again showed an unimaginative, play-it-safe approach in selection of properties. The three-handkerschief job, "Welcome Home," scripted by N. Richard Nash, had been produced some years ago on tv with Helen Hayes in the starring role.

The vehicle marked Miss Booth's first tv dramatic role since 1956 and she extracted the most from the role as the elderly household servant, facing dismissal, wanting to adopt a baby, and, in general, going through the lavender [illegible] of an obviously stacked story. There was [illegible] in her role, but unfortunately it was not leavened with the truth that makes sentiment [illegible].

[illegible] Campbell was okay as the [illegible] wife, [illegible] as her husband [illegible] of a [illegible] cast in the cast, were [illegible].

Perry Como's Kraft Music Hall

[illegible] on the NBC-TV Perry Como show last Wednesday night (22) and the [illegible] was [illegible] writers for the show were [illegible] male and, being [illegible] landed the gals [illegible] was [illegible] of [illegible].

[illegible] show was the [illegible] the three [illegible] Rave, Julie [illegible] and [illegible] to [illegible] Como's [illegible] show. The comedy [illegible] Martha Raye tried to [illegible] and fast [illegible] but [illegible] quality tended to [illegible] into incoherence.

Musically the show shaped up acceptably. Miss Raye [illegible] with a [illegible] production number [illegible] "The Girls Go" and came back to a solid and straight rendition of "Blues in the Night." Julie Newmar, whose statuesque build provoked the expected gags, came out hand-omely in a song-and-dance to "There's Nothing Like a Dame" while Ginny Tiu, the Korean moppet with show biz precocity, delivered winningly with a "Never On Sunday" piano solo and a vocal, with a femme choral ensemble, on "Happy Talk." The closing musical sequence was a long medley of "hey" songs done by Como and the three guests. Herm.

Jackie Gleason

What sounded like a partisan if not "loaded" studio audience applauded Jackie Gleason's finale for L&M. Rudy Vallee and George Jessel were his "conversation" guests.

Each could have gone the entire distance solo and the result was a too sketchy chat. Gleason seemingly was not kidding when he pleasantly chided Jessel for "getting Tel Aviv in" and explained that, before the interview, he told the comedian not to plug Bonds for Israel etc., but stick to show biz, Jimmy Walker, etc. Vallee's nostalgia could have been extended; also his frank answer to Gleason's direct questions about Vallee's w.k. thriftiness. The veteran crooner made no apology for his native Yankee caution but denied he was a close student of the dollar excepting "when tipping was unnecessary"; when it was in order he "even tips the chef in a restaurant."

Gleason promised a fall return with the same format; endorsed L&M for giving him this "refreshing opportunity away from gunplay and westerns"; and augurs a lively comeback next season. He undoubtedly will apply himself more to a central theme albeit keeping the "chats" informal and scriptless.

(Continued on page 40)

BORIS GODUNOV

With: Giorgio Tozzi, Andrew McKinley, Frank Porreta, Richard Gross, Gloria Lane, Jeanette Scovotti, Jeffry Mayer, Joan Caplan, Spiro Malas, Lee Cass, Peter Herman Adler, conductor
Producer: Samuel Chotzinoff
Director: Kirk Browning
Music: Modest Mussorgsky, Rimsky Korsakov
60 Mins.; Sun. (26), 3 p.m.
NBC-TV (tape)

A rich tapestry, filled with many electrifying moments, crowded the tv screen Sunday (26) afternoon, when NBC-TV presented a two-hour version of Moussorgsky's "Boris Godunov."

There was drama on a grand scale; music that captured black terror, light play, ambition, deceit, conquest and pitiable brooding. There also were many moments of perplexity and confusions that were not corrected by the English rendition of the opera. It was hard, if nigh impossible, to follow the plot lines fully if one was dependent on the words. As so often happens in operatic arias, many of the words—and the sense—were lost in the rendition of the music.

Yet the impact of the images and music could not be halted. It [illegible] and engulfed the viewer, [illegible] scene after scene a thrilling episode of drama and music. There was impact with the [illegible] Tsar, Boris Godunov, superbly [illegible] Giorgio Tozzi [illegible] the [illegible] of [illegible] on [illegible].

Frank Porretta as [illegible]-Dimitri, the [illegible] for the [illegible] commendable [illegible] by Gloria Lane [illegible] Mayer [illegible] parts included Andrew McKinley as Prince Shuisky [illegible] Joan Caplan as the nurse and Lee Cass [illegible].

"Boris Godunov" was the final [illegible] of the 12th [illegible] of the NBC Opera Co. Whatever may be [illegible] in comparison to [illegible] the NBC Opera has done a yeoman's job in popularizing the opera form.

Production values for "Godunov" were lavish. Scenes ranged from the Kremlin to an inn to a [illegible] in Poland to [illegible]. There were so many changes in scene and [illegible] that at times it was difficult to keep up with the proceedings. [illegible] is so full of [illegible] is [illegible] the viewer [illegible] of the proceedings on the screen that it [illegible] an enriching treat to have it [illegible] other way around. The opera [illegible] be familiar; the music and [illegible] lines old, but the artistry invested made it shine anew. Horo.

SILENTS PLEASE

With Ernie Kovacs
Producers: Saul J. Turell, Paul Killiam
Writers: Turell, Killiam
30 Mins.; Thurs., 10:30 p.m.
CONSOLIDATED CIGAR, RALSTON PURINA
ABC-TV (film)
(Lennen & Newell; Gardner; Guild, Bascom & Bonfigli)

If abortive in length, "Silents Please," the ABC-TV-Sterling Television series culled from vintage Hollywood pix, proved in its summer replacement run last year to have some moments of high interest and nostalgia. But the reopener Thursday (23) was a weak seg sliced out of the 1926 Doug Fairbanks starrer, "The Black Pirate."

Story of the son who turns to piracy on the high seas to avenge his father's death was hopelessly confusing in the excerpted version, and the poor quality of a good deal of the footage didn't help matters. What the films did offer were glimpses of Fairbanks' vaunted dueling the acrobatics and an occasional o.o. of silent queen Billie Dove. Others on view were Sam de Grasse and Anders Randolf as heavies, and vet actor Donald Crisp.

Ernie Kovac's hosting bit was brief and seemed much like an afterthought what with the voice-over narration by somebody else. The funnyman played it straight and called "The Black Pirate" a satire on high-seas sagas then and to come. "Pirate" was a potboiler but spectacular for the period and a big grosser. Satire it was not.

Initialer had alternate sponsor Dutch Masters Cigars blending in graciously brief and spoofing commercials. Bill.

Additional TV Reviews On Page 30

HALLMARK HALL OF FAME
(Give Us Barabbas!)
With James Daly, Kim Hunter, Dennis King, Robert Carroll, Ludwig Donath, Kermit Murdock, Keir Dullea, Eric Sinclair, others
Producer-Director: George Schaefer
90 Mins.; Sun. (26), 6:30 p.m.
HALLMARK
NBC-TV, from N.Y. (color)
(Foote, Cone & Belding)

"Give Us Barabbas!" would make a good motion picture in these times of biblical films. If Hollywood remained faithful to the strength of the Henry Denker script, that is, and if not, this Denker play, done live on "Hallmark Hall of Fame" Sunday (26), might well serve as a regular Easter affair on television.

Denker's work supposed the fate of Barabbas, the thief and murderer whom the crowd freed instead of Christ. The conversion of the braggart and bully was as well constructed as any tv play of the season. One of the most difficult labors for a playwright or novelist is the attempt to make a bible story sound human and at the same time reverent. Denker was not entirely successful in overcoming the problem of humanness; the alteration in the character of the seemingly unregenerate Barabbas was not, at first, believable, but this objection was slight.

Otherwise, the intelligence, sympathy and surpassing ingenuity of the Denker script deserve the highest praise. Turned out by his fellow thieves who believed that [illegible] the criminal's freedom [illegible] on his own kind, Barabbas, obviously innocent of the charge, set out to find out why he was chosen for freedom, and in the quest [illegible] the moral— [illegible] could choose one so low and yet [illegible] his [illegible]. It [illegible] a logical and [illegible] presentation [illegible] so [illegible] Barabbas.

James Daly was remarkable as Barabbas, handling the [illegible] as a [illegible] the nearest step above an animal. His transition to Christian [illegible] was done delicately [illegible]. Kim Hunter, as his [illegible] was also excellent, and Dennis King as Pilate, and Ludwig Donath as Joseph the Judge, gave performances of the highest competence and feeling. As the ruler of Palestine, King essayed a Roman weakened in resolve by the [illegible] of Christ, and he was, in the best tradition of British [illegible], subtle and compelling.

Warren Clymer's scenery gave a vivid impression of an ancient culture and Noel Taylor's costuming a similar sense of authenticity, but the biggest nod must still go to Denker for his thoughtful, vigorous writing. Art.

GRANT IN ST. LOUIS
With Franchot Tone, Jeff Morrow, Pat Fontaine, Stillman Mostovey, others Producer-director: Bob Miller
Writer: James Dutson
60 Mins., Mon., 7 p.m.
UNION ELECTRIC COMPANY
KMOX-TV, St. Louis, (tape)

The 100th anniversary of the Civil War has captured much attention of late; however, this commemorative piece avoided battle fields to delve into the high (and low) spots in the life of U. S. Grant, St. Louisan, top commander of Federal Forces under Lincoln and, later, 18th President of the U.S.

As a local package, the show's objective came out as a well-produced item. Script was armed with facts as the story unfolded in a clever visual form, enacted by some 18 local thesps who had the support of Franchot Tone (on camera) and Jeff Morrow (the voice of Grant).

Tone, as scene-setter, was well cast (the station used Vincent Price on other specials), providing the touch of a "pro" to the document. Use of stills, excellent film footage from museum archives, local outdoor and indoor (filmed & taped) segments, costuming and makeup of the period—were well executed. Employment of the services of talented outsiders (Army, Wentworth Military Academy cadets, museum heads, Municipal Opera stage manager for makeup and costumes), echoed fact that a local tv outlet—supported by those in the know, and given resources and talent—can handle a documentary that, by right, should be a network undertaking.

Station-client-agency rate credit for fostering good local television, skillfully interrupted by non-objectionable commercial messages . . . all framed within an original musical score. Bob.

DuPONT SHOW OF THE MONTH
(The Night of the Storm)
With Julie Harris, E. G. Marshall, Jo Van Fleet, Mildred Dunnock, Fritz Weaver, Marc Connelly, Brad Herrman, Dianne Ramey, Arthur Hughes, others
Producer: David Susskind
Director: Daniel Petrie
Writer: Horton Foote
90 Mins., Tues. (21), 9:30 p.m.
DU PONT
CBS-TV, from N. Y.
(BBDO)

It's a shame that when David Susskind finally got to do that original drama, after 28 or so adaptations for "DuPont Show of the Month" it turned out badly. Last week, over CBS-TV facilities, Horton Foote's "The Night of the Storm" became the last work on a sometimes commendable series.

For Foote, the man who wrote "A Trip to Bountiful," the play was seemingly a retrogression. Overstated, weakly constructed and shockingly concluded, this final "Show of the Month" suffered either from poor acting in some [illegible] roles. And, in [illegible] name performers, E. G. Marshall, Julie Harris, Jo Van Fleet, Mildred Dunnock, Fritz Weaver and Marc Connelly were [illegible].

[illegible] Daniel Petrie [illegible]

Brad Herrman, a [illegible]

[illegible] the Foote [illegible] of the [illegible] concerned [illegible] direction and [illegible] Miss Harris [illegible] to [illegible] the death [illegible] deserted bov.

The talents of Miss [illegible] and Dunnock, Weaver [illegible] Marshall were [illegible] know what was expected [illegible] too should be [illegible] direction.

Loneliness was one of the [illegible] in this play [illegible] But Foote left viewers [illegible] bored and empty—not [illegible]. Art.

OUR MAN IN HONG KONG
With David Brinkley
Producer: Reuven Frank
Director: Walter Kravetz
60 Mins.; Tues. (21), 10 p.m.
SUSTAINING
NBC-TV (film, color)

David Brinkley gave NBC viewers a pleasant, offbeat one-hour travelog with "Our Man in Hong Kong." The title remains somewhat obscure, as does NBC's purpose in doing the hour, since a straight travel show is hardly in the orthodox area of public affairs programming. These two questions aside, "Our Man" emerged an engaging and informative travel show.

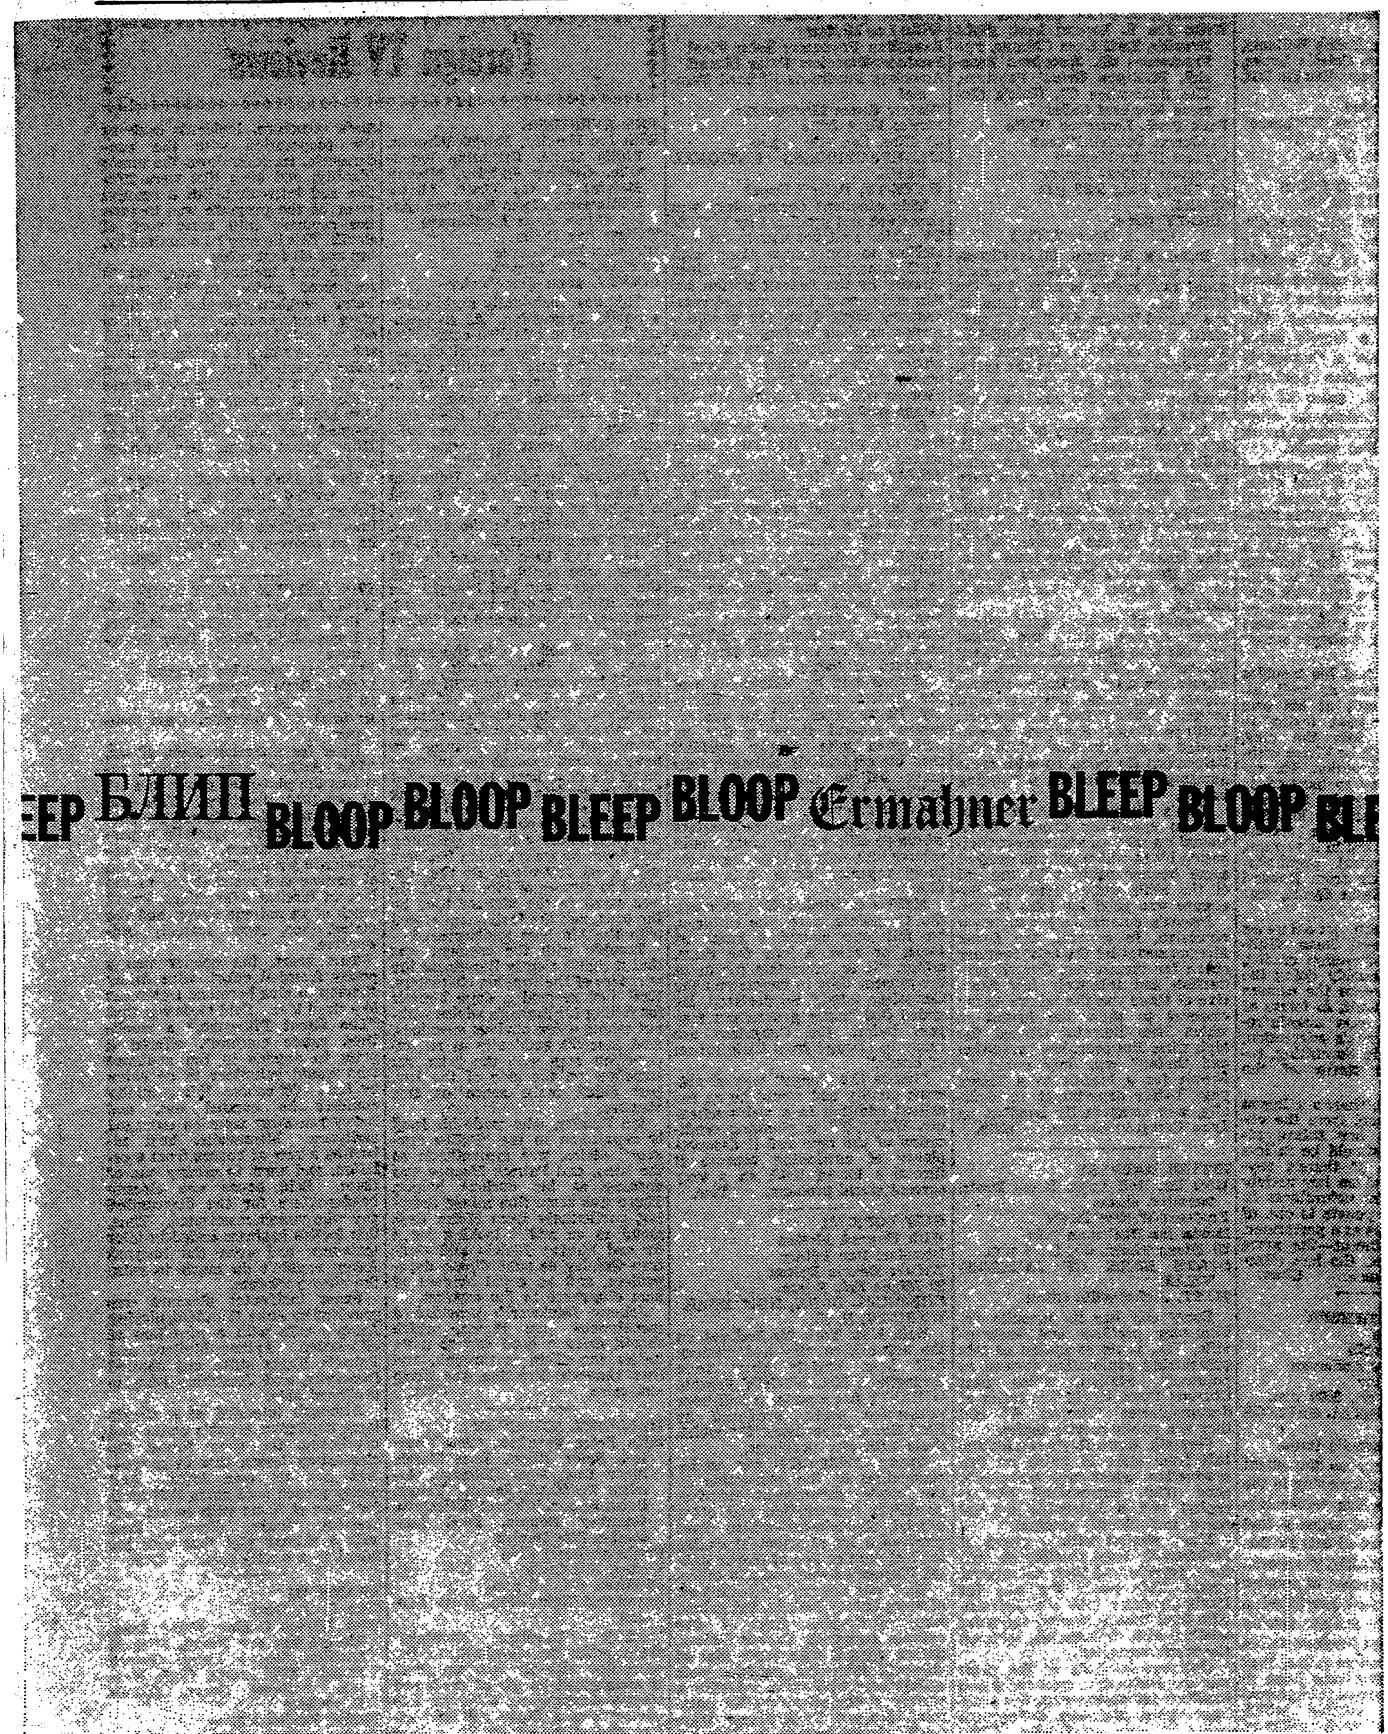
Brinkley brushed aside the political and economic aspects of the Crown colony to o.o. the city's way of life, moving from the hilltop slums down to the crowded harbor and the waterbound population, and ranging his guided tour from the tourist attractions (particularly the shopping) to the Communist frontier and the sullen fortresses on either side.

To all of it, Brinkley supplied his dry style of narrative and what might be called his inverted humor, his trick of turning a cliche around, like a reference to the Chinese schoolchildren learning that if they dug through the center of the earth, they'd come up right in the middle of the U.S. Filming, by Tom Priestley with an assist from Marathon International (unusual case of NBC News bringing in an outside producer to help) was first-class, and so was the tint. Chan.

OOP BLEEP BLOOP BLOOP BLEEP 收音机 BLOOP BLEEP BLOOP BLEEP BLI

LISTEN FOR THE NEW

Mel Allen, Betty Furness, Dave Garroway, Wayne Howell, Lindsey Nelson, Bert Parks—these top showbusiness personalities now headline "Monitor '61." Such "Monitor" regulars as Mike Nichols & Elaine May, Bob Hope, and Bob & Ray join them in a dramatically new format for NBC Radio's popular weekend network service, which makes wider use of the NBC news department's world-wide facilities.



SOUND OF MONITOR '61

One new "Monitor" feature: "Ring Around The World"—a series of five-minute commentaries on world developments by top NBC news correspondents in strategic spots around the globe. Another: "Weekend Report"—A 25-minute study in depth of the biggest news story of the week. New stars, new programming, new excitement—this is "Monitor '61!" NBC RADIO NETWORK

BRIEF ENCOUNTER
(Chevy Show)
With Dinah Shore, Ralph Bellamy, Howard St. John, Colette Lyons, Arte Johnson, Jacqueline De Wit, Bennye Gatteys
Producer: Bob Finkel
Directors: Finkel, Dean Whitmore
Adaptation: Joseph Schrank
60 Mins., Sun. (26), 9 p.m.
CHEVROLET
NBC-TV, from Hollywood (taped)
(Campbell-Ewald)

Dinah Shore did her 11th dissertation on behalf of Chevy this week. "Brief Encounter" is the vehicle for another full-length dramatic debut on the Chevy showcase. The Coward play is a tragic mood piece that requires a thoroughly skillful and perceptive performance to sustain it; some of the dialog skirts the cliche so often that in less than experienced hands it sounds almost like parody.

That's not quite what happened to Miss Shore, but it was close. She's an extremely talented gal who's picked up a remarkable number of skills as a tv personality. But that's the point—she's still a personality, without the training and experience necessary to submerge herself into a role with skill and subtlety. Her performance on "Encounter" was an intense effort and showed it, but it simply wasn't believable.

Ralph Bellamy had his troubles opposite Miss Shore as well, although they weren't of his own making. Bellamy kept trying to spark some life into the play, lofting lines off Miss Shore without getting much reaction. She apparently was trying so hard to do her own lines properly that she simply didn't respond to his. The outcome was that both players seemed to be reciting in a vacuum, despite the physical proximity. Support, principally from Howard St. John and Colette Lyons, was adequate.

Bob Finkel, who produces "Chevy Show," and Dean Whitmore shared the direction credits, with Finkel presumably doing the staging and Whitmore the camera direction. Total result, in terms of the performance, was unsatisfactory. Joseph Schrank's adaptation, though merciless in its cutting, retained the basic flavor of the Coward script.

For Miss Shore, there's a lesson to be learned, apart from the obvious point that her future attempts at drama should be in less demanding roles. If there's anything she's learned on her variety show, it's that her naturalness in reacting to other people is one of her primary virtues as a performer. Acting is no different—the more studious the effort, the less effective the performance. Chan.

JOURNEY TO NOWHERE
With Dave Moore
Producer: Carl Ruble
Director: Clarence Anderson
Writer: Jim Dooley
30 Mins.: Thurs. (9), 9:30 p.m.
TWIN CITY FEDERAL SAVINGS & LOAN
WCCO-TV, Minneapolis (tape)

This documentary on the plight of Chippewa Indians moving to the Twin Cities from the reservation lacked the sense of urgency that has pervaded other efforts in this fine series of WCCO-TV reports. While it showed scenes of squalor and deprivation and presented a sympathetic ear to Indians voicing their problems, the program failed to arouse the viewer to action. Part of the trouble may have been in the use of an uneven background of contemporary singing which clashed with the brutal reality of the situation.

Show did have poignant moments, however, with shots of Indian youngsters in school and play and terse descriptions of the hard seeking faced by their seniors. WCCO announcer Dave Moore who did another capable job narrating this effort, pointed out that television is the only luxury most Indian families have in noting the presence of tv sets in otherwise poorly furnished homes. He called attention to one living room without electric lights but with a tv receiver plugged into the lone electric outlet.

Show's title referred to the Indians' trek from their northern Minnesota reservation to the Twin Cities, a journey which, for most of them, takes from nothing to nowhere. Rees.

TIMEX ALL STAR CIRCUS
With: Joe E. Brown; host; Eight Brandts, Rudi Lenz Chimps, The Francescos (3), Josephine Berosini, Phillippe Gruss' Panthers, The Balcombes (2), Knie's Siamese Elephant Ballet
Exec Prod: Lawrence White
Producer: Patrick Pleven
Writer: Diana Morgan
Director: Robert Breyer
(0 Mins., Sat.; 7:30 p.m.
TIMEX
NBC-TV (tape)
(W. B. Doner & Co.)

Britain's Bertram Mills Circus, along with the first robin, are sure proof that spring is here. For the Mills unit again was on hand in the "Third Timex All Star Circus" aired Saturday (25) on NBC-TV. Taped at London's Olympia, the hour-long excursion into the realm of sawdust and spangles was rewarding viewing for adults as well as the smallfry.

An astounding array of agile artists were marshalled by Cyril B. Mills for this ponderous panorama of pageantry. The performers were deftly introed by host Joe E. Brown. And the flavor of the traditional big top was caught for the most part by the cameras which ably lensed everything from Josephine Berosini's high wire artistry to the capers of Rudi Lenz's chimps.

Layout of corking good circus turns opened with the Eight Brandts who displayed some fancy acrobatics on the teeterboard. The Francescos, a trio of Italian clowns, scored with some business built around a "thing" from outer space. Philippe Gruss' Panthers demonstrated a sock routine while The Balcombes (2) came up with some amusing acrobatics on a rotating ladder.

Knie's Siamese Elephant Ballet was an eye-filling display. Show wound up with an audience-participation bit in which patrons essayed some horsemanship with the aid of the Mills Riding Machine. Sequence was good for lotsa laughs.

Brown's commentary was never obtrusive. In general, the Diana Morgan script let the acts' routiner speak for themselves. Overall production had relatively few flaws. One of these was the failure of the cameras to show the height at which Miss Berosini worked the high wire. However, her "precision and timing" was duly noted by Brown for a lead-in to a Timex plug. Latter department, incidentally, was competently handled by John Cameron Swayze. Gilb.

BITTER HARVEST
With Dr. Dell Lebo, Norm Davis, narrator, others Producer-Writer: Davis
Music: Ike Buchanan Trio
30 Mins.; Thurs. (9), 10:30 p.m.
STATE BANK OF JACKSONVILLE
WJXT, Jacksonville (film)

Every city has its juvenile delinquency problem and Jacksonville, Fla. is no exception as this painstaking exploration showed so pointedly. Station, which uses Channel Four, labels this series of documentaries "Project 4" and they are public service topics.

Versatile Norm Davis carried the ball from start to finish on this production, which was technically good with outstanding photography and a listenable musical score, undoubtedly original.

Show started with a group of Jacksonville boys, stealing an auto for a joyride and their subsequent arrest. This paved the way for Davis to delve into the Jacksonville and Duvall County setup for dealing with delinquents, with on the scene narration.

Outstanding facet of the show was the inadequate machinery and facilities for coping with the problem where, although delinquents made up only small part of the juvenile population, city-county efforts to combat the increasing wave was first losing ground.

Another highlight of program was the filmed interviews conducted by Jacksonville psychologist, Dr. Dell Lebo, filmed at that city's Juvenile Shelter. Dr. Lebo talked with a young boy who had a history of truancy, shoplifting and strong arm robbery; and with a girl of 15, who was picked up as a prostitute in a downtown hotel.

Davis pulled no punches, pointed an accusing finger where needed and exposed deplorable conditions due to overcrowding and lack of adequate staff personnel.

"Bitter Harvest" faced up to Jacksonville's problem and hit hard at the need for action to head off the spread of crime among the younger generation. Lucc.

INSIDE THE CONGO
With: Lee McNew
Executive Producer: John Pival
Producer-Director: Peter Strand
Associate Producer: Richard Femmel
Writer: Bruce MacDonell
Music: Mort Jaffe
30 Mins. Sat. (18) 7 p.m.
MANUFACTURER'S NATIONAL BANK
WXYZ-TV, Detroit (tape)

This excellent documentary was conceived and produced by WXYZ-TV which sent yet newscaster Lee McNew to the Congo along with ABC cameramen who were hired directly by the Detroit station for this assignment. Cameras and commentary focused on the people—eschewing their leaders—and their environment. Result was a hard-hitting show which crammed plenty into a half hour, providing viewers with new insights into the Congo problem.

Opening shots found McNew in front of a screen with Congo action scenes in the background. He quickly traced the history of the country's status from the time it was the personal property of the Belgian King to the present. There were brief scenes of Louis Armstrong and Undersecretary of State Williams, Michigan's ex-governor, in the Congo, but otherwise the cameras remained on the Congolese and sharply revealed their ignorance, provincialism, indifference, illiteracy and their very low standard of living.

McNew said he believed one of the greatest problems was illiteracy. He reported that he was arrested several times a day by policemen who simply couldn't read his credentials, although they made believe they could, often holding the documents upside down or sideways. McNew said he was taken to police headquarters where an officer able to read would release him, only to have the whole thing repeated again in a short time.

McNew concluded that although the Congolese were like children, he felt one shouldn't laugh at them, or shed a tear for them, either. "It is impossible for us at the present time to understand the Congolese mind," he declared. He added that "many generations may pass before the Congolese are ready to emerge from their prison of brush."

"Inside the Congo" was of network quality and would be an excellent addition to a web's schedule. WXYZ-TV is planning syndication of the tape and it deserves plenty of unwinding because it throws a lot of light on a very current world problem. Tew.

NEW YORK '61
With Howard McGee
Director: Dan Peters
Writer: Dennis Dalton
30 Mins.: Fri., 8 p.m.
CHEMICAL BANK, NEW YORK
WNBC-TV, N. Y.

With New York blacked out on the network country and western half hour variety show from Springfield, Mo., NBC-TV flagship WNBC-TV has inserted a half-hour public service skein, produced by NBC News, "New York '61" which deals with city problems.

Opener Friday (24) was an investigation of the corruption in the city's government—housing, gambling, construction and other official shakedowns—which have received a lot of attention during the last year or two of Mayor Robert Wagner's seven years in office.

Show was primarily a reeling off of news library footage, but gained some distinction from a discerning script by Dennis Dalton. Stanza opened with fresh film of sidewalk interview quickies with pedestrians who came up with a variety of conjecture on the question, "Do you think Mayor Wagner's administration is doing a good job of cleaning up corruption in city government?"

There was also coverage of a session of the Citizens Committee for a Better New York and a Democratic Club forum on corruption which most likely was specially shot. The Dem session provided the show's highlight when former police commissioner Adams walked out after New York State Crime Commission investigator, Ruskin, charged negligence on the part of department heads.

Mayor Wagner appeared in an interview with WNBC-TV newsman Gabe Pressman, and, naturally, defended his administration, declaring that a metropolis with an official personnel roster of 240,000 would be bound to have "a few rotten apples in the barrel." Bill.

Foreign TV Reviews

THE AVENGERS
With Ian Hendry, Patrick Macnee, Philip Stone, Catherine Woodville, Godfrey Quigley, Murray Melvin, Charles Wade, Alister Williamson, Moira Redmond, Astor Sklair, June Monkhouse
Writer: Ray Rigby
Director: Don Leaver
60 Mins., Sat., 10 p.m.
ABC-TV, from Manchester

This new fortnightly skein made a patchy impression. As an opener, it failed to establish convincing motivation for the central character, and the careful realism of its settings and dialog threw into relief the trumped-up machinations of the plotting. David Keel (Ian Hendry), a young doctor, was suitably elated about the prospect of marrying his receptionist, Peggy (Catherine Woodville). Unknown to him, a dope gang had delivered a packet of heroin to the surgery, making a mistake in the address. They tried unsuccessfully to snatch it back, and then decided to kill Peggy, who could have identified the gangster who had brought the snow. This they duly accomplished, and Keel decided to find the killers himself.

The trail led him to the apartment of a shady medico, who should have gotten the stuff in the first place, but he, too, had been murdered. Then a dubious character called Steed (Patrick Macnee) introduced himself, claiming to have his own reasons for tracking down the dope boss. He persuaded Keel to go into the drug traffick himself, so that he could make contact with the gang. This worked, but Keel under Smeed's guidance, told them he wasn't doing business with them any more. So they decided to dispose of him as well. He was saved in the nick of time by the cops, and the instalment closed with the big boss undiscovered.

Trouble with the segment was that it didn't clearly illuminate the purposes of the running characters: Keel just seemed a dope himself for falling for Smeed's advice without asking a few obvious questions. And Smeed's ambiguity as an under-cover man with the gang, yet somehow on the side of the law, just didn't make sense on this viewing.

Ian Hendry, who made his local tv reputation in the "Police Surgeon" series, was sympathetic as the hero, and Patrick Macnee was dashing as his curious helper. There was some fine minor thesping, particularly from Moira Redmond as an addict looking for a fix and Murray Melvin and Godfrey Quigley as subordinate dope-peddlers, and an equal amount of ham elsewhere in the cast-list.

Johnny Dankworth provided a monotonous jazz theme, which should drive a good few to a fix before the skein is through, and Don Leaver's direction was sharp and crisp. Otta.

DEADLINE MIDNIGHT
With Peter Vaughan, Glyn Houston, Peter Illing, Jean Marsh, Mary Law, Noel Coleman, Armine Sandford, Jeremy Young, Peter Fraser, Michael Ritterman, Geoffrey Denton, Doel Luscombe, Rita Davies,
Producer: Rex Firkin
Writer: Bill Craig
60 Mins.: Sat., 10 p.m.
Associated TeleVision, from London

ATV's "Deadline Midnight" skein made its comeback to the schedules with its face un-lifted. It maintained an air of crisp and snappy competence, although this opener was a fairly artificial effort that only just got by. Arthur Christiansen, the ex-London Daily Express editor who advises the program, ensured a good level of truth in the Fleet Street atmosphere and the newsmen were suitably laconic and disenchanted. Chief enemy to conviction was that, for an office of a national newssheet, the set seemed remarkably under-populated.

In this one, an Iron Curtain ship docking in London harbored a prisoner who sought political asylum in Britain and was promptly locked away by the Captain (Peter Illing). News of this got through to a reporter (Jeremy Young), and the sheet's news editor deployed extra resources. Eventually, the guy was removed to safety by the police.

As indicated, this stanza was stronger in its detail than in its main structure. Incidents such as the cooperation with the gendarmerie, tracking down the man's identity, and such like were lifelike and intriguing. But a general error of the program was to turn the reporter into some sort of sleuth. This he may be occasionally, but not all that often.

The cast included many who'd registered earlier in the series. Peter Vaughan repeated his first-class impersonation of the news editor, and ably conducted a forced sub-plot in which he rubbed against Mike Grieves (Glyn Houston), due to take his job for the rest of the skein. Houston shaped well for further acquaintance, and other thesp support was adequate, with Peter Illing stand-out as the Russian skipper.

Rex Firkin's production was fluent, wasted no time, and, given firmer underpinning of the plot line, "Deadline Midnight" should be an above-average entry. Otta.

THE ARTHUR ASKEY SHOW
With Arthur Askey, June Whitfield, Arthur Mullard, Patricia Hayes, Erik Chitty, Tony Sympston
Producer: Josephine Douglas
Writer: Dave Freeman
30 Mins., Sat., 9:30 p.m.
Associated TeleVision, from London

Back for a further skein of six, "The Arthur Askey Show" involves the pint-sized comic in a set of pre-1914 situations. This was the sole new gimmick, and the reason for it wasn't especially apparent in this stanza. Askey's enthusiastic personality, an amalgam of bounce and nonchalance in the face of farcical tribulations, hasn't much of an antique flavor, and the dialog, too, was scarcely Edwardian.

This apart, the opener was a pretty frenzied effort, with Askey striving to give hormone treatment to a tired idea. Said topic was that "The Great Pilbeamo," a small-time vaude conjuror, offered a prize to anyone in the audience who would volunteer to be eaten by him. Of course, this stupidity couldn't be carried out, and Askey ran away from an outraged audience. Meanwhile, he'd inherited a row of houses from a relation, and went to occupy one of them. Said house was already headquarters for the disgruntled guy who wasn't masticated. Thus, this foolish business ended in idiot tantrums, and even the buoyant Askey couldn't do much to raise the slow yock-rate.

Some incidental pleasure was provided by June Whitfield, playing Askey's wife with a nice line of affectation. Arthur Mullard and Patricia Hayes aided and abetted forcefully, and Josephine Douglas produced ably.

Although intended as a simple farce deploying Askey's undoubted ebullience, the show forgot the elementary lesson that even madness has its own logic. And Askey proved once again that he is far more at home with an act, addressing viewers directly, than with a skimpy plot that puts his talent in a straitjacket. Otta.

DRAMA '61
(The Cruel Day)
With Marius Goring, Peter Arne, Margot van der Burgh, Michael Caridia, Joseph Cuby, George Pravda, Miki Iveria, Hugh Morton, Anthony Sagar, Phyllis Montefiore
Writer: Reginald Rose
Producer: Herbert Wise
65 Mins.; Sun., 9:50 p.m.
Associated TeleVision, from London

ATV's new Sunday-night drama skein will run on alternate weeks with ABC-TV's established and successful "Armchair Theatre." Main question was whether its production standards would come up to those achieved under Sydney Newman for the rival series. On this count alone, "Drama 61" made a promising sendoff, for producer Herbert Wise came up with some enterprising camera-work for this first choice, Reginald Rose's "The Cruel Day." (Same show was seen in the U. S. on CBS-TV as a "Playhouse 90" entry with Van Heflin and Cliff Robertson as the leads. Ed.).

The piece concerned a French

(Continued on page 34)

VARIETY-ARB SYNDICATION CHART

VARIETY's weekly tabulation based on ratings furnished by American Research Bureau, highlights the top ten network shows on a local level and offers a rating study in depth of the top six syndicated shows in the same particular market. This week five different markets are covered.

In the syndicated program listings of the top ten shows, rating data such as the average share of audience, coupled with data as to time and day of telecasting competitive programming in the particular slot, etc., is furnished. Reason for detailing an exact picture of the rating performance of syndicated shows is to reflect the true rating strength of particular series. Various branches of the industry, ranging from media buyers to local stations and/or advertisers to syndicators will find the charts valuable.

Over the course of a year, ARB will tabulate a minimum of 247 markets. The results of that tabulation will be found weekly in VARIETY. Coupled with the rating performance of the top ten network shows on the local level, the VARIETY-ARB charts are designed to reflect the rating tastes of virtually every tv market in the U. S.

(*) ARB's Nov.-Dec. 1960 survey covered a multi-week period. Syndicated shows sharing one of the weeks with an alternating or special program could not be properly judged for comparative performance. Therefore, Nov.-Dec. data will be limited to those syndicated shows which played in all weeks.

CHICAGO

STATIONS: WBBM, WNBQ, WBKB, WGN. *SURVEY DATES: NOV. 23 - DEC. 20, 1960.

TOP TEN NETWORK SHOWS RK. PROGRAM—DAY—TIME	STA.	AV. RTG
1. Gunsmoke (Sat. 9:00-9:30)	WBBM	40
2. Untouchables (Thurs. 8:30-9:30)	WBKB	37
3. Red Skelton (Tues. 8:30-9:00)	WBBM	33
3. Danny Thomas (Mon. 8:00-8:30)	WBBM	33
3. Ed Sullivan (Sun. 7:00-8:00)	WBBM	33
3. Candid Camera (Sun. 9:00-9:30)	WBBM	33
3. 77 Sunset Strip (Fri. 8:00-9:00)	WBKB	33
4. Flintstones (Fri. 7:30-8:00)	WBKB	32
4. Lawrence Welk (Sat. 8:00-9:00)	WBKB	32
5. Garry Moore (Tues. 9:00-10:00)	WBBM	30

TOP SYNDICATED PROGRAMS RK. PROGRAM—DAY—TIME	STA.	DISTRIB.	AV. RTG.	AV. SH.
1. Trackdown (Sat. 9:30)	WBBM	CBS	28	53
2. Huckleberry Hound (Wed. 7:30)	WGN	Screen Gems	24	34
3. Superman (Sat. 5:30)	WGN	Flamingo	15	42
4. Quick Draw McGraw (Thurs. 6:00)	WGN	Screen Gems	13	38
5. Woody Woodpecker (Tues. 6:00)	WGN	Kellogg	12	36
6. Death Valley Days (Wed. 9:00)	WGN	U.S. Borax	11	18
6. Lock-Up (Thurs. 9:30)	WNBQ	Ziv-UA	11	20
6. Manhunt (Wed. 9:30)	WGN	Screen Gems	11	19
7. Flash Gordon (Sun. 11:30)	WBKB	Guild	10	63
7. Science Fiction Theatre (Sat. 6:00)	WGN	Ziv-UA	10	24

TOP COMPETITION PROGRAM	STA.	AV. RTG.
Fight of The Week	WBKB	16
Price Is Right	WNBQ	19
Early Show; Pro FB	WBBM	15
Show; Wea; Pro FB	WBBM	16
6 O'Clock Report	WBBM	9
News-D. Edwards	WBBM	9
Huntley-Brinkley	WNBQ	9
6 O'Clock Report	WBBM	9
News-D. Edwards	WBBM	8
Huntley-Brinkley	WNBQ	8
Circle Thea.; Steel Hr.	WBBM	6
June Allyson	WBBM	23
Circle Thea.; Steel Hr.	WBBM	25
Saddles; Raiders	WNBQ	3
CBS News Special	WBBM	17

BOSTON

STATIONS: WBZ, WHDH, WNAC. *SURVEY DATES: NOV. 23 - DEC. 20, 1960.

1. Untouchables (Thurs. 9:30-10:30)	WHDH	40
2. Wagon Train (Wed. 7:30-8:30)	WBZ	37
2. 77 Sunset Strip (Fri. 9:00-10:00)	WHDH	37
3. Flintstones (Fri. 8:30-9:00)	WHDH	36
4. Lawrence Welk (Sat. 9:00-10:00)	WHDH	35
5. Ed Sullivan (Sun. 8:00-9:00)	WNAC	33
6. Gunsmoke (Sat. 10:00-10:30)	WNAC	32
7. Perry Como (Wed. 9:00-10:00)	WBZ	31
7. Perry Mason (Sat. 7:30-8:30)	WNAC	31
8. Real McCoys (Thurs. 8:30-9:00)	WHDH	29
8. Leave It To Beaver (Sat. 8:30-9:00)	WHDH	29

1. Lock-Up (Thurs. 10:30)	WHDH	Ziv-UA	20	50	June Allyson — WNAC — 10
2. Honeymooners (Thurs. 7:30)	WNAC	CBS	18	38	Outlaws; Peter Pan — WBZ — 16
3. Brave Stallion (Mon. 7:00)	WBZ	ITC	17	44	News; Sports; Weather — WHDH — 18
					News-D. Edwards — WHDH — 16
3. U.S. Marshal (Sat. 10:30)	WNAC	NTA	17	39	Fight of The Week — WHDH — 19
					Fight; Spare; Fight — WHDH — 17
4. Huckleberry Hound (Thurs. 6:30)	WNAC	Screen Gems	16	36	News; Sports; Weather — WHDH — 14
					News-D. Edwards — WHDH — 16
5. Mounted Police (Wed. 7:00)	WBZ	CNP	15	36	News; Sports; Weather — WHDH — 16
					News-D. Edwards — WHDH — 16
6. Death Valley Days (Fri. 7:00)	WBZ	U.S. Borax	14	37	News; Sports; Weather — WHDH — 12
					News-D. Edwards — WHDH — 12
6. State Trooper (Thurs. 7:00)	WNAC	MCA	14	34	News; Sports; Weather — WHDH — 13
					News-D. Edwards — WHDH — 14
7. Life of Riley (Mon.-Fri. 6:30)	WHDH	CNP	13	30	News; Weather — WBZ — 19
					Huckleberry Hound — WNAC — 16
					Huntley-Brinkley — WBZ — 22
7. Woody Woodpecker (Fri. 6:30)	WNAC	Kellogg	13	31	News; Weather — WBZ — 17
					Huntley-Brinkley — WBZ — 24

DETROIT

STATIONS: WJBK, WWJ, WXYZ, CKLW. *SURVEY DATES: NOV. 23 - DEC. 20, 1960.

1. Untouchables (Thurs. 9:30-10:30)	WXYZ	43
2. 77 Sunset Strip (Fri. 9:00-10:00)	WXYZ	40
3. Gunsmoke (Sat. 10:00-10:30)	WJBK	36
4. Wagon Train (Wed. 7:30-8:30)	WWJ	34
5. Flintstones (Fri. 8:30-9:00)	WXYZ	32
6. Hawaiian Eye (Wed. 9:00-10:00)	WXYZ	31
7. Cheyenne (Mon. 7:30-8:30)	WXYZ	29
7. Naked City (Wed. 10:00-11:00)	WXYZ	29
8. My Three Sons (Thurs. 9:00-9:30)	WXYZ	28
8. Rifleman (Tues. 8:00-8:30)	WXYZ	28

1. Huckleberry Hound (Thurs. 7:00)	CKLW	Screen Gems	28	54	Michigan Outdoors — WWJ — 15
2. Sea Hunt (Sat. 10.30)	WJBK	Ziv-UA	24	46	Fight of The Week — WXYZ — 15
					Make That Spare; Fight — WXYZ — 14
3. Quick Draw McGraw (Tues. 6:30)	CKLW	Screen Gems	20	49	News; Sports — WWJ — 12
					Huntley-Brinkley — WWJ — 13
3. Woody Woodpecker (Wed. 6:30)	CKLW	Kellogg	20	44	News; Sports — WWJ — 13
					Huntley-Brinkley — WWJ — 16
4. Popeye (Mon.-Fri. 6:00)					Trackdown; Weather — WWJ — 11
(Sun. 6:00)	CKLW	UAA, King	19	48	George Pierott — WWJ — 17
5. Tugboat Annie (Tues. 7:00)	CKLW	ITC	17	38	Divorce Court — WJBK — 13
6. U.S. Marshal (Fri. 8:00)	WJBK	NTA	16	32	Harrigan & Son — WXYZ — 17
7. Brave Eagle (Mon. 6:30)	CKLW	CBS	15	39	News; Sports — WWJ — 12
					Huntley-Brinkley — WWJ — 14
7. Tombstone Territory (Mon. 7:00)	WXYZ	Ziv-UA	15	38	You Asked For It — CKLW — 14
8. William Tell (Thurs. 6:30)	CKLW	NTA	13	33	News; Sports — WWJ — 15
					Huntley-Brinkley — WWJ — 15

ATLANTA

STATIONS: WSB, WAGA, WLWA. *SURVEY DATES: NOV. 23 - DEC. 20, 1960.

1. Wagon Train (Wed. 7:30-8:30)	WSB	49
2. Gunsmoke (Sat. 10:00-10:30)	WAGA	35
3. Price Is Right (Wed. 8:30-9:00)	WSB	33
3. 77 Sunset Strip (Fri. 9:00-10:00)	WLWA	33
4. Ed Sullivan (Sun. 8:00-9:00)	WAGA	32
5. Perry Como (Wed. 9:00-10:00)	WSB	31
5. Bonanza (Sat. 7:30-8:30)	WSB	31
6. Alfred Hitchcock (Tues. 8:30-9:00)	WSB	29
7. Real McCoys (Thurs. 8:30-9:00)	WLWA	28
8. Dennis The Menace (Sun. 7:30-8.00)	WAGA	27
8. Thriller (Tues. 9:00-10:00)	WSB	27

1. Whirlybirds (Wed. 7:00)	WSB	CBS	39	70	Aquanauts; Angels — WAGA — 11
2. Highway Patrol (Tues. 7:00)	WSB	Ziv-UA	33	79	Expedition — WLWA — 6
3. Death Valley Days (Mon. 7:00)	WSB	U.S. Borax	31	76	Vikings; Two Bells — WAGA — 5
					Two Faces West — WLWA — 5
4. Quick Draw McGraw (Tues. 6:00)	WSB	Screen Gems	27	68	Three Stooges — WLWA — 9
5. Sea Hunt (Fri. 7:00)	WSB	Ziv-UA	26	53	Rawhide — WAGA — 17
6. Deputy Dawg (Wed. 6:00)	WSB	CBS	25	68	Three Stooges — WLWA — 7
7. Woody Woodpecker (Mon. 6:00)	WSB	Kellogg	23	64	Three Stooges — WLWA — 9
8. Meet McGraw (Sat. 10:30)	WAGA	ABC	21	54	Fight of The Week — WLWA — 11
					Make That Spare — WLWA — 9
9. Brothers Brannigan (Thurs. 7:00)	WSB	CBS	19	49	Rescue 8 — WLWA — 14
10. Divorce Court (Mon. 8:00)	WAGA	KTTV TV Program Sales	16	29	Riverboat — WSB — 22
					Surfside 6 — WLWA — 23

CLEVELAND

STATIONS: KYW, WEWS, WJW. *SURVEY DATES: NOV. 23 - DEC. 20, 1960.

1. Untouchables (Thurs. 9:30-10:30)	WEWS	46
1. 77 Sunset Strip (Fri. 9:00-10:00)	WEWS	46
2. Gunsmoke (Sat. 10:00-10:30)	WJW	42
3. Flintstones (Fri. 8:30-9:00)	WEWS	35
3. Leave It To Beaver (Sat. 8:30-9:00)	WEWS	35
3. Surfside 6 (Mon. 8:30-9:30)	WEWS	35
4. Adv. In Paradise (Mon. 9:30-10:30)	WEWS	33
4. Real McCoys (Thurs. 8:30-9:00)	WEWS	33
4. Hawaiian Eye (Wed. 9:00-10:00)	WEWS	33
5. Lawrence Welk (Sat. 9:00-10:00)	WEWS	32

1. Huckleberry Hound (Mon. 7:00)	KYW	Screen Gems	25	49	City Camera — WJW — 17
					News-D. Edwards — WJW — 16
1. U.S. Marshal (Fri. 10:30)	WEWS	NTA	25	46	M. Shayne — KYW — 18
2. Jim Backus (Sat. 10.30)	WJW	Screen Gems	19	41	Dangerous Robin — KYW — 16
3. Blue Angels (Wed. 9:00)	WJW	CNP	16	22	Hawaiian Eye — WEWS — 32
3. Death Valley Days (Wed. 7:00)	KYW	U.S. Borax	16	33	City Camera; Sports — WJW — 20
					News-D. Edwards — WJW — 16
3. Dangerous Robin (Sat. 10:30)	KYW	Ziv-UA	16	35	Jim Backus — WJW — 19
3. Three Stooges (Mon.-Fri. 6:00)	WEWS	Screen Gems	16	52	Early Show — KYW — 9
					Big Show — WJW — 7
4. Assignment Underwater (Wed. 7:00)	WEWS	NTA	15	31	City Camera; Sports — WJW — 20
					News-D. Edwards — WJW — 16
4. Woody Woodpecker (Thurs. 7:00)	KYW	Kellogg	15	36	City Camera; Sports — WJW — 16
					News-D. Edwards — WJW — 16
4. Sea Hunt (Tues. 7:30)	WJW	Ziv-UA	15	27	Bugs Bunny — WEWS — 24

ha
ha
(Y)
(Z)

ha

he laughs best (◉) who laughs last ome people started laughing right off the bat when they heard we planned to concentrate on comedy this season. They 'ere sure it wouldn't work. These days they're not laughing so hard—but the nation's viewers are, and so are the sponsors f our comedy programs. The audiences attracted by the average comedy program on the three networks this season tell ıe story: Network Y—7.3 million homes...Network Z—8.9 million homes...CBS Television Network, 9.5 million homes.* loreover, in the latest Nielsen report three of our funniest shows are in the Top 10—and two of them are brand new this ɜason.† But the thing that keeps all our advertisers smiling is that the CBS Television Network attracts the biggest average ıdiences in every category of entertainment, laughs or no laughs. *Nationwide Nielsen, 6-11 pm, AA, 1 Oct. 1960—1 Mar. 1961 †1 Mar. 1961, AA (CBS: 7 of Top 10)

CBS Television Network

Await JFK's Special Message On Revamp of FCC, Other Agencies

Washington, March 28.

President Kennedy's first recommendations on revamping the Federal regulatory agencies, including Federal Communications Commission, are being put on paper now and should be sent to Congress in the next few weeks.

The special White House message will embody the ideas of James M. Landis, President Kennedy's assistant for the regulatory agencies whose preliminary report earlier this year stirred much controversy.

Disclosure of the Presidential message came as House Commerce Chairman Oren Harris (D-Ark.) gave details on the newly-created Special Subcommittee on Regulatory Agencies—successor to the tempestuous Legislative Oversight unit of quiz and payola fame.

Harris who will chair the new group, emphasized that, in contrast to the Oversight unit, it is to be a permanent body. As such, he said, its forte will be in the realm o hard-core study of the mechanics of the agencies rather than flamboyant investigations. However, Harris did not rule out possibility of investigatory activity also. The subcommittee has been allotted $195,000 for its operations during the next two years.

The subcommittee will focus on policies, procedures and basic legal framework of the agencies. In other words, the same field in which Landis is occupying himself from his White House post.

Friction has already cropped up to some extent as result of Landis first report to Kennedy before the inauguration. Tenor of the report was for exertion of a strong hand by the White House to straighten out the federal regulatory complex and break the administrative logjam in some agencies. Final report of Harris' Legislative Oversight unit contained a pointed reminder, obviously directed at Landis, that Congress—not the White House—has the basic Constitutional responsibility for supervising the agencies.

The new Harris subcommittee thus has the very obvious function of keeping tabs on Landis' moves and crying halt when it thinks Congressional territory has been encroached upon. Asked whether Landis was keeping him informed and vice versa, Harris said this was being done, and relations had been cordial.

Robert Lishman, with a staff of four or five, is expected to be named director of the new group when it has its first organizational meeting shortly. Lishman headed the Oversight staff.

Members, in additional to Harris, of the new subcommittee are: Walter Rogers (D-Tex.), John Flynt (D-Ga.), John Moss (D-Cal.), Paul Rogers (D-Fla.), John Bennett (R-Mich.), William L. Springer (R-Ill.), Arthur Younger (R-Cal) and Vernon Thomson, (R-Wis.). All except Rogers of Florida and Thomson of Wisconsin are veteran lawmakers and former members of the Oversight group.

At the same time, Harris revealed he is stepping down as Chairman of the Communications Subcommittee which will now be headed by Rep. Morgan Moulder (D-Mo.).

KING Tapes Spec Of B'way Comedy

Seattle, March 28.

KING-TV tonight (Tues.) presented Billy Gilbert in "I Like It Here," marking the first time a Pacific Northwest tv station has adapted and produced a commercial Broadway play.

The videtaped one hour version, presented at 10 p.m., was produced for KING-TV by Lee Schulman, with Carrol Ellerbe as director and Kit Spier as production supervisor. The supporting cast for the vet comic was gleaned from the troupe which appeared with him when the play was presented in '59 at Seattle's Cirque Playhouse.

"I Like It Here," written by A. B. Shiffrin, was presented on Broadway in '46.

TV Elite

Continued from page 1

today fall with the impact of a wet dishrag.

There's no question that in size, the television audience is holding steady, perhaps even growing in terms of hours per day of viewing. The question isn't "Is Anyone Out There?" but "Who's Out There?" And the answer seems to be, not the people who really count in restoring tv's jaded image. In the old days, for every "I don't own a set" intellectual derider, there were 10 articulate viewers who were moved to excitement by the medium. Today, those 10 just don't bother to watch anymore, except perhaps for a weekly look-in at "Play of the Week" where they can get it.

The problem is germane today in view of the networks' efforts to make up with public affairs what they lack in overall entertainment excitement. The networks, locked more and more into the competitive grind-show cycle in the programming area, have been seeking to maintain their prestige solely by dint of their upgraded news and public affairs efforts.

That most of these efforts, though topgrade electronic journalism, have drawn a comparative blank in terms of enthusiastic response, lends credence to the argument that tv's elite audience just isn't watching anymore. One CBS executive in the pubaffairs area spelled it out shortly after "CBS Reports" aired its excellent and provocative "A Real Case of Murder." He went to a dinner party at which nine of the 15 guests were lawyers. None of the 15 had seen the show; none of the lawyers had even heard about it. Contrast that, the exec said, with some of the response accorded the old "See It Now" series, which in this exec's judgment, was primitive in comparison with "CBS Reports" in its scope and technique.

The answer, some believe, is simply that public affairs programming, however mature and provocative, isn't enough to recapture the excitement that television once held for the opinion-makers. Video is still basically an entertainment medium, and in its entertainment programming as well as its limited pubaffairs schedule it must reflect the kind of exciting show values that it puts forward in its pubaffairs programs as well.

When was the last time television furnished a property for adaptation to another medium? What was the last tv play bought for a motion picture, for a Broadway adaptation, even for off-Broadway? When was the last time television staged a production like "The Consul," which pay-tv audiences now can see in Toronto? When the time comes that television begins to program this sort of fare again, it can hope to regain audiences who respond to the best in the medium. But until then, it seems, they're just not out there any more.

TV's Softball Kick

WABC-TV and WNBC-TV, rivals in N. Y. local tv, are both reportedly offering May-to-August coverage of the Atlantic Seaboard Major Softball League games for either Saturday or Sunday.

Sudden interest in softball is reflected also in CBS-TV's consideration of making the Men's World Softball Championships from Florida in September one of its "Summer Sports Spectaculars" on Thursday night. Both the CBS-TV network-wide and the local New York softball shows belong to producer Charles Arden.

Bill Cullen's WNBC Exit

Bill Cullen has decided after six years to cut out his early morning "anchor" to local N.Y. radio and rely entirely on tv work, of which he's invariably had plenty. Cullen will quit his six-day, 6-10 a.m. radio strip at WNBC.

Cullen will remain as emcee of two "Price Is Right" stanzas and continue his other tv chores. WNBC, which is in a state of managerial flux this week (see separate story), has not yet selected a replacement in the key early morning hours.

Cantor's Kosher Capsules

Eddie Cantor is about to close for a five-minute syndicated radio show, five times a week, on behalf of American Kosher Food Products. Latter is propagating the new "frankfurter - in - the - round," as against the conventional elongated weenie.

The food company has the Coney Island dispensaries lined up for a new sales campaign this spring. Sponsor plans campaigns in Miami and Los Angeles, after the initial New York campaign.

Justice Dept. Asks FCC Hearings On NBC Station Swap

Washington, March 28.

Federal Communications Commission should consider the antitrust consent record of RCA-NBC in determining its fitness to hold a broadcast license, in the view of the Justice Dept.

It is the first pronouncement by Lee Loevinger, newly installed Justice Dept. antitrust chief, on litigation affecting the complex NBC-RKO General station swap deal.

In a brief filed with U.S. Court of Appeals here, Dept. urged that FCC give Philco Corp. a hearing on the antitrust charges made in its protest against renewal of NBC's Philadelphia outlet, WRCV-TV Channel 3).

As part of the package deal, NBC has contracted to trade WRCV-TV and its AM affiliate for RKO's Boston stations, WNAC-AM-FM-TV.

In its attack on the deal, Philco filed an application for the channel occupied by WRCV-TV and is still fighting FCC's 1957 renewal of NBC's license. FCC originally denied Philco's right to protest the renewal, but was upset by the Appeals court which remanded the case back to the Commission.

In the second go-round, FCC again held against Philco, claiming that the antitrust issues raised did not warrant a hearing. After the arguments held on Philco's appeal earlier this year, the Appeals bench asked for Justice Dept. comment on the antitrust issue.

The Dept. brief, signed by Loevinger and Richard A. Solomon, rejected FCC's contention it should consider only outright antitrust violations in determining a person's character qualifications to be a licensee. FCC held that consent decrees such as that binding NBC to get rid of its Philadelphia properties did not amount to admission of guilt. Justice Dept. said:

"Even if it be assumed that neither a consent decree nor a conviction on a plea of nolo contendere constitutes proof of wrongdoing, it is clear that they cannot be equated with an acquittal or finding of non-violation."

Original Oratorio In CBS-TV Preem

First original dramatic oratorio commissioned directly for television will be performed on CBS-TV April 9. Written by Ezra Laderman (composer) and Clair Roskam (lyrics), it is titled "The Eagle Stirred" and is a modern-dress version of the story of Ammiel, who followed Moses out of Egypt but was unable to cope with his new-found freedom.

Oratorio is unique in that instead of recitatif between its arias, it utilizes dramatic scenes and tells a story. It is an outgrowth of a half-hour opera, "Sarah," written a year ago by the same team and presented on the web's "Look Up and Live." "The Eagle Stirred" will preempt "Live" and "Lamp Unto My Feet" on April 9 in the web's 11-12 a.m. spot.

Pamela Hott, CBS religioso programming boss, who commissioned the work, will produce, and Tim Kiley direct. Singers include Ron Holgate, Spiro Malas, Rosemary Kuhlman, Jan De Gaetani, Arlene Saunders, Carlos Palangi, Anita Darian and Mallory Walker. Alfredo Antonini will conduct.

Foreign TV Reviews

Continued from page 30

Army Captain (Marius Goring), who arrived to take over an outpost in Algeria. A stickler for the military code, as laid down in the book, he ruled his wife and young son with the same rigorous regime, but he was in a situation where normal procedures couldn't always apply. The French Army used torture and intimidation against the rebels, because there seemed to be no other way to keep down the toll of assassinations and outrages. This point of view was put by the Lieutenant (Peter Arne), who used an electric torture chamber as a weapon of war.

Crisis came when a young Algerian (Joseph Cuby) was caught taking messages to the rebels. He refused to disclose their identity, and the Lieutenant was all for forcing the information from him. The Captain's instinct and training were opposed to it, and he tried to reason with the boy, bringing in the father to help uncover the vital names, but the boy wouldn't give way.

The irony of the tale was that, in his private life, the Captain had long tormented his wife and son by his unfeeling disregard of their wishes. He did not see that his own domestic attitude was just as barbarous as that of the Lieutenant. Upshot was that the Lieutenant allowed the Captain to be killed by a rebel sniper. Such soul-searching had no place in Algeria; he was better out of the way.

Main drawback of this otherwise intriguing plot was that compression didn't allow enough time to develop the domestic situation, and it didn't make its full weight in the argument. Marius Goring, superb as the Captain, was principally handicapped by his abbreviation, but he was ably supported by Peter Arne and by two clever youngsters, Joseph Cuby and Michael Caridia. Wise's production was, as hinted, bold and tense, and the occasion might have been even more praiseworthy if ATV had had the courage of its first convictions and given the play that extra half-hour. Otta.

Foreign TV Followups

Sunday Night at the Palladium

The eruption of Betty Hutton made this a stand-out stanza of "Sunday Night at the London Palladium" from ATV. She flounced into the star spot, exuding energy and warmth, and got a stranglehold on viewers in the first minute. Her act was, in many ways, unexpected. She didn't hark back to her movie successes, but framed her numbers as a sort of potted biography of her association with big American bands. Aided and abetted by the Don Williams Singers and Pete Candoli's trumpet, she delivered short bursts of such last-generation hits as "Dipsy Doodle," "The Music Goes Round," and "But Not for Me," linked with reminiscent material. With all the emotional stops out, she deified Glenn Miller, for whom sister Marion sang "Chattanooga Choo-Choo."

She recalled Bunny Berigan and Harry James, with Candoli chipping in an imitative bar or two. And the whole thing was given with an all-out fervor that disguised the corn and skated over the vocal shortcomings. For the volcanic Hutton voice was certainly better in the up-tempo items—the slower ballads strained harshly—and her personality was more overwhelming than her intonation.

The act was deftly showcased by producer Albert Locke, and it could only be faulted in that there wasn't enough of any single item, so that it had no highspots. The brilliant Candoli, who led the stage band, could have done with an extended solo, in place, possibly, of the so-so singing group, but the faults in detail were wholly beaten down by Miss Hutton's splendid vigor, recalling the great days of Sophie Tucker.

The rest of the bill was first-rate. That agreeable and courteous harmonica-player, Larry Adler, clicked with such showy items as "Bolero" and a "Carmen" selection, with the haunting "Rififi" slotted in between. He still makes one of the most telling instrumental acts now current, for there's an added visual excitement to his bizarre finger-work and facial concentration. And the show was briskly launched by well-timed acrobatics from the Seven Volants. Don Arrol emceed capably, and "Beat the Clock" plumbed new depths of popular ineptitude. Albert Locke produced throughout with a neat mixture of closeup and audience longshot—the ideal combination for this kind of show. Otta.

Armchair Theatre

There were many things wrong with Donal Giltinan's "The Man Out There," segment of ABC TV's "Armchair Theatre," but the basic weakness was that the idea just didn't lend itself to visual variety in its presentation. Said theme was that a Russian doctor was hurtled into orbit as the first man in outer space. When he started circling, however, his radio went kaput, so he had no contact with the ground. In addition, the escape mechanism of his satellite went out of commission, so he couldn't get back to earth again.

By a freak of atmosphere, he managed to make one radio contact. With a woman in the Canadian wastes, who was trying to get hold of a doctor to come to a sick child. The Rusky wanted to pass on to her vital data about his trip; she was desperate for help for the infant. So the doctor directed her in an operation to relieve the child's breathing, and then passed on a lot of figures before being smashed to smithereens.

If this sounds implausible, it certainly came across that way. Director Charles Jarrott could do little but concentrate on enormous and lengthy closeups of the distraught pair, with occasional cuts to the people at base. He was helped by some powerful agonizing from Katharine Blake, who reached a fine emotional pitch, and from Patrick McGoohan, who was a bit handicapped by being imprisoned in a space-helmet for most of the hour.

But they couldn't make the plot stick. Giltinan's dialog didn't help by smelling of the conveyor-belt. Some added tension was whipped up by a maneuver to rescue the scientist by firing off another projectile, but this seemed an unconvincing device as well.

Assheton Gorton did his best to devise some helpful scientific effects, but the whole thing seemed to have strayed from steam-radio. Otta.

Saturday Spectacular

This show revolved around the quite unspectacular personality of Sid James, once known as Sidney when he was the principal sidekick of Tony Hancock in a much-renowned BBC-TV skein. On an extremely apologetic note, ATV's "Saturday Spectacular" almost blushed itself to death when it trundled on the crumple-faced gagster. At it turned out, James needn't have been so bashful. He sparked off an amiable, smooth, and well-balanced vaude outing, and held the supporting acts together with endearing fluency. He skillfully played his layabout tv character, the material provided by S. C. Green and R. M. Hills suited him, and he merited a swift return engagement in a skein that tends to be spotty in its aims and achievement.

He opened in top hat and tails, and soon discarded the outfit for the familiar garb of cloth-cap and loud checks. And he trickled through the various offerings, terping with considerable elan and croaking ditties with more abandon than polish. Davy Jones, a colored warbler who seemed linked with an overplus of electricity, jiggled through "Loch Lomond," accompanied by the familiar rock group of bangers and pluckers; he made up for the vocal shortcoming with energy. James clicked in a railway-carriage sketch, told in mime and hinged on the presence of a pretty girl and four drooling males.

Jean Bayless, shortly to star in the London legit production of "Sound of Music," exercised her winsome soprano pipes on "Nearness of You" and evinced a pleasant personality with too much treacle. And there was a sprightly guest appearance by Jack Hawkins, somewhat heavy with the light touch but nevertheless scoring in a sketch, linked again with James' aforesaid reputation as a sharp cookie. Otta.

The New Nielsens

CBS-TV widened its lead over ABC-TV in the latest National Nielsens, the March 1 report, to a full 13% on the average audience breakdown, while pulling 22% ahead of third-ranked NBC-TV. CBS held steady from the last report with a 21.4 average 6-11 p.m. audience, while ABC dropped to a 19.0 and NBC also dropped, to a 17.6.

Other breakdowns found CBS capturing five nights of the week, ABC and NBC one each (Thursday and Wednesday, respectively). CBS grabbed seven of the Top 10 and 12 of the Top 20, with ABC taking two out of 10 and four out of 20 and NBC one out of 10 and four out of 20. In half-hour wins, it was CBS 27, ABC 17 and NBC nine. Top 20 follows:

Gunsmoke (CBS)	36.3
Wagon Train (NBC)	33.7
Have Gun, Will Travel (CBS)	31.2
Andy Griffith (CBS)	31.1
Candid Camera (CBS)	30.1
Real McCoys (ABC)	29.4
Dennis the Menace (CBS)	28.1
Rawhide (CBS)	28.0
My 3 Sons (ABC)	27.9
Garry Moore (CBS)	27.3*
Jack Benny (CBS)	27.2
Price Is Right (NBC)	27.1
25 Years of Life (NBC)	26.9
Flintstones (ABC)	26.5
77 Sunset Strip (ABC)	26.2
Danny Thomas (CBS)	26.1
Ed Sullivan (CBS)	25.5
Bonanza (NBC)	25.5
Red Skelton (CBS)	25.2

*Week I, 10:30-11 p.m.

CBS-TV's Rerun 'Specials'

'December Bride' Returns for 3-Time Preemption Of 'Lucy' Morning Repeats—Somebody Goofed

Since when is a daytime vidpix rerun stanza a "special?"

Answer is as of April 7, 10 and 11, when "December Bride" reruns "preempt" "I Love Lucy" reruns in CBS-TV 10-10:30 a.m. slot. "Bride" goes in for those three days only, and in an exception to CBS-TV's morning advertiser rotation plan, will be fully sponsored by Owens-Corning.

Unusual situation came about because of a far-in-advance order of "Bride" on those dates by Owens-Corning. Order was placed before CBS decided on its advertiser rotation plan and before it decided to drop "Bride" at 10 in favor of "Lucy." Sponsor went ahead and filmed special commercials starring Spring Byington, who plays the title role in "Bride."

While Owens was preparing its commercials, CBS apparently forgot about the order and went full steam ahead into its morning rotation plan and its decision to drop "Bride." Finally the sponsor reminded the web of its three-time order, and CBS decided to preempt "Lucy" to bring back "Bride" on those dates and to exempt the sale from the rotation requirements of its morning sales operation.

Jacobson, Hanft In NBC Exits

As a preface to a "heavy" cutback due at NBC-TV in coming weeks, two high-paid vicepresidents are leaving the network (old) in the next couple of weeks. B. Lowell Jacobson, longtime NBC staffer and stripper in charge of labor and personnel, and Burton Hanft, contracts veep on the tv side, have asked out.

Jacobson, long rumored to be leaving, reportedly has an offer from one of the companies advertising on NBC time. Hanft, on whom Jim Stabile was recently superimposed as contract negotiator, is said to be unhappy and seeks to ankle.

For the past three weeks at least, there have been strong reports of a cutback at NBC-TV, which is something of a periodic affair at the network. Only this time, according to highly reliable information, the cutback will be much greater than at any other time in recent years. Decision on who is to go has not been announced, but all departments, particularly programming and in that instance particularly in Hollywood, are being "scrutinized" this week.

Hollywood programmatic cutbacks will be due in large measure to the fact that not a single live NBC-TV show will be coming out of Burbank this summer.

Norm Knight's Sixth

Manchester, N.H., March 28.

The Federal Communications Commission has approved the sale of radio station WGIR here by Emile J. Girolimon to Knight Radio Inc., of Boston, which is owned solely by Norman Knight and operates five other radio stations in New Hampshire and Massachusetts.

Knight, former prez of the Yankee Division of RKO General Inc., operator of the Yankee Network and WNAC and WNAC-TV, Boston, also owns WTSL in Hanover, WTSV and WTSV-FM in Claremont, WHEB in Portsmouth and WEIM in Fitchburg, Mass.

Amer. Gas Back Into Drama Via 8 Selznick Spex

The eight David O. Selznick properties, bought by NBC two years ago, have found themselves a sponsor. American Gas Assn., which once had CBS-TV's "Playhouse 90," has bought eight live (not taped) dramas for the 60-minute time periods on a one-a-month basis between October and May of 1962.

Selznick properties, all former theatrical films, to be used on NBC are "Intermezzo," "Rebecca," "Spellbound," "Portrait of Jennie," "Paradine Case," "The Farmer's Daughter," "The Spiral Staircase" and "Notorious."

Specials will be produced at about $167,000 apiece, which is high these days for hour dramatic properties. To be produced by NBC itself, the series is shooting for top names.

Dolph, Six Others Upped In CBS-TV Sports Shifts

Jack Dolph has been upped to director of sports for CBS-TV under v.p. Bill MacPhail, and six other sports dept. staffers have been upped following the shift of the sports setup from CBS News to the CBS-TV network.

Other shifts find Don Hamilton named business affairs director for tv sports, Jack Purves as sports sales coordinator, Bob Dailey as producer-director, Tony Verna as director, John Pokorski as producer and Chet Forte as sports coordinator.

Dolph has been with the sports setup for the past year as assistant director. Prior to that, he was program director of WCAU-TV in Philadelphia. Hamilton shifts over from CBS News, and Purves has been sports sales manager.

'TALENT SCOUTS' VICE 'ACAPULCO' ON NBC-TV

"Talent Scouts" will replace "Acapulco" next month on NBC-TV's Monday night schedule. Jack Carter will reportedly serve as emcee for the Irving Mansfield package.

In the Monday 9:30-10 p.m. time, "Scouts," marking its first time on NBC, will ride for 22 weeks until the NBC fall schedule takes over.

R. J. Reynolds, "Acapulco" sponsor, will hold onto the time—which means half-sponsorship for the "Scouts" entry.

NAB Report On FCC's Sleuthing Draws Official Ire

Washington, March 28.

Complaints and Compliance Division of Federal Communications Commission is displeased over a report distributed by National Assn. of Broadcasters on what to expect from FCC sleuth teams.

The reports, compiled from information given by Lee Ruwitch president of the Florida Assn. of Broadcasters, was handed out to heads of state broadcasters associations during their convention here last month.

Complaints and Compliance head John C. Harrington said he viewed as "deceptive" the three-page listing of questions and areas of information purportedly covered by FCC investigative teams hitting Florida stations last year.

Although the report doesn't say one way or the other, Harrington said the inference can be drawn that each and every station was asked each and every question on the list. The list is so all-inclusive of every conceivable aspect of station operations as to panic a station manager who believed this to be the case. Over 50 areas of information are listed.

Actually, Harrington said, the FCC teams not only aren't covering all the information areas in checking each station, but aren't goings into some question listed in the report at all.

The document, labelled simply "FCC Station Audit," begins like this:

"Profile of station was prepared by auditors: history of station; table of organization; ownership interest; absentee ownership?; record of financial organization and trends; relative position in community—popularity; financial position—assets vs. liabilities; audience type—teenagers or adult?"

Any profile of this type, according to Harrington, is prepared in Washington from FCC records before the investigators go into the field for the purpose of giving them an idea of what to look for at individual stations.

Following distribution of the list, Harrington said his division has received complaints from broadcasters accusing it of delving into areas outside FCC's jurisdiction—namely, aspects of station financial operations. The complaints have been confined to Texas and Nebraska so far, giving rise to the belief that state-wide distribution may have been made in these two states.

Harrington said the Commission is aware of the list and its distribution. It's conceivable that by misleading the stations as to what to expect, work of his investigators might be hampered, he said. But the problem has not serious enough now to warrant any Commission action in the form of a public notice attempting to correct any misconceptions, Harrington added.

NBC YENS DISNEY RERUNS FOR FRIDAY

NBC-TV has been trying to acquire the hour action-adventure installments that Walt Disney used on his old ABC-TV stanza. NBC wants the reruns for Fridays at 7:30, but so far Disney and the web, who are doing a new series next season on Sundays, cannot reach agreement.

Batch would include the 60-minute versions of "Zorro," the "Davy Crockett" and "Elfego Baca" episodes that appeared on ABC-TV. Meantime, however, NBC is still thinking of using the Larry White-produced tapes of European circuses in the Friday time.

'Wizard's' 10-Year Success Formula: 'Deliver to Audience, Not Sponsor'

By ART WOODSTONE

"Watch Mr. Wizard" was 10 years old this March.

"I have a feeling one of the reasons we've lasted so long," observed Don Herbert, who is Mr. Wizard, "is that we've been delivering to an audience, not to a sponsor."

One of the old Chicago school—indeed, the only member of that decade-old school of free-and-easy video performance who is still doing today what he did in 1951—Herbert isn't at all anxious to get a sponsor for his Saturday afternoon science series for the kids.

When Herbert started the Wizard series in Chicago, in March of 1951, he did have a sponsor, of sorts. It was the Cereal Institute, which did institutional advertising only, and, according to him never interfered with his simple instructional format. Cereal Institute began on WMAQ, Chicago, and stayed with the show for a total of six years, one of them after Herbert shifted production from Chicago to New York. He's been in New York for the last five years.

NBC-TV now airs "Watch Mr. Wizard" from 1:30 to 2 p.m. on Saturdays on a lineup that averages around 90 tv stations. Since the program is sustaining, it's hard, even for the network to tell how many affiliates carry his program each week.

There is a designed casualness about Herbert's program, one that follows generally the easygoing outlines pursued then and still by Dave Garroway, and at onetime by "Kukla, Fran & Ollie" and Marion Perkins in his now retired "Zoo Parade." It's almost as if these Chicago-schooled adherents never used a script, which they did—sometimes

Ironically, Herbert is still the only one either on the air or following his original format, yet Chicago is one city that doesn't carry his NBC-TV Saturday program. "Everything's changed in Chicago," somebody said in trying to explain this omission.

Herbert, who does many General Electric commercials for the sponsor's Sunday CBS-TV anthology series, was graduated from La Crosse (Wis.) Teachers College where he majored in two subjects: English and General Science. He never taught in school, giving up such academic pursuits for a relatively brief career as an "actor around Chicago" and an unproduced playwright. He did some short stories that were published and a few scripts ("nothing spectacular") he saved for radio shows like "First Nighter" and "Curtain Time." In 1949, he and producer Ben Park (whose allegiance is now with Hollywood) did a health series called "It's Your Life." The show lasted a season, and all of 1950, according to Herbert, was spent in trying to sell "Wizard." Cereal Institute bought it and took it and Herbert to the NBC o&o there.

It's been institutional or sponsorless sailing ever since.

Culligan Prexies RTES

Matthew (Joe) Culligan of McCann-Erickson will be getting back into the broadcasting business parttime next season as president of the Radio & Television Executives Society. He'll be officially replacing Richard Salant, the boss of CBS News, starting in May, though RTES activity doesn't usually recommence until fall.

Culligan, onetime topper of NBC Radio, left the web about 14 months ago to become an agency exec. He's now a general corporate executive of Interpublic, a M-E subsid, and a director of McCann-Erickson Inc. and McCann-Erickson International. In these posts, Culligan doesn't come into much direct contact with broadcasting.

Minow Defends Industry Record Of Politicasts

Washington, March 28.

Newton N. Minow, in his first statement on the subject since becoming Federal Communications Chairman, told Congress yesterday (Mon.) that "broadcasting met its obligation to present full coverage of the 1960 political campaign."

Minow appeared before the Senate Freedom of Communications Subcommittee which began three days of hearings on FCC's handling of political broadcast complaints last year. In his leadoff statement Minow said:

"The networks made available to the Presidential and Vice Presidential candidates of the two major parties substantial time in good viewing hours without charge, and network affiliates, with few exceptions, cooperated in carrying the great debates.

"I think it will be agreed that networks and stations exercised considerable care and succeeded in providing equality in affording sustaining time to the Presidential and Vice Presidential candidates of the two major parties."

Subcommittee member Gale McGee (D-Wyo.) indicated he would draft legislation empowering FCC with cease-and-desist and show-cause authority in cases where broadcasters violated the so-called "fairness doctrine"—balanced treatment of issues public importance.

McGee's proposal came after Joseph Nelson, head of the renewal and transfer branch of FCC's Broadcast Bureau, said the Commission is only recourse is to consider violations of this kind when a station's license comes up for renewal.

McGee said that when a political candidate is the victim of unfair treatment at hands of a station, it's small comfort him to have the FCC meet out its punishment after he's lost the election.

Subcommittee Chairman Ralph Yarborough (D-Tex.) said about 40 political complaints will be sifted during the hearings. Most of these dealt with in the initial session had been made public before by FCC.

Lishman Quits as Counsel For Harris Committee

Washington, March 28.

Robert W. Lishman, former chief counsel for the now defunct House Legislative Oversight Subcommittee, will resign April 1 from the same job with its successor unit, the Special House Subcommittee on Regulatory Agencies.

Charles P. Howze, staff attorney with the Oversight group for two years, will succeed Lishman.

Lishman, who directed the tumultuous quiz and payola investigations, joined the subcommittee three years ago. House Commerce Chairman Oren Harris (D-Ark.), in formally announcing his resignation, said Lishman was stepping down for "personal, family reasons."

Kaiser Mulls NBC 'Hong Kong' Shift

Hollywood, March 28.

There is a chance—somewhat remote but still a real possibility—that Kaiser Industries will move "Hong Kong" over to NBC-TV's schedule next season. Edgar Kaiser is going east this week where he reportedly has appointments to meet with NBC brass about inserting the 20th telefilm hour at 8:30 p.m. Fridays.

Kaiser, however, still has an option on Steve Allen for Wednesdays at 7:30 on ABC-TV. The potential Allen slot is now held by "Hong Kong," which ABC doesn't want back after it ends its current run. Option on Allen is up in a few days.

Sponsor will hold onto its current Sunday berth at ABC-TV, one now filled by "Maverick." New stanza will fill the ABC time next fall.

'MAGIC MOMENTS' HALL OF FAME

Babe Ruth Story
The Man Against the Mile
Cinderella Team
Kentucky Derby
World Series
Stengel's Sluggers
Indianapolis 500 Mile
Early Boxing Greats
College Basketball
Olympics
Pro Football Champs
Bowl Games
Golden Age of Baseball
Bobby Thompson
Johnny Unitas
The Ben Hogan Comeback
The Billy Maxwell Story
Great Baseball Moments
U.S. Junior Champs
Motor Boat Thrills
Ski Jumping Thrills
Yanks-Browns
Stock Cars
Water Barrier Broken
Grand National Assault Wins Triple Crown
400 Mile Race
Whirlaway Wins Triple Crown
War Admiral-Sea Biscuit
President's Baseball
Helen Wills Moody
Great Dodgers of the 50's
Don Budge
Old Giant Stars
Jack Sharkey-Mickey Walker
Connie Mack's Great Hitters
Swaps-Nashua
Bobby Jones
U.S. Brings Davis Cup Back
Gene Tunney
Louis-Marciano
Great Golfers of 20's
Summer Sports Headlines
Heavyweight Boxing Champs of 30's
Ray Robinson
Citation Wins Derby
Army-Navy
Steeplechase
Chuck Klein
Bob Richards-Milt Campbell
Half Pint Athletes
Knute Rockne
Joe DiMaggio
Sid Luckman
"Fighting Irish"
Lou Gehrig
Ted Williams
Tom Harmon
Doc Blanchard-Glenn Davis
Florence Chadwick
Figure Skating Champs
Gertrude Ederle
Ty Cobb
Gunder Haegg
Great Football Upset
Men's Singles Champions
All Star Home Runs
Hambletonian Thrills
Quarterbacks of NFL
Dizzy Dean
Celebrity Golf
Doak Walker and Kyle Rote
Johnny Lujack
Golden Gloves
National Open Champs
Otto Graham
Great Collegiate Backs of late 40's
Wes Santee
Native Dancer
Great Foreign Distance Runners
Rams Finally Win Title
Great Stars of A American Conference
Tigers versus Maulers
Gonzales-Schroeder
Byron Nelson
Sam Snead
Jack Kramer
Girl Equestrienne Champs
Bill Vukovich
Dodds-Rice

Out of the headlines of a thousand newspapers...

LEO

'MR. SPORTS' HIMSELF

Leo Durocher works for you! As host of "Magic Moments in Sports," he brings continuing identification to your sponsor's program and product... PROGRAMMING FLEXIBILITY (five-minute spots across the board, 15 or 30-minute shows.) For complete information and low cost for your market, phone or wire collect today.

DUROCHER

in a new television series

'MAGIC MOMENTS IN SPORTS'

the series that brings to life again
the most memorable events from the world of sports!

INDEPENDENT TELEVISION CORPORATION
LEADING THE WORLD IN TELEVISION PROGRAM SALES
488 Madison Avenue • New York 22, N.Y. • PLaza 5-2100
and offices in principal cities in 53 countries around the world

TV-Radio Production Centres

Continued from page 26

station, has been on the air for 14 hours with record shows, shopping guide and diary of local events. But only BBC officials were able to listen. Shows went out on closed circuit. Tapes may be played to the Government's Pilkington Committee to show that BBC is able to operate local station service, at present unknown in U. K. . . . BBC turning its longhair Third Program over to sport on Saturday afternoons, starting April 29 . . . Roberta Peters singing for Val Parnell in "Sunday Night at the London Palladium" on Associated Television May 7 . . . Blinded World War II veteran Kenneth Revis, who water-skis, pilots a speedboat, and drives a 90-mph car, booked to talk about his achievements on BBC Television's "It Happened To Me" on Wednesday (5) . . . Kurt Weill's widow Lotte Lenya, who's in town filming "The Roman Spring of Mrs Stone" with Vivien Leigh, has been singing some of her husband's songs for BBC's tv arts-program "Monitor."

IN DETROIT . . .

WXYZ is increasing news coverage by adding four five-minute summaries of local news, plus an hour-long worldwide news program. All additions are across-the-board and in addition to regular five-minute summaries every hour . . . WWJ-TV will revamp its weekday morning schedule beginning April 3 to provide housewives with an hour-long guide to health, charm and beauty. New format features "Consult Dr. Brothers" [illegible] Allen, exercise [illegible] Tips," and "Gateway to Glamour" . . . Dan Price, [illegible] host for WJR's [illegible] "Composite" show, has resigned to devote full time to graduate work in Russian studies and [illegible] Program now becomes "Showcase," with Jim Wood [illegible] "Composite" [illegible] John F. Patt, WXYZ prexy, for [illegible] . . . Shirley Eder, WJBK-TV [illegible] Elizabeth Taylor [illegible] "Cat on a Hot Tin Roof" for Academy [illegible] Moreau, of "Exodus." [illegible] For [illegible] week [illegible] Station has [illegible] the [illegible] George [illegible] exec at WXYZ [illegible]

IN PHILADELPHIA . . .

WFIL [illegible] from [illegible] U. S. [illegible] Ralph [illegible] Mrs. Moreau of "Exodus." [illegible] Station has [illegible] the [illegible] George [illegible] exec at WXYZ [illegible]

IN PITTSBURGH . . .

[illegible] Joe Tucker, [illegible] H. Needham Smith has resigned as [illegible] WHIRL, Wheeling. Cy Ackerman moves into his job [illegible] Ackerman's old job as regional sales [illegible] KDKA received [illegible] "St. [illegible] repeat [illegible] . . . Phil Marella [illegible] local sales manager [illegible] WIIC-TV, Erie [illegible] . . . Don Knotts, [illegible] Vic Suggs, were [illegible] at West Virginia [illegible] a detached [illegible] talked over an hour [illegible] Knotts found out about the film through program [illegible] Novak of KDKA-TV [illegible] coming on the Coast [illegible] the DuPont [illegible] and for "[illegible] policies which [illegible] the station's understanding of the interest, activities [illegible] community [illegible] responsible programming [illegible] variety of field" . . . Frank Snyder, general manager of WIIC [illegible] in Miami Beach.

IN CLEVELAND . . .

[illegible] at WERE as it [illegible] "Hoppy Radio" Out as disk [illegible] Phil McLean, Carl Rice and Bob Forster. Bill Randle, [illegible] from the field the week before. In with the new [illegible] shows and rocket noises — are George Harris, from WIKE in Springfield, O.; Jerry Miller of KONO, San Antonio, and Johnny McKinney, from KQV, Pittsburgh . . . Air editorials picking up as WNBC features several blasts made by its women's editor, Valena Williams . . . Joel Rose is [illegible] news editor of WHK. [illegible] WCUE. [illegible] Keith Morris is a new WHK disk jockey [illegible] WAIT Chicago . . . Tom Manning, sports broadcaster, returns back on the air March 4 on WAKR Akron.

IN CINCINNATI . . .

WCPO-TV paid tribute to Glenn Clark Miller, assistant general manager of Scripps-Howard Cincy stations, who died March 29, in a tribute program . . . Ed Kennedy, who departed WKRC to telecast Reds games on WLW-T, switched his evening sports show to WLW . . . Jack Iseman has resigned nightly sportscasts on WCPO-TV after his pro baseball season with Cincy Royals . . . Waite Hoyt and Jack Moran, [illegible] Reds' schedule on WKRC for Burger Beer, covering [illegible] events . . . Taft Broadcasting Co. promoted Ray Owen to [illegible] at WKRC-TV and Hugh LaCrosse to chief engineer of WKRC [illegible] and FM . . . Len Georian's variety show on WKRC-TV changes [illegible] p.m. after April 1.

IN MILWAUKEE . . .

WTMJ-TV, the Milwaukee Journal station, on "Women's World," hosted by station Beulah Donohue, starts televising a ten-week first aid course [illegible] 5. Milwaukee-Waukesha Red Cross Chapter participates and Gilbert R. Tills, Safety Services Director for the Chapter, will [illegible] Candidates for state-wide office in April 4 election [illegible] seeking time slots on Wisconsin State Broadcasting Service Network, with WHA-WHA-FM, Madison home port . . . WTMJ-TV [illegible] 30 minute filmed roadmap on U. S. Labor Secretary [illegible] brief Milwaukee stay last week . . . Kenneth E. Hegard, director of radio & television for Cramer-Krasselt Co., was named [illegible] of the Milwaukee advertising and public relations organization . . . Don Phillips, WRIT disk jockey turned vocalist, has his "Day In, Day Out" getting spins . . . The Wisconsin State High School Basketball Tournament championship game was telecast on WITI-TV

VARIETY ARB FEATURE FILM CHART

VARIETY-ARB's weekly chart offers a day-by-day analysis of the top feature evening slots in a particular market. On Saturdays and Sundays, daytime feature slots compete with nighttime pix periods for designation as the top feature slot of the day. The analysis is confined to the top rated feature slots in the ARB measured period, broken down by days in the week. The ARB measured period usually covers three or four weeks. Other data such as the time slot and average share of audience is furnished. Top competition and competitive ratings also are highlighted.

Chicago, Ill. • STATIONS: WBBM, WNBQ, WBKB. • SURVEY DATES: NOV 10-23, 1960.

WBKB — Average Rating: 10 — Average Share: 22

MONDAYS 10:00-11:30
Program: MOVIETIME USA

Nov. 14 "THREE FOR JAMIE DAWN"
Laraine Day, Ricardo Montalban, Richard Carlson, June Havoc
1956, Prestige, M&A Alexander, Repeat

Nov. 21 "LAST DAYS OF POMPEII"
Preston Foster, Alan Hale, Basil Rathbone, Louis Calhern
1935, RKO, TV Industries, Repeat

COMPETITION

PROGRAM	STATION & AVG. RATING
News, Sports, Weather 10:00-10:15	WBBM 32
News, Weather 10:00-10:15	WNBQ 13
News, J. Conway 10:00-10:30	WGN 11
Late Show 10:15-11:30	WBBM 5
Jack Paar 10:15-11:30	WNBQ 23
Big 10 Highlights 10:30-11:00	WGN 3
Festival Of Stars 11:00-11:30	WGN 1

WBBM — Average Rating: 9 — Average Share: 23

TUESDAYS 10:15-12:00
Program: LATE SHOW

Nov. 15 "TARZAN'S SAVAGE FURY"
Lex Barker, Dorothy Hart
1951, Banner, RKO, 1st Run

Nov. 22 "BLOOD ON THE SUN"
James Cagney, Sylvia Sidney
1945, Jayark, UA, Repeat

COMPETITION

PROGRAM	STATION & AVG. RATING
Jack Paar 10:15-12:00	WNBQ 22
Movietime USA 10:15-11:30	WBKB [illegible]
News, J. Conway 10:15-10:30	WGN 9
Chi. Bear Football 10:30-11:00	WGN [illegible]
Festival Of Stars 11:00-12:00	WGN [illegible]
Marty's Morgue 11:30-12:00	WBKB 3

WBBM — Average Rating: 10 — Average Share: 24

WEDNESDAYS 10:15-12:00
Program: LATE SHOW

Nov. 16 "COMRADE X"
Clark Gable, Hedy Lamarr
1940, MGM, MGM-TV, Repeat

"BILLY THE KID"
Robert Taylor, Brian Donlevy
1941, MGM, MGM-TV, Repeat

COMPETITION

PROGRAM	STATION & AVG. RATING
Jack Paar 10:15-12:00	WNBQ [illegible]
Movietime USA 10:15-11:30	WBKB 7
Marty's Morgue 11:30-12:00	WBKB [illegible]
News, J. Conway 10:15-10:30	WGN [illegible]
Sports Page [illegible]	WGN [illegible]
Festival Of Stars 11:00-12:00	WGN 1

WBBM — Average Rating: 10 — Average Share: 36

THURSDAYS 10:15-12:00
Program: LATE SHOW

Nov. 10 "FLIGHT COMMAND"
Robert Taylor, Walter Pidgeon
1940, MGM, MGM-TV, Repeat

17 "IT HAPPENED ONE NIGHT"
Clark Gable
1934, Screen Gems, Columbia, Repeat

COMPETITION

PROGRAM	STATION & AVG. RATING
Jack Paar 10:15-12:00	WNBQ 29
Movietime USA 10:15-11:30	WBKB 4
Marty's Morgue 11:30-12:45	WBKB 1
News, Playhouse 12:00-12:15	WNBQ 4
Pete, Playhouse 12:15-12:45	WNBQ 2
News, J. Conway 10:15-10:30	WGN 8
Wings, Stars 10:30-11:00	WGN 1
Festival Of Stars 11:00-12:00	WGN 1
Stars, Late News 12:15-12:30
Festival Of Stars 12:30-12:45	WGN 1

WBKB — Average Rating: 12 — Average Share: 23

FRIDAYS 10:00-11:30
Program: MOVIETIME USA

Nov. 11 "PASSION"
Cornell Wilde, Yvonne De Carlo
1954, Schubert, RKO, 1st Run

Nov. 18 "SONG OF INDIA"
Sabu, Gail Russell, Turhan Bey
1949, Screen Gems, Columbia, 1st Run

COMPETITION

PROGRAM	STATION & AVG. RATING
News, Sports, Weather 10:00-10:15	WBBM 24
News, Weather 10:00-10:15	WNBQ 12
News, J. Conway 10:00-10:30	WGN 9
Late Show 10:15-11:30	WBBM 13
Jack Paar 10:15-11:30	WNBQ 19
Play Of The Week 10:30-11:30	WGN 3

WBBM — Average Rating: 18 — Average Share: 45

SATURDAYS 10:00-12:15
Program: BEST OF CBS

Nov. 12 "GRAND HOTEL"
Greta Garbo, John Barrymore
1932, MGM, MGM-TV, 1st Run

Nov. 19 "GOODBYE MR. CHIPS"
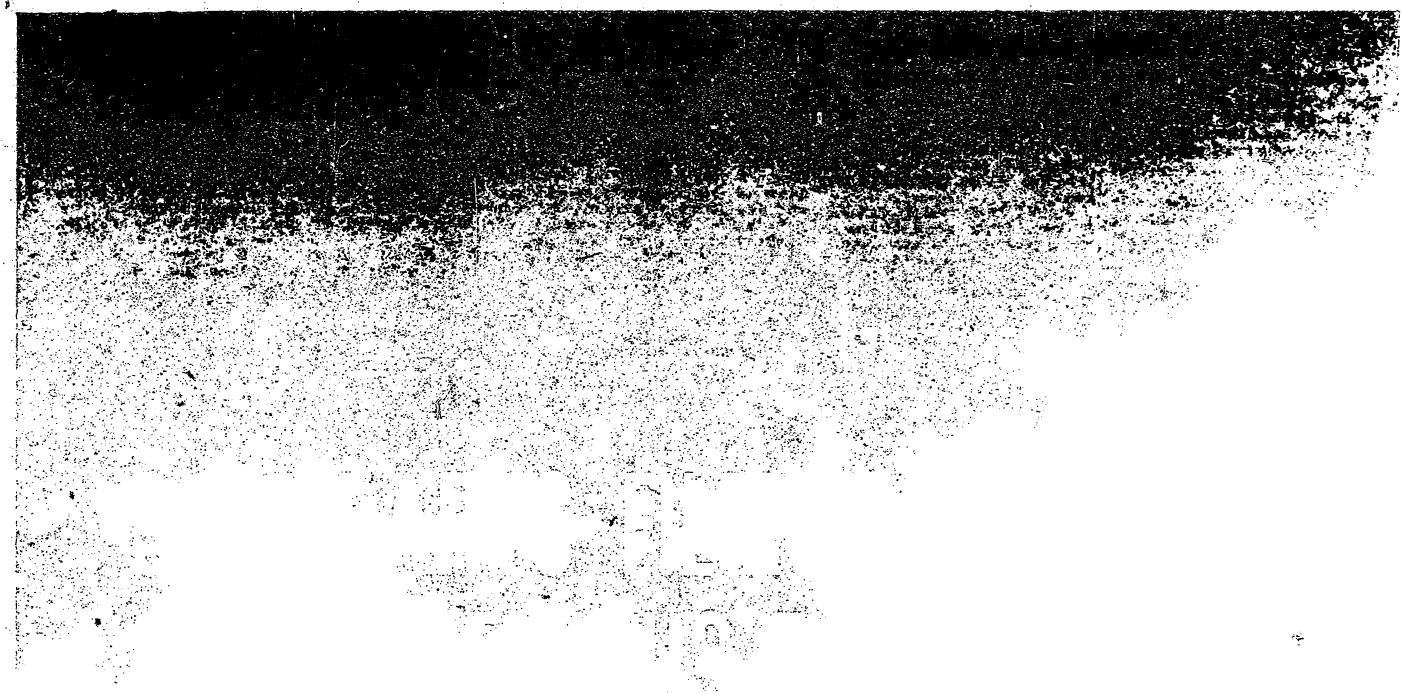
Robert Donat, Greer Garson
1938, MGM, MGM-TV, 1st Run

COMPETITION

PROGRAM	STATION & AVG. RATING
Movie 5 10:00-11:45	WNBQ 13
Movie 5, News 11:45-12:00	WNBQ 11
News, Wrestling 12:00-12:15	WNBQ 6
Chicago Bowling 10:00-11:00	WBKB 7
Wrestling 11:00-12:00	WBKB 4
Open End 12:00-12:15	WBKB 1
News, J. Conway 10:00-10:30	WGN 11
Divorce Court 10:30-11:30	WGN 5
Dateline, You're There 11:30-12:00	WGN 1
Feature Film 12:00-12:15	WGN 2

(Continued on page 42)



SATURDAY NIGHT JAN.-FEB.
ARB AVERAGE RATING—10:00-11:45

KSD (Gold Award Theatre)	RATING	SHARE
Showing "Films of the 50's"	22	46%
Station "B"	18	37%
Station "C"	6	13%
Station "D"	2	4%

The overwhelming superiority of Warner's "Films of the 50's" was demonstrated during the January 6-February 2 survey period in St. Louis. During this time, these Seven Arts feature films were telecast exclusively over KSD's "Gold Award Theatre" sponsored by Beautyrama, Inc.

They scored their high rating against two other feature film programs.

Beautyrama will continue to sponsor the "Gold Award Theatre" and will continue to telecast the Seven Arts' "Films of the 50's."

These recent films from Warner's library of big-star hits do as well against top network shows as they do against other feature films. Example: KTVU in San Francisco on Sunday night scored a smashing 36.2 share of audience, higher by 50% than the next best station, against such tough competition as Shirley Temple, Lassie, Dennis the Menace, Walt Disney and Maverick.

Warner's Films of the 50's . . . Money makers of the 60's

SAA

SEVEN ARTS ASSOCIATED CORP.

NEW YORK: 270 Park Avenue	YUkon 6-1717
CHICAGO: 8922-D La Crosse, Skokie, Ill.	OR 4-5105
DALLAS: 5641 Charlestown Drive	ADams 9-2855
BEVERLY HILLS: 232 Reeves Drive	GRanite 6-1564

For list of TV stations programming Warner's Films of the 50's see Page One SRDS (Spot TV Rates and Data)

TV Followup Comment

Continued from page 27

The "chock-full-of-Scotch" teacup bit should also stay in the act; it may not please some teetotallers but is a genuine and authoritative bit. Abel.

Twentieth Century

CBS-TV put the man-in-the-street on an international basis for the Sunday (26) "Twentieth Century" half hour to get a random sampling of what citizens of eight world capitals think of Americans.

Ground rules for the eight CBS newsmen conducting the filmed interviews were that their subjects had to speak English and should not have visited America. Except in London, the restrictions as to language naturally made the sampling bilingual and therefore upper strata, so it was little surprise that most of the opinions were restrained and reasoned.

Covering Moscow, London, Paris, Rome, Cairo, Tokyo, Bonn and Caracas, the correspondents used two queries: "When you think of America, what do you think of?" and "Where did you get your ideas?"

Most of the answers to the first question indicated a picture of America as a great leader in science, industry and culture. On the downbeat side, a Roman found Americans "perhaps too friendly"; an Englishman pictured the country as "violent" and "one mad rush;" South Americans and Far Easterners were critical of U.S. treatment of minority groups.

The one Moscow interviewee, however, envisioned America as "very beautiful" and expressed a hope that the Soviet and the U.S. could work out their differences, because he was certain the peoples of both countries were eager for peaceful friendship.

Anchored by host Walter Cronkite, the newsmen on the interviews were Marvin Kalb, Moscow; Alexander Kendrick, London; Lou Cioffi, Paris; Winston Burdett, Rome; Frank Kearns, Cairo; Peter Kalischer, Tokyo; Daniel Schorr, Bonn; and Richard Kallsen, Caracas. Bill.

John Crosby Show

Herb Mayes (McCall's), Norman Cousins (Saturday Review) and Arnold Gingrich (Esquire) were the editors on John Crosby's Sunday nighter on New York's Metropolitan outlet (WNEW-TV) in a discussion of current magazine standards. It evolved pretty much into a noblesse oblige success story and while the logrolling wasn't too obvious perhaps a less successful editor and/or publication might have made the difference. The focus wasn't too sharp on the end-result although all agreed that U.S. reading habits have escalated, this despite Crosby's aim to bristle his guests more by spotlighting the repetitive accent in magazine articles on "newsworthy" and "out-of-the-headlines" personalities, viz., Gabor, Paar, Godfrey, Liz Taylor et al.

Each of the editors was certain of one thing in common—complete editorial freedom without business-office interference, but this was modulated by recognition of mutual problems. Mayes sardonically reprised his "open-door" policy to all McCall's ad salesmen—they're "welcome to come in at any time providing it's on their hands and knees."

Crosby kept calling Saturday Review a "little" magazine—meaning in relation to the mass-circulation Esky, and McCall's — and Cousins kept identifying his weekly as a "smaller" magazine but did point up that the 10-year rise, from 20,000 to 250,000 circulation by SR, was evidence of "improved American reading habits." Gingrich cracked that Esquire may have adopted "of literature"—the former full title of SR—to beef-up his monthly, and lessening the cheesecake. (An audience questioner brought up Playboy vis-a-vis Esquire.) Abel.

Passover Festival

There was just nothing right with the "Catskill Summit Meeting" which was the Thursday (23) segment of WNTA-TV's (N. Y.) week-long "Passover Festival" series. Linking the holiday with four "borscht belt" comics had an ethnic relationship but little else, and in fact, at times it was embarrassing.

Using a format designed by David Susskind, N. Y. Herald Tribune columnist Hy Gardner brought together Gene Baylos, Jackie Miles, Phil Foster and Larry Best for a roundup of "borscht belt" reminiscences. The boys delivered several vignettes concerning their early days as mountain resort social directors, spoke of their boff routines and summed up the Catskills' contribution to show biz. It was routine patter that allowed for little humorous interjections.

The show went way off base on a suggestion by Gardner that the comics bring their ad-lib techniques to the fore in a hypothetical situation which brought Ed Sullivan and Jack Paar into the same room. He asked how the comics would handle their introductions to the Catskill audience. It was a touchy idea and fortunately Gardner decided to drop it but only after Foster got stuck as first at bat.

The Catskill Summit" contributed nothing to Passover and just succeeded in making a molehill out of a mountain. Gros.

WBAL-TV

Continued from page 2

rights but wanted time to review script and to consider a possible motion. Judge Thomsen granted the motion, saying he did so "without intimating any opinion" on whether the program would have any effect on final sentencing.

Program was presented Wednesday eve, following the Perry Como show, and was preceded during the day by a series of spots planted in earlier programs advising viewers to watch this "most important program" but never saying what it was.

It opened with Brent Gunts, station manager, announcing that this "couldn't happen in Russia," went on to the "moderator" who in turn shifted spotlight to nine jurors who sat around table, with water pitchers, glasses and pads before them as they reenacted discussion they'd had a month earlier in the jury room.

Obviously more self-conscious than they were when doing the real thing, the jurors for the first two-thirds of the program explained why they found Rees guilty, and then, in the last third, reenacted disagreement over whether the convicted man should be sent to the gas chamber. They finally compromised on simple verdict of guilty.

Further outcome of the reenactment was the disclosure that the FBI had opened an investigation of the program and by Saturday (25) afternoon, at least four of the nine who participated had been questioned.

Charles A. Gomer, foreman of the jury and one of those who appeared on the show, said he and the others were paid $1 each to do it. He said he was assured the program would be cleared with Federal attorneys but later learned that it was not. "If I had to do it over I certainly would not go on that program again," Gomer said.

Spokesmen for WBAL-TV at first said the show had been cleared by the "legal department" but after the court developments and FBI action followed, would make no further comment.

Local critics didn't get around to appraisal but New York Times' Jack Gould reached south and devoted his Saturday column to the show, stating that "the notion of making a public spectacle of a jury's role in a murder case is chilling in the extreme. The legal rights of a defendant, let alone the dignity of court procedure are not things to be broken through just to titillate the curiosity of the idle tv mob," he added, calling the show a "three-ring circus."

The program had been taped about a week earlier and displaced preannounced local special on unemployment in the State.

Rees was convicted of abducting Mrs. Mildred Jackson, 27, and her daughter, Susan, 5, from a road west of Richmond, taking them to a wooded spot near Gambrills, Md., and murdering them both on Jan. 11, 1959.

CBS Opens Door

Continued from page 17

nothing to do with these, in the future turning them over to the CBS-TV network. Finally, there's the area of public affairs, which covers a wide range of subject matter, some of which can be produced as capably by outside people as within the CBS staff. It's this "grey area" which Salant believes could be opened to competition, with "Hollywood" as a prime example.

He points out that this has always been his own view as a corporate staff v.p. at CBS and latterly as prexy of CBS News. Reminded, however, that this has not always been the policy of the news division, Salant, without conceding the point, declared that "it should have been."

Inside Stuff—Radio-TV

A one-hour special on the reasons for the trial of Adolph Eichmann and what Israel hopes to gain with the trial will be aired the week before the trial's start by WCBS-TV, the CBS-TV flagship in N. Y. Final date hasn't been set, but it will be a few days before the trial begins on April 11.

Station's assistant pubaffairs director, Ned Cramer, and its documentary producer, Warren Wallace, spent a couple of weeks in Israel filming interviews with government officials and ordinary Israeli citizens. Wallace will film more footage in N. Y. to get the views of American Jews on the trial and its implications.

Charles Collingwood will probably narrate the program.

Largest Canadian concert party to go overseas since end of World War II, the Canadian Broadcasting Corp. will send radio and tv entertainers to tour UN and NATO bases in France, West Germany and the Gaza Strip, 16-day appearances to teeoff on April 13 for 20 two-hour shows.

Nucleus of group will be the cast of "The Tommy Hunter Show," CBC radio series originating in Toronto and carried over a CBC network of 89 stations. This will include Tommy Hunter, Wally Traugott, Al Harris, Mike Ferby, Marc Wald and Jack Jensen. They will be joined by Joyce Hahn and Denyse Ange, singers; Sandra O'Neil and Sherry Moore, dancers; Peter Appleyard, vibraphonist. Gordie Tapp will emcee the show, with Ken Dalziel producing.

During the tour, 10 of the daily series of "The Tommy Hunter Show" will be taped and air-expressed to Toronto for radio broadcasting over CBC's Trans-Canada network from April 25 to May 4. Troupe will travel by Royan Canadian Air Force air transport, this arranged by the CBC and the Canadian Department of National Defense.

Alfred I. duPont 1960 Awards in radio and tv were announced at a dinner in Hotel Mayflower, Washington, last week with honors going to stations KDKA-TV, Pittsburgh, and WAVZ, New Haven, Conn., and ABC commentator Edward P. Morgan. All were cited in the 19th annual awards for "excellence of broadcasting in the public interest."

Dr. Fred C. Cole, prexy of Washington & Lee U. and chairman of the awards committee, praised KDKA and WAVZ for effective editorial comment which was given "added impact" by direct participation of top execs at both outlets. Morgan was cited for his willingness to take sides "in matters of controversy."

The stations, both previous winners, and Morgan received a plaque and a check for $1,000.

Atlanta television course designed to bring alive the teachings of and the life of Jesus debuted Saturday (25) via WSB-TV under sponsorship of Emory University's Community Education Service, Greater Atlanta Council of Churches and Georgia Council of Churches.

Program will run for 14 weeks on Saturdays, 7:30 to 8:30 a.m.

Course was produced by American University, Washington, D.C., and is taught by a Methodist minister, the Rev. Edward W. Bauman, who has been acclaimed by his home town critics as a "dynamic new video personality."

National Assn. of Broadcasters has asked Federal Communications Commission to give broadcasters until May 1 to comment on the controversial revision of application forms. Deadline is now set for April 3.

In its petition, NAB said: "Our preliminary information is to the effect that many broadcasters will wish to make their views known. This should be of considerable assistance to the Commission in its consideration of the important questions involved. It is believed, however, that a much more informative result may be achieved if more time is granted."

First meeting of the news directors of MetroMedia's stations has been set for April 3 and 4 at Washington's Hotel Raleigh. Martin Weldon, the company's newly named director of news and special events, will chair the meeting, to be attended by the news directors of four Met stations and its overall pubaffairs v.p., Mark Evans.

Battle For TV Facilities

Continued from page 17

Steubenville, Grand Rapids-Kalamazoo, Charlotte, Raleigh.

And so, with Treyz back home quarterbacking the flash plays and with the ABC station relation boys hitting the key target areas armed with enticing rating stories and even more attractive compensation deals (the kind that Taft couldn't resist in defecting CBS), the battle goes on.

It's ironic, after more than a year of concentrated effort in bearing down on the NBC affiliates, that the major ABC coup came from a CBS-affiliated group (Taft). But it merely served notice that neither NBC nor CBS is immune today from the Treyz bombardment. If NBC thus far has emerged unscathed (save for some clearances on key shows exacted by ABC), the fact remains that the toll on man hours as the NBC and CBS station relations boys engage in defensive maneuvers is reaching staggering proportions.

If things are relatively quiet today, it hardly means that a major storm won't brew up tomorrow. The stations can hardly be blamed for lending an ear to such ABC blandishments on reportedly break-even compensations deals, or the ABC Nielsen story testifying to the strengthening of its competitive position while (in ABC's own analysis of the rating story "the other networks have remained stationary." The stations'll want to hear more when the ABC-researched Nielsens cite that "ABC has increased its average audience by 9% (over last year) as against NBC's 3% and CBS' 2%; or the ABC-interpreted report on the entire season wherein "ABC has increased its average audience rating by 6%, NBC by 2% while CBS suffered a 4% decline in average rating."

Out of it ABC plucked a Taft taffy. Treyz is determined to get more.

GEN. SARNOFF'S TV STINT

Brig. Gen. David Sarnoff is going on tv today (Wed.) as interviewee on "The Dave Garroway Today Show," on NBC-TV.

RCA board chairman will discuss his contribution to the newly published book, "Prospect for America."

KING-SIZED RATINGS EVERYWHERE!

"RESCUE 8"

BINGHAMTON, 85% DES MOINES, 78% RICHMOND, 65%

Source: ARB, Nov. 1960

For Further Details Contact

SCREEN GEMS, INC.

TELEVISION SUBSIDIARY OF COLUMBIA PICTURES CORP.

711 Fifth Avenue, New York 22 PL 1-9432

NEW YORK DETROIT CHICAGO DALLAS HOLLYWOOD ATLANTA TORONTO

EVERY DAY ON EVERY CHANNEL TV

BROOKS COSTUMES

3 West 61st St., N.Y.C.-Tel. PL 7-5800

Television Division

Edward Petry & Co., Inc.

The Original Station Representative

BEST IN SPOT TV

KOB-TV	Albuquerque	KARK-TV	Little Rock	KPTV	Portland, Ore.
WSB-TV	Atlanta	KCOP	Los Angeles	WJAR-TV	Providence
KERO-TV	Bakersfield	WPST-TV	Miami	WTVD	Raleigh-Durham
WBAL-TV	Baltimore	WISN-TV	Milwaukee	WROC-TV	Rochester
WGR-TV	Buffalo	KSTP-TV	Minneapolis-St.Paul	KCRA-TV	Sacramento
WGN-TV	Chicago	WSM-TV	Nashville	WOAI-TV	San Antonio
WFAA-TV	Dallas	WNEW-TV	New York	KFMB-TV	San Diego
WNEM-TV	Flint-Bay City	WTAR-TV	Norfolk	WNEP-TV	Scranton-Wilkes Barre
KPRC-TV	Houston	KWTV	Oklahoma City	KREM-TV	Spokane
WDAF-TV	Kansas City	KMTV	Omaha	KVOO-TV	Tulsa

WE SAID 60,000,000
WE DELIVERED 62,500,000

THAT'S THE WAY IT IS WHEN YOU DO BUSINESS WITH
ABC RADIO

"How to hit 60,000,000 customers with one shot"; that's how we said it when we announced ABC's Radio exclusive coverage of the March 13th Patterson-Johannson title bout. 60,000,000 customers; that's how Mennen, Carling and Studebaker bought it. But here's how ABC delivered; with 550 stations throughout the U.S. and Canada with the greatest audience in advertising history, 62,500,000 strong. Still more proof that you always get the best of the bargain with ABC Radio.

ABC RADIO

NBC Showing Some Muscle

Continued from page 19

p.m. The Stanwyck "concession" to Culver forced NBC, which is relatively self-conscious about its image, to put its "image-making" specials somewhere on the sked—in this case Tuesday where a number of web execs felt it would (and it did) get clobbered by CBS' Garry Moore. They had felt Monday would give them a better chance to display their specials and get an audience, too, as more of a counter-programming move.

Bell Telephone demanded Fridays at 9 last season and over a few near-dead NBC bodies, got it. This, according to some impressions, left NBC with a weak lead-in for 10 to 11 the same night. "Michael Shayne" may never have made it anyway, but attitude today is that the action-adventure stanza's cause was in no small way hurt by the gentler musical nature of the Bell series.

General Cigar forced "The Deputy," which is high-priced and was the season before third in its time period, back into Saturdays at 9. Allegedly, in the weakening presence of third-placed "The Deputy," no other commercial bankroller was willing to take 9:30. Consequently, instead of putting the hour "Nation's Future" pub-affairs series at 10, as was originally hoped, the network felt compelled to move it up to 9:30.

In the way of change, NBC so far has turned down bids from General Mills for a Tuesday time period for "Father of the Bride" and from Pepsi-Cola for the Jane Powell series (it didn't want to budge "Cain's 100" from Tuesdays at 10). It's already dittoed "Rio," a Roncom production, for a Friday 8:30 anchorage, even though Brown & Williamson wanted the hour show right there. And putting Joey Bishop's new half-hour series in Wednesdays at 8:30, a show, incidentally, which NBC controls, was apparently a reverse act on former procedure at NBC. Seems the sponsors, Lever and American Tobacco, had their own ideas of what should follow "Wagon Train."

Reasons for the alteration in modus operandi at NBC-TV are many, but principally:

NBC got severely clobbered this season, even by its own admission, in "too many" time slots, although, interestingly, the network won in nine to 10 of the 25 or 26 slots where it was "in favor" of the programming used.

Since late last year, a new group of men has been assuming the strategic slots in the web. Program boss David Levy has been getting a new degree of support from the "team." Robert Stone recently took over a v.p.-general manager of the tv network. James Stabile returned from temporary duty as NBC's "top copy" (a position created in the wake of the quiz scandals) to become head man in contracts, making him one of the web's top negotiators. Then Stone brought in as administrative boss in programming an oldtime salesman, Ed Friendly. They've all held out for "the right program in the right slot."

Indirectly, NBC-TV lost revenue in failing to build up a lineup that satisfied itself. With most of the "concessions" originally having been made in the late-night slots (from 10 to 11), the stations got tired of waiting and demanded that 10:30 be returned to them. Due to many delays and the bending to bankrollers' wills, NBC figured it couldn't successfully program some of the 10:30 time periods, so the affils got four of them back. The fight for affils with ABC and CBS is certainly another reason why NBC decided to move "decisively" this year.

Perhaps pursuit of ABC "ideals" has also helped bring about a change in NBC. Foresaking sure sponsorships, ABC had, in past years, put in the stuff that its boys felt would achieve longrange "objectives." NBC, some of its own feel, is now considering, "not tomorrow, but the day after."

If NBC fails next season, it'll be because its own men picked the wrong shows, not because it let advertisers, with money to offer, talk them into stanzas against their better judgment.

German TV

Continued from page 18

tain a correspondent in Bonn for special events.

Bavarian Television plans to operate completely independently in its second channel, with a new director to be chosen shortly.

For the viewer, it means that a person living in Munich will be able to watch on the first channel exactly the same shows that are appearing throughout Germany, but those on the second channel will be locally originated and different from those appearing, for instance, in Hamburg, Frankfurt, Berlin or Cologne.

For the American television show producers this may mean a fairly lucrative new market. While the single stations running the second channels won't have as much money to pay for individual programs as the combined group operating the first channel, nonetheless it means a chance to sell the programs to many more outlets, since the general managers in various stations might buy the same program for different appearances.

However, it's anticipated that the entire second outlet will be offering only about 800 hours of programming a year. And with some time being used for local events like news and weather, there will be only a short period free for outside shows daily.

Meanwhile, the giant Freies Fernsehen Corp. that was set in motion by the federal government to produce the shows is apparently planning to sell much of its product, already in the can, to the new stations. It was all ready to go into operation with 13 weeks of shows finished, when the federal government got the nix from the highest court of the land.

It's expected, too, that some of the other German television production firms, set up in anticipation of the court move, such as Bertelsmann, Kindler and Tele-West, will be right in the scramble to sell shows.

One big query remains in the minds of the audience, of the advertisers and of the agencies in Germany—what's with commercials? Since the second program, like the first, is financed by the nation's five million television set owners, who plunk out five marks —$1.25—monthly to the federal post office for the privilege of viewing, there is plenty of money available to produce the net programs, so no real need for funds from commercials.

Right now, there is an almost unbelievable scarcity of commercial time available, on the first network, with commercial time soldout as much as 500% at the peak season. It was anticipated that the second channel would devote some of its time to commercial spots, but none of the outlets have as yet announced any plans along this line.

Mgt. William Morris Agency

PEARLS OF THE PACIFIC

★ DRUM DANCERS OF TAHITI ★

Currently FLAMINGO, Las Vegas

WEE MAC ATTRACTIONS

159 N. Dearborn, Chicago, Ill. AN 3-7140

VARIETY ARB FEATURE FILM CHART

(Continued from page 38)

WNBQ

Average Rating: 15
Average Share: 45

SUNDAYS 10:15-11:45
Program: MOVIE 5

Nov. 13 "BABAKA"
Boris Karloff, Victor Jory
1955, United Artists, UAA, 1st Run

Nov 20 "The NAKED STREET"
Anthony Quinn, Farley Granger, Anne Bancroft
1955, UA, UAA, 1st Run

COMPETITION

PROGRAM	STATION & AVG. RATING
Late Show 10:15-11:45	WBBM 9
Playboys Penthouse 10:15-11:15	WBKB 6
Movietime USA 11:15-11:45	WBKB 2
News, J. Conway 10:15-10:30	WGN 10
Festival Of Stars 10:15-11:45	WGN 3

Ed Murrow

Continued from page 18

White House intervention. Presidential Press Secretary Pierre Salinger confirmed it was he who formulated with CBS-TV the disclaimer used by BBC-TV at the beginning and end of the British telecast which pointed out Murrow had done the show as a private employee of CBS-TV and before he was appointed to the U.S.I.A. post. And Salinger added CBS had promised not to offer the show abroad on a general basis and to "review" each foreign sale individually.

Murrow was rapped immediately for his action from several quarters among them CBS itself. Network, via CBS News prexy Dick Salant, declared that "Harvest," as "a news report," is available "after publication by broadcast, for worldwide circulation just as in any newspaper or magazine. To deny overseas subscribers the use of the news report would be inconsistent with basic principles of freedom of information and full circulation of news."

Also in the anti-Murrow quarter —perhaps the first time their views have been at variance—was the American Civil Liberties Union which branded his action as "attempted official censorship." ACLU declared that any subservience to the Senate by Murrow "will severely damage if not completely destroy at home and abroad the validity of your pledge that U.S.I.A. policy will be to tell the truth, both good and bad."

Ratings

Continued from page 19

users to have the main responsibility for decision made on the basis of ratings."

2. Ratings are manipulated by stations putting on special programs or contests as "hypoing" techniques. The report said of this that "the policies of the services are all in the direction of extending surveys over long enough period so that the cost of 'hypoing' may become too large to become economically feasible for the station."

3. Ratings are "instrinsically evil" because they lead to programs appealing to emotions which aren't "socially satisfactory." The report said: "This complaint is outside the scope of this committee, except that we feel that abolishing the ratings does not really contribute to a solution of this problem."

Among recommendations made by the ASA group was for establishment of an industry-wide organization to study and promote research on rating methods. "There seems a lack of serious methodological research on ratings and their uses in the broadcast industry," the report contended.

However, idea of an overall single rating service for broadcasting was pointedly rejected.

Specific criticism of the services included:

Failure to publish or make available to clients sufficiently detailed descriptions of their methods.

Failure to provide enough information in their pocket pieces and reports on the accuracy with which their rating estimates approximate the values estimated.

Failure to provide enough information on the composition of audiences surveyed.

As for "potentially important sources of error" in rating methods, these were listed as: use of phone directories and the question of how equally phones are distributed geographically and economically; use of diaries and the question of whether they are kept accurately or whether the group that agrees to keep them is representative; use of meters and the question of whether programs are actually watched as well as whether the group which agrees to take them is representative.

Harris emphasized that while the rating services appeared to do a good job on the network level, the local rating surveys were something else. "Decisions on local programming might be quite different if improvements in local rating surveys were made," he said.

Harris' overall comment on the report was: "It is a useful contribution toward solving the tremendously complex and difficult problem of how the airwaves can best be used in the public interest—avoiding censorship or excessive governmental control on the one hand, and excessive commercialism on the other."

Harris said his committee has not yet formally decided whether it will hold hearings on ratings, that this would be determined whether the unit's program for this session is shaped later.

Proxy Row

Continued from page 22

period to pay, we believe, the costs of the NTA debacle.

"In 1959 our company issued over $12,000,000 of its debentures for 88% of the stock of National Telefilm Associates (NTA). A few months later this more than $12,000,000 investment was written down by our accountants by $7,500,000 by charging this amount against earned surplus. In addition, in the same year, our company suffered a loss of $1,036,605 on the same investment."

After making further charges about the NTA investment, the proxy statement alleged: "In our opinion, another wonderful purchase like that and our company would be close to bankruptcy!"

Davis seeks to elect two directors to the NT&T board, himself and Handsman, to act as a "watchdog" on NT&T affairs. He would also like to institute an investigation of corporate affairs by an accounting firm having no association with the firm, "with particular regard to transaction between our company and its subsidiaries, and members of their board of directors and officers and other companies or firms in which the aforesaid directors and office holders have had any interest."

Davis' statement made a number of allegations regarding "self-dealing" by directors of NT&T and NTA.

ABC's Bill

Continued from page 1

"The Good Years," with Leland Hayward as producer.

"Destry" may be the other 90-minute show, but that doesn't seem to be certain. In any event, ABC will have four other Westinghouse programs in hour form. First will be with Meredith Willson, then an "Old Fashioned Thanksgiving" specially produced by Robert Saudek and an Xmas-time version of "Nutcracker Suite." Last ABC show will be on March 16, 1962, special on the Department Winter Carnival.

NBC-TV will have six Westinghouse specials—two Chet Huntley hours, two David Brinkley hours and two entertainment programs not yet chosen.

and two entertainment programs, one of which will be the Hubbell Robinson's "Sound of The 60s" with Dore Schary producing.

WNBQ

Continued from page 19

give over so much of its on-the-air promo time to the buildup is that news is practically its only form of live local programming.

In that crucial 10 p.m. news race, Kalber rates third according to both Nielsen and ARB, behind Fahey Flynn on WBBM-TV and Alex Dreier on WBKB. Fact that Dreier in his new situation maintains about the same rating he used to get at WNBQ prompts Frank Jordan, NBC news director in Chi., to opine that "the only ratings that are going to improve at 10 o'clock are ours (WNBQ's)."

Incidentally, Jordan has been auditioning prospects for the fourth on-the-air berth at WNBQ and is having trouble finding a man who is steeped in news background and can project a winning personality on the cathode tube.

Charlotte, N.C.—Sale of WORD Radio, Spartanburg, to Henderson Belk, Charlotte, has been announced by R. A. Jolley, Greenville, president of WORD and its parent company WMRC, Inc. Ray Stanfield, formerly general manager of WIST (also a Belk interest) is v.p and general manager of the Belk Radio Properties.

EMMETT KELLY

Mgt.: LEONARD GREEN
300 E. 51st St., New York
PL 2-1764

PENTHOUSE FOR RENT

WESTOVER HOTEL
253 W. 72 St., New York City

Four large rooms on 24th floor with exceptionally large private terrace and fully equipped kitchen.

This striking suite is ideal for club, fraternal organization, theatrical offices, dance studio, etc. $400 per month. Brokers Protected.

EN 2-9600

The ADVENTURES of OZZIE and HARRIET

TONIGHT—Channel 7, ABC—TV—8:30 P.M.

DON'T MISS DAVID AND RICKY IN THE MOST HILARIOUS FIGHT SEQUENCE EVER FILMED!

KARATE-RICKY NELSON and BRUCE TEGNER

WRESTLING-DAVID NELSON and JACK ELLENA

NO DOUBLES-
No Trick Photography

Sponsored by The Coca-Cola Co. and The Eastman Kodak Co.

Jocks, Jukes and Disks

By MIKE GROSS

Larry Verne (Era): "ABDUL'S PARTY" (Pattern-Balladeer*) is a wild, noisy item full of the sounds and the jokes that appeal to the kids, and despite everything will probably go far. "TUBBY TILLY" (Bamboo-Jat*) has the rhythmic drive that could keep the juke crowd interested.

Johnny Mathis (Columbia): "JENNY" (Nomat*) salutes another femme name in warm ballad terms but it's not a stickout item. "YOU SET MY HEART TO MUSIC" (Ross-Jungnickel*) is just a fair ballad out of the short-lived "13 Daughters" tuner that Mathis can't help.

Frank Sinatra (Capitol): "SENTIMENTAL BABY" (Barton*) is built along the ballad grooves that Sinatra hits so well but it will be a hard spinning push. "MY BLUE HEAVEN" (Fest*) shines again with a brisk vocal that will give the Sinatra programmers another side to toy with.

Tony Orlando (Epic): "LONELY TOMORROWS" (Aldon) has all the rocking ingredients that appeal to the teeners and should get a good spinning exposure because of it. "HALFWAY TO PARADISE" (Aldon) wraps up everything the teeners like in music today in a pre-packed tune-artist disk.

Merv Griffin (Carlton): "THE CHARANGA" (Mansion*) is a happy entry into the current Latino dance trend and will lighten up some of the dreary programming time. "ALONG CAME JOE" (Sequence*) has a ballad lilt and a vocal touch that will win it a starting spin.

The Rollers (Liberty): "THE CONTINENTAL WALK" (Roosevelt*) gets an energetic version that will give Hank Ballard's King slice a run for the money in some areas. "I WANT YOU SO" (Westfield*) is a blues rocker that hasn't anything new to say.

Debbie Reynolds (Dot): "LONELY PEOPLE" (American*) is a rocking ballad item that's toned down by the delivery but the name attraction may give it a spinning swing. "JUST A LITTLE GIRL" (Carrie*) is a sweetened up ballad with a sugary vocal but it won't stick to the turntables.

Eddie Heywood (Mercury): "MOUNTAINS ON THE MOON" (Remick*) is shaped for another spinning run with this lively vocal group treatment.

The Revels (Palette): "I MET MY LOST LOVE" (Compton*) meets all the ballad-harmony requirements for the young disk fans and they will give it a spinning fling. "OH HOW I LOVE YOU" (Compton*) has the spirited rocking flair that manages to keep many teeners happy.

Joe Sherman Orch (Kapp): "LA-PACHANGA" (Peer*) is still another addition to the flow of this new Latino dance craze and it should spin along easily with all the others. "TAKE CARE" (Ashland*) is an okay entry for programmers who lean towards instrumental material with an orchestral bounce.

Don Cornell (Roulette): "THE FLYING TRAPEZE" (Words & Music*) swings with a vocal dash that deserves a spinning try. "WISH I WAS" (Planetary*) has a ballad pattern that's developed nicely by a sincere vocal handling but it has an iffy spinning feature.

*ASCAP. *BMI.

LAWRENCE WELK

Features FRANK SCOTT'S Harpsichord on a Great New Dot Album and "Single" "CALCUTTA" ...Following his Top-Hit "Last Date!"

Best Bets

PERCY FAITH ORCH ..... BILBAO SONG
(Columbia) ..... Lovers Prelude

Percy Faith Orch's "Bilbao Song" (Harms) puts the attractive Kurt Weill melody in a strong orch setting that will wear it top play all over. "Lover's Prelude" (Marpet*) is a pleasing row-to-row instrumental that's okay for a quiet programming format.*

* * *

CONWAY TWITTY ..... THE NEXT KISS
(MGM) ..... Man Alone

Conway Twitty's "The Next Kiss" (Plus Two-Moorpark) blends a tempo-swing vocal styling with a hot beat to sustain his spinning score. "Man Alone" (MGM*) has a country blues beat that will attract pop play.*

* * *

HANK BALLARD & THE MIDNIGHTERS CONTINENTAL WALK
(King) ..... What Is This I See

Hank Ballard & The Midnighters' "The Continental Walk" (Roosevelt) has a rhythmic drive and the vocal shout that can't help but down in into payoff spins. "What Is This I See" (Lois*) is a snappy shaped item pegged for some juke approval.*

* * *

THE WANDERERS ..... FOR YOUR LOVE
(Cub) ..... Sally Goodheart

The Wanderers' "For Your Love" (Beechwood) is fashioned along good ballad lines that are strengthened by a spinning take-over with a slick vocal presentation. "Sally Goodheart" (Baltor-Morpark*) could swing up a lovely spinning score on the juke circuit.*

* * *

THE BROWNS ..... ANGEL'S DOLLY
(RCA Victor) ..... Ground Hog

The Browns' "Angel's Dolly" (Archie) has the scrupy sadness that's in so many songs and it can't help but go far in all circles. "Ground Hog" (Lois*) runs at a spirited country-styled pace.*

* * *

FERLIN HUSKEY ..... WHAT GOOD WILL I EVER BE (Capitol) ..... Before I Lose My Mind

Ferlin Huskey's "What Good Will I Ever Be" (Tree) is tasteful country ballad lines but it has far-reaching impact to pull it out of pop top. "Before I Lose My Mind" (Moss-Rose*) could be picked up by the pop jocks, too, because of it's appealing country flavor.*

* * *

ROY ORBISON ..... RUNNING SCARED
(Menument) ..... Love Hurts

Roy Orbison's "Running Scared" (Acuff-Rose) pounds away at a strong beat and a pertinent vocal that will help it take over. "Love Hurts" (Acuff-Rose*) is a slick-styled country weeper that could work out in some pop areas.*

* * *

JERRY MURAD'S HARMONICATS THEME FROM HIPPODROME
(Columbia) ..... Tuxedo Junction

Jerry Murad's Harmonicats' "Theme From Hippodrome" (Gilbert) is intriguing melodic lines that the gifty developed by the harmonica delegation to give it a payoff potential. "Tuxedo Junction" (Lewis*) is revived with an enchanting harmonica flair.*

* * *

STAN ROBINSON ..... THE EXODUS OF PEPE
(Amy) ..... North, South, East, West

Stan Robinson's "The Exodus of Pepe (From the Misfits' Sounds)" (Aldon) sets the nostalgic picture musical theme treed in with guitars and should close the spinners' market. "North, South, East, West" (Aldon*) is pointed in folk directions with a rhythm backbeat that can win an occasional spin.*

Album Reviews

Hugo Montenegro Orch: "Overture . . . American Musical Comedy Theatre" (Time). This is an ambitious four-volume project that attempts to cover the showtune field from 1924 to 1960. There are bound to be some carpers about what's been put in and what's been left out but on the overall it does give the sound buffs a solid sampling of Broadway offerings through almost three decades. It's not easy to say why Bobby Shad, who produced the series, gave one song to "Camelot" and four to "Finian's Rainbow" but it's his choice and it's a small quibbling point depending on taste. In all, it's a good showtune roundup for the audiophiles who go for the way Hugo Montenegro builds up each tune with a 70-piece orch. It's a Sardi-set sampler that will go well all over. Stanley Green and Edward Jablonski share the liner note assignments and each has supplied a brief but historically effective view of the shows.

Peter Nero: "Piano Forte" (RCA Victor). The RCA Victor label has an answer to Kapp Records' Roger Williams. Keyboarder Peter Nero should take Victor along the same best-selling path. He has a schmaltzy Steinway style and he builds a lot of new interest as he works over such familiar and ever-popular items as "I Can't Get Started," "Night and Day," "My Funny Valentine" and "Over the Rainbow."

David Rose Orch: "Theme From 'Butterfield 8' and Other Great Songs"-"Theme From 'Cimarron' and Other Great Songs" (MGM). The diskery is stretching a point in trying to build a marquee lure for these two packages. Its selling point is on pic title themes but it's not strong enough. David Rose supplies some lush instrumental interpretations but when the buyer picks up the "Cimarron" album, for example, and finds it surrounded by "Ca C'est L'amour" and "I'm Glad I'm Not Young Anymore," he's bound to be disappointed.

Don Morrow: "Grimm's Hip Fairy Tales" (Roulette). The unfortunate thing about "hip talk" is that it's become square. Therefore, Don Morrow's hip delineation of "Hansel and Gretel," "The Shoemaker and the Elves" and "Rumpelstilts Kin" won't mean anything to the "in's" or the "out's." It's like had it. There's some original jazz compositions on the flip side, with the Mort Lindsay orch blowing, but it falls to make any particular point.

Sam Lightnin' Hopkins: "Lightnin' In New York" (Candid). This is another firstrate entry by this young jazz label, a subsid of Cadence Records. Sam Lightnin' Hopkins, one of the last of the great country blues singers, is caught here in his most evocative forms, delivering with a power and a directness peculiar to these early jazz, or pre-jazz performers. Accomping himself on guitar and piano, Hopkins is standout on his long workover of "The Trouble Blues," his "Wonder Why, Mister Charlie" commentary and the blues purity of "Your Own Fault, Baby, To Treat Me The Way You Do," among other of his own numbers.

"Wisdom" (Decca). Selected from the NBC-TV series of this title, this double LP set brings to the turntables a gallery of remarkable self-portraits in words of eight elder wise men of our times. Included are conversations with David Ben-Gurion, the late Frank Lloyd Wright, Bertrand Russell, Sean O'Casey, Carl Sandburg, Dr. Harlow Shapley, Jawaharlal Nehru and Jacques Lipchitz. The range is vast, and the ideas are brilliantly expressed. This package is as intellectually stimulating as the original tv series.

Diahann Carroll: "Fun Life" (Atlantic): Diahann Carroll's many vocal facets are brought into sharp focus in her initial LP bow for Atlantic. After a fling with RCA Victor and the United Artists labels, Miss Carroll seems to have settled down here and runs off a repertoire that's consistantly interesting. The title song is taken from "The Nervous Set," that ill-fated musical by Fran Ladesman & Tommy Wolf but it's supported by items from Irving Berlin, George & Ira Gershwin, John Latouche and Vernon Duke, Jerry Ross & Dick Adler and Frank Loesser & Frederick Hollander. Peter Matz rates a bow for his vivid arranging-conducting chores.

June Christy-Bob Cooper: "Do Re Mi" (Capitol). The Jule Styne-Betty Comden-Adolph Green score for the current legituner "Do Re Mi" is touched up for the swing set by June Christy and Bob Cooper who leads an all-star crew. Miss Christy handles the lyrics on such as "Cry Like The Wind," "Make Someone Happy" and "I Know About Love" and she gets a breezy reading to "All You Need Is A Quarter" to make it stick out. Cooper, who alternates on bass clarinet and tenor sax, gets sock qualities into "Adventure," "Fireworks" and "It's Legitimate".

The Elmer Snowden Quartet: "Harlem Banjo" (Riverside). Here is a free-wheeling display of a spirited banjo styling. Elmer Snowden plunks away with a rollicking drive that captures and sustains interest. "It Don't Mean A Thing," "Diga Diga Doo," "C-Jam Blues" and "Twelfth Street Rag" are some of the delights to be found in this package. Cliff Jackson supports on piano; Tommy Bryant on Bass, and Jimmy Crawford on drums.

Gros.

DE ANGELIS GIVING UP ROCKING FOR CLASSICS

Peter DeAngelis is exiting his four-year partnership with Bob Marcussi in the management of singers Frankie Avalon and Fabian and in the ownership of Chancellor Records and two publishing firms, Rambed and Debmar. Overall firm, known as MDB Enterprises, will continue under Marcussi with Russ Faith taking over the artists & repertoire chores handled by DeAngelis.

DeAngelis is returning to the longhair field, having just completed a symphonic work. He's going abroad to study in France and Italy but will continue to write pop songs and arrangements for the two rock 'n' roll singers, Avalon and Fabian, whom he helped launch.

FRANK MILITARY HEADS EASTMAN'S PUB FIRMS

Music biz attorney Lee Eastman is building up his publishing activities. Eastman has brought in Frank Military to take over as general manager for the Chério (BMI), Warock (ASCAP) and Korwin (ASCAP) firms. Eastman acquired the Korwin catalog last month in a buy from Mike Stewart and songwriter Robert Allen.

Military exited as professional manager's slot at Bregman, Vocco & Conn to take over the new post. Before the BVC assignment, he was associated with Frank Sinatra.

Longplay Shorts

Shelley Berman, MGM Verve disker, on a string of one-nighters in the west from April 7-May 11. Sol Handwerger, label's publicity topper is coordinating local promotion tieups in the towns Berman will play . . . Charles Murphy, Grand Award-Command art chief awarded a citation from the Art Directors' Club of N.Y. for his cover design on "The Persuasive Percussion of Urbie Green". . . Bobby Bell will cut a comedy album for the Jubilee label . . . Candid Records has four albums on tap this month. Featured are the Toshiko-Mariano Quartet, Lightnin' Hopkins, trumpeter Don Ellis and trumpeter Benny Bailey . . . Bobby Hackett makes his Columbia LP bow with "Dream Awhile" . . . The Grand Award label received a citation from the U.S. Dept. of Commerce for "outstanding service." GA stereo albums were played in 1960 at international exhibits by the Office of International Trade Fairs . . . Joe Reisman is preparing Jimmie Rodgers next folk album for Roulette release . . . Leopold Stokowski has cut Prokofiev's Fifth Symphony for Bruno Hi-Fi Records . . . New distributors in Audio Fidelity's network are the Onandaga Supply Co., Syracuse, and Huffine Distributing Co., Seattle.

RCA Victor is putting out 14 pop LPs for April, including sets by Frankie Carle, The Three Suns, Hugo Winterhaller, Esquivel, The Belafonte Folk Singers, The Browns and the debut of the First Percussion Sextet. Victor has also called a group of old Bix Biederbecke sides for a collector's item package, including one never before released Bix side of "I Didn't Know" with the Jean Goldkette orch . . . Decca Records gearing its field staff this week for an allout push on the new Brenda Lee LP, "Emotions," which is being promoted with the disk jockeys via voice tracks recorded by Miss Lee and with dealers via a special one-day deal today (Wed.).

MPHC Picks Up Rights To 'Donnybrook' Score

The Music Publishers Holding Corp. Warner Bros. publishing arm, is taking another crack at a show score. The firm has nabbed the upcoming "Donnybrook," an adaptation of "The Quiet Man" film for which Johnny Burke has written words and music. The book is by Robert McEnroe.

The original cast album of the show already has been placed with Kapp Records. Dave Kapp, diskery's prexy, incidentally, is co-producing the musical with Fred Hebert. It's understood that the publishing firm put up some loot in the show's backing to grab the publishing rights.

MPHC's last Broadway venture was with the Sammy Fain-Paul Francis Webster score for "Christine," which was a fast fold last season. Firm's wrapup of the tuner marks the second film-affiliated company to grab the rights to a Broadway score. The other is the Big Three, Metro's publishing arm, which has the rights to Bob Merrill's "Carnival!" which is currently on its pre-Broadway tryout.

ANYTHING GOES IN POP MARKET

NARAS 'Grammy' Award Nommations For 1960 Cover 39 Disk Categories

The nominations for the National Academy of Recording Arts & Sciences' "Grammy" awards were sent out to the membership last week. The winners will be announced April 12 with special fests in N.Y. at the Hotel Astor and on the Coast at the Beverly Hills Hotel. Following is a list of the nominations in the top group of the 39 categories covered by the NARAS awards.

Record of the Year

"Are You Lonesome Tonight?"—Elvis Presley (Victor).
"Georgia On My Mind"—Ray Charles (ABC-Paramount).
"Mack the Knife"—Ella Fitzgerald (Verve).
"Nice 'N Easy"—Frank Sinatra (Capitol).
"Theme of Summer Place"—Percy Faith (Columbia).

Album of the Year

"Belafonte Returns to Carnegie Hall"—(Victor).
"Brahms Concerto"—S. Richter (Victor).
"Button Down Mind"—Bob Newhart (Warner Bros.).
"Nice and Easy"—Frank Sinatra (Capitol).
"Turandot"—Erich Leinsdorf (Victor).
"Wild Is Love"—Nat Cole (Capitol).

Song of the Year

"He'll Have to Go."
"Nice and Easy."
"Second Time Around."
"Theme From a Summer Place."
"Theme From Exodus."

Best Vocal Performance Single Record or Track—Female

Doris Day—"Sound of Music."
Eileen Farrell—"I Got a Right to Sing the Blues."
Ella Fitzgerald—"Mack the Knife."
Brenda Lee—"I'm Sorry."
Peggy Lee—"I'm Gonna Go Fishing."

Best Vocal Performance Album—Female

Rosemary Clooney—"Clap Hands, Here Comes Rosie."
Ella Fitzgerald—"Ella in Berlin-Mack the Knife."
Peggy Lee—"Latin a La Lee."
Miriam Makeba—"
Della Reese—"Della."

Best Vocal Performance Single Record or Track—Male

Ray Charles—"Georgia On My Mind."
Johnny Mathis—"Misty."
Elvis Presley—"Are You Lonesome Tonight?"
Jim Reeves—"He'll Have to Go."
Frank Sinatra—"Nice and Easy."

Best Vocal Performance Album—Male

Harry Belafonte—"Belafonte Returns to Carnegie Hall."
Ray Charles—"Genius of Ray Charles."
Nat "King" Cole—"Wild Is Love."
Elvis Presley—"G.I. Blues."
Frank Sinatra—"Nice and Easy."

Best Arrangement

Don Costa—"Theme From The Apartment."
Percy Faith—"Theme From Summer Place."

Continued on page 48)

Col's Lieberson Over 100G in 1960

Goddard Lieberson, Columbia Records prez, drew a $75,000 salary in 1960 with $10,000 added compensation and $30,000 deferred. According to a Columbia Broadcasting System proxy report, Lieberson also had $24,120 in the company's pension fund.

Under the CBS stock option plan, Lieberson purchased 200 shares on July 17, 1957 at the option price of $22.55. The highest sales price on that date was $32. On Jan. 6, 1959, the diskery prez bought 7,993 shares at $21.26. Highest price on that day was $36.125.

Finkelstein, Kaye In Copyright Symposium

Herman Finkelstein, ASCAP's general counsel, and Sydney M. Kaye, BMI board chairman, will discuss the relationship of performing rights societies to the American composer and artist at Vanderbilt U. in Nashville April 17 as part of a study of copyright law in the music industry. Sigmund Timberg, former special assistant to the U.S. attorney general, will also participate in the panel.

Other Vanderbilt copyright study programs will have such speakers as George D. Cary, general counsel of the U.S. Copyright Office; Walter J. Derenberg, N.Y.U. law professor and president of the Copyright Society of the U.S.A.; Sidney A. Diamond, disk company lawyer; Joseph A. McDonald, of the firm of Smith, Hennessey & McDonald; and Leonard Zissu of the firm of Zissu, Marcus, Ebonstein and Stein.

Valando Back to Coast

Arthur Valando, veepee of Tommy Valando's Laurel, Sunbeam and Valando Music firms, is returning to the Coast to reopen the company's offices there.

According to Valando, a Coast office will not only help in the promotion of their scores but will put them in direct contact with tv and film people as well. Valando publishes the scores to "Fiorello," "Tenderloin" and "Little Mary Sunshine."

Mitch Miller LPs In Sales Bonanza Via Video Plugs

Mitch Miller's "Sing Along" show on NBC-TV, which is getting a regular slot on the network next season on the basis of its rating since it bowed a couple of months ago, is making a powerful impact on his series of Columbia LP platters by the same title. While consistent clicks before the tv show was on, the 10 Miller "Sing Along" LPs, exclusive of a Christmas package, are now outselling everything else in the Columbia catalog combined.

During February, Columbia sold over 500,000 copies of the Miller LPs, reflecting the influence of the tv show. Dealers are now buying the Miller albums three months supply in advance where they once bought for a week. The Miller LP sales impact is now outstripping that of Johnny Mathis when he had a half-dozen LPs riding for him at one time.

The Miller LP bonanza represents one of the few times that television has been a vital factor in disk sales. In the single field, there was "Let Me Go Lover" with Joan Weber several years ago for Columbia when Miller was masterminding the artists & repertoire department. That overnight click, as a result of a showcase on a dramatic show, has not been repeated since as a result of a tv plug.

ABC-PAR BOWS OUT OF '13 DAUGHTERS' LP

ABC-Paramount will wait for another chance to make its entry into the original cast album field. Firm bowed out of its commitment to record "13 Daughters," which would have been the diskery's initial crack in the Broadway tuner sweepstakes.

The disk company, which put up about $25,000 in the show, had until Thursday (23) to notify the producers as to whether it would put the tuner into the groove. With a closing notice up for a Saturday (25) fold, disk company prexy Sam Clark bowed out of the deal. It's the second tuner this season that had a disk company tie diamond because of an early closing. The other was "The Conquering Hero," which RCA Victor had.

The "13 Daughters" score was written by Eaton Magoon Jr. and published by Ross-Jungnickel, a subsid. firm of Jean and Julian Aberbachs. The Aberbachs, incidentally, also had a substantial investment in the musical.

New MGM Engineer

Frank Greenwald has joined the MGM-Verve engineering staff. He'll work under the supervision of Robert Doherty who heads the label's engineering department.

Greenwald served in the U.S. Air Force specializing in radar and electronic research and was associated with Gotham Recording Studios prior to his new assignment.

KIDS BUYING ALL STYLES

The pop music biz, after 10 years of riding almost exclusively on the rock 'n' roll beat, has now become an unpredictable kaleidoscope of musical stylings. Any tune and any artist can break through today in any idiom, whether vocal or instrumental, ballad or novelty, hot or sweet. "The only definite trend in the current market," according to Hugo (Peretti) & Luigi (Creatore), RCA Victor's indie producing team, "is that there is no trend."

Every pop disk is still being aimed at the teenagers, but this market of 12 to 18 years old, according to Hugo and Luigi, has become much more far-ranging in its demands than it was a few years ago. "Every day brings a brand new challenge to the disk creator and any artist & repertoire man who is banking on the formula of studying the charts to determine his next record should be advised to close down his shop because today's best sellers say nothing about tomorrow' hits."

The same holds true for virtually every artist, with the possible exception of Elvis Presley who is unique in commanding an automatic big sale. All other singers, including those coming off a hit with a new release, are facing a market in which past performance is a negligible factor. "The artist has to deliver every time out or else the kids won't bite at all," Hugo & Luigi said.

The fact that Lawrence Welk, never before a teenage idol, could hit with "Calcutta" indicates the freewheeling nature of the young disk buyers. They are taking to the Ferrante & Teicher's along with The Shirelles, a Steve Lawrence along with a Johnny Burnette, a Bill Black Combo along with a

(Continued on page 48)

Ad Jingle Coin Lures Disk Cos. And Vice Versa

The distance between Tin Pan Alley and Madison Ave. is getting smaller. More and more diskers are spreading into the musical commercial field and more and more jingle outfits are going into the disk biz.

Among the latest diskers to branch into adsville are Sonny Lester and Len Levy, who recently formed Modern Sound Inc. designed to the production of original sounds and music for radio-tv commercials. Lester, who simultaneously runs Gold Eagle Records, was formerly artists & repertoire director for Coral, Dot and Top Rank. Levy had been sales manager for Coral, Hanover-Signature and Top Rank.

Among the Madison Ave.-ites to take a stab and disk production is Music Makers, one of the largest of the jingle houses. Another jingle agency that recently entered the diskery sweepstakes is Forrell, Thomas & Polack Assoc., who formed FTP Records.

Biever & Stein Productions Curt and Lou), Raymond Scott (The Jingle Workshop), Satisfiers Productions (the former vocal combo which is now exclusively in radio-tv commercial productions), Sy Schaeffer, who just recently went into the jingle field, and Phil Davis are among others now involved in selling via song. Also, there's Carlton Records disker Paul Evans, who is now doubling in writing and producing radio-tv commercials for Associated Recording Studios.

Tommy Dorsey band, fronted by Warren Covington, will appear at the Hi Ho Club, Dallas, April 7.

AFM Prexy Kenin Warns 1,200 Diskers To End 'Abuses'; Eschews Back Claims

Formal notice of the new get-tough stance of the American Federation of Musicians against fast-buck disk operators was issued last week to 1,200 disk companies. AFM prexy Herman Kenin spelled out the areas where the union claims abuses are costing recording musicians many thousands of dollars in the U. S. and Canada by companies violating the AFM agreement.

Kenin, however, stressed that the AFM has no plans at this time to bring retroactive claims against responsible companies who may have erred honestly in their dealings with recording musicians. The AFM topper said it was his hope that the disk companies would cooperate by prompt compliance so that cordial relations would be unimpaired.

Kenin covered eight areas in which violations of the contract have been frequent. These are: the three-hour limitation on recording sessions; no free rehearsals; no "tracking" (recordings of instrumental music for which vocals are subsequently added) except by prior permission; the eight sessions; wages to be paid no later than 14 days after a recording session; prior approval by the AFM for all contracts for musicians' disk services; exclusive term recording engagements subject to prior approval by the AFM; provision for arranger credits on albums; and reserving solely for the AFM prexy's office the right to make contract waivers and approval of postponements.

Kenin's notice to the disk companies, via telegrams to the 50 top labels and letters to the rest, follows his appointment of George Auld as his assistant. Auld is in charge of a field staff to investigate and enforce uniform contract procedures in the disk industry.

'South of Border' Payoff

London, March 28.

Songwriter Michael Carr has left for Hollywood via N.Y. to write the music for a tv series, "Dr. Syn" and to discuss film plans.

While in California he will make his first visit to Mexico. Carr, who estimates that he has made around $84,000 out of his hit song "South Of The Border, Down Mexico Way," said, "I've always figured I ought to take a vacation in Mexico and give 'em back some of the cash I've made out of the place!"

Brit. Songwriters Press for Quota On O'seas Music

London, March 14.

The Songwriters' Guild of Great Britain is still fighting toughly on behalf of British ditties and sees the Pilkington Committee on Broadcasting as an urgent way of pressing its claims for better representation both BBC and commercial setups. It reminds the committee in an official memo that both the BBC and the Independent Television Authority's direction insist that U. K. and Commonwealth interests should be safeguarded.

But, says the Guild: "It isn't so."

For instance "in no month of 1960 did the overall foreign content of the BBC's disk department's output drop below 59.77%." That's not good enough says the Guild. It examined 182 items in 19 ITA programs stated to be British in origin and performance only to find that slightly over 64% of these items were, in fact, Yank. "Not good enough," repeats the Guild.

So the Guild is urging for a more defined interpretation of "reasonable proportion." It wants a definite quota. It also hints that disk jockeys now have an undesirably great influence and suggests that the number of programs put over by any one person should be limited in any one year. The Guild also cocks a suspicious eye at the "Top 10" and "Top 20" lists, claims that broadcasting organizations might be influenced by such lists and suggests that they should not be referred to unless certified accurate by auditors.

The Guild is clearly unhappy about "persistent foreign infiltrations." It points out that in September, 1959, 84 London music publishing firms were "controlled by 59% or more foreign interests—almost entirely American."

'60 YEARS OF MUSIC' SETS HIT 1,500,000 FOR RCA

RCA Victor's double LP package, "60 Years of Music America Loves Best," released in conjunction with industry's 60th anniversary in 1959, has turned into a bonanza. The first volume of the "60 Years" set, comprising excerpts from the Victor pop and longhair catalog extending from Caruso to Perry Como, has now gone over 1,000,000 copies. Priced like a single LP, the set has been on the best-seller lists since its release.

A second double-LP set, a followup volume in a series under the "60 Years America Loves Best" title, has gone over the 500,000 marker. It was released a year after the first volume. Both sets resulted from an idea by Victor v.p. and general manager George R. Marek who suggested the collation of alltime favorite numbers in a way to mark the industry's growth over the years.

High Ct. Shadow Over ASCAP Meet

The shadow of the U.S. Supreme Court hearing of a challenge to the amended consent decree which went into effect last year hung over the semiannual New York membership meeting of the American Society of Composers, Authors & Publishers at the Waldorf-Astoria Hotel yesterday (Tues.). The court will hear argument tomorrow (Wed.) on [illegible] Sony-Tex Music and other publishers on the decree which radically modified ASCAP's distribution and logging procedures. The dissidents claim that their interests were not represented in the [illegible] either by ASCAP or the Justice Dept. Both of the latter are defending the consent decree before the Supreme Court.

Yesterday's meeting was marked by a watch-and-wait attitude by critics of the administration. Leaders of the Current Writers Committee, representing a group of clefters hostile to ASCAP's payoff emphasis on standards, said they did not intend to speak at this semiannual get-together. They said they were awaiting the outcome of the Supreme Court ruling on the decree and the outcome of talks with the Society's board which could lead to a revision of the present payoff formula.

Prexy Stanley Adams gave the main report to the meeting. ASCAP's financial statement revealed previously at the Coast membership meet several weeks ago, put revenues at a peak of nearly $32,000,000 with expenses climbing to 19% of the total.

Dot Abjures Payola Rap

Washington, March 28.

Dot Records, of Hollywood, has denied Federal Trade Commission charges it dispensed payola to radio disk jockeys.

Firm asked dismissal of an FTC payola complaint issued July 11.

VARIETY'S RECORD T.I.P.S.

(Tune Index of Performance & Sales)

This weekly tabulation is based on a statistically balanced ratio of disk sales, nationally, as reported by key outlets in major cities, and music programming by the major independent radio stations.

This Wk.	Last Wk.	No Wks. On Chart	TITLE, ARTIST	LABEL
1	1	6	SURRENDER Elvis Presley	Victor
2	3	11	DON'T WORRY Marty Robbins	Columbia
3	4	11	APACHE Jorgen Ingmann	Atco
4	7	10	DEDICATED TO THE ONE I LOVE Shirelles	Sceptor
5	2	10	PONY TIME Chubby Checker	Parkway
6	22	3	ON THE REBOUND Floyd Cramer	Victor
7	5	9	EBONY EYES Everly Bros.	WB
8	13	7	THINK TWICE Brook Benton	Mercury
9	8	12	WHEELS String-a-Longs	Warwick
10	11	7	I DON'T KNOW WHY Clarence Henry	Argo
11	9	12	BABY SITTING BOOGIE Buzz Clifford	Columbia
12	15	7	LAZY RIVER Bobby Darin	Atco
13	18	6	THE TOUCHABLES Dickie Goodman	Mark X
14	12	3	BLUE MOON Marcels	Colpix
15	6	10	WHERE THE BOYS ARE Connie Francis	MGM
16	23	6	HEARTS OF STONE Bill Black Combo	Hi
17	21	9	GEE WHIZ, LOOK AT HIS EYES Carla Thomas	Atlantic
18	10	14	CALCUTTA Lawrence Welk	Dot
19	14	8	LITTLE BOY SAD Johnny Burnette	Liberty
20	47	3	MOTHER IN LAW E. K-Doe	Mint
21	33	6	WALK RIGHT BACK Everly Bros.	WB
22	26	5	PLEASE LOVE ME, FOREVER Cathy Jean	Valmor
23	31	3	FIND ANOTHER GIRL Jerry Butler	Vee Jay
24	53	2	RUNAWAY Del Shannon	Big Top
25	17	6	ASIA MINOR Kokomo	Felsted
26	37	6	PORTRAIT OF MY LOVE Steve Lawrence	UA
27	16	10	YOU CAN HAVE HER Roy Hamilton	Epic
28	35	5	HAPPY BIRTHDAY BLUES Kathy Young	Indigo
29	25	10	WHEELS Billy Vaughn	Dot
30	32	4	JUST FOR OLD TIMES SAKE McGuire Sisters	Coral
31	29	5	LITTLE MISS STUCK UP Playmates	Roulette
32	19	10	THERE'S A MOON OUT TONIGHT Capris	Old Town
33	24	9	SPANISH HARLEM Ben E. King	Atco
34	26	7	STAYIN' IN Bobby Vee	Liberty
35	59	2	ONE HUNDRED POUNDS OF CLAY Gene McDaniels	Liberty
36	79	7	FOR MY BABY Brook Benton	Mercury
37	36	6	MORE THAN I CAN SAY Bobby Vee	Liberty
38	34	5	I DON'T WANT TO CRY Chuck Jackson	Wand
39	49	4	TAKE GOOD CARE OF HER Adam Wade	Coed
40	44	11	I WANNA LOVE MY LIFE AWAY Gene Pitney	Musicor
41	27	14	TOMORROW Shirelles	Scepter
42	30	13	SHOP AROUND Miracles	Tamla
43	20	10	GOODTIME BABY Bobby Rydell	Cameo
44	—	1	BUT I DO Clarence Henry	Argo
45	46	15	THERE SHE GOES Jerry Wallace	Challenge
46	77	2	TO BE LOVED Pentagons	Donna
47	40	17	WINGS OF A DOVE Ferlin Husky	Capitol
48	—	1	MY THREE SONS Lawrence Welk	Dot
49	88	2	ONE MINT JULIP Ray Charles	Impulse
50	52	6	HAVIN' FUN Dion	Laurie
51	100	3	I TOLD EVERY LITTLE STAR Cindy Scott	Can.-Amer.
52	38	4	ALL OF EVERYTHING Frankie Avalon	Chancellor
53	68	2	CALIFORNIA SUN Joe Jones	Roul
54	94	3	THAT'S IT, I QUIT Sam Cooke	Victor
55	81	2	DARK AS A DUNGEON Tenessee Ernie Ford	Capitol
56	48	3	LONELY MAN Elvis Presley	Victor
57	—	1	MERRY-GO-ROUND Marv Johnson	UA
58	61	3	ORANGE BLOSSOM SPECIAL Billy Vaughn	Dot
59	51	14	ANGEL ON MY SHOULDER Shelbey Flint	Valiant
60	—	1	MEMPHIS D. Brooks	Era
61	55	2	TONIGHT MY LOVE Paul Anka	ABC-Par
62	90	4	LIKE LONG HAIR Paul Revere	Chain
63	66	4	WATUSI Vibrations	Checker
64	42	18	EXODUS Ferrante & Teicher	UA
65	65	2	LONELY BLUE NIGHTS Rosie	Brunswick
66	—	1	BRASS BUTTONS String-A-Longs	Warwick
67	63	3	BUMBLE BOOGIE B. Bumble & Stingers	Rendezvous
68	—	1	SHU RAH Fats Domino	Imperial
69	93	7	I PITY THE FOOL Bobby Bland	Duke
70	—	1	TRUST IN ME Etta James	Argo
71	—	1	PLEASE TELL ME WHY Jackie Wilson	Brunswick
72	54	10	STORY OF MY LOVE Paul Anka	ABC-Par
73	41	9	WHAT A PRICE Fats Domino	Imperial
74	—	1	THE BLIZZARD Jim Reeves	Victor
75	—	1	FLAMINGO EXPRESS Royaltones	Goldisk
76	73	2	ROMEO Castelles	Era
77	75	3	LOUISIANA MAN Rusty & Doug	Hickory
78	72	3	DARLING Phil & Harv	Rampart
79	82	2	IVORY MARBLES B-B	Cover
80	71	2	YOUR ONE AND ONLY LOVE Jackie Wilson	Brunswick
81	67	2	LITTLE SAD EYES Castelles	Era
82	—	1	SLEEPY EYED Johnny Horton	Col
83	43	11	JIMMY'S GIRL Johnny Tillotson	Cadence
84	39	4	PONY EXPRESS Danny & Juniors	Swan
85	58	2	GOLDEN WILDWOOD FLOWER Tom & Jerry	Mercury
86	99	3	MOOD INDIGO Floyd Cramer	Victor
87	—	1	DIXIE Duane Eddy	Jamie
88	80	3	EXOTIC Night Beats	Sound
89	64	2	LITTLE BOY, LITTLE GIRL Al Martino	20th
90	—	1	FROGG Brothers Four	Col
91	89	6	HIDEAWAY Freddy King	Federal
92	—	1	SECOND TIME AROUND Frank Sinatra	Reprise
93	98	15	YOU ARE THE ONLY ONE Ricky Nelson	Imperial
94	—	1	ONE EYED JACKS Ferrante & Teicher	UA
95	—	1	HELLO WALLS Faron Young	Capitol
96	57	4	TOP 40, WEATHER & SPORTS Mark Denning	MGM
97	—	2	WELCOME HOME Sammy Kaye	Decca
98	—	1	I FELL IN LOVE ON MONDAY Fats Domino	Imperial
99	—	1	GREEN GRASS OF TEXAS Texans	Infinity
100	—	1	CHERIE Bobby Rydell	Cameo

Israeli Composers League Wraps Publication Deal With Mills; Miron in U.S.

Issacher Miron (Michrowsky), one of Israeli's top composers and vice-prexy of the Israeli performing rights society (ACUM), is wrapping up a deal with Mills Music for the latter firm to represent Israeli Composers League Publications in the U.S. ICLP, operated in behalf of the composers, is the biggest publishing operation in Israel, representing a broad cross-section of that country's 290 composers. ICLP will also get reciprocal rights to the Mills catalog in that country.

Miron, who arrived in the U.S. last week, is also conferring with execs of the American Society of Composers, Authors & Publishers and Broadcast Music Inc. with respect to ACUM's deals with them. This is the first year, incidentally, that ACUM has had a licensing deal with BMI, having dealed exclusively with ASCAP in the past. He'll also talk with Harry Fox, publishers' agent, about disk royalties to Israeli composers.

Miron said that the Israeli pop biz is dominated by the U.S. and French music. Via films and the quick international exchange of disks, the tunes arrive in Israel virtually simultaneously with their becoming hits in the U.S. He noted that Israeli music was also getting wide play in the U.S.

Miron, writer of the hit "Tzena Tzena," is also in the U.S. to see his daughter, Ruth Miron, who is studying at the Juilliard School of Music and the High School of Performing Arts in N.Y. In this connection, he's studying U.S. musical education methods since, he states, U.S. is now the musical center of the world.

Lewis Heads Amy Sales

Lenny Lewis, formerly sales manager of Time Records, has joined the Amy company in a similar capacity. The company releases disks under the Amy, Mala and Stereocraft labels.

Meantime, songwriters Lou Stallman and Sid Jacobson have been inked by the diskery to produce masters.

JEROME PRAGER NAMED ANGEL SALES MANAGER

Jerome F. Prager Jr. has been set in the newly created post of sales manager at Angel Records. For the past nine years, Prager has served as general manager of New Sound Record Distributors in San Francisco. According to J. K. Maitland, president of Capitol Record Distributing Corp., Prager's appointment is the first in a series of moves designed to consolidate Angel activities within the present Capitol distributing organization. CRDC, a subsid of Capitol Records Inc., is distributor of Angel throughout the U.S.

Also coming into the Angel orbit are Fred Dumont as western sales and promotion manager with headquarters in L.A., Ted Lindgren as midwest sales and promotion manager based in Chicago, and Burt Page as eastern sales and promotion manager headquartering in N. Y.

Everest Bolsters Staff, Sets Longrange Projects

With a longrange recording program running through the first half of 1962 already blueprinted, Everest Records has bolstered its sales operation with the addition of Sid Schaffer as assistant national sales manager and Moe Shulman as national promotion manager. Schaffer, who'll assist sales chief Charles Hasin, had been with United Artists and served as a branch manager with Capitol and Mercury.

Recording projects will include 13 albums in the classical field. Among the artists will be Leopold Stokowski, Jorge Bolet, Ernst Von Dohnanyi, the London Symphny Orch, Tossy Spivakovsky, the Fine Arts Quartet and the N. Y. Woodwind Quintet. On the pop end, firm is going on a push on Gloria Lynne for May. It'll be tied in with the singer's new LP in which she's accomped by the Earl May Trio.

RETAIL ALBUM BEST SELLERS

(A National Survey of Key Outlets)

This wk.	Last wk.	No. wks. on chart
1	1	16	EXODUS (Victor) Soundtrack (LOC 1058)
2	2	10	LAWRENCE WELK (Dot) Calcutta (DLP 2539)
3	10	7	KINGSTON TRIO (Capitol) Make Way (T 1474)
4	5	12	CAMELOT (Columbia) Original Cast (KOL 5620)
5	6	14	MANTOVANI (London) Music from Exodus (LL 3231)
6	3	23	ELVIS PRESLEY (Victor) G. I. Blues (LPM 2256)
7	7	10	GREAT MOTION PICTURE THEMES (UA) Various Artists (UAL 3122)
8	4	11	FRANK SINATRA (Capitol) Swinging Session (W 1491)
9	9	21	BOB NEWHART (WB) Button Down Mind Strikes Back (WI 393)
10	12	47	SOUND OF MUSIC (Columbia) Original Cast (KOL 5450)
11	11	7	MITCH MILLER (Columbia) Happy Times (CL 1568)
12	8	12	BERT KAEMPFERT (Decca) Wonderland by Night (DL 4101)
13	19	31	NEVER ON SUNDAY (UA) Soundtrack (UAL 4070)
14	13	9	RAY CONNIFF (Columbia) Memories Are Made of This (CL 1574)
15	21	7	WILDCAT (Victor) Original Cast (LOC 1060)
16	14	15	UNSINKABLE MOLLY BROWN (Capitol) Original Cast (WAO 1509)
17	15	11	RUSTY WARREN (Jubilee) Knockens Up (JLP 2029)
18	17	16	HARRY BELAFONTE (Victor) Returns to Carnegie Hall (LOC 6007)
19	16	29	MITCH MILLER (Columbia) Memory Sing With Mitch (CL 1542)
20	20	9	LIMELITERS (Victor) Tonight: In Person (LPM 2272)
21	27	4	JOHNNY HORTON (Columbia) Horton's Greatest Hits (CL 1596)
22	29	6	MIKE NICHOLS & ELAINE MAY (Mercury) Evening with Nichols & May (OCM 2200)
23	—	1	JOHNNY MATHIS (Columbia) I'll Buy You a Star (CL 1623)
24	32	2	RAY CHARLES (Impulse) Genius Plus Soul Equals Jazz (A-2)
25	38	2	FRANK SINATRA (Capitol) All the Way (W 1538)
26	37	6	DO RE MI (Victor) Original Cast (LOC 2002)
27	26	49	BOB NEWHART (WB) Button Down Mind (W 1379)
28	—	4	RAY CHARLES (Impulse) Dedicated to You (ABC 355)
29	33	44	SOUTH PACIFIC (Victor) Soundtrack (LOC 1032)
30	22	18	THE ALAMO (Columbia) Soundtrack (CL 1558)
31	25	13	BILLY VAUGHN (Dot) Soundowners Theme (DLP 3349)
32	36	2	BROADWAY'S BEST (Columbia) Assorted Artists (BZW 1)
33	31	6	PAUL ANKA (ABC-Par) Paul Anka Sings His Big 15 (ABC-323)
34	18	16	LAWRENCE WELK (Dot) Last Date (DLP 3350)
35	—	1	PLATTERS (Mercury) Encore of Golden Hits (MG 20472)
36	—	1	HENRY MANCINI (Victor) Mr. Lucky Goes Latin (LPM 2360)
37	35	2	BRENDA LEE (Decca) This Is Brenda Lee (DL 4082)
38	24	2	BILL BLACK COMBO (Hi) Solid and Raunchy (12003)
39	30	3	BING CROSBY (WB) Join Bing & Sing (1363)
40	40	2	BOBBY RYDELL (Cameo) Rydell's Greatest Hits (C 1009)

On the Upbeat

New York

Randy Wood, Dot prexy, picked up the master rights to "Schnaps," European disk by Willy Millowitsch, from George Pincus' Gil Music... The Barry Sisters into Sciola's, Philadelphia, for one week beginning April 10... Lionel Hampton, on the last lap of his European tour, brings his band into the Flamingo, Las Vegas, on April 13 for a six-week stand... Ella Fitzgerald comes into Basin Street East April 13... Conway Twitty, MGM disker, into the Continental Arena, Tulsa, April 4... The Brothers Four, Columbia diskers, appear on the "Telephone Hour" on NBC-TV Friday (31)... The N.Y. section of the Audio Engineering Society will hold its March meeting tonight (Wed.) at the Hotel Victoria. ... Al J. Neiburg's and J. Fred Coots' song, "Why Let A Lie Break Your Heart" taken over by Editions Voix du Rythme, of Belgium, for the Benelux territories. It's published here by Neiburg's firm.

Sammy Kaye set for 50 one-nighters from now through August with an eight-week stopoff at Riviera, Las Vegas, starting in June... Jimmy Jones, Cub disker, into Convention Hall, Asbury Park, April 3 . . . Anita O'Day, MGM/Verve artist, is currently at the Blackhawk Club, San Francisco . . . Buddy Bair Orch began a month's run at Roseland Dance City last night (Tues.)... Singer Micky Marlo begins a two-weeker at the International tonight (Wed.) ... The Horace Silver Quintet opens at the Zebra Lounge, L.A., Friday (31) for 10 days... Singer Martin Walker is currently appearing at the Cactus Pete Club, Las Vegas . . . Gene Pitney, United Artist disker, making the deejay rounds in the East for his "Take Me Tonight" disk... Ben E. King, Atco artist, joins Fats Domino, Paul Williams and the Shells, for a nation-wide tour beginning April 3.

London

Crosby Bro. expected May 22 for six weeks of concert, vaude and tv dates . . . Confabs under way for Johnnie Ray to play a month at Talk of the Town, starting June 26 . . . Jo Stafford due in June for three-months stay to tape 13 shows for Associated Television. Miss Stafford has picked Polka Dots, British vocal group, to sing with her on every show . . . Kenny Ball's jazzmen will be the first-ever traditional group to play the London Palladium when they appear there for two weeks, starting May 1 . . . Mahalia Jackson flying in for one concert at the Royal Albert Hall April 7 . . . Steve Lawrence & Eydie Gorme, due at the Pigalle in June, are expected to do some major Associated Television shows on their London trip.

Twelve months ago Warner Bros. launched its first label in U.K. with an Everly Bros. disk, "Cathy's Clown." It hit the top of the charts and won a Silver Disk for 250,000 British sales. Now Warner is celebrating its first birthday with another Silver Disker "Walk Right Back" and who should be singing it, but the Everly Bros. . . . King Bros. booked for the London Palladium summer show May 15 . . . Martin Miller, violin leader of Halle Orchestra, playing Joe Venuti's "Satan's Holiday" with BBC Northern Dance Orchestra in lunch-time radio program . . . Josh White due in at end of month for Royal Festival Hall song-fest and tv series.

Hollywood

Pete Fountain, clarinetist, in town for pair of Coral recording sessions. He cut two albums while here, "Pete Fountain's Quintet Plays Happy Music" and "I Love Paris," latter with a dixieland beat to a flock of French standards... Georgia Gibbs, here to do April 1 Cocoanut Grove show discussing platter pact with Imperial and new releases for her . . . George Shearing Quintet paired with Earl Grant at Crescendo opening tomorrow (Thurs.). Capitol and Decca arranging for recording sessions... Columbia Records will hold its big champagne bash to celebrate the opening of their ultra-plush recording studios . . . Deejays on all local stations getting the pressures by the Oscar song nominees to play the tunes—and the various recording companies are making calls to press and radio-tv stations.

Chicago

Ray Charles booked into McCormick Place here for concerts April 8-9 . . . Shirley Scott Trio set for Sutherland, Chicago, March 29 for 10 days . . . George Shearing into Bakers, Detroit, May 8 for one week . . . Jimmy Smith down for the Mardi Gras, Kansas City, April 14-24 . . . Julian (Cannonball) Adderley plays the Minor Key, Detroit, May 16 for one week . . . Dukes of Dixieland set for Shamrock Hilton, Houston, April 27 for a fortnight . . . Gene Ammons into the Bambo Key Club, St. Louis, April 28-May 11.

Command Inks Pitt Orch

Pittsburgh, March 28.

Pittsburgh Symphony Orchestra, which recorded previously for Capitol and Everest, signed this week with Command Records.

Command has had no classical line up to now. William Steinberg is the conductor of the orch.

The HIT! OF THE WEEK
Breaking Big!
JOHNNY CYMBAL
Sings
THE WATER WAS RED
K 12978
M-G-M Records

Mills HIT REMINDERS
Songs by
JIMMY McHUGH
I CAN'T GIVE YOU ANYTHING BUT LOVE
DIGA DIGA DOO
PORGY
MILLS MUSIC, INC.
1619 Broadway New York 19

In Need of Good Arranger-Manager to take complete charge of my unpublished songs. Recently from Chicago where I had one published.
Write: RENA BRANDON
406 No. Mansfield Ave., Margate, N.J.

2 GREAT INSTRUMENTALS!
Theme from
HAND IN HAND
by DAVID CARROLL
MERCURY RECORDS #71790
M. WITMARK & SONS
BILBAO SONG
by LEROY HOLMES
M.G.M. RECORDS K12992
HARMS, INC.

One of Our TOP STANDARDS
Climbing
TO THE TOP AGAIN!
BUTTONS AND BOWS
DON ROBERTSON
On RCA Victor Records
FAMOUS MUSIC CORPORATION

"A NEW ERA IN MODERN AMERICAN MUSIC"
STAN KENTON
and HIS ORCHESTRA
Currently (4-WEEK ENGAGEMENT)
Riviera Hotel, Las Vegas
Starting April 27 on Extended One Nite Tour Throughout the Midwest and East Coast
CAPITOL RECORDS
BOOKED EXCLUSIVELY BY
ASSOCIATED BOOKING CORPORATION
JOE GLASER, President
745 FIFTH AVE., NEW YORK 22, N. Y., PLAZA 9-4600
CHICAGO • MIAMI BEACH • HOLLYWOOD • LAS VEGAS • DALLAS • LONDON

WIN YOUR NEXT RECORDING SESSION

* (or your first, for that matter)

(The professional entertainer who best tells us how a personal Shure microphone can improve his act wins a 12" cutting date . . . lock, stock and barrel!)

You introduce an original George Shearing composition. Solo, with a group, or as a background.

If you win, Shure will showcase you on a major label* stereo disc...with your own choice of sidemen, arrangers, and engineers. We'll design a full-color album cover and guarantee publicity for your record. We'll even give you an original new number by George Shearing to introduce as the first band of your record. You get all the artist's royalties from the disc because Shure pays all the recording costs up to (and even including) $5,000.00*... payable to you for the recording expenses.*

Total limit for costs usually paid by the artist: $5,000.00. If you're under contract to a label, money can be paid directly to contractual recording company.*

Sidemen (or background music), Arrangers. You pick them, Shure pays for them*.

Recording Studio and Engineers. Shure pays for them*, you get ALL the artist's royalties.

all professional entertainers eligible... for complete details and entry blank, write:

Shure Entertainers' Contest
222 Hartrey Avenue, Evanston, Illinois Dept. V-3

NARAS Nominations

Continued from page 45

Bill Holman—"I'm Gonna Go Fishin'."
Quincy Jones—"Let the Good Times Roll."
Henry Mancini—"Mr. Lucky."
Billy May—"Honeysuckle Rose."
Nelson Riddle—"Nice and Easy."
Dick Schory—"Wild Percussion & Horns a'Plenty."

Best Performance By an Orchestra (Other Than for Dancing)

Count Basie—"Count Basie Story."
Esquivel—"Infinity in Sound."
Percy Faith—"Theme From a Summer Place."
Henry Mancini—"Mr. Lucky."
Gerry Mulligan—"The Concert Jazz Band."

Best Performance By a Vocal Group

Brothers Four—"Greenfields."
Edvie Gorme Steve Lawrence—"We Got Us."
The Hi Los—"All Over the Place."
Kingston Trio—"Here We Go Again."
Swe-Danes—"Scandinavian Shuffle."

Best Performance By a Chorus

Belafonte Folk Singers—"Belafonte Returns to Carnegie Hall."
Ray Charles Singers—"Deep Night."
Pete King Singers—"My Favorite Things."
Norman Luboff Choir—"Songs of the Cowboy."
Robert Shaw Chorale—"What Wondrous Love."

Best Jazz Performance Solo or Small Group

Miles Davis—"Jazz Track."
Duke Ellington & Johnny Hodges—"Back to Back."
Dizzy Gillespie—"The Greatest Trumpet of Them All."
Lambert, Hendricks & Ross—"The Hottest New Group in Jazz."
Modern Jazz Quartet—"Pyramid."
Andre Previn—"West Side Story."
George Shearing—"White Satin."
Art Tatum—"Greatest Piano of Them All."

Best Jazz Performance Large Group

Count Basie—"The Count Basie Story."
Miles Davis & Gil Evans—"Sketches of Spain."
Quincy Jones—"The Great Wide World of Quincy Jones."
Henry Mancini—"Blues and the Beat."
Gerry Mulligan—"I'm Gonna Go Fishin', "Spirituals to Swing Concert."

Best Classical Performance—Orchestra

Beecham Royal Philharmonic — Haydn: "Salomon Symphonies Vol 2."
Bernstein New York Philharmonic—"Ives: Spmphony No. 2."
Copland Boston Symphony — Copland: "Appalachian Spring."
Morton Gould—Grofe: "Grand Canyon Suite."
Krips London Symphony — "Schubert: Symphony No. 9."
Monteux Boston Symphony—"Stravinsky: Petrouchka."
Ormandy Philadelphia Symphony—"Tchaikovsky: Sixth Symphony."
Reiner Chicago Symphony — Bartok: "Music for Strings, Percussion and Celeste."

Best Classical Performance—Vocal Soloist

Almelda Terri—"Conversations with Guitar."
Eileen Farrell—"Arias in Great Tradition."
Fischer Dieskau—"Schubert: Lieder Vol. 3."
Maureen Forrester — "Mahler: Kindertotenlieder."
Peter Pears—"Britten: Nocturne."
Leontyne Price — "Leontyne Price Recital."
Joan Sutherland—"Handel Arias."
Caesare Valetti—"Schumann: Dichterliebe."

Best Classical Opera Production

"Aida" — Tebaldi Bergonzi Simionato Corena Von Karajan.
"La Boheme"—Tebaldi Bergonzi Bastianini Cororoa Serafin.
Cororoa Serafin.
"Don Giovanni" — Siepi Danco Dermota Corena Krips.
"Macbeth" — Warren Hines Rysanek Bergonzi Lainedorf.
"Mefistofele"—Siepi Tebaldi Del Monaco Serafin.
"Peter Grimes" — Pears Pease Watson Britton.
"La Traviata"—De los Angeles Del Monte Sereni Serafin.
"Turandot" — Tebaldi Nillson Bjoerling Tuzzi Leinsdorf.
"La Voix Humaine"—Duval Pretre Opera Comique.

Best Sound Track Album or Recording of Music Score from Motion Picture or Television

"The Apartment"—(Sound Track).
"Ben-Hur"—(Sound Track).
"Exodus"—(Sound Track).
"Mr. Lucky"—Henry Mancini.
"The Untouchables"—Nelson Riddle.

Best Sound Track Album or Recording of Original Cast from Motion Picture or Television

"Bells Are Ringing"—Judy Holiday Dean Martin Original Cast.
"Can-Can"—Frank Sinatra Original Cast.
"G.I. Blues"—Elvis Presley.
"Li'l Abner"—(Sound Track).
"Rashomon"—Lawrence Rosenthal.

Best Show Album (Original Cast)

"Bye Bye Birdie."
"Camelot."
"Fiorello."
"Sound of Music."
"The Unsinkable Molly Brown."

Best Comedy Performance (Spoken Word)

Shelley Berman—"The Edge of Shelley Berman."
Nichols and May—"An Evening with Nichols and May."
Bob Newhart — "Button Down Mind Strikes Back."
Carl Reiner and Mel Brooks—"2,000 Year Old Man."
Jonathan Winters — "The Wonderful World of Jonathan Winters."

Best Comedy Performance (Musical)

Jonathan and Darlene Edwards—"Jonathan and Darlene Edwards in Paris."
Stan Freberg—"Payola Blues."
Homer and Jethro—"Homer and Jethro at the Country Club."
Tom Lehrer—"An Evening Wasted with Tom Lehrer."
David Seville—"Alvin for President."

Best Performance—Documentary or Spoken Word (Other Than Comedy)

"Ages of Man, Vol. 2."
Henry Fonda—"Voices of the Twentieth Century."
Sir John Gielgud — "One Man In His Time."
Archibald MacLeish—"J.B."
Franklin D. Roosevelt—"FDR Speaks."

Best Performance By a Pop Single Artist

Ray Charles—"Georgia On My Mind."
Ella Fitzgerald—"Mack the Knife."
Peggy Lee—"Heart."
Elvis Presley—"Are You Lonesome Tonight?"
Frank Sinatra—"Nice 'N' Easy."

Best Country and Western Performance

Johnny Horton—"North to Alaska."
Ferlin Husky—"Wings of a Dove."
Hank Locklin—"Please Help Me, I'm Falling."
Jim Reeves—"He'll Have to Go."
Marty Robbins—"El Paso."

Best Rhythm and Blues Performance

LaVerne Baker—"Shake a Hand."
Hank Ballard—"Finger Poppin' Time."
Ray Charles—"Let the Good Times Roll."
Bo Diddley—"Walkin' and Talkin'."
John Lee Hooker—"Travelin'."
Etta James—"All I Could Do Was Cry."
Muddy Waters—"Get My Mojo Working."
Jackie Wilson—"Lonely Teardrops."

Best Performance—Folk

Harry Belafonte—"Swing Dat Hammer."
Belafonte Singers—"Cheers."
Brothers Four—"Greenfields."
Jimmy Driftwood—"Songs of Billy Yank and Johnny Reb."
Kingston Trio—"Here We Go Again."
Alan Lomax—"Southern Folk Heritage Series."
Ewan MacColl—"Songs of Robert Burns."
Miriam Makeba.

Best New Artist of 1960

Brothers Four.
Miriam Makeba.
Bob Newhart.
Leontyne Price.
Joanie Sommers.

Belafonte, Miles Davis, Mingus, Adderly Cop French Platter Awards

Paris, March 28.

The top annual record prizes were handed out last week by the Academie Des Disques Charles-Cros via a jury grouping leading critics from all the arts and show biz facets. Harry Belafonte won the nod as top foreign pop and folk singer with "Swing Dat Hammer" (RCA) and Miles Davis took a jazz kudos along with Charlie Mingus and the Cannonball Adderly Quintet with "Kind of Blue" (Fontana), "Pithecanthropus Erectus" (Atlantic), and "In San Francisco" (Riverside) respectively.

Best pop record went to Frenchman Leo Ferre for Barclay Records and local femme singer Helene Martin for BAM. Best vocal group was The Three Menestrals on Fontana and "The Double Six Meet Quincy Jones" for Columbia.

Edith Piaf got a special honorary award for her whole career with "Edith Piaf A L'Olympia" (Columbia) singled out. Charles Munch also got an honorary award and in particular for his recordings of the "Symphonies" of Mendelssohn and the "Requiem" of Berlioz. Daniel Wayenberg's playing with the Concerts De Conservatoire, conducted by Georges Pretre, got the nod for lighter music via George Gershwin's "Rhapsody in Blue."

ARTIE MOGULL JOINS WB MUSIC COMPANY

Artie Mogull has joined the Music Publishers Holding Co.'s professional operation. He'll concentrate on lining up recordings of tunes from the catalogs of Harms, Remick, Witmark, Advanced and New World.

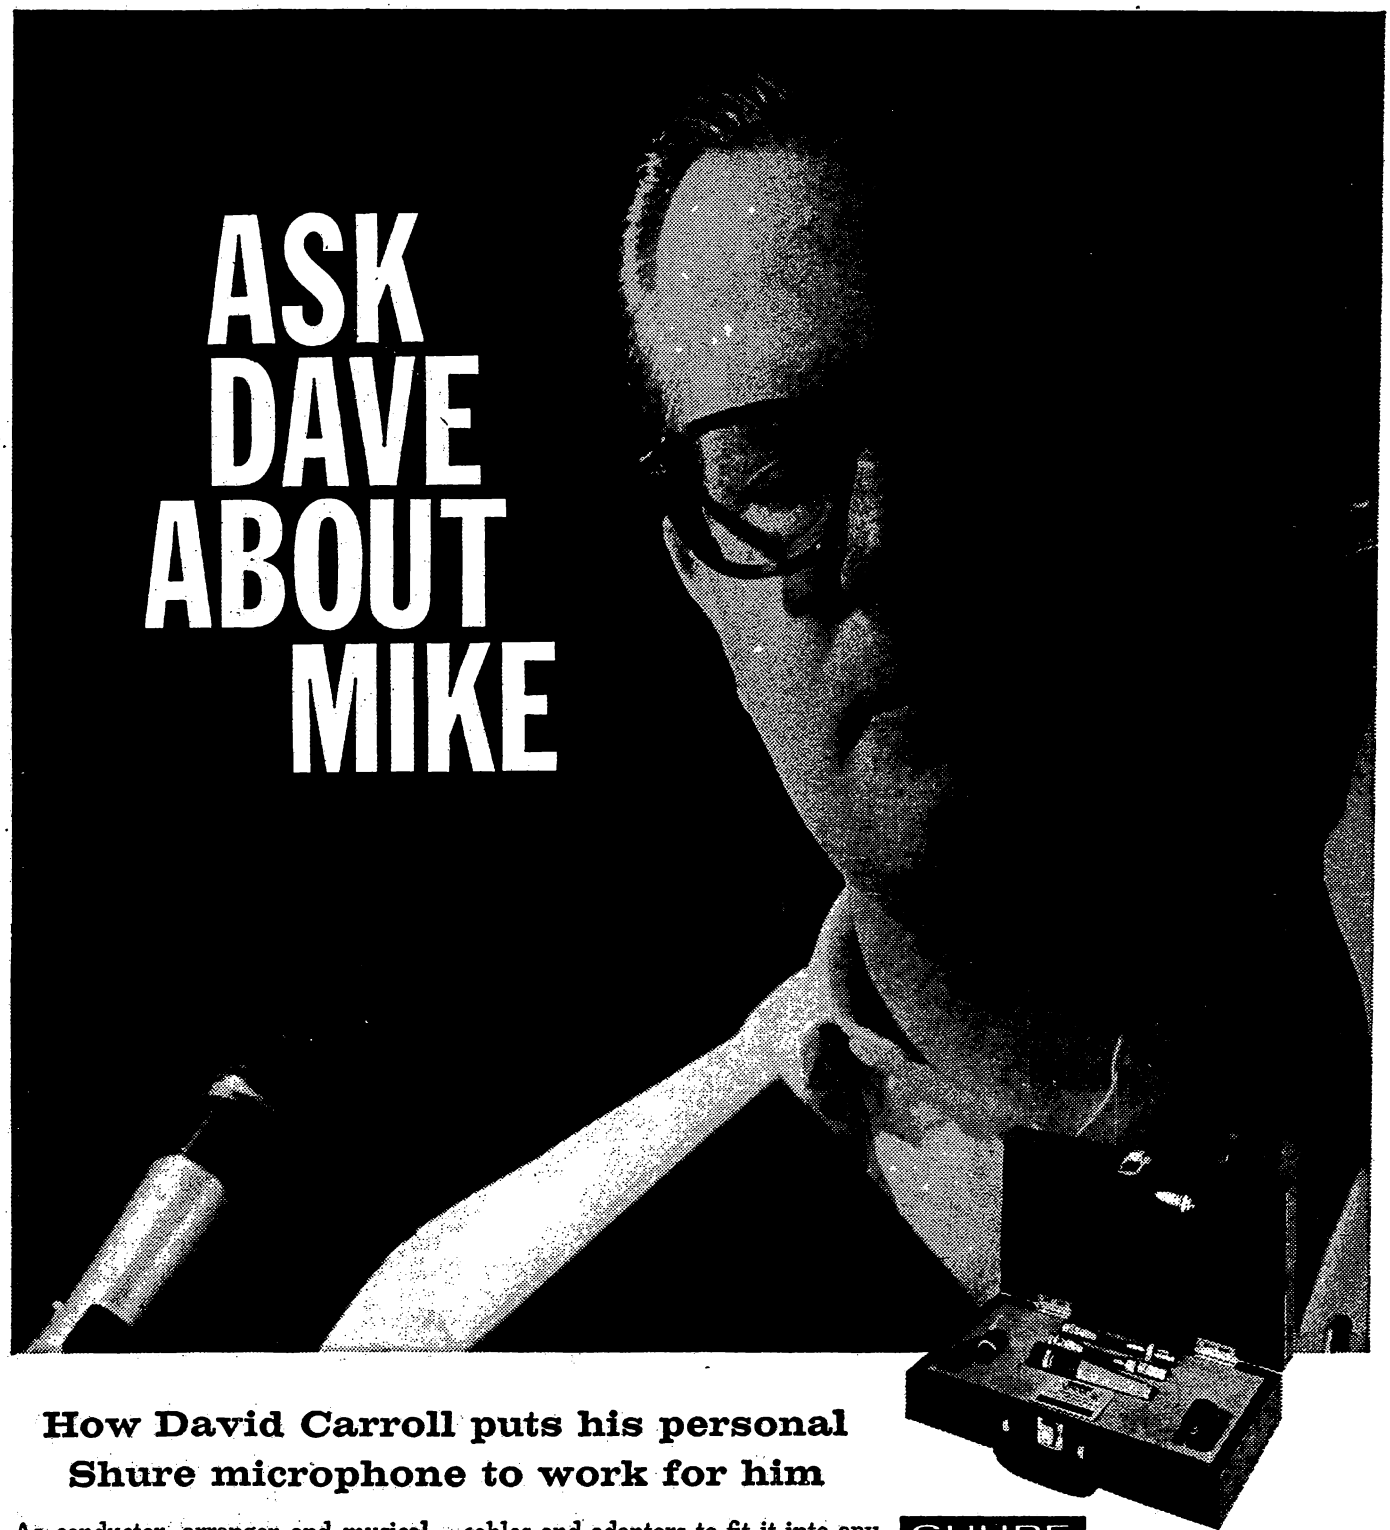
Mogull, who for the past several years had been running the publishing firms for the Kingston Trio, will work under firm's prez Herman Starr and Mac Goldman, assistant to the prez. MPHC is the publishing arm of Warner Bros.

Pop Market

Continued from page 45

Billy Vaughn orch, representing an across-the-board spread of musical approaches not possible when the big beat was drowning everything else out.

A hint of a current trend can be found today in the flock of sides based on the new Latin-American rhythm, known either as the pachanga or the charanga. But Hugo & Luigi don't expect a repeat of the situation a few years ago when one calypso hit by Harry Belafonte brought on a tidal wave of calypso singles. A similar trend occurred after that in the cha cha groove. These were trends that never paid off for the followup platters and the disk makers have now become more careful of trying to cash in on what looks like a trend but turns out to be a three-day fad.



How David Carroll puts his personal Shure microphone to work for him

As conductor, arranger and musical Director of the Mercury Recording Co., David Carroll (Re-percussion; Let's Dance) has tried virtually every top-quality microphone . . . and settled on the Shure Unidyne III as his own personal unit. First and foremost, because it picks up every shading and nuance of sound during his critical audition and rehearsal sessions. But more than that, the Unidyne III fits in best with the performer's way of working. His Unidyne travels right along with him . . . it's lightweight, compact and rugged. The whole unit (complete with all the cables and adaptors to fit it into any club or recording studio set-up) is about the size and weight of a clarinet case. It can take knocking-around that would ruin other microphones. And, it's unidirectional so it can be "aimed" at the sound source and pick it up perfectly while suppressing random background noise and audience murmur. Like the Studio model Shure 333, which is often used in Mercury cutting sessions, the dependable performance of the Shure Unidyne III makes it the choice of the performer-perfectionist.
Ask David Carroll.

SHURE

Performer's Personal

microphone outfit

You CAN (and should) take it with you. Superb UNIDYNE III microphone complete with holder, cable and adaptors to hook into any club or auditorium P.A. system, or into better quality home or professional tape recorders. All in handy case (about the size of a clarinet case). On special order only—see your sound consultant or write to Shure. Only $75.00, professional net, complete.

Send for free booklet on mike technique:

Shure Brothers, Inc.
222 Hartrey Ave., Evanston, Illinois

Talent Bookings In Brazil, Australia Hit Political, Financial Roadblocks

The mushrooming talent export business is hitting some financial roadblocks. Political as well as economic situations are causing agencies to put the brakes on foreign bookings.

One of the major trouble spots developed in Brazil, where a regime not too friendly to the U.S. is reporting readying measures to have the Dept. of Finance okay all transactions in which money is transported out of the country.

Up to now, Brazilian bookings have been fairly routine with the promoters depositing 50% of the money in a U.S. bank while the act is paid in Brazilian coin while working there. Balance of the coin is collectible in America. The difficulty developed recently when promoters in Sao Paulo, who had booked Roy Hamilton, told General Artists Corp. that they would be unable to post the 50% of his guarantee in an American bank because of difficulties with the Dept. of Finance. It's understood that the Brazilian government is studying the situation and is in process of preparing legislation to control the outflow of money. Nothing yet has been finalized, but it's likely that even if such steps are taken, there will be some method of playing U.S. acts in that country.

Between General Artists Corp. and Joe Glaser's Associated Booking Corp. there have been a lot of bookings made in that area. These are offices that will most likely feel the brunt of restrictive financial legislation in Brazil, although all major offices and many indies have been doing business in that area.

Another trouble spot is likely to be Australia, where several indie promoters have been forced to call off bookings of some American names. Reason is ascribed agency demands for posting of monies in advance in an American bank. Forthcoming date of Shoshana Shashon, Israeli singer, was called off for that reason.

Mexico's Unique Vaude Down to 3 Houses As Iris Theatre Shutters

Mexico City, March 28.

The shortlived reopening of the Iris Theatre set off talk of a boomlet in vaude entertainment. But persistent losses caused house to shutter. Number of theatres now offering variety acts is three hardy holdouts, the Lirico, Blanquita and Tivoli (latter a burley grind house).

The Fabregas Theatre, which in past seasons presented acts, has turned legit. It's currently offering "The Wings of the Fish," play by Fernando Sanchez Mayans which won the 1960 Mexican Theatre Festival award.

Vaude routine in Mexico follows a set pattern, with easy to look at line girls, film starlets doing so-so songs and dance turns and comics with racy patter and skits. The skits are really the heart of the vaude layouts. Apart from those of the blackout variety, sketches often present cleverly concocted spoofs on foibles of all social levels.

The sketches are the boxoffice draw of the vaude houses. All the rest, including the prancing beauties, fast comics, offkey singers and somewhat stiff terpsichoreans are mere window dressing. It is a tradition that the "stars," female division, have more good looks than talent. With, of course, the usual rare exceptions.

Jack Douglas & Reiko Trophied by K.C. Shrine

Jack Douglas and Reiko were cited here last night as the "Favorite East-West Team of Ararat Temple" in a brief ceremony after their first show at Eddys,' were they are appearing March 17-30. Officials of the Shrine presented them with a trophy so inscribed.

The award came about as a result of their cooperation with the Ararat Temple in publicizing its East-West All-Star Basketball game played annually in Municipal Auditorium. This year it was held today (Tues.). Team worked out a couple of public service tv commercials on a wacky kick akin to their comedy bent. All proceeds go to the benefit of the Shrine Hospitals for Crippled Children.

Starlight Roof, N. Y., May Not Open for Summer

Starlight Roof of the Hotel Waldorf-Astoria, N.Y., may not open this summer. Instead, activity will be extended several weeks in the downstairs Empire Room which will close June 24. For the past two seasons, the Starlight Roof operated only during June and closed for July and August.

The schedule of bookings in the Empire Room has not yet been completed. Gordon & Sheila MacRae, to be followed by Tony Martin, are set after the incumbent Denise Darcel.

90-Date Tour Set

Belafonte Folk Singers, owned and coached by Robert de Cormier for Harry Belafonte, which played 90 dates this season has a tour of equal proportions in prospect for 1961-62. A repeat appearance with the Ed Sullivan program in July is also contracted.

Choir of 12 is concert-managed by Andre Mertens of Columbia. Chance of a European tour waits on the year following, at Belafonte's direction.

Hardticket Vaude Concerts Hit New Vogue in Chi as Films, Niteries Dip

in motion picture, nitery and legit biz, hardticket vaude concerts are flourishing here as they probably never have before. Two houses, Orchestra Hall and Civic Opera House, which are usually dark this time of year, are practically booked solid on weekends throughout the current spring season. There's a new trend a-brewing.

Impresarios of vaude concerts are not only competing with one another but also with themselves. Harry Zelzer's Allied Arts Corp., for instance, auspiced the Don Cossack Chorus at Orchestra Hall and the Jose Greco dance troupe at the Opera House the same night, a week ago.

Last Friday (24), Allied had Victor Borge at the Opera House at a $5.50 top, while Frank Fried's Triangle Productions sponsored folksinger Odetta at Orchestra Hall at a $3.50 top. Borge grossed over $12,000 and Odetta over $6,500. For the Borge concert, Zelzer put 400 extra chairs on the stage and in the orchestra pit.

He tried to do the same with Bob Newhart's sellout stand at Orchestra Hall the following night, but the comic's manager, Frank J. Hogan, wouldn't permit it. Newhart will repeat the concert April 9, again under Allied auspices, but this time at the larger Opera House.

Upcoming under the Triangle banner are Dave Brubeck, April 14, and the Limelighters, April 29, both at Orchestra Hall. Triangle also has Pete Seeger coming in May 6 at the Studebaker and the Weavers May 10 at Orchestra Hall. Allied is bringing in Judy Garland May 6 for a one-nighter at the Opera House.

Adams-Kelly to Top A.C. Spot's Passover Revue

Atlantic City, March 28.

Joey Adams and Al Kelly return to Hotel Chelsea here to headline an all-star holiday revue during Passover. It is Adams' third consecutive year here as a holiday headliner.

Mal and Pauline Kayo, general managers of the Chelsea, staged a "campaign kickoff" party in Adams' honor two years ago prior to his election as president of the American Guild of Variety Artists. Since than Adams and Kelly have been returning each Spring.

A.C. Restaurateur Maps $100,000 Club to Snare The Vacationist's $ $

Atlantic City, March 28.

Jack Berenato, for years owner and operator of Luigi's, Italian-American restaurant located in the bistro district, will try the supper club business this season. He has sunk some $100,000 into a smart room off his huge restaurant, and will offer it to the vacationist as the Gondola Room. It's due for a plush opening June 16.

Seymour (Pinky) Kravitz, local radio personality, will manage the new club and also will book talent. The Gondola room will seat some 400 patrons in a richly furnished air-conditioned room. Its policy will be a low minimum charge on five nights of the week with cover on Friday and Saturday.

Kravitz says he will book talent in the middle echelon, offering two or three good acts backed by an emcee and a line with a local house orchestra. He is seeking such bookings as Gloria DeHaven, Barry Sisters, Dick Haymes and Fran Jeffries.

Berenato will be bucking two other established spots in the same area. Paul (Skinny) D'Amato's big 500 Club is just a block or so away, and on the next corner is Irv Kokler's Le Bistro, which started operations a year ago and is still in the swim, booking talent throughout the year.

Berenato and Kravitz believe they have a good chance to survive the hectic battle for the bistro dollar here, despite the high casualty rate. They point out that Luigi's has a large clientele every night throughout the season. The Gondola room will serve as an annex to the main restaurant until 10 p.m. Then it will open as a night club. Three shows will be offered Friday and Saturday nights, and two on other nights.

500 Club is expected to operate much as it did last year, booking, if it can get them, members of the "clan," Frank Sinatra, Joey Bishop, Sammy Davis Jr., Dean Martin, et al. Bistro has announced no summer plans.

Court Upholds Hodges' K.O. of Siegel's 50G Suit

The N.Y. Court of Appeals has affirmed an order of the N.Y. Supreme Court which dismissed a $50,000 suit brought by vocal coach Al Siegel against Eddie Hodges and his father, John Hodges. Siegel claimed that he had advanced the interests of the youngster in attaining a theatrical career by providing coaching, managerial and promotion services.

Firm of Friedlander & Gaines represented the Hodges. Sidney Gaines is the son-in-law of Nat Kalcheim, William Morris Agency exec.

Milw. Arena-Auditorium 5 Mos. Earnings Off 50%

Milwaukee, March 28.

Net income of the Milwaukee Arena-Auditorium for the five months period ended Feb. 28, it was disclosed last week, dropped 50% compared with the same period last year. Profit was $47,174 in contrast to last year's $84,411.

Gross also was down with the total take for the five months ended Feb. 28 amounting to $281,986. It compares with $304,779 racked up in last year's equivalent semester.

Projects a uniformly illuminated snow-white spot and wide range flood at short distance. 2½ times the intensity of previous equipment affording similar coverage, and twice the inclusive light coverage of previous equipment of comparable power. Self-contained power supply unit, consisting of a transformer and selenium rectifier, eliminates the need for separate, expensive rectifiers or generators. Draws only 20 ampere from a 110-volt outlet.

Two-element variable focal length lens system, controlled by a single lever, eliminates light waste. Silvered glass reflector. Iris included for pin point spots.

Tilts downward 15° and upward 25°. Horizontal masking control can be angled at 45 degrees in each direction.

Automatic carbon feed maintains constant a uniform arc gap, assures a perfect focus at all times; a sharp-edged round spot always. All controls are on the operating side of the lamp.

Fast operating 6-slide color boomerang includes frame for mounting ultra violet filter.

Shown is installation at the Latin Quarter, New York City.

Night clubs, auditoriums, arenas, stadiums, traveling shows, fairgrounds, rinks, race tracks and amphitheatres rely on Strong Follow Spotlights - arcs that are 15 times brighter, and incandescents that are 9 times brighter! Cut operating costs as much as 73%.

Write for brochure and dealer's name, giving length of throw.

THE STRONG ELECTRIC CORPORATION
97 CITY PARK AVENUE • TOLEDO 1, OHIO
A SUBSIDIARY OF GENERAL PRECISION EQUIPMENT CORPORATION

"THE COMEDIAN"
The Only Real Monthly
PROFESSIONAL GAG SERVICE
THE LATEST — THE GREATEST — THE MOST-UP-TO-DATEST
Now in its 127th issue, containing stories, one-liners, poemettes, song titles, hecklers, audience stuff, monologs, parodies, double gags, bits, ideas, intros, impressions and impersonations, political, Interruptions Thoughts of the Day, Humorous Views of the News, Vignettes, etc.
$25 YR.—SINGLE ISSUES $3
Foreign
$35 YR.—SINGLE ISSUES $4
NO C.O.D.'s
BILLY GLASON, 200 W. 54th St.
New York City 19, CO. 5-1316

B & B COSTUMES
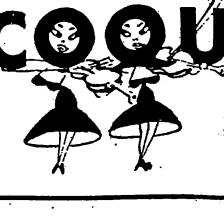
Gowns and Costumes
INDIVIDUALLY DESIGNED
MADE TO ORDER
110 W. 44th St., N. Y. CI 5-4660

AUDITIONS:
Monday and Tuesday by appointment, for nite club engagement in Greenwich Village, call GR 3-8660.

"TOPS IN THEIR FIELD" VARIETY
★ ★ The Merlin
COQUETTES


Currently
ZIEGFELD FOLLIES
HIS MAJESTY'S THEATRE
Perth, Australia

Controversy Over Nude Murals Gives Pitt's Gaslight Club Frontpage Preem

Pittsburgh, March 28.

Copies of the world's most famous nude paintings and a few originals that make the classics blush gave the new Gaslight Club here a front page opening when Pitt's crusading Safety Director Louis Rosenberg saw them on the premises. He warned the club to remove them immediately or be in violation of a 1959 state act that bans the display of prurient pictures.

When warned, Oscar Gendleberg, president of the Club, told the two papers here that if his murals were banned then every art gallery or museum in the country should be closed. Rosenberg replied with the comment that the place was licensed as a private club and not as an art gallery. He said 22 out of the 24 paintings were objectionable.

Rosenberg set a five o'clock deadline on Saturday (25) for compliance with his decree and as members phoned in for reservations. Gendleberg stuck by his artistic guns. Finally, after the city law department told him his authority in the matter was questionable, Rosenberg allowed the club to open on schedule. He still insists, however, that he will seek action against the club to have the paintings removed.

Gendleberg had commissioned Vincent Nesbert, local artist, to copy famous nudes by Rubens, Sergent, Velasquez, Ingres, Boucher, Manet and Bougereau. He also was to throw in a few originals which have a more modern flair.

The club is a $150,000 affair with three rooms decorated in period architecture much in the manner of Gaslight Clubs around the country although this one is not associated with the others. Membership fee in the club is $100.

Weavers' to Houston

Houston, March 28.

The Weavers return here Friday (31) for a program of folk songs at the Music Hall. They last appeared here in 1951 at the Shamrock Hilton.

Group is composed of Lee Hays, Ronnie Gilbert, Fred Hellerman and Erick Darling. The date is presented by Ed Badeaux and Mack McCormick.

3-Way Deal Puts 'Vegas' Revue In Ft. Wayne Hotel

Chicago, March 28.

Mutual Entertainment Agency has entered into a deal with Indiana hotel chain operator Harold Van Orman and Las Vegas producers Sonia Shaw and Bob Hitchcock to present a "Vegas-type" revue at the Northcrest Hotel in Fort Wayne, Ind., in mid-July.

Total nut for the package has not been specified, but the involved parties estimate it will top anything to date on the hinterland midwest nitery circuit.

Van Orman is rebuilding the hotel's Embers supper club to the tune of more than $20,000, including a theatre-type stage with appropriate curtains and lights, dressing rooms and other structural changes, for the new show. Shaw-Hitchcock (husband and wife team) will engage 15 performers for the revue, both musicomedy talent and vaude acts, and will provide costumes. Rehearsals will be held in Hollywood.

Deal will mark a major switch

(Continued on page 52)

'Ice Capades' Revamps U.S. Itinerary Prior To Jumping Off for Soviet

Kansas City, March 28.

"Ice Capades," which opens here April 3 for a week in Municipal Auditorium, is making some changes in its route, preparatory to an upcoming tour of Russia. Company is due to take off from New York May 1 for the Soviet.

Meanwhile, tentative dates in Fort Worth, and Shreveport, La., which were to have folowed Kansas City have been cancelled. Instead, the company will go from here directly to Evansville, Ind. Latter date was advanced to give the company extra time for rehearsals and revamping before shipping out.

Advance ticket sales for the ice show's local engagement show an interesting trend with mail order sales running 5% or better ahead of recent years, while window sales are down perhaps as much as 10%. It may reflect current business conditions in which the metropolitan area with factory employment is down somewhat, while surrounding territory is feeling no economic pinch.

NEWHART'S CHI REPRISE AFTER CAPACITY $9,000

Chicago, March 28.

Comic Bob Newhart, who was a nobody in his home town less than 18 months ago, not only was an advance sellout in his first Chicago concert last Saturday (25) but has been booked for a reprise two weeks later because the Orchestra Hall turnaways were so numerous.

Second concert, set for April 7, will be an exact carbon of the first, with Chad Mitchell Trio featured. Harry Zelzer, promoter of both concerts, has engaged the larger Civic Opera House, a 3,750-seater, for the reprise.

Newhart grossed slightly over $9,000 in initial concert at 2,600-seat Orchestra Hall at a $5 top ($6 for boxes).

Top Headliners Lift Gotham Nitery Biz Despite Traditional Lent Slump

The graph of nitery business in New York is on an upward swing despite Lent. All this, opine nitery operators, is due to a strong list of attractions.

The major surprise is the draw of the Ritz Bros at Jack Silverman's International. The spot was not only able to book a lot of party and organization business in advance on the strength of the act, but there has been a lot of drop-in trade. The brothers are making money for the boniface despite their $15,000 salary.

The Ritz Bros. are the second blockbuster that Silverman has had in his nitery this season. The other was Myron Cohen with the Barry Sisters. The rest of the season has been below par for the nitery. For example, Sophie Tucker disappointed on this trip, and prior to that Joey Adams and Al Kelly did poorly. The Ritz Bros., incidentally, are on their first date in five years in New York.

Also doing well is Nat King Cole at the Copacabana. Although this spot has been somewhat handicapped because of the Lenten observances, there is a strong tone to the business. The Latin Quarter is doing staunchly with its nonname show. There are plenty of visitors in town, and the convention trade keeps the LQ packing.

Also showing strength is Benny Goodman at Basin St. East. This spot has been on a heat wave for about a year, and has the rep of being a hot room, no matter who is on tap. However, the bookers are buying talent carefully and sometimes imaginatively, going on the theory that it doesn't take much to put the chill on a night club.

The smaller rooms are going along in a mixed fashion, although the Blue Angel is among the winners. In all cases, the weekends are good and in most cases enough to maintain most pleasure domes.

Reyes Vegas-Bound

Honolulu, March 28.

Chuy Reyes is breaking in his Las Vegas-bound Hawaiian show with a nine-night run at the midtown LeRoy's nitery.

Troupe also will entertain aboard the liner Matsonia during its April 11 voyage from Honolulu to California.

A.C. Eyes 200,000 Easter Visitors In Season Kickoff

Atlantic City, March 28.

With any cooperation from the weatherman, the Atlantic City boardwalk is expected to be filled with more than 200,000 visitors as the resort gets its first big holiday crowd this Easter Sunday. Some 100,000 are expected to register in the city's 30,000 hotel or motel rooms for a weekend holiday.

Seeking the visitor's dollars, many seasonal spots will be open this weekend, while others of the all-year-round variety will book in more solid acts. Steel Pier will have its 1961 unveiling as the Hamids open Easter Sunday with Bobby Rydell and the Maynard Ferguson orch.

Rydell will have the Pier's big Music Hall while Ferguson will play for dancers in the Marine Ballroom both afternoon and evening. Disk jockey Ed Hurst will have a record hop in the Marine Ballroom from 4:30 to 8:30 p.m. and the Pier will also offer two first-run pictures plus exhibits and its fun house.

(Continued on page 52)

JEAN SHANNON

VARIETY

"Jean Shannon, exciting earlier as a singer and dancer, emerges as a surefire single comedienne, but retaining the top talents of piping and hoofing. But her comedic stint, via situation bits, oneliners and throwaways, makes her a headliner. And her ad lib ability is amazing; she gets laughs where they're not anticipated." Bark.

DON SAFRON
Dallas Times Herald

"Jean Shannon's new act is a fresh re-emergence of one of this business' professionals. She catches an audience early and holds onto them with a style and zest that is natural and exciting. A warm and powerful personality."

DALE BLAIR
Dallas Times Herald

"Jean Shannon, whose act has some of the funniest new material we've heard in a long while, is a girl to watch or hear whether she's merely telling stories or putting some comic touches to songs. Her humor is always present.

TONY ZOPPI
Dallas Morning News

"Back for her third engagement at the Hotel Adolphus' Century Room, Miss Shannon has built a strong following among the Big D supper club set . . . Jeanie with the light blonde hair could become the most thrilling comedienne since Martha Raye exploded into prominence 25 years ago."

WILLIAM A. PAYNE
(Amusement Editor)
Dallas Morning News

"CENTURY ROOM: Blonde Jean Shannon, making her Dallas debut as a "single," captivated the Century Room audience at Hotel Adolphus Thursday night with a clever combination of sophisticated comedy and song."

JOE REICHMAN
Adolphus Hotel

"A delightfully new concept in distaff comedy. A versatile entertainer equally adept at songs, dances or hilarious punch lines."

Just Concluded

ADOLPHUS HOTEL

Dallas, Texas

Personal Management: PAUL HANDLER, 4750 North Clarendon, Chicago, Ill.

Inside Stuff—Vaude

Honolulu councilmen are learning the facts of life about construction costs—and getting the shock of their collective lives. City floated a $3,000,000 bond issue some years ago for its long-proposed war memorial auditorium and spent $2,300,000 of that amount to obtain the site.

Architect last week submitted an itemized breakdown of the cost of the entire project. Multi-million dollar headache adds up as follows: multi-purpose arena "multitorium," $3,721,000; theatre-concert hall, $2,300,000, 500-seat assembly hall, $542,000; exhibition hall, $269,000; utilities, $130,000; site preparation and development, $360,000.

Architect cautioned that the price can increase as much as 20% unless it's all put out to bid within three months, in view of spiraling construction costs. One councilman came up with the understatement of the week, "Financing becomes a practical problem."

Eddie Root, Jex Minor & and Renee &: and now ballrooming with a new partner Sheila Taylor, is working on a tour for ballroom dancers to Europe this summer in an effort to revive interest in this art, which used to be a staple on the vaude and nitery circuits. Plan includes guest appearances in various cities and then take the tour guest to various dance spots.

Root and his new partner are currently instructing and working the floorshow at the Versailles, Miami Beach; and Scaroon Manor, Schroon Lake, N. Y., during the summer.

A story in the March 15 VARIETY anent Negro comics on the prime ofay nitery circuit erratumed in reporting Slappy White's booking agency. It's Associated Booking Corp. He was booked with the Chi Playboy by ABC v.p. Freddie Williamson.

Flexible aud. which would vary capacity from 1,800 to 2,600, is on the drawing board for construction in Columbia, S.C., along with a coliseum at the Fair Grounds there. Building, which is being designed by architects Lyles, Bissett, Carlisle & Wolff, would utilize a dropping "wall" in the upper balcony, William G. Lyles explained.

The idea isn't new. It was tried in the Adler-Sullivan aud-theatre in Chicago in 1889. Another such structure is now under construction in Detroit, where it will replace two legit houses, the Shubert and the Riviera. Lyles said the idea is to provide best acoustics for plays with the smaller capacity, but more seating for musicals and such.

An attention-getter at Lake Chickamauga Resort near Chattanooga, Tenn., is the Lakeshore Aqua-Dine, a unique 134' x 60' x 21' nylon building supported entirely by air. This huge all-electric structure, first of its type in the U. S., is supported by air pressure supplied by a small blower. It will not collapse even if doors are opened or holes are punched in it. Winds, heavy snow and ice won't affect it.

Aqua-Dine shelters an Olympic size swim pool and also covers surrounding patio. Pool's temperature is kept at comfortable figure for winter swimming. Customers enter Aqua-Dine through air locks.

HONOR SAM BERGER IN CITY OF HOPE BENEFIT

"If only these walls could talk, what a dialect they would have" observed George Jessel in his familiar role as toastmaster at the Grand Ballroom of the Hotel Waldorf-Astoria, N.Y., Sunday (27) at the dinner given for the benefit of the City of Hope in honor of Sam Berger, senior partner and president of the personal management firm of Berger, Ross & Steinman. About 900 attended the affair which went at $75 per skull in which many of the show biz orbit attended.

Jessel had one of his better days. He whipped up the speakers on the platform to a breakneck speed, but the time gained in that respect, was lost by the longish turns of many acts. Format had an entertainer following a speaker. One of the top spots of the evening was a gathering of comedians, each of whom spoke briefly. It remained for Gene Baylos to be the major click with doubletalker Al Kelly a close second. Alan Gale did a good warmup job in this sequence, with good contributions following by Harvey Stone, Bob Melvin, Myron Cohen, Harvey Lemback, and others. Writer Bobby Gordon contributed a series of sketches based on Berger's life. Jose.

Borge 10G, St. Paul

Minneapolis, March 28.

Victor Borge scored a healthy $10,000 in a one-nighter at the St. Paul Auditorium Saturday (25).

Scale in this 2,695 seater was $2.20 to $5.50.

HERBIE SELLS
Opening April 3
STEUBEN'S RESTAURANT
BOSTON, MASS.
JOE FLAUM AGCY.
1697 Broadway, New York City

Mass. Charity Outfits Accent Packaged Shows Rather Than Benefits

Boston, March 28.

The growing trend here of charitable enterprises to buy shows instead of benefits is exemplified with the four-performance booking of a "Celebrity Revue" by Gate of Heaven Church, South Boston, for Dennelly Memorial Theatre (former Loew's State, now operated by Catholic Archdiocese of Boston) April 17-19.

Acts, with Fabian and the Fabulous 4 in closing spot, include Jean Carrolle, Cathy Carr, Billy Ward & his Dominoes, Corbett Monica, Maria Neglia, Lee Martys, Mattison Trio, Excess Baggage, Chop Chop with Charlene. The 3,200-seat theatre is scaled at $4 for orch and loges; $2-$3, balcony. Eddie Elkort, GAC, booked the show.

Don Dennis, Steuben's Vienna Room emcee, will emcee the vaude show, and Tony Bruno's Orch, from Steuben's, will back with 20 pieces. Sam Pearlman is producer.

It's the first vaude show to play here in some time. The idea of buying a complete package show, instead of putting on a benefit, was originated here by Jewish Memorial Hospital, which each year presents an array of big name talent in the Boston Garden, and pre-sells the show in advance with a $10 top.

Local bookers have had a problem for the past five years or more with direct bookers to clubs and theatres, which leave them out in the cold. There is a law, which the bookers succeeded in placing on the books, which is to the effect that bookers shall be residents of Massachusetts. However there is no teeth in the law, and practically anybody can book a show in Mass.

Sinatra's 3 Mexico City Stints, Then Respite

Mexico City, March 28.

Frank Sinatra, due here April 19 for a benefit appearance, may also do a one-shot on tv plus a one-night stint in a local vaude house. Martial Mexicana, the firm which is bringing the singer here, revealed he'll receive $8,000 for the tv show.

Sinatra's tv fee, it was stated, will also be turned over to a charity organization. Following his local appearances, Sinatra will go to Acapulco for a few day's rest.

A. C. Eyes

Continued from page 51

500 Club is bringing in the Jaye Bros. for the holiday to augment its present show while spots like Le Bistro, Jockey Club, Paddock International and Harlem will go along on their present talent. Most of the beachfront hotels will increase their grill talent for the holiday, hoping to do better than good business both Saturday night and Sunday.

More than ever before resort is decorating for this Easter. Hotel and motel lobbies, churches, restaurants and cocktail lounges will be heavy with blooms. Traditional Easter services will open Sunday when 2,000 will assemble in the ocean stadium of Steel Pier at 6 a.m. for morning worship.

The annual fashion parade gets underway on the boardwalk an hour before noon. At its peak hours fashion authorities will move along in rolling chairs and select the "best-hatted" women and men.

3-Way Deal

Continued from page 51

for Van Orman, who has been using semi-name acts in the room in a standard nitery format. The booking agency is speculating to an extent in bringing in the show on a part-cash part-percentage basis in mid-summer in this normally outdoor-oriented area.

Mutual agent Bob Vincent, who arranged the deal, expects to draw from an estimated 500,000 people within 75 miles of Fort Wayne, most of whom have never been to Las Vegas or seen a chorus line and vaude revue. Vincent hopes to put the package on the small town circuit following its Northcrest engagement.

RINGLING CIRCUS PULLS RECORD $170,000 IN D.C.

Washington, March 28.

Ringling Bros. Circus has just completed one of its most successful runs in Washington with a gross of $170,000 for 12 performances, Wolcott Cotton Fenner, v.p. of Super Shows, Inc., a Feld affiliate, said.

The advance sale of $100,000, Fenner declared was due to the use of radio-tv, newspaper, window sign, and billboard advertising. "Ten of the 12 performances were sold out," he noted. "Washington was the first time in the history of Ringling Brothers when we had nine consecutive sellouts."

Vaude, Cafe Dates

Hollywood

June Ericson makes her Coast nitery bow at Marshall Edson's Little Club April 4 for two frames . . . Dick Shawn opens four-week stand at Mapes Hotel, Reno, Aug. 10 . . . The Coasters on display at The Summit . . . Don Rickles and Frances Faye pair up at Crescendo April 6, joining current George Shearing Quint . . . Molly Bee into La Fiesta Club, Juarez, April 3 . . . Carmen MacRae and Mickey Manners set for Slate Bros. teeoff April 6 . . . Rex Allen to star in annual rodeo at Redwood Acres, Eureka, Cal., June 24-25 . . . Dell Fin Thursday joined talent lineup at Ben Blue's . . . Jimmie Rodgers starts Sunday (2) at Chi-Chi, Palm Springs.

Reno

Dinah Shore pacted for June 22 debut at Tahoe Harrah's . . . Nick Lucas follows current Holiday date with recording sesh in Hollywood . . . Tomerlin Bros. signed a Barry Ashton Revue to long-term date at their Golden Hotel, with first night set for May 11 . . . Hank Penny & Sue Thompson to White Sands, Riverside, Calif., April 12 . . . Kay Martin & Bodyguards reprise at Wagon Wheel, Tahoe, July 9 . . . Dick Contino in May 3 at Harrah's, Reno, for four frames . . . Sue Flanders (of the Bobby Page group) to wed Tahoe realtor John Carrillo April 13, but will stay in show biz . . . Dick Shawn inked for one-man, one-month show at Mapes beginning Aug. 10 . . . Trumpeter Al Hirt booked for Tahoe Harrah's date in early fall . . . Matys Bros. in at Holiday for four weeks.

MCA Ups Perenchip

Hollywood, March 28.

Jerry Perenchip has been set to helm MCA's newly-created Western Division Concert Dept., formed to handle concert and theatrical bookings. Promotion ups him to v.p. status, working in conjunction with E. K. Greene.

Greene is in charge of personal appearance activities of clients.

Nina Simone Asks AFM To Get Her $2,500 Pay In Roundtable, N.Y., Tiff

Nina Simone is filing a complaint with the American Federation of Musicians asking a full week's salary from the Roundtable, N.Y., for a recent date there. Singer says that she did not agree to leaving the nitery willingly. She says she was cancelled, and the parting was not by mutual consent as stated by General Artists Corp. veepee Joe Higgins. She is consequently instituting an action with the union to get $2,500.

Miss Simone says that she attempted to sing during the first night of her engagement, but the level of noise was such that the spot's operator and she agreed to stick to instrumentals. At the end of the first show on the third day of her engagement, the operator felt that they ought to part and she was subsequently cancelled. Miss Simone avers that she originally signed for a longer period than one week, but agreed to curtail the date to seven days when it became apparent that the room wasn't to her liking.

'Impulse' Fold Opens Gate

Cancellation of "Impulse" the Alex Cohen jazz show which folded last week on the road, has enabled Nina Simone to start a stand at the Village Gate tomorrow (Thurs.). On bill with her will be Herbie Mann Sextet.

Art D'Lugoff, the Gate operator, is also the personal manager of Miss Simone.

RAY CHARLES TO HIT NAT'L CONCERT TRAIL

Ray Charles has been booked on a concert tour starting April 1 in Kansas City which will culminate in a one-nighter at Carnegie Hall, N. Y., April 30. Hal Zeiger, Coast promoter who has staged some of Charles bashes on the Coast, is doing the promotion of all dates except the college stands.

Charles, who records for ABC-Paramount, is set for 25 dates in all including a string of stands on campuses. College dates include Notre Dame, U. of W. Va., Wisconsin, and Michigan. On tour with Charles will be singer Betty Carter and the Rayettes, a choral group.

BILLY GLASON'S FUN-MASTER
PROFESSIONAL COMEDY MATERIAL
for all Theatricals
"We Service the Stars"
Buy Professional — Be Professional
35 Gag Files for $15, Plus $1.00 Postage
Foreign: 35 for $25
● 3 Parody Books, Per Bk. . . . $10 ●
● 4 Blackout Books, Per Bk. . . $25 ●
● Minstrel Budget . . . . . $25 ●
How to Master the Ceremonies
$3 per Copy
No C.O.D's "Always Open"
BILLY GLASON
200 W. 54th St., N.Y.C., 19 CO 5-1316
(WE TEACH EMCEEING and COMEDY
(Let a Real Professional Train You

"The Refreshingly Different Comedian"

LARRY WILDE
Currently
STEUBEN'S
BOSTON, MASS.
April 3rd (Fifth Return Engagement)
TOWN CASINO
BUFFALO
Pers. Mgt.: BILL FOSTER
1697 Broadway, N.Y. JUdson 2-3326

PEARLS OF THE PACIFIC
★ TAHITIAN DRUM DANCERS ★
Currently FLAMINGO, Las Vegas

WEE MAC ATTRACTIONS
159 N. Dearborn, Chicago, Ill. AN 3-7140

Thirteenth Week on Tour
"HARLEM GLOBETROTTERS"

CAB CALLOWAY
Current CORAL Release
I'LL FOLLOW YOU b/w DANCING MAN
Variety (Jan. 11) RAVES
Management BILL MITTLER, 1619 Broadway, New York

DICK WESTON AND AUNT MARTHA
Comedy Ventriloquism
Currently
THE THUNDERBIRD
LAS VEGAS, NEV.
Pers. Mgt.: GEORGE SOARES
4208 El Jardin, Las Vegas, Nev., Du. 4-2182

Hotel Pierre, N. Y.

Stanley Melba production of "No, No Nanette," by Vincent Youmans; book by Otto Harbach and Frank Mandel; lyrics, Irving Caesar and Harbach; featuring Jimmy Carroll, Jeanne Michelle, Bonnie Murray, Ronald Rogers, Harry Snow, Mary Tremain; adapted by Melba and Dolores Pallet, directed by Miss Pallet, lighting by Leslie Wheel; musical director, Carroll; orchestra conducted by Lee Hilbert (also did the arrangements); $3 cover.

This is No. 5 of the modern dress adaptations of past musicomedy and operetta clicks and it's among the best. While, in a measure, these tabloid musicals are very free versions of the basic original, embellished with other tunes by the same composer, few out front know—or care. Strictly speaking, of course, these have evolved more and more into another form of "salute" to the tunesmith, but there is enough variation on the theme, as against producer Stanley Melba's last season's "composer's nights," to give the current policy new format.

Strictly speaking, "No, No, Nanette" thus sees its score enhanced by such other Vincent Youmans items as "Sometimes I'm Happy" from "Hit The Deck," "Should I Be Sweet?" (from "Take A Chance"), "Orchids In The Moonlight" (from "Flying Down To Rio," a filmusical, not a legit source), "Flannel Petticoat Girl" ("Mary Jane McKane"), "Time On My Hands" (from "Smiles"), "Without A Song" (out of "Great Day"), "Oh Me, Oh My, Oh You" (from "Two Little Girls In Blue") and "Through the Years" (from "Smiling Through").

Thus, factually and actually, "No, No, Nanette" becomes more a Youmans medley than a basic plot source, but maestro-emcee-juvenile Jimmy Carroll (who blends from the podium into the "action") skillfully sets the pattern by indicating that the book is not to be taken too seriously.

The "plot" thread is thus a flimsy skein for the competent six principals to pair off in solos and duets. Each has a seasoned voice and all are topnotch, from the ingenue Mary Tremain to the prima, Bonnie Murray, and the soubret, Jeanne Michelle. Same goes for the three men, Harry Snow seems most at ease, perhaps because he's familiar with the score from the last-season "Night With Vincent Youmans" but Ronald Rogers and Jimmy Carroll are equally facile in their vocal opportunities. Miss Murray, incidentally, flashes some neat ballerina work which is perforce restricted because of the miniature stage.

Melba has done well with these musicomedy patterns; first the composers' salutes, which were good for two solid seasons, and now with these tab musicals which, like the "nights," have been packaged by him and sent to Minneapolis, Montreal, Los Angeles and other niteries. Currently "Anything Goes" is at the Coconut Grove, on the Coast, and will be brought back to wind up the Hotel Pierre's Cotillion Room season on April 25 until the summer closing May 28. This cast will comprise Betty Madigan (Jan McArt was in it last time), Wilbur Evans, Larry Douglas, Carroll and Marie Santell (replacing Mary Tremain in the previous "Anything Goes" package).

Dolores Pallet has done a tiptop staging job and Lee Hulbert batons the Jimmy Carroll orchestra for the equally expert musical backstopping. Abel.

Holiday, Reno

Reno, March 21.

Nick Lucas & His Troubadors (4) with Allie Lorraine; Joe Maize & his Cordovans (4), Charles Gould & His Satin Strings (8); no cover, no minimum.

For the many dates Nick Lucas has played the Reno-Tahoe scene in recent years (an average of three bookings per annum) he's made little change in format, ie., from the straight standup fronting as troubador-balladeer. For current stint, however, there's much departure in the offering, namely, the addition of a femme singer (Allie Lorraine) and the use of a bit of comedy from drummer Mel Obsen. Also the other two troubadors are given more upstaging.

Lucas remains the undisputed headliner with his essaying of titles he's been identified with for a quarter of a century ("Tiptoe Through The Tulips," "Four Leaf Clover," et al.). But with new format he gags it up a bit, works duo with the petite, dark-haired thrush, and generally offers a more relaxed demeanor.

Drummer Obsen scores with asides to auditors and his special sound effects, in addition to his neat percussion work. Despite the revamping, there's no noticeable changes in the Lucas styling. He works smoothly and with little apparent effort, and the pipes retain the same rich quality.

Miss Lorraine, late of the San Francisco bistros, makes with commanding delivery and knows her way around varied tempos. She's smartly gowned and neatly coiffed to enhance the visual appeal. Singer is particularly effective as she belts such as "Swanee," and works tandem with headliner on "Side by Side."

She's strong on the gutteral, growling passages but detracts nothing from the more sensitive interpretations in the doing. Troubadors offer expert backing with trio showing much talent on drums (Mel Obsen), piano (Clark Keen), and string bass (Jim Bates).

Joe Maize, also a frequent visitor to the Reno-Tahoe area, accents both comedy and intricate work on the steel console. Much of the endorsement comes with the comedic stuff, but there's also obvious knowledge on the instrumental work. He utilizes to full advantage his control of facial expressions, and his porcupine hair-do effect.

Partner Johnny Cassineri is a natural foil, and fills in nicely on the accordion. Theirs is a fast package with many gimmicks. Highlight remains Maize's mastery of the steel guitar. Two are backed by drums and string bass.

Charles Gould and his Satin Strings are long-term holdovers. Six violins stroll among auditors for stereo effect, and offer a varied catalog of standards and pops. Violins are augmented by piano and string bass. All are accomplished musicians.

Show change slated for April 12. Long.

Harrah's, Tahoe

Lake Tahoe, March 24.

Fred Waring & his Pennsylvania's (35), Derben Singers & Dancers (17); no cover, no minimum.

Abetted by perfection in sound and lighting equipment, current Fred Waring presentation achieves full concert quality in this 700-seat swankery—and the offering is designed to please all tastes. It's a study in precision, discipline, and class. And the many solo spots (both instrumental and vocal) make for added interest.

For this Tahoe session, included in a special segment done with the Derben Dancers & Singers, with the accent on spring. (On night caught, the area was experiencing one of the heaviest snowstorm of the season, with chains mandatory on all roads leading into the mile-high area). Routine sees choreography expertly executed with Waring ensemble working out of sight behind curtain.

Another departure from past Waring shows (in this room) is a melange of spirituals and folk songs stressing the Easter story, and albeit offered in a saloon, none of the intent was lost. And response is impressive. Titles include such as "Were You There When They Crucified My Lord," and "Glory, Glory, Hallelujah!"

Use of transistor mikes allows for full appreciation of Waring's impressive soloists (of both genders), and strategic placement of stage-side mikes precludes any distraction. Show includes numbers from the classics, Dixieland stuff, semi-classical, novelties and standards, plus instrumental solos for piano and accordion.

Staging is neat and tight, and full turn shows much rehearsal. Waring is upstage for most of the hour-plus, either with baton or at mike for emceeing and a bit of funnery. In his comedic asides, some editing is suggested, what with some of the lines adding no particular value to the bill, yet detracting somewhat from the dignity of the class presentation. But Waring in the maestro role is in a class alone.

New show set for April 6. Long.

Eden Roc, Miami Beach

Miami Beach, March 25.

Johnny Mathis, Jackie Mason, Terrace & Elita, Mal Malkin Orch; $7.50-$10 minimum.

Johnny Mathis is back for a repeat engagement in time for the Easter holiday's teensters and college crowd who are dominant factors in bookers-thinking here at this time. Per always, he grabs a goodly number of such patrons.

But what makes this outing the more notable is that he's wowing adults as well, and they're the tab pickers-up plus providing the buttressing at the cashbox that lifts grosses into a profitable score for the swank Cafe Pompeii. This aspect is especially important with the Mathis fee in the 20-grand class for this stint which concludes Saturday (1).

The lad with the male-duplication of the Lena Horne stage-mannerisms, complete to the shuffling, mincing bow-walks and delivery at mike, has a solid book that hits with all types in the audience. This time out, he's showing development of a more mature approach in, and to his cleffings collection.

The vocalistics are based on a lower range that's highly effective when he gilssandos up into the tricky high-note warblings that distinguish his style. He's sock with the ballads, whams with his upbeat arrangements—only fault is still a tendency to the bemused stare in mien, as if entranced with his lyrics. Withal, Mathis is in the begoff class throughout the constantly building tenure on stage.

Jackie Mason is new here and a big click. Which is a credit to his offbeat delivery and material, for there's a tendency to get sloppy in content—a matter of wandering off on a funny theme to overdo the angles. That he gets them back into yock-mood fast is again evidence that here's a strong addition to the small crew of comics who can play this tough room and make it howl-big with the hip and moneyed patrons.

The heavy eastside accent is at first, a seeming hindrance in projecting the lines to the mixed crowd this posh'ry attracts. But in the unwinding the laughs soon begin to sprout. Delivery is on the intimate side, the comedian working to various ringsiders to get his message across to rest of room. In his case, it's effective. With tightening and some editing, Masons' ready for any class cafe assignment on the Miami-Vegas-Manhattan run.

Terrace & Elita, she's a startling double for the early Rita Hayworth) go well with their Latin-accented ballroomology. Physical appeal is obviously there, and workout of their terps is smoothly handled to set them in hearty-hands class. Mal Malkin and his expanded crew are aces at the showbacks. Due April 2, Frankie Avalon and Alan King. Lary.

Living Room, N.Y.

Sunny Gale, Bobby Cole Trio; $4.50 minimum.

Danny Siegel's Living Room has curtailed some of its activity with this show, relying on its staple, the Bobby Cole Trio and on Sunny Gale, a yet swinger on the circuits. Miss Gale, an alumna of the band vocalist ranks, has a personable line of material which is well delivered. She covers a wide range of subject matter winding up with a medley of new dirkings which provided a lively session. Closer, "Bill Bailey," is her strongest number.

Bobby Cole seems to be a perennial in this room. Working at the piano with bass and drum behind him, he is an offbeat singer and instrumentalist. He investigates the undiscovered side of most of his offerings and frequently comes up with some interesting material. He is slated for top billing on the next Living Room show. Jose.

Club Impulse, Rochester

Rochester, N.Y., March 21.

Lambert, Hendricks & Ross, with Jassic Trio; $1.50 admission weekdays; $2.50 weekends.

Jazz diggers here found something new to sink their teeth into when Club Impulse, a non-alcoholic nitery, opened. Opening week's run, with vocal trio Lambert, Hendricks & Ross, backed by cool sounds instrumental of Jassic Trio, had this jazz pit, a converted funeral parlor, jumping.

Owners of the new club, Neil Sawyer and John R. (Dick) Warner, who operate two downtown record stores, aim to offer top jazz stars to all age groups without exposing younger fans to alcoholic beverages. The operation, they state, is styled after a similar club in San Francisco that has proved highly successful.

Five shows are scheduled nightly, from 10 p.m. until 3 a.m. One of the features of the dry nitery is the vending of food and beverages through coin machines.

Columbia Records' Dave Lambert, John Hendricks & Annie Ross ease through their own composition, "Blue," before applying socko treatment to "In A Mellow Tone" from the Ellington book, Randy Weston's "High Fly," and "Home Cooking" and "Cookin' At The Continental," both by Horace Silver. The trio, one of the hottest combos in jazz, finish with "Cloudburst." Lambert and Hendricks work smoothly with bouncy Annie Ross.

First two shows opening night were sold out. Capacity is 270. Dave.

Deauville, Miami Beach

Miami Beach, March 25.

Jack Carter, Sabrina, Les Rhode Orch; (Damita Jo subbing for Sabrina first two nights); minimum $5-$6.50.

Jack Carter is playing his third date on the hotel-cafe circuit have this season. In another comedian's case, it might be too much of a good thing. But in Carter's he comes up with a raft of fresh out-of-the-news waggery that sets him in good stead to aid in making his hour-long bombardment of belly-laughlines a howl-accepted stint.

Carter's probably one of the hardest-working performers around. He never lets up in punching away at the auditors' likes. He weaves smoothly from a set of lines that might be faltering in raising reaction into a new route that gets him the response.

With his plentifully stocked book, he keeps the laugh aura on high, via one-liners on topical matters, on hotel owners, the guests and around his song-dance pegs. Latter are based on a theme he aptly titles "Showmanship" that allows for his artful impreshes that are as devastating as they are incisive.

Sabrina, through a mixup in contract dates, didn't show for opening night. Damita Jo, long-season holdover click at the Diplomat's Tack Room, was rushed in at last minute to replace. She proved a show-stopper and can be marked as a hot bet for the bigger spots.

Although she — of necessity — used her intimate jazz-styled arrangements, the belting style and lusty themes had the auditors in hand fast. Delivery is very pro, free-flowing with the vocalistics taking in blues and big-beat with equal skill.

An attractive lass, Damita Jo was palm-plaudited in a manner that could have kept here on longer, had she been able to stay; the rush-back to the Diplomat for a show, fifteen miles away prevented.

Les Rhode and his crew backed smartly. Due Thursday (30), the McGuire Sisters. Lary.

Saddle & Sirloin, Tucson

Tucson, March 22.

The Modernaires, Jack Smith Quartet; $2 minimum Saturdays.

The Modernaires, making their third Saddle & Sirloin appearance in the past two years, are once again proving they are among the teams to beat for honors as the country's top vocal quintet. Hal Dickinson, Paula Kelly and company, never sounding better in Tucson, projected a well-paced show of slick vocal arrangements, amply sprinkled with tunes made popular in the Mods' Glen Miller days.

Opening strong with "Little Brown Jug," the group goes on to a ballad "Misty," by Alan Copeland and a spiritual-like interp of "Down By the Riverside." They keep modernizing their standard, "Juke Box Saturday Night," with a surprisingly hilarious Burl Ives impression by Vern Polk. Copeland scores on "My Baby Just Cares," with some 17 impressions of show biz greats. Chuck Kelly contributes a convincing trombone on several numbers.

High spots are a clever routine, "Go to Sleep," by hubby-wife Hal Dickinson and Paula Kelly followed by the inevitable Miller medley. Group has to begoff from new "Tuxedo Junction" arrangement with "April in Paris," to heavy mitting. Alex.

Dunes, Las Vegas

Las Vegas, March 23.

"Holiday in Japan," Izumi Yukimura, Rie Taniuchi, James Borges, The Rocky Fellers (5), Nagata Kings (3), Bill Reddie Orch (14); produced by Steve Parker; directed and choreographed by Paul Godkin; musical direction, Ted Dale; $4 minimum.

For those who have never seen Steve Parker's "Holiday In Japan," the current Arabian Room four-week entry probably leaves nothing to be desired in the way of novel entertainment—its quaint oriental charm is refreshingly different from average nitery fare.

However, the many old friends of the original version, which ran for a year here at the New Frontier, may be somewhat disappointed. The title, and three of the first edition's acts are back, but the revue lacks its predecessor's exciting flavor, making it a doubtful bet as a long run attraction beyond its skedded 28 days.

Outstanding in the show are Rie Taniuchi—who was also the hit of the earlier unit—and a new group called The Rocky-Fellers, a male quintet including two six or seven-year-youngsters who rock hilariously a la Elvis. Miss Taniuchi is still one of the most torrid torso tossers ever to appear in Vegas.

Izumi Yukimura, the Japanese film star, headlines. She's a beauty, and impressively sings American pop songs in English. Perhaps a dash of native songology would make her turn even more effective. The Nagata Kings (3), held over, get rousing yocks with their baseball routine.

Chico Nagata is very funny as a fast draw gunner in a cowboy spoof, and handsome James Borges ideally fits the festivities as singer and narrator.

Unlike the earlier "Holiday," this time there are no nudes—which seems odd, since the Dunes is the hotel which pioneered nudity in Las Vegas.

Paul Godkin deserves a special kudos for his choreo and direction; Ted Dale provides fine teamwork as conductor of the Bill Reddie orch (14).

Zsa Zsa Gabor opens here April 20. Dale.

Fontainebleau, Miami

Miami Beach, March 23.

Louis Prima & Keely Smith with Sam Butera & The Witnesses, Brascia & Tybee; $5-$7.50 minimum.

Louis Prima came to this biggery's LaRonde without Keely Smith for the first part of a two-week engagement—she was reported ailing with an attack of carbuncles. The results, attendance and entertainment-wise, left much to be desired albeit no fault of Prima's.

Booked at the last minute when Dean Martin couldn't make the date, Prima arrived sans not only his partner but some of the regular members of the Witnesses. End result was the sort of performance that might fit a Vegas bar-lounge, but not a swank spot such as this.

Miss Smith made her belated appearance Wednesday (22) along with other missing members of the crew, to rocket the act into the hit class established here two years ago when they first played the area at the Roe's Cafe Pompeii.

The rowdy, betimes bawdy, carefully planned ad-lib bits of biz between Prima and Miss Smith—playing to a filled room—are as potent as ever. It's now questionable on how one would do without the other. As an oddly-contrasted team they belt all the way.

Miss Smith's deadpan stance, random body-scratching and "bored-by-it-all" attitude while awaiting her turn serve as a mute-straight to build the Prima antics while working out his ace trumpetry, growly comedy vocals and mangled English gab.

Sam Butera is another big item with his special song bits with Prima and in instrumental solos; another solid item is from his trombone man. Miss Smith wraps it up with her set of blues and rhythm tunes and finally, in the duo-vocals with partner-spouse Prima. There's one off factor—the troupe could use some staging on coming on, and getting off at end of act.

Brascia & Tybee, held over, score again with their Cubano-beat and "West Side Story" accented terps.

Due Saturday (1), Paul Anka. Lary.

CURRENT BILLS

WEEK OF MARCH 29

NEW YORK CITY

MUSIC HALL Gladys Kreise, Helen Wood, Alearas Bros., Rasses, Bill Drew, Corps de Ballet, Raymond Paige Orc.

AUSTRALIA

MELBOURNE (Tivoli) — John Larsen, Colin Croft, Ormonde Douglas, Nance Parkinson, Doreen Morrow, Alwyn Smith, Bruno Schulever, Judy Hooke, Charles Philpot, Eileen Hattam, Frederick Dore, John Scott, William Howard, Vincent Foster, Arthur German, Lorraine Quinn, Ian Smith, Robert Clarke.

SYDNEY (Tivoli)—Bob Kole, Rita Tanzo, Wendy Warine, Ben Vargas, Joe Bennett, Robbin Miller, B. J. DeSimone, Joel Craig, John Mineo, Steven Ross, Patsy Hemingway, Julie Day, Rez Collins, Ted Zegner, Philip A'Vera, Lloyd Cunningham.

BRITAIN

BRIGHTON Hippodrome — Tony Hancock, Jones, Albert & Les Ward, Skyliners, Leo Bassi, & [illegible]

BLACKPOOL (Tower Circus) Charlie [illegible]

[illegible]

Cabaret Bills

NEW YORK CITY

[illegible]

Steve La Fever.

LE CRAZY HORSE—Crazy Horse Revue

SLATE BROS.—Jerry Lester, Dagmar Dick Stabile Trio.

STATLER HOTEL—"Playmates of '61" Skinny Ennis Orc.

THE SUMMIT—The Coasters.

YE LITTLE CLUB — Randy Sparks, Gloria Smyth, Joe Felix Duo.

LAS VEGAS

DESERT INN—Tony Martin, Ford & Hines, Donn Arden Dancers, Carlton Hayes Orc.; Lounge: Michael Kent, Dave Apollon, Milt Herth, Henri Rose, Bobby Stevenson.

Dunes—"Holiday in Japan." Izumi Yukimura, Rie Tanuchi, James Borges, Rocky Fellers, Nagata Kings, Bill Reddie Orc.; Lounge: Billy Eckstine, Joy & The Boys.

EL CORTEZ—Johnny Ukulele, Lei Mani, Bromley Twins, Spencer Quinn.

FLAMINGO Steve Allen, Jayne Meadows, Gabe Dell, Belle Montrose, Flamingoettes, Nat Brandwynne Orc.

FREMONT Joe King Zaniacs, Fabulous Jets, Satellites.

GOLDEN NUGGET Bob Wills, Wade Ray 5, Sunshine Boys, Bobbie & Smoky Coats.

HACIENDA — Four Tunes, Johnny Olenn, Revelots, Cathy Ryan.

MINT—Pat Mariano's "Artists & Models"

NEVADA CLUB [illegible]

NEW FRONTIER [illegible]

RIVIERA [illegible]

SAHARA [illegible]

SANDS [illegible]

SHOWBOAT [illegible]

SILVER SLIPPER [illegible]

STARDUST [illegible]

THUNDERBIRD [illegible]

TROPICANA [illegible]

MIAMI-MIAMI BEACH

AMERICANA [illegible]

BILTMORE TERRACE [illegible]

[illegible]

DEAUVILLE [illegible]

DIPLOMAT [illegible]

EDEN ROC [illegible]

FONTAINEBLEAU [illegible]

MURRAY FRANKLIN'S [illegible]

PALLADIUM [illegible]

SAXONY [illegible]

SEVILLE [illegible]

THUNDERBIRD—Frankie Scott, Richie B[illegible]

RENO-TAHOE

HAROLD'S CLUB Rusty Draper, Charles [illegible] Don Conn Orc.

HARRAH'S (Reno — Jerry Colonna, [illegible]

HARRAH'S Tahoe [illegible]

HOLIDAY Nick Lucas, Troubadors, [illegible]

MAPES [illegible]

RIVERSIDE Vaughn Monroe, Ford & [illegible]

WAGON WHEEL (Tahoe) — Andrini [illegible]

SAN FRANCISCO

BLACKHAWK Anita O'Day.

EARTHQUAKE McGOON'S — Turk Murphy Orc.

FAIRMONT HOTEL—Della Reese, Ernie Heckscher Orc.

GAY 90'S—Ray K. Goman, Bee & Ray Goman.

HUNGRY i Stan Wilson, Barry & Carlin, Bob Ponnet.

JAZZ WORKSHOP—Cannonball Adderley.

NEVE Carmen McRae, Dick Kerr.

NEW FACK'S Mel Young, Bobbi Norris, Geo. Cecutti 3.

ON THE LEVEE Kid Ory Orc.

PURPLE ONION — Don Irwin, Carol Breen, Epstine Paris.

365 CLUB Phyllis Inez, Barry Ashton Dancers, Roy Palmer Orc.

[illegible]

VILLAGE BARN [illegible]

VILLAGE GATE [illegible]

VILLAGE VANGUARD — Stan Getz

WALDORF-ASTORIA [illegible]

CHICAGO

BLUE ANGEL [illegible]

DRAKE [illegible]

GATE OF HORN [illegible]

LONDON HOUSE Jack Teagarden, [illegible]

MISTER KELLY'S [illegible]

PALMER HOUSE [illegible]

PLAYBOY CLUB Bill Henderson, [illegible]

TRADE WINDS [illegible]

LOS ANGELES

BEN BLUE'S Ben Blue, Les Corps de Ballet [illegible]

CLOISTER [illegible]

CRESCENDO [illegible]

DINO'S — [illegible]

Tahoe

Continued from page 1

workers in the area, who will ride a chartered bus for six hours or more each way, win or lose a few and then go back after a few hours on the same chartered bus.

The secret of that trade is the fact that Harrah's refunds more than half their roundtrip bus fare, as an initial grubstake, and also gives a token good for one drink. The offer of the fare refund is good only from Monday to Friday noon. The Chinese workers that come here, for example, are avid Keno players. It's a card game in which the player marks 10 numbers on a card. If those numbers come up, prizes up to $25,000 are possible.

Harrah's in the peak summer periods employs as many as 3,000, bulk of them in the Lake Tahoe operation, and about 800 in its Reno outlet. All this has come about without a first-class hotel and little convention trade, which is counter to the normal growth patterns in any resort area. The bus and automobile riders have been sufficient up to now.

However, near Harrah's, the Wagon Wheel is breaking ground for an 11-story hotel. There are reports that Harrah has blueprints for a 1,000-room edifice to be constructed. Harrah has accumulated [illegible] ground for this purpose. Last week a deal was closed for the [illegible] Plaza Casino, across the road from the present site. On the other side of the road, next [illegible] the Wagon Wheel, the old [illegible] is owned [illegible] winter weekends. [illegible]

Harrah Sparks Expansion

[illegible]

Harrah has long wanted to Bay too [illegible] but has only done so within the last year when the new 700-seat South Shore Room was completed. Harrah still permits the unconventional attire in these rooms that is normal in Nevada, but is trying to accustom the trade to wearing ties and jackets, which is not placing too great a strain on the democratic procedure normal in this area. Harrah also has other ventures, such as the Ferarri and Rolls Royce agencies in that part of the country. Last week he sold a Rolls to Sammy Davis Jr.

[illegible] nature of the resort.

Up to now, Tahoe has had no plane service. However, it's anticipated that within a few weeks, TWA will inaugurate a service from San Francisco and expand to other cities in time. The fare will be $22 for a round trip from that city, of which Harrah will refund $11 to the buyer and also give him a "token" for a drink.

Because of the influx of the mass spender, Harrah's has felt little need for the convention trade, although there have been a few meets which were housed in various motels in the area. With hotels in the works for this area, the confab trade is likely to come. However, they will have to be resigned to the fact that they will have no preferential treatment, as Harrah feels this would destroy the democratic

House Reviews

Bobino, Paris

Paris, March 10.

Juliette Greco, Charlivels (3), Edmond Taillet, Potassy & Partner, Pierre Repp, Little John, Rilanders (2); $1.50 top.

Juliette Greco is making her first singing headline appearance at this name house in three years. She has lost nothing of her sophisticated bite in the interim. Moreover, her thesping stints in pix have helped her in stance and deft use of arms and expressions. She is still sheathed in a black full length gown. But a reddish tint to her hair and a humorous tinge to her songs give this a balance which has her in for good audience response and a probable two weeks of fine biz. The expert supporting show around her also helps.

Existentialism has passed, but Miss Greco remains. Her dramatic songs still have a direct, biting flair. However, they are now heightened by a knowing acceptance of life which gives them a better balance and tang.

Her candor, fine enunciation and offbeat voice, plus intelligent songs, build this into a witty and personal stint. Only she could get away with a [illegible] lament about the good old days in [illegible] of so-called ill repute. Under the [illegible] is a direct human [illegible] with keen awareness and [illegible] which blends her into the offbeat singing star she is and [illegible]

Charlivels hold down second spot [illegible]

[illegible]

Etoile, Paris

Paris, March 22

[illegible]

Charles Trenet tries that hazardous thing for a singer, a one-man show. It is a tribute to his knowhow and sympathetic qualities to state that he manages to keep [illegible] alive almost throughout, [illegible] except for a few lags when his self-elected material may build up to a repetitious feeling.

But then a shaft of poetics, sincere sentiment, or a deeper, more probing bit of satire or truth peak things up again. He looks in for an okay stint at this house, but it is not smash.

Trenet is in fine form. He has eschewed his old hat prop. However, there is plenty left underneath. His songs are fresh, airy and rarely melancholy, tortured, biting or dramatic, as seems to be the bent here. He is a man who likes to sing, likes life and conveys it to the audience. He is ably backed by the Guy Lapaerts orchestra and chorus. Biz is about three quarters weekdays, but full on weekends.

There are not many singers who have the showmanship and more dynamic production qualities to warrant an upbeat full length show. Even Edith Piaf never tries it and is content to be preceded by a well picked group of acts.

Maurice Chevalier, of course, is an exception. Perhaps Yves Montand has it and Henri Salvador. But then it is hard to find the prerequisites for a singing act diverse enough for an all night stint.

Trenet is exuberant, big voiced and has a good sense of musicianship that keeps things rattling pleasantly along. Most of the songs are catchy and good. He again makes it clear he is one of the sock staple singers here and, though not making concessions to modern song angles, is as fresh and pertinent as ever. A solid showman he. Mosk.

New Act

THE GAYLORDS (2)
Songs, Comedy
30 Mins.
Latin Quarter, N. Y.

The Gaylords, trimmed down to a twosome, have revamped their turn so that singing and comedy are mixed in ample proportions. They have a universal applicability so that they can work lounges as well as the big rooms. They have a forceful projection, good singing voices, and their material hits with frequency.

The Gaylords have been successful with disked adaptations of Italian tunes, and they reprise some of their material in that genre. Their comedy, however, is fairly basic. It's far from being cute or sophisticated, and sometimes it seems too beat on reaching for the [illegible]. But, it is still an effective act, although not quite up to the standard of the Latin Quarter. Jose.

Civil War

Continued from page 1

[illegible]

RCA Victor [illegible] into the Civil War [illegible]

MGM Records is issuing a new "Gone With The Wind" album by Ornadel, which will be a double-fold package containing a pictorial spread. The diskery will also renew its push on two Jaye P. Morgan albums, "Down South" and "Up North."

Dot Records is producing an album called "Leaves of Grass," consisting of excerpts from Walt Whitman set to music by Irving Gertz. It will be performed by Dr. Norman Sorenson Wright and the choir of the Hollywood First Methodist Church. Roulette is riding with its "Civil War Almanac," a two-volume set recorded by the Cumberland Three.

An album called "Abe," reflecting Lincoln's life and times in song and story, will be released by 20th-Fox Records. The package features the voices of the Robert de Cormier Chorale and will be narrated by Charles Hohman, who portrays the part of Lincoln. Also due for release this month is a new Max Steiner orchestration of "Gone With The Wind," which will be issued under the Warner Bros. banner.

banner. The indie Folkways label is also getting into the act.

Weinstein-Feldman Plan 3d House For Westport-Paper Mill Setup

By JESSE GROSS

A potential stock operation gross of $1,000,000 a year is the aim of the producing team of Henry T. Weinstein and Laurence Feldman. According to James B. McKenzie, general manager of the firm, the Laurence Henry Co., the outfit will presently be able to afford a staff of directors and stage managers and provide its own capitalization for the production of plays on Broadway.

Weinstein and Feldman, now involved in the operation of two stock theatres, intend adding a third to their string next winter. The two theatres with which they're now connected are the Westport (Conn.) Country Playhouse and the Paper Mill Playhouse, Millburn, N. J. They've been responsible for summer programs at Westport since 1959 and last year joined Frank Carrington, managing director of the Paper Mill in producing shows there.

With the addition of a third theatre to be selected, it's figured the potential combined take from the three operations will provide the desired $1,000,000 gross. That's based on total receipts last summer of $501,829 for regular legit performances only at the Connecticut and New Jersey spots. The 1960 gross for a 13½-week session at Westport was $236,025, compared to the $213,000 take for 13 weeks the previous year. At Paper Mill, the gross for a 14-week spread last summer was $265,804, an increase over a $100,000 take for the same number of weeks in 1959.

Weinstein and Feldman, who have a lease on the Westport house through 1964, recently signed an agreement with Carrington to continue their co-producing arrangement for five years. The extended

(Continued on page 61)

English-Language Group Does U.S. Plays, Munich; Big Potential Audience

Munich, March 21.

An English-language legit enterprise has been unveiled at the Intimes Theatre here by an American company tagged Theatre International. The organization, founded by its producer, Hjordis Hume, is presenting "The Hairy Ape" as its initial presentation.

The venture is regarded as being particularly important in that it may provide a clue as to whether or not there's much of an audience for English-speaking legit companies in such European cities as Munich, where there are a large number of Yank residents and tourists. This town, for instance, has a heavy GI contingent, plus a sizable American resident colony.

There are also an estimated 1,000-2,500 tourists and businessmen from the U. S. in the city each day, besides Americans involved in film production in Geiselgasteig. Another group believed to be interested in English-language legit here is the university's English language and literature students, who would presumably appreciate the opportunity of being able to catch an American play in its original language.

Among those in the Theatre International company are several performers previously connected with the Provincetown (Mass.) Players. Three members of the cast were here as U. S. soldiers and decided to join the company upon discharge. Starring in the play is former fighter and jazz musician Al Hoosman, a local resident.

Other performers include Tanya Wisbar, daughter of film-tv director Frank Wisbar, and Daniel McCafferty. Arthur Brauss and Ramond Burgin, who also directed the offering, for which tickets are scaled to a $3 top.

New Haven's Arts Fest Dropped for This Year

New Haven, March 28.

New Haven Festival of the Arts, after three years on the historic New Haven Green, has been dropped for this year for lack of funds.

The necessary $20,000 bankroll was not forthcoming, presumably because of local economic conditions. The event may be revived in 1962.

Jack Carson in 'Million' Set for Ft. Worth Date

Fort Worth, March 28.

Jack Carson will star in "Make a Million," opening May 3 at the Casa Manana here as third production of the Spring Play Festival. The comedy will have five performances, May 3-6.

The Casa Manana's summer musicals series of seven productions opens May 27 with a local premiere of "Calamity Jane," based on the film western.

K. C. Bandbox's Double Bill Hit: Drama-'Drunkard'

Kansas City, March 28.

Carrying on a successful legit operation in a 125-seat theatre has had its problems for the Cabaret Players at the Gilded Cage Theatre, but "The Drunkard" seems to be the answer. The company, under American Guild of Variety Artists jurisdiction, is currently presenting "Suddenly Last Summer" at 8:30 Fridays and Saturdays as its serious entry.

It follows with "The Drunkard" at 10:30, however. The Tennessee Williams drama has a $2.75 top, while the hokum meller draws only $2 per head. Or a patron can stay over from the serious piece for the souse opus at half price $1.

The company, headed by Michael Newton, Duke Howze and Lois Daniels, played "The Drunkard" over a year in the Cage, then took it out for other shows. It brought back the oldie, however, and its steady grossing upholds any weaknesses in the straight plays the company presents, such as "The Little Hut" earlier this season.

Two performances nightly of "The Drunkard," however, do not seem to draw as well as the dual-billed serious effort combined with the meller. The theatre's capacity of only 125 seats demands a turnover. The company plays weekends only.

The Cage is located above the Red Garter Saloon and Branding Iron Cafe, and cafe-saloon owner Peter Carter also operates a bar in connection with the upstairs theatre. Drinks are offered at beginning and intermissions of the serious play, but anytime during the meller.

GUTHRIE WILL DIRECT CHAYEFSKY'S 'GIDEON'

Stratford, Ont., March 28.

Tyrone Guthrie, who's set to direct Paddy Chayefsky's "Gideon," which Fred Coe and Arthur Cantor intend producing on Broadway next season, is due here in June for the start of rehearsals of the Stratford Shakespeare Festival presentation of Gilbert & Sullivan's "The Pirates of Penzance," which he'll stage. The production will later play the Tyrone Guthrie Theatre, currently under construction in Milwaukee.

Guthrie directed a previous Chayefsky play, "The Tenth Man," which is currently in its 73d week on Broadway. Cantor is co-producer of that show, in partnership with Saint Subber.

Open House

Ruth White, featured femme lead, in "Big Fish, Little Fish" at the ANTA Theatre, N. Y., apparently spilled too much in an interview prior to the show's recent Broadway opening. The actress, a resident of Perth Amboy, N. J., told a local reporter her entire family planned to attend the preem.

The story was published, and on the night of the show's opening the White residence was robbed of a tv set, movie camera, jewelry and $500 worth of bonds.

Hub's Charles Playhouse Offering European Tour

Boston, March 28.

Charles Playhouse, a local off-Broadway type operation, is sponsoring a European theatre tour, organized by house manager Nance Movsession. It will take girl students to Paris, Milan, Rome, Verona, Vienna, Salzburg, Bayreuth, London, Stradford, Edinburgh and Dublin.

The tour leaves July 15 and returns Aug. 24, according to Frank Sugrue, producer of the Charles.

B'way 'Mattress' Pays 5% Profit

The road tours this season of "Once Upon a Mattress," although representing an enormous production and operational deficit to date, is paying off for the management and backers of the original New York venture. An initial $10,000 profit distribution will be made the end of this week by the management of that presentation, which preemed at the Phoenix Theatre, N. Y., and subsequently played four different Broadway houses prior to closing last July 2.

The original edition, which completed repayment of its $100,000 investment last January, has been earning income from the musical's road operations. There were originally two editions of the property on tour this season. One which had been hitting major cities, closed last March 18, and the other, a bus-and-truck entry for split-week stands, is scheduled to close May 27 in Washington. The active company will take over some of the time previously scheduled for the closed presentation.

Under its original deal with the touring companies, which were jointly financed at $120,000, the original New York production was to get $750 a week royalty from each troupe against 5% of the weekly gross, but concessions may have been made in that setup because of a substantial deficit thus far incurred by the two-company road venture.

The $10,000 profit divvy is to be split equally between the management (T. Edward Hambleton, Norris Houghton and William and Jean Eckart) and the backers, giving the latter a 5% return on their investment. The road enterprise is under the management of Frances Cannon Hersey and Michael Dewell, who obtained the touring rights from the National Phoenix Theatre, Inc.

Costarring in the remaining edition of the musical, currently at the O'Keefe Centre, Toronto, are Imogene Coca, Edward Everett Horton and King Donovan. Dody Goodman and Buster Keaton costarred in the other touring company. The musical, a parody of Hans Christian Andersen's "The Princess and the Pea," has a book by Marshall Barer and Dean Fuller, music by Mary Rodgers and lyrics by Barer.

2 'Nervous Set' Numbers Due for West End Revue

St. Louis, March 28.

Two tunes from the 1959 musical, "The Nervous Set," originally presented in St. Louis at the Crystal Palace and later done on Broadway, have been acquired by the London producing firm H. M. Tennent for the upcoming revue, "On the Avenue," slated for the West End in April. The songs, "How Do You Like Your Love?" and "The Ballad of the Sad Young Men," have lyrics by Fran Landesman and music by Tommy Wolf. The pair recently collaborated with Nelson Algren and Jay Landesman on a musical version of the Nelson Algren novel, "A Walk on the Wild Side," recently sold to Columbia Pictures.

The Landesmans and Wolf recently completed their third show, "Molly Darling," a turn-of-the-century musical which will probably be turning up as a summer presentation at the Crystal Palace cabaret-theatre.

Choreographer - director Dania Krupska is staging the N. Y. City Center revival of "Show Boat," due April 12 with a cast headed by Joe E. Brown, Jo Sullivan, Robert Rounseville, Jane Kean, Carol Brice, Anita Darian and Richard France.

Bellamy Supporting Split Ticket In Factional Equity Election Fight

Ralph Bellamy, unopposed candidate for a fourth term as president of Actors Equity, is campaigning for a split ticket in the union's upcoming annual election. Although he heads the nominating committee's slate, Bellamy has thumbed down six of his running mates in favor of candidates nominated by petition. The action is regarded partly as a move to provide a more politically balanced lineup than that recommended by the nominating committee.

The Equity president's stand, endorsed by 20 prominent members of the union, was the subject of a privately-financed campaign mailing to members of the union last week. Headlined "Ralph Bellamy's Personal Views Concerning the Election," the piece deals particularly with the contest for the post of recording secretary, the only officer category in which there are opposing candidates.

Bellamy is strongly supporting John Effrat, the incumbent. Effrat, the recording secretary for the last nine years, was by-passed by the nominating committee in favor of council member Carl Harms, whose term expires next year. Effrat is running for re-election on a nominations-by-petitions slate, which also includes five council candidates.

Although he gives Effrat an endorsement, Bellamy also expresses the opinion that Harms is a "fine and devoted councillor." His feeling, though, is that since Harms still has a year to go as councillor the membership, in voting for Effrat, would "keep the services of two fine and experienced councillors." Also getting Bellamy's en-

(Continued on page 60)

Merrick Has Versatile Production Assistants

A rash of off-Broadway moonlighting has broken out in the office of Broadway producer David Merrick. Last January his casting director, Michael Shurtleff, debuted as a playwright with the production of "Call Me by My Rightful Name" at One Sheridan Square, N. Y.

Now Merrick's production assistant, Virginia Snow, and his secretary, Elizabeth Raynor, are to be partnered in the off-Broadway production of two modern Scandinavian one-acters. The double-bill, which they intend presenting at an undesignated house this spring, consists of Hjalmar Bergman's "Mr. Sleeman is Coming" and Runar Schildt's "The Gallows Man."

They've formed the Sno-Ray Co. for the venture.

Shuberts Weigh 'Student Prince' Revival in Hub

Boston, March 28.

That old Shubert perennial, "The Student Prince," may be due for a comeback. It's understood the Shuberts are readying a new version of the Sigmund Romberg operetta for a tryout at the Shubert Theatre here following the scheduled departure from the house next May 20 of its current longrun tenant, "My Fair Lady."

The revival is said to be the idea of John Yorke, former manager of the Shubert Theatre here, and now an executive of the Show of the Month Club in New York. A longtime member of the Shubert organization, Yorke discussed the possibility of a new "Prince" production during a recent visit here, expressing the opinion that a new generation may welcome the 1924 operetta.

The Shuberts own the rights to "Prince," which was last presented here by a road company about 20 years ago.

NEW ROOF AND SIDES FOR HUB ARTS CENTER

Boston, March 28.

The Metropolitan District Commission has voted to appropriate $25,000 to replace the canvas sides and bubble roof of the Metropolitan Boston Arts Center Theatre, the state-sponsored playhouse on the Charles River in Brighton. The hurricane last September shredded the sides and damaged the roof of the tent, which has been occupied for two seasons by the Cambridge Drama Festival.

The MDC has ruled out the festival for this year, but the season will be under the direction of the theatre committee, headed by Jerome Rosenfeld, president and founder of the Show of the Month Club; and Talcott Banks and Nelson W. Aldrich, prexy. The committee plans to bring in a producing company to conduct a 10-week season.

Commissioner Robert F. Murphy has promised that the MDC will fulfill maintenance obligations stated in the lease to the arts center theatre committee. A proposal to convert the present steel-girdered, canvass-roofed structure to a permanent, all-wether playhouse were tabled, subject to further study.

Buoyant Presnell

Harve Presnell, male lead in "The Unsinkable Molly Brown," makes an initial appearance April 14 on the Telephone Hour, booked by Andre Mertens of Columbia Concerts.

Under the concert manager's prodding, Presnell is developing his voice in the Wagnerian repertory.

Legiter 'Suzie' Likely To Hit Politico Snags Prior to Sydney Preem

Sydney, March 21.

James Laurie's Aussie production of "Suzie Wong" looks like coming up against political snags prior to its preem at Palais, St. Kilda, Melbourne. Also understood that the local gendarmes will be present at the premiere to report back to the authorities whether the play is suitable for general viewing by the public.

In Parliament House, Canberra, Labor politicians asked the Robert Menzies' Liberal Party government if steps would be taken to prevent plays of the 'Wong' type from coming into Australia, especially as this sort of legiter highlighted the life of a prostitute and was considered by Opposition members as quite unsuited for presentation here.

Spokesman for the Menzies' government said the show would be viewed by governmental officers and a decision would be made in due course. General opinion in show biz circles here is that no action will be taken against "Wong."

Laurie is presently dickering for a Sydney house for "Wong," and an approach has been made to Metro for a lease of the Minerva, King's Cross, 1,000-seater, formerly used for stage shows by the late David Martin.

"Wong" is the British producer's first bid Down Under.

Local 'Seesaw' to Play Wilbur Theatre, Boston

Boston, March 28.

Jerome Rosenfeld, Boston and New York Show of the Month Clubs president who has presented several shows here this season is partnering with Frank Sugrue, producer of the local Charles Playhouse, in the production of "Two for the Seesaw," costarring John Ireland and Lee Grant.

The production, being directed by Jeffrey Lynn, will play the Wilbur Theatre for three weeks, opening next Monday (3). Although the William Gibson comedy has been played around the central Massachusettes area in stratshat, it has never played Boston in any form.

Sugrue is finishing up his Charles Playhouse season with "The Cocktail Hour," for which he is importing six English actors.

Hopes for 'Perfect' Musical

Gower Champion Still Tinkering as 'Carnival' Continues Tryout—Wary of Losing Right Balance

By LES CARPENTER

Washington, March 28.

Gower Champion and his "Carnival" company moved on to Philadelphia over the weekend for two more weeks of tryouts, while the director and choreographer pondered the knotty problem of attempting to make a "perfect" musical out of what already appears a certain hit.

"There are spots in the show that bug me," Champion complained before leaving. "But I am afraid to fool with them very much. I mustn't disturb the balance of the delicate mechanism which somehow works in its present form. Yet there are changes I would like to make."

The new David Merrick production collected unanimous raves from the three Washington critics, plus audience enthusiasm without equal here in recent years. It was a total sellout, including maximum standing room, at all performances except opening night, when there was unsold standing room.

"It isn't like getting panned," said Champion. "In that case a director can charge in and overhaul everything. Should I alter one character now, I mights disturb the entire thing."

Champion has already made minor adjustments which have seemed to click. The puppets, created by Tom Tichenor, have had such an impact that their lines have been lengthened. A song by James Mitchell, "A Sword, Rose and Cape," has been shortened, but the ballet following it left untouched.

Champion wants and will have, revisions in Anna Maria Alberghetti's first song, "A Very Nice Man." These alterations have been made only after extensive consideration and consultation.

"To me," observed the stager, "'South Pacific' was the 'perfect' musical. I'd like to see this one 'perfect,' but I can see things that bother me."

Champion had a hit in his first effort at combining direction and choreography for a Broadway musical. That was "Bye Bye Birdie." He confesses that he wanted to be directing all the time he was performing as a dancer with wife Marge.

"I'd direct anything I had a chance to direct," he recalled. "I staged 'Lend an Ear' and did the dances for 'Make a Wish' and 'Small Wonder' for Broadway. Then, I did a number of directing jobs for television. I directed commercials; anything I had a chance to direct.

"You know, tv offers a marvelous training ground if you want to learn to direct. It's a different technique, of course, but it gives you a chance at staging, and that's the important thing."

Ed Danus Moving Stock Operation Near Atlanta

Newnan, Ga., March 28.

Ed Danus, New York actor and director and a former Atlantan, is moving his summer stock theatre activities from Brighton Beach, New York, to this small Georgia town, about 40 miles from Atlanta. He plans a 12-week Southern Theatre Festival starting June 12 at the 300-seat Patchwork Opera House, located in the Dunaway Plantation Gardens, a tourist spot.

The outdoor playhouse will be renamed the Vivien Leigh Theatre, in honor of British actress who played Scarlet O'Hara in "Gone With The Wind" and visited Atlanta recently to attend the anniversary local re-release of the picture at Loew's Grand Theatre there.

Planned in connection with the Centennial of War Between the States is a six-show festival (two weeks each) to include two plays about the 1861-65 conflict. Four other plays will be by Southern authors or about Dixie. At least one will be a premiere, according to Danus, who said that a professional company from New York will present the plays.

In recent years the Patchwork has been used by the Newman Playmakers and by visiting concert groups from Atlanta.

Coast Lawyer Sues For 'Vintage '60' Legal Fees

Los Angeles, March 28.

Attorney Bernard M. Malin has filed suit in Los Angeles Superior Court against Broadway producer David Merrick, Coast legit producers Zev Bufman, George Skaff and Max Perkins, the "Vintage '60" revue and Max-Pam-Bev Productions, Inc. He claims that $8,500 is due him for legal services.

Bufman, Skaff and Perkins, who preemed "Vintage '60" at the Ivar Theatre here last April, were also partnered with Merrick in the Broadway edition of the show, which was a fast fold last fall. Malin, who's represented by Murray Gomer, asserts that in the last two years he's been paid only $500 on a total fee of $9,000.

(According to Merrick, he had nothing to do with the retention of Malin as an attorney for the "Vintage '60" production and is not involved in the situation. His inclusion in the suit is a legal formality, he says.—Ed.)

'Tenderloin' Has 120G to Recoup

"Tenderloin" has thus far repaid its backers 50% of their $350,000 investment. The repayment climbed to $175,000 with the distribution earlier this month of another $17,500.

The Robert E. Griffith-Harold S. Prince presentation, on twofers since last January, earned a $15,497 operating profit for the four weeks ended last Feb. 25 on grosses ranging from $36,743 to $47,901. The musical cleared $752 on the lower figure when royalties were waived, and $4,549 on the higher take.

As of Feb. 25, the Maurice Evans-starrer had unrecouped costs of $125,821. The outstanding deficit is figured to be about $110,000-$120,000 now. The musical adaptation of Samuel Hopkins Adams' novel, with book by George Abbott and Jerome Weidman, music by Jerry Bock and lyrics by Sheldon Harnick, cost $247,027 to produce. A $14,473 operating profit on the out-of-town tryout reduced the cost of opening the show on Broadway to $232,544.

The production is currently in its 24th week at the 46th St. Theatre, N. Y. A new musical, "Donnybrook," is booked to open at the house May 18.

Bob Weiner Resigns As 'Double Entry' Manager

Robert Weiner has resigned as general manager of "Double Entry," currently in its fifth frame at the Martinique Theatre, N. Y. Following his withdrawal, he planed to Chicago to check his production of "Medium Rare," which has past its 450th performances at The Happy Medium cabaret-theatre.

The swiggery-playhouse is run by Oscar and George Marienthal, co-producers of "Double Entry."

Rogers & Gordon Eying Two Projects for B'way

Two properties contemplated for Broadway production by the newly-formed producing team of Emmett Rogers and S. Stanley Gordon are "Fare the Well," a comedy by screenwriter Robert Presnell Jr., and a dramatization of Arthur Woolson's novel, "Goodbye My Son." Rogers and Gordon planned from New York to Los Angeles last Friday (24) to meet with Presnell.

While on the Coast they'll also confer with film scripter-stager Richard Brooks regarding a projected stage version of the Woolson novel. Brooks, who owns the screen rights to the book, would possibly be partnered with Rogers and Gordon in the projected legit production.

Stock Group In Trade Restraint, Packager Claims

An "unlawful restraint of trade" issue has been raised by Floyd F. Ackerman Associates in connection with the recent announcement by the Council of Stock Theatres of its resolution to eliminate "excessive charges which have been added to star package productions by middlemen packagers." The Ackerman firm is a major packager of summer theatre productions.

COST has been notified by the Ackerman outfit that it intends fighting the organization's declaration, "That the outside packager, who has an attraction of interest to us, must work with a COST member as co-producer and adhere to the COST regulations." According to a member of COST, this demand does not necessarily mean a financial arrangement between the summer theatre operator and the packager.

The primary purpose of the resolution is to give the barn operator an opportunity to see the books of the packager and therefore ascertain whether the price being asked for the package is reasonable. The COST package position was reaffirmed at a membership meeting in N.Y. last Monday (27).

Despite the COST stand on packages, the Ackerman office is continuing to set stars and presentations for the summer market. Included in the firm's lineup are several husband-and-wife teams, notably Craig Stevens and Alexis Smith, Michael O'Shea and Virginia Mayo and Pat and Mrs. O'Brien.

The Stevens couple are to tour in "Marriage - Go - Round," the O'Sheas in "Send Me No Flowers" and the O'Briens in "Mr. January and Mrs. X." Other entries take in "Remains to Be Seen," with Mel Torme and Dagmar; "Country Girl," with Vera Miles, Jeffry Morrow and Keith Larsen; "Majority of One," with Sylvia Sidney, and Anne Sheridan and Scott McKay in a property still to be set.

A summer circuit tour of the Coast production of "The Billy Barnes People" is planned by the Ackerman outfit, which also intends routing a tryout musical, "The Vegas Notion," to be produced by Matt Conley. Non-star packages of "Take Me Along" and "Destry Rides Again" are also skedded as are several other presentations, with and without names.

Scratched Preems Trip Times

The N. Y. Times was able to get away half clean in altering its theatre section last Sunday (26) to conform with the cancellation at the end of last week of two shows originally scheduled to open on Broadway this week. Both changes were announced after the midweek makeup deadline for the Sunday section.

The paper was able to make the proper change in the opening date of "Far Country," which postponed its preem at the Music Box Theatre, N. Y., from last night (Tues.) to next Tuesday night (4). The show was dropped from the list of openings this week, but the paper carried a photo and story on the play, which normally would run the Sunday preceding the show's opening.

"Impulse," the other entry, announced last Friday (24) that it was closing Saturday (25) in Toronto and would not open in New York as scheduled next Saturday (1). The news came too late for the Times to make any chances in the Sunday section, which listed the show among its openings this week, along with a frontpage picture, which also listed the no-longer-valid preem at the Royale Theatre, N. Y.

The N. Y. Herald Tribune, with a Friday deadline for its Seven Lively Arts section, had time Thursday (23) to hold out a Page 3 spread on "Far Country" and then on Friday (24) kill a story and picture on "Impulse." The N. Y. Sunday News, also with a late deadline, likewise had a chance to yank references to "Far Country" and "Impulse" and substitute other type.

Asides and Ad-Libs

Edward F. Kook, president of Century Lighting, leaves next Monday (3) by plane for a stay of about three weeks in East Germany on a Ford Foundation experimental project for the development of new lenses for theatrical lighting. He'll spend most of the time in Jena and Rathenow, working closely with two stage lighting technicians from West Germany. He'll stop off briefly in London en route both ways.

Author-director-producer Dore Schary is vacationing in Palm Beach. He's due back in three weeks . . . There's reportedly already Broadway interest in the musical comedy rights to "No Mother to Guide Her," the new Anita Loos book due for publication next week. It deals with Hollywood in the late 1920's and early 1930's . . . Legit-tv actress Eleanor D. Wilson, who recently closed a series of engagements at the Alley Theatre, Houston, is vacationing in Mexico . . . The Charles Morris Price School of Journalism, Philadelphia, will give an annual award in memory of Arthur B. Waters, recently deceased veteran local drama critic and VARIETY correspondent.

George Keane, former actor who has been in the insurance business for a number of years, is now a qualifying member of the Million Dollar Round Table of the National Assn. of Life Underwriters, something of a feat for a Johnny-Come-Lately. Mrs. Keane is the former Betty Winkler, who suffered in many a Chicago and New York-based radio soap opera . . . Jerome Hines, the Met basso, repeated for sixth year in the lead role at Salvation Army Temple of the sacred music drama, "I Am the Way," which he also wrote. He's sung the role 35 times under various religious auspices around U.S. . . . James Slevin, who produced "Howie" on Broadway after leaving the former Miriam Howell agency, is now an exec assistant to Frederick Brisson. He accompanied the latter on his recent scouting trip to London and Paris.

"I am like an old horse returning to the stable. It is a good way to wind up. There is no substitute for live audiences. We work in tv and films because we have to eat . . . I have no regrets. I have known all the anxiety and all the satisfaction that goes with acting. I would not have done anything else." — Legit-tv-film actor Eduardo Ciannelli, featured in "The Devil's Advocate," as quoted by Henderson Cleaves in the N. Y. World-Telegram.

"My income is growing. In 1959, I made about $1,000 on my work. In 1960, it was $10,000. In 1961, I've made $5,000 in two months. The New York income is a small part of it. It means I don't have to take an outside job, and I like that. Although my tastes are inexpensive, I like to sit in good seats at the theatre, so I can see what's going on." —Edward Albee, author of the off-Broadway dramas, "The Zoo Story," "The American Dream" and "The Death of Bessie Smith," as quoted in the Talk of the Town section of the New Yorker.

"I'm not the kind of fellow who waits around. If another good role doesn't come along within a month after this show closes, I'm going into public relations. I'll invest my money in a firm and get good people to help me. I don't intend to let acting ruin my life the way it has for some guys I know with more talent than I have. All they have to show for it is one big heartache." —Warren Berlinger, featured actor in "Come Blow Your Horn," as quoted by Frances Herridge in the N. Y. Post.

"An actor cannot afford what is loosely called living the part, than which there is no greater trap. If he does live the part he is liable to live it differently, and perhaps wrongly, three nights out of four. What he must do is acquire the emotional attributes of the character, then discipline himself to the job of reproducing them with regularity."—Leo Genn, costar of "The Devil's Advocate," as quoted by Joseph Morgenstern in the N. Y. Herald Tribune.

"I don't think actors are supposed to live like kings. Maybe we should all live more simply, arrange our lives so that we would have no need to earn fantastically large sums of money. We should be able to work for the joy of it, and our reward should be in the giving of something wonderful to an audience."—Actress Julie Harris, as quoted by Margaret McManus in the N. Y. World-Telegram.

Bits of London

London, March 28.

Oliver Neville has been appointed assistant to director Michael Benthall at the Old Vic.

Flora Robson will star in a new Lesley Storm play, "Time And Yellow Roses."

"Simple Spyman" has passed the 1,200-performance mark at the Whitehall and "The Mousetrap," at the Ambassadors, has chalked up over 3,400 shows.

"On The Brighter Side," a new revue with Stanley Baxter, has had its provincial tryout postponed because the star has a blister on his vocal chords.

Kenneth Haigh will play the lead in "Les Sequestres D'Altona" at the Royal Court, replacing Laurence Harvey, who asked to be release from his contract.

The Gallery First Nighters' Club hosted a dinner Sunday (26) for the entire Aldwych Stratford-on-Avon company. Peter Hall replied to the toast.

George Benson will play Crippen in the new Wolf Mankowitz musical, "Belle—Or The Ballad Of Crippen."

Hugh Hunt, formerly with the Old Vic, becomes the first professor of drama at Manchester Univ. under a grant of $420,000 made by Granada TV.

Jack Gelber's "The Connection" folds Saturday (1) at the Duke of York's. It will have had 46 performances, and is figured likely to involve a loss of about $22,000.

The Ministry of Works is inviting applications for the use this summer of the Open Air Theatre, Regent's Park.

Phyllis Calvert, Diana Churchill, Alan Badel, Maggie Smith and Robert Hardy open April 6 at the Globe with Jean Anouhilh's "The Rehearsal." It's a joint Tennent and Bristol Old Vic presentation.

J. P. Donleavy's "Fairy Tales of New York" folds April 8 at the Comedy. Paddy Chayefsky's "The Tenth Man" is due April 13 at the theatre.

The long-banned play "South," by Julian Green, has now received the nod of the Lord Chamberlain. Denhold Elliott and Heather Sears will play the leads at the Lyric, Hammersmith, opening April 7.

The next Green Room Rag is set for April 16 at the Victoria Place. Paul Robeson will be among those appearing.

Christopher Plummer will play the King in "Becket" at the Aldwych Theatre this summer. He will also continue in "Ondine" and "The Devils," and have to commute between London and Stratford-on-Avon for his appearances as Benedick and Richard III at the Royal Shakespeare Theatre there.

"Three" is to end its limited run April 8 at the Criterion.

Sked 'Vagabond,' 'Pacific' For Milwaukee Outdoor

Milwaukee, March 28.

The Milwaukee County Park Commission has scheduled productions of "The Vagabond King" for July 7-8 and "South Pacific" for Aug. 4-5, both in the Music Under The Stars season at Washington Park. Broadway leads supplemented by members of the Florentine Opera Co., with John Anello conducting, will appear in both musicals.

A "Get-Acquainted" concert, with Alec Templeton as pianist and Edward Zielinski, conducting the orchestra has been inked for July 1. A program of music from "Showboat," with Carmen Dragon conducting and artists to be announced, is set for July 22. Howard Barlow will conduct July 29 and Steve Swedish and orchestra is slated for Aug. 22.

Don Plumby has joined "Bye Bye Birdie" as assistant conductor.

B'way Better With 3 SRO Shows; 'Lady' $54,204, 'Rhinoceros' $28,749, 'Big Fish' $21,029, 'Hamlet' $21,576

Business improved for most Broadway shows last week, but several entries were shaky. There were 31 productions on the Main Stem, and the only sellouts were "Camelot," "Mary, Mary" and "Sound of Music." The "Mary, Mary" gross was cut by theatre party commissions and the "Camelot" figure was reduced by refunds to patrons unable to attend performances recently because of a snowstorm.

The lineup also included nine shows with cut-rate tickets in circulation. Of those, two, "Becket" and "Gypsy," exited last Saturday (25) for road tours. Saturday also marked the fold of "Thirteen Daughters." Three other shows scheduled to close soon are "Toys in the Attic," due to shutter April 8, and "Music Man" and "Under the Yum-Yum Tree," both slated to exit April 15.

Joining the shows with discount ducats this week is "Best Man," while "Miracle Worker" will begin honoring twofers April 11. Two openings scheduled for this week were cancelled, "Far Country," is now due to preem next Tuesday (4) at the Music Box Theatre, N. Y., but "Impulse," folded last Saturday (28) in Toronto.

Estimates for Last Week

Keys: C (Comedy), D (Drama), CD (Comedy-Drama), R (Revue), MC (Musical-Comedy), MD (Musical-Drama), O (Opera), OP (Operetta), Rep (Repertory), DR (Dramatic Reading).

Other parenthetic designations refer, respectively, to weeks played, number of performances through last Saturday, top prices (where two prices are given, the higher is for Friday-Saturday nights and the lower for weeknights), number of seats, capacity gross and stars. Price includes 10% Federal and 5% City tax, but grosses are net; i.e., exclusive of taxes.

Advise and Consent, Cort (D) (19th wk; 148 p) ($7.50; 1,155; $40,500) (Ed Begley, Richard Kiley, Chester Morris, Henry Jones, Kevin McCarthy). Previous week, $25,257. Moves April 17 to the Royale.

Last week, $25,172.

All The Way Home, Belasco (D) (17th wk; 133 p) ($6.90-$7.50; 967; $38,500). Previous week, $16,436 with twofers.

Last week, $16,405 with twofers.

Best Man, Morosco (D) (51st wk; 400 p) ($6.90-$7.50; 999; $41,000) (Lee Tracy, Frank Lovejoy). Previous week, $15,325.

Last week, $15,524.

Big Fish, Little Fish, ANTA (CD) (2d wk; 13 p) ($6.90-$7.50; 1,185; $49,178) (Jason Robards Jr., Hume Cronyn). Previous week, $19,937 for five performances and one preview.

Last week, $21,029.

Bye Bye Birdie, Shubert (MC) (49th wk; 384 p) ($8.60-$9.40; 1,453; $64,000). Previous week, $40,506.

Last week, $42,427.

Camelot, Majestic (MC) (16th wk; 129 p) ($9.40; 1,626; $84,000) (Richard Burton, Julie Andrews). Previous week, $80,635.

Last week, $83,524, Burton missed four performances Tuesday-Thursday (21-23) because of a virus His understudy, John Cullum, subbed.

Come Blow Your Horn, Atkinson (C) (5th wk; 37 p) ($6.90-$7.50; 1,090; $43,522). Previous week, $21,562.

Last week, $21,948.

Critic's Choice, Barrymore (C) (15th wk; 117 p) ($6.50-$7.50; 1,067; $40,000) (Henry Fonda). Previous week, $27,823.

Last week, $28,203.

Devil's Advocate, Rose (D) (3d wk; 20 p) ($6.90-$7.50; 1,162; $46,045) (Leo Genn, Sam Levene, Edward Mulhare). Previous week, $35,226.

Last week, $34.904.

Do Re Mi, St. James (MC) (13th wk; 104 p) ($8.60-$9.40; 1,615; $69,500) (Phil Silvers). Previous week, $67,943.

Last week, $65,542.

Evening With Mike Nichols and Elaine May, Golden (R) (24th wk; 195 p) ($6.90-$7.50; 773; $30,439). Previous week, $23,704.

Last week, $26,621.

Fiorello, Broadhurst (MC) (69th wk; 548 p) ($8.35-$9.40; 1,182; $58,194). Previous week, $36,981.

Last week, $39,223. Moves April 10 or 17 to the Broadway Theatre.

Importance of Being Oscar, Lyceum (one-man) (2d wk; 15 p) ($5.65; 995; $26,500) (Michael MacLiammoir). Previous week, $5,463 for seven performances.

Last week, $6,195.

Irma La Douce, Plymouth (MC) (26th wk; 204 p) ($8.60; 999; $48,250) (Elizabeth Seal, Keith Michell). Previous week, $38,603.

Last week, $41,041.

Mary, Mary, Hayes (C) (3d wk; 21 p) ($6.90-$7.50; 1,139; $43,530) (Barbara Bel Geddes, Barry Nelson; Michael Rennie). Previous week, $40,589 with parties.

Last week, $41,377 with parties.

Miracle Worker, Playhouse (D) (74th wk; 588 p) ($6.90-$7.50; 994; $36,500) (Suzanne Pleshette, Patty Duke). Previous week, $16,655.

Last week, $19,762.

Music Man, Broadway (MC) (170th wk; 1,351 p) ($8.05; 1,900; $73,850). Previous week, $30,205 with twofers. Closes April 15.

Last week, $32,614 with twofers.

My Fair Lady, Hellinger (MC) (262d wk; 2,087 p) ($8.05; 1,551; $69,500) (Michael Allinson, Margot Moser). Previous week, $47,819 with discount tickets.

Last week, $54,204 with discount tickets.

Rhinoceros, Longacre (CD) (11th wk; 88 p) ($6.90; 1,101; $37.000) (Eli Wallach, Zero Mostel). Previous week, $25,532.

Last week, $28,749

Show Girl, O'Neill (R) (11th wk; 84 p) ($6.90-$7.50; 1,076; $45,052) (Carol Channing). Previous week, $23,994.

Last week, $21,949.

Sound of Music, Lunt-Fontanne (MD) (67th wk; 532 p) ($9.60; 1,407; $75,000) (Mary Martin). Previous week, $73,263.

Last week, $75,881.

Taste of Honey, Booth (D) (25th wk; 199 p) ($6.90; 807; $30,500) (Joan Plowright, Angela Lansbury). Previous week, $15,861.

Last week, $19,647.

Tenderloin, 46th St. (MC) (23d wk; 184 p) ($8.60-$9.60; 1,342; $65,331) (Maurice Evans). Previous week, $35,658 with twofers.

Last week, $35,327 with twofers.

Tenth Man, Ambassador (D) (72d wk; 567 p) ($6.90-$7.50; 1,155; $41,562). Previous week, $14,617 with twofers.

Last week, $14,516 with twofers.

Toys in the Attic, Hudson (D) (56th wk; 440 p) ($6.90-$7.50; 1,065; $39,600) (Maureen Stapleton, Patricia Jessel, Anne Revere, Robert Loggia). Previous week, $12,656 with twofers. Closes April 8.

Last week, $13,891 with twofers.

Under the Yum Yum Tree, Miller's (C) (19th wk; 149 p) ($6.90-$7.50; 912; $30,486). Previous week, $13,521 with twofers. Closes April 15.

Last week, $14,181 with twofers.

Unsinkable Molly Brown, Winter Garden (MC) (21st wk; 164 p) ($8.60-$9.40; 1,404; $68,000). Previous week, $54,579.

Last week; $57,730.

Miscellaneous

Hamlet, Phoenix (D) (2d wk; 14 p) ($4.60; 1,150; $29,882). Previous week, $17,450 for six performances and two previews.

Last week, $21,576.

Closed Last Week

Becket, Royale (D) (25th wk; 193 p) ($6.90-$7.50; 1,040; $45,507) (Laurence Olivier, Anthony Quinn). Previous week, $36,473 with twofers. Ended Broadway run last Saturday night (25) with an estimated $100,000 deficit on a $162,000 investment. Begins brief tour tomorrow night (Thurs.) in Boston with Arthur Kennedy in the title part previously played by Olivier, who's switched to the role performed by Quinn, who withdrew from the cast at the conclusion of the N.Y. run.

Last week, $37,348 with twofers.

Gypsy, Imperial (MC) (89th wk; 702 p) ($8.60-$9.40; 1,428; $64,500) (Ethel Merman). Previous week, $43,146 with twofers. Ended Broadway run last Saturday night (25) with an estimated $365,000 profit on a $420,000 investment. Begins touring tonight (Wed.) in Rochester.

Last week, $50,448 with twofers.

13 Daughters, 54th St. (MC) (4th wk; 28 p) ($8.60-$9.40; 1,434; $60,172) (Don Ameche). Previous week, $21,191. Folded last Saturday (25) at an estimated $425,000 loss, including the original $350,000 capitalization, plus an additional $75,000 investment to keep the show from an earlier collapse.

Last week, $21,410.

Laying Off This Week

Wildcat, Alvin (MC) (13th wk; 99 p) ($8.60-$9.40; 1,453; $65,000) (Lucille Ball). Previous week, $61,520. Laid off following the evening performance last Saturday (25) and resumes next Monday (3).

Last week, $63,254.

Miller Theatre, Milw., With Ford Fund Setup

Milwaukee, March 28.

The Fred Miller Theatre has taken the offer of the Ford Foundation to become an affiliate of a new theatrical communications group to work in building coordination in college, community and professional theatres nationally. That is revealed by Miller managing director Ray Boyle.

A national network of practicing theatres, Boyle indicated, will be included in the group, thus motivating active training and exchange of both actors and theatre personnel. Boyle pointed out the new setup would tend to stop the present need of seeking actors in either Chicago or New York. Boyle also said the network would prove a training ground for actors and actresses, and curtail seeking such training in either Los Angeles or New York.

In addition to the Fred Miller, others in the network are: Front Street Theatre, Memphis; Barter Theatre, Abingdon, Va.; Indiana University, Bloomington, Ind.; Baylor University, Waco; University of Kansas, Lawrence, Kans.; Stanford University, Palo Alto, Cal.; University of Minnesota, Minneapolis; Tulane University, New Crleans; theatre group of extension division of University of California, Los Angeles; Actor's Studio, the Association of Producing Artists, the Living Theatre and the Phoenix Theatre, all in New York City.

LONDON SHOWS

(Figures denote opening dates)

Amorous Prawn, Piccadilly (12-9-59).
And Another Thing, Fortune (10-6-60).
Bargain, St. Martin's (1-19-61).
Billy Liar, Cambridge (9-13-60).
Bride Comes Back, Vaudeville (11-25-60).
Caretaker, Duchess (4-27-60).
Connection, Duke York's (2-22-61).
Company Slask, Colliseum (3-27-61).
Connection, Duke York (2-22-61).
Fairy Tales, Comedy (1-24-61).
Fings Ain't, Garrick (2-11-60).
Flower Drum Song, Palace (3-24-60).
Gazebo, Savoy (3-23-60).
Glory Be, Royal, Stratford, E. (3-3-61).
Irma La Douce, Lyric (7-17-58).
J.B., Phoenix (3-23-61).
Jacques, R. Court (2-22-61).
John Borkman, Mermaid (2-16-61).
King Kong, Princes (2-23-61).
Lady From the Sea, Queen's (3-15-61).
Man All Seasons, Globe (7-1-60).
Miracle Worker, Royalty (3-9-61).
Mousetrap (Ambassadors (11-25-52).
Music Man, Adelphi (3-16-61).
My Fair Lady, Drury Lane (4-30-58).
Oliver, New (6-30-60).
Repertory, Aldywich (12-15-60).
Ross, Haymarket (5-12-60).
Settled Out Court, Strand (10-19-60).
Simple Spymen, Whitehall (3-19-58).
Sparrers Can't Sing, Wyndham's (3-29-61).
Suzie Wong, Prince Wales (11-7-59).
Three, Criterion (2-13-61).
Watch It Sailor, Apollo (2-24-60).
West Side Story, Majesty's (12-12-58).
You in Your Small Corner, Arts (3-21-61).
Young in Heart, Vic. Pal. (12-21-60).

SCHEDULED OPENINGS

One Over Eight, Duke of York's (4-5-61).
Wakefield Mystry Plays, M'maid (4-5-61).
The Rehearsal, Globe (4-6-61).
South, Lyric, Ham. (4-7-61).
On the Brighter Side, Phoenix (4-12-61).
Tenth Man, Comedy (4-13-61).
Altona, R. Court (4-19-61).
Sound of Music, Palace (5-18-61).

CLOSED

Changeling, R. Court (2-21-61); closed Saturday (25) after 30 performances.
Chin-Chin, Wyndham's (11-3-60); closed Saturday (25) after 164 performances.
Hostage, Lyric, Ham. (2-13-61); closed Saturday (25) after 48 performances.
Luisillo Dancers, Coliseum (3-6-61); closed Saturday (25) after 32 performances.
Magic Lantern, Saville (2-6-61); closed Saturday (25) after 37 performances.
Stop It Whoever, Arts (2-15-61); closed Saturday (25) after 37 performances.

'Sound' $90,284 for 4th Det. Week, 'Fiorello' Record $62,585 in Cincy, 'Carnival' Sellout $53,320 in Wash.

"Sound of Music," with a wow fourth frame in Detroit, was the top grosser on the road again last week. "Fiorello" trailed for the second successive stanza, establishing a house record for a one-week stand at the Shubert Theatre, Cincinnati. Other big musicals were "My Fair Lady" and "Music Man," plus the Broadway-targeted "Carnival," a sellout in its third week in Washington.

"Majority of One," in Pittsburgh, was the top-grossing straight play. "Far Country," which was to have exited Boston last Saturday (25) after a fortnight, is holding an additional week. The bus-and-truck edition of "Pleasure of His Company" ended its tour Saturday night and "Impulse" folded that night after a one-week Toronto tryout.

Estimates for Last Week

Parenthetic designations for out-of-town shows are the same as for Broadway, except that hyphenated T with show classification indicates tryout and RS indicates road show. Also, prices on touring shows include 10% Federal Tax and local tax, if any, but as on Broadway grosses are net: i.e., exclusive of taxes. Engagements are for single week unless otherwise noted.

BALTIMORE

Music Man, Ford's (MC-RS) (2d wk) ($7; 1,819; $65,000). Previous week, $57,757 with Theatre Guild-American Theatre Society subscription.

Last week, $61,538.

BOSTON

Far Country, Wilbur (D-T) (2d wk) ($4.95-$5.50; 1,241: $33.699) (Kim Stanley, Steven Hill, Sam Wanamaker). Previous week, $16,124.

Last week, $16,513.

My Fair Lady, Shubert (MC-RS) (12th wk) ($6.50-$7; 1,717; $67,355) (Michael Evans, Caroline Dixon). Previous week, $60,574.

Last week, $62,664.

CHICAGO

Flower Drum Song, Shubert (MC-RS) (19th wk) ($5.50-$6.60; 2,100; $67,613). Previous week; $43,297.

Last week $49,571.

Hostage, Civic (CD-RS) (5th wk) ($5.50-$6.50; 904; $30,500). Previous week, $18,094.

Last week, $14,746.

Raisin in the Sun, Blackstone (D-RS) (4th wk) ($4.95-$5.50; 1,447; $42,500) (Claudia McNeill). Previous week, $28,145.

Last week, $29,614.

CINCINNATI

Fiorello, Shubert (MC-RS) ($5.10-$6; 2,100; $73,000). Previous week, $75,506, eight-performance split.

Last week, house record, $62,585 with TG-ATS subscription.

DETROIT

Sound of Music, Riviera (MD-RS) (4th wk) ($5-$6.50; 2,700; $100,000) (Florence Henderson). Previous week, $83,485 with TG-ATS subscription.

Last week, $90,284.

PHILADELPHIA

Happiest Girl in the World, Shubert (MC-T) (4th wk) ($6-$7.50; 1.876; $60,000) (Cyril Ritchard). Previous week, $46,000.

Last week, $49,810.

PITTSBURGH

Majority of One, Nixon (C-RS) ($5.50; 1,760; $52,000) (Gertrude Berg, Cedric Hardwicke). Previous week, $34.340 with TG-ATS subscription, Hanna, Cleveland.

Opened here March 20 to two endorsements (Cohen, Post Gazette; Monahan, Press).

Last week, $38,959 with TG-ATS subscription.

SAN FRANCISCO

Five Finger Exercise, Curran (D-RS) (2d wk) ($5.40-$5.95; 1,758; $50.000) (Jessica Tandy, Roland Culver). Previous week, $27,619 with TG-ATS subscription.

Last week, $31,248 with TG-ATS subscription.

TORONTO

Impulse, O'Keefe (R-T) ($4-$4.50; 3,200; $75,487) (Brendan Behan).

Opened here March 20 to three unfavorable notices (Cohen, Star; Evans, Telegram; Thomson, Globe and Mail).

Last week, $6.848. Folded here Saturday (25).

WASHINGTON

Carnival, National (MC-T) (3d wk) ($4.95-$6.60; 1.563; $51,882) (Anna Maria Alberghetti). Previous week, $51,910 with TG-ATS subscription.

Last week, $53,320 with TG-ATS subscription.

SPLIT WEEKS

Andersonville Trial (D-RS) (Brian Donlevy, Martin Brooks). Previous week, $27,953, five-performance split.

Last week, $22.102 for five performances with Broadway Theatre League subscription: Arcadia High School, Phoenix, Monday (20), one, $3,278; Temple of Music & Art, Tucson, Wednesday (22), one, $4,737; Liberty Hall, El Paso, Thursday-Friday (23-24), two, $9,736; Ector High School, Odessa, Saturday (25), one, $4,351.

J. B. (D-RS) (John Carradine, Shepperd Strudwick, Frederic Worlock). Previous week, $27,633, seven-performance split.

Last week, $23,582 for six performances: Florida State U., Tallahassee, Monday-Tuesday (20-21), two, $10,000; Marina, Panama City, Fla., Wednesday (22), one, $3,847; Temple, Birmingham, Thursday-Friday (23-24), two BTL, $8,126; Lanier High School, Montgomery, Saturday (25), one, $1,609.

Once Upon a Mattress (MC-RS) (Imogene Coca, Edward Everet Horton, King Donovan). Previous week, $38,305, six-performance split.

Last week, $36,504 for six performances: Shrine Mosque, Peoria, Sunday (19), one BTL, $4,989; Rivoli, Toledo, Tuesday-Wednesday (21-22), two, $11.154; Sexton High School, Lansing, Thursday (23), one BTL, $4,782; Morris Municipal, South Bend, Friday-Saturday (24-25), two BTL, $15,579.

Pleasure of His Company (C-RS) (Joan Bennett, Donald Cook). Previous week, $30,540, seven-performance split. Closed last Saturday (25) in New Haven.

Last week, $20,175 for seven performances: Loew's Poli, Worcester, Monday (20), one BTL, $5,664; Capitol, New London, Tuesday (21), one, $3,100; Bushnell, Hartford, Wednesday (22), one, $3,794; Shubert, New Haven, Thursday-Saturday (23-25), four, $7,617.

Ft. Wayne Tags Selmier

Indianapolis, March 28.

Tray Selmier, of Indianapolis, has been named director of the Ft. Wayne Festival Music Theatre and will produce the musicals to be given in the News-Sentinel Outdoor Theatre in Franke Park there this summer.

Selmier was a founder of the Footlite Musicals of Indianapolis, and is now a producer-director of WIW-I, Indianapolis.

'Gypsy'

Continued from page 1

Merrick-Leland Hayward production as of last Feb. 11 included the 12-week period ending that date. During that period it laid off Dec. 19-24, at a cost of $5.321. The overall operating profit for the other 11 weeks, of which two were in the red, was $38.057. The figures ranged from a $9.970 loss on a $24,219 gross to a $12.002 profit on a $62,173 gross for the frame ending with New Year's Eve.

As of Feb. 11, the show had distributed $280,000 profit, split equally between the management and backers. There was a reimbursement of $14,854 in waived royalties. The balance available for distribution, after the deduction of $35,000 sinking fund, was $26,029.

CASTING NEWS

Following are available parts in upcoming Broadway, off-Broadway, and touring shows, as well as ballet, films, industrial and television shows. All information has been obtained directly by the VARIETY Casting Department by telephone calls, and has been rechecked as of noon yesterday (Tues.).

The available roles will be repeated weekly until filled, and additions to the list will be made only when information is secured from responsible parties. The intention is to service performers with leads provided by the managements of the shows involved rather than to run a wild goose marathon. This information is published without charge.

In addition to the available parts listed, the tabulation includes productions also slated for later this season, but, for which, the managements, as yet, aren't holding open casting calls. Parenthetical designations are as follows: (C) Comedy, (D) Drama, (MC) Musical Comedy, (MD) Musical Drama, (R) Revue, (Rep) Repertory, (DR) Dramatic Reading.

Legit

BROADWAY

"All The Best People" (C). Producers, Joel Spector & Buff Cobb (147 W. 57th St., N.Y.; PL 7-2691). Available parts: naive femme, 21; male, 30-35; middleaged femme; executive male, 50-60; callous male, 30-35. Mail photos and resumes, c/o above address.

"Blood, Sweat and Stanley Poole" (D). Producer, Roger L. Stevens (745 Fifth Ave., N. Y.; PL 1-1290). Part available for boy, 21-22, college grad type with good comedy ability. Mail photos and resumes c/o Terry Faye (165 W. 46th St., N. Y.).

"Complaisant Lover" (D). Producer, Irene Mayer Selznick (112 Central Park South, N.Y.). Available parts: English girl, 19, attractive, not too slender; English couple, mid-50s, upper middle class; English boy, 9-11, earnest, unaffected, plays Michael Redgrave's son; character man, 50s, heavy set, prosperous, speaks Dutch fluently; character man, 30-50, shrewd, facile hotel valet, some Dutch. Mail photos and resumes c/o Irving Schneider, above address.

David Merrick, 246 W. 44th St., N. Y.; LO 3-7520. Accepting photos and resumes of sopranos, bass-baritones, tenors and boys and girls, 7-14, who sing and dance, for casting file. Mail material, c/o Michael Shurtleff, above address. Indicate voice range.

"Get It Up" (MC). Producer, Charles Curran (c/o Lambs Club, 130 W. 44th St., N.Y.; JU 2-1515). Available parts: six femme singers, 20-23, must double with specialty; ballroom dance team, 20-23; young comedienne. Accepting photos and resumes, c/o above address. Don't phone. Applicants must have intimate night club experience.

"Jennie" (MD). Producer, Newburge-Porter Prods. (148 W. 24th St., N.Y.; WA 9-6836). Available parts: male lead, 30's, tall; femme, 20, etherial, small, lovely, must sing well; character woman, 30; barmaid, 40's, plump; character man, 40s; Irish man, 50's. Mail photos and resumes, through agents only, above address.

"Love A La Carte" (MC). Producer, Arthur Klein (St. James Theatre Bldg., 246 W. 44th St., N. Y.; LO 5-6376). Available parts: girl, 22; leading man, 30; second leading man, 30; character comedienne, 30. Accepting photos and resumes, above address.

"Medium Rare" (R). Producer, Robert Weiner (146 CPW, N.Y.; SU 7-1914). Parts available for male and femme revue types. Apply through agent or mail photos and resumes, c/o above address.

"Nine Millionth Star" (D). Producers, Michael Chernee & Geoffrey F. Rudaw (340 E. 66th St., N. Y.; RE 4-1478). Available parts: girl, 14; boy, 16. Mail photos and resumes, c/o above.

"Sound of Music" (MD). Producers, Richard Rodgers & Oscar Hammerstein 2d (488 Madison Ave., N. Y.); casting director, Eddie Blum. Auditions for possible future replacements for girls, 7-16, and boys, 11-14 all with trained voices, character. Mail photos and resumes to above address.

"Talent '61" (R). Producer, John Elliott (c/o Broadway Show League, 1619 Broadway, N.Y., suite 810). Auditions tomorrow (Thurs.), Friday (31), at the Hotel Astor (Broadway & 44th St., N. Y.). The annual professional talent showcase will be presented April 25 with rehearsals beginning April 6. Do not phone the hotel.

OFF-BROADWAY

"Browning Version" (D). Producer, Equity Library Theatre, 226 W. 47th St., N.Y.; PL 7-1710. All parts available. Auditions next Monday (3) and Thursday (4), at 5-10 p.m., April 5, 10 a.m.-2 p.m., at ELT Rehearsal Hall (133 Second Ave., N.Y.). Script is available at the Drama Book Shop (51 W. 52d St., N.Y.) and applicants are asked to be familiar with it. "Browning" will be done on a bill with Noel Coward's "Red Peppers," the casting notice for which will appear next Wednesday (3).

"Gallows Man" and "Mr. Sleeman Is Coming" (D). Producers, Elizabeth Raynor & Virginia Snow (c/o Snow-Ray Prods., 246 W. 44th St., N. Y.). Available parts: character woman, over 40; boy, 17-20 Scandinavian appearance; girl, 16-19, Scandinavian appearance. Mail photos and resumes c/o above address.

"Hector," "West of the Moon" & "Blood Bugle" (D). Producer, Lee Paton (c/o Otto Bonaparte, 302 Ashland Pl., Bklyn, N.Y.). Available parts: man, 20-30, eager, naive, energetic, classical background; man, 30-35, bizarre army officer, classical background; man, 20-30, intelligent, inquisitive; man, 20-30, violent, sensual, neurotic, dynamic. Mail photos and resumes c/o above address and call Paton (CO 7-8073), Monday thru Friday, 11 a.m.-5 p.m.

"I Want You" (MC). Producers, Theodore J. Flicker & Joseph Crayhon (c/o The Premise, 154 Bleecker St., N.Y.; LF 3-5020). Available parts: Irish-American girl, 18, sexy but sweet; young leading man, thin; male song and dance team, wise crackers; man, huge, dumb, Irish cop; man, short, fat, funny; man tall, thin, evil; six beautiful girls; several low comedians. All applicants must sing and dance. Mail photos and resumes, above address.

"It Should Happen To a Dog" (C). Producer, James J. Cordes (600 Tenth Ave., N. Y.; JU 2-5999). Available parts: five character men to play older Jewish types with authentic accents. Mail photos and resumes c/o above address.

"King of the Dark Chamber" (D). Producers, Van Joyce & Harold Leventhal, in association with Patricia Newhall (c/o Jan Hus House, 351 E. 74th St., N. Y.; RE 4-4605). Available parts: character man, 30 heavyset, 6 feet tall, comic; femme, 25, beautiful, dark hair, singing background; Negro man, tall, deep voice, well-built; femme, 20-25 cute comedienne. For interview appointment, call Ken Costigan, 4-7 p.m., at above number.

"Leave It To Jane" (MC). Producers, Joseph Berhu & Peter Katz (c/o Sheridan Square Theatre, Seventh Ave. & Fourth St., N.Y.; CH 2-9609). Auditions for male and femme singers as replacements, every Thursday at 6 p.m., above address.

"Worm In Horseradish" (C). Producers, Dorothy Olim & Gerald Krone (785 West End Ave., N. Y.; UN 6-1220). Understudy parts available: middle-age character man, Jewish immigrant to understudy Eli Mintz; middle-age character man, also Jewish type, large, lovable humor. For appointment, call Krone, above number, 9-5 daily.

OUT OF TOWN

"Flower Drum Song" (MC). Producers, Rodgers & Hammerstein (488 Madison Ave., N. Y.; MU 8-3640). Part available for young male singer dancer to understudy Wang San: Contract Edward Blum, above address.

"Vintage '61" (R). Producer, Zev Buffman (1605 N. Ivar Ave., Hollywood 28, Calif.; HO 4-7121). Parts available for six male and six femme singer-dancer-actors under 30. Mail photos and resumes, above address.

STOCK

Music Fairs. Producers, Lee Guber, Frank Ford & Shelly Gross (140 W. 58th St., N. Y.; LI 1-3250). Open call for dancers, April 5, men at 11 a.m. and girls at 12 noon; open call for singers, April 6, men at 2 p.m. and girls at 3 p.m., at Nola Studios (113 W. 57th St., N. Y.).

AUGUSTA, MICH.

Barn Theatre. Producer-director, Jack Ragotzy (200 E. 36th St., N. Y.; MU 6-0043). Available parts: leading man; ingenue lead; character woman with second woman range; male and femme musical performers who can double in dramatic roles for part of the season. Mail photos and resumes, above address.

BEVERLY, MASS.

North Shore Music Theatre. Managing director, Stephan Slane (27 W. 55th St., N. Y.). Parts available for male and femme Equity musical performers, principals and chorus, and apprentices. Mail photos and resumes, above address. Auditions for Equity singers, Tuesday (4): men, at 12 noon and girls, at 2 p.m.; open call singers, Wednesday (5): girls, at 3:30 p.m. and men, at 5 p.m., all at Pilgrim Production Studios (231 W. 54th St., N. Y.).

BRADDOCK HEIGHTS, MD.

Mountain Theatre. Producer, William O. Brining (4545 Connecticut Ave. NW, Washington, D.C.; EM 3-5051). Parts available for five male and six femme Equity dramatic performers and several non-paid apprentices. Mail photos and resumes, above address. Season opens June 20.

BRUNSWICK, ME.

Brunswick Summer Playhouse. Producer, Victoria Crandall (162 W. 54th St., N.Y.). Parts available for Equity musical performers, principals, solo dancers, chorus and apprentices. Auditions tomorrow (Thurs.) by appointment only, at Variety Arts Studio (225 W. 46th St., N. Y.). For appointment call producer, at CI 6-2246. The 10-week season opens June 26.

CANAL FULTON, OHIO

Canal Fulton Summer Arena. Producers, David Fulford & William Dempsey (60 W. 45th St., N.Y.; MU 2-1570). Parts available for male and femme Equity dramatic performers. Mail photos and resumes c/o above address; don't phone. 15-week season begins June 6.

CHICAGO

Chicago Music Theatre and Chicago Tenthouse Theatre. Producer, Herb Rogers (45 East End Ave., N. Y.; RE 4-6187). Parts available for male and femme musical principals and apprentices. Mail photos and resumes to above address. New York auditions will be held April 3-14, through agents only.

CORNING, N. Y.

Corning Summer Theatre. Producers, Dorothy Chernuck & Omar K. Lerman (c/o Corning Theatre, Houghton Park, Box 51, Corning, N. Y.; 6-4636). Parts available for male and femme actors, singers and dancers. Accepting photos and resumes c/o Richard Flusser (550 Fifth Ave., N. Y.) for musical performers and above address for dramatic actors. Ten-week season begins June 26.

EPHRATA, PA.

Legion Star Playhouse. Producer-director, John Cameron (P.O. Box 334, Ephrata, Pa.). Parts available for five male and five femme Equity dramatic performers and apprentices. Mail photos and resumes, above address. N. Y. auditions will be held April 20-21, by appointment only.

FORT WORTH

Casa Manana Musicals Inc. Managing director, Michael Pollock (545 Fifth Ave., N.Y.; Rm. 1015). Parts available for male and femme musical and dramatic stock performers for the Ft. Worth theatre, opening April 19. Mail photos and resumes, c/o above address.

FRAMINGHAM, MASS.

Carousel Theatre. Producer, Stanton Shifman (c/o Lenny-Debin Agency, 140 W. 58th St., N.Y.; JU 2-0270). Same audition schedule as for Wallingford (see above).

HINSDALE, ILL.

Salt Creek Playhouse. Producer, Tom Blank (437 S. Jackson St., Chicago). Seeking male and femme featured performers and name stars. Mail photos and resumes c/o above address. Season runs June 4-Labor Day, at the former Hinsdale Summer Theatre.

HYANNIS, MASS.

Cape Cod Melody Tent. Managing Director, David Holtzman (c/o King Edward Hotel, 120 W. 44th St., N.Y.; JU 2-2503). Auditions for Equity singers, Monday (3), girls at 11 a.m.-1 p.m. and boys at 2-4 p.m.; open call singers, Tuesday (4), same schedule as above, all at Variety Arts Studio (225 W. 46th St., N. Y.).

NORTHPORT, L.I.

Red Barn Theatre. Producer, William Edans (c/o Theatre, Northport, L.I., N.Y.; area code 516, AN 1-5900). Parts available for male and femme musical and dramatic performers, especially character people. Mail photos and resumes c/o above address. Season runs May 24-Sept. 24.

PALM BEACH, FLA.

West Palm Beach Musicarnival. Producer, John Price (940 S. Military Trail, West Palm Beach, Fla.; P.O. Box 2108). Parts available for leading men and women, and male and femme chorus performers. Mail photos and resumes, through agents only, c/o above address.

SPRINGFIELD, ILL.

Tent at the Lake. Producers, Jane Stanley Buckles & D. G. Buckles (c/o Buckles Theatre Co., 1472 Broadway, N. Y.; Rm. 904). Available parts: leading man and woman; ingenue; character woman. Mail photos and resumes, c/o above address, through agents only in the case of the leads.

SULLIVAN, ILL.

Summer of musicals. Producer, Guy S. Little Jr. (Box 185, Sullivan, Ill.). Parts available for male and femme Equity musical performers and paid apprentices. Mail photos and resumes, above address.

TRAVERSE CITY, MICH.

Cherry County Playhouse. Producer, Ruth Bailey (Spring Hill Lane, Cincinnati 26, Ohio; TR-1-0049). Parts available for character man, character woman with second woman range, leading man, juvenile. Mail photos and resumes c/o Charles Hollerith Jr. (122 E. 76th St., N. Y.). Apprentice applicants write to Cincinnati address for application forms.

WALLINGFORD, CONN.

Oakdale Musical Theatre. Producer, Ben Segal (c/o Lenny-Debin Agency, 140 W. 58th St., N.Y.; JU 2-0270). Equity auditions April 10: girl dancers at 10 a.m., boy dancers at 12 noon; girl singers at 2 p.m., boy singers at 4 p.m.; April 11: open call dancers, girls at 10 a.m. and boys at 2 p.m.; April 12: open call singers, girls at 10 a.m. and boys at 2 p.m. All calls will be held at Showcase Studios (950 Eighth Ave., N.Y.). See also Warwick and Framingham.

WARWICK, R.I.

Warwick Musical Theatre. Producer, Burton Bonoff (c/o Lenny-Debin Agency, 140 W. 58th St., N.Y.; JU 2-0270). Same audition schedule as for Wallingford (see above).

WILLIAMSTOWN, MASS.

Williamstown Summer Theatre. Executive Director, Nikos Psacharopoulos (Williamstown Theatre, Box 468, Williamstown, Mass.; GL 8-4146). Parts available for male and femme dramatic and comedy performers. Mail photos and resumes c/o above address. Auditions will be held in mid-April by appointment only.

TOURING

"Double Entry" (MC). Producers, Albert C. Lasher, Paul Lehman & Happy Medium (c/o L&L Theatre Productions, 245 Lexington Ave., N. Y.). All principal roles available. Casting through agents only. Tour slated to begin in Chicago next fall.

"Flower Drum Song" (MC). Producer, Lenny-Debin Agency (140 W. 58th St., N.Y.; JU 2-0270). All parts available. Mail photos and resumes to Jack Lenny, c/o above address. Show will tour the strawhats this summer.

"Gypsy" (MC). Producer, David Merrick (246 W. 44th St., N.Y.; LO 3-7520). All parts available for the second company. Mail photos and resumes to Manny Davis, at the Merrick office. Script, published by Random House, available at Drama Book Shop (51 W. 52d St., N.Y.).

"La Plume de Ma Tante" (MC). Producer, David Merrick (246 W. 44th St., N.Y.; LO 3-7520). Available parts: two femme dancers. Mail photos and resumes c/o Michael Shurtleff, above address.

SHOWS IN REHEARSAL

BROADWAY

"Donnybrook" (MC). Producer, Fred Hebert (130 W. 57th St., N. Y.; JU 6-1962).

OFF-BROADWAY

"Decameron" (R). Producers, Selma Tamber & William Tarr (250 W. 52d St., N. Y.; JU 6-0482).

"Evening With Chekhov" (D). Producer, Greg Reardon (335 W. 84th St., N. Y.; SU 7-4194).

"Gallow's Humor" (D). Producers, Richard Barr & Clinton Wilder (c/o Gramercy Arts Theatre, 138 E. 27th St., N. Y.; MU 6-9630).

"Hobo" (MC). Producer, Prego Productions (21 Ninth Ave., N. Y.; BU 8-3448).

"Magnificent Hugo" (C). Producer, Cornelius Productions (319 W. 48th St., N.Y.; CI 6-9100).

"Painted Days" (C). Producer, Elliot Martin (58 W. 57th St., N.Y.; PL 7-4181).

"Seven At Dawn" (D). Producer, Connie Simon (c/o Actor's Playhouse, 100 Seventh Ave. So., N. Y.; OR 5-1036).

OUT OF TOWN

"Two For the Seasaw" (C). Producer, Frank Segrue (132 Beacon St., Boston; KE 6-3773).

TOURING

"Miracle Worker" (D). Producer, Martin Tahse (55 W. 42d St., N. Y.; JU 2-7650).

Television

"Camera Three" (educational-dramatic series). Producer, CBS (524 W. 57th St., N. Y.; JU 6-6000); casting director, Paula Hindlin. Accepting photos and resumes of general male and female dramatic talent, c/o above address. No duplicates.

Klaus Werner Productions (530 Fifth Ave., N.Y.; YU 6-6500): Spots available for announcers and juveniles for work in commercials. Although no open casting is being done at present, photos, resumes and tapes are being accepted at above address. Most casting is done through agencies.

"Lamp Unto My Feet" (religious-dramatic series). Producer, CBS (524 W. 57th St., N. Y.; JU 6-6000); casting director, Paula Hindlin. Accepting photos and resumes of general male and female dramatic talent, c/o above address. No duplicates.

"Naked City" (dramatic series). Producer, Herbert B. Leonard (Screen Gems, 711 Fifth Ave., N. Y.; PL 1-4432). Accepting photos and resumes of general male and female dramatic talent by mail only, c/o above address.

NBC-TV (30 Rockefeller Plaza, N. Y.; CI 7-8300). Casting director Rick Kelley is accepting photos and resumes of male and femme dramatic performers for several shows. Mail information to him, c/o above address.

Films

"Chicapee Falls" (D). Producer, Oscar Lerman (1472 Broadway, N.Y.; BR 9-5218, suite 1109). Parts available for leading lady, 20-30, and leading man, 25-35, six feet tall or over. Mail photos and resumes, c/o Jeanette Kamins, above address.

Miscellaneous

N. Y. Summer Resort. Director, Michael Skori (75-15 210 St. Bayside, L. I., N. Y.; HO 8-4251). Spot available for femme singer with good English and Yiddish repertoire. Phone above number for appointment.

Inside Stuff—Legit

Bennett Cerf, whose Random House will publish "George," the self-written autobiography of Emlyn Williams (no ghost or as-told-to) late next fall, calls the book a "Welsh 'Act One'." Unlike Moss Hart's segue from the Bronx directly to show biz, Williams' course was from Wales to Oxford Univ., from which he graduated with academic honors, and thence to the theatre. Both Hart's and Williams' families were impoverished.

Besides becoming an acting star, Williams wrote numerous plays, including such hits as "Night Must Fall" and "The Corn Is Green." He starred in the former in London and New York, but appeared in the latter in only London (Richard Waring played the part on Broadway, opposite Ethel Barrymore). "The Corn Is Green" was generally recognized as based on the author's own life.

The autobiog's title, "George," derives from the actor-author's full name, George Emlyn Williams. The book will be published in Britain by Hamish Hamilton, coincidentally with the U. S. publication by Random House. Williams is currently starring in London in "Three," a triple-bill of one-acters.

Leningrad, Moscow and other Soviet cities are on the itinerary of the Earl of Harewood, artistic director of the Edinburgh International Festival, in his talent and material-searching trek to Russia for the Scot show biz feature of 1962. According to a Festival Society spokesman at Edinburgh, Lord Harewood intends looking at whatever the Russians may have to offer for the Festival, but his main interest will be in music. Drama offerings may be out of the question because of stage limitations at Edinburgh.

A cousin of Queen Elizabeth, the Earl is the first member of the British royal family to visit the USSR since the 1917 Communist Revolution.

Shows Abroad

J. B.

London, March 24.

David Hall (in association with Laurier Lister) presentation of a two-act drama by Archibald MacLeish. Stars John Clements, Constance Cummings, Donald Sinden, Paul Rogers. Staged by Laurier Lister; decor, Alan Tagg. Opened March 23, '61, at the Phoenix Theatre, London; $2.80 top.

Electrician ..... Paul Craig
Nickles ..... Paul Rogers
Mr. Zuss ..... John Clements
J.B. ..... Donald Sinden
Sarah ..... Constance Cummings
David ..... Carl Conrad
Mary ..... Lucinda Curtis
Jonathan ..... Andrew Lang
Ruth ..... Susanne Smith
Rebecca ..... Jessica Benton
Maids ..... Mary Holder, Katherine Page
Messengers ..... Peter Bowles, Patrick Garland
Girl ..... Jean Trend
Mrs. Adams ..... Mary Holder
Jolly Adams ..... Angela Sephton
Mrs. Lesure ..... Katherine Page
Mrs. Murphy ..... Louisa Lister
Mrs. Botticelli ..... Golda Casimir
Bildad ..... Geoffrey Chater
Zophar ..... Felix Felton
Eliphaz ..... Roddy Maude Roxby

The heralded Broadway play has a fairly specialized appeal and the cards may be still further stacked against it having a lengthy run because the producer, David Hall, has been able to book the Phoenix Theatre for only three weeks. Even if another theatre can be found immediately the play could have difficulty in surviving its change of venue, unless it settles swiftly as a word-of-mouth attraction.

The London presentation is worthy, but occasionally over-reverent and even pompous. However, for audiences prepared to be as patient as Job himself, there are rewarding moments and Archibald Macleish's poetic dialog, without ever soaring into exaltation is literate and worthwhile.

Perhaps the author's idea of telling the story of Job in modern idiom is a gimmick that doesn't fully click, and it is questionable whether ticket-buyers will turn to the Bible and refresh their memory of the original story. But, against Alan Tagg's effective and well-lit setting, which has apparently been based closely on the American one designed by Boris Aronson, Laurier Lister has staged the play powerfully, even managing to cope successfully with the most unlikely Sabbath supper scene.

Donald Sinden, better known here as a film actor, though he has lately spent more time on the stage, gives the role of the millionaire business man the right touch of complacency and his protestations of faith in the Lord are not allowed to degenerate into smugness. He and Costance Cummings, as the rather priggish and irritating wife, make an excellent team and keep the earthly body of the play together.

Much, of course, depends on the two actors playing Nickles and Mr. Zuss, the circus actors, who, as Satan and God, struggle for supremacy over the actions and feelings of J.B. John Clements, in the less colorful role of God, has a splendid controlled density, but Paul Rogers, a notable actor, tends to overplay the part of the Devil to a point of monotony.

Peter Bowles, Patrick Garland as the two messengers and Geoffrey Chater, Felix Felton and Roddy Maude Roxby as the three men who taunt and goad J.B. in his moments of humiliation and despair, turn in useful supporting roles. Rich.

The Lady From The Sea

London, March 16.

H. M. Tennent presentation of a five-act drama by Henrik Ibsen, adapted by Ann Jellicoe. Stars Margaret Leighton. Staged by Glen Byam Shaw; decor and costumes, Motley; lighting, Joe Davis. Opened March 15, '61, at the Queen's Theatre, London; $2.80 top.

Ballested ..... Esmond Knight
Boletta ..... Vanessa Redgrave
Lyngstrand ..... Richard Pascoe
Hilde ..... Joanna Dunham
Dr. Wengel ..... Andrew Cruickshank
Arnholm ..... Michael Gwynn
Ellida ..... Margaret Leighton
Tourists ..... Anthea Morris, John Boyd Brent, Robert Tunstall, Philip Ingram, Carole Gosheron
Stranger ..... John Neville

Margaret Leighton finds the type of slightly offbeat heroine beloved of Ibsen a rewarding challenge and she does so well in this rarely-played "Lady From the Sea" that it should draw well for its limited run of eight weeks. Glen Byam Shaw's production starts a shade shakily, but gradually a sureness of touch shows through, and the sound cast is an invaluable help.

Ann Jellicoe has given Ibsen a straightforward translation, but has been unable to do much about the main weakness of the play, the uneasy clash between the poet and the sociologist in Ibsen. Thus, on the one hand Miss Leighton must be accepted as a mystical, slightly eerie, slightly neurotic figure with her obsession for the sea; on the other, as a woman who seemed to have enough good horse sense to realize that there can be only one outcome of her dilemma or whether to stay with her husband or return to the sailor-lover who comes, with such presumption, to claim her.

But though much of "The Lady From the Sea" is contrived, Ibsen reveals again his ability to hold audience interest with a well-told story and absorbing characters. Miss Leighton, pale, wan and graceful, with beautifully modulated voice, gives a delightful performance with depth, in a very difficult role. There is at least one memorable moment, the long moving pause while she makes up her mind whether to go with the stranger. On the first night the audience seemed almost to catch its breath as the actress held the taut effect.

Andrew Cruickshank, as her easy going doctor husband, also scores with several rewarding moments, particularly the final scene where he waits for his wife's decision. John Neville, as the handsome stranger, is adequate in a not very effective role. Two of the most striking bits of acting come from Vanessa Redgrave and Joanna Dunham as the stepdaughters. Miss Redgrave in particularly handling her betrothal scene with her former tutor (Michael Gwynn) with charm and delicacy.

Gwynn suffers slightly from a period costume which could make him a figure of fun but for his intelligent playing. Richard Pascoe, as the sculptor, provides most of the humor and Esmond Knight rounds off the main characters as the local painter.

With this good cast, Shaw's understanding direction, scene evocative decor by Motley and lighting that skilfully suggests the brooding light and shade of the fjords, Ibsen has been well treated. Rich.

Philip Bosco will have a featured role in "Donnybrook."

Stratford (Ont.) Festival Hosts Foreign Observers

Stratford, Ont., March 28.

Two visitors from abroad have arrived here to observe the operation of the upcoming Shakespeare Festival season from start to finish. They're Reid Douglas, a director from New Zealand, and Jeff Henry, from Trinidad. Both are here under Canada Council Fellowship grants.

Henry was previously here in 1958 as a member of the Little Carib dancers.

'Fiorello' Profit Now Totals 300G

The Broadway production of "Fiorello" has paid another $15,000 dividend, bringing the total distributed profit to 100% thus far on its $300,000 investment. That represents the divvy, shared equally between the management and the backers, after the deduction as a running expense of a percentage of the profits to director George Abbott.

As of last Feb. 25, the Robert E. Griffith-Harold S. Prince production had netted $332,650. Operating profits for the four-week period ending that date was $7,891, with the weekly net ranging from an $829 loss on a $39,352 gross to a $6,230 profit on a $49,185 gross. Besides income earned from its New York operation, the musical has also been picking up substantial revenue in royalties from the successful touring production, independently co-produced by C. Edwin Knill and Martin Tahse.

A London production of the musical with book by Jerome Weidman and Abbott, music by Jerry Bock and lyrics by Sheldon Harnick, is planned for next fall by Donald Albery, with Peter Coe as stager. The Broadway production is currently in its 70th week at the Broadhurst Theatre and the road company, a bus-and-truck edition, is playing a split this week prior to going into the American Theatre, St. Louis, for a two-week run starting next Monday (3).

'Music Man' Got Raves, Is Sure Hit in London, Says Harold Fielding

London.

Editor, VARIETY:

"The Music Man," currently playing to sellout business at the Adelphi Theatre, London, with advance bookings which guarantee at least a two-year run, is unlikely to be affected by the lukewarm report in your issue of March 22, but as the English impresario presenting the show I think I should write to you in fairness to a great American show and a great American star.

Your report is headed, "Music Gets a Mild Press in London," and then quotes three of the smaller circulation papers. The Times (260,000, Daily Sketch (1,000,000) and Daily Herald (1,400,000).

How about recording the fact that both the show and Van Johnson received rave notices from the News of the World (6,600,000), largest Sunday paper circulation in the world), Daily Mirror (4,600,000, largest daily paper circulation in the world), and Evening News (1,500,000, largest evening paper circulation in the world).

It also got an unqualified rave from the influential morning paper, the Daily Telegraph, which said, "It is a winner which should fill the Adelphi for a long, long time." The Evening News said, "Van Johnson is a revelation. He has the energy of 10 juveniles rolled into one. His voice is not strong, but it gets by. He can hoof with the best of a young well-drilled chorus and in the theatre his charm [illegible] After devoted service in 25 films he deserves a night of [illegible] triumph on the London stage."

News of the World said, "A golden harvest of music and happiness, and Van is an absolutely [illegible] blinder." The opening night ovation, which has seldom been equalled in London, is being repeated at the theatre every night and the general verdict is that this is America's best musical export since "Oklahoma" and "My Fair Lady." It is certainly the most successful. Harold Fielding.

Adding Pit, Stage, Loft, Etc. to New Boston Civic Aud for Opera's Sake

Boston, March 28.

New auditorium in future Prudential Insurance Center could possibly become an "opera house." If, that is, the public will put up the $300,000 necessary for revision of plans to include stage facilities.

For some years now Boston has lacked an opera house. Whether an auditorium designed for commercial and organizational conventions would make one, it would be desirable, in the opinion of the Boston Opera Assn. which will undertake to raise the funds.

Authorized bond issue of $12,000,000 for construction of the civic auditorium covers only the facilities essential for conventions and exhibits. The lacking $300,000 must be pledged by the date upon which construction bids are opened, June 1.

Civic auditorium will be built by the city. The alterations required to make the auditorium suitable for large scale theatrical productions will involve four provisions: pit large enough to seat a full operatic orchestra; enlargement of the stage to meet the requirements of the largest productions, and construction of a stage house with a height of at least 85-feet; construction of suitable dressing rooms for ballet and opera principals and extras; storage facilities for large stage sets and means of making rapid, efficient scene changes.

Civic auditorium will seat about 5,000, with a single balcony that will seat 1600-1700. Bolt, Beranek and Newman have been hired to supervise acoustic aspects of the auditorium.

Support of the Boston newspapers for the "opera house" was immediately forthcoming. The Boston Traveler, in an editorial, said: "The need for suitable facilities to stage full-scale opera and ballet productions has been painfully evident since the old opera house was torn down in 1957.

"In the intervening years, the visiting Metropolitan Opera, our own two local opera companies and some of the world's finest ballet troupes have made do with the shallow stages, inadequate dressing rooms and unkind acoustics of Boston Garden and assorted movie temples. Under the circumstances, they have done very well. But they will do much better in a specially designed house that will restore Boston to its proper place among the world's music centers. And all at the bargain price of $300,000."

'Hostage' Cuts Short Chi; 'Raisin' Continuing Run

Chicago, March 28.

Since grosses have never quite measured up to expectations here, "The Hostage" is pulling out April 8. It has booked the Biltmore, L. A., starting April 11 and the Geary, San Francisco, beginning May 1. Initially, after the critical endorsements were published, the show was expected to have an extended run at the 900-seat Civic. It'll have played only seven weeks when it closes.

On the other hand, "Raisin In the Sun," has extended beyond its announced five weeks at the Blackstone. It was to have exited April 1, but is continuing indefinitely.

"Gypsy" is set for late May at the Shubert, following "Flower Drum Song," which moves out of the house, April 15.

Impulse Drops $25,000 In Quick Toronto Fold; Warrant Out for Behan

The fold last Saturday night (25) of "Impulse" after a one-week pre-Broadway tryout at the O'Keefe Centre, Toronto, represented estimated $25,000 loss on a $42,000 investment. The show, scaled to a $4 top weeknights and $4.50 weekend evenings, grossed a meagre $6,848 on its week's stand at the 3,200-seater. The potential capacity for the frame was $75,487.

The production, described as "an evening of improvisation" with Irish playwright Brendan Behan starring as "conferencier," opened March 20 at the Centre to unfavorable reviews. In addition, Behan was subsequently jailed for disorderly conduct and although out on bail, did not show up for the Wednesday (29) matinee and the remaining performances.

Broadway producer Alexander H. Cohen, who presented the revue in association with Andre Goulston, put up $500 bail for the Irish playwright novelist, whose job as interpolator was taken over by Maynard Ferguson, who appeared in the show with his orchestra. The revue, which was to have opened next Saturday (1) as an interim booking at the Royale Theatre, N. Y., was devised by Monte Kay, who also got separate co-producer billing.

A warrant has been issued for the arrest of Brendan Behan, who failed to appear in magistrate's court here yesterday (Mon.) as ordered. The Irish playwright-novelist's $500 bail, put up by Alexander H. Cohen, producer of "Impulse," the jazz revue in which he was m.c., was forfeited.

Behan was charged with assaulting police and creating a disturbance. Although his whereabouts are not definitely known, legal counsel retained by the O'Keefe Center, where "Impulse" played an abortive tryout last week, said the missing author was in Sunnyside Hospital, a private institution. The hospital would neither confirm nor deny his presence, and a check of other local hospitals was unsuccessful.

The lawyer, who visited Behan at the Royal York Hotel for yesterday's court appearance said he looked like "an awfully sick man" and that we would be unable to appear. Behan has not checked out of the hotel. His wife, Beatrice is reportedly with him.

Seek Legituner Rights To Anita Loos' 'Mother'

Broadway producer David Merrick and the team of Robert Fryer, Lawrence Carr and John Herrmann are understood to be bidding for the legit rights to a new Anita Loos novel, "No Mother to Guide Her," due for McGraw-Hill publication next Monday (3).

The book is a satire of Hollywood during the late 1920s and early 1930s.

The Meyer Davis orch will again provide the dance music for the American Theatre Wing's annual "Tony" awards dinner-dance to be held April 16 in the Grand Ballroom of the Waldorf-Astoria Hotel, N.Y.

Opera Review

Wozzek

(Metropolitan Opera, N. Y.)

For those whose musical tastes are somewhat more contemporary than Verdi and Puccini or even Wagner and Strauss, Alan Berg's work, written in 1922, and first performed in Berlin in 1925, is last operatic masterpiece to survive. No opera expresses so clearly the desperation, loneliness and incompatibility of modern man. Nowhere do the characters become such symbols of our times, our grim and sordid world.

There is not much new to say about the Met Opera's production, which except for a minor cast change (Ralph Herbert as the sadistic doctor) is the same as 1959. The very excellent Herman Uhde in the title role still seems somewhat too aristocratic for the brutish soldier who murders his wife before committing suicide. Certainly the child is far too big and takes something away from the effect of the last and most heartbreaking scene when moppet rides off on his wooden horse toward the other children to see his dead mother.

Miss Steber remains [illegible] Marie especially in the [illegible] Paul Franke [illegible] and Karl Paul [illegible] round his ideal role [illegible] activated only by [illegible] and [illegible].

The orchestra — the most outstanding important factor in this opera—along with conductor Karl Boehm lacked a shade or two of the intensity and concentration this opera needs. But it is difficult for an ensemble which plays "Tosca" one night and "Aida" the following to adjust completely to this kind of music. Gelb.

Literati

Meredith's DS&P Buyout

Meredith Publishing Co. has purchased Duell, Sloan & Pearce, U.S. tradebook publishers. The purchase price was not disclosed.

C. Hadlwell Duell, prexy of DS&P, and Charles A. Pearce, who founded the firm in 1939 with Duell and the late Samuel Sloan, will continue in exec capacities. No changes in personnel are contemplated. David McKay Co., which has been handling selling, billing and shipping for DS&P the past few years, will continue to perform these services for the present.

Meredith acquired the capital stock of Appleton-Century-Crofts, N.Y., in November and Lyons & Carnahan, Chicago, in March. Together with Meredith Better Homes and Gardens Book Division, it is estimated that Meredith Publishing Co. book revenue will exceed $17,000,000 during the coming year.

Newsmen's 'Memo To JFK'

Ten NBC newsmen are jointly writing a book for G. P. Putnam called "Memo to JFK." Contract arranged with Putnam's Howard Cady by Al Stein, head of NBC International web unit handling all merchandising and publishing rights.

NBC News boss Bill McAndrew will write an introduction and web prexy Bob Kintner will write a preface. Writers will be Joseph C. Harsch, Cecil Brown, Edward Newman, John Rich, John Chandellor, Irving R. Levine, Welles Hangen, Jim Robinson and Wilson Hall and Sander Vanocur. Each will write probably a chapter about his own geographical or political specialty.

The Real Joan of Arc

In a 314-page French book, published first in Great Britain in English by Heinemann and selling for $3.50, Andre Guerin, editor of the top selling Paris morning paper L'Aurore, and Jack Palmer White, longtime Yank resident in France and Metro story editor in Paris, have written what they consider the "true story of Joan of Arc." The supposed exalted young virgin shepherdess who became a saint and also the heroine of many films and plays is shown in this book, by painstaking research, that it ain't so. It is called "Operation Shepherdess."

Old pix and plays do not have to be changed but new versions could be in the offing. Guerin and White say she was not a poor shepherdess but the illegitimate daughter of the Duke of Orleans and Queen Isabeau of Bavaria and farmed out to the d'Arc family. She was raised in a military way. She was used as a symbol to get others behind her and so restore the Dauphin as Charles VII and get the riches involved.

But the authors feel her dedication, faith and courage were vital in getting the thing done. She was then not burned at the stake but spirited away with somebody else replacing her. She married and died in 1450 at the age of 43.

Book is neatly written and well illustrated and looms a must for those interested in the tale of Joan of Arc and for filmakers and legit producers who may want to devote themselves to other aspects of Joan as seen through history. But whether true or false it is a clever book and throws a new light on one of the most favored characters of the arts alongside Napoleon, Hamlet, Don Juan, Don Quixote, Lady Macbeth and Madame Bovary.

Mosk.

Levinson a la Escoffier

Leonard Louis Levinson takes off for Italy in April to write "The Best Of Italian Cooking" for Pocket Books, which will publish in April, 1962 and probably will follow up with an annual "Best Of" cookery series.

This is the fourth victual volume for Levinson, who started out with "The Brown Derby Cookbook," which, incidentally, will be issued as a paperback by Dolphin this year. Another publication date for Levinson is Sept. 4, when his big tome, "Wall Street: A Pictorial History" will be issued by Ziff-Davis, following a pre-publication mail-order campaign in the spring. Wall St. book was skedded for last November but production problems blocked original pub date.

CHATTER

Roland Gammon's article, "Miracle at Easter," which profiles New York actress and former "Miss USA" Nancy Anne Corcoran appears in American Weekly on April 2.

Susan Jane Tonkonogy (Golden Press) engaged to Richard Neil Witty (Fairchild Publications).

Art Horizons Inc. has been authorized to conduct a publishing business in New York.

Chicago Sun-Times telecritic Paul Molloy has authored "And Then There Were Eight," a humorous book on his large family, which Doubleday has skedded for fall release.

Prentice-Hall veepee and editorial director Myron L. Boardman luncheon-hosting for Ronald and Junko Kirkbride on the occasion of the former's 10th novel, "An Innocent Abroad." Having a Japanese theme, the luncheon is being staged at the Miyako Restaurant in New York. Author is married to a Nipponese.

Berenice Connor, formerly editorial promotion director for Ladies' Home Journal, upped to associate editor. She will be assistant to executive editor Mrs. Mary Bass.

From Shakespeare and Shaw to "A Majority of One"— the amusing, irreverent memoirs of the world's most versatile actor

Sir Cedric Hardwicke

A VICTORIAN IN ORBIT

as told to James Brough

Illustrated, $4.50 at all booksellers

DOUBLEDAY

Edith Sherman

Publishing Stocks

(As of March 28, 1961, closing)

Allyn & Bacon (AS)	35½
American Book (AS)	70	+ 2
Book of Month (NY)	34½	+ ½
Conde Nast (NY)	18¾	+ 1⅛
Crowell-Collier (NY)	47⅝	— 1⅜
Curtis Pub. Co. (NY)	9⅞
Grolier (OC)	60½
Harc't, Brace (OC)	42¼	— 1¼
Hearst (OC)	12½
Holt, R&W (NY)	63	— 1¾
L.A. Times Mirror (OC)	39	— 1
Macfadden (AS)	12¾	— ¼
Macmillan (OC)	77	— 1
McCall (NY)	49¾	— 1⅝
*McGraw-Hill (NY)	40⅛	— 1⅞
New Yorker (OC)	115
Pocket Books	38¼	+ 1½
Prentice-Hall (OC)	43½
Ran'm House (OC)	43¾	— 2½
Scott Foreman (OC)	27¾	— ¾
Time Inc. (OC)	101½	+ 7½
H. W. Sams (OC)	46¼
Western Pub. (OC)	73½	— 1½

*Adjusted for 3 for 1 split.
OC—Over the Counter.
N.Y.—N.Y. Stock Exchange.
AS—American Stock Exchange.
M—Midwest.
Note: Midwest and over-the-counter quotes are the Bid prices.

Equity Election

Continued from page 55

dorsement are the five nominees running on the ticket with Effrat.

Of the five, Conrad Bain, Sidney Blackmer, Roddy McDowell and Lee Tracy, are principals for five-year terms. They're favored by Bellamy over Tom Bosley, George Ives, Bill Ross and Shelley Winters. The fifth Bellamy-supported councillor candidate on the Effrat card is Bibi Osterwald, who's opposing Madeleine Sherwood for a three-year principal replacement term. The split ticket endorsed by Bellamy does not include separate nominations-by-petition candidacies of Robert Lenn, David F. Perkins and Joan Wetmore for councillors for five-year terms.

Bellamy's campaign mailing to the membership begins, "We're finally facing pay tv. We're concerned with national theatre legislations which could be to our advantage during this administration, as well as possible legislation yielding tax benefits. There's an imminent merger with AGMA (American Guild of Musical Artists) and the distribution of our growing pension fund, along with many other issues of profound concern to all of us. These matters have been, and will be, before council. They require extensive background knowledge in order to make proper decision."

In line with that, Bellamy goes on to argue that the six candidates nominated by petition, whom he's supporting, "are either incumbents, or former councillors, or people who are believed to have this background knowledge." He also emphasizes that his move is "no reflection on the nominating committee or on any of the other candidates."

Incidentally, although Bellamy isn't supporting Ives on the nominating committee's ticket, he asserts that he'll recommend to council that Ives be appointed to Royal Beal's unexpired term when Beal, the nominating committee's unopposed selection for treasurer, is elected and resigns his council seat, which he was to hold until next year. Besides the Effrat ticket, Bellamy is endorsing in addition to himself, the following nominating committee candidates:

As officers, Frederick O'Neal, first vice-president; Eddie Weston, second veepee; Frank Maxwell, third v.p.; Lois Wilson, fourth v.p., and Beal. Principals for five-year terms as councillors, Stephen Douglass, Earle Hyman, Leon Janney, Dorothy Sands, Michael Tolan and Jane White. Principal for two-year council replacement term, Lucia Victor. Chorus for five-year council terms, Robert Flavelle, Win Mayo and Julian Patrick, and chorus for two-year council replacement term, Crandall Diehl.

Those endorsing Bellamy's recommendations in the campaign mailing include Walter Abel, Keith Andes, Lucille Ball, Ed Begley, Alan Bunce, Art Carney, Carol Channing, Katharine Cornell, James Daly, Henry Fonda, Margalo Gilmore, Helen Hayes, Frank Lovejoy, Mary Martin, Ethel Merman, Chester Morris, Conrad Nagel, Phil Silvers, Walter Slezak and Loring Smith.

Off-Broadway Reviews

The Old Tune and The Square

Rose Lynch presentation dual-bill, comprising "The Old Tune" by Robert Pinget, translated and adapted by Samuel Beckett, and "The Square," by Marguerite Duras, translated by Ann Borchardt. Staged by Steve Chernak. Opened March 23, '61, at the Royal Playhouse, N.Y.; $4 top weekends, $2 weekdays.

OLD TUNE

Mr. Gorman ..... Sy Travers
Mr. Cream ..... Jack Delmonte

SQUARE

He ..... Guy Sothern
She ..... Rhoda B. Carrol

A current of somber repetition flows through the two French one-act plays which opened last Thursday (23) at the Royal Playhouse. The sedentary mood pieces are Robert Pinget's "The Old Tune," as adapted and translated by Samuel Beckett, and Marguerite Duras' "The Square," as translated by Ann Borchardt.

"Old Tune," the opener, involves the chance meeting of two Irish codgers on a safety island in the middle of a busy highway. They sit and chat, culling up half-remembered memories and bickering over the details. Although nothing really happens, except that they eventually fall asleep, there is a bitter-sweet quality to their conversation, and the believable characterizations by Sy Travers and Jack Delmonte almost charm away the monotony.

"The Square," by the author of the film "Hiroshima, Mon Amour," has the bitterness of "Tune" without its sweetness. It presents two lost souls, "the lowest of the low" as they call themselves, who meet in a European piazza. They discuss, in what seems purposely evasive dialog, the state of their respective existences, creating a vapid sombre mood.

He is a traveling salesman, lonely and unloved. She is an equally unhappy house servant who lives on the hatred she feels for her job because she is saving all her happiness for when she marries. He says that life's strongest experience is suffering and she believes that one must be unhappy and hate ever to be happy and love. Their discussion gradually becomes ponderous.

Guy Southern gives a contained, well-defined performance as the salesman and Rhoda B. Carroll is effective, if sometimes forced, as the girl.

Steve Chernak's direction places emphasis on the dialog of both pieces and adds little activity to the talk. An uncredited source has provided distracting light changes which are responsible for most of the evening's illumination. Kalb.

Ladies Night in a Turkish Bath

Cedar Productions presentation of a farce by Cyrus Wood. Avery Hopwood and Charlton Andrews. Staged by Harold E. Lawrence; choreography, Ray James; scenery, Richard B. Hughes; Features, Lucille Ball, James Sullivan, Douglas Wilson, June Edwards, Nan Dobson, Douglass Webb, Zaha Kader, John Anston, Thelma Pelish, Lidie Murti, Nancy O'Rourke, Lynn Kier, Betty Sullivan, Mac McGinnis. Opened March 21, '61, at the Eleanor Gould Theatre, 109 A'len Street, N.Y.; $4.90 top weekends, $4.50 weekdays.

Dodie ..... June Edwards
Marie ..... Lynn Kier
Kittie ..... Lisa Lou Cox
Mike ..... Douglas Wilson
Mrs. Tarleton ..... Nan Dobson
Alecia ..... Douglass Webb
Fred ..... John Anston
Prof. Mathews ..... James Sullivan
Mrs. O'Brien ..... Thelma Pelish
Anna ..... Lidie Murti
Myrtle ..... Nancy O'Rourke
La Boiteche ..... Zaha Kader
Policewoman ..... Betty Sullivan
Fireman ..... Mac McGinnis

"Ladies Night in a Turkish Bath" is nobody's night in the theatre. A more dismal evening is hard to imagine.

The producers presumably hoped that there would be audience for a fast, funny, risque farce. However, this revival of the 1920 play by Avery Hopwood and Charlton Andrews is slow, dull, and vulgar.

The plot, as adapted for this production by Cyrus Wood, deals with friends' efforts to cure a young professor of his fear of women. A night in a ladies' Turkish bath supposedly cures him. As director, Harold Lawrence allows the cast to pause meaningfully after every leer and innuendo. The sight gags employed are crude.

The cast is amateurish, although James Sullivan as the professor, June Edwards as his sweetheart and Thelma Pelish as a fat lady in the baths seem to have ability that might be better employed. The Richard B. Hughes sets are attractive. Kern.

Ralph Beaumont will choreograph the N. Y. City Center revival of "Pal Joey," opening May 31.

Feast of Panthers

John Bowman, in association with Richard H. Roffman & Doris Lambton, presentation of three-act drama by Thomas Del Vecchio. Staged by Bowman; settings, Mary Ann Reed; costumes, Blanch; lighting, Lyn Fischbein; choreography, Lenore Latimer. Features Claire Luce. Opened March 20, 1961, at the East 74th Street Theatre; $3.90 top.

Constance Wilde ..... Claire Luce
Ginger ..... Arthur V. Covne
Marquis of Queensberry ..... Abe Vigoda
Robbie Ross ..... Garnett Smith
Oscar Wilde ..... J. Byron Webster
Lord Alfred Douglas ..... Eric Van Nuys
Prosecutor ..... Derek Murcott
Attorney for Wilde ..... Robert Milton
Presiding Justice ..... William W. Sanders
Others: Konstantin, Jennifer Scanlon, Elizabeth Wiel, Annluise Williams, Patricia Williams.

It's getting to be a toss-up whether Oscar Wilde will have attracted more attention in the 1890s or the 1960s. The subject of a play of about 15 years ago, two recent feature film biographies, one adapted from the play, a current Broadway one-man show and the author of plays which have been both produced and adapted off-Broadway this season, Wilde is now the central figure of a drama by a fourth estater, Thomas Del Vecchio, at the East 74th Street Theatre.

"Feast of Panthers" is Del Vecchio's first play. It is a sentimental drama which offers little new in the way of insight, characterization or interpretation as concerns the celebrated and condemned wit, conversationalist, dramatist, poet and convicted social offender. It is an earnest effort that lacks dimension and offers melodrama instead.

The play briefly sketches the events leading up to Wilde's slander suit against the Marques of Queensberry, and his downward course through the two trials and public condemnation and ostracism. The character of Wilde, intently and sympathetically played by J. Byron Webster, shows only occasional flashes of true personality.

Most of the time, he could be almost any middle-aged village eccentric, rarely the brilliant author. Scenes involving the period following his imprisonment are synthetic, and one is stylistically incongruous with the rest of the play.

Most of the other characters are drawn to be thorns of one sort or another in Oscar's side. Abe Vigoda's Marques of Queensberry is unrelentingly bitter and violent and Eric Van Nuys is cold and abusive as Lord Alfred Douglas, leaving a question mark as to what Wilde saw in him in the first place.

Claire Luce is sometimes a bit too concerned and disillusioned as his wife and Garnett Smith is credible as Robbie Ross, the ex-beau and sensitive friend who is about the only one who tries to help. Derek Murcott is effective as the determined prosecutor and Robert Milton is believable as Wilde's defense attorney.

Producer John Bowman has staged the play unexcitingly, paying more attention to stage picture and light cues than to continuity and pace. Mary Ann Reed's costumes are appropriate and Lyn Fischbein's lighting is spotty. Associated with Bowman in the production are Richard H. Roffman and Doris Lambton. "Feast of Panthers" was originally presented by the Idlewild Players at their theatre in the control tower building of N.Y.'s Idlewild Airport. Kalb.

Touring Shows

(March 26-April 9)

Andersonville Trial Municipal, Lubbock (26); Municipal, Amarillo (27); Municipal, San Angelo (28); City Aud., Beaumont (30); Will Rogers, Ft. Worth (31-1); Civic, N.O. (3-6); Lanier High School, Montgomery (7); Albany (Ga.) Theatre (9).

Becket Colonial, Boston (30-8).

Carnival (tryout) Forrest, Phily (27-8).

Fiorello (2d Co.) Palace, Youngstown (27); Ohio Theatre, Mansfield (29-30); Municipal, Dayton (31-1); American, St. L. (3-8).

Far Country (tryout)—Wilbur, Boston (27); moves to N.Y.

Five Finger Exercise—Geary, S.F. (27-1); Capitol, Salt Lake City (3-4); Music Hall, K.C. (7-8).

Flower Drum Song—Shubert, Chi (27-8).

Gypsy Aud., Rochester (29-1); Riviera, Det. (3-8).

Hostage Civic, Chi (27-8).

J.B.—Grambling College, Ruston, La. (27-28); City Aud., Jackson, Miss. (29); Municipal, Savannah (31); Peabody, Daytona Beach (1); Tower, Atlanta (3-5); Ovens, Charlotte (6-7); Univ., Durham (8).

Majority of One National, Wash. (27-8).

Mark Twain Tonight—Granite High School, Salt Lake City (3); Union High School, Phoenix (5); Philharmonic, L.A. (7); Russ, San Diego (8).

Music Man (2d Co.) Nixon, Pitt. (27-8).

My Fair Lady (2d Co.) Shubert, Boston (27-8).

Once Upon a Mattress—O'Keefe, Toronto (27-1); Civic, Brockville, Ont. (3); Capitol, Ottawa (4); Her Majesty's Montreal (5-8).

Raisin in the Sun—Blackstone, Chi (27-8).

Sound of Music (2d Co.) Riviera, Det. (27-1); O'Keefe, Toronto (4-8).

Plan 3-Theatre Stock Circuit

Continued from page 55

setup will start with a spring season opening April 1 and running 12 weeks through June 24. That'll be followed by a summer semester of 12-14 weeks, starting June 26, and then a fall season of 12-13 weeks, beginning Sept. 18.

Thus, the total playing weeks contemplated for the Paper Mill this year, beginning with the spring session, is 36-39 weeks. The Westport summer session is scheduled to open June 15 and continue for 13½ weeks. Added to the Paper Mill schedule, that makes a total of 49½-52½ potential playing weeks for the two operations this year. Since last summer's combined gross represented an average weekly take of about $18,500, that amount, if consistent throughout this year, would add up to about $915,000 for 49½ weeks and around $970,000 for 52½ weeks of playing time.

Besides the gross income from regular performances at the two theatres, there's also revenue from kiddie shows and package productions, toured on the stock circuit. They will probably send out five packages this summer, each to run about 10 weeks for a total of approximately 50 weeks playing time.

Although it's possible the company could hit a $1,000,000 gross on its present operations, the addition of a third stock showcase, providing it dittoed the success of the other two, would probably insure income from the firm's activities reaching that figure. At the 300-seat Westport showcase, the potential weekly capacity gross is about $23,000 and the breakeven around $16,500.

The potential weekly gross capacity for musicals at the 972-seat Paper Mill Playhouse is approximately $26,000 and the breakeven about $16,500. For straight plays, the weekly potential capacity gross at the Paper Mill is around $23,000 and the breakeven again about $16,500. The company maintains a year-around staff, which ranges from a minimum of 14 during slack periods to a maximum of around 75, plus casts during the summer.

Productions contemplated by Weinstein and Feldman for this summer include tryouts of Peter Default's "Glass Football," Max Wilk's "A Bad Case of February," Raymond Sipherd's "Emperor of Biloxi," Alfred Hayes' adaptation of his novel, "My Face for the World to See," Arthur Ross's "Circle of Wheels" and "Madeline Davidson's "A Place for Standing Still."

Other productions planned include "Once Upon a Mattress," "Majority of One," "Marriage-Go-Round," "Tender Trap," with Mort Sahl, and "Invitation to a March," with Celeste Holm repeating the role she originated on Broadway last fall.

Package probabilities include "Madwoman of Chaillot," "Pleasure of His Company" and "Liliom."

The firm has taken over operation of the Players Tavern in Westport, where the theatre program for kiddies is to be extended this summer from one to two shows Friday mornings. Six of the marionette productions at Westport will be transferred to the Paper Mill for Saturday morning showings. An industrial department, headed by Charles Brotman, has also been set up by firm in connection with the Millburn showcase.

The industrial department was established to promote the theatre as a meeting place for industrial groups during the day and then to get those at the theatre for the meetings to attend the spot's regular evening performances at reduced rates. The firm is also equipped to put on industrial shows for organizations desiring such presentations.

The April 3-15 opener of the Paper Mill spring season will be "Country Girl," with Shelley Winters, who'll also appear in the theatre's April 17-29 production of "A View from the Bridge." Besides his stock activities,

HEY!!!

You worked to earn that residual and or salary check . . . what say they work for you. Let J. Bermant & Co., experts in Mutual Funds, render professional guidance in making your money W-O-R-K for you.

Write or call today for free booklet.

J. BERMANT & CO.
Rm. 1202, 19 W. 44th St. N.Y. MU 7-2815

RENT OR SALE
SUMMER THEATRE
GRISTMILL PLAYHOUSE
Andover, New Jersey
Seats 800 Stage 30'x50'
EDITH PIERSON ST 6-5420

THEATRE AVAILABLE
SUMMER STOCK: Rental, Lease, Part-Rental-Participation. Phone Hickory 9-1238, or write Storm King Theatre, Cornwall-On-Hudson, New York.

WANTED
Early material of the Theatre and Stage—Playbills, Correspondence, etc.
Write
PHILIP SKLAR
2141 N. Wanamaker St., Phila. 31, Pa.

SUMMER THEATRE PRODUCER AVAILABLE
Excellent background. Can furnish entire company and staff, if desired.
Box V-2133, VARIETY
154 West 46th Street, New York 36

SUMMER THEATRE for RENT
Monticello Playhouse now available for summer stock rental. 1½ hours from Manhattan. FULLY EQUIPPED WITH MONEY MAKING CONCESSIONS. Centrally located in the hub of the Catskills. Spring board to success for Talented group. Seats 400. PHONE: CL 7-0780 or CL 7-3112.

Joan Sutherland Opens Lyric Opera Oct. 14 In Advance of Met Debut

Chicago, March 28.

Chi Lyric Opera now has nine operas set for the seven-week '61 season commencing Oct. 14. That leaves one more to go to round out. Slate now lists "Andrea Chenier," "Mefistofele," "La Forza del Destino," "Cosi Fan Tutte," "Don Giovanni," "Fidelio" and "Barber of Seville." Announced earlier were "Lucia di Lammermoor" and the first American production of "The Harvest" by Vittorio Giannini.

Of the artists set, top name will be Joan Sutherland, Aussie soprano who also opens next season at the Met Opera. She'll essay the title role in Lyrics season-opener, "Lucia."

Other singers set are Carlo Bergonzi, Walter Berry, Boris Christoff, Fernando Corena, Eileen Farrell, Tito Gobbi, Hans Hotter, Christa Ludwig, Birgit Nilsson, Elisabeth Schwarzkopf, Giulietta Simionato, Leopold Simoneau, Teresa Stich-Randall, Richard Tucker, Jon Vickers, Eberhard Waechter, and William Wilderman. Newcomers include Luigi Alva, Piero de Palma, Ilva Ligabue and Shakeh Vartenissian.

Conductors signed are Antonino Votto, Andre Cluytens, Peter Maag, Carlo Felice Cillario, and Vittorio Giannini, who'll conduct the premi of his "Harvest."

Since her hit at Covent Garden, London, Miss Sutherland has appeared in numerous recitals through South, plus American Opera Society concert versions in N.Y. —Ed.

Off-Broadway Shows

(Figures denote opening dates)

After Angels, W. 3rd St. (2-10-61).
American Dream, York (1-24-61).
Balcony, Circle in Square (3-2-60).
Call Me, 1 Sheridan Sq. (1-31-61).
Connection, Living Thtre (Rep) (7-15-59).
Cry of Raindrop, St. Marks (3-7-61).
Death of Bessie, York (3-1-61)
Double Entry, Martinique (2-20-61).
Elsa Lanchester, 41st St. (2-4-61).
Fantasticks, Sullivan St. (5-3-60)
4-1-7 & Cage, Theatre Today (3-4-61).
Hedda Gabler, 4th St. (11-9-60).
Jungle Cities, Living (Rep) (12-20-60).
King Dark Chamber, Jan Hus (2-9-61).
Krapp's & Zoo, Cricket (1-14-60).
Ladies Night, Eleanor Gould (3-21-61).
Leave It to Jane, Sheridan Sq. (2-2-59).
Mary Sunshine, Orpheum (11-18-59).
Moon in River, East End (2-6-61).
Mousetrap, Mews (11-5-60).
O, Oysters, Village Gate (1-30-61).
Roots, Mayfair (3-6-61).
Square & Old Tune, Royal (3-23-61).
Stewed Prunes, Showplace (12-14-60).
Theatre Chance, Living (Rep) (6-22-60)
Threepenny Opera, de Lys (9-20-55)
Worm Horseradish, Mandman (3-13-61).

SCHEDULED OPENINGS

Under Milk Wood, Circle (3-29-61).
Only Nonsense, E. 74th St. (4-3-61).
Painted Days, Marquee (4-6-61)
Magnificent Hugo, Comedy (4-7-61).
Hobo, Gate (4-10-61).
Moby Dick, Madison Ave. (4-10-61)
Smiling Boy, Cherry Lane (4-11-61).
Decameron, E. 74th St. (4-12-61).
Seven At Dawn, Actors (4-17-61).
Gallows Humor, Gramercy Arts (4-18-61)
Evenings With Chekhov, Key (4-20-61).

CLOSED

Feast of Panthers, E. 74th St. (3-20-61), closed Wednesday (22) after 3 performances.
Walk-up, Provincetown (2-23-61), closed March 11 after 22 performances.
What A Killing, Folksbiene (2-27-61), closed Monday (27) after one performance.

SCHEDULED B'WAY PREEMS

Happiest Girl, Beck (4-3-61).
Far Country, Music Box (4-6-61).
Show Boat, City Center (4-12-61).
Carnival, Imperial (4-13-61).
South Pacific, City Center (4-26-61).
Porgy & Bess, City Center (5-17-61).
Donnybrook, 46th St. (5-18-61).
Kuprin, Broadhurst (5-25-61).
Pal Joey, City Center (5-31-61).

Legit Bits

Arthur W. Wright, president of the Treasurers Club of America, is under treatment in the New England Deaconess Hospital, Brookline, Mass., after a series of heart attacks.

Actor Don Parker leaves New York next Saturday (1) for a stay of several weeks on the Coast.

Toby Robins has withdrawn from the cast of "Love's Labour's Lost," to be presented at the Stratford (Ont.) Shakespeare Festival this summer. She is expecting her third child in the fall.

Judith Haskell will understudy Janice Rule and Arlyne Frank will stand by for Dran Seitz in "Happiest Girl in the World," due April 13 at the Martin Beck, N. Y.

Eric Berry will appear as Sir Toby Belch in "Twelfth Night," at the American Shakespeare Festival, Stratford, Conn., opening April 10.

Frederick Brisson has acquired an untitled play by Peter Shaffer, author of "Five Finger Exercise," for Broadway production next season.

Gus Schirmer Jr. will again direct the productions this summer at the State Fair Musicals, Dallas, and James Leon will handle the musical direction.

Marge Champion is rehearsing the dancers for the national company of "Bye, Bye Birdie" in the absence of her husband, Gower Champion, who is attending to the direction and choreography of "Carnival," now trying out at the Forrest Theatre, Philadelphia

Staff for the upcoming N. Y. City Center production of "Show Boat" includes Chet O'Brien, general stage manager; Zelda Dorfman, company manager; Howard Bay, set designer, and Tom Trenkle, pressagent.

Mrs. Caroline Rathbone, longtime owner-operator of the Peninsula Playhouse, Fish Creek, Wis., will serve in an advisory capacity at the spot, which has been taken over by a new management.

A "Theatre Collects American Art" exhibition, comprised of works by legit, concert, film, television and radio celebs, will be presented April 10-May 16 at the Whitney Museum, N. Y.

Paul Gregory has signed Joan Fontaine and Paul Lucas as costars of a double-bill of Bernard Shaw's "The Great Catherine" and "Captain Brassbound's Conversion," which he intends presenting on Broadway during the 1962-63 season after a 20-week tryout tour. Cedric Hardwicke is adaptaing the latter comedy and stage both plays.

Paul Steiner, former MCA publicity director, left New York for Paris last week to confer with Edith Piaf regarding a U. S. tour of her one-woman show.

A special performance of the Moiseyev Dance Co. honoring Robert W. Dowling, Broadway producer and realtor, for the benefit of the Children's Asthma Research Institute will be held April 22 at the Metropolitan Opera House, N.Y.

ADVERTISEMENT

BOSTON DAILY RECORD
Wednesday, January 25, 1961

ELLIOT NORTON WRITES:

Comedian From Israel Hit in Marlene's Show

SHAI K. OPHIR is as unusual as his name.

Mr. Ophir is not easily described or catalogued. To call him a comedian is reasonable, as far as it goes, for his primary aim is to divert and amuse. But his methods are different from those of the conventional comics. To identify him as a 'mime' might make him seem arty, which he is not, though he certainly is an artist.

He looks and dresses more like a professional athlete than an entertainer. In skin-tight black trousers and sweater, he might well be preparing to take part in an eight-day bike race.

ATHLETIC FIGURE

He has an athlete's figure, flat-hipped, broad-shouldered, lithe and slim, and a fighter's face. His head is round and set closely on a short neck, his hair cut close to his skull, his nose broad, chin square, his mien agressive.

Although he confides in his audience before he undertakes each new stint, he does it more or less factually, avoiding the jovial manner and the professional brashness of the self-pleased jesters.

As a mime, he begins by riding an imaginary bicycle briskly. Then, by manipulating his shoulders and hips in some incredible way, he creates the illusion of a man 'disappearing in the distance and reappearing' without moving more than a few feet.

CREATES ILLUSION

As another feat of mime, he creates an illusion of underwater life, moving his outstretched hands and arms to simulate the eerily silent movements of fish in the sea. His muscular control in this particular exhibition is little short of miraculous.

SWIFT LIKENESS

In depicting the ways of compulsive smokers, he is most amusing when he personates the fellow who never has a cigarette out of his mouth. Lampooning this imaginary man, he demonstrates man, he demonstrates that it is possible to eat breakfast, drink coffee, brush one's teeth and even, most wonderful of all, kiss one's wife goodbye without ever losing a puff or removing the cigarette from the lip. Although it is designed for amusement only, this stunt may well be educational.

His Paris bistro scene brings to the bar a tipsy fellow who visits the place just to get away from his wife, another who insists on talking about World War I, and a third who's behavior is, let us say, sophisticated.

These characterisations are not silent. The actor chatters in French, reproducing the happy talk of the first visitor, the insistent recollections of the old soldier and the giddy chatter of the third man.

In each case, the actor achieves a swift likeness of the character he personates.

By the way of summary, it can be said fairly that Shai K. Ophir is an unconventional and expert entertainer who throws light on human folly and in so doing creates a good deal of laughter. He deserves a great deal of credit.

Alexander H. Cohen

AND HIS ASSOCIATES

ANNOUNCE THE REMOVAL OF THEIR OFFICES TO

TWENTY EAST FORTY-SIXTH STREET

NEW YORK 17, N. Y.

MARCH 22, 1961 TN 7-3434

ONE HUNDRED FIFTEEN SHAFTESBURY AVENUE • LONDON, W. C. 2 • TEMPLE BAR 5224 • CABLES: ALEXCOHEN

Broadway

Alan Jay Lerner may write his autobiog for Random House.

Joe E. Levine refers to his newest "Sodom and Gomorrah" as "Sodom and Begorrah."

New Joe E. Lewis song title: "If You Were the Only Girl in the World, With My Luck You'd Be My Sister."

Mrs. Joe Sylvia Cohen (VARIETY) mending after leg surgery at Queens Memorial Hospital, Jamaica, L.I.

N. Y. World Telegram columnist Frank Farrell "poured" for Jean Francis Dovay, ditto on the Paris-Presse.

Songsmith Harry Ruby (Kalmar & Ruby) is the "This Is Your Life" subject next Sunday on the Ralph Edwards NBC-TVer.

Abe Dansten, district sales manager for 20th-Fox, nominated for re-election as prexy of N.Y. Cinema Lodge, B'nai B'rith.

Current show of Edward Steichen photos at Museum of Modern Art includes some 160 shots of stage and screen personalities.

George Burns, vaudeville producer of Broadway musicals and vaudeville production acts, is at Lenox Hill Hospital with a lung ailment.

Former Paris musicomedian-turned-showman Jack Forrester in from his Paris base on Jean Paul Getty business. He's been longtime associate of the latter.

Veteran publicist William Fields in Hospital for Special Surgery, 535 E. 70, which is part of the N.Y. Hospital, and it's still "do not disturb" and "no visitors."

Whether because of "The Untouchables" preserves the Broadway columns of late have been singularly devoid of loose reference to "the Mob," etc.

Suzanne Rein Hall and Sheila Rosemary Hibbs, British skaters, in from London yesterday (Tues.) on the Queen Elizabeth to join John H. Harris' "Ice Capades."

Tom Curtiss, film and drama critic of the Paris N.Y. Herald Tribune, returns to his Paris base this week after huddles with publishers on his forthcoming George Jean Nathan autobiog.

Composer William Bergsma and musicologist Gideon Waldrop have new administrative posts at the Juilliard School. First is new associate dean; latter asst. to president William Schuman.

Author Edwin O'Connor back from Europe Monday (27) on the United States. Also arriving were four members of the Mills Bros. Circus. They include Harold Huxstep, Heinz-Kurt Frauenstein, Wilhelm Schmidt and Sigrid Ziegler.

Kiddie entertainer George Carstan will present his puppet and magic act at the Greenwich Mews Theatre, N.Y., the afternoon of April 15 in a benefit performance for the Mend Fund of the National Foundation for Neuromuscular Diseases Inc.

Cary Crosby was a last-minute stand-in for Dean Martin who failed to show at the Italian Boys' Town dinner at the Waldorf-Astoria last week, after the auspices apparently were given to understand he would be through with his Metro film chore in time to come east.

At 30th wedding anniversary of Lucille Lortel and industrialist Louis Schweitzer at the Hotel Plaza last week, attended by many showfolk. Gerald Price of "Threepenny Opera," in which Miss Lortel is interested, sang a "Mack the Knife" parody especially written by Marc Blitzstein.

U.S. Labor Secretary Arthur Goldberg's kidding with the kids who wish to start a one-hour day for young piano students has inspired Claudette Sorel, via publicist Alix Williamson, to express wrath. Collective bargaining with parents would have wrecked careers of Mozart and Paderewski is the general temper.

Max E. Youngstein, United Artists veep, was honored at New York Monday (27) with an award of achievement by the Judith Lewis Group. Group raises funds for the support and endowment of cancer and medical research and is currently establishing a cancer research laboratory at the Albert Einstein College of Medicine.

"Every time we turn our backs Moe Hart buys a house," says Bennett Cerf, who kept the playwright from buying a place in Jamaica, BWI, but who, when he went to the Coast to convalesce, just closed a deal for film producer Edward Small's mansion in Palm Springs. Hart owns a duplex in Manhattan and a summer home in Beach Haven, N. J.

Julian T. Abeles' legal aide, John S. Clark, after a year in a cast because of a bad auto crash, finally doffed the right arm plaster-of-Paris encasement and it's now only in a sling. Having made such miraculous progress, as result of what looked like a fatal accident, he walks the marital plank May 20 with Mary Caroline Leary at her New Jersey home.

When Harry Ritz's flu kayoed him Sunday night, Myron Cohen pinch-hitted at the midnight frolic. Ritz Bros. completed their wow three-week stand at Jack Silverman's International Casino last night; boniface bonused the comedians for their continual SRO and turnaway trade, especially unusual because of the seasonal Lenten letdown in nitery biz.

More in the "Fiorello!" (LaGuardia), "Gypsy" (Gypsy Rose Lee) "Molly Brown" and Kindred biographical influences in contemporaneous musical comedies: from Hollywood, yet tv-radio scripter-producer Don Quinn has one on "Will" (Will Rogers) and, in Madrid, playwright Allen Boretz has completed "Babe," a musical based on Babe Ruth's life and times.

Tom Curtiss, drama and film critic of the Paris edition of the N.Y. Herald Tribune, returns to his French base today (Wed.) after a fortnight's quickie o.o. of Broadway plays and also a Philly detour to catch "Carnival." While in N.Y. he taped a David Susskind panel show on "Dramatic Criticism" on which Walter Kerr, Kennell Tynan, Peter Ustinov, Eliot Norton (Boston) and Nathan Cohen (Toronto) were also participants.

Paul E. Flato, who was indicted in 1953 in a gem theft, was returned to New York last week to stand trial under a Presidential extradition warrant. He had obtained refuge in Mexico since the grand larceny and forgery charge. Flato was w.k. in show biz circles as vendor of fancy baubles to stars and other celebs. In 1943 he was also convicted of stealing and pawning $125,000 worth of jewelry. He served 16 months of a two-four year jail sentence.

Toll Come-On

Continued from page 1

changes with other systems such as Zenith-RKO General.

Participation deals are nothing new in the industry, of course, but in the case of a theatrical feature the star might pick up subsequent loot if the film is capable of going on release one time. Rarely goes more. (Interestingly, the late Clark Gable and others of the cast of "Gone With The Wind" were on straight salary and could never share in the blue-chip income from this greatest reissue of them all.)

In the case of home toll, as envisioned by the Telemeter people, there's the good chance that exposures will be possible in just about every global territory over a period of many years. Thus there would be the annuity.

Next major outing for Telemeter in Toronto will be "Show Girl," brought to Toronto live from the Eugene O'Neill Theatre in Manhattan next Sunday (22). Carol Channing, star of the legiter, is among the financial participants.

Telemeter has made extensive arrangements for the pickup. Five cameras will be deployed throughout the theatre for the special performance. The coverage of each will be taped, so that a master print can be made, with any imperfections removed, for subsequent telecasts. A sixth camera will be in the lobby of the O'Neill for color "copy" of the invited audience.

Belly Dancers

Continued from page 1

must sit through secondrate flamenco terps, jugglers, warblers, mind-readers and magicos before the highlight act comes on.

Guardians of local morals leave the impression that only the hopelessly depraved would be found sitting at cabaret tables at 2 o'clock in the morning waiting for some belly ballerina. This likely explains the surprising censor tolerance.

Whatever the reason for turning a blind eye on this grinding expression of Near Eastern folklore, bellydancing has become a welcome new wrinkle in Madrid nitery circles.

London

(HYde Park 4561/2/3)

Tele personality Gilbert Harding left an estate of $28,375.

Ronald Lewis to Hollywood to film "Sardonicus" for Columbia.

Lena Horne, Alan King and Paul Keyes and columnists Leonard Lyons and Horace Sutton in town.

Sam Spiegel donated $28,000 to the Variety Club of Gt. Britain to endow a new Boys' Club in London.

Samuel Bischoff and David Diamond's film, "Operation Eichmann," goes on release in U.K. April 17.

Flack Graham Whitworth moved over from Unifilms to Compton Films; succeeded by Bernard Miller, late of Eros.

J. L. Ramsden, British Movietone News promotion manager, will be upped to editor when S. J. Wiggins quits in May.

BBC and ITV both have applied for permission to televise wedding of the Duke of Kent and Katharine Worsley from York Minster June 8.

BLC Films Ltd., new distrib company formed by the recent alliance of British Lion and Columbia in U.K., held its first sales conference last weekend.

Alma Cogan, Hughie Green, Diana Dors, Shirley Bassey and David Whitfield are in a "sportsmen-show biz" syndicate that has copped over $115,000 in a football pools win.

Paris

By Gene Moskowitz

(66 . . e. Breteuil, Sut. 5920)

Joe Amsbach ogling local pix for Yank chances.

Singer Philippe Clay to do a one-man show next season.

Nancy Kwan in for opening of "The World of Suzy Wong" (Par). "Facts of Life" (UA) and "Go Naked in World" (M-G) played here to routine biz.

New Orly Airport drawing more ogglers than the Eiffel Tower. Both Parisians and provincials are flocking out to see the new installations.

Orson Welles again impersonating Benjamin Franklin in currently shooting French pic, "LaFayette." He did it also in Sacha Guitry's "Versailles."

Jean Goldwurm, prexy of the Yank foreign film distrib org, Times Films, and owner of Little Carnegie in N. Y., taking a page in local film trade mags reproducing Eric Johnston's laudatory wire on his petition to the U.S. Supreme Court on recent decision giving individual states private pix censor rights.

Harold Pinter's British offbeat legit bit, "The Caretaker" (Le Gardien) in a translation by Jacques Brunius, came a cropper at Theatre Lucrece. Crix did not get the symbolism of this tale of a psychotic who brings home a tramp one night for long talks and patter. Play lasted only four weeks.

Edith Piaf will stop her present sellout Olympia Music Hall starring stint from April 10 to May 5 to fill a Belgian contract and then come back and play on till the end of June. Interim will be filled in by jazz concerts and a rock-and-roll special. Miss Piaf already has earned $100,000 since the beginning of her Olympia date on Jan. 2.

Rome

By Robert F. Hawkins

(Via Veneto Estera; 675906)

David Niven skied in to start "Two Enemies" DeLaurentiis.

Alessandro Blasetti expected to serve as Italo member to Cannes Film Fest jury.

Gian Carlo Menotti in from U. S. for talks at opt his Festival of Two Worlds at Spoleto.

Maxima Film to produce "Death on Granada" (Garcia Lorca) from story by Sergio Amidei and Ugo Pirro.

Alfredo Guarini to N. Y. and Hollywood to shape co-production of Italia Films' "The Last Veil of Salome."

Helen Merrill getting big play here via RCA disks after her successful tele exposure on RAI-TV's "Moderato Swing."

Valentina Cortesa back to pix via role in Dino DeLaurentiis' "Barabbas," which starts April 5 on Verona locations.

Frank E. Taylor held press confab at Flora Hotel on behalf of "The Misfits" (UA), which opens in 50 Italo houses over Easter.

Gian Luigi Polidoro and writer Goffredo Parise to the States to prep and script "An Italian in America"; will drive from Gotham to Las Vegas to o.o. backdrops for Italo project.

In-and-out-of-Rome: Ingrid Bergman, to Amsterdam after quickie visit to her children; Elsa Martinelli skied to Paris after returning from her "Hatari" stint in Africa; Mel Ferrer and Audrey Hepburn at the Hassler.

Henry (and Mrs.) Levin hosted group of filmites including Donald O'Connor, Richard Fleischer and others at private screening of his latest, "Where the Boys Are" (M-G). Levin just wound "Wonders of Aladdin" (Embassy-Lux) here.

Bistro Coverage

Continued from page 1

performers. That is, providing the reviews are favorable.

The paper's endorsement of a nitery offering has already paid off for some club operators in what they regard as increased business resulting from such approval. As for the talent, the prestige of a Times review is, in itself, considered important. Besides that, the notices are being carried in the paper's international edition and a laudatory appraisal by the Times man could contribute to overseas interest in the performers covered.

Chief nitery reviewer for the paper is the drama department's Arthur Gelb, who was assigned the job of breaking ground on the cabaret coverage by Times legit critic, Howard Taubman. When that move was made, Milton Esterow was shifted from the paper's rewrite battery to the drama department to assist in club reviewing and also work on legit news, features and off-Broadway reviews.

Gelb, prior to hitting saloon beat, by-lined a legit column at least once weekly, and is continuing to do off-Broadway reviews and legit news, mostly features. Continuing to work on the paper's daily legit column are Sam Zolotow and Louis Calta, while drama editor Lewis Funke bylines Sundays.

Anent the night club coverage, most of the spots specializing in jazz are reviewed by John S. Wilson.

Paris Studes

Continued from page 2

against the patronal, dreary quality of the play and felt the state-subsidized C-F needed a better choice in the few contemporary plays they put on. They stated they were not against the actors or the C-F itself.

Play is regarded as a heavy tract about a Cardinal ruling Spain as Regent in the 17th Century. He is torn between his need for peace and prayer, and his desire to rule.

Students felt the play was the perfect example of a false classicism completely out of date.

Georgie Jessel

Continued from page 2

subtle reproach to Joliet to "Lefty Louie" Rosenberg, the gangster.

Ben Hecht's foreword salutes the author. "No figure in our time has capered into so many worlds as George Jessel. Actor, troubadour, author, producer, financier, movie-radio-television star, politician, and eloquent emissary for the new land of Israel; Byronic lover and undisputed speechmaker of the United States; our Jessel has been all of these—and more. For he always loved people more than audiences, friendships more than applause . . . Just as Carl Sandburg gave his poet's embrace to Lincoln, our Jessel comes before us, arm in arm with his Cast of Yesterday."

It's great stuff for both the show biz bunch and the show biz buffs, the "civilians" as Mike Todd called 'em.

Abel.

Opera Buffs Boo

Continued from page 1

T. Mason, manager of the local concert hall. It was the first indication that the opera troupe may return.

Bing conferred with Mayor Dilworth and City Representative Fredric R. Mann, prior to the closing performance. "Now that the Mayor has stepped into the picture we are happy to re-examine the situation," he said. Mann asserted that the City made no offer to subsidize appearances here, but added, "that's always a possibility."

Hollywood

Charles Schlaifer in for two weeks.

Kathy Nolan underwent spinal surgery.

Clark Gable's son named John Clark Gable.

Dan Melnick in from Gotham for week of ABC-TV confabs.

Leonard Shannon joins Columbia Pictures publicity dept. April 4.

Richard Dunlap here to prep Oscar telecast over ABC-TV April 17.

Montgomery Clift left for confabs with John Huston on "Freud" in Ireland.

Daniel S. Mark joined Writers Guild of America West as staff administrator.

Lowell Thomas here to re-record third Cinerama film, "Seven Wonders of World."

James Arness formed Arness Productions Co. for "Gunsmoke" teleshows next season.

Desi Arnaz, Hal E. Chester, Arthur Lewis and Al Zimbalist joined Screen Producers Guild.

Mrs. Bert Allenberg elected prexy of Women's Guild, Cedars of Lebanon-Mt. Sinai Hospitals.

Pat O'Brien kudosed by National Assn. of Woman's Lawyers as "Lawyer General Practitioner."

Fred Young arrived from London for special Panavision tests for Sam Spiegel's "Lawrence of Arabia."

Willard Wiener settled his suit against Ida Lupino out-of-court for $4,500 over "The End Is Known" scripting.

Paul Rotha, past-prexy of British Film Academy, appointed European rep of Hollywood Motion Picture & Television Museum.

Chicago

(DElaware 7-4984)

Drury Lane Theatre hiatusing for Holy Week.

Chin Twins currently featured at Mangam's Chateau.

Folksinger Win Stracke received an award from U. of Chicago's Folk Lore Society.

Arlyne Rothberg ankled Bud Solk ad-pubbery to join Palmer House publicity office.

Joe Castell, longtime boniface of Mr. Kelly's, signed on with Playboy Club's managerial staff.

Lindy, of Cindy & Lindy, sidelined by pneumonia. Mickey Sharp is subbing for the act at Playboy Club.

Bob Howe ad-pubbery plucked Herb Rogers' Tenthouse and Music Theatres for coming summer season.

Actor Karl Malden in Monday (27) to bally mid-April opening of "One-Eyed Jacks" at the Chicago.

Joe Swedie tapped for Variety Club of Illinois' "Heart of Show-business" award. Testimonial banquet will be at Pick-Congress on May 2.

Ex-actor Steve Crane, who designed Lucy's in Hollywood and the Luau in Beverly Hills, styling a port-of-call eatery at Sheraton-Chicago.

Drury Lane producer Carl Stohn Jr. and Goodman Theatre managing director Dr. John Reich were co-recipients of ANTA's Theatre Man of the Year award.

Ann Gray, who reputedly instrumented ANTA's sponsoring of "Fantasticks" at Del Prado Hotel, now has campaign to establish a performing arts centre at Studebaker Theatre.

Vienna

By Emil W. Maass

(Grosse Schiffgasse 1 A; 356156)

"Daphne" by Jacopo Peri produced by Austrian radio system.

Louise Parker of N.Y. Centre opera gave concert in Palais Palffy.

Former big cafe in Prater being converted into American-type bowling alley.

Gus Backus (of "Muss i Denn" fame) guesting on the Loewinger hit parade show.

State opera soprano Teresa Stich-Randall inked by Chicago Lyric opera for coming season.

Lonny Epstein of N.Y. will be on jury of International Beethoven competition for pianists here.

Mezzosoprano Regina Resnik to appear in Vienna State Opera, "Carmen," "Rheingold" and "Don Carlos."

Fourth International Conference of International Society for Music Education (ISME) will be held here, June 22-28.

Josefstadt Theatre will present Indro Montanelli's "Dreams are Dying at Dawn" during festivals. The Hungarian 1956 uprising is the theme.

OBITUARIES

POWEL CROSLEY, JR.

Powel Crosley Jr., 74, a pioneer and former giant of the radio industry, died of a heart attack March 28 in Cincinnati, where he was president and principal owner of the National League Reds baseball club. The Crosley Broadcasting Co., steming from station WLW which bowed in 1922 as a 50-watter, was sold several years ago to Avco Corp.

Crosley began manufacture of radio sets in 1921 and later added refrigerators as well as other home appliances. His pioneering with the small Crosley auto failed due to lack of early acceptance. WLW, dubbed "cradle of the stars" and with many industry firsts to its credit, was recently awarded first annual mike award by Broadcast Pioneers.

Surviving are a brother, Lewis M., who's associated in various Crosley enterprises; a sister and daughter. He was wed four times; two of his former wives are living.

NED (Clothes) NORTON

Ned Norton, 79, formerly in vaude, burlesque and Broadway revues as a straight man, died March 26 in Hollywood of a heart attack. He belonged to the old crew of "natty dressers" and his theatrical sobriquet throughout most of his adult life was Ned (Clothes) Norton. It was the old way of spelling "sharp."

Norton's full credits are not detailed but one of his turns was with Ada Ayers.

At VARIETY presstime on Tues. there was no word from the Coast as to funeral or survivors. Norton was one of the colony of former vaudevillians living in L.A. about which Kitty Doner made reference in a recent piece in this paper.

JOHN W. CONSIDINE JR.

John W. Considine Jr., 63, vet film producer, died March 22 in Hollywood. His interest in entertainment biz stemmed from his father, a partner in the old Sullivan & Considine vaude circuit which extended from Skagway to New York. As a silent producer he turned out such films as Valentino's "Son of the Sheik," Norma Talmadge's "Kiki" and John Barrymore's "The Tempest."

Associated for years with Joseph M. Schenck, he made most of his talking productions at Metro, where he was under contract until retirement some years ago. Among his films there were "Boys Town," "Young Tom Edison," "The Voice of Bugle Ann" and "Johnny Eager."

Surviving are his mother and three children, John W. 3d, Timothy and Erin. He was divorced from Carmen Pantages, daughter of the late Alexander Pantages, vaude magnate, several years ago.

EDRIC CUNDELL

Edric Cundell, 68, conductor and composer, died March 19 in Ashwell, Hertfordshire, Eng. He studied the horn at Trinity School of Music and later joined its staff. He formed his own chamber music orchestra, then became a staff member at Glyndebourne. He later succeeded Sir Landon Ronald as principal of the Guildhall School of Music, retiring after 21 years in 1959.

At various times Cundell conducted the London Philharmonic, London Symphony, Royal Philharmonic, Philharmonia, Sadler's Wells Opera and BBC Symphony orchestras. He was chairman of the Aets Council Music Panel from 1951 to 1953.

Cundell composed several suites, choral works and a piano concerto. His best known work was a symphonic poem called "Serbia" which he wrote in a dugout in Serbia during World War I.

Survived by his wife.

RUTH MAITLAND

Ruth Maitland, 81, veteran actress, died March 12 in Dorking, Eng. A Londoner, she made her first appearance at the Garrick in 1898 in "The Nettle." She appeared with H. B. Irving at the St. James' Theatre from 1908-10.

Though she appeared in more serious roles such as Mrs. Undershaft in "Major Barbara" and Lady Wishfort in "The Way Of The World," Miss Maitland was mostly associated with such light entertainments as "Yoicks," "Crest of The Wave," "Mr. Cinders" and many Vernon Sylvaine farces such as "Aren't Men Beasts!," "A Spot of Bother," "Women Aren't Angels," "Madame Louise," "One Wild Oat" and "Will Any Gentleman?"

TOM KIVLAN

Tom Kivlan, 70, v.p. of George H. Hartman Advertising in Chicago, died March 14 in Vero Beach, Fla. where he was vacationing. He was noted in the radio and advertising fields for his extensive use of "boxtop" techniques and was involved in the creation of radio's first "Man on the Street" interview shows. Careers he helped to further in radio included those of Tommy Bartlett, Eddie & Fanny Cavanaugh, and Cliff Arquette. Prior to joining the Hartman agency in 1937, as radio director, Kivlan was a salesman for WBBM for 12 years.

Wife, three daughters and 10 grandchildren survive.

VAL HARRIS

Val Harris, onetime vaude performer who teamed with Vera Griffin in an act billed as Harris & Griffin, died March 17 in Van Nuys, Cal., after a two months' illness. He was famed for his stage and screen characterization of a rube comic.

Harris & Griffin was a standard act for years on the B. F. Keith and Orpheum circuits. They also trouped in England on the Moss and Stoll loops. Couple appeared at the Palace, N. Y., in 1925 in a comedy sketch which saw Harris portraying an old codger while Miss Griffin had the role of a showgirl stranded in a small town.

V. G. FREITAG

V. G. Freitag, 67, pioneer Los Angeles radio announcer, died of a heart attack March 22 in L.A. He started in the '20s as an announcer, and became manager of station KMPC, where he developed such groups as the then-pop western group, Beverly Hill Billies.

Later, he simultaneously managed three stations, KMPR, KMTR and KRKD, and also managed KMIG in nearby Inglewood. At the time of his death he was active as announcer with several local stations.

Surviving are his wife and son, Willis, audio engineer on Red Skelton show.

ETZI COVATO

Etzi Covato, 60, longtime bandleader, died March 14 in Pittsburgh. He started in show business as a musician, then became a bandleader and a night club operator in Pittsburgh. He owned the Flotilla Club, the Plaza Cafe, the Italian Gardens and the Villa Madrid. He had been in ill health for the past 10 years.

Survived by his wife, one daughter and two sons, one of whom is Nick Covato who was also a bandleader and emcee and is now president of Bruno-Lenchner, one of Pitt's top brokerage firms.

GEORGE H. MOORE

George H. Moore, 77, pioneer Cincinnati radio time salesman, died March 18 in that city after an illness of two months, the only separation from his clients in 35 years.

He had been with WCKY from the time it went on the air in 1929. Previously he was a staffer of WFBE, forerunner of WCBO, selling direct to customers before ad agencies entered the field.

His wife and two stepdaughters survive.

CHARLIE MARKS

Charlie Marks, veteran end man and producer of Marks Minstrels & Variety Shows, died of a heart attack March 21 in Philadelphia. His minstrel company performed in Philly, Atlantic City and throughout the Pennsylvania-New Jersey area.

Surviving are his wife, three sons and his mother.

STEWART J. BLEAKLEY JR.

Stewart J. Bleakley Jr., 31, an announcer for WSJS-TV, Winston-Salem, N.C., died March 17 in that city from injuries received in an auto accident March 5. Prior to joining WSJS-TV, he was an announcer with radio station WBBB, Burlington, N.C.

Surviving are his wife, son and parents.

EARL MABRY

Earl Mabry, 50, vet theatre lobby display artist, died March 14 in Hollywood. For the past 30 years he serviced both Hollywood-L.A. area and theatres throughout the country in creation of unusual and attractive lobby displays.

His wife, Ethel, also an artist, survives.

GORDON COWN

Gordon Cown, 53, former theatre operator, died recently in Winnipeg, Man. He bought the Lyceum theatre in Gladstone, Man., in 1943, and later had the Gaiety theatre and the Shamrock drive-in there.

His wife, son and two daughters survive.

BENJAMIN J. LOURIE

Benjamin J. Lourie, 62, division manager for Columbia Pictures in Chicago, died of cerebral thrombosis March 23 in Miami Beach where he was vacationing. He was with Columbia for 37 years, 18 of which were in Chicago.

Surviving are his wife, son and grandson.

CHARLES WORCESTER

Charles Worcester, 47, news director of radio station WMT, Cedar Rapids, Iowa, died March 21 in an auto accident near his home. He was formerly farm director for the CBS network and KYSM, Mankato, Minn.

Three sons, injured in the same accident, and his wife survive.

ROBERT J. BURNS

Robert J. Burns, 33, film editor in Foote, Cone & Belding broadcast dept., died March 21 in Chicago. He had been with the agency 11 years.

Wife, daughter and mother survive.

ANDE LAMB

Ande Lamb, 60, vet motion picture and tv writer, died of a heart attack in Hollywood March 16.

He wrote many of the feature and tv "Hopalong Cassidy" scripts, and worked on the "Cisco Kid" and "Craig Kennedy" series.

GARE SCHWARTZ

Gare Schwartz, 70, vet film editor, was burned to death March 18 when fire swept his Santa Monica, Cal., apartment.

He was with 20th-Fox at the time of his death.

RALPH MARTIN

Ralph Martin, 81, former Columbia Pictures property master, died in Hollywood March 18. He started as a stagehand in New York in 1909.

His wife and daughter survive.

Mrs. Miriam Sears Marks, 61, former actress, known professionally as Miriam Sears, died March 22 in New York. She attended the American Academy of Dramatic Arts in N. Y. and appeared on Broadway. Her daughter and sister survive.

Mrs. Kathleen Lougheed Freeland, 83, actress, known professionally as Kathleen Kinsella, died March 25 in Washington, D. C. She had appeared in numerous Broadway productions. Her son survives.

Mrs. Henrietta Perry, 95, mother of the late vaudeville entertainer Laddie Cliff, died Feb. 28 in Rockville Centre, New York.

Milton A. Grossberg, husband of Anne Grossberg, private secretary to producer Sam Spiegel, died March 16 in New York.

Mother, of Mike Ripps, film producer, died March 9 in Mobile, Ala.

Sister, 84, of director John Ford, died in Hollywood March 11.

Jack Kapp

Charlie Morrison
MARCH 22, 1957
"ARMS AROUND YOU"
Mary and Marilyn

Henry H. Hamilton
(1876 - 1955)
Alice W. Hamilton
(1874 - 1953)
In Loving Memory
"BOY"

No 'Scabbing'

Continued from page 3

happy to have the Americans there, as long as they make "British" films of the quality of "Sons and Lovers" or "Room at The Top," films which could not have been made anywhere else and thus, in long run, redound to the good of the entire British film industry.

Sets Tied Up

Elvin commented on 20th-Fox's "Cleopatra" troubles by noting that if the space in three British studios occupied by the late "Cleo" sets had been available, as many as three films might have been made in the last year which were not made. That, he said, was a secondary but important effect of 20th's eventual decision to abandon "Cleo" filming in Britain. Exec added, however, 20th prexy Spyros P. Skouras had always been an A-1 employer and the unions had no beefs on that score.

No 'Cleo' Talk

Continued from page 3

tainment medium, and Mamoulian would not curb anybody's right to shoot anywhere in the world for greater authenticity in filmmaking he himself has several international projects under consideration. But he suggests that a number of films which should have been made in Hollywood, were made elsewhere.

The major Hollywood problem, however, is not so-called "runaway" production, he says, but superficially conceived films which contribute nothing "to the peaceful, the civilized and the good life." As examples of films which do serve that function, he cited "Room at The Top" and "Never On Sunday."

No 'Cleo' Comment

The director declined to add to the folklore surrounding 20th's "Cleopatra" problems. He did say, however, that he felt he had to resign when he saw the picture which he had wanted to make would be impossible to realize. Also that he had had absolutely no problems with star Elizabeth Taylor. "She is not only a wonderful human being, but a great actress," and the only person who could possibly play the part.

Asked to comment on 20th's eventual abandonment of its intention to film the property in London, Mamoulian said he was reminded of the story, perhaps apocrophal, about the captain of the ill-fated Italian liner, Andrea Doria. When, after the ship had sunk, he was asked what had happened, the captain reportedly shrugged his shoulders and said, "Eh!"

The director and his wife are scheduled to leave New York for Washington either today (Wed.) or tomorrow, before heading back to Hollywood where he'll decide on his next project. Possibilities include a film to be made in Yugoslavia, with both the moral blessing of the U. S. government and the financial backing of the Yugoslav government; a non-operatic version of "Carmen" which would utilize flamenco music, and a musical fantasy based on Tchaikovsky's "Nutcracker Suite" which would pool American, French and Russian film resources.

The director, who helped pioneer a new era in American musical comedy with such legit landmarks as "Porgy and Bess," "Oklahoma" and "Carousel," also is studying three scripts for new legit musicals, including one based on Henry James' "The Ambassadors" and another on the life of Robert Burns.

MARRIAGES

Roberta Weinberg to Neil Anderson, New York, March 26. He's an attorney with Broadcast Music Inc.

Edna K. Hanna to John T. Strósnider, Seattle, March 11. Bride is sales promotion manager for KOMO Radio and KOMO-TV there.

Joan De Burgh to Ray Elston, Bradford, Eng., March 18. Bride is a showgirl-singer; he is an actor-vocalist.

Loretta Nicholson to Richard Harrison, Hollywood, March 24. Bride's an actress, daughter of AIP prexy James H. Nicholson; he's an actor.

Patricia Kane to Richard Earle, Largo, Fla., March 17. Bride is a publicist; he's a legit producer.

Heddy Jonna Jensen to Steve Cochran, Las Vegas, March 20. He's the actor.

Gillian Bosworth to Nevile Jason, London, March 21. Bride is an actress-dancer; he is a tv actor.

Christianne Martell to Miguel Aleman Jr., March 22, Mexico City, Mex. She's an actress and former Miss Universe; he's a lawyer, film producer and son of the former president of Mexico.

Janet Kaup to Dan Sorkin, Chicago, March 23. She's a nitery publicist there; he's disk jockey for station WCFL.

Dr. Opal Hepler to Elmer Upton, Park Ridge, Ill., March 18. Groom is secretary-treasurer of Balaban & Katz theatre chain in Chi.

Jeanne L. Meyer to Jack Marshall, March 11, Westport, Conn. She is the former CBS staff writer, now with the public relations firm of Edwin Lee. He is a pianist.

BIRTHS

Mr. and Mrs. David Platz, daughter, London, March 15. Father owns the Essex music publishing company.

Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Abbruzzese, daughter, Queens, N. Y., March 18. Mother was formerly with the CBS-TV press dept.; father is a commercial artist.

Mr. and Mrs. Jack Levin, son, New York, March 21. Father is a theatrical attorney; mother is the former Clarice Gordon, ex-production staffer for CBS-TV.

Mr. and Mrs. Jack Rattigan, daughter, Philadelphia, March 21. Father is disk jockey with WRCV Radio there.

Mr. and Mrs. Ruggiero Ricci, daughter, Geneva, Switzerland, March 18. Mother is former Argentine actress Valma Rodriguez; father is the California-born concert violinist.

Mr. and Mrs. Robert Dornan, daughter, Santa Monica, Cal., March 22. Father is an actor and nephew of Jack Haley.

Mr. and Mrs. Forrest Duke, son, March 19, Las Vegas. Mother is Philly Duke, singer, whose professional name was formerly Phyllis Paul; father is the Las Vegas Review-Journal columnist and VARIETY correspondent there.

Mr. and Mrs. Michael Lewis, daughter, March 20, New York. Mother is actress Valerie Cardew; father is an actor and son of Sinclair Lewis and Dorothy Thompson.

Mr. and Mrs. Sid Samuels, son, March 23, New York. Father is director of foreign versions for 20th-Fox International Corp.

Mr. and Mrs. Irwin Winkler, son, New York, March 22. Father is in the tv syndication dept. of the William Morris Agency.

Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Beaudin, son, March 23 in Chicago. Father is prexy of WLS there.

Mr. and Mrs. Alan Sands, son, March 22, New York. Mother is folk singer Cecile Diamond; father is a radio-tv producer-writer.

3:58 P.M. MARCH 22: BRITISH JURY AT LONDON'S OLD BAILEY FOUND FIVE MEMBERS OF A RUSSIAN SPY RING GUILTY AND THE LORD CHIEF JUSTICE SENTENCED THEM TO PRISON FOR A RECORD TOTAL OF 95 YEARS.

8:30 P.M. MARCH 22: GRANADA PRE-EMPTED TOP VARIETY SHOW AND HAD THE WHOLE BACKGROUND STORY ON THE AIR IN A 50-MINUTE SPECIAL.

LONDON DAILY MAIL: "Had me transfixed." "... consumate television ... a journalistic scoop to which Fleet Street must doff its battered Trilby hat in rueful admiration." "...a brilliant reconstruction of how the trap was sprung."

DAILY MIRROR: "Fascinating..." "The more exciting because it was fact and not something from a script-writer's imagination."

DAILY HERALD: "The real sensation ...was in Granada throwing out a peak-hour variety show in favour of a news feature." "The most ambitious piece of up-to-the-minute home TV journalism I have ever seen."

EVENING NEWS: "(Independent Television) had one of its finest hours." "Nothing quite like this has ever been done before on British television."

Scanned from the collection of the Mikrofilmarchiv der deutschsprachigen Presse, in collaboration with Michael Cowan and the Department of Film Studies, University of St Andrews

Post-production coordinated by

MEDIA HISTORY DIGITAL LIBRARY

www.mediahistoryproject.org

Sponsored by the ACLS Digital Extension Grant, "Globalizing and Enhancing the Media History Digital Library" (2020-2021).

Co-sponsored by the Moving Image Research Laboratory (Montreal) and the University of Wisconsin-Madison Office of the Vice Chancellor for Research and Graduate Education.